County incumbents advance to November

Current, former City Council members to square off for Wayne's mayoral seat

Sixty-six seniors from Wayne High School visited the Wayne County Courthouse last week to cast ballots for the May 2010 Primary election. Wayne High School government instructor Josh Johnson routinely visits the courthouse with his students to see the democratic process in action. Earlier this school year the students visited the courthouse to register to vote. They also took part in County Government Day activities in early April. Prior to casting ballots, County Clerk Debra Finn spoke to the students and explained the different ballots and gave voting instructions to the students.

A current and former member of the Wayne City Council will square off in November to decide who will be the city's next mayor, while all three incumbents for county races that faced primary challenges survived and will be running unopposed in the general election.

With a surprisingly-active voter turnout of 33 percent, voters in Wayne County made their feelings known on the various local, county, state and federal races. Winners in Tuesday's primaries advance to the November 2 general election.

Locally, Current City Councilman Kenneth Chamberlain was the clear leader in the primary balloting for Wayne's mayoral seat, which will be vacated this November when Lois Shelton's term runs out. Chamberlain received 430 votes (54.78 percent) to earn one of the two spots in the November election. Former City Councilwoman Jane O'Leary picked up 281 (35.8 percent) votes. Randall Pick finished a distant third with 67 (8.54 percent) votes, with seven write-in ballots cast.

Chamberlain was the leading vote-getter in all four wards in the City of Wayne, picking up more votes than the combined total of the other two candidates in each ward.

"I'm really excited about it, and I want to thank everybody for getting out and voting," he said as the results were announced. "I'm looking forward to campaigning this fall and meeting more people."

O'Leary, who said she didn't campaign aggressively during the primary race, is looking forward to the challenge of running against Chamberlain.

"I'm very excited about it," she said. "I think it's going to be a challenge, but I'm looking forward to it. I'm looking forward to getting to work on campaigning."

County Sheriff LeRoy W. Janssen appears headed for what he said will be his eighth and final term as the county's top law enforcement officer. He received 765 (56.54 percent) votes to 588 (43.46 percent) for challenger Cory Moeller. Janssen currently is running unopposed, as no Democrat candidate chose to run for the seat.

"It's an opportunity to fulfill a career," he said. "I've been a part of law enforcement for a number of years and tried to impact the community and bring the best law enforcement we could to the county, and I appreciated the competition."

Current Wayne County Commissioner representatives Kelvin Wurdeman and James Rabe also survived their primary elections and are currently running

The old District 51 property west of town was sold during Monday's Wayne Board of Education meeting. The school board will enter into a purchase agreement with a Pilger family to sell the property for $3,011.

The Wayne Board of Education received just one bid for the old District 51 property and decided to go ahead and accept that bid during Monday's school board meeting.

Dunklau Family Limited Partnership of Pilger made the bid of $3,011 for the property, which the board unanimously accepted during Monday's meeting.

"I was hoping we could get $10,000 (for the property), but the offer is better than a poke in the eye," board member Rod Garwood said. "It's not like we have a lot of options or a lot of use for it, and this will get the property off our tax rolls."

The board authorized superintendent Mark Lenihan to execute a purchase agreement for the sale of the property.

The board discussed negotiations on a new contract with the district's teachers, but no decision was reached. Lenihan said talks between the two sides are ongoing.

21 kids + 4.0 GPA = College Degree

Right before Mother's Day, Terssa Markworth of Jackson graduated from Wayne State College with a 4.0 grade-point average.

Other WSC students earned 4.0 GPAs, however she's the only one who did so while balancing commitments as a parent to more children than a varsity lineup roster.

"Yes, I have 21 children, but most people think that means chaos . . . not true," Markworth said. "Organization is one of my strengths. About 10 years ago, I completed a Gallup survey. It told me something to the effect of, 'Should I be given a small country to run with changes every day, I would thrive.' I think they were right on. I have a very high energy personality. My favorite thing . . . coffee."

Ask her how she did it, does it and continues to do it. She'll tell you each one of her children has their own story. No "I" in team takes on a new meaning for the Markworth family. Their mother tells how she does it by what she doesn't say. She doesn't give a method, a list, a time management program. She tells about her children and talks of helping them through the world.

"The world is not always kind to children," Terssa said. "I may not have birthed each one of these children, but they are my children just the same as another might think of her own. As adopted children and many who have been able to stay together as siblings in the same home, they have been given a gift. It wasn't wrapped, and they may not even recognize it until they are older and look back at their lives, but it is a gift with great value."

One thing that she and her husband, Doug, have done through their 24 years of marriage is try to adopt siblings. Keeping families together has been a goal.

"People think nothing of the money that they would spend on a new car. If they only realized how many lives they could touch with that same amount," she said.

Many children go through the foster care system in Nebraska. Currently, there are 463,000 children in the U.S. foster care system and 123,000 of these children are waiting for families to adopt them, according to a national public service announcement campaign with the AD Council.

"I do public speaking about adoption because that is where my heart lies," Markworth said. "I see the potential in these kids. How would any of us react or get through life if we were reminded of a list of what we have done wrong in life?"

Markworth sees what children can do right. She tries to find their passion, what they are good at and, what they like to be involved with.

One of her children was 8 when she adopted him. He will graduate fourth in his class. She talks of her pride in him rather than her own accomplishments. A public speaker, photographer, philosopher and many other hats are worn by a woman with time for putting others first.

"I try to be approachable enough that I can speak almost anywhere," Markworth said. "My children have not always been perfect, we all make mistakes. We love them through everything and try to grow them into civic leaders, compassionate people and faithful friends. I hope to inspire someone else to change their corner of the world."

The Markworth's world seemed larger when their son in the Air Force, Douglas, was stationed first in Qatar, Iraq, and now Japan. He will make the trip to Wayne for his mother's graduation. Her anticipation of this homecoming already brings tears to her eyes when she talks about it weeks before the event. She and her husband were also in the Air Force and the biological parents of Douglas.

As she walks through the Wayne State campus, she recognizes other students and asks them about their lives and their friends. She is other-centered.

"I feel Wayne State College should capitalize on how they help non-traditional older students achieve a degree," she said. "Faculty members here go out of their way to help students with families be successful. When my youngest child Leo turned 12, I looked into finishing my bachelor's degree. Wayne was the perfect choice! I have had wonderful professors who listened to my goals and encouraged me to reach each goal and try for more. Professors Ron and Deb Whitt and Rich Murphy have been very encouraging. Talk with your professors."

Listed on the dean's list and as a member of Lambda Pi Eta National Communication Honor Society, Markworth's natural abilities have been channeled into a communication studies and organizational leadership major at Wayne State College. Following her program completion at WSC, she will begin studies in the graduate studies program at the University of South Dakota (USD) in Vermillion.

"I interviewed for graduate teaching assistant position on April 12. I received a confirmation e-mail on April 23 that I am a new teaching assistant at USD in Speech Communication," she said. "I have delayed finishing my bachelor's degree for nearly 20 years. I wanted to spend all my time and energy on my children."

unopposed this November.

Wurdeman claimed the Republican nomination in District 1 with 284 (62.14 percent) votes compared to 173 (37.86 percent) for Kelly Meyer, while Rabe's 346 (62.57 percent) votes easily outdistanced that of former commissioner Myron Miller's 204 (36.89 percent) votes.

While both county commissioners were happy to have won their primaries, neither is willing to sit back and relax, recalling that District 2 commissioner Dean Urbach won his election in 2008 on a write-in campaign.

"You can never count your eggs before they are hatched, because Dean proved that a write-in (candidate) can make it," Wurdeman said. "I'm relieved to have won, and I'm glad also that the younger generation is looking into politics because they are our future."

"Dean showed how it can be done, but I want to thank everybody for voting for me," Rabe added. "I like working with people and helping them out, and I look forward to continue doing that."

Janssen won all but one of the 10 precincts in the county, while Wurdeman and Rabe had the higher vote total in each of their respective precincts.

Two local businesses sell alcohol to minors

Although the majority of the 18 Wayne businesses were closed, two out of six of the on- and off-sale establishments sold alcohol to underage purchasers last week during alcohol compliance checks.

A shoulder tap operation was also conducted resulting in the following citations: one procuring alcohol for a minor and five minor in possession of alcohol.

"Adults, particularly those adults who are close in age to their minor friends, tend to be a regular source of alcohol for kids," said Chief Lance Webster of the Wayne Police Department. "During prom and graduation season it's important to let the community know we're serious about enforcing the underage drinking laws, including citing adults and businesses that make it easy for youth to access alcohol."

