Tears of sadness, Tears of joy

At this time of the fall sports season, there are a lot of tears shed on and off the field of play, and Winside fans got to experience both sides of the emotional rollercoaster this past week. In the photo above, Winside quarterback Blaine Meyer shows the disappointment of losing in the state football playoffs after the Wildcats fell at Osmond 43-12 last Wednesday. The following night, the tears shed were tears of joy as Audrey Roberts (7) and Shelby Lienemann celebrate the Wildcats' come-from-behind win over Newman Grove in the D1-3 district finals, securing the team's second straight trip to the Nebraska State High School Volleyball Championships in Grand Island. You can follow Winside's progress in the state tournament on www.mywaynenews.com.

School board is moving ahead with building merger

Work is expected to be finished for start of 2012-13 school year

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

Measures were taken Monday during the Wayne Board of Education meeting to add on to the Wayne Middle School and Wayne High School as the district works toward merging the students into two buildings.

Following a public hearing, which included a presentation by Jay Spearman with Ameritas Investment Corp. on the benefits of purchasing Build America Bonds, the board voted unanimously to move forward with the purchase of $4.155 million in bonds for the improvements and additions to both the middle and high school.

The board has authority to issue bonds on board approval and with a public hearing, provided the bonds do not exceed 5.2 cents of valuation.

Anticipated improvements to the Middle School include three classrooms. High school improvements will include classrooms to accommodate the seventh and eighth grade students, improvements to the kitchen and the media/technology center.

Tentative completion date for the project is the start of the 2012-13 school year.

As part of the Recovery and Reinvestment Act, the federal government will reimburse the district for 35 percent of the interest on the bonds.

Cost of the project is estimated at $280,000 per year for the 30-year life of the bonds.

In other action, the board approved a memorandum of understanding with the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department to use the school's facilities as a mass dispensing site in the event of a public health emergency.

Kim Schultz, with the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, told the board that the city of Wayne is a dispensing location for Wayne County in the event of a terroristic threat with small pox,

Foundation strives to assist schools

The Wayne Community Schools Foundation is hoping to become more visible in the community, according to the group's current president.

The foundation is a non-profit, tax exempt organization created to provide new and improved educational opportunities for the benefit of students, teachers, employee and residents of the Wayne school district. The foundation has been in existence for many years, and was re-activated in 1995.

Goals the current board hope to accomplish this year and in the near future include becoming "more visible in the community so that people know we exist and the great things that we do as a foundation," Laura Gamble, current president of the group, said.

She added that "people need to know that in the future it is only going to get tougher for our schools to survive. The Foundation is going to have to step in where the school

The board accepted, with regrets, the resignation of Duane Blomenkamp at the end of the 2010-2011 school year.

Blomenkamp has been employed at Wayne High School since 1972, teaching math and science classes.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan gave a report on the State Report Card, which was released recently. He presented a PowerPoint display of the information that

Investigation continues into disposal of chickens in Carroll

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office and the Nebraska State Patrol are investigating an allegation that TWJ Farms, located in Carroll, are inhumanely disposing of chickens at their Carroll growing house.

The complaint has been filed with both investigating offices by PETA (The People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals), that lists Norfolk, Va. as their organization headquarters.

PETA received a call from someone who had information that TWJ Farms hires catching crews to pull thousands of unwanted chickens from cages, and then are directed to dump them into a grinder. It is reported that some of the chickens do not die instantly and are allowed to linger for hours before they finally die.

The Sheriff's Office and the Nebraska State Patrol have found no violations of Nebraska law at the TWJ Farming operation.

Conversations with TWJ executives also confirm that they continue to use guidelines developed by the United Egg Producers, an organization that represents approximately 95 percent of all the nation's egg-laying hens.

November is National Homecare & Hospice Month

Editor's note: November is being observed as National Homecare and Hospice Month across the United States.

As part of this observance in northeast Nebraska, several members of the Providence Hospice and Homecare team have provided reflections and information on the services available in this area.

A Personal Reflection on Hospice Care
By the Rev. Ross Erickson, Providence Medical Center Hospice Grief Counselor

One of the most difficult decisions a family will have to make is the decision to place a loved one on hospice care.

It is not easy to come to the realization that a loved one is dying. My father was a hospice patient for about two months prior to his death. Though we knew that hospice care was best for my dad and my mom, it was still a difficult decision for all of us.

We came to appreciate hospice care very much. How comforting it was to have my Dad's medical, social and spiritual needs met by such a caring and expert staff. A staff who understood the unique medical, social and spiritual needs of a family walking through the valley of the shadow of death.

With the development of new medicine and treatments as well as the desire of patients to keep fighting until the last moments, we are seeing most of our hospice patients in just the last few weeks of their lives.

When the time does come to consider hospice care, I want you to know that we at Providence Hospice are ready to help you with this difficult decision. If you have concerns about such questions as "What is the right thing to do?" or "If you have different members of your family with different wishes regarding your loved one's care, we can help you figure out the questions and concerns so that you can make a wise and loving decision."

Our goal with hospice care is to do all we can to make your loved one and your entire family comfortable and at peace. The last days of a person's life should be days of celebration as you together share and tell 'the story' of your loved one's life. Our last days should be a time where we can find peace with God, self and others. This is what my family experienced from hospice care and I know you will also.

Reflections on Hospice Care

By Sister Cecilia Polt, Hospice Chaplain

"Hospice work is the most wholesome part of my ministry," said Sr. Cecilia Polt, who has served as chaplain at Providence Medical Center for the past five years.

She said that she has learned "so much from the people who are coming to the close of their life."

Sr. Cecilia also has high praise for the members of the Hospice team - Terri Munter, Dr. James Lindau, Joan Sudman, Ross Erickson and Kim Bentjen. Each of these team members work together to provide the services needed by the patient and family. These include medical evaluation, paper work, visiting the family to determine needs and enlisting their help in serving the needs of the patient and spiritual needs.

She added that Hospice and Homecare work together to provide for those in need.

An average of five to six patients are receiving hospice care at any one time, although the team has been responsible for as many as 10 patients at one time.

"I feel it is such an honor to be with patients during their last hours. I love to be with these patients and often learn from them," Sr. Cecilia said.

She noted that hospice care can take place in the patient's home, in a nursing home, in the hospital, in an assisted living facility or group home.

The Providence Hospice team's involvement with a family does not end with the death of the hospice patient. A follow-up visit is conducted with the family and cards are sent every three months for the first year following the death of the patient.

In addition, two Hospice services are conducted each year, one at Christmas and the other in early summer.

These services are for all patients, home care patients, family, hospital staff and friends. They include special music, readings and candles or balloons to represent those who have died.

For more information on services available through Providence Homecare and Hospice, call (402) 375-4288.

Museum offers look at vast bio-diversity in area's past

By JOSHUA STUHL
Of The Herald

Nebraska – to the untrained observer – appears to be rather boring and static, stable to the extreme in every way.

However, a quick look at the vast array of species that thrived, or once thrived, in this area of the world will change one's perspective.

Anyone wishing to be educated on the biodiversity of Northeast Nebraska need only stop in and look around the A. Jewell Schock Natural History Museum, in the Carhart Science building on Wayne State College campus. Over 25,000 total plant and animal specimens have been preserved by the curators, and dozens are on display for public viewing.

After the infamous Carhart flooding incident last winter, Barbara Hayford, museum director and curator, worked tirelessly to bring the museum's multitude of displays and specimens back to viewable condition.

According to Hayford, "The main objective for our museum is to educate not only the students, but also the general public, on the biodiversity of Northeast Nebraska. The museum's exhibits describe Nebraska's past, present and give a glimpse into the future of many species."

The college's Natural History Museum houses mammoth samples and fossils of aquatic life that once lived in Nebraska. The sheer number of bird and reptile specimens demonstrates the virtually endless range of life in the state.

The museum also has many activities and displays for younger children to partake in hands-on learning with magnifying glasses, focusing on fossils and watershed specimens.

Hayford provides verbal tours and is actively involved in bringing science and education to area students by taking to the road. By promoting the museum as a destination as a part of her museum outreach program, Hayford hopes to rekindle the public's interest in ecology, preservation and the pursuit of knowledge.

system can not."

The community will soon see the Foundation in a more visible way, as "Foundation Nights" will be held at various school events.

The Foundation is currently looking at ways to market the organization so that the group can get its name out in the public to encourage people to donate toward current and future projects.

Current members of the Wayne Community Schools Foundation include Laura Gamble, president; Tracy Pierson, vice president; Lori Owens, secretary; Rod Hunke, treasurer; Jodi Pulfer, financial secretary; and Jean Blomenkamp, Ken Jorgensen, Wayne Schools superintendent Mark Lenihan, Kaki Ley, Dr. Larry Magnuson, Deneil Parker, Wayne Middle School principal and high school athletic director Rocky Ruhl, Amy Schweers, Dr. Don Zeiss and Kyle Dahl.

Donations to the Foundation can be made at any time. All donations may be made to a specific project or can go into the 'unrestricted' area of the Foundation's funds to be used as the board sees best.

A general fundraising letter is sent out each year in November asking the community to contribute to the Foundation.

The current project the Foundation is working toward this year is the purchasing of new uniforms for the Wayne High School Band. More than $70,000 is needed to replace the current marching band uniforms which are more than 30 years old.

The Foundation's annual appeal letter is being sent out this month, and the focus is on generating enough funds to purchase new uniforms for the 2011-12 school year. The Foundation currently has more than $50,000 available, and is working diligently to secure the remaining funding so the uniforms can be ordered in December to receive a discount.

The annual letter also updates alumni on what the Foundation has completed in the past year and what current goals are for the future.

Future projects for the Foundation include an all-school class reunion, a golf tournament and having Foundation presence at all class reunions.

Anyone with ideas about these projects is asked to contact Gamble or Pierson.

