"It was a wonderful experience. One minute we laughed and the next we cried throughout the event as people shared their stories with us," she said.

Liska and her team, "Here's to Healthy Hooters" were part of the group of 2,700 walkers who raised $7 million for research.

The 60-mile trek took walkers through many parts of Dallas, and was designed to resemble a ribbon. The first day of the walk consisted of 21.3 miles; the second day's journey was 23.5 miles and the final day, 15.2 miles into the Cotton Bowl sta-

Each morning, the walkers would start off together, after having their name badge scanned in, and would begin the day's walk. The walkers continued on at their own pace and at the end of each day's walk were scanned in again to assure that they had completed the day's journey.

"As we walked, people lined the streets and cheered us on. They gave us treats, so it was like a parade only the people on For Jan Liska, the past seven months have involved intense the sidewalks were giving us candy, not the other way around,"

> All along the route, Liska said there were so many people who thanked them for what they were doing - from cancer survivors, to young children - thanking them for raising money to find a cure before they were old enough to get cancer.

Approximately every three miles along the route, there was a 'pit stop' area that included portable restrooms, water and energy drinks. In addition, at various spots along the route, 'cheer stations" had bananas, yogurt-covered fruit and other

At lunch time, each participant was given a sack lunch and a break was taken, generally at a large park. This gave them an opportunity to rest and change socks.

After each day's walk was complete, the walkers gathered to listen to music, and emotional stories were told by those speakers who have been affected by breast cancer.

Liska dedicated her first day of walking to Jana Anderson of Wayne, and wore a T-shirt that has been designed in her honor. Anderson is a breast cancer survivor.

"I didn't have any weather issues while I was there. The weather was similar to what I had trained in here in Nebraska. Some of the other walkers felt it was cold in the morning, but by afternoon it was much warmer."

Moser is anxious for transplant

Of the Herald

For most 19 year-olds, Thanksgiving means a break from college and eating lots of food.

While Tess Moser will probably be thankful for those things, she will be especially thankful that a donor has been found and she will be receiving a kidney

When Tess was born on Nov. 28, 1991, she weighed less than two pounds and spent several months in the hospital. While she has only had to be hospitalized once since that time, her kidneys remained very small.

During a routine physical in the summer of 2007, a blood test revealed that the protein levels in her system were

Council amends agreement

By CLARA OSTEN

The purchase of energy was on the agenda during a special meeting of the Wayne City Council Tuesday.

The item involved amending of a resolution that was approved at the Nov. 2 meeting for the purchase of energy from IP Wayne, LLC. The resolution calls for the city to purchase power from IP Wayne, LLC at a base rate of $0.050 per kilowatt hour.

At the end of each year of the contract, the actual costs will be calculated to determine the city's usage. At that point, the city could owe the sellers additional money or a refund could be returned to the city, plus

The sellers wanted the council to put in the purchase agreement a solid number of escalation costs, rather than a fluctuating number as had originally been part of the

The number that was agreed to was a seven percent interest rate.

Following a presentation from Public Works Superintendent Garry Poutre on how this amount will be determined, the council voted unanimously to approve the amended resolution.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Larry Claussen

Larry J. Claussen, 66, former teacher at the University of Nebraska-Kearney and Wayne State College, died Thursday, Nov. 18, 2010 under hospice care at Sanford USD Medical Center after a 3 ½ year battle with multiple myeloma.

> A Celebration of Life was held Monday, Nov. 22 at Grace Lutheran Church, Sioux Falls.

Larry James Claussen, son of Lorenz and Lucille (Strassburg) Claussen, was born Aug. 12, 1944 in Luverne, Minn. He graduated from Valley Springs (SD) High School in 1962 and earned a bachelor's degree from Southern State Teachers College in 1966. He later earned his masters degree from the University of Northern Colorado in 1982 and his PhD in Education from the University of Wyoming in 1991. Larry married Eileen Fiolka in Valley Springs, S.D., on March 2, 1963. His life's passion was working with young people - this was evidenced by 40 plus years in education, teaching junior high to college level students in Springfield, S.D., Hector, Minn., in Sioux Falls at Patrick Henry Junior High and Washington High School, and at the University of Nebraska-Kearney and Wayne State College. He was active in the International Technology Education Association (ITEA) and Technology Education Collegiate Association (TECA), where he served as national director. He received the Wood Badge, the District Award of Merit and the Silver Beaver Award. Spending time with family was extremely important to Larry. Often the family would travel hundreds of miles to attend a family event like Christmas, graduations, birthdays and weddings (even when the weather wasn't great). His hobbies included woodworking, coin collecting and photography. He also loved sports and was a huge fan of the New York Yankees, Minnesota Twins, Minnesota Vikings and especially the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

November is National Home Care Month

Editor's note: November is being observed as National Homecare and Hospice Month across the United States.

