Wayne State target of Title IX investigation

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Officials from the Office of Civil Rights will be in Wayne next week to speak with officials at Wayne State College, which is the target of an investigation into gender equity issues in its athletic program.

Last fall, the school received a complaint that was filed with the Office of Civil Rights regarding gender equity issues in the school's athletic department. Officials with the OCR will interview staff members and student athletes at the college as part of the investigation next week.

Athletic director Eric Schoh told the Herald that the college doesn't know who filed the complaint or under what grounds, but the college was first notified about the complaint last September.

"It's a surprise when it happens, and I hope it doesn't end up being a big deal," he said. "There is an outside group coming in to evaluate where we are in terms of gender equity, and they'll tell us what areas we need to address and then we can address them."

According to enrollment figures, the student population is about 55 percent female and 45 percent male. Of those students who are involved in intercollegiate athletics at the college, 60 percent are male and 40 percent are female. One of the factors in satisfying Title IX requirements is that the population of the athletic department closely mirrors the overall campus student population.

Population ratios are one of three prongs that are required to satisfy a school's compliance with Title IX.

The school must also show it is making progress in addressing the needs of the student population. Wayne State added women's soccer a little more than a decade ago, and Schoh said that adding sports such as rugby or tennis would help achieve that goal of showing progress.

In prior discussions, Schoh discussed the possibility of adding women's rugby and tennis. While tennis is an NCAA championship-level sport that is offered by other schools in the Northern Sun Conference, rugby is considered an emerging sport by the NCAA. The school could add rugby, although no other Northern Sun Conference school has it as a varsity sport, and tennis to help bring the athletic department's gender ratio more in line with that of the overall college population.

The third prong of Title IX compliance is surveying the student body to determine what interests for interscholastic athletics are being expressed. Schoh

Wakefield working on daycare center

A group of Wakefield community members are working together to raise funds for the furnishing of the inside of the new Wakefield Daycare Center.

The first of these fundraisers will be a spaghetti feed on Sunday, April 3 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at the Wakefield Legion Hall.

In conjunction with this, a silent auction is being planned. Anyone interested in donating items to the silent auction is asked to contact Ed Haglund at (402) 369-3628.

Other planned fundraisers include a Father/Daughter Dance at the Legion Hall on Saturday, April 30 and a Poker Run on Saturday, May 21. Solicitation letters are also being sent to members of the community asking for assistance with the costs.

After being without a publicly owned daycare in the community for more than a year, and with a $350,000 pledge from the Gardner Foundation and smaller pledges from Michael Foods and other individuals and organizations, a group of community members have taken steps toward the construction of a 2,500-square foot facility on the site of the former high school in Wakefield.

It is anticipated that the facility will accommodate 35 children, infant through preschool.

Plans call for ground breaking for the new building on Friday, April 8, weather permitting. The facility should be complete and ready for children by August.

Construction is set to begin in April and be completed by mid-June.

The city of Wakefield is working with Wakefield Health Care Center, which will own and operate the facility, which, as of this time, does not have an official name.

Area business, government leaders get face time with state senators

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Local officials and residents from Wayne took a bus trip to Lincoln last week.

The group of locals joined community and business leaders from Fremont, West Point and Norfolk on the trip to the capital city to visit with some of the movers and shakers in state government as part of the fifth-annual Northeast Nebraska Legislative Day.

The social event, held on the top floor of the US Bank building in downtown Lincoln, included more than a dozen state senators - Dist. 17 State Sen. Dave Bloomfield of Hoskins among them - and other state and federal government officials, including Nebraska Attorney General Jon Bruning and First District Rep. Jeff Fortenberry.

Representatives of chambers of commerce from Wayne, Norfolk, Columbus, West Point and Fremont each spoke briefly before the estimated 100 in attendance, thanking those government officials for their attendance and speaking briefly in support of a number of pieces of legislation, including LB84, which would divert one-half cent of the state sales tax toward funding for road construction and rehabilitation in the state.