The projects that have been completed with assistance from the Foundation in recent years include:

The Kern track; new bleachers at the high school gym; CAD computer lab; new electronic sign in front of the high school, assistance with the elevator project at the high school, wireless internet in all three school buildings and helping with a new sound system in the high school gym.

In addition, the Foundation offers scholarships to Wayne High School graduates. This includes the Rickers Scholarship, Otte Scholarship, Murray Scholarship and the Weber/Thieman Scholarship.

The Foundation meets monthly on the fourth Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the high school. Anyone with ideas for the Foundation is asked to contact any one of the members, the high school at (402) 375-3150, on Facebook or on the Wayne Community Schools' Web site under "Foundation."

Lenihan also talked about the possible availability of the swimming pool at Wayne State College should Wayne Schools implement swimming as a sport at the school.

Information was presented on the status of the ADA project at the high school. Lenihan said administration and staff are "really happy with the contractors, who come in after school and complete work, and the next morning everything is so clean and organized."

A committee has been organized to work on suggestions for the additions to the school facilities. It will include the administrative team, the director of maintenance, one teacher, three school board members and four parents.

The board will next meet in regular session on Monday, Dec. 13 at 5 p.m. at the high school.

Winside rallies for another trip to state

Comeback seals D1-3 district title for Wildcats volleyball team

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

NORFOLK – Down two sets to one, and having been frustrated by Newman Grove's aggressive serving, coach Teresa Watters had a question for her Winside volleyball team.

What's going on that you haven't seen before?

The Wildcats' mentor got the answer she wanted to hear from her team, and they punctuated that response with a two-set comeback to win the D1-3 district title Thursday at Norfolk Catholic High School.

The Wildcats shook off their mid-match blues and came back strong, dominating Newman Grove in the final two sets with solid net play to post a 25-17, 13-25, 15-25, 25-16, 15-6 win over the Bluejays and earn the team's second consecutive trip to the State High School Volleyball Championships.

The Wildcats, 26-5, looked like they weren't going to have any problems with the Bluejays early on. Nazya Thies rang up three consecutive ace serves to start the match, and with blockers like Jerae Doffin, Shelby Lienemann and Thies dominating the outside, Newman Grove's offense couldn't get anything going and Winside hustled to the early lead.

The Bluejays adjusted, however, attacking the middle and using the outstanding serving of Brooke Nelson, who served so aggressively during the second and third sets that it had the Wildcats frustrated and the coach confused.

"We've practiced that so much, and I think the girls were just mad at themselves," Watters said after the match. "(Nelson) was serving the ball very nice and we just had trouble with it, and after the third set I asked them what they were seeing differently out there and they just said, 'Nothing, we've got it.' After that, I knew we had it."

The Wildcats responded and were able to handle Newman Grove's serving after that, dominating the fourth set with Doffin – who finished with 12 kills and 10 blocks; and Thies – who added four kills and three blocks – and carrying that momentum into the fifth-set tie-breaker.

In the final set, kills by Doffin and Shelby Lienemann got Winside off to a 2-0 lead. Newman Grove tied the match, but a four-point run by the Wildcats, highlighted by kills from Doffin and Erin Gray, gave Winside the lead for good at 6-2.

"Our conference was really tough and Bancroft-Rosalie played us really well, so I think that helped us to have a tough game like that at the end of the season and come out and play well the way we did at the end," Gray said.

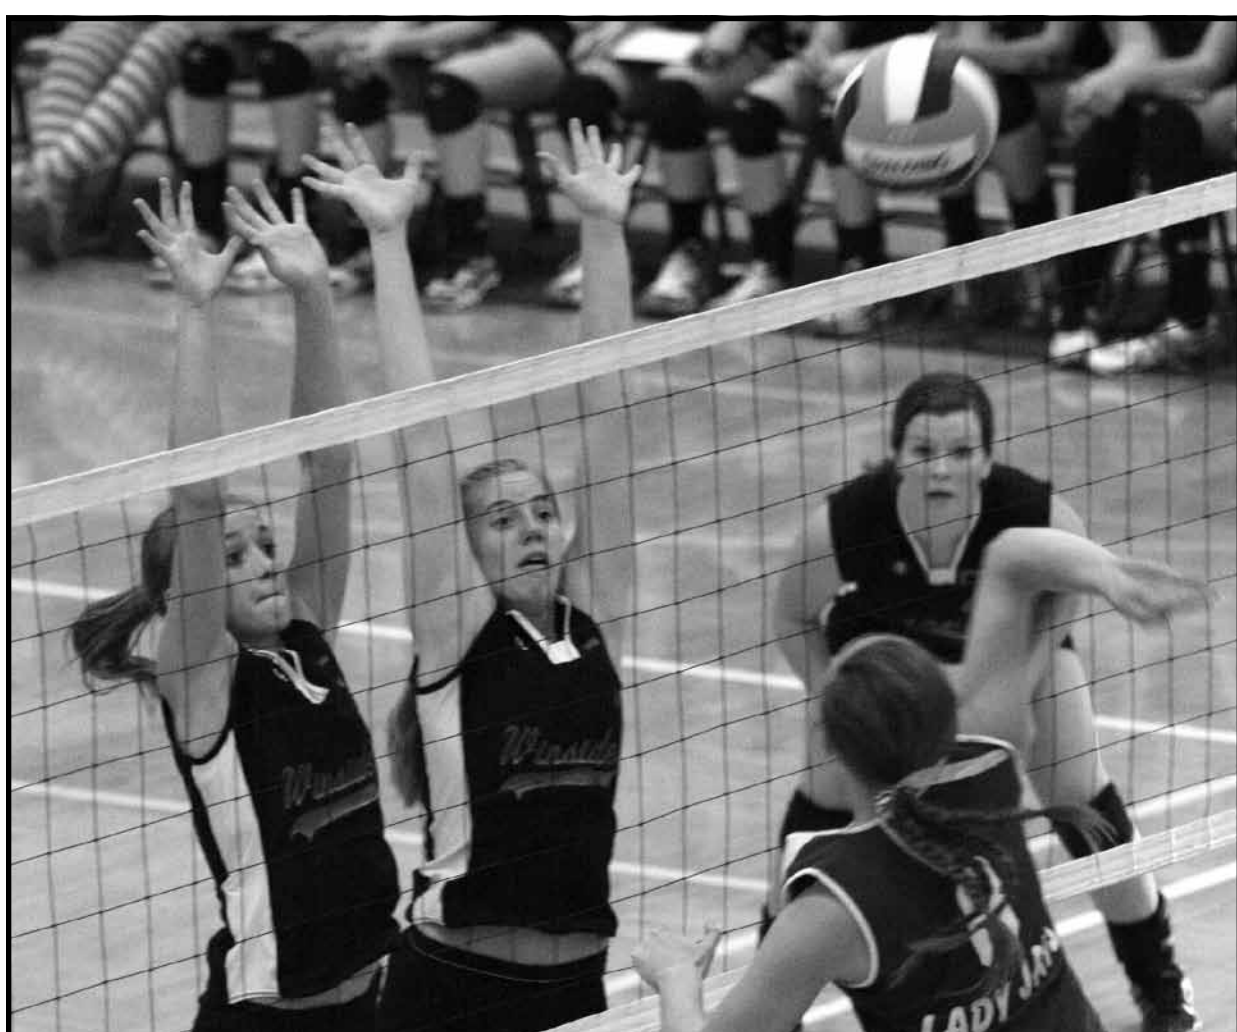

Newman Grove made one last rally, pulling within 9-6 before Winside put the match away. Gray regained the serve with a kill on the far sideline, then set up match point with an ace serve. Doffin blocked a Newman Grove attack at the net to end the match, sending Winside to state.

"It feels good to play five sets and come out with a win," Doffin said. "After conference, we went back to work and worked hard for this, and this is just awesome."

Watters credited her team's never-say-die attitude.

"They did an outstanding job and fought back," she said. "I think after that third set they decided they weren't going to let this one slip through their fingers, because they had come too far to let this get away."

Senior Audrey Roberts agreed.

Turnovers doom Winside's hopes

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

OSMOND – Turnovers are always a key element in a football team's success, and that's even more important when the playoffs roll around.

Osmond converted two Winside turnovers directly into touchdowns and pulled away in the fourth quarter to beat the Wildcats 43-12 Wednesday in the second round of the Class D1 playoffs at Osmond High School, ending the Wildcats' 7-3 season.

In all, Winside turned the ball over six times and Osmond was able to convert each of those turnovers into points.

"Turnovers made a big difference," coach Ryan Olander said. "We have a tendency to turn the ball over, and if we can keep those down then we're usually OK. We came out and spotted them points, though, and it's hard to come back from that."