As part of this observance in northeast Nebraska, several members of the Providence Hospice and Homecare team have provided reflections and information on the services available in this area.

"Home is where the Heart Is' and at Providence Medical Center's Home Health Care and Personal Care Services, we believe that it true," said Terri Munter, Director of Providence Medical Center Home Care. The Home Health Care Program at Providence Medical Center has been helping people remain in their homes while they recover and recuperate for almost 30 years.

Originally, Providence Homecare was part of the former Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk. Hospice services were provided by volunteers and managed by Home Health. In 1991 Hospice became Medicare certified and it, too, became part of the Lutheran Community Hospital. In 1995, Home Health and Hospice became part of Providence Medical Center. In 1996, Providence Homecare initiated a Personal Care Program. To be eligible for home care, an individual must require some type of skilled service, from nursing to therapy. Nursing services range from IV therapy, lab draws, patient education on diabetes, congestive heart failure, COPD, etc., to medication management, wound care and newborn baby/mother care. Therapy services include any therapy service that can be managed in the home. In other words, something that requires the training of a nurse or therapist. "The individual must be homebound but this does not mean that they can never leave home. Their trips away from their home must be limited and of a taxing effort. When a person requires skilled nursing care or therapy, they may also need some help from our certified home health aides - for bathing and help with activities of daily living," Munter said.

All home health care is provided with a doctor's order. Medicare and Medicaid pay 100 percent of home care costs as long as the patient meets the required criteria and most insurances have home health coverage within their policies as "When a patient no longer meets the requirements mandated by the government, but still requires some assistance with his or her care, our Personal Care Services may help them out," Munter said. This service is on a private pay basis. Certified home health aides can help with bathing and activities of daily living. All of the aides are supervised by an RN from the home health agency.

Community outreach also part of Home Care

During the past year, a total of 527 flu shots were given and 17 clinics conducted in Wayne and area communities.

Pedicare Clinics are held at the Wakefield and Allen Senior Centers. Staff members participate in Elder Fest and other area Health Fairs.

"Our nurses are also available to fill insulin syringes or medisets on a private pay basis. At times, spending only a few hours a week can help a person to remain in their home," Munter said.

This service is paid for privately by the patient or family, and som long-term care insurance plans and Agency on Aging or League of Human Dignity grants," Munter

The PMC team of health care professionals consists of three RN's one LPN, five Aides, several therapists and an office manager. All the nurses and aides work in both the home health and personal care pro-

Anyone can refer patients to any of our programs, although the doctor is consulted in all cases. The local home care office services a 45-mile radius of Wayne, going into all or parts of nine counties around Wayne. The services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"I have been involved in home care at Providence Medical Center for over 28 years. I believe you have available to you the best of care and service, right here in your own community and I truly believe "home really can be where the health is,' Munter concluded.

$Invention\ convention$

Each year fifth grade students in Ellen Imdieke's science class brainstorm ideas for inventions to make their lives easier. The result is the annual Invention Convention. Ideas range from better use of eating utensils to carrying devices for music. The students recently put their creative ideas on display for parents, family members and others to view. The event was held following a band concert by the students.

Marta Nelson, owner of Accounting Plus in Wayne, spoke on the history of her business during last week's Chamber Coffee. Nelson also introduced her co-workers and then talked about the services available at the business. Presentations on the various options for customers were also given during the coffee.

Refrigerators

Refrigerators and freezers get a real workout over the holidays. They are some of the larger energy consumers in your house, and they often account for as much as 15 percent of your home's total energy usage. Help your refrigerator and freezer to operate efficiently by keeping the doors closed as much as possible. Note, however, that leaving the door open while you take out the items is more efficient than opening and closing the door several times.

Keeping your refrigerator and freezer full during the holidays is easy and energy efficient. The mass of cold items inside the refrigerator reduces the appliance's temperature recovery time after the door is closed. Be careful not to cram them so full that cool air cannot properly circulate around the food.