Of the two businesses that failed the compliance checks, only one outlet, White Dog Pub, located at 102 N. Main St., had a prior sale to a minor violation on record with the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission from November of 2008. The other business that failed the compliance check was Melodee Lanes, 1221 North Lincoln Street.

Historically, the non-compliant rate has fluctuated from a high 33 percent in 2008, with six of 23 businesses failing the compliance checks; to 14 percent in May 2009, where one out of 14 sold alcohol to minors; to a low zero percent non-compliant rate in September 2009, when five businesses were checked.

"These numbers reflect a strong need that enforcements to reduce youth access to alcohol continue," Diane Riibe, executive director for Project Extra Mile, said. "The research reflects that the deterrent effect of these operations dissipates after three months, which only reinforces the strong need for these efforts."

The Wayne Police Department worked collaboratively with Project Extra Mile to conduct the efforts.

Big 10 bad for Husker grid future

Monday evening, a good friend of mine called with some shocking news.

"Hey, it looks like Nebraska is moving to the Big 10 Conference," he told me.

Can't be, I said.

"A radio station in Kansas City reported that Nebraska and Missouri are joining Rutgers and possibly Notre Dame in moving to the Big 10," he insisted.

As it turns out, officials at UNL are insisting that they have not been offered a chance to make the move, which can mean one of two things:

- They haven't been contacted about moving, or,

- They are still trying to finish the paperwork to apply for membership and don't want anybody to know they are preparing to jump ship.

Whether or not Nebraska moves to the Big 10 (plus I-OWHAT?) remains to be seen, but if you're a football fan, you have got to hate the possibility of Nebraska moving out of the Texas-dominated Big 12 to the hoity-toity Big 10.

Let's be serious, folks - this is not a football-related move Nebraska may (or may not) be making. This move is all about money and exposure, something they get enough of in the Big 12, but will get even more of in the Big 10.

However, since it's football that drives the economic engine of most of the major college athletic programs on this planet, let's talk about how great a move, from a football perspective, this would be for Nebraska.

But let's be honest - it will make a BCS bowl bid, and a potential (mythical) national championship game, a lot tougher than you think.

In previous years, Nebraska has had to contend with the resurgence of programs like Missouri, Kansas, Texas Tech and Oklahoma State, all programs who have been in the top 10 nationally at some point during the past five years. We all know about how dominant Texas and Oklahoma have been, with both programs winning, or playing for, national titles in the past decade.

A move to the Big 10 would take most of those big-ticket, nationally-prominent, BCS difference-making opportunities off the table.

Illinois? Northwestern? Minnesota? Michigan? Indiana? Purdue? Wisconsin? Michigan State? What have these programs done lately, outside of trading spots in the bottom half of the Big 10 standings and getting an occasional low-tier bowl game?

Oh, sure, there's Ohio State and Penn State, the perpetually-overrated kings of the conference. And then there's Iowa, another program that is a perennial under-achiever. I suppose they would give Nebraska a run for their money if the Cornhuskers were to move.

But let's be serious - Nebraska's program has turned around under Bo Pelini, and it's a pretty good bet the Cornhuskers would spoil the welcoming party in year one.

The Big 10 is the most overrated football conference on the planet. In the last 40 years, the Big 10 Conference has won ONE mythical national football title. Were it not for the Rose Bowl, the conference couldn't spell "major bowl bid" if you spotted them the first 10 letters.

Nebraska's national championship hopes will be hurt by a move to the Big 10 Conference. Butting heads with Texas and Oklahoma gives Nebraska a puncher's chance of a BCS bowl bid and a potential national title game. Knocking helmets with Purdue or Michigan is going to hurt the Huskers' chances of finishing in the top two and earning a shot at the (mythical) title.

Unfortunately, it won't be football that is the ultimate factor in whether or not the rumors of Nebraska's move to the Big 10 are true. Money rules the day, which is great for the athletic department, but bad for the future fortunes of the Husker football program.

Wildcats ride pitching to NSIC title

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. - When you've got good pitching and solid defense, you're a hard softball team to beat.

The Wayne State softball team used those two ingredients to capture the school's first-ever Northern Sun Conference Softball Tournament title Saturday afternoon with a pair of 2-0 wins over 12th-ranked and NSIC regular-season champion Augustana. The Wildcats earn the NSIC's automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament with a 40-12 record following the win, marking their second straight trip to the NCAA Div. II Tournament.

Goetzinger was brilliant on the mound for the Wildcats, going a perfect 4-0 and not allowing a single run with three shutouts.

"She had a great weekend," coach Krista Unger said. "She gave up zero runs, and I think we may have given up just one error on defense, and you can pitch really well when the defense has your back like that. The girls really took care of business."

Goetzinger was joined by Amy Sandstrom and Kassie Nurton on the all-tournament team, and Unger said both Sandstrom and Nurton were outstanding for the Wildcats in their run to their first conference tournament title.

"Kassie came up with some huge hits, and it was good to see that because she's usually a slapper and she showed she's got some power behind her," Unger said. "Amy made some great catches for us and did a good job at the plate as well."

The Wildcats opened the scoring in the first inning of the championship game with three hits off Augustana starter Ashley Meyer to take the early lead. Nurton singled and later scored on Jennifer Radley's single to give WSC the early 1-0 lead.

Augustana's lone scoring threat on Wildcat starter Katie Goetzinger came in the second inning when the Vikings recorded back-to-back singles with one out to put runners on first and second, but Goetzinger then struck out the next two Augustana batters to get out of the inning, and the Vikings were never a threat offensively after that.

Wayne State added another run in the top of the sixth when Radley opened the frame with a walk. Pinch-runner Alesha Finkey advanced to second on Hannah Engelkamp's sacrifice bunt. Goetzinger's groundout to second sent Finkey to third, and she later scored on a wild pitch to make the score 2-0.

That would be more than enough for Goetzinger, who pitched her second straight shutout in the same day against the 12th-ranked Vikings. She allowed just three hits and struck out five without issuing a walk.

Wayne State had seven hits in the game. Nurton capped a stellar tournament by going 2-for-4 with a double and a run scored. Sandstrom, Blaire Kuhl, Radley, Goetzinger and Brittany Greenwood each singled to round out Wayne State's seven hits.

Wayne State College junior pitcher Katie Goetzinger tossed a two-hit shutout with 10 strikeouts to lead the Wildcats in a 2-0 win over the top-seeded Vikings in the winner's bracket final, helping her own cause by igniting the Wayne State offense to break a scoreless tie.

The only runs of the game were scored by the Wildcats in the fifth inning. Goetzinger laced a one-out double to right center field. Greenwood singled with two outs to send Goetzinger to third, Sandstrom delivered an RBI single to right to score Goetzinger, then stole second base and on the play, allowing Greenwood to come home on a throwing error.

That's all the support Goetzinger needed, as she out-battled Meyer (Wayne State sports information) Katie Goetzinger (above) threw back-to-back shutouts against regular-season champion Augustana to lead Wayne State to the Northern Sun Conference tournament title Saturday. The junior hurler threw three shutouts and had a 0.00 earned-run average. Amy Sandstrom was one of three Wildcats named to the NSIC All-Tournament team.

Wayne State to enjoy home-field advantage in regional

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

There's nothing like home cooking, and Wayne State's softball team will have plenty of it this weekend.

Wayne State was selected as one of 16 regional sites for the NCAA Div. II Softball Tournament, and will play host to one of the Central Regional four-team double-elimination tournaments this weekend at Pete Chapman Softball Complex. Action begins Friday, with the finals set for Sunday at 12 p.m. The winner advances to a best-of-three super regional next weekend, with the winner advancing to the Div. II College World Series May 27-31 in St. Joseph, Mo.

Wayne State picked up the No. 2 seed on the strength of a 13-game winning streak that peaked with the team's first-ever Northern Sun Conference tournament championship. The Wildcats beat regular-season champ Augustana twice on its home field, and now the Vikings will have a chance to return the favor as they join Minnesota Duluth and Concordia-St. Paul in this weekend's four-team tournament.

Being at home, though, has its advantages.

"It's an advantage for us because we have a nice field and we'll draw some big crowds," coach Krista Unger said. "At this point in the season, everybody's good and it's anybody's game, and it will be nice to have some huge games at our field."

Wayne State (40-12) will face Minnesota Duluth in a first round game on Friday at 12 p.m. The Bulldogs are 32-15 and have qualified for the NCAA tournament for the first time since 2007. The other first-round game finds Augustana (42-10) taking on Concordia-St. Paul (34-15) at 2:30 p.m. Both teams are in the tournament for the first time since 2006.