Wes Blecke, executive director of Wayne Area Economic Development and the Chamber of Commerce, said the meeting was a chance for community representatives to meet face-to-face with some of the state's government officials.

Rugby fans give local economy a good kick

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Friday afternoon, they started coming into Ken Jorgensen's bar and grill on main street in Wayne.

And they kept coming.

And coming.

It was a scene that was being played out at a number of restaurants and bars around town this past weekend, the result of the annual March Madness and Mayhem rugby tournament sponsored by the rugby club at Wayne State College.

The tournament annually draws a big crowd to town for two days of rugby action, but the action downtown Friday and Saturday nights was enough to keep establishments like Jorgensen's, The Max, busy from open to close both days.

"It was just a constant in-and-out of people," he said. "One team would leave, and then another would come in."

The tournament is one of the biggest in the nation, and the economic impact of a tournament that, this year, drew an estimated 3,000 people to Wayne, is almost on a par with the community's annual Chicken Days festival.

Wes Blecke, executive director of Wayne Area Economic Development and the Chamber of Commerce, said he could see the impact when he returned home from coaching a basketball game out of town.

"I drove into town Friday night from West Point, and there was traffic up and down Main Street, which is something you don't typically see on a Friday night," he said. "I went out to eat Sunday afternoon, and it was busy even then."

Blecke said an event such as the rugby tournament is a good stimulus for the local economy, even if that stimulus is seen on a limited basis.

"Usually, the hotels, bars, restaurants and gas stations are the ones who see most of it and are positively impacted by the tournament," he said. "And if you figure 3,000 people are coming in for the weekend, you're pretty much doubling the population of the community."

And while the local establishments welcome the business that the tournament brings, having that many people in town presents some challenges, both for those running the tournament and those traveling from as far away as West Virginia and Canada.

Darrin Barner, coach of the Wayne State rugby teams and organizer of the tournament, said he actually had to turn Rugby players from Northern Illinois gather around a campfire during a break in the action at last week's March Madness and Mayhem rugby tournament in Wayne, which drew an estimated 3,000 rugby fans from all over the country.

"It's an opportunity for us to showcase what our communities are doing and show that Northeast Nebraska is working together as one region," he said.

Blecke said that, as the chamber's executive director, he has more opportunities to speak with state officials than others in the community, which is why it was important for other community leaders - including Wayne mayor Ken Chamberlain - to introduce themselves to those leaders.

"It's really important to get people like the mayor and David Ley, who is on our economic development board, and get them before these senators as well," he said. "These people volunteer their time, and it's important for (senators) to see some of the faces of our community leaders."

Blecke said that contact is important, because those community leaders may need to contact those senators and government officials later regarding an issue of local interest.

"Whether it's to support or kill a bill, or a road issue that needs to be addressed, they can help you out and they'll know who you are by remembering that they talked to you here," he said.

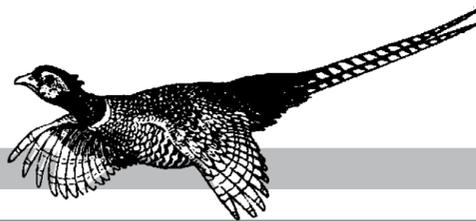

It was especially important for Chamberlain, who is in his first year as the city's new mayor and is welcoming the opportunity to meet with the state senators.

"It's great that we have an opportunity to get in front of them and express the issues that are important to us," he said. "I've had a chance to talk with Sen. Bloomfield and (Norfolk State Sen.)

Masonic Lodge donates to Wayne Public Library

The Wayne Masonic Lodge presented the Wayne Public Library with a check for $300 which was used recently to purchase 21 new books for the "Easy Readers" section in the children's room.

According to Julie Osnes, Youth Services Librarian at the library, "This section has the highest usage of any section in the youth area, and thus it needs constant updates, replacements. The books were purchased especially from a company which specializes in well built books; with cloth hinges, side-sewn bindings, true library corners, and washable covers, they should last a considerable number of years, not unlike the Masonic Lodge itself."