Ovens

Do not open the oven door to take a peek! Instead, turn on the oven light and check on the cooking through the window. Slightly opening the oven door lowers the temperature inside by as much as 25 degrees. That increases cooking time and wastes energy.

Self-cleaning ovens use less energy for normal cooking because of the higher insulation levels built into them. Consider using the selfcleaning feature right after using your oven, to take advantage of the

When cooking on the range top, match the size of the pan to the heating element. More heat will go into the pan and less will be lost in the surrounding air. Clean burners and reflectors provide better heating while saving energy. If you need new reflectors, buy quality ones. The best on the market can save as much as one-third of the energy when compared to dull, nonreflective pans.

In October, Tess went on a doctor visit to UNMC, and it was determined that her phosphorus levels were high. She was put on Phos Lo, a medication to control her phosphorus levels.

The Moser family has already had experience in kidney donation and transplants, as another aunt had a kidney transplant in September and received a kidney from Tess' uncle.

Doctors have told Tess that she will be hospitalized for 5-6 days and will take anti-rejection drugs for the rest of her life.

Recovery from the surgery can take anywhere from 4-6 weeks to 4-6 months.

Tess has already informed her instructors at Wayne State College, where she is leaning toward a sports management degree, of what will be happening in her life. She plans to return to Wayne State next semester to continue her education.

Following her discharge from the hospital, she plans to stay with relatives in Omaha for some time while she recuperates.

Memories of theater sparks bowl fundraiser

An amethyst bowl that is approximately 70 years old will be raffled off to benefit the Majestic Theatre.

In the early 1940's Ruth (Frevert) Korth was working at the Ben Franklin store. She attended a movie at the Gay Theatre and registered for a raffle giveaway.

"There was a cash prize, as the first prize and the bowl I won was probably second or third prize," Ruth

"I remember coming in to town to stay with my grandparents and going to movies for 5-10 cents. I have a lot of good memories of going to the theater and would like to see it be a part of the community for future generations," she said.

Fast forward to 2010, when the theatre was undergoing a major renovation.

"I am 89 years old and have limited finances, so I could not help the theater in any other way, so I decided to donate the bowl I won to raise money for the theater. I have been thinking about this for a while, and decided that this was something I could do," she

She also praised the work of all those who have come together to get the theatre back in operations.

WSC looks at gender equality

(NOTE: I know some of you in the studio audience are, what the kids like to call, Web-savvy. If you've got a connection to one of those Internetweb-thingys on the computer, you can catch The Bleacher Bum on The Wayne Herald's Web site at www.mywaynenews.com. Click on the "Video" link and look for my video, which is updated every Thursday.)

Before the tryptophan takes effect and Black Friday settles in, let's clear off The Bleacher Bum's desk with an extra helping of the "Bits and Pieces" file:

 There was a very well-written article in The Wayne Stater about gender equity at Wayne State College that I found interesting.

According to the numbers, a recent survey found that 61 percent of the athletes competing in sports are male, even though there are more women's sports (seven) than

As part of Title IX compliance, the school must do what they can to make sure that both genders are served in as equal a manner as possible when it comes to intercollegiate athletics.

It has been more than a decade since the college added women's soccer to help bring that ratio more into balance, and I'm sure there could be a case made for the possible inclusion of another sport - rugby, swimming and tennis are among those that, I would think, would be considered – at some point in the near future.

While this is good news for the women's rugby team, which has proven itself as one of the midwest's most dominant programs, the same may not be true for men's rugby and wrestling, both of which are also on campus as club sports.

Because the college's ratio of male to female athletes is probably a little too one-sided, it's very unlikely the college would look to add either sport in the near future. In fact, the college would probably have to add at least two women's sports before it would consider another men's sport like wrestling (and while I certainly understand the financial and political aspects of the situation, I find it frustrating that an NCAA Div. II school in a part of the state where a number of traditional high school talent is found does not offer the sport at the varsity level).

Of course there are a variety of hurdles the college would have to jump over to add another sport, but the school will probably need to move forward in the near future to bring themselves closer to Title IX compliance.

- Hopes for an Elite Eight appearance were quickly dashed for the Wayne State volleyball team at last week's Central Regional.

It's really hard for me to look at a team that went 26-4, held down the No. 1 ranking twice, and say that their season was a disappointment. And while there is disappointment in failing to reach the ultimate goal of winning a national title, it was still an outstanding season that saw this team reach levels it had never seen before.