Wayne State was in the middle of its only real funk of the season when

Golf coach is still looking for right fit going into districts

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

One hole can make or break a round of golf, and the Wayne High varsity found their breaking point on the 18th at Wayne Country Club.

The Blue Devils' top three golfers had a rough go on the home course's final hole, and that was a difference maker as the Blue Devils stumbled to a fourth-place finish in their own "Mac" Invitational Thursday.

The Blue Devils finished with a 347, but the team's top three golfers shot a combined 13-over par on the 18th hole.

"Boy, 18 was a killer," coach Dave Hix said. "Especially when your top three go 13-over. We just got off to a really slow start, and we were able to recover a little bit, but we didn't get focused early enough."

Cool and cloudy conditions greeted the 20 teams that competed in the final major tournament before next week's districts. The back nine proved to be a problem for the Blue Devil varsity, as they came in with a team score of 177 to finish with a 347, five shots behind third-place Blair and 22 behind team champion Hartington Cedar Catholic, which finished with three golfers in the six, all shooting 80 or better. Blair's Collin Vacek shot a 4-over-par 76 to take medalist honors.

Collin Jeffries led the Blue Devils with an 81, good for eighth place overall, and Hix said he could have been in the hunt for medalist honors were it not for a rough day with the putter.

"He probably should have shot 74 or 75 today, and he's really struggling with his putting right now," Hix said. "His mechanics look pretty good on it, so we'll see what we can do to get things straightened out there for districts."

Dustin Stegemann earned a 15th place medal as the low golfer on Wayne's "B" team, coming in with a round of 85 to lead the "B" team to a sixth-place finish. He and Jeffries were the only Blue Devil linksters to finish in the top 20.

As for next week's district meet, Hix said he was hoping to have

Wildcats go 0-2 in NSIC tournament

ST. CLOUD, Minn. - The Wayne State baseball team was eliminated from the NSIC tournament Thursday afternoon following a 13-2 loss to Southwest Minnesota State at Joe Faber Field.

The Mustangs broke open a close game in the final two innings scoring, 11 runs in the seventh and eighth innings, to send the Wildcats home for the season.

Southwest Minnesota State got on the board first, scoring a run in the bottom of the second inning. The Wildcats tied the game in the top of the third when John Plasha hit an RBI single up the middle, scoring Joe Wendte. Wayne State added another run in the top of the fourth on Jake Ritzdorf's RBI single, scoring Jarett Jackson.

The Mustangs tied the game at 2-2 in the bottom of the sixth, but the Wildcats put pressure on the Mustangs in the top of the seventh inning as Nick Bidroski and Plasha reached on singles and Mike Bisenius loaded the bases after being hit by the pitch. Southwest Minnesota State pitcher Jared Pick got out of the jam to leave the game tied at 2-2, and Southwest Minnesota carried that momentum from there, erupting for five runs in the seventh and six more in the eighth.

Bisenius went 2-for-3 to lead

Wendte, Goetzinger named to area All-Academic honors

Wayne State's Joe Wendte and Katie Goetzinger were named to the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-District VII First Team as voted on by members of the College Sports Information Directors of America.

With the selections, both advance to the national ballot and will be considered for Academic All-American honors. It's the second straight year that both athletes have been honored for their academics.

Goetzinger, a junior from Harlan, Iowa, earned the academic honor with a 3.77 cumulative grade-point average majoring in applied human and sport physiology. On the field, Goetzinger was named the 2010 NSIC Pitcher of the Year

Austen Wisroth took the loss for Wayne State, going 6 1/3 innings, allowing seven runs on seven hits.

Wayne State opened the tournament with a 7-4 to top-seeded Minnesota State in the first round of the tournament.

The Wildcats jumped out to an early 4-0 in the first three innings, but the Mavericks posted seven runs in the fourth inning to end hopes of a first-round upset.

The Wildcats opened the scoring with two runs in the second inning. Josh Nielsen reached on a one-out single to left and advanced to second on a two-out bunt single by Brandon Polk. Wendte followed with a single to center field that scored Nielsen, while Polk scored on the same play thanks to a fielding error.

Wayne State added two more runs the next inning to take a 4-0 advantage. Bidroski led off the inning with a single up the middle and scored on Plasha's double to center. Plasha moved to third when Jarett Jackson reached on an error and scored on Nielsen's RBI groundout to first base.

The Mavericks put up seven runs in the bottom of the fourth inning, using seven hits to take control of the game, including a pair of two-run doubles and a three-run homer.

Bidroski, Polk and Plasha each went 2-for-4 and scored a run for the Wildcats. Each player also added a run scored for Wayne State. John Snyder took the loss for the Wildcats, going 3 1/3 innings and allowing seven runs on six hits.

Wayne State finishes with a 26-23 overall record and finished 21-10 in the NSIC. Six seniors played their final game as Wildcat - Joe Wendte, John Snyder, John Plasha, Brandon Polk, Sam Rathbun and Josh Voth.

Five Wayne State players selected to Northern Sun All-Conference

Five Wayne State softball players were named to the 2010 NSIC All-Conference Softball Team.

Leading the way was junior pitcher Katie Goetzinger, who was selected first-team All-NSIC for the third straight season and was named 2010 NSIC Softball Pitcher of the Year.

to get the Wildcats the win. She struck out 10 without a walk while allowing just two hits.

Wayne State opened the tournament Friday morning with a 4-1 win over the University of Mary. They got two runs in the third when Nurton tripled home Aeriell Earleywine, then cored on Kuhl's infield single. They got two more in the fourth on Hannah Engelkamp's two-run homer.

Mary made things interesting for the Wildcats in the sixth, as the Marauders used a walk and three singles off Wayne State reliever Amber Baird to score one run and put runners at second and third with just one out. Goetzinger came back into the game and got back-to-back outs on a foul out and strikeout to get out of the jam.

Wayne State moved on to the winners' bracket final with a 5-0 win over Winona State. Goetzinger pitched a six-hit shutout with nine strikeouts and also homered and drove in two runs for the Wildcats in the win.

Wayne State had three players named to the NSIC All-Tournament Team as Goetzinger, Sandstrom and Nurton represented the Wildcats on the 11-member squad.

Goetzinger was sensational for the Wildcats on the mound during the tournament, going 4-0 with a 0.00 ERA pitching three shutouts in the four games. She had 36 strikeouts in 27.2 innings pitched and allowed just 13 hits and no runs with just two walks.

Kassi Nurton slaps a base hit during action earlier this season. She was one of three Wayne State players to make the Northern Sun Conference all-tournament team.

Nurton hit .417 during the tournament and led Wayne State with five hits in the four games. She was 5 for 12 at the plate with two doubles, a triple and three runs scored. Sandstrom was 3 for 14 in the tournament with one homer and a team-high three RBIs to help the Wildcats win their first-ever conference tournament title.

they faced Duluth the first time. Duluth won the first game of the doubleheader at Wayne 2-1 before Wayne State started its current 13-game winning streak with a 4-2 win in the nightcap on April 25.

"We were coming out of our funk then, but Duluth is going to bring some good hitters with them and it will be a good matchup," Unger said. "I think we'll give them a run for their money, and hopefully we can come out on top."

A win might give the Wildcats a matchup with Concordia St. Paul, a team Wayne State swept in St. Paul, Minn., or Augustana, who swept Wayne State earlier in the year before losing two to the Wildcats in the conference tournament.

Either way, Unger expects a tough matchup.

"Augie is a good, well-rounded ball team, and they're going to want revenge and they'll be very disciplined; and Concordia is a good team as well, so there won't be an easy game from here on out," Unger said.

Where Wayne State goes, should they win this regional, will depend on the fortunes of Metro (Colo.) State, who is the top seed in the Central Region and is hosting the other four-team tournament in the region. If Metro State should be upset and Wayne State wins their tournament, they would play host to the super regional on May 21-22, with a College World Series appearance hanging in the balance.

Both Wayne State men's and women's outdoor track and field teams finished ninth at the Northern Sun Conference Outdoor Track and Field Championships, held over the weekend in Moorhead, Minn.

The Newcastle native also earned All-Conference honors with a second-place finish in the heptathlon, with a school record point total of 4,558 points. She also finished eighth in the 100-meter hurdles in 19.25 seconds.

settled on a fivesome that will compete at Bellevue's Tregaron Golf Club, but the results of their major home meet still left some question marks.

"I thought we had settled on a top five, but there are a couple of younger players that did a fairly good job today that we're going to take to some other places, so we probably won't make that decision until the end of next week," he said.

Wayne boys win Battle Creek quad

BATTLE CREEK – In their final tune-up before districts, the Wayne track and field teams stretched their wings out and tried some new things during a quadrangular Thursday at Battle Creek.

