Underpass resolution funds buried

Council deadlocks on resolution to accept state grant for project

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The future of the city's walking trail may be taking a detour after the Wayne City Council deadlocked on a resolution concerning a proposed underpass on the west part of town.

At Tuesday's meeting, a 3-3 vote killed a resolution that would allow the city to accept $403,000 in state grant money to build an underpass that would connect the two phases of the community's walking trail on the west part of town between the Community Activity Center and Wayne High School.

The underpass, which was approved by the council last year, would allow for uninterrupted travel for those walking on the path on the north and west part of town.

Because the underpass wouldn't be built until 2014 at the earliest, board member Doug Sturm was concerned that the city would be responsible for more costs than the grant would take care of.

"If you look at how long it took with the trail project, it could be 7-8 years before we get to do it, and by then the costs will be so high it wouldn't be worth it," he said. "It would be better for us not to use the money until we make sure we get our funds. I don't ant to spend money and then be told we have to wait until 2016."

City administrator Lowell Johnson said the council would have to approve the resolution to get the funding, but there would be some design costs that would be added to the project.

Board member Jill Brodersen expressed concerns with the fees that were being set for the project.

"I think the engineering fees are way too high," she said.

Johnson said that the state sets the fee structure for the project, but once the city picks an engineer, those fees can be negotiated.

Because of the nature of the resolution, five votes were needed to pass the resolution. Board members Kaki Ley and John Haase were absent, and the measure died on a 3-3 vote with Dale Alexander, Brian Frevert and Kathy Berry voting against the resolution. Chamberlain could not break the tie, due to a state law and city ordinance that requires a majority of votes from all elected council members to approve contracts or appropriation of funds.

The council also deadlocked on a proposal to give city employees a 1 percent raise in the salary structure set by the city.

Berry expressed concern that the city could hold off on the increase, since recent changes in the Social Security withholding has given everybody a 2 percent increase in their paychecks.

"With that, we might want to wait on a raise and shoot for next year," she said.

Discussion also centered around the Community Activity Center director position being moved from Level 16 to Level 17 on the salary structure. Alexander introduced a motion to approve the resolution with an amendment that would move the position back to the Level 16 pay scale. The amended motion was deadlocked with Chamberlain breaking the tie in favor.

In other action, the Council:

 approved bid specifications for a new dump truck to replace a 1977 model the city uses for snow removal.

- approved the setting of sewer rates for residents living outside the city who use the city's sewer and water systems.

approved a 1 percent pay increase for County board gets extra road on its 1-6 year plan

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The Wavne County Commissioners got an unexpected addition to their one- and sixyear road plans during Tuesday's meeting.

The board received a letter from Leroy Rubeck, who owns land south of Winside that the county has leased for 50 years and has used for a re-routed county road.

Rubeck recently returned a $25 check that the county paid as its annual lease, notifying the county that he was terminating the lease and asking the county to close the road that runs on his property.

The county leased the land from the original landowner, George Langenberg, in 1961, after a bridge washed out the original county road that was located south of the

Schroeder's 36-year law career in Wayne is slowly coming to an end

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

For nearly 36 years, Duane Schroeder has been practicing law in Wayne. That career is slowing coming to an end.

"I haven't taken on any new clients or business since Dec. 1, and by March should be pretty much wrapped up with all my business," Schroeder said.

A native of Bloomfield, Schroeder earned bachelor's degree from Wayne State College in education and taught history and German classes at Osmond. He later enlisted in the Nebraska National Guard and spent six months in the military.

After working construction for a time, he entered law school at the University of Nebraska, graduating in 1975. "We (Duane and wife, Betty) moved to Wayne July 1, 1975 and have been here ever since," Schroeder said. Duane worked with Charles and Evelyn McDermott in the office, located at 110 West Second Street, the same building he has worked out of his entire career. "When I first started practicing law, worked in all areas, criminal defense, domestic, divorce, custody, but later focused on areas of estate planning, probate and real estate law," Schroeder said.