Before this season, Wayne State had never been ranked in the top 10. After their breakthrough effort in Colorado at the start of the season – which saw them upset three teams ranked in the top 10, including three-time defending national champion Concordia-St. Paul – they spent the rest of the season ranked no lower than fourth, and were No. 1 on two occasions.

It's hard to be disappointed about that kind of a season, and yet I'm sure the young ladies are frustrated that their season came to an end the way that it did, losing in the first round of regionals to Metro State.

In spite of the final outcome, and the expectations that have been raised because of this team's continued growth, it has been a remarkable season for this team.

Benedictine scored early in the first half to cut the lead to 7-5, but a try by Ryan Pflughaupt on a power push by the Wildcats made it 12-5 with 11:00 to go in the first half. Boryca scored his second try late in the half to give Wayne state a 14-point lead at intermission.

MARSHALL, Minn. - No. 13 Metro State picked up turn in the game." some early momentum and never let Wayne State get in a good rhythm, crushing the third-ranked Wildcats' hopes for a national title.

The Roadrunners came back to win a close first set and used that momentum to knock off Wayne State 28-26, 20-25, 25-18, 25-16 in the first round of the NCAA Div. II Central Regional Thursday at Southwest Minnesota State University. The loss ended the Wildcats' 26-4 season in a disappointing fashion, according to coach Scott Kneifl.

"It's not the way we wanted it to end," he said. "I'm proud of the girls for the great season we had, but our expectations here are higher and we just didn't get it

The Wildcats jumped out to a quick 6-2 lead and used an ace serve by Diedra Artz to fuel a three-point rally to take a 9-4 lead. The Wildcats maintained that advantage and looked to be in position to take the first set, but the Roadrunners came back from a 20-16 deficit, overcame two set points and scored three in a row to take the first set.

"That first set is always so important," Kneifl said. We jumped out to the early lead, and they fought their way back. Losing that first one was a huge momentum

Wayne State rebounded and forced the Roadrunners into nine attack errors to take the second set and tie the match. But Metro State responded with a tough quickstrike middle hitting attack that seemed to frustrate the Wayne State defense in the final two sets.

"They run their middles behind the setter on a play that's extremely fast, and they passed the ball very well," Kneifl said. "There was a variety of ways they hurt us those last two sets."

Jennifer Hefner's 11 kills led the way for the Wildcats, and the senior finished her career with 1,540 kills, good for fourth on the school's all-time list. Tali Fredrickson had 10 kills and 16 digs, Mindy Moody had 10 kills, Leigh Connot had 11 digs and Artz finished with 41 assists.

It was not the end that was envisioned for seniors Artz, Hefner and Lea Hartigan. The trio went 102-34 during their careers and helped move the Wildcats from a team that was a Top 25 contender to a team that was among the nation's best this season.

"Their impact on Wayne State volleyball has been felt, and we're going to miss those three greatly," Kneifl

$WSC\ wrestlers$ kick off season with dual loss

The Wayne State club wrestling team kicked off the season with a 35-13 dual loss to Northwestern College of Iowa last week.

Northwestern is one of the top 20 teams in the NAIA ranks, and the Wildcats lost a couple of close matches that could have made the final outcome a lot closer.

"We lost two decisions by two points apiece, and if we had won those close matches and not given up any bonus points, it would have been an 18-18 dual," coach Greg VanderWeil said. "We're very competitive for a young team this early in the season.

Craig Dennis (133), Tahner Thiem (174) and Matt Bates (197) all picked up wins for the Wildcats. Dennis won on a major decision and Thiem picked up a pin, while Bates won a 3-2 decision.

Matthew Peter wrestled a tough match at 149 pounds, using a reversal and takedown to force overtime before Northwestern's Jerod Flores got a takedown on a wild scramble in overtime.

On Saturday, the Wayne Sate wrestlers took part in the Kaufman-Brand Open at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, the biggest one-day college tournament in the country with more than 700 wrestlers competing at every level from club level and junior college to NCAA Div. I.

Nine wrestlers competed for Wayne State in the tournament, with Peter and Brian Pflanz (184) both picking up wins.

"We got some top-quality mat time against some very tough opponents, and the kids represented themselves and Wayne State in a quality manner," VanderWeil said.

The Wayne State club wrestling team will compete at Northwest Missouri State on Saturday, Dec. 4.