The Wayne boys ran away with the team title and the Wayne girls were second in the four-team meet with Battle Creek, Madison and Hartington Cedar Catholic, getting a last opportunity to improve on some performances and trying some new people in different positions. “This is a good meet for us to look at some additional qualifying times, and it gives athletes a chance to run in some different events and allow some to rest before districts,” coach Dale Hochstein said.

Wayne had a number of first-place medalists on the day.

On the boys’ side, Wayne dominated the middle and long-distance events, with Zach Thomsen taking the 400, Cory Foote winning the 800, Taylor Carroll claiming the 1,600 and Quentin Jorgensen taking the 3,200. Wayne had three scoring runners in all four events, including a sweep of the top three in the two long-distance races. Joey Lenihan and Jacob Reynolds finished behind Carroll in the 1,600, while Jacob Pulfer and Nick Junck trailed Jorgensen in the 3,200.

Wayne did well in the jumps, with Jordan Barry winning the high jump and triple jump and placing third in the long jump. He, Gage Rethwisch and Grant Anderson went 1-2-3 in the high jump, while Barry trailed Justin Anderson in the long jump by 1 1/2 inches.

The Wayne girls came away with wins in five events. Marissa Fallesen won the 100, Megan Stalling was pushed by teammate Sydney Burke on her way to a win in the 800, and senior Carly Fehringer easily won the shot put by more than 7 1/2 feet. The 400-meter and 3,200-meter relay teams also came away with first-place efforts.

Wayne will compete in district action today (Thursday) at Norfolk Catholic.

Meyer is guest speaker

Wayne native Don Meyer, who recently retired as the all-time winningest coach in NCAA college basketball history, was the guest speaker Tuesday at Wakefield High School’s annual athletic banquet. Meyer, who has survived a near-fatal car accident and is battling cancer, recently retired as head coach at Northern State.

Wakefield teams run at Norfolk Catholic

NORFOLK – Wakefield’s track and field teams geared up for this week’s district meet with a solid showing at Thursday’s Norfolk Catholic Invitational.

The Trojans placed fourth in both the girls’ and boys’ team standings, getting some good performances in before Thursday’s district meet in Hartington.

“Our district is one of the toughest year in and year out,” coach Mike Hassler said. “You have to show up with your ‘A’ game if you want to extend your track season by another week, and when you have the last six state champions coming out of your district, you’d better show up ready to compete.”

The Trojans did that at Norfolk, getting first-place performances from Chad Clay and Tyler Bodlak, as well as the 3,200-meter relay team in the boys’ division. The girls got firsts from Keri Lunz, Shelby Lierman and the 3,200-meter relay team.

One of the more impressive efforts came from senior hurdler T.J. Rose, who continues to improve his time in the 300-meter hurdles.

“Every time out he gets a little better,” Hassler said. “I think adding the open 400 has helped him with his conditioning for the 300 hurdles. You don’t see a kid dropping a second and a half off their time at this point in the season, but he was right there at the finish line with the kid from Wisner, and that shows you how much of a competitor he is. It will be exciting to see how he does.”

Hassler was also happy to see Bodlak come through with a good second-place finish in the 3,200-meter run before taking first in the 1,600-meter race.

“Tyler’s been looking forward to this meet, knowing he’d go up against some pretty good Norfolk Catholic kids,” Hassler said. “He and the Knudson kid from Catholic had been running pretty comparable times all year, so Tyler kind of used him to pace himself early on, and he got in position to break the 10-minute mark and with 800 meters to go he went for it. To beat his time from state last year and break his own school record again was great to see.”

Hassler said his team knows it has a tough district meet to compete in, but he’s hopeful the Wakefield tracksters will be well-represented at next week’s state meet.

“We’re not assured of anything going in,” he said. “We could have as many as 13 qualify if everything goes really well, or we could have zero. We’ve put in the hard work and I think the kids are ready to roll, though. This is what we’ve prepared them for, so now it’s time to go out and have some fun and we’ll see how the chips fall.”

Bears have strong efforts at NENAC meet

PLAINVIEW – The weather didn’t cooperate much with the eight teams battling for the team titles in the NENAC track and field meet Friday at Plainview High School.

The Lady Bears wrapped up runner-up honors and the Laurel-Concord boys appear headed for at least a fourth-place finish, depending on the outcome of pole vault competition that was delayed due to the bad weather conditions. Coaches agreed to use results from the various district meets teams are involved in to determine the conference medalists in that event.

“It was a tough day with the weather conditions being what they were,” coach Nate Sims said of the girls’ competition. “It was one of the windiest days I’ve seen for some time, but the girls did an outstanding job going out and competing.”

Bethany DeLong was once again the champion in the long jump and 100-meter dash and helped the 400-meter relay team to the conference title. Katie Jacobsen also was a multiple champion, winning the 800, 3,200 and running on the winning 400- and 1,600-meter relays.

Sims was especially impressed with the efforts of Erika Hochstein, who was on both winning relay teams, placed third in the high jump and came away with a runner-up finish in the 400.

“Everybody that ran in that race seemed to run outstanding, and she did a great job on that race and ran a great anchor for us in the 4-by-4 because Katie wasn’t feeling well,” Sims said. “She took the baton in second and came back and won it for us, so she had a good day.”

On the boys’ side, seniors Ezra Schantz and Johnny Saunders were at their usual top form. Schantz easily won both throwing events, while Saunders was a four-time champion, taking the long jump, 100, 200 and anchoring the 400-meter relay.

“We’re always looking at those guys to do well in their events, and they’re going to pick up big points for us,” coach Terry Bear said.

Two impressive efforts came from Jon Jacot in the 100 and Isaac Haahr in the distance events, Bear added.

“Jon getting to the finals in the 100 was nice, and he did a good job and was able to place there,” Bear said. “Isaac is a little veteran and has posted some pretty good times for us, and he’s been a consistent runner and is picking up some points for us.”

Both coaches are looking forward to this week’s district meet at Hartington.

“Our district is pretty loaded from top to bottom, so it will be a good test for us and we’ll try to make sure that we earn our trip to state this year,” Sims said of the girls’ outlook.

“We’ve got some challenges coming up at district, and we know we’ll have to perform well,” Bear said of the boys. “We’re in a tough district, and we’re hoping we can get as many kids as we can to state.”

Allen boys take first at Winside Invite LAUREL – Battling a cold and windy afternoon, the Allen boys came away with first-place honors Thursday in the Winside Invitational, the final tune-up before district competition.

The Eagles easily took top billing in the 13-team meet, scoring 128 points, and finished the day with six first-place medals.

“We had some interesting impressive performances, but now we must be at our best if we want to get our best to Omaha,” coach Dave Uldrich said. “The entire team gave a very good performance in not-so-good conditions.”

Uldrich said he backed some of his kids off to have them healthy for this week’s district meet.

“We took it easy to avoid senseless injuries and worked on some small things,” he said.

Cody Stewart came away with wins in the triple jump and high jump, and Kyle Finnegan was a winner in the 3,200-meter run to lead the Eagles. Allen also got wins from A.J. Williams in the 100-meter dash, and the Eagles crossed the line first in the 400- and 3,200-meter relays.

Winside’s boys finished fourth overall, led by Zach Brokaw, who won the 1,600-meter run and took second in the triple jump and 300-meter hurdles.

The Winside girls also took fourth place, led by Jerree Doffin’s winning effort in the triple jump and Shelby Lienemann’s surprise win in the discus.

“Shelby winning the discus was a big surprise for us, and that’s got her sitting second in the district right now,” coach Mark Tonniges said. “Jerree’s first in the triple jump and Nathan (Janke) is third in the shot, so we got some great efforts Thursday and everybody gave their best performance.”

Allen’s girls finished fifth in the team standings, with Olivia Schneiders picking up a second in the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs and leading the 3,200-meter relay to victory.

“Olivia ran the 1,600 for the first time and was trying to get a feel for that event, and she ran a pretty good time,” coach Denise Hingst said. “Hannah (Finnegan) ran her best time of the year in the 1,600 and got her first medal, and Mariah (McCoy) got her personal best in the discus. I thought it was a good day for everybody.”

Allen’s track teams were scheduled to compete in district action today (Thursday) at Pierce. Winside will be in Hartington today for district action.

THE WAY BANKING SHOULD BE

Laurel is site of retired school personnel meeting

The Wayne Area Association of Retired School Personnel met at Bear Country Pizza in Laurel on May 3 for a pre-meeting coffee and social gathering.