Schroeder took over the practice in November of 1987 and continued to work with the McDermotts until their retire-

A "SUPER" VISIT FOR WINSIDE FIRST-GRADERS

Superzero

Up in the sky, look: It's a bird. It's a plane. It's Superzero! Superzero landed in the Winside first grade classroom last week to help celebrate the 100th day of school. This Superhero read a book about the 100th day of school while pointing out the importance of place value. He also performed the special Superzero dance with the class. Before leaving Superzero and all the boys and girls "flew" through the air while counting by tens to 100. (Special note: Some believe Superzero bears a strong resemblance to Winside High School Principal Eric Kravig.)

Bill calls for using environmental trust

By STEVE SCHARF Nebraska News Service

With looming state budget deficits, senators are looking at the Nebraska Environmental Trust as a new source of state revenue.

The Nebraska Environmental Trust, an organization chartered to ensure Nebraska has high quality water, air, soil and wildlife habitat, funded exclusively through the Nebraska Lottery, which is constitutionally required to donate 44.1 percent of its earnings to the trust every year.

Since 1994, the fund has donated more than $157 million to agencies such as Natural Resources Districts for projects like soil conservation and to community organizations like the Lincoln Children's Zoo.

The trust's income last year, all from lottery funds, was just over $14 million.

This year Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine has introduced a bill to transfer from the trust $7 million a year for 11 years to the Nebraska Water Resources Cash Fund, which is controlled by the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources.

The money could then be used to manage water resources through means as diverse as creating new levees to paying farmers not to irrigate.

Fischer's spokeswoman, Rochelle Mallett, said the bill would make water a priority for the state and allow Nebraska to "avoid the crisis water management tactics of the past."

Sen. Chris Langemeier of Schuyler, a co-sponsor of the bill, said the time is right for this legislation in light of the state's budget shortfall.

"There are no general fund dollars, and if we do nothing, it becomes the burden of the people in the Platte River Basin" to deal with water management issues there, he said. Langemeier's legislative district includes the Lower Platte North NRD.

Langemeier, who serves as the chairman of the Natural Resources Committee, said the voters who intended lottery proceeds to go towards protecting the environment are still getting what they voted on.

"They wanted the money to benefit the environment. We're doing exactly the same thing that the voters would want," he said.

The bill, which is pending in Langemeier's committee, doesn't specify how the Department of Natural Resources could use the Rule of Law and Undocumented Persons?

The genius of the success of the United States is we operate by the Rule of Law (state and federal constitutions and city codes) and not the whims of those in power. The Rule of Law provides the predictable rules that we live by, it establishes the citizenship that determines who this nation is and who can vote, it protects private property so that we can invest and build wealth knowing it will be ours to keep, provides for civil liberties, and establishes a court system for peaceful dispute resolution.

Nebraska LB48 enjoins the state, county, and local law enforcement agencies to extend the presence of federal immigration law enforcement. At this week's city council meeting I asked the city council to take a position of not opposing this legislative bill and to recommend to the Nebraska League of Municipalities a position of not opposing the bill.

Contents of Legislative Bill 48: 1) says this Enforcement Act shall be implemented in a manner consistent with existing federal immigration law, protecting the civil rights of all persons. 2) requires local and county and state law enforcement to determine the lawful immigration status of an individual who has otherwise been lawfully stopped, detained or arrested and reasonable suspicion exists that the person may be unlawfully present in the US. 3) says that reasonable suspicion may not be based solely on that person's race, color, religion, sex or national origin. 4) directs the local law enforcement to turn any undocumented persons over to I.C.E. to take cus-

5) says that no person or agency At times, the missions of the of the state shall limit or restrict the enforcement of federal immigration laws to less than the extent permitted by federal law.