Kneifl added that the cupboard is by no means bare in the Wildcat volleyball program.

"I think some people are going to be surprised by us next year," he said. "We're losing three great kids, but that's part of the transition that every program goes through and I think we'll be all right. this team is its ability to finish off a win. In their first game against Morningside, one could give them a pass because it was the Wildcats' season opener while the visiting Mustangs were playing their sixth game of the season. The Wildcats had a five-point lead late, but missed a couple of free throws that allowed the Lopers to get back in take that momentum to an early lead in overtime.

While it was good to see the men step up and make the comeback in the Wildcats started out with some overtime, they are going to need to tough opposition early on (both find a way to finish off an opponent opponents in Colorado last week when they have them down late

Last year's team didn't figure that out until late in the year, but a lot of those guys are back and I think this is a team that is capable of winning a lot of close games this season.

> Well, the pressure of an undefeated season is off the Wayne State women's basketball team,

Of course, anybody who puts that the game, force the extra period and kind of pressure on this team needs to have their head examined. While this is an outstanding team that Chris Kielsmeier has put together, were NCAA qualifiers) and will face

> Yes, this is a team that, for the most part, is the same team that won the NSIC tournament title last spring. Still, the expectation of a perfect season is a hard one for any team to handle (outside of the University of Connecticut women's team, which has now won 80-something in a row).

This is a team that has the potential to do some great things this year, and a trip to the Elite Eight is a definite possibility. However, the last time I checked, a national championship in women's basketball was never decided in November. Let's worry about whatever hopes for a national championship this team might have a few months from now.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes Managing Editor

There is a lot to be thankful for some time off and watch football all weekend (wait a minute – I do that EVERY weekend. Why should this week be special?), I thought I would take this opportunity to tell you all of the things I'm thankful for.

Prop up the feet, put the cell phone on vibrate and have your secretary hold your calls. This list is

- I'm thankful for the nation that we live in. For all of its hiccups, the United States of America is, hands down, the greatest nation man ever created. We enjoy opportunities and freedoms that citizens of other nations only dream about. That's why people come to this nation (both legally and otherwise), to experience what it means to be a truly free human being.

- I'm thankful that, as a freethinking American, I have the opportunity to praise God in my own way, free from the shackles of government intervention. I am free to not only praise the King of all Kings, but to do so in the church of my choice (or, if I so choose, to do so independently of church affiliation). I'm truly blessed to have this

- I'm thankful for the family that I was blessed with. They say you can't choose your family, but I'm eternally grateful to have such wonderful parents, step-parents, a sister and brother-in-law with a wonderful set of nieces and family that's out there.

Will Legislature cut benefits?

LINCOLN - What critics call the federal Dog Food Commission has zeroed in most especially on proposals from the panel's co-chairs that would take an axe to Social Security benefits.

The criticism has centered primarily on the perception that the defense budget could be cut by billions of dollars without putting a dent in the nation's ability to protect itself, and that reducing tax breaks for those who make more than even $1 million annually would advance the fight against the deficit while enhancing the ability to support other programs - or even to allow Congress to replace the months ago when a friend called, out money it has swiped from the Social of the blue, to offer an opportunity Security program over the past half

HEY! WAIT A MINUTE..!

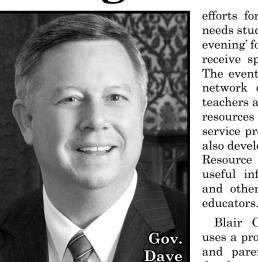

School districts are congratulated

The Blair Community Schools (and, quite frankly, it's a much better and the Gothenburg Public School Parental Involvement.

2007, the Nebraska Since Association of School Boards and my administration have been working innovative ways of reaching out to parents, stronger relationships are developed by parents, teachers and administrators that can help students accomplish their goals. These relationships also encourage better communication with school district leaders.

Gothenburg Public was recognized for outstanding success in creating parental and community support for area schools. Parents, grandparents and extended family are regularly involved in volunteering to read to students, help teachers in class and assist in media centers. Fifteen volunteers contribute every day to learning activities. Given the size of this school district, the number of volunteers represents an impressive commitment from families and the local community.

Gothenburg's Dudley Elementary has placed special emphasis on helping students strengthen their reading skills. Each class devotes time every day to reading. Parents and other family members take part in reading to small groups of students, classes and individual students. The school hosts a 'family read night' where parents can build a book with their child, spend time reading together or meet with teachers and staff. Volunteers in the media center check out more than 27,000 books annually to the school's 500 students, averaging 54 books a year per student.