Each book has been given a special book plate which reads, "A Gift from the Wayne Masonic Lodge."

"The Lodge has been making donations to the library for numerous years, and we are so very grateful for their ongoing generosity," Osnes said.

The Masonic Lodge, a philanthropic fraternity, was chartered in Wayne June, 1884 and currently has 93 members. The group encourages anyone interested in learning more about the Masons to visit the web site, www.waynelodge120.org. Annually, the lodge provides two marching band scholarships and one academic scholarship to area high school students plus children's books to the Wayne city library. This year they will also be sponsoring a CHIP (Child Identification Program) Event one day at the Wayne County Fair.

Green Expo is April 9 in Wayne

The second annual Green Expo will be held at the Wayne City Auditorium Saturday, April 9 from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

The goals of the Green Expo are to bring the community together to explore the three R's of living green - reduce, reuse and recycle. Green living encompasses all those areas of the natural environment of a community - air, water, land - and also the pocketbooks of those who chose to live a greener lifestyle both now and in the future. Several presenters will give presentations to promote a more earth-friendly lifestyle. They are:

Kelly Feehan, an Extension Educator of Horticulture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension in Platte County, will present information on how harvesting rainwater conserves water resources and protects surface waters from nonpoint source pollution. She will inform attendees about different methods that are being used to harvest rainwater in landscapes and how to correctly use them.

Cassidy Gerdes is employed by Pheasants Forever, the Nebraska Game and Park Commission and the Natural Resources Conservation Service as a farm bill wildlife biologist. She will present information on the traditional relationships people have with some of the species in one of the world's most endangered ecosystems, native tall grass prairie.

Lowell Johnson, Wayne city administrator, will give a presentation on comparing green and grey municipal infrastructure.

Steve Rasmussen, a district forester with the Nebraska Forest Service for Northeast Nebraska, will present suggestions and recommendations for different tree species that grow well in northeast Nebraska, but are not commonly planted, along with guidelines for successful tree planting for growing healthy trees.

Steve Rodie, an associate professor at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and a Landscape Horticulture Specialist, will speak on water-friendly landscaping by teaching people how to use basic landscaping design principles, use plant selection strategies and also how to conserve water and other resources while enhancing landscape beauty and function.

Liz Sarno, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Organic Project Coordinator and Extension Educator will present "Why Buy Organic" to educate the community on why organic food is more expensive as well as make suggestions on how to eat organic without breaking the bank.

Amy Topp is an Extension Educator with the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and she works with the 4-H and Youth Development program. Her presentation will consist of "building an ecosystem" by working with children to construct and decorate their own tin can herb pot with a recycled can.

In addition to the presenters, the Green Expo will have many tables of information showcasing how green living is done in Wayne, and the many benefits it brings to the environment, community and individual health.

The event is free and open to the public.

Second refrigerator more costly

What price can you put on a cold refreshing beverage after a vigorous workout or a hot day in the sun? How about having the extra refrigerator space for Aunt B's monster-sized batch of potato salad for the family cookout? What's the true value of knowing you can accommodate the "Buy Three, Get One Free" sale on gallon buckets of ice cream? If these are the occasional reasons why you have a second refrigerator, they may not be worth it. That second refrigerator may be costing you more than you think!

Even though the average life of a refrigerator is 12 years, many operate for years beyond that. "The number of U.S. households with two or more refrigerators has increased, and the secondary refrigerators are typically older and less efficient than the primary models," says the Energy Vision Update 2010 report by the World Economic Forum, according to The New York Times.

In fact, one-fourth, or 26 percent, of U.S. households have a second refrigerator, and that share is steadily increasing, according to a study released in December 2010 by the U.S. Department of Energy. This investigation also found that about 10 percent of households that buy new refrigerators keep their old ones. Another 32 percent sell or donate their old units. If all 30 million of the energy-wasting units were unplugged, the U. S. would save 25 million megawatt hours of electricity, or about $2.8 billion.