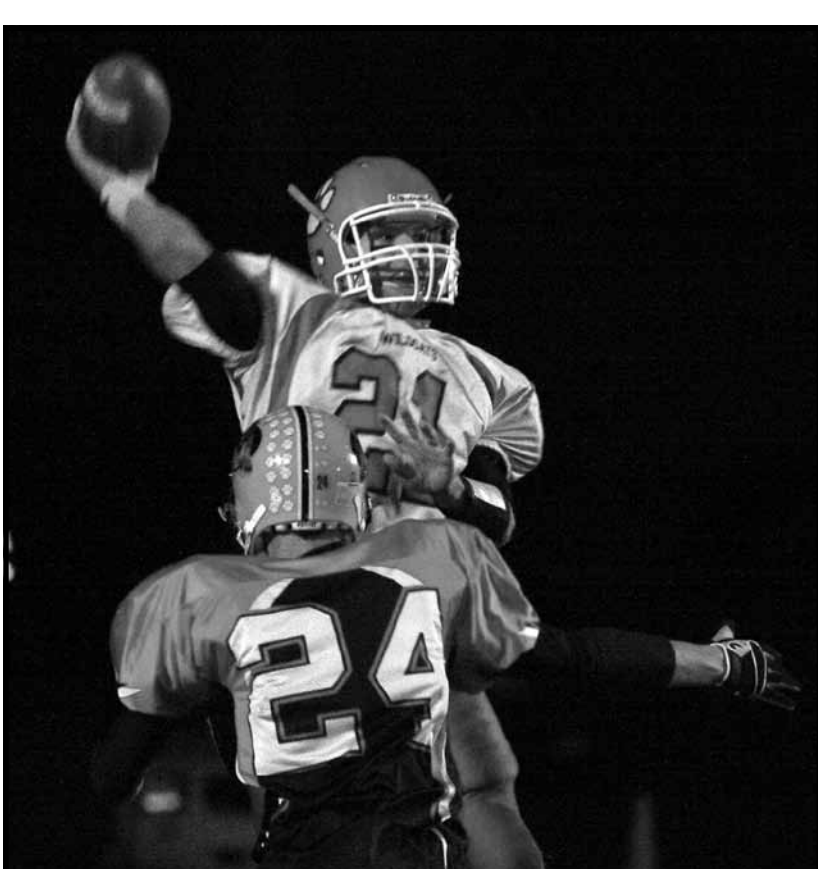

Winside's first fumble gave the Tigers field position at the Winside seven-yard line. Two plays later, Michael Koehler scored the first of his three touchdowns to give the hosts a 7-0 advantage.

Winside's next fumble was even more costly, as Koehler scooped up the ball and ran 42 yards for another touchdown, giving Osmond a 13-0 advantage less than six minutes into the game.

Winside's defense was solid for much of the night, and they kept the Wildcats' hopes alive until late in the first half, when the offense put together a pair of big touchdowns to give the Wildcats momentum heading into the second half.

Blaine Meyer got loose on a 41-yard run to get the Wildcats on the scoreboard with 1:31 to go in the half. After Winside forced a three-and-out defensively, Meyer found Zach Brokaw on a 48-yard pass to make it 13-12 at intermission.

Wildcats knock off Augustana

Last week, special teams proved to be Wayne State's downfall.

They proved to be the Wildcats' savior Saturday.

Wayne State turned field position around with its punting and handed seventh-ranked Augustana its first loss of the season, posting a 26-14 win in the 22nd annual Egg Bowl Game.

The Wildcats used a solid defensive effort and outstanding special teams play to end a three-game losing streak, improving the team's record to 6-4 overall and 5-4 in the Northern Sun Conference.

Coach Dan McLaughlin was very pleased with his team's effort against the top team in the NSIC.

"I told them after that game that in the six years I've been here, we've won quite a few games, but I can't remember one I enjoyed as the one we played Saturday," he said. "The

Combs has three starters back from last year's team

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Things got off to a slow start for Wayne State men's basketball coach Paul Combs in his first year at the helm last season.

The Wildcats started the 2009-10 season with a 4-7 record, but things clicked for the team in the second half of the season, and the Wildcats won 10 of their last 18 games, knocking off ranked Augustana nearly upsetting national semifinalist St. Cloud State in the Northern Sun Conference tournament.

Now in his second season, Combs said the team knows what is expected of them, and he is looking for improvement on last year's 14-15 campaign.

"Last year was a good example of how it takes some time to get the system in and get people on the same page," he said. "There was obviously some growing pains early on and it took some time, but the guys started buying in and things started happening, so

Three starters are back from last year's team, including seniors Jason Jensen and Brad Starken and sophomore Amry Shelby.

Jensen was moved into a point guard position last year and made the adjustment, while Starken hit a team-leading 69 3-point shots and is expected to pick up underneath this year.

Kielsmeier: defending NSIC champs to play at high level

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Most coaches and players would love to finish a season 26-5, enjoy a 15-game winning streak and win the conference title.

The way Wayne State's season ended last year, though, has provided fuel to fire up a women's basketball team that wants to go a lot farther than they did in 2009-10.

Third-year coach Chris Kielsmeier has all but one player back from last year's Northern Sun Conference tournament champions, and he's expecting his team to play at a high level this season.

"It's a very experienced team, and they are capable of playing at a high level right away, but the players have to prove that's what's going to happen," he said. "This is a team I want to have a belief that I know what they're going to do all the time, and they have that belief and that confidence in themselves, which is great to see as a head coach."

Hjelle was a force inside for Wayne State, averaging 15 points and 8.5 rebounds per game.

Punter has play of the game in win

Here's a few layups, short shots and long-range bombs from The Bleacher Bum's seat on press row:

– Great win for the Wayne State football team Saturday, upsetting rival Augustana 26-14.

While I'm fine with Benjamin Perry as the team's MVP for the Egg Bowl game, the play of the game came early in the contest when Randy Weich launched a school-record 95-yard punt from deep in his own end zone.

Augie had pinned the 'Cats deep in their own end, and Weich's missile launch changed the momentum of the game, flipping field position in the process. He later nailed a 53-yard punt that pinned the visitors deep in their own end. They had to punt into a strong southerly wind, and Frederic Bruno returned the kick to the Augie 17-yard line, setting up the Wildcats' first score.

For the game, Weich averaged 42 yards per kick, slightly below his NSIC-leading 43.1 yards per punt. Without his golden toe, it is likely the outcome of Saturday's game would have been much different.

– This Saturday will be the final home game for three outstanding members of the Wayne State volleyball team.

Diedra Artz, Lea Hartigan and Jennifer Hefner will bump, set and spike one last time in Rice Auditorium Saturday afternoon when the Wildcats take on Augustana, and all three have had outstanding careers at Wayne State.

Of course, Hefner has received a lot of the attention thanks to her All-American effort last year. She is among the all-time leaders in kills at the school, having passed the 1,500-kill plateau last weekend. She's also an incredibly gifted young lady in the classroom as well, earning Academic All-American honors last year.

Artz has been the quarterback of this team the past few seasons, and has been outstanding in her ability to set up her hitters. She's also developed a sneaky little dump that she'll throw in every once in a while, which I always enjoy watching.

Hartigan suffered a serious knee injury during a match last year, and has made quite a comeback and provided some outstanding leadership as well this season. She is a testament to hard work and perseverance, both on and off the court, that has inspired this team and its fans.

Here's hoping we'll get to see them win six more games after Saturday. If they do that, they'll close out their careers as national champions. Considering all they have done for the program and how well they have represented themselves, both on the court and in the classroom, it would be a fitting end to their careers.

– Congrats to the Wayne State women's rugby team for an amazing comeback win to earn a trip to the national tournament in Oklahoma next spring.

Wayne State was down four tries to Augustana on Saturday, but made a remarkable comeback with five scores of their own to come away with the win.

The Wayne State men will have a playoff game in Wayne next weekend, and if they win they will have home-field advantage for the Sweet 16 of the national rugby championships next April.

– Congrats to Wayne State men's basketball coach Paul Combs, who became a dad for the third time Monday afternoon. He and Michelle welcomed a daughter, Lucy into the world.

Coach texted me Monday evening to let me know his daughter's name is Lucy, which is in memory of Michelle's mom, Lucinda, who lost a courageous 15-year battle with breast cancer this past summer.

– Here's how The Bleacher Bum finished out the season: Last Week: 6-4 (.600) Season: 69-31 (.690)

The Bleacher Bum will still make weekly appearances on video on our Web site at www.mywaynews.com. Check it out every Thursday.

Wildcat volleyballers pick up road wins

Wayne State's volleyball team hit the road for the final time this regular season and came away with wins over Winona State and Upper Iowa.

The 25-3 Wildcats took care of Winona State in straight sets (25-20, 25-19, 25-17) and handled Upper Iowa in four sets (28-26, 25-18, 23-25, 25-15), keeping them in position for a bid to the national tournament heading into Friday's season finale at home against Augustana.

Senior middle hitter Jennifer Hefner recorded a match-high 14 kills and became the sixth player in school history to record 1,500 career kills as the Wildcats swept Winona State.

Hefner also recorded four blocks in the win for the Wildcats, while Tali Fredrickson and Shelby Schultz added seven kills apiece. Leigh Connot was one of four Wildcats to notch double digits in digs with a match-high 18, followed by Fredrickson with 14, McKenna Reagan had 13 and Nicole Brungardt added 12. Diedra Artz was credited with 38 set assists.

Fredrickson and Lea Hartigan each had 13 kills for the Wildcats, while Hefner added 10 kills and three blocks. Artz had 41 assists and Connot had 21 digs.

The Wildcats host Augustana Friday at 7 p.m. in the regular-season finale, which will also be the final home match for the team's three seniors — Hefner, Hartigan and Artz.

Coach Scott Kneif said the trio has left quite a mark on the Wildcat program.

"Everybody knows them as three great volleyball players, but they're great people, too," he said. "They work their tails off and lead by example, and they're going to be greatly missed."

Hefner is in line to become a two-time All-American and will be remembered as one of the best athletes to play volleyball at Wayne State.

"She wasn't highly recruited, but we saw a lot of potential in her and she's going to leave as one of the most dominant blockers and attackers in our team's history," Kneif said.

Hartigan came back from a knee injury suffered late last year and was an outstanding player for the Wildcats, Kneif said.

"She started back as a freshman and made an immediate impact on the program, and she fought back from a devastating knee injury and was a great Div. II volleyball player," he said.

Artz transferred to Wayne State and made her mark on the floor as the team's quarterback. Her ability to run the offense as setter was one of the keys to this team's success, he said.

"She's been here three years and has been one of the hardest working kids I've had," he said. "She's one of those players the kids look up to, and she's been a great leader and been a lot of fun to coach."

Five Wildcats earn All-NSIC honors

Five Wayne State volleyball players were honored by the Northern Sun Conference with selections to the NSIC All-Conference volleyball team Tuesday.

Seniors Jennifer Hefner and Diedra Artz were both named to the All-NSIC honor while Leigh Connot was named Libero of the Year, and Tali Fredrickson and Mindy Moody both received honorable mention honors.