These activities are in addition to events such as 'back to school night, and parent-teacher conferences that average more than 90 percent attendance throughout the year. Teachers and staff schedule additional time each fall and spring for those unable to attend schoolwide conference dates and conduct phone conferences to reach parents. The flexibility and persistence has resulted in a near-perfect success rate of parents receiving updates from teachers on their child's Blair Community Schools was recognized for creating opportunities for greater parent involvement using a combination of traditional approaches such as parent-teacher conferences and take home packets, and new approaches like e-mail, web forums and teacher websites to keep parents informed on assignments and gather input.

The school district has focused on providing additional outreach in student learning.

efforts for families with a special needs student by hosting a 'parent's evening' for families whose children receive special education services. The event helps parents meet and network over a meal, visit with teachers and learn about additional resources available from local service providers. Blair schools are also developing a Special Education Resource Library to provide useful information on curriculum and other topics for parents and

Blair Community Schools also uses a program that helps teachers and parents track the character development of every student. Research has identified 40 traits correlating to academic success in young people, such as the ability to use time wisely and follow rules. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in parent-teacher conferences, which achieved a 95 percent participation by parents.

Since 2007, the school districts - Garden County, Sutherland, Cozad, Kearney. Loup City, St. Paul, Grand Island, Madison, Papillion-LaVista, and Millard Public Schools - have been honored for their parental involvement efforts.

I applaud each of these school districts for the emphasis they place on getting parents involved in education. Parents and teachers working together is an essential element in student learning and academic achievement. The success of this year's award recipients and past honorees serve as excellent role models for schools and parents seeking more effective ways of engaging parents and community

Candidate says thanks

Thank you to the citizens of the Fourth Ward and to the people of Wayne. I am truly humbled by the vote to elect me as your City Council representative. I am disappointed that I will not be able to serve my term due to my unexpected career advancement and move to Louisville, but I know the mayor will select an individual who has the best interest of Wayne in mind.

I spent over 10 years of my life living in Wayne and it will always have the term "home" associated with it when I speak about the fond memories I have. Wayne, America is a very special place and I definitely miss all my friends, associates and acquaintances.

Thanks for fan support

The WSC Rugby Football Club would like to thank everyone who has supported us during this season, and especially on our big playoff game last Sunday.

With the weather at 27 degrees at kickoff, it was simply amazing to see how many people come to our games and brave the weather to cheer us on, and lead us to victory

Our win now advances us to the Sweet 16 weekend, which will be held in Wayne next April. A win as big as last week was a great feeling but having fans run on the field and be with us in some cold conditions shows the heart of our fans and the future of our program playing for our school and community.

Second they sell your home faster. Real estate agents, who price your home appropriately, end up selling the property quicker. This allows you to avoid making payments on two homes at the same time.

Third they know how to qualify buyers. When you choose a real estate agent who listens and asks the correct qualifying questions, you end up with buyers who are ready, willing and able to purchase your property.

Fourth they know the paperwork. Real estate agents representing you will fill out the necessary paperwork with your interests in mind. This can save you many problems down the road. This paperwork can be very complicated and you want to know your interests are being looked tion needed to cancel your cards if they are stolen.

Be sure to keep all personal credit information secure. Sign all credit cards as soon as they arrive and pay all bills before the due dates. Immediately remove all mail from your mailbox. Do not leave credit card bills, transaction receipts, bank account statements or any other papers with account numbers out in the open. Tear all papers with sensitive information on them into small pieces before disposing of them. Do this even with mailings that indicate you have been pre-approved for or offer you a credit card.

Do not carry credit cards in your wallet or purse. Carry your credit cards separately, if possible. This will prevent you from losing all of your information if your wallet or purse is lost or stolen.

Never give out your credit card number over the phone or Internet unless you are absolutely confident the company is reputable. Never give an unknown caller your credit card number. If someone calls claiming to be a representative of your bank or financial institution, hang up, wait for the dial tone and then dial that institution to confirm the caller actually is from your bank. Do not be fooled by scams where con artists ask for your credit card number to "verify" the prizes they say you have won.