According to Energy Star, 27 million inefficient units manufactured before 1993 are still in use. If you are one of the Nebraskans who has a top freezer model around 22 cubic feet in size, plan on an additional 2,347 kilowatt-hours of electricity on your bill a year. At eight cents per kilowatt-hour, that is over $180!

What can you do to reduce this cost? Here are some ideas:

1. Move all your refrigerated items into one unit, preferably, your newest. Refrigerators are the most efficient when they are kept full; however, be sure air inside the refrigerator can flow around all items to ensure proper cooling.

2. Only plug in and operate the second refrigerator when you know it is needed. If you are hosting a large celebration, turn the unit on a few hours before the event and unplug it after it is no longer needed.

3. Consider loading a cooler with ice if the extra room is needed for a brief period. The cost for a bag of ice is equal to running your old refrigerator over only a 48-hour period.

4. Clean the coils! If you must keep your old unit, clean the coils, at a minimum, annually. Clean them more frequently if the unit is in a dusty or dirty environment. Do it for your new unit, too!

5. If you really need a second refrigerator, consider purchasing a compact unit that is Energy Star-qualified. These units consume less than a third of the energy when compared to larger units manufactured before 1980.

Another idea is to participate in the EnergyWise Refrigerator Recycling Program. If you are an electric customer of Nebraska Public Power District or any of its wholesale utility partners, you can take advantage of the program by calling (866) 444-9160 or visiting www.jacoinc.net to schedule a free pick up. A list of participating utilities can also be found at www.nppd.com. Customers should be sure to have their utility bill in hand when scheduling. Refrigerators or freezers must be between 10 and 30 cubic feet in size and be operational at the time of pick-up. Not only will you be saving money on your electric bill and helping recycle valuable materials, you are eligible to receive $35 for your old refrigerator or freezer.

Patients' needs part of combined effort

Providence Medical Center (PMC) of Wayne has teamed up with NRC Picker to better understand the patient experience and quality of care issues – all as seen through the eyes of the patient.

"PMC's mission is to provide quality healthcare to the people we serve, including those who are less fortunate. We try to create an atmosphere that targets the needs of each patient and the family members," explains Laura Gamble, director of nursing at PMC. "Together with NRC Picker, we know we can measure and improve our patient experience. To do that, it's important to let our patients know that 'we are listening' to what matters to them the most."

NRC Picker is a survey/research firm that has the tools to measure the patient experience across Eight Dimensions. These dimensions are:

- respect for patient values, preferences and needs;
- coordination and integration of care;
- information and education;
- physical comfort;
- emotional support;
- involvement of family and friends;

- transition and continuity;
- access to care.

NRC Picker believes that in focusing measurement and accountability around these eight areas of patient-centered care, hospitals can clearly improve the quality of care and the patient experience.

Gamble further explained, "We want our patients to feel safe, comfortable and confident when they come to our hospital for care. Now that we are able to measure what matters most to our patients, we are using their feedback to aggressively improve the experience each person has when they are a patient at PMC. We are certain that we will be able to see positive outcomes in how patients view their experience under our care."

In just a few short months, these NRC Picker/PMC survey results will begin appearing on www.hospitalcompare.hhs.gov. Area residents are encouraged to take a look and see how Providence Medical Center compares to other hospitals.

"We are determined to be open and accountable for the care that we deliver," Gamble said.

Victor talks to Rotarians about Haiti

Federne Victor was the featured speaker at a recent meeting of the Wayne Rotary Club.

Victor, a native of Haiti, told of his life in Haiti, living conditions in Haiti and the education there.

The 26-year old was born with major deformities in both arms, and his parents were told to "get rid of him because of his handicap." However, as the oldest child in his family, his mother said "no" and has watched as he learned to speak English and take care of his family, as is the custom for oldest sons in Haiti.