Hefner, a 6-foot-1 middle hitter, earned her third first-team All-NSIC honor while leading the Wildcats in kills per set (3.43), blocks per set (1.16) and hitting percentage (.337). She tied for second in the league in blocks, was fifth in kills and seventh in hitting percentage. She became the sixth player in school history to record 1,500 kills and is fifth on the all-time list with 1,514.

Artz, a 5-foot-7 setter, is a two-time first-team selection. She was fifth in assists per set (11.17) and 10th in NCAA Div. II. She is also sixth in services aces per set with 0.3.

Connot, a 5-foot-8 junior, helped the Wildcats lead the NSIC in digs per set (18.21) while ranking 10th nationally. Individually, she ranks fourth in the NSIC in digs per set at 4.78.

Fredrickson, a 5-foot-7 junior, made honorable mention for the second straight season after averaging 3.01 kills and 3.77 digs per set for the Wildcats this season. She has 12 double-doubles for WSC this season with a season-high 20 kills against Minnesota Duluth on Oct. 1.

Moody, a 6-foot junior, received honorable mention honors for the first time after averaging 2.1 kills and 0.66 blocks per set this season. Her hitting percentage of .339 ranks sixth in the NSIC this season.

"I think we came out here knowing that we'd win and we were going to give it our all," she said. "We've worked so hard to get this and I'm so proud of our girls."

Doffin's 12 kills were followed by Gray and Lienemann with eight each, while Thies had four, Roberts three and Bridget Gray two. Doffin had a match-high 10 blocks, with Thies adding three and Lienemann and Roberts recording two each.

In serving, Thies led the team with six, while Erin Gray had three and Lienemann and Bridget Gray each had two. Bridget Gray led the offense with 29 set assists, while Lienemann had Roberts had 22 and 21 digs, respectively to lead the defense. Erin Gray added 19. Thies had 14, Bridget Gray had 12 and Doffin had 10.

The Wildcats will face Cedar Valley, 31-1, in the first round of the tournament Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at Grand Island Northwest High School. Going to state a second time, the Wildcats feel they're prepared to make a statement at state.

"We're going to win at state this time," Doffin said with a smile. "More than once."

"I think we had the momentum after that," Olander said. "We got down early, but we made some plays and got back in it, and our defense played very well up until the end."

Osmond increased their lead to 19-12 in the third on a seven-yard run by Aaron Stech, but Winside was driving and in position to potentially tie or take the lead.

Another turnover early in the fourth quarter took the wind out of Winside's sails, however. Koehler converted that miscue into a 53-yard touchdown run, and Osmond used two more turnovers to put the game out of reach.

The Wildcats had a 279-223 advantage in total yards for the night. Meyer led the team with 80 yards on 17 carries, while Caleb Prince had 60 yards on 11 tries and Anthony Nelson recorded 53 yards on 21 carries.

The loss brought Winside's season to a close, but Olander felt the team put together a good campaign.

"We got somewhere that not a lot of Winside teams have gone by winning a playoff game, and we had an opportunity to win another one," he said. "I'm proud of the seniors that we had, and I'm looking forward to next year. I think we have a good group coming back, and I think we can be successful."

WSC men take fourth at NSIC cross country

John Kern earned All-Conference honors to lead the Wayne State men to a fourth place finish at the 2010 Northern Sun Conference Cross Country Championships Saturday at Wayne State College.

Kern, a senior from Cedar Bluffs, covered the 8,000-meter course in a time of 26:06 to finish seventh overall and earn first-team All-NSIC honor.

Senior York Thomas placed 26th at 27:16 for the Wildcats, while Matt Seiler was 30th at 27:32 and redshirt freshman Garang Lual was 32nd at 27:32.

Other finishers for the Wayne State men included Jason Schaaf (28:28, 49th), Lee Anderson (28:37, 51st), Greg Tracy (28:38, 52nd), David Poots (29:24, 64th) and Nathan Boggess (30:26, 75th).

The Wildcats finished with 137 points in the team standings, trailing Augustana College, who repeated as team champion with 19 points. Minnesota Duluth was runner-up with 79 points, one point ahead of Minnesota State.

The Wayne State women finished ninth overall with 250 points. Augustana repeated as the women's team champion for a third straight season, edging the University of Mary 39-42.

Sophomore Ky'Lee Engelken led Wayne State with a 42nd place time of 24:32 on the 6,000-meter course. Senior Meghan Schneider was 47th at 24:37. Pierce freshman Skyler Lippman was 58th in 25:03, and senior Melissa McIntosh placed 76th at 26:20.

Other Wayne State finishers were Tausha Lee (27:05, 83rd), Holli Erickson (27:22, 85th) and Tatiana DeLosSantos (27:55, 89th).

Wayne State will host the NCAA Div. II Central Regional Championships on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Champs

"Mara is a tremendous leader for our program," Kielsmeier said. "She does more on the inside, but she's as good a defender as anybody in the country and brings so much to our defense. And Ashley is a big-time player who can do anything on the floor. She's tremendous in transition and can hit from inside or outside."

Also back are guard Ali Schwartzwald and forward Alyssa Fischbach, both of whom bring a lot to the table for the Wildcats.

"Ali runs the show for us and loves to push the ball in transition," Kielsmeier said. "She also plays defense at a high level and has been a two-year starter."

"Alisha is a hard-nosed kid that does a lot of the things that go unnoticed," he added. "She feeds the ball inside as well as anybody, and also is a good rebounder and plays at a high level."

The Wildcats also have six returning letterwinners, all of whom were consistent contributors to the success of last year's team. Seniors Julie Ann Wagner and Renee Wood are back, as are juniors Clare Duwelius and Alisha Brown and sophomores Marcy Amundson and Chelsie Rohrs.

"Any time you have as much experience as we do, it's something you love as a coach," Kielsmeier said. "The kids know what they're doing, and it's fun to coach a team with as much experience as this one has."

The Wildcats also bring some new faces in, including 6-foot-1 junior Eva Benson, a native of Overton, Neb., who transferred from Div. I Evansville.

"Eva gives us tremendous depth in the post, and we're going to depend on her a lot," Kielsmeier said.

Freshmen Ellen Hansen and Audrey Holmes are also expected to make contributions this season. Junior Kara Powell, a transfer from Div. I Mercer University; and freshman Jennifer Kalbfell, are expected to redshirt this season, Kielsmeier said.

The Wildcats are going to be challenged early this season, as they will spend the first month of the season on the road. Wayne State will play six road games before their first home contest, a conference matchup with Northern State on Friday, Dec. 10.

"We talked about it a lot this fall, and we wanted to challenge the team with our schedule," Kielsmeier said. "We didn't want to have games we knew they'd win by a lot of points. We wanted to challenge them to have every opportunity to do something special, and it's a tough stretch when you're in a different state every week the first four weeks."

Wayne State opens Friday at Cal State-Stanislaus, then will head to Colorado for a two-game weekend tournament next weekend. They will travel to Kansas Newman the day after Thanksgiving, and will open the Northern Sun Conference portion of their schedule at Minnesota State and Southwest Minnesota State the first weekend in December.

The Wildcats are the defending NSIC tournament champions, and the coaches picked Wayne State as the team to beat heading into this season.

"There was some pressure when we talked about it, but I asked the seniors if they could remember who was preseason No. 1 in the conference two years ago and they couldn't remember," Kielsmeier said. "(Being preseason No. 1) is a good feeling, but it doesn't mean anything in reality. You have to go out and perform and enjoy playing the game, and that's what we're focused on."

The Wildcats stand a good chance of making it to the national tournament, where they hope to erase the memory of last year's first-round loss, when they were upset by Colorado State-Pueblo.

"I think that stung a lot and stayed with them until we started," he said. "It's not the way we wanted our season to end, but we have four seniors that know they're going to need to step up, and when you have experienced players that have been through it, it's a great advantage."

"I know this team has a chance to do something special," he added. "What that is, I don't know. But we're working as hard as we can to get better every day, and that's what you want your program to do and see where it ends."

Starters

he was terrific and was one of the reasons we were so successful down the stretch," Combs said. "Brad had a terrific season shooting the ball and is a deceptively good athlete, and he'll help fill the void left behind inside."

Shelby came on as a freshman last year and developed into a solid player. He led the team in scoring at 13.8 points per game.

"Shelby had a terrific freshman year and has great work habits, and he's really worked on his game the last six months and I have great confidence in him," Combs said.

Seniors Spencer Paulsen, Ryan Rudloff and Ben Tasa are also back among the eight returning letterwinners for the Wildcats, as are junior Elijah Miller and redshirt freshman Tanner Ferguson.

"Elijah won a number of games for us coming off the bench. Ben comes off the bench and fills some roles for us, and Ryan is great off the bench and gave us a lift when we needed it," Combs said. "We've got some good guys coming back that will make some contributions for us, and we have some new people coming in that are going to help us as well."

The Wildcats led the Northern Sun Conference last year in defensive scoring (63.9), rebounding margin (plus 6.3) and rebounds allowed (26.2). They also set a team record by shooting 49.5 percent from the floor, and a lot of that hard work will be needed against what should be a very challenging schedule for the Wildcats.

The Wildcats get the season started next week with home matchups against Morningside on Tuesday and Nebraska-Kearney on Thursday, Nov. 18. Combs said both matchups will be challenging openers for his team.

"Kearney is always a rivalry game and we're looking forward to competing with them, but we can't focus on that yet because Morningside is coming in with a good team that just knocked off Bellevue, who is No. 3 in NAIA," Combs said. "They'll have already played five games by the time we open with them, so we're not going to have time to get out of the gate slow. We're going to have to be ready to go and get after it."

The same holds true for a conference schedule that features 15 games against the top eight teams in the Northern Sun Conference.