President Marilyn Leighton opened the meeting with 19 members present. Pat Jenkins Rhode gave the Thought for the Day from the Daily Guide Post on "Return the Favor." A true giving person does not expect a gift. He would rather the receiver just pass on a kindness.

Vera Diediker introduced Mr. Patton, who entertained the group with musical selections on the harmonica and guitar. He spoke about changes taking place in the school systems.

To establish this he polled the audience on their teaching experiences. Interesting facts revealed that most had begun their teaching just out of high school, continued their college education in the summer, at weekend workshops and night classes. A dedicated person started in 1939 at $40 per month for nine months and continued her profession for many years.

The average years taught by the group members was perhaps 27 years. One of the members is still substituting after 51 successful years at the 'helm.'

Mr. Patton compared the early school curriculum to today's modern system which uses TV, computers, distance learning, blended classes and sharing of teachers and equipment between several schools.

The modern techniques help to keep the cost of educating today's young people down. Communities need to adapt and be innovative to attract kids back to small communities; to unify the community to work together to keep our schools open.

He compared this to agriculture. Farmers use more advanced technical skills, such as GPS systems, to regulate crops and machinery.

Schools need to update methods and equipment to educate the future generations and also pass on our heritage.

"Kids are as nice as they've ever been and you will see a pretty hopeful future. The key to change is sharing," he said.

The minutes of the March meeting were approved as read.

The treasurer's report was read and filed for audit.

Community Service Chairperson Marilyn Bodenstedt collected the reports to be sent to NARSP office to be tallied with other units. Totals may appear in the quarterly newsletter.

Arlene Ostendorf gave a health report on The Great Pretender, Celiac Disease in which a person is sensitive to wheat, oats and other gluten foods. It attacks the immune system preventing nutrients to be absorbed by the body. Blood tests may be used to diagnose this disease.

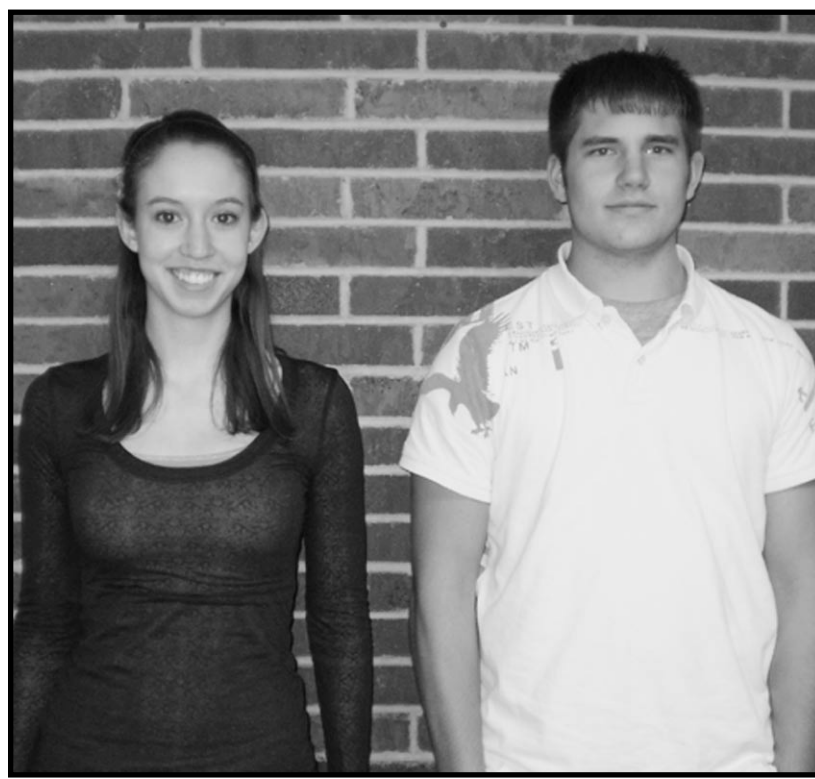

President Leighton researched and read the history of the organization. It was started with a meeting at Wayne State Teachers College in 1975 with 10 members.

Mary Lou George commented on the timeline for changes in health care. A seven page document was summarized and a copy given to each member. This document was obtained from AARP and covers changes from 2011 to 2020.

President Marilyn Leighton installed the new WAARSP officers as follows: President Pat Jenkins Rhode; Vice President Donavon Leighton; Secretary Ruth Grone Maier; Treasurer Twyla Lindsay.

The Oaks invited the Retired School Personnel to a coffee on Wednesday, May 5.

The July 5 meeting will be a potluck at 6:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall in Wayne with Twyla Lindsay and Gloria Leseberg on the entertainment committee.

Emma Carstens, left, and Ian Webster will represent Wayne at this year's Cornhusker Girls and Boys State in Lincoln.

Boys, Girls State candidates selected

Ian Webster and Emma Carstens of Wayne have been selected to attend this year's Cornhusker Boys State and Cornhusker Girls State, respectively.

The two are being sponsored by the Wayne units of the American Legion and AmVets Auxiliary.

Ian is the son of Lance and Peg Webster. He is currently a junior at Wayne High School. His high school and community activities include football, wrestling, Boy Scouts/Life Scout and is working on an Eagle project, Project Extra Youth Group, is a National Honor Society candidate and involved in Varsity Marching Band.

Emma is the daughter of Jeff and Mary Carstens of Wayne. She attends Wayne High and is an active member of First United Methodist Church, and serves as treasurer of the youth group. She is an active participant in the National Leadership Seminar program.

American Legion Cornhusker Boys' State is set up as a functional "51st state" and each boy learns how government subdivision operate by actually doing the job. They will set up their own state government and draft bills.

Special lectures and addresses will be delivered by experienced public officials and professional leaders, including Governor Dave Heineman and Supreme Court Chief Justice John M. Gerrard. National acclaimed motivational speaker JoAnne Owens-Nauslar is also scheduled to address the group.

Girls State is a nationwide program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. Each year more than 400 girls from throughout Nebraska are offered the opportunity to be active participants in structured role-playing that emphasizes our democratic form of government.

The Department of Nebraska American Legion Auxiliary Cornhusker Girls State session will be conducted at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln from June 6 to June 12.

Sports Nutrition class challenged to create new food product

Your mission: To create a new and unique food product that is easy to eat, nutritionally dense and appealing in texture, color and flavor.

This was the Create It! project assignment given to the Wayne High School Sports and Nutrition class. The final products included beverages, smoothies, wraps, bars and chilled concoctions. The students then had to market their product using the advertising techniques studied in class.

"The class members were inventive in choosing product ingredients. They enjoyed sampling everyone's products and discovered that foods high in nutrition also quickly satisfy hunger," commented their instructor, Karen Schardt.

KIDS AND CRITTERS

4-H CLUB

Members of the Kids and Critters 4-H Club met May 2 at the Kittle home prior to road clean up.

The meeting was called to order by Vice President Courtney Petzoldt. It opened with the Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H Pledge.

Roll call was taken by Secretary Amber Kittle. There were four members and two leaders present.

The Treasurer's report was given by Treasurer Terrance Wurdeman.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Amber Kittle. One additional item was added to the March 14 minutes included the fact that the club discussed awarding a trophy versus a chair for the county fair. The club decided to vote for trophies. All approved.

Announcements included Joyce Wurdeman reading a certificate from the Swing into Spring Legion Fundraiser. She also read a letter from a patient that had received one of the club's "Community Pillow Project" pillows.

Quality Assurance will take place on Wednesday, May 26 in Wayne.

The 4-H Council scholarships were due on May 3.

Project leaders can pick up their discounted fair passes from the Extension Office.

Old business included the fact that the club is having a pizza party at Pizza Hut for all club members who have helped with road clean-up in the past.