When he was four years old, a missionary from the U.S. brought him to the U.S. for surgery. It was while he was recovering from his surgery that he learned how to speak English by watching TV.

He has since been back and forth to his native country several times. He is the supporter for his seven brothers and sisters and parents. He serves as an interpreter for medical missionary teams that travel to Haiti.

"It is difficult to understand what is happening in Haiti if you are not there. It is a beautiful country, but most people, especially the older generations are not educated. People want things to change, but they don't know how," Victor told his audience.

He said education is expensive in Haiti and often times members of a family will share school supplies, with one child going to school in the morning and one in the afternoon. Also, because of a lack of food, often students don't have strength to go to school or get a job.

"Most people in Haiti don't believe in Christ and so they do things they shouldn't like telling lies and stealing. They also believe in voodoo magic," Victor said.

Victor also told of the current cholera epidemic that is killing about 40 people a day in Haiti.

"Cholera is so bad in my country and people don't know what to do. They don't want to be around anyone who has it. They don't realize it can be treated. They need to be taught about washing their hands and getting rid of the germs," he said.

Victor has since returned to Haiti to continue his job of translating for medical professionals who travel to the villages in Haiti to set up clinics to treat those in need.

Mike Flood, and I've talked with some other senators about some of our needs as well. It's important to get down here and make sure Wayne has a voice in what's going on down here in the Legislature."

Bloomfield, who is in his first year as an interim member of the Legislature, said it's a great chance for him to visit individually with people.

"I'm always excited to sit down and talk with people one-on-one, even more so than talking to a group," he said.

Bloomfield said he has heard a lot from constituents on LBS4, and said he was prepared to change his vote on the bill.

"I was going to be opposed to it, but about 99 percent of my constituents are in favor of it, so I'll probably change my mind," he said. "I'm also opposed to the recommendation that the Game and Parks increase its fees in state parks. I was one of seven to vote against it the first time, but we're not done yet and I hope the governor will veto it."

said the college conducted a survey late last year, and the results of that survey are expected to be presented to the college later this semester.

Kristin Peterson, general counsel for the Nebraska State College System, said that she expects the Office of Civil Rights to visit the Wayne State campus early next week, where they will have a chance to interview staff, tour the campus and look over the facilities.

"What happens after that depends on what the Office of Civil Rights determines after coming to the college," she said. "Whatever that is, we will work with (OCR) to address any deficiencies, if they find any."

If the OCR does find a basis to the complaint, they will likely work with school officials to resolve the issue.

"They'll notify us as to what areas we need to address, and then we have to come up with a plan to address them," Schoh said. "We'll have to look at what's acceptable to us, as far as how fast we can do it based on the current budget, and how fast we need to do it to satisfy the request (the OCR) is making."

"Hopefully, it can make us better once we're done with it."

teams away this year because there were not enough fields available to schedule games.

"If we can add another field, I could bring in another 14 teams or so," he said. "The biggest tournament in the country is in New York and had 108 teams this year, so (beating that number) is doable."

Four fields are available at the Wayne Rugby Park, located next to the city's softball complex on the east edge of town, and temporary fields were used at Wayne State College and the Wayne Community Activity Center.

Another challenge is lodging – where do you put 3,000 rugby players, coaches and fans?

The limited hotel space in Wayne forced those rugby enthusiasts to either take advantage of local connections to stay in the homes of area residents or seek out hotels in nearby communities like Norfolk, Sioux City and smaller communities like Laurel, Pender and Wisner, Barner said.

"That's the number one complaint we have, that there's not enough hotel space," he said. "There's a new hotel coming that will help out with that, but a lot of people will go to Sioux City or Norfolk because there's no place else to stay."

Bleckle said the Chamber helps promote the tournament through its newsletter, as well as other events where they have a chance to promote the community.