"There are some tough home-and-home games this year, and it's going to be a difficult task," Combs said. "But we've got to take it one game at a time and we're going to have to bring our 'A' game every night and play with passion and aggressiveness."

Combs said that if his team can do that, they could be rewarded with a trip to the Div. II national tournament next March.

"The beauty of the Northern Sun is that, if you play well, you're going to get rewarded," he said. "Usually, the top four or five in the league will have the opportunity to play in the big dance, but for now all we're trying to do is get better, because we can only control the next game on our schedule. The quality of the league, though, does put at an advantage for success and gives you the opportunity to be one of those top teams that gets in."

Grisham is Coach of the Year

Wayne State women's soccer coach Molly Grisham was named Northern Sun Conference Coach of the Year, and two players earned All-Conference honors in voting by conference coaches.

Grisham, in her second year at Wayne State, continued her turnaround of the Wildcat soccer program. She coached Wayne State to an 8-5-5 record this season, the school's first winning season since 2005, while going 4-4-5 in conference play. Wayne State fell one point shy of making the conference tournament, finishing the year with four wins in their last six contests while going unbeaten in the final four games.

Megan Dias, a 5-foot-6 senior forward was named to the NSIC Second Team. She led the team in scoring with 23 points, scoring 10 goals and notching three assists.

Christie Johnson, a 5-foot-6 junior defender, received honorable mention honors. She started 18 games and was part of a Wildcat defense that allowed 23 fewer goals than last season.

Wayne State up to No. 3

Wayne State moved up one spot to third in the newest American Volleyball Coaches Association Div. II Top 25 coaches poll.

Wayne State moved up from No. 4 after wins over Winona State and Upper Iowa last weekend. The Wildcats trail Concordia-St. Paul and Tampa in the latest ratings. Southwest Minnesota State and Washburn round out the top five.

Two Wildcats earn NSIC awards

Two Wayne State football players earned honors from the Northern Sun Conference this past week.

Junior punter Randy Weich was named NSIC Special Teams Player of the Week after putting on a record-setting performance during Wayne State's 26-14 upset of No. 7 Augustana on Saturday. Weich launched a school-record 95-yard punt and finished the day with a 50.4 average on five punts. He had a 53-yard punt that pinned Augustana deep in their own territory, helping to turn the field position battle in the Wildcats' favor.

Sophomore linebacker Benjamin Perry was named NSIC Co-Defensive Player of the Week after his defensive efforts Saturday. He was named Egg Bowl MVP after finishing with a game-high 15 tackles, leading a defense that limited the Vikings to 201 yards in total offense. He also forced a fumble that led to a Wildcat field goal. He shared the honor this week with DeShon Benton of University of Mary.

Wildcats earn academic honors

Wayne State volleyball senior Jennifer Hefner and football senior Joe Bundy were both selected to the ESPN Academic All-District teams in their respective sports.

Hefner was named to the first team in voting by the College Sports Information Directors of America. She carries a 3.93 grade-point average with a major in applied human and sport physiology.

Bundy was named to the third team. He has a 3.48 grade-point average with a major in history education.

Wildcats

kids played really well and played hard, and it was a fun game."

The Wildcats were pinned deep in their own territory after an Augustana punt started the Wildcats inside their own five-yard line. But junior punter Randy Weich changed the field position from deep in his own end zone with an outstanding punt that carried, with a stiff southerly breeze, over the Augustana returner's head and bounced out of the opposite end zone, resulting in a school-record 95-yard punt.

His next punt went a considerably shorter distance, but the 53-yard kick took a sharp left turn when it hit the ground, going out of bounds at the Vikings' three-yard line. Augustana was then forced to punt into the wind, and Frederick Bruno returned the punt 22 yards to the Augustana 17-yard line to set up the Wildcats' first score.

"Randy did a great job," McLaughlin said. "Ben Perry was named the MVP of the Egg Bowl, and it was well-deserved, but I thought the MVP of the game was Randy. He controlled the field position for us, and that 95-yard punt changed the whole field."

Two plays after Bruno's return, Kevin Paulsen scored on a reverse from 13 yards out to give Wayne State a 7-0 lead. That lead doubled early in the second period when Nick Pulscher scored on a short run.

Augustana would cut the lead to seven points with a late touchdown pass, but Wayne State's defense took over in the second half and put the Wildcats in position for the upset victory by keeping Augustana out of the end zone, even though they had the wind in the third period.

"Our defense was magnificent,"

"It was a good win and our kids played with a lot of passion."

— Dan McLaughlin
Wayne State football coach

McLaughlin said. "We gave them the ball inside our 25-yard line twice and they came away empty both times. We were going into the wind, and we actually were able to get a field goal and win the quarter with the wind in our face. I thought that was really the game right there."

The Wildcats took a 17-7 lead on Nick Bell's 35-yard field goal late in the third, then made it 19-7 when a center snap went over the Augustana punter's head and out of the end zone early in the fourth quarter. Wayne State followed that with a short run by quarterback Evan Johnson to put the game away for the Wildcats.

"It was a good win for us, and the question was where was that team the last three weeks," McLaughlin said. "I truly believe, if we had played the last three weeks like we did Saturday, we'd have won all three games. It was a good win and our kids played with a lot of passion."

Perry was selected Egg Bowl Most Valuable Player after leading the defense with 15 tackles, 12 of them solo, and one forced fumble.

Wayne State completes the season Saturday with a conference road battle at Winona State. Kickoff is at 1 p.m.

"We beat them at home last year, and they just don't ever lose at home," McLaughlin said. "It will be an interesting game because it's

WSC club wrestling team doubles in size this year

In their third year, the Wayne State College club wrestling team is making some big strides.

Team membership doubled this season, and the wrestlers have been given the opportunity to practice at the National Guard Armory, which has been a blessing, according to coach Greg VanderWeil.

The Wayne State program has 21 kids out this season, including five wrestlers who competed in the National Wrestling Coaches Association's national club tournament.

"The biggest difference for us is our numbers," he said. "We have 21 out, and once we get them all here, that internal competition is going to drive quality. We'll have two kids at every weight, so there's competition there."

Tahner Thiem and Matthew Peter are among the returning national qualifiers, and both are anxious to see what the team can accomplish this season.

"The club's gotten better and better, and we have a nice facility to practice in," he said. "As more people know more about the program, we can continue to take a step up."

"We've got twice as many as last year and a lot more experience," Peter added. "There's a lot more competition in the practice room, which is going to make us better."

Wayne State is led by its elder statesman on the team, 27-year-old Matt Bates. The Columbus native was a state champion at Columbus High School in 2002, and he went 2-2 at nationals last year at 197 pounds.

"Matt beat a kid last year at nationals who came back and placed, and he's kind of the elder statesman on the team," VanderWeil said.

Thiem and Peter both had success at nationals last year. Thiem, who has been an assistant high school coach and competes in mixed martial arts, will wrestle at either 174 or 184, while Peter is expected to compete at 149.

Also back from last year are sophomore Cory Devine, who will go at 174 or 184; and heavyweight Jonathon Mullen, a Laurel native who competed well at nationals.

Some area wrestlers are among the newcomers this year, including Wakefield freshmen Wyatt Jacobsen, Cody Henschke and Tim Campton; and Wayne freshman Jared Klassen. Craig Dennis, a two-time state medalist from Osmond, is also on the team this year.

VanderWeil said the team has four duals scheduled against NAIA teams, including Concordia and York; and will also wrestle in big open tournaments this month at UNO and next month in Kearney. They have also been invited to the national club dual tournament in Georgia, but will need to raise funds to make the trip for the 24-team tournament.

"Fundraising has gone well," he said. "We started with zero, but the college community has been fantastic, and we've done fundraisers and gotten support from Sand Creek Post and Beam."

The college has helped with transportation, VanderWeil said, and the adopt-a-wrestler program among faculty has helped kids with their registration fees.

"It's a challenge, especially with double the numbers, but we're excited about it," VanderWeil said.

The team's roster, including year, weight and hometown, is as follows: Eric Held (so., 165, Hinton, Iowa), Tahner Thiem (sr., 174-184, Crete), Zach DeVries (so., 235, Chambers), Jared Klassen (fr., 174, Wayne), Allyn Gonsor (jr., 157, Fremont), Cory Devine (so., 174-184, Cozad), Matthew Peter (so., 149, O'Neill), Jonathon Mullen (so., 285, Laurel), Steven Varela (fr., 141-149, David City), Matt Bates (so., 197, Columbus), Rob Peter (jr., 174-184, O'Neill), Tim Campton (fr., 235, Wakefield), Wyatt Jacobsen (fr., 125, Wakefield), Cody Henschke (fr., 165, Wakefield), Travis Pieper (fr., 157, Farnam), Craig Dennis (so., 133, Osmond), Trenton Brichacek (so., 141, West Point), Tyler Hart (fr., 165, Tilden), Carlos Sanchez (sr., 165, Fremont), Joe McConkey (fr., 125-133, Fullerton), Jal Gatuoch (fr., 184, Omaha).

Rugby women win eighth straight conference title with comeback win

The Wayne State women's rugby team pulled off an improbable comeback to win their eighth straight conference title and earn a trip to the national tournament next spring.

Wayne State was down by four tries midway through the first half, but fought back and came away with a 35-27 win over Augustana to earn a trip to the national playoffs in April.

It was an outstanding performance, according to coach Darrin Barner.

"There were USA national scouts at the game, and they were very impressed on how a team can come back from four touchdowns down and still win a conference title against top-end competition," he said. "It was by far the most thrilling win in Wayne State rugby history."

Augustana boasts three USA national team members, and they used their speed to jump on the Wayne State squad early.

Wayne State countered by switching to a short-yardage, ball-control offense that kept possession on their end and helped them come from behind, tying the game just before halftime with four scores of their own. Maggie Warrick, Whit Neilson, Amber Kutnink and Hailey Wright scored for the Wildcats to get them back in the game.