6) provides that an individual's lawful presence in the US can be demonstrated by a valid state motor vehicle driver's license, state ID card or federal ID.

7) determines that it is unlawful for any person (Swedish, British, Hispanic, Canadian) who is unlawfully present in the US to work as an employee or independent contractor in this state. (It is already agencies to hire any undocumented persons or contract with any businesses that hire undocumented

The council approved the request to not oppose LB48. The position of the mayor and council is that immigration has been and will continue to benefit the US and Nebraska but it should follow the legal process as in the past.

Second-half letdown leads to Wildcats' first NSIC loss

Two days after seeing his team play their round of the 2009 Northern Sun Conference worst half of basketball in recent memory, tournament. coach Chris Kielsmeier was still having trouble putting into words what happened in of life and a lot of confidence, and we played St. Paul, Minn., on Saturday.

The ninth-ranked Wayne State women's basketball team held a slim two-point lead at intermission in Saturday's matchup with Concordia-St. Paul, but the Golden Bears caught fire and hung 56 second-half points on the Wildcats in the second half, sending them to a 91-57 defeat that was, by far, the worst in Kielsmeier's three seasons in Wayne.

"Offensively, we missed some easy shots at the start of the second half, and the whole momentum of the game changed." Kielsmeier said of the loss, which was the worst beating one of his Wildcat teams have taken since a 79-61 loss to Winona State in the first

"They played with a lot of energy and a lot a disappointing effort by the entire program. We all need to do a better job than that.'

The loss ended Wayne State's 16-game winning streak, and capped a weekend that, Kielsmeier felt, was less than impressive.

The weekend started off in its usual fashion, with the Wildcats getting out to a big lead Friday at St. Cloud State. Wayne the game and appeared well on its way to a blowout win over the Huskies.

That, Kielsmeier said, was about the time the team hit the cruise control button and settled for a 14-point win.

"Our players need to realize the sense of urgency that we need with a lack of all of that," he added. "It was to be a great, high-intensity elite team all the time."

Wayne State women's basketball coach

"Those first seven or eight minutes was about the best we've played all year, and then after we get up 21-4, I thought we went on State led 21-4 less than eight minutes into cruise control and didn't play very well," he said. "We've gotten away with trying to turn it on when we need it the last few weeks and had gotten away with it. We got up 17 early, but only won by 14, so I think we got outplayed the last 30 minutes or so."

Junior Ashley Arlen led a balanced attack with 16 points and 13 rebounds, marking her fifth double-double of the season. Clare Duwelius added 14 points, Eva Benson scored 12 off the bench and Mara Hjelle and Julie Ann Wagner each had 10.

Wayne State got down early against the - Chris Kielsmeier Golden Bears on Saturday, but were still nursing a two-point lead after a long 3-pointer by Arlen toward the end of the first half.

The Golden Bears came out on fire the second half, hitting 8-of-9 from long distance and shooting better than 60 percent from the field, while the Wildcats shot a season-low 23 percent from the floor in the final 20 minutes.

"We were playing against a team that really needed a big win," Kielsmeier said. "Concordia had won seven straight and See WOMEN, Page 2B

Caitlin Fehringer (33) didn't seem to be bothered with a West Point-Beemer double team after scoring a career-high 31 points in Wayne's easy 72-18 win over the Cadets Friday.

Wayne High teams make easy work of visiting Cadets

By TRAVIS CORLEY Of The Herald

Defense was the key to the Blue Devils' victory, as they pressed the Cadets most of the first half. The pressure defense forced West Point into an uncomfortable position, forcing several turnovers that led to fast-break points for the Blue Devils.

Caitlin Fehringer was simply amazing, scoring a career-high 31 points for the Blue Devils. Junior Katie Hoskins was also in double figures, adding 17.

"Caitlin is great at getting to the basket," coach Nathan Wall said.