"We don't give money to the tournament, but we help out with promoting it in whatever avenues that we have," he said. "It's different than what we do for the Chicken Show, because that's one of our main fundraisers and we make money on that through T-shirt sales, vendor fees and other things."

Barner said he has received invitations from other cities, such as LeMars, Iowa, to move the tournament and take over the promotion and scheduling issues that he handles, in addition to his duties as the club's coach and director.

"This is Wayne's tournament, and we have a nice facility here and I want to keep it here," he said. "The thing is, it's getting so big and there's a lot of work that goes on behind the scenes."

Assuming the average rugby enthusiast spend $100 during the course of the weekend on food, lodging, fuel and other items, that would be a big loss of revenue for business owners like Jorgensen, who was impressed with not only the number of people who came to town, but the way they conducted themselves throughout the weekend.

"We never had one argument in here," he said. "They come here for fun and have a lot of fun. We had a lot of the kids singing and chanting in here, and if they bumped into one of the locals, a lot of times they'd stop and introduce themselves."

"They had a good time in Wayne, from start to finish."

Wayne hosts rugby regionals

Trip to rugby's Final Four awaits winner this weekend

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Any time a team gets to play host to a regional tournament, it's a big deal.

For Wayne State club rugby coach Darrin Barner, playing host to a tournament with a trip to rugby's version of the Final Four on the line is a really big deal, and he's excited about his team's opportunity to host North Dakota State, Occidental (Calif.) College and St. Edward's (Texas) University this weekend at the Wayne Rugby Park.

The Wayne State rugby club has established itself as one of the Midwest's top programs over the years. The annual March Madness tournament is one of the nation's largest, with this year's tournament drawing 92 teams from as far away as West Virginia and Canada.

Now, the club gets a chance to host one of the sport's biggest weekends, with a trip to the national semifinals in Washington, D.C., awaiting the winner of this weekend's four-team showdown, which will be played Saturday and Sunday at the Wayne Rugby Park.

"Just for the club and the community, we've worked really hard at the complex here," Barner said. "We're hosting because we have a really nice facility, and we put a bid in and they looked at our facilities and decided we deserved to host regionals."

And while the facilities helped secure the regionals, the team's play has been pretty noteworthy on its own.

92 teams compete in tournament

The annual Wayne State March Madness and Mayhem rugby tourney lived up to the hype as one of the biggest, hardest-hitting tournaments in the country this past weekend.

More than 90 teams invaded Wayne, America, on Saturday and Sunday, with games going on both days on eight fields in town.

When it was all said and done, the Northern State men and Northern Iowa women came away with the championship trophies. Northern State outlasted Sioux Falls 21-7, while Northern Iowa dominated Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 35-7.

The Wayne State men went 2-0 in their weekend's worth of competition, outlasting Minnesota-Duluth 10-0 and coming from behind to beat Northern Illinois, 21-12.

Wayne High baseball's return a successful one

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

It's been 27 years since Wayne High School sports fans have been treated to spring baseball, and they got quite an exciting treat to open the team's return to the diamond.

Despite being limited to two hits on the night by Pender pitcher Eric Browning, the Blue Devils return to high school baseball was a successful one, as they capped a perfect first week with a come-from-behind 5-4 win over the Pendragons on a snowy night at Hank Overin Field.

Former Wayne High coach Mike Mallette, the coach of the last Wayne High team that took the field more than 27 years ago, threw out the first pitch, and then watched with a hearty crowd on a cold night – that turned snowy by game's end – to watch the Blue Devils give up a two-run lead, only two come back and win the game in exciting fashion in the bottom of the seventh.

The Blue Devils got out to an early lead in the first inning, scoring two runs on two errors and an Alex Onnen single. They added another run in the third to take a 3-1 lead, and that lead held until the sixth, when the Pendragons took advantage of a couple of Wayne errors to tie the game.