Wayne State's scrum wore down Augustana's in the second half, even pushing a scrum into the Augustana end zone for a try. Both teams scored in the second half, but Lacey Tonniges rambled 55 yards for the game-winning score with about a minute to go to give Wayne State the win.

Wayne State finished the season 10-0, and will take on the top seed of the Eastern Rockies Conference in the first round of the national playoffs next spring in Norman, Okla.

The Wayne State men's rugby team will host Benedictine College in the first round of the national playoffs on Sunday, Nov. 21, at the House of Pain in Wayne. Kickoff is at 1 p.m.

Congratulations AGAIN!

Conference Championships for the 8th straight year, the WSC Womens Rugby Team has swept the field!

They dominated over UN Huskers, USD, South Dakota State, Iowa State, Kansas University, Kansas State, and Augustana to win the Great Plains Conference Championships. Now they will return to the national playoffs in the spring. While only 2 wins away from the Sweet 16, the Wildcats are ranked #6 in the nation.

Character students recognized at Wayne Elementary

October Students of the Month and October birthdays were celebrated in an assembly at Wayne Elementary School on Oct. 25. Daryl Schrunk, Elementary Principal, reminded students about showing respect, and some techniques that they learned in the RESPECT assembly for dealing with verbal or physical bullying. The Character Connections word for October and November is Citizenship. Students showed their citizenship and drug free school spirit during the week of Oct. 25 - 29 by celebrating Red Ribbon Week. Joan Sudmann, K - 8 Counselor, led the students in a drug free chant: "We are healthy, young and strong. We know when something is wrong. Drugs are not for you and me. So we'll have to be drug free!" The next assembly will be Monday, Nov. 29 and the fourth grade will provide a program on Citizenship. The Character Connections Team has the following members: Lisa Meyer, Courtney Maas, Jodi Lutt, Liz Garvin, Nate Wall, Joan Sudmann and Daryl Schrunk. Character Connections students for the month of October include: Kindergarten: Rockhill — Daniel Judd; Meyer — Maiah Davis; Heikes — Ocn Brown. Middle School students attend Literacy Festival

Wayne Middle School sixth grade students recently attended Plum Creek Literacy Festival in Seward at Concordia University.

They saw a presentation by the author Ashley Bryan. His focus was on teaching children to read with voice and emotion to enjoy poetry and books more. Several of the Wayne students participated in Music Alive which was presented by the professors at Concordia.

Students learned to put musical sounds and to read with emotion to make stories come alive.

The last presenter they enjoyed was illustrator Ralph Masiello. He told many humorous stories about his life as an illustrator and demonstrated drawing at a speed which was mesmerizing.

The students and teachers have extended a special thanks to WEB for donating money so the sixth graders could enjoy this day.

Students commented: "It was fun to learn to use my voice while reading poetry. It was a lot of fun." Logan Milligan.

"The illustrator was interesting because he could draw really fast. He did not want to be an artist at first and his life was interesting." Will Anderson

"The author Ashley Bryan made it fun with the poems we did." Shanda Lambert

"Finglehopper Frog was really

"Alive was amazing because we made a sound track to go with our story." Matt Frevert

Public invited to hear talks on disaster preparedness

Disaster preparedness will be the topic on Nov. 15 and 16 in Wayne, Norfolk and Seward, as part of "UNMC Simply Science," an outreach program from the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Sharon Medcalf, associate director for the Nebraska Center for Preparedness Education, will be the featured speaker. Medcalf also is an instructor in the Department of Health Promotion in the UNMC College of Public Health.

The hour-long presentations will be held in:

- Wayne — Monday, Nov. 15 at 6:30 p.m.: "Bio-chemical Preparedness: What does it all mean?" Wayne State College, Gardner Auditorium, 1111 Main St.
- Norfolk — Tuesday, Nov. 16 at 11:30 a.m.: "Are you prepared for a disaster?" hosted by the UNMC College of Nursing Northern Division, Northeast Community College Lifelong Learning Center, 601 E Benjamin Ave.
- Seward — Tuesday, Nov. 16 at 7 p.m.: "Bio-chemical Preparedness: What does it all mean?" Concordia University, Thom Leadership Education Center.

Medcalf is responsible for developing educational programs in bioterrorism focused on the needs of Nebraska's healthcare providers and public health officials. She has worked in the international arena, holding positions in Canada and Saudi Arabia and eventually moved from bedside nursing to infection control and staff development.

Prior to her current position, she was involved with various bioterrorism preparedness committees, including the Omaha Metropolitan Medical Response System. Recently, for Nebraska's pre-event smallpox vaccination plan, Medcalf led a team across the state to train professionals to administer the smallpox vaccine and provided education to the clinics.

As part of UNMC Simply Science, faculty members travel to different regions of the state, delivering presentations on various topics of health care. The visits take place four times per year to different parts of the state. For more on UNMC Simply Science, visit www.unmc.edu/simplescience.

Watch out for those Iowans without licenses

Whoa - Dave Heineman isn't running for the U.S. Senate after all? And less than 72 hours after winning re-election for Attorney General, Jon Bruning wants to upgrade?

This is all too much for me to take in - so I'm opting out this week with another purging of the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- Sometimes, it's hard for me to come up with something funny to say about things I read about in the news.

And then, there's this . . .

In a recent edition of the Des Moines Register, it was reported that 16,000 Iowa drivers were convicted of driving without a valid license last year. That number, believe it or not, is actually less than the 19,000 who were busted four years earlier.

But wait - it gets better.

Police in Iowa arrested 16 people in the past two weeks for driving away from area courthouses after having just gone before a judge on charges of driving with suspended licenses.

I guess that thing about Iowa being an acronym for Idiots Out Wandering Around really has some truth to it.

- From the, "Oh, well NOW it all makes perfect sense" department: A while back, a story on the Internet caught fire concerning a University of Chicago corporate law professor who claimed he and his family were struggling to make ends meet in spite of the family's six-figure income.

Originally, the story reported that Todd Henderson, a neighbor of the current leader of this great country, was having a hard time living on $400,000. After all, they had paid $100,000 in federal and state taxes, more than $15,000 in property taxes, and had about $250,000 in student loans.

An update of the story, though, corrected the Henderson's annual income to be more near the $250,000 range. For those of us who are making significantly less, and yet being able to make ends meet, this is comforting news to know that a neighbor of the Obamas is just like the rest of us working stiffs who are trying to get by during these tough economic times.

I don't know about you, but I wouldn't mind dealing with Henderson's dilemma right about now.

- Our area is blessed to have some excellent businesses that provide outstanding service and competitive prices.

One of the most important businesses in any town is the grocery store, but the small-town grocery store is being challenged more and more by their big-city, big-chain brethren.

Some people subscribe to the theory that it is worth the drive to the big city to do your grocery shopping. People in these parts have Norfolk to the west, Sioux City to the east and Yankton to the north, all bigger cities that offer opportunities to shop at big-ticket stores like Hy-Vee and Wal-Mart.

I have a hard time, though, believing that the 2-3 hours on the road are worth the perceived savings. I find it ludicrous that somebody in Wayne would think they were actually saving money by driving to Norfolk to get their groceries, especially when there are two grocery stores here in town that offer the same products at prices that are competitive, if not lower (especially when you factor in gas and vehicle wear) than what is offered in the big city.

Communities in Wakefield, Laurel and Winside are also blessed to have their own grocery stores. And while some residents in those communities might make the trip out of town, they would also be better served to keep their business local and support the hometown business.

These hometown businesses are run by our neighbors, and without our support, these businesses close their doors, leaving us without a very important resource. Small business in the rural area is vital to the continued growth and development of our area communities. Do your part by supporting your local grocery store.

- From the "Making the world safer from ignorance" department: People in the small town of Weston, Mo., were mourning the death of a fallen U.S. soldier from their town, and came up with a rather creative way to keep the religious bigots from the Westboro Baptist "Church" away from the funeral procession.

Hundreds of people in the community were joined by people from as far away as California and Australia and took up all the available parking spots near the procession route, making it difficult for the Kansas kooks from creating a disturbance during the funeral for Sgt. First Class C.J. Sadell, who died in Afghanistan recently.

It's unfortunate that some pathetic souls like those involved in the Westboro cult (calling them a church would soil the meaning of the word) use the First Amendment to spout their hatred and spew their perverted assessment of God's word. Here's hoping that their tactics will be countered by more efforts like the one put forth by real God-fearing, America-loving folk in Weston, Mo.

- Scientists discovered there is a gene some people possess that make them more likely to feel the effects of alcohol. People with this gene, according to the study, are more apt to quit drinking sooner and, are less likely to become heavy drinkers.

This study was not done at my college, obviously . . .

2012 election gets early start

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - Nebraskans didn't have much time to mourn or celebrate the end of the 2010 election season.

Less than 48 hours after the polls closed, Republican Gov. Dave Heineman launched Election 2012 festivities by announcing he would not run for the Senate two years down the road.