Winside wrestlers seventh at Ainsworth

By LEE KOCH For The Herald

AINSWORTH - A short-handed Winside wrestling squad finished in eighth place in the Ainsworth Invitational Saturday, a tournament that featured five teams ranked by the Nebraska Scholastic Wrestling Coaches Association.

Class B No. 2 Central City won the tournament with 187 points, while Class C No. 5 Sargent-Burwell finished one-half point behind runner-up Amherst, ranked No. 2 in Class D. Also in the tournament were Class C No. 9 Valentine, Class D No.10 Winside, as well as South Dakota Class B No. 8 rated Burke-

"(It was an) extremely tough tournament for us team-wise with only seven varsity wrestlers suiting up," coach Paul Sok said. "All in all, it was a great learning experience for the kids. Twelve of them had a chance to stay with host families from Ainsworth the night before."

In the men's competition, Ross Bunchek continued his roll in the weight throw, for the third straight meet.

John Kern had an impressive finish in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 14:55.93, finishing in second place. Will Hanson finished third in the men's 60-meter hurdles with a time of 8.48 seconds, and Aaron Garza also earned a third-place finish in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:01.43.

Other top finishers for the Wayne State men were York Thomas, who finished fourth in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 15:28; Alex Timperly placed fourth in the triple jump with a mark of 45 feet, 9 3/4 inches; and the men's 1,600-meter relay team finished fifth with a time of 3:26.38.

Wayne State will be in action this weekend, traveling to Storm Lake, Iowa on Saturday for the Dick Young Classic.

"We did that the other night and got down 20-5 and battled back and took the lead, and the first half was kind of like that," he said. "We kept fighting and I thought we played hard, but we didn't make the plays down the stretch.'

Once Wakefield overcame its slow start, neither team led by more than three points until the closing minutes of the third period. The Lady Bears had a 30-27 advantage, but Shelby Lierman hit a 3-point shot at the buzzer that took a dead bounce on the back of the rim, clipped the front of the rim and fell in the basket to forge a 30-30 tie.

"We had Keri (Lunz) and Lauren (Barge) out with some foul problems, and the girls played well at the end of the half and got us some momentum," Brenn said.

The game remained a backand-forth affair until the last two minutes of the period. Wakefield led 40-38 on a Keri Lunz layup, but the Lady Bears tied the game with a basket by Cameron Eddie to start a seven-point rally at the end of the quarter that gave LCC the lead for

It was a tough win for us." The Lady Bears led 28-26 at the break, but needed a solid defensive effort to keep the Cardinals from making a comeback.

"We dug down defensively in the second half and got some more stops and were able to get out in transition a little better," Sims said. "Our energy on defense kind of fueled our offense, and that proved to be enough."

Jade Cunningham and Mandy Nelson each had 17 points to lead the Lady Bears, and Sims was impressed with his bench play, highlighted by a nine-point effort from Katie Gubbels. "We had some foul trouble the first half and had all five starters on the bench," he said. "Katie came off the bench and did some scoring for us, and we have a number of players on the bench who can step up and score for us. I give those kids a lot of credit."

> Theresa Mather is best known for her pieces painted on feathers and stone, integrating her paintings with the natural colors and textures of the surface. She chooses to work outside of gaming and publication, exhibiting and selling her work at science fiction convention art shows across the country. She says she enjoys the freedom this gives her to paint whatever she desires, allowing her paintings to be truly her creations.

Mather was active in the field of antique carousel restoration from 1989 to 1999, painting suites of large scale paintings for the crestings of five antique carousels and decorative paintwork for a sixth. - This week's winner in the "Stuck on Stupid League's Alcohol Consumption Division" competition is Lincoln, Neb., resident William Parminter, who was busted for fifthoffense driving under the influence.

Sadly, the fact that this is his fifth DUI is not what gets him the award. It's HOW he got the latest charge that seals the deal.