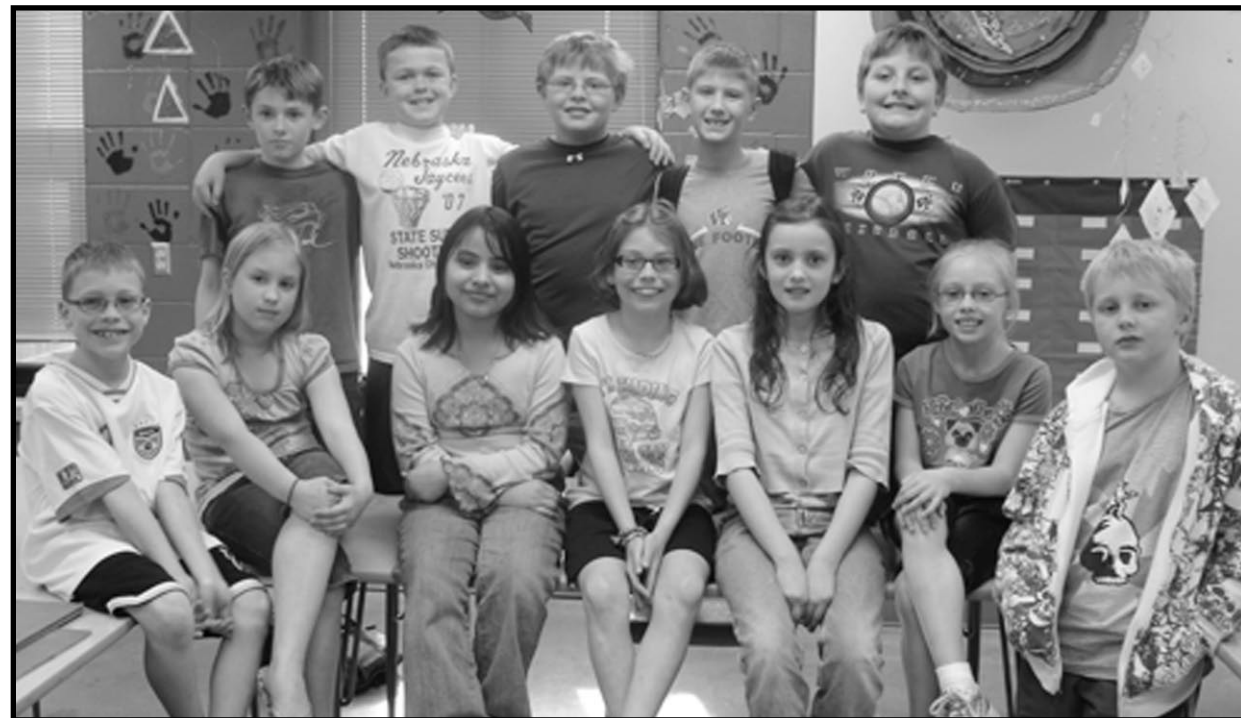

New business included the fact that Joyce Wurdeman has fair packets and members are to let her know if there are any additions or deletions of planned fair projects. These need to be turned in as a club to the Extension Office.

Members decided on what days they can work at the fair food stand. Joyce will turn this information into the Extension Office.

Brian Petzoldt gave an update on the 4-H Council. Trophies will be given instead of chairs and there will be more hands-on workshops scheduled.

The next meeting will be held sometime in July if necessary. No date has been set as of yet.

Below, McGruff came to the school to teach students how to be safe. He told the students that should they have an emergency, they should wave, using two hands and yelling "Help" to a police officer or a city truck with a McGruff sign.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Congrats, Grads: your education starts now

Congratulations to the Class of 2010.

This weekend, area high school seniors will take "the big walk" to receive their high school diplomas. And as you walk across the stage, shake your superintendent's hand, and take your newly-framed diploma, you will breathe a huge sigh of relief and think to yourself, "Finally. My education is complete."

And you couldn't be more wrong. Sorry to be the bearer of bad news, ladies and gentlemen...but your education is only beginning as you enter adulthood and the challenging, exciting, sometimes cruel world that awaits on the other side of the stage.

Yep...life is only just beginning for you young men and women. You think you've learned it all? Lived it all? Seen it all? Done it all? Trust me...you ain't learned, lived, seen or done nothin' yet.

I will be 44 years old Monday, and it took me until I was well into my 20's to realize that I wasn't nearly as all-knowing as I thought I was. Even now, all those years later, I'm still learning, growing and gaining knowledge about life. My parents, who I thought were clueless back when I was your age (and I would guess you probably think the same thing about yours right now), are remarkably wise individuals who, also, continue to learn more and pass that wisdom on to their children and grandchildren.

Amazingly enough, the life lessons the adults in your life have been trying to teach you are going to come into play very soon in your life. All those boring lectures about everything from education, money, drug use, and even sex (which, I'm sure, was probably the worst of the lectures you received, as you were unable to get the concept of your parents doing that sort of thing out of your head) are going to come into play sooner than you may think. If you were paying attention, and apply those lessons in your life, the odds of you living a healthy, successful life are going to be pretty good.

It wasn't all that long ago that my daughter graduated from high school, and she has heard the lectures from me, as well as her mother and step-father, time and time again. Her parents had the same lectures a generation before, and learned some of those lessons the hard way.

We repeated these conversations time and time again, and I'm happy to report that my daughter has not only survived those boring discussions, but has applied those lessons in her life and is working toward being a happy, successful contributing member of our society. She's not there yet, but she's well on her way and she will be the first to tell you that her parents, grandparents and other adult influences in her life weren't pulling her leg.

Some people say that life is hard, but it's hard only for those who let life happen to them, rather than making their own life happen for them. You have a golden opportunity to do some fantastic things in your life, but don't think your learning days are over. They have just begun, and you will only be a success if you continue to learn.

Your high school education is coming to an end this weekend, but your lifetime education is just beginning. Congratulations and best of luck with the rest of your life.

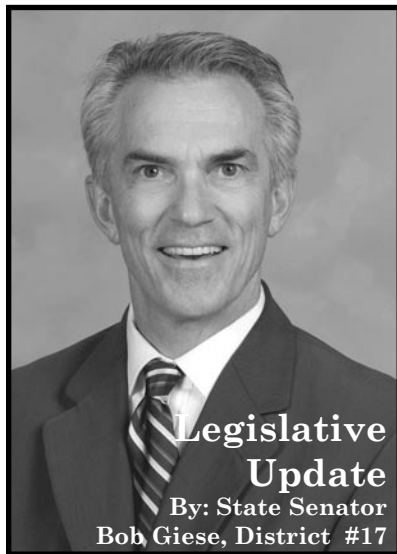

Ornament bills draw attention

Greetings from the Unicameral! Committees in the Legislature will often prioritize what are known as "Christmas tree" bills, which are bills that the committee uses to combine multiple bills addressing similar subjects into one omnibus piece of legislation.

Traditionally, the "ornament" bills that are hung on the "Christmas tree" bill are non-controversial, but occasionally one of the amended bills draws more attention than the others. This was the case with LB861, a package of bills introduced before the General Affairs Committee last session.

In its original form, LB861 was a bill to make a series of technical changes to the Liquor Control Act. The committee amended a number of other bills onto LB861 during General File debate, including LB906, a bill that would allow the State Liquor Commission to grant a liquor license for an establishment located within 150 feet of a church.

In many smaller communities, new churches opening near downtown districts were preventing new bars and restaurants from obtaining liquor licenses due to the strict 150-foot requirement. The provisions of LB906 amended into the bill would allow a liquor license to be granted in such a situation, but only after providing notice to the church and holding a public hearing.

It wasn't until Select File debate that LB861 became truly controversial. At that time, an amendment was offered by Senator Colby Coash of Lincoln that would have given communities the option to extend the current bar closing hours from 1 a.m. to as late as 2

State gaming the federal system

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — Business is business, especially when it comes to the Nebraska Department of Education trying to get its dipper into a bucket of public money.

The superintendent of Omaha Public Schools was annoyed, and then some, when the state managed to have five high schools in the Omaha area listed as among the "persistently lowest achieving" by federal standards. They include Omaha Central, Omaha North, Omaha South and Omaha Benson.