Keep your card in sight at all times when making a purchase. Make sure no extra imprints of your card are made and the transaction receipt is placed in the cash register. Carry receipts in a safe place, separate from your purchase, and hold on to them to check against your monthly billing state-

Notify your credit card companies in advance of a change in address. Also tell them the routes, destinations and timelines for any travel plans. When traveling, record all confirmation and cancellation numbers for reservations. Make sure hotel rooms are locked and keep all valuables in the provided safes. Keep copies of all receipts and transactions to check against your bill.

"Smart cards" like pre-paid phone cards and bank cards can provide protection against someone stealing your card and charging large amounts to your account. Nonetheless, immediately destroy all "smart cards" when you are done with them because they can still cost you money if stolen.

Did You Know? Chiropractors Treat Sciatica...

Sciatica is defined as pain that radiates from the lower back into the buttocks and down the back of one or both legs, caused by the irritation of the sciatic nerves. If the vertebrae or bones in the lower back are misaligned or out of place they can put pressure on the nearby nerves. This can cause tremendous pain and normal daily activities become almost impossible. Chiropractic care works on correcting misaligned or out of place vertebrae and can remove the pressure placed on the sciatic nerve, reducing pain and improving flexibility and function.

Check and maintain Christmas tree freshness this season

With Christmas just around the corner, it's time to find that perfect Christmas tree for the season. Whether it is a pre-cut tree from a retail lot or a cut-your-own tree, Nebraska Forest Service forester Dennis Adams says beauty is in the eye of the beholder, but freshness is the Adams said freshness is the main advantage of going to a local Christmas tree farm and cutting a tree or having the grower cut the tree.

"Buying from a local tree farm helps keep money in the Nebraska economy and helps local businesses," Adams said.

Another advantage of real trees is the fragrance and aroma that everyone associates with a Christmas tree, he said.

Adams said people need to ensure that pre-cut trees are fresh and not dried out, because dry trees can present potential fire hazards. Adams said some pre-cut trees are cut long before Thanksgiving and shipped in, so checking for freshness at the retail lot is important.

Adams said some easy ways to check for freshness include striking the tree on the ground to see how many needles fall out, stroking tree branches to check for softness and flexibility and also taking needles between fingers to check for flexibility. He said most trees at retail lots are sprayed with green colorant, so green needles don't necessarily mean fresh trees. If many green needles fall off or the green needles are brittle, that's a good indication the tree isn't fresh.

People should cut about one-half inch off the butt end of a pre-cut tree and then put the tree in a stand that holds plenty of water. Adams said trees can absorb up to a gallon in the first day. A tree that doesn't absorb water is most likely dry. He said people shouldn't let the water get below the cut surface and should make sure the tree is watered regularly.

"Taking care of a Christmas tree is just like keeping fresh cut flowers in a vase," Adams said. Once trees are up in the home, Adams said people need to take precautions. Don't set up the tree near heat sources because the heat can dry the foliage. Only use Underwriters Laboratories (UL) inspected lights. Also check the wiring on Christmas lights to make sure there are no shorts or frayed ends.

"Common sense is important to keep trees fresh," Adams said.

He said a fresh-cut tree can last a long time, depending on the species of the tree. If people do what they can to keep their tree fresh, Adams said it easily will last through the Christmas "People will have no problem keeping up a tree from the time it is put up until after Christmas and into the first of the year," Adams said. The Nebraska Forest Service is part of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Despite weekend, lots to be thankful for

This week is not starting out well; my guest on Saturday night told me on Sunday morning that there was a wet spot in the bathroom in the basement. When I went down to investigate, I found a leaking hot water heater! It was installed just before we moved in, almost six years ago. Plus, the floor does not slope correctly, so the water is actually going around the drain! Hopefully, the plumber will be here early today (Monday).

On another gloomy note, how about that football game? Lots of rumors going around, like Big 12 officials getting back at us for leaving the conference. That sounds crazy to me. Also, lots of discussion regarding our head coach's mouth. I am frequently embarrassed by it, especially after all those years with Coach Osborne. I don't see how it helped the situation. And a team that had the luxury of three quarterbacks at the start of the season is now down to one when that ankle gets hit again. Good grief! Let's just compose ourselves and beat those Buffaloes who are coming to town on Friday. Okay?

The volleyball team has been a pleasure to watch this month, and the girls' basketball team is looking good. What is it with the guys? We have all that height now, and still can't win. Headlines today say that

Iowa State beat Creighton at the buzzer, and the photos show that time had expired. Sounds familiar. We will miss Coach Altman, but wish Mr. McDermott, who used to be at Wayne State, all kinds of luck.