Parminter was in Lancaster County District court for a hearing regarding his fourth-offense DUI arrest. After the hearing, a Lincoln police officer watched as Parminter got behind the wheel of a Jeep Cherokee he was not supposed to be driving, as his license was suspended after his arrest on the fourth-offense DUI.

The officer pulled him over at a convenience store a few blocks away and found Parminter enjoying a cold frosty one, with the open container placed in his center console. A breath test found Parminter's blood-alcohol content at 0.238, almost three times the legal limit. He has accumulated eight drunk-driving arrests in 30 years, according to court records.

- From the "And just say no to making sex tapes, too" department: "reality" personality Kim Kardashian is offering advice to teenage girls on not getting pregnant.

The advice comes in the wake of a report out of Memphis, where 90 high school girls became teen mothers during the previous year.

Kardashian claims that problem stems from shows like "Teen Mom," where – in her opinion – teen pregnancy is made out as a cool thing, with kids becoming celebrities because they had children while they were, in essence, children themselves.

Getting advice about pregnancy from somebody is best known for flaunting her, ahem, physical assets and making a sex tape with an NFL football player would have to just about be a textbook definition of hypocrisy, wouldn't it?

Drug purchase goes global

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - The law of supply and demand proved its validity recently when the Department of Corrections had to go to the international market to buy one of the drugs needed for the lethal cocktail the state may use to kill condemned killers.

The U.S. supplier of the drug announced earlier this month it would stop providing sodium thiopental because its plans to manufacture it in Italy ran afoul of authorities there. The government wanted guarantees that none of the drug manufactured in Italy would be used anywhere for lethal injections. The company, Hospira, then decided to withdraw from the fer: people in Italy are not happy market.

That meant Nebraska corrections "Jersey Shore" bimbos to their officials had to shop elsewhere. A lack of sodium thiopental has interfered with executions in some other states.

> Nebraska found a supplier in India. However, Kayem Pharmaceutical said the state had to buy a minimum of 500 grams, at a cost of $2,056. That's enough sodium thiopental to accommodate 166 convicted murderers during their last medical procedure on earth. Only 12 men are on Nebraska's death row. It usually takes three grams of sodium thiopental to render someone unconscious. Thereafter, two other drugs are administered to kill the prisoner.

The hitch is that Nebraska's supply has an August 2012 of Corrections wasn't in a position expiration date. That Nebraska might execute 12 men in 18 months has asked police to step in between is unimaginable.

In fact, Attorney General Jon bought the 500 grams, even though unconstitutional a provision in likely be appealed, and quickly.

'Leave it to the Kids'

Trinity Lutheran Women conduct January meeting

Trinity Lutheran Church of Vinside WELCA met Jan. 20

There were eight members, Kathy Jensen, Mary Lou George, Irene Fork, Arlene Rabe, Lois Krueger, Mary Ann Soden, Dorothy Jo Andersen and Peggy Krueger, who met at St. Joseph's Care Center in Norfolk to help member Joy Maas celebrate her 100th birthday.

The afternoon was spent in fellowship and looking at Joy's many birthday cards.

The WELCA and Trinity Church each gave Joy a bouquet of flowers. Kathy Jensen served lunch with St. Joseph's providing beverages.

According to those in attendance, "a wonderful afternoon was spent celebrating a lovely lady's 100th birthday." The next meeting will be Thursday, Feb. 10 with Lois Krueger serving.

'Lessons from a Rubber Duck' now available

"Lessons from a Rubber Duck," written by Melissa Saunders and illustrated by Kristy Stark Knapp, is now available for purchase.

The story is about Miranda, a young girl who is dealing with the effects of bullying inside her home. After an in-depth conversation with her father, and a little help from a rubber duck, she is able to learn how to defend herself against her brother's bullying.

Saunders holds a master's degree in both education and counseling. She lives with her family in Omaha. Stark Knapp holds a BA in Studio Art from Concordia University. She and her family currently reside in Madison. She is a 1994 graduate of Laurel-Concord High School. It is the first book for both parties.