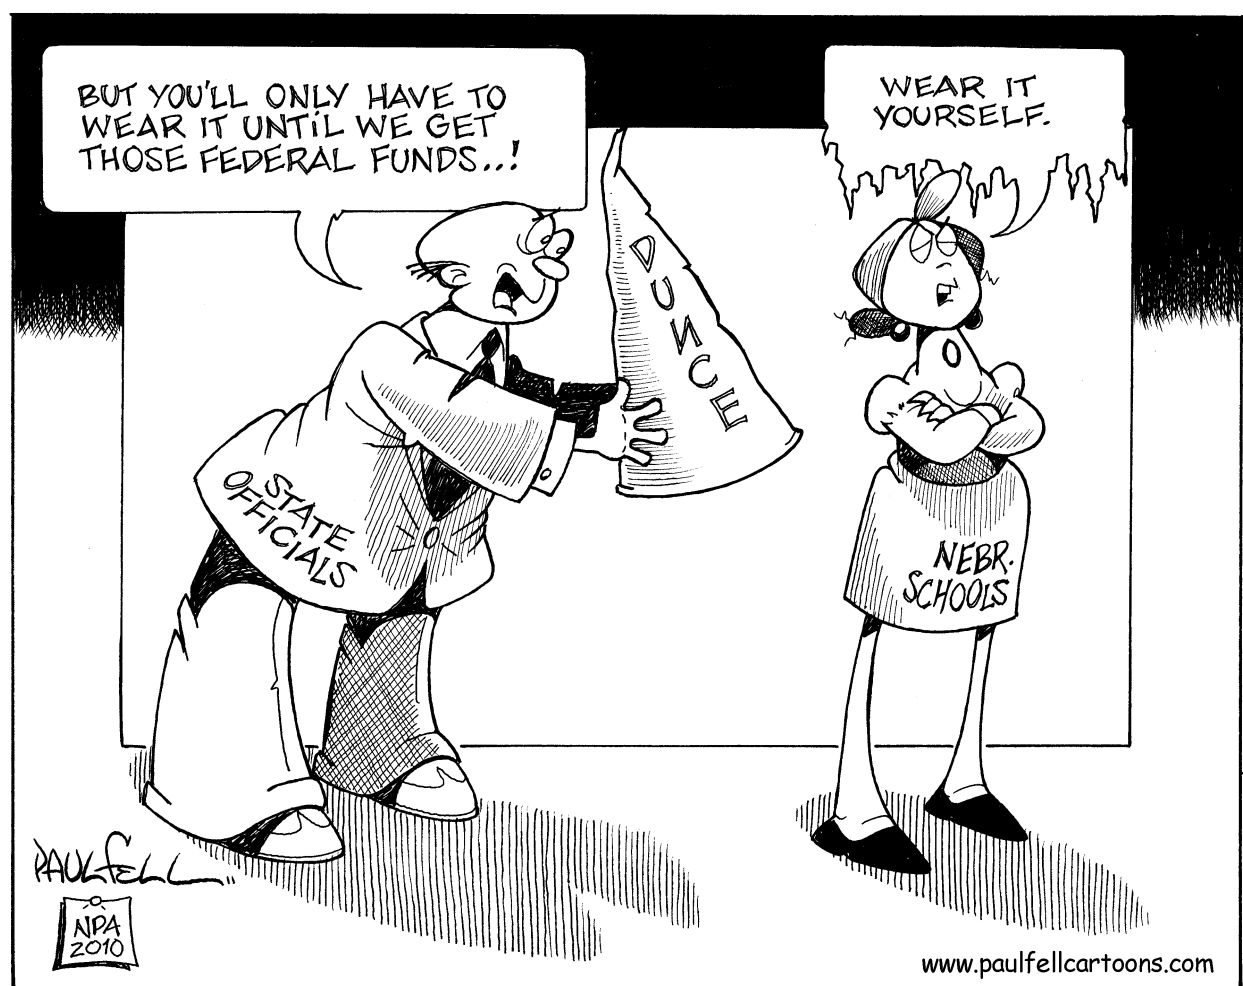

John Mackiel said the state was gaming the federal system to get the money.

It seems the federal standard classifies the persistently lowest achieving schools as those with graduation rates of 60 percent or less. It further seems that Nebraska's Department of Education pursued and received a waiver from the feds, so that Nebraska could qualify with any schools that have a graduation rate of 75 percent or less.

"I don't believe there's anything more reprehensible than gaming the system to access $77 million of federal money by accepting it and then labeling schools that two months ago you just celebrated in terms of the educational opportunities going on in those schools," Mackiel said.

He said it with feeling, too. The view from here: Mackiel is wrong, only insofar as this gambit by the state is certainly not the most reprehensible thing imaginable when it comes to states gaming the federal system for money. However, it isn't hard to see his point. Is it?

It might be especially easy to imagine Mackiel's ire being understood, and maybe endorsed, by Nebraskans. After all, U.S. Sen. Ben Nelson drew enough flak to down a B-52 when he finagled what most states (if they'd admit it) would regard as a great deal that would have saved Nebraska several tons of money when it came to the state's costs for a change in federal healthcare policy. Other states were so jealous they screamed and caterwauled until they got the same deal; but until then, Nelson's critics said it was wrong of him to negotiate that tremendous savings for Nebraska taxpayers. Such a deal went against their moral grain, they said.

As state Education Commissioner Roger Breed explained it, his department had to do what it did to get the aforementioned dipper into the previously referenced bucket of education bucks. Breed said virtually no Nebraska high schools are so bad as to be able to lay claim to any of those federal dollars, based on the 60 percent standard.

Question: Is that bad news or good news? Think on it.

Note: The exceptions among Nebraska schools are those categorized as "Native American" institutions. They would have qualified for the federal money.

Time Marches On

Some of us remember when then-President Nixon was trying to put the kibosh on inflation. On a visit to New York City he cited some examples of ridiculous prices. Among them: The Pierre Hotel charged $1 for a cup of coffee! The management no doubt thought such a price gave an air of exclusivity to the place, and discouraged riff and raff from dropping in.

Comes now Cafe Grumpy, also located in NYC. Price for a cup of coffee: $12. A recent news story said the joint describes one cup of java, Nekisse, as being a "very clean, sweet, complex cup with tropical fruit notes of pineapple, kiwi and key lime."

Call me a Cornhusker. I'd rather have "coffee coffee." And if I want pineapple, kiwi and key lime, I'll order them on the side.

But it ain't hard to see why a fellow who just stumbled into that cafe could get pretty grumpy.

Biosciences have potential for growth

Dear Fellow Nebraskans:
I was joined this week by University of Nebraska President

James B. Milliken in a recruitment visit that was part of the 2010 BIO International Convention held in Chicago.

A growing segment of our economy consists of specialized companies in the biosciences field. These are the high tech, research-driven fields producing biofuels, pharmaceuticals and vaccines for humans and animals, robotics, and testing equipment used in research labs around the world.

This trade show is the world's largest biotech gathering, highlighting new innovations, emerging biotech companies and the work of leading research institutions from across the United States and around the world. Being part of this event was an opportunity to meet with companies who have investments in our state and highlight Nebraska's strengths in bioscience to an international audience.

A study released at the trade show said employment in Nebraska's bioscience sector has grown by 19.2 percent, which outpaced national bioscience employment gains of 15.8 percent between 2001 and 2008. The study noted that Nebraska's bioscience industry paid wages that were 50 percent higher last year than the average annual wages in the private sector.

The BIO International Trade Show event was an opportunity to highlight Nebraska's investments in biotech and expand our business recruitment efforts in a field where companies are heavily invested in research and the latest innovations. Our delegation was coordinated by the Bio Nebraska Life Sciences Association. Bio Nebraska brings together leaders from private sector companies and the Nebraska Department of Economic Development together with Nebraska's academic and research institutions.

Gov.
Dave

This collaborative relationship is reflected in the recipients honored in recent weeks by Bio Nebraska with the 2010 Governor's Award for Bioscience. The award is presented in honor of a partnership that brought leaders in research and academia together with the business community for a project that has been remarkably successful in advancing scientific discoveries and creating jobs here in Nebraska.

This year's honorees were two individuals who lead a joint team of business and university researchers working to develop genetics research tools. The result of the collaboration was among the world's first automated DNA sequencing systems, which was then licensed and developed as a product for the commercial testing and research market.

More than 20 years later, the work of those involved in the project is now a full line of testing and analysis equipment used in DNA research in more than 30,000 labs around the world and has created 130 technology-specific jobs in Lincoln.

Strong relationships are essential and the work of the 2010 Governor's Award for Bioscience recipients embodied both the collaboration and the innovation Bio Nebraska sought to honor in creating this award.

As we work to recruit new investments and new companies looking to expand in science-based sectors, the achievements of the scientists and researchers already at work in Nebraska are an excellent example of the potential that exists in our state.

Tips for parents: reduce family stresses Engagements

Scheduling time for summer programs, activities, lessons, sports, tournaments, family commitments and travel plans can be a challenge for parents.

Parents are encouraged to consider a child's age, interests, abilities, and level of independence, as well as the required investment of time and money.

Children can have a lot of choices and parents may question how much activity is too much activity.

Priorities may not be the same for each family or each child within the family. For example, music les-they handle a new situation. This applies to a family vacation, visit with friends or relatives.

• Share responsibilities. Sharing transportation or car pooling can lessen stress, free-up time and help reduce expenses. The same is true when it comes to household chores. Assigning chores is an option, though children often are more likely to respond without hesitation when they can choose from a daily or weekly job jar.

• Be realistic about expenses. If children each want to go to camp or a sports clinic, consider conserving vacation dollars by planning an extended weekend rather than a longer, more expensive trip. Family vacations usually are memorable, but arranging all or part of a day with just one child also can create a special memory. Remember, though, that overspending can fuel anger and anxiety, which can cause problems in almost any family.

• Strive for cooperation. Arguing in front of the children or putting them in the middle of the dispute can be harmful to children and also to their parents.