I put the turkey in the refrigerator to start thawing last night. But I have cleaning to do before I can begin cooking. Why is dusting such a pain? I was with five of my nursing classmates for lunch earlier this month, and we all agreed tude of gratitude" all year long. we hated that job most. For me, Next week, Advent begins.

it's partly because I have to clear off the clutter before I can dust. I'm trying my best to stay ahead of the third class mail, but it's tough. I had an interesting appeal last week that started out by saying they were not sending address labels or calendars; how refreshing! It all goes into recycling, and I need to empty those boxes, too. For the classmate's lunch this month, we met in Beatrice and drove east of town to an old church that has been reclaimed as a pottery shed. It's called Cedar Creek Pottery and is so interesting! There is still a communion rail, a baptismal fount, and two old pump organs. Then, there are cupboards and armoires all over, FULL of pottery. It is distinctive stuff, too, and very usable. But, somehow, I can't see myself actually using a twenty dollar cup or glass. And I don't need anymore stuff to set around; it just has to be dusted!

So, today, after I get the new water heater, I'm going to remind myself how many people would be happy to have my house, dust and all, and a turkey in the frig, and plenty of hot water whenever I want it. How about you? What are you thankful for? It's time to make a list, and then practice an "atti-

Keep livestock happy by properly managing pastures this winter

I hope everyone enjoyed a great Thanksgiving. I know if you are a farmer you probably had a lot to be thankful for, and it's about time On the livestock side, here's a short piece by Bruce Anderson, Extension Forage Specialist.

For decades, producers have effectively used corn and soybean residues to reduce winter feeding costs. With proper pasture management, producers can be success-

Typically, producers can save up to a dollar per day by grazing corn stalks compared to feeding hav and other supplements. To minimize use of protein supplements while grazing corn stalks, an abundant amount of the higher quality grain and husks are needed. Once husks are gone and no more grain appears in the manure, supplements must be fed or animals need to be moved to a fresh field. If the stalk supply is limited and maximum cow days per acre is desired, producers should restrict animal access to just a small portion of the corn stalk field at a time. Livestock should clean up one portion first, then move onto another portion to clean up. That will maximize the number of days cows can graze per acre, but producers will need to feed some protein supplements,

Soybean residues are great extenders, but producers shouldn't assume soybean residues provide more nutrients than are actually available. Many assume soybean stubble residue will be high in protein, but most of the time it only contains 4 to 6 percent protein when livestock need about 7 to 9 percent to stay in shape through the winter. Soybeans will provide some nutrients, but not enough energy or protein to satisfy the livestock's needs. Protein supplements will be needed as well as entry in the first annual Wayne the Peterson Fine Arts Building on the WSC campus. The competition was announced in the September issue of Sculpture magazine, and attracted 14 entries from around the United States.

According to James O'Donnell, Dean of the School of Arts and Humanities at Wayne State, "This type of competitive exhibit process for outdoor sculpture is becoming very common for colleges, universities, galleries, corporations, and municipalities, and our jury was delighted with the pool of entries we received. After quite a bit of deliberation, the jury chose 'The Librarian' as the winning piece for Wayne State College."

Havens transported the work from his studio in Woodville, Ohio to Wayne for the installation on Nov. 1.

Sculptures by Havens have been in exhibit throughout the eastern half of the country, including the Aaron Gallery in Washington, D.C., the Grounds for Sculpture in Mercerville, NJ, the Toledo Museum of Art, McCormick Hall in Chicago, Ill., Cobo Hall in Detroit, Mich. and the IX Center in Cleveland, Ohio. Permanent collections that contain works by Havens include numerous private collections as well as public collections exhibited by corporations NASCO (St. Paul, Minn.), Ironworkers Union Hall (Toledo, Ohio), Gibson Tool Company (Bridgewater, N.J.), and Greenfibre Corp. (Charlotte, N.C.) as well as institutions including the University of Toledo and the Woodstock School in Mussoorie,

The installation at Wayne State College is Havens' first exhibit west of the Mississippi River.

"One of the educational benefits of hosting this outdoor sculpture competition is the direct engagement students have with the work," reports Steven Elliott, Chair of the Department of Art and Design at WSC. "Since outdoor sculpture is so highly visible, it has the ability to spark curiosity and connect the arts with the campus in a friendly