The book can be purchased online at www.writelife.com/rubberduck and will be available through major book retailers within the very near

Minerva Culb holds meeting at Wayne Senior Center

Arlene Ostendorf hosted Minerva Club on Jan. 24 at the Wayne Senior Center.

Eleven members answered roll call by telling their favorite pastime for a wintery day. Members started the meeting smiling as interact with the child. After the President Mary Ann DeNaeyer read some humorous and thought provoking readings.

Minutes were read and approved. Donna Hansen gave the treasurer's report. Historian Hollis Frese shared minutes of Oct. 26 and Nov. 10, 1986. Minerva programs were focused on the Mid-Eastern countries and the Islamic influence. A sympathy card was signed and sent to Hallie Sherry on the death of her sister.

Mrs. Ostendorf presented a program about Louis Braille who, because of an accident, became blind at the age of 12. He was schooled at the Royal Institute for the Blind in France. He improved on the school's teaching techniques and developed the six dot Braille system. Because of Braille's persistence to improve the lives of blind persons, people continue to benefit today.

Minerva Club will meet at the Senior Center on Monday, Feb. 14 with Lois Youngerman as hostess. Since it will be Valentine's Day, members are asked to bring their wedding picture.

Parents being first teachers: Key in child development

The years from birth to age five are important times in a child's learning ability because the brain is developing at a faster pace than it does at any other point in a child's life. Parents play an important role in their child's life, and it's crucial to be there and be engaged during this developmental stage.

It's important for parents and others working with children to allow the kids to play, investigate and have the freedom to do their own thing within a safe, structured environment. Parents should take the time to play with their kids to help them learn. Some preschools today are so concentrated on teaching children how to read, learning numbers and learning letters, that they are skipping the steps young children really need: learning by Relationships are an important factor because children need security and nurturing in order to grow. They need to be secure in their environment. Families should give children lots of hugs and spend time with them to let their children know they can be depended on. This builds trust in children. When they have a sense of safety and self-assurance, they can learn. This trust in relationships needs to happen before kids get into a more structured learning environment.

Another important factor is emotional development. Children need to feel good about themselves despite frustrations and failures. Encouragement from the parents helps with good self-worth so they can go on by saying "it's okay that didn't work out the first time, but I'm going to keep trying." Instead of constantly yelling "No" or "Don't do that," parents should help their children understand why they shouldn't do that particular thing or why they should move on. That helps develop trust and under-

Children are very social. Some of the first things they learn are "hi" and "bye." They are watching everything around them, and it's important for them to learn social concepts from their parents. If a stranger comes and wants to hold the child, parents should talk to the person and have the person child becomes more comfortable er can hold the child. The child needs to trust this person before he or she invades the child's space. Parents can help the child with social skills by helping them meet new people.

Families are a child's first teacher and the home is the first classroom. Many parents think a child will learn when he gets to school, but that's not true. Social relationships, language and every day things are vitally important for parents to share with their children and teach their children before they get to school. The home is the perfect place for kids to be educationally stimulated. Toys can be great, but the simple things like measuring cups in the kitchen, fruit or other things in the environment are important for kids to play with. They need time to feel the dirt outside and experience things around them when in a safe environment.

Parents should also be mindful that every child grows at his or her own pace. Some parents think agents come in handy here. Think about it. Do we have strong emotions when thinking about the memories created in our house; absolutely.

Do you want to let those emotions take over when trying to sell your house; absolutely not This is where hiring a real estate agent to help is critical. An unbiased agent can:

· Help you get the home ready to show so buvers can see their ideas · Find qualified buyers for you. · Show the house to these buvers. · Draw up the paperwork to benefit you. This allows you to focus your emotions and energy on your nex house and all the new memories vou want to create. Because buyers aren't looking at the house the same way you would, they might not place the same value on certain aspects of the house that you would. They aren't trying to be cruel. They may be just trying to create a new vision of their own. Having a real estate agent to be the middleman can really benefit Separating your emotions from the selling process will not only save you time and stress, it can actually save you money! When offers come in, you can look at them from a practical view instead of an emotional one. So enjoy moving on to new memories and don't get struck dwelling on the old ones.