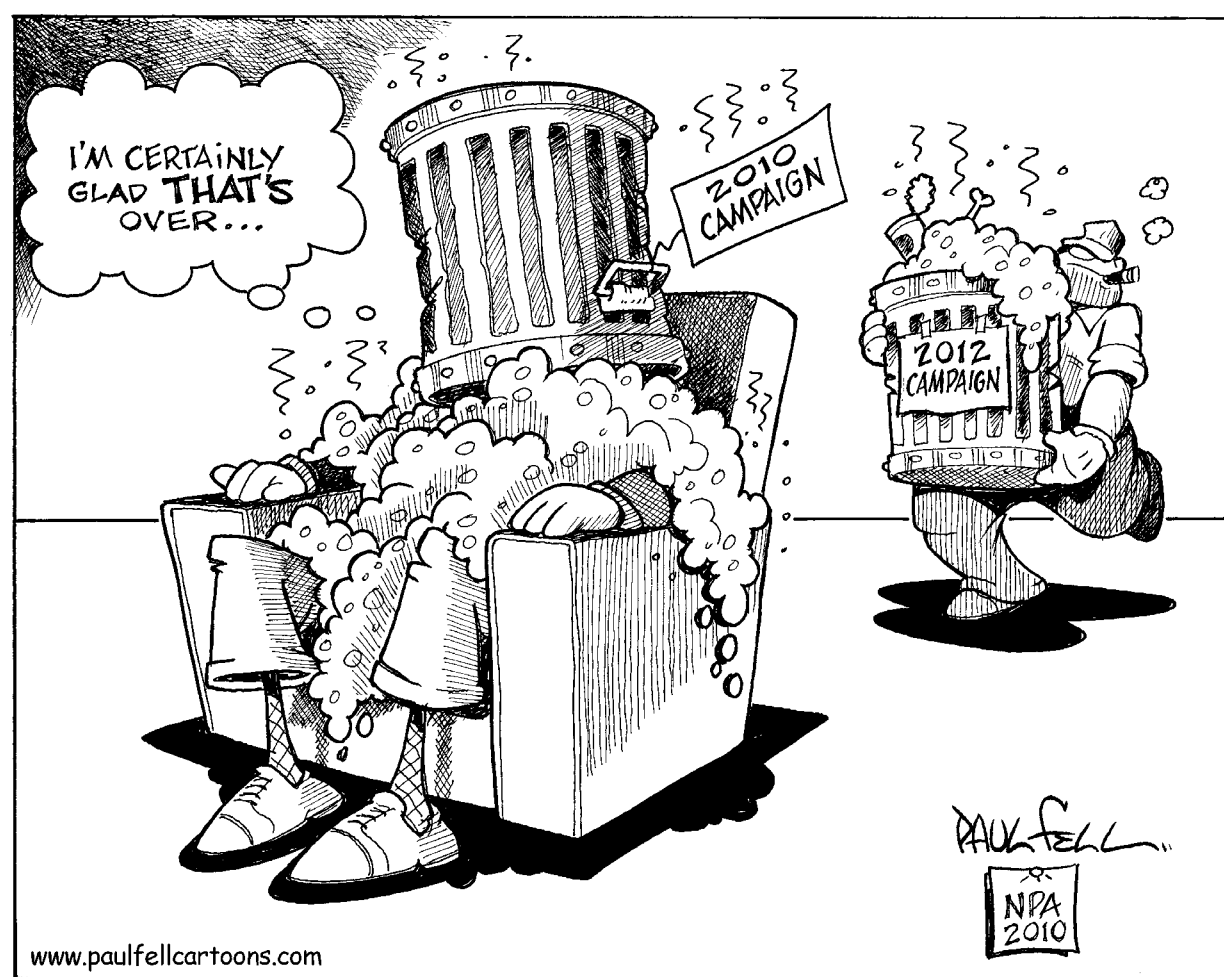

Republican winners barely had time to take bows in the wake of their predictable victories. Democrats had yet to bury their political dead.

Heineman's earlier-than-expected announcement opened the way for a wide-open GOP Senate primary and a chance at two-term U.S. Sen. Ben Nelson, a Democrat who hasn't officially declared his bid for re-election. Unless polls, intuition or personal matters interfere, however, a Nelson candidacy is a sure thing. As sure as politics get, anyway.

Who among the GOP family wants to challenge Nelson? If Heineman had wanted the nomination it was his for the taking. He decided to stay home and serve a record 10 years as the state's chief executive. Now the nomination is up for grabs, and a lot of grabby politicians are eyeing the senatorial prize.

Think Attorney General Jon Bruning and State Treasurer-elect Don Stenberg, himself a former state attorney general and longtime Republican warhorse.

Imagine the potential of a Stenberg v. Bruning primary contest. It's enough to make the Marquis of Queensbury flinch. Forget about those two throwing everything at each other but the kitchen sink. The kitchen sink would be just another projectile,

along with bathroom fixtures and the septic tank.

Bruning and Stenberg, each given four-year terms on election day, didn't hesitate a nanosecond to say they'd not hesitate to leave in mid-term for Washington. Remember: A primary loss allows an incumbent in mid-term to keep that job. An officeholder who seeks higher office in mid-term is always criticized for it by the opposition. It would be interesting to see if Bruning and/or Stenberg each criticized the other, but found a way to justify his own decision.

The view from here: Perceived qualifications should be the voters' standard, of course. But for potential entertainment value, at least in the very early going, Bruning and Stenberg would be candidates for top billing.

Anytime a Senate seat is open the state's three Republican congressmen are automatically mentioned as possible candidates. And State Auditor Mike Foley was mentioned in initial reports. Pete Ricketts, the multimillionaire who Nelson walloped in 2006, might yet have a taste for frontline politics.

A certainty: Anyone interested in the next Senate race will have to bring millions and millions of dollars to the table. At least. Whether it is their money, or loot provided by supporters—directly or indirectly, anonymous or otherwise, American or otherwise—they will need to put up a big ante, and the game will effectively be for table stakes. No limit.

In presidential election years, a Republican seeking statewide office has a home field advantage akin to the Huskers' when they play in Lincoln. Regardless of whether President Obama carries his party's standard, the 2012 turnout is likely to be hefty.

Department of Veterans' Affairs serves more than 150,000 Vets

Dear Fellow Nebraskans:

With Veterans Day approaching, I want to focus this week on an agency that works closely with veterans in our state. The Nebraska Department of Veterans' Affairs serves more than 150,000 military veterans each year in our state.

The Nebraska Department of Veterans' Affairs assists veterans and their families in acquiring the state and federal benefits they are entitled to through their service in the U.S. Armed Forces. Led by John Hilgert, who also serves as the Director of the Division of Veterans' Homes within the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, the Nebraska Department of Veterans' Affairs consists of three divisions.

The central office is responsible for the administration of the agency as well as overseeing the array of unique benefits provided to veterans in Nebraska, including a college tuition waiver program for veterans attending Nebraska colleges and universities and the Nebraska

Veterans Aid Fund, available to provide emergency-aid to veterans and their families. The central office also coordinates applications from individuals seeking to live at one of Nebraska's four Veterans Homes.

Other responsibilities include retrieving and archiving all discharges for Nebraska military personnel who complete their service. They also maintain a statewide registry of Nebraska veteran grave sites.

The Veterans' Affairs staff works one-on-one with military veterans, spouses and their families in order to establish eligibility for veterans' benefits. They provide guidance for those with claims filed with the U.S. Department of Veterans' Affairs (VA) and assist individuals in completing and submitting documents as part of the claims process. The state service office is located at the new VA Regional Office in Lincoln. This collaboration helps state and federal veterans officials work together on behalf of Nebraska veterans.

The newest division of the department was created in 2006 when legislation creating the State Veterans Cemetery System was approved. The cemetery division was responsible for overseeing the construction of Nebraska's first state veterans' cemetery, located in Alliance on the former Alliance Army Airbase used to train paratroopers and glider pilots during World War II. It was dedicated this summer and is the result of a cooperative effort with the local community and the federal VA. The Nebraska Veterans Cemetery at Alliance will provide a final resting place for more than 8,000 veterans.

Nebraskans have a deep appreciation for the service that our veterans have given to our country. Providing quality services for them here at home is a way to honor their service and sacrifices. I appreciate the time and energy the Nebraska Department of Veterans' Affairs devotes to working with veterans organizations, our veterans and their families.

As we observe Veterans Day, I hope that all of us will take time to remember the service of our veterans and to thank our veterans for all that they have done for our nation.

Kris Hinnerichs, Wayne State College, uses a skinfold caliper to do a skinfold measurement on Brady Soden and Danny Melena.

Students learn about body fat

Kris Hinnerichs, associate professor at Wayne State College, was a guest speaker for the Wayne High School Sports and Nutrition class.

Each student had their skinfold measurements done with a skinfold caliper to determine their body fat percentage. A body fat percentage was also obtained using a bioelectrical impedance method.

"My objective is for the students to understand that their fitness and health are more important than a certain size of clothing or looking like the cultural beauty ideal," said instructor, Karen Schardt.

School has started

Dan Hansen shows students from Fishers of Kids the food that the pigs on his farm eat. The Hansen farm was one of several outings enjoyed by the students this fall.

By Mrs. Amy Steinmeyer, Fishers of Kids Instructor

Fishers of Kids Preschool started school in September with students eager to learn. Students enjoyed getting acquainted games, and learning what it looks like to be in school.

Children also visited area business and explored a variety of occupations.

Our first tour in September took us to the farm of Dan and Bonnie Hansen. Here students went inside a hog barn and discovered how farmers feed, water and care for pigs. Farmer Dan let us each bring home an ear of corn that was later used in an art project. Mrs. Hansen let the children bring home small gourd pumpkins and cookies shaped like a pig. Students came home thrilled with the experience.

We spent two weeks on a Community Places and People unit. Students recognized many of the places we visited from the front side, but going behind the scenes was an exciting discovery for all involved. We toured the Post Office where students saw how their mail comes into the post office and eventually to their home. The Wayne Herald showed us the importance of knowing our colors by showing us the printing press. Students really enjoyed seeing how this important machine worked.

We celebrated Fire Prevention Week by going to the Fire Station where students learned two important slogans: "Go outside, don't hide," and "Get out and stay out." We also visited was the Wayne Municipal Airport. Students were allowed to sit in the cockpit of Clay Bode's airplane where he showed them how the steering wheel moved the flaps on the airplane to go different directions.

"Fishers of Kids Preschool would like to thank the area businesses that participated in this year's tours. Our students and their families enjoyed learning about your occupation and business," Mrs. Steinmeyer said.

The next big adventure is our Thanksgiving Feast which has become an annual event. Students prepare a Thanksgiving meal with all the trimmings for invited guests. We look forward to a blessed fall season and wish the community of Wayne a wonderful Thanksgiving.