To make the most of family time together, learn to enjoy each day. When stresses build, ask yourself: Does this really matter? Sorting out what does - and what does not - matter may be all that it takes to make a day more enjoyable.

UNL Extension has several activities able for youth this summer (Ponca Day Camp, Makin' Money Camp, Science Camp, etc.), so be sure to contact your local county extension office for more information or visit www.extension.unl.edu sions may be a priority for one family, while participating in a sports clinic or camp may be the priority for others. Here are some suggestions to reduce summer stresses:

• Plan ahead; keep a family calendar handy. Review plans periodically and offer reminders as needed. With younger children, be careful about sharing too much too soon. An effort to plan ahead does not, however, mean that impromptu opportunities should be readily dismissed.

• Allow down time at home and away from home. Planning too many activities can diminish the benefits that may come from them. Also, allowing time for the family to settle into a new routine or environment can influence how well

Mission project

The Winside United Methodist Youth Group did a mission project recently, packaging food for the Kids Against Hunger program located in Norfolk. The food was to be included in a shipment to Haiti and enough was packaged to feed over 1,200 people. The packaged food is made of rice, dried vegetables, soy and chicken flavoring. The group then presented information to the Winside congregation during a Sunday morning worship service. They also cooked a package of the food so that each person in church could have a taste. Picture during packaging of food are, left to right, Morgan Petzoldt, Megan Skokan, Mallory Stubbs, Kyle Skokan, Blaine Meyer, Brock Carlson and Courtney Petzoldt.

May is full of showers, concerts, graduations

Lately, it kind of feels like we had our spring weather in April, and now, in May, we are having the showers. Sort of a "backwards" situation, if you ask me. But it certainly makes for a lot of green; lawns, trees; we actually saw someone cutting hay last week.

It's that bittersweet time of year, when graduations take the spot light. But before graduation, we have spring music concerts, when we hear the stuff they took to district contests. Our oldest grandson gave up the piano and the saxophone to concentrate on sports, much to Grandma's disappointment. Even if I did get a kick out of watching him play football.

But Alex and Randa are keeping me busy; he plays percussion in the jazz, symphonic, drumline, and anything else that comes along. She sings! We were in Seward for band night last week, after watching show choirs at Norris the week before. Last night, was band and mixed choirs at Norris.

They did something neat there last night. You know how, on senior night at the games, they introduce the seniors and their parents? Well, they did that with the senior music students and their parents. I loved it, of course. After all, they had some early morning practices and all day Saturday competitions, and fund raising activities that Mom and Dad had to help with. They should receive the same recognition.

We also took in the annual Mother Daughter banquet at church. This is a long-standing tradition at this church; I can remember driving down for it with three little girls, and my sis coming from Papillion with her two. It's always the Friday night before Mother's day, and the men serve the meal.

This year, the speaker presented "Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate," which is designed to make us think about leaving the family heirlooms. She told a couple of horror stories, but mostly, she talked about parents giving things away while they could, along with the stories that accompanied the article.

We accomplished some of that when we moved from the Farm House to a townhouse. Kay has a pair of colonnades that came from the Hoskins farm house. Sue has my grandfather's drop desk. But I don't have any family silver or china to pass on.

When I think about it, there aren't very many of those kinds of things in our house. Ann has a nativity set I bought the first year we were married, a very cheap, little thing. But, of course, the speaker stressed that it isn't the monetary value of the items, but the sentimental. That nativity set always sat in the living room during the month of December when the kids were growing up.

Anyway, she made us think. And realize that it's all just "stuff", right? Here's hoping we have some sunshine soon.

Tips offered for controlling alfalfa disease

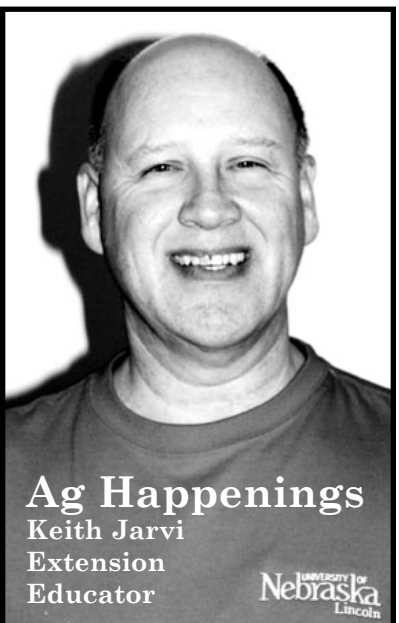

Well we have gotten off to a great start with corn planting with a majority of the crop already in last week. Next up is soybean planting

If you get a little time from a weather break, make sure you continue to monitor your alfalfa. First cutting alfalfa is probably the most valuable cutting and also the one that has the most potential insect and disease problems. We covered alfalfa weevils last week so con-small, dark brown to black spots that develop in early spring on the lower leaves, petioles, and stems. As the disease worsens the symptoms will progress up the plant. Affected leaves turn yellow. The spots later enlarge and coalesce, and may blacken large areas on stems and petioles. Later the leaves will drop off the stem. Lower leaves are affected the most so this can be a stealth disease where the crop looks pretty good from the road but the growth underneath is being severely infected. I have seen losses over 1/3 of the first cutting from this disease.

There isn't much you can do but monitor your field and if you see leaf spot turning lower leaves yellow you need to cut early to minimize the leaf drop.

tinue to watch out for them.

Another problem showing up in alfalfa fields is spring black stem and leaf spot. This is a very common disease in northeast Nebraska and we usually see a little of it every year, especially when it is cool and moist. This is a fungal disease and the spores overwinter on residue, so chances are if you have it last year you will have at least some of it again.

In most years, black stem is not serious as warmer, drier weather in May will slow or stop the growth of the fungus. And, as usual, there is a difference in how each alfalfa variety will react to infection. Symptoms of spring black stem and leaf spot include numerous

Youth Participate in Horticulture ID Contest

As part of the Northeast Nebraska Master Gardener plant fair, a youth horticulture plant identification contest was held.

Area youth were invited to participate in the competition. A total of six youth participated with two in the junior division and four in the intermediate division. There were no senior division participants.

Each contestant was asked to identify 20 plants. A tiebreaker plant had to be used to decide the junior division first place finisher. Shanda Lambert of Wayne placed first in the junior division with Sidney Kucera of Madison placing second.

The difference between first and second places in the intermediate division was only one plant correctly identified. Laura Greunke of Winside narrowly edged out Kaylyn Kucera of Madison for the first place finish. Rachel Sorensen placed third and Stephanie Sorensen also of Plainview placed fourth in the intermediate division.

ORDINANCE NO. 2010-9

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE WAYNE MUNICIPAL CODE, CHAPTER 74, ARTICLE VIII, SECTION 74-293 FEES; TO PROVIDE FOR THE REPEAL OF CONFLICTING SECTIONS; AND TO PROVIDE FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.
BE IT ORDAINED by the Mayor and Council of the City of Wayne, Nebraska:

Section 1. The Planning Commission, subsequent to a public hearing held April 5, 2010, 2009, recommended amending Section 74-293 Fees subject to the following "Findings of Fact": Staff and Planning Commission recommendation.

Section 2. That Chapter 78, Article VIII, Section 74-293 of the Wayne Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 74-293 Fees.
The amount of land dedicated by a subdivider pursuant to this article shall be five percent of the land area comprising the total land area in the proposed subdivision as reflected in the final subdivision plat. If a subdivider so desires, the subdivider may elect to pay a fee in lieu of land dedication; provided, however, the city may reject the subdivider's election and require land donation. Where a subdivider is required to pay a fee in lieu of land dedication, the amount of such fee shall be based upon the fair market value of the amount of land comprising the total land area as indicated in the final subdivision plat. The amount of such fee shall be eight percent of the fair market value of the total land area comprising the proposed subdivision as indicated in the final subdivision plat, except that the park fee for new non-annexed, non-contiguous subdivisions, which are outside of the city limits, in the extraterritorial jurisdiction, and not fully served by city services, shall be one percent. Fair market value shall be determined as of the time of filing the final plat in accordance with the following:

- (1) The fair market value, as determined by the council based upon fair market value appraisals considering all of the uses and purposes for which it might reasonably be used; or
- (2) If the subdivider objects to the amount of valuation, the subdivider may, at its expense, obtain an appraisal of the land based on the highest and best use of the land by a qualified real estate appraiser approved by the city, which appraisal may be accepted by the council if found reasonable; or
- (3) The city and the subdivider may agree as to the fair market value.

Section 3. All Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict herewith are repealed.

Section 4. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect after the passage, approval, and publication as provided by law.