Celebrating education, faith

Students at St. Mary's Catholic School in Wayne are celebrating Catholic Schools Week this week with a variety of activities. The week began with a special Mass on Sunday. Above, the students sang a song about making a difference in the world. The Mass was followed by a pancake breakfast, hosted by the Knights of Columbus. The school will host this week's Chamber Coffee on Friday as the final activity of the week-long celebration.

Award-winning posters

The Wayne Council of the Knights of Columbus recently sponsored a poster contest for students of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Wayne, St. Mary's Catholic Church in Laurel and St. Anne's Catholic Church in Dixon. The theme for the contest was staying drugand alcohol-free. Winning posters in the local contest will be forwarded to the state level or more judging. Winners included (front) Emily Long, Hailey Backer, Madison Jenkins Maggie Fehringer, (back) Hannah Belt, Mirands Fehringer and Lindsey Roberts. Not present, Sabrina Hochstein.

Nebraska LEAD XXIX travels to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama

2011 International Study/Travel Seminar to Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama.

During the Jan. 12-25 seminar, LEAD Fellows attended briefings at the U.S. embassies and met with American business, agricultural trade and commodity groups. LEAD Fellows also were able to observe agricultural production, with visits to farms and ranches, along with briefings at agricultural cooperatives and research centers. The international study is designed to provide first-hand appreciation and understanding of the international community and the potential for people of all nations to work together, said Terry Hejny, Nebraska LEAD Program director and group leader. "The people-to-people encounters provided the members of Nebraska LEAD Group XXIX an opportunity to view characteristics, conditions and trends of Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama and determine relationships to issues and situations in

Private pesticide applicator training scheduled in area

Private pesticide applicators whose licenses expire in 2011 and those seeking first-time certification can find information on pesticide safety education programs at their local University of Nebraska Extension offices. Licensing as a private applicator allows farmers to purchase and use pesticide classified for restricted use by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in their own farming operations. Extension provides the educational program, while the agriculture department is responsible for licensing. The training fee is $30. An applicator may also certify by self-study for a $60 training fee.

In 2001, the Nebraska Legislature created a state pesticide license fee of $25 for private applicators. The fee covers a three-year license

Wayne County training sessions are scheduled as follows:

Thursday, Feb. 10: 1 p.m. at the Auditorium in Winside.

Thursday, March 17: 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. at the Fire Hall, 510 Tomar

Livestock Market Report)

Take time to appreciate those important to you

The Big Farmer is watching an old TV showing of Crocodile Dundee in Los Angeles, and I have been trying to get on to my e-mail account. I keep getting a message that says it won't access and I need to retype the address. Since I have been getting mail that way since last fall, I'm not sure what the problem is. And, since they are telling us we are getting lots of snow, wind, and cold temperatures, I'm not sure when I can get the modem to the "guru".

Actually, I don't have a problem doing without access, at least for a few days. Most of my communication is still done by phone, or better yet, in person. I've been reading about these families who go on "no-tech" diets; I think it sounds like a great idea. The photo of one whole family seated at a dinner table, each checking text messages, is kind of revolting to me. I don't think that's the way the family dinner is supposed to be!

There are eight of us who graduated from nursing school together in and around Lincoln, and we get together about every other month for lunch. We like to travel, and we like to try new places. So, last Friday, since one of our members lives near Tecumseh, we headed down Highway 50 to eat at Ramsey's family café. It only took those of us in Lincoln an hour, and of course, that means there is time for five of us in the car to catch up on each other, too. We had homemade soup and pie, and lots of gab, and laughter.