Keeping leftovers - safe food after the holidays

By Carol Larvick, Extension Educator UNL Extension in Dakota County Thanksgiving is just around the corner, followed by holiday parties and then Christmas, New Years and don't forget about SuperBowl parties.

What do they all have in common? Lots and lots of food. We fix a lot of food and eat a lot of food in the next two to three months. We also have leftovers, I like to call them planned-overs. By utilizing leftovers we can save prep time and food costs.

Plan ahead for leftovers to have plenty of refrigerator space to store leftovers. Allow enough room between leftovers for air to circulate. If you do not have enough fridge space, get ice and use coolers to keep food safe until there is room in the fridge.

Keep raw meat, poultry, seafood and eggs away from foods that are ready to eat or do not need any further cooking.

Cool and refrigerate all perishable leftovers within two hours, this include leftovers from a restaurant. To help foods cool faster: cut large er cuts of meat into smaller portions; place leftovers in shallower containers; use glass or metal containers instead of plastic; or place the container of food on ice.

Most perishable leftovers should be used in three to four days. If you need to keep leftovers longer, consider freezing them.

No one wants to be sick at holiday and party time, follow the leftover rules to keep your leftovers safe from making you and your guests sick.

For more information contact your local UNL Extension Office or visit food.unl.edu.

Engagements — Jill Walling hosts PEO Chapter meeting

P.E.O., Chapter AZ met at the home of Jill Walling on Nov. 6. Assisting hostesses were Gail McCorkindale, Joan Lage, and Jean Blomenkamp. An up-scale garage sale was discussed as a fund-raiser to be held in the Spring of 2011 to support the P.E.O. scholarships.

Margaret McClelland reported on Cottey College in Nevada, Mo. and showed computer pictures of the campus. Cottey is an accredited two-year liberal arts college owned by P.E.O. International. Approximately 95 percent of Cottey graduates will go on to receive baccalaureate degrees from four-year schools. Wayne has provided at least one student who attended Cottey. Scholarships are available.

Jill Sweetland reported for the committee on the Christmas silent auction to be held on Dec. 7. Members will bring new and homemade items to be auctioned.

Anne Hoeman, a physician's assistant, presented a program on skin abrasions, dermatology, and how they affect general health. She noted that many times the skin will provide an early diagnosis of other health problems.

The next meeting of Chapter AZ will be on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at the home of Kris Giese.

Close to Home

Why list your home now? Fall is here and winter is just around the corner so with most people settling in for winter, why should you list your house now?

Wendy Vawser Residential Sales

You want to position yourself so that when people start to look, you are first in their minds. In today's market properties are taking slightly longer to sell and by listing now you can get a head start on the market. Because there are fewer properties on the market this time of the year, you are sure to stand out in the crowd.

Also although fewer homes sell in the fall and winter, studies have shown those who are looking this time of year typically are more serious. Buyers who are looking in the fall or winter generally are on a time schedule and need to find a home. Think about it, who goes through ice and snow just to browse?

So, remember this equation: Less competition + More serious buyers = A great time to sell!

Make sure your house is ready for people who are serious about purchasing this fall and winter. If you would like to talk more about listing your home, call me. We'll sit down, discuss your options and figure out what's best for you!!

Cold and flu can add stress to diabetes patients

Cold and flu season is upon us. If you have diabetes, catching colds can make your condition worse. Not only must you deal with miserable cold symptoms, but the cold virus creates additional stress on your body. When you have diabetes, this added stress can cause your blood sugars to rise.

Here's what you must know to stay well with diabetes and colds and flu. Join us for "Control Diabetes for Life" to learn to prevent cold and flues this winter, the role that flu shots play for people with diabetes, and how to manage blood sugar levels when you have the flu or a cold.

The December session of "Control Diabetes for Life" will help participants take a serious look at weathering the winter especially when it comes to colds and flu. We invite all family members of people who have diabetes to participate in the educational sessions offered via the distance education facilities on Dec. 1.

Agriculture

Week filled with talk about football, angels and runzas

How do you explain temperatures in the 70s in November? Of course, I do remember going for a walk on Thanksgiving last year, and kids playing outside several times on that holiday. But there was also a lot of snow and cold weather prior to the holiday last year, and, of course, we all know what happened after!

The World Herald says today that last Saturday was a strange day in the Big Twelve; I would say it's been a strange season. I thought that call for a fake PAT was gutsy, and we were very lucky to have Hagg in the right place at the right time.

But when KU makes 42 points in the fourth quarter, you think you are reading about their basketball team! And Oklahoma and Texas both get beat, again; it's hard to figure out.

Just so we get past the last three teams on our schedule. I have a hunch this is the last year at Colorado for Dan Hawkins; you think?

My nurse classmates got together for our every other month lunch date; this time in Beatrice, and then drove out of town to an old church that is now Cedar Creek Pottery. You may have read about it in Nebraska Life. You do take Nebraska Life, don't you?

Anyway, there is still an altar rail and a baptismal fount, two pump organs, and a whole lot of armoirs and cupboards, FULL of pottery. And it is beautiful stuff that can be used. I did buy another wedding gift; I had purchased one there in September when I took friends Marlyce and Jerry there. But I do not need more pottery or any other stuff!

By: Pat Meierhenry

A lot of my angel collection is still boxed away; I don't really have a place to display it.

And I took a small box of clothes to Good Will last week, just as the gal taking donations had spread out another woman's angel collection on the table! I felt so sad; I have a hunch that is where a bunch of mine will go someday. Years of collecting, boxed and deposited at Good Will.

Back to Nebraska Life magazine. I don't know how long we've been subscribers, but I know it was published in Hartington when we first started. I have old copies in the basement from six years ago. It's now a fixture in Norfolk and the publisher is a local boy. There are always interesting articles and stories and photographs; plus, Nebraska trivia and poetry and ads for all things Nebraska, as in bed and breakfasts, wineries, and jams, jellies, and cheese. You can now pick up copies in newsstands, even if you don't subscribe. It also makes great gifts, especially for natives who live elsewhere.

Friend Marlyce in Orlando has been making runza casserole for their senior lunches at church; everyone eats it, but they all want to know about runzas. So, I googled them the other day; it was heart warming to read about all the displaced Cornhuskers with great memories of this Lincoln delicacy. I'm going to have to make them one of these days!

Keep cattle happy, healthy during winter months

Rick Rasby, Extension Beef Specialist, has these tips for the hopefully mild winter.

Winter is drawing near and cattle will be making their way back to be closer to the headquarters as the cold weather moves in. Producers should keep these tips in mind to at weaning time because when calves are less stressed, they will be much healthier and will perform at a higher level. Keep calves healthy during the weaning period and they will do better.

Fence-line weaning is a proven way to reduce stress on the calf. Fence-line weaning means training the cows and calves to be separated by setting up an electric fence that separates cows and their calves in two adjacent pastures. Have enough fence-line for the calves to stand across the fence from their mothers. The cows and calves will most likely stand across from each other for the first few days of separation, but they eventually will be comfortable and content apart.

Cattle typically can't graze year round, so they are fed harvested forages. Producers should think about sampling those forages and testing them for quality now. In hay samples, producers should test for primary nutrients: moisture, protein and energy (TDN) content.

Once the hay quality is known, producers know if extra feed or supplements will be needed to go along with the forage in order to meet the cattle's nutrient needs. Getting inventory of quality feeds on hand now is best so producers can shop around for supplements and have them ready if needed.

Also, producers need to make sure the hay yard is accessible even in snowy times or blizzards. Place forages where they can be gotten to easily.

keep their cattle productive this winter.

The majority of calving in Nebraska is done in the spring, so late fall and early winter is a time when producers should look at the body condition of their cows. Most thin cows in late fall are the young females in the herd. Producers should pay particular attention to those cows.

Weaning time also is approaching. It's important to reduce stress

Beef profitability meeting scheduled

Beef producers have a unique opportunity to improve profitability at a workshop scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 16 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk.

Attendees will learn effective production techniques that result in improved profits, animal performance, and greater efficiency in resource use. The program is designed for beef producers in both grass-fed and grain-fed operations.

The cost of this workshop is $25 per person to cover materials and fees; lunch is provided. For additional information, please call 402-370-4061. For a registration flyer, please visit nrec.unl.edu or call 402-370-4000. Preregistration for this event is required; act now as this opportunity is limited to the first 40 returned forms.

Speakers include Dennis Bauer, an extension educator in Brown-Rock-Keya Paha counties, Steve Niemeyer, an extension educator in Loup-Wheeler-Garfield Counties, Terry Gompert, an extension educator in Knox County, Wayne Ohnesorg, an extension educator in Pierce County, and Tim Lemmons, an extension educator at the Northeast Research and Extension Center. Topics of this meeting include, feeding corn co-products to beef cows and backgrounding operations, minimizing storage and feeding losses of round bales of hay, the power of stock density and animal performance, managing pasture and feedlot insects and pest, and flexible cash lease provisions and management of pasture and rangeland.

Input and feed prices in beef cow/calf and feedlot operations have been highly volatile over the past several years. Maintaining profitability and efficient operations requires staying on the cutting edge of beef best practices and business management methods. Attend this workshop to gain the latest skills and ideas to improve your profitability.

ALLEN VILLAGE GARDENS VIANNE STANGE

Have you noticed the gardens by the Fire Hall and around the Allen sign along the highway here in town? ViAnne Stange has been voluntarily taking care of them for us for the past 9+ years.

She has done an awesome job and we want to let her know how much we have appreciated all she has done to help beautify the community. ViAnne has told the Village Office that she will not be doing this after this year; she has a beautiful yard of her own she wants to spend more time in and other activities. Anyone interested in maintaining these gardens, please let the Village Office know. Once again the Village appreciates all that ViAnne has done. Please contact the Village Office for more information.