In fact, midway, through our lunch, a gentleman who needed a shave and a general "sprucing up" approached our table to tell us his wife had been gone for three years and he had enjoyed hearing us laugh! It made us appreciate each other even more.

Lately, we've been making these events a priority, realizing that we don't know how long they will continue. I came home thinking about some other folks I need to get together with. It's too easy to neglect these things, especially with e-mail.

Also, last week, there were memorials to Challenger, the space ship that exploded immediately after take off, in 1986. Just as we remember JFK's death, we seem to remember where we were when that took place. I know I was on Highway 13, going out of Hadar, headed to Pierce to do a home health visit. I had the car radio on, listening to the count down. At first, I could not comprehend what had happened, and thought it must be some kind of awful joke, as in Orson Welles' radio broadcast of a space invasion.

It didn't take long for me to realize it was for real, and to remind myself again of how quickly life can change, and how abruptly people who mean the world to us can be taken from us. Which is why I intend to have more lunches with special people! Hope you do, too.

Time to think about vegetable selection

Here is some more information from one of my favorite contributors, Horticulture Expert Kelly Feehan, Extension Educator from Platte County. Gardens may be covered by snow, but it is time to think about gardening. Planning the vegetable garden and deciding which vegetables and varieties to grow is an enjoyable, and important, winter project.

Obviously the vegetables a gardener likes to eat should be first on the list of what to grow. If this list is larger than there is space in the garden, here are a few tips to help narrow the list. For gardeners who view things from an economic standpoint, an Arizona State University study looked at which vegetables are most economical to grow in small home gardens. Vegetables were selected based on pounds produced pound at harvest time, and length of time the vegetable was in the garden from planting to harvest.

While a number of factors make it difficult to evaluate the value of home grown vegetables, the study found tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, snap beans, summer squash, carrots, beets, onions, green bunching onions, leaf lettuce, edible-pod peas, and Swiss chard were most economical to grow in small gar-

Corn, winter squash, melons, and pumpkins were less economical to grow in small gardens, based on the same criteria. These vegetables might be more economical if bush varieties were used over vine types, or trellis methods were used so vine plants took up less space. Another factor to consider is the potential for disease and insect per square foot, retail value per problems. Many home gardeners tend to grow the same types of vegetables, such as tomatoes, year after year. Due to limited space, vegetables from the same families tend to be grown in the same area year after year, leading to increased problems.

> If the yield or quality of a vegetable is often lowered by a pest, consider not growing that vegetable for a few years. If this happens to be a vegetable a gardener most enjoys growing and eating; select a variety of the vegetable known to have resistance to the specific pest and use crop rotation and other practices that reduce damage.

> Once it is decided which vegetables to grow, the next step is deciding which varieties of those vegetables to select. Again, flavor is important so record which ones taste best and keep selecting those varieties; as long as they otherwise perform well and do not take up too much space in the garden.

After taste, look for varieties with known disease and insect resistance. Also, consider plant size. If garden space is limited, look for varieties that take up less space in the garden. These are typically labeled as bush or determinate

Another decision to make is between hybrids or open-pollinated varieties. Hybrids are more expensive because years of work have gone into producing a variety with special characteristics such as disease resistance or reduced size. With open-pollinated varieties, plants are planted in the field, pollinated by wind or insects, and the seed harvested.

For gardeners who harvest seed from their garden to save for planting the next year, it is important to use open-pollinated varieties and not hybrids. The plants grown from the seed collected from openpollinated varieties will be similar to the parent plants.

If gardeners buy new seed each year, using hybrids is fine. Otherwise, if seed were to be saved from hybrids, the resulting plants/ fruit produced the next season may be very different from the parent plants.

While these tips may help, the best way for gardeners to find a vegetable variety that works for them is to try different varieties and use the ones that perform well and taste good. This means taking time to do some record keeping starting at the time of purchasing seeds and plants.