Pender added another run in the seventh to take a 4-3 lead, but Drew Carroll reached on an error, and Jacob Zeiss followed with a two-base error to put two runners in scoring position for Trent Beza. Beza looped a single over the third baseman's head, bringing Carroll and Zeiss home with the game-ending runs to get Wayne off to a 2-0 start.

"I told the kids that you have to play 21 outs, and I'm really proud of them," co-coach Jeff Zeiss said after the game. "The kids showed a lot of character and were really persistent tonight."

Zeiss said Beza was aggressive at the plate in going after what was only the Blue Devils' second hit of the night against Browning, who struck out 17 Blue Devils in a losing effort.

"Trent said if he got a fastball he was going to get a hit, and that's what you want to hear as a coach," Zeiss said. "(Browning) pitched very well for them tonight and showed us some things we need to work on. The kids need to realize, though, that we're going to see quality pitching every time out."

Joey Lenihan worked five innings of relief to get the win for the Blue Devils. He struck out six and worked around two hits and five walks to finish off the victory.

Zeiss said he was happy to have Mallette throw out the first pitch, giving fans a reminder of the first era of Wayne High baseball.

"It was great to have Mike come out and throw out the first pitch," Zeiss said. "I have a lot of respect for him, and I played for him when I was in high school, so it was special for me and it was special for the kids too."

Title IX situation will help strengthen WSC

If you follow college sports in Nebraska, you're probably experiencing a little whiplash right now.

Two weeks ago, wrestlers and football players at the University of Nebraska at Omaha experienced the shock of learning that their programs were being cut by athletic director Trev Alberts, who seems to think the school can't live with being a Div. II institution anymore and must move up to Div. I if it wants to continue funding an intercollegiate athletic department.

Then, earlier this week, came the news that the Office of Civil Rights will be making a visit to Wayne, America, next week to investigate a complaint about gender inequities within the athletic department at Wayne State College.

While the Bleacher Bum, as a passionate wrestling fan, could riff from here until next Christmas on the situation regarding wrestling at UNO, the news that Wayne State is facing a Title IX situation is one that could be cause for concern.

Anybody who pays any attention to Title IX issues might be quick to assume that Wayne State College is about to lose some men's sports programs. After all, the answer some school officials have found to dealing with gender inequity is to kill men's sports (wrestling is a favorite) or seriously de-fund programs to the point where they can no longer be competitive and die out on their own.

However, killing men's sports doesn't address the issue. Female athletes, nationwide, are under-represented in intercollegiate athletics, and the push for equality should look, first, at providing more

Softballers sweep UNK, Missouri Western

The Wayne State College softball team used complete-game pitching efforts by Katie Goetzinger and Jordan Harris to sweep 25th-ranked Missouri Western 1-0 and 4-1 in non-conference college softball action Thursday at the Pete Chapman Softball Complex.

The wins were Wayne State's 10th and 11th in the last 12 games, moving their record to 12-7 overall.

The wins came one day after a two-game sweep of in-state rival Nebraska-Kearney, as the Wildcats dominated the Lopers with two five-inning wins, winning 13-1 and 10-2.

"They were big wins for us last week," coach Krista Unger said. "Kearney is always a good one to win, and Missouri Western was ranked nationally, so those are big wins for us."

In the first game against Missouri Western, senior Katie Goetzinger recorded her fourth shutout of the season, throwing a complete-game two-hitter with 13 strikeouts.

The lone run of the game was

Missouri Western had one

threat on Goetzinger's shutout effort, getting two batters on in the fourth before the senior hurler encouraged a foulout and got a strikeout to end the threat.

Wayne State had five hits in the win, with Earleywine's 2-for-3 effort leading the way.

In the nightcap, freshman Jordan Harris tossed her first complete game, finishing with a five-hitter as Wayne State got the

Hefner earns postgraduate NCAA award

Jennifer Hefner of Wayne State College has been awarded a postgraduate scholarship of $7,500 from the NCAA.

Hefner

The senior volleyball player from Archer is one of 29 female student-athletes from Div. I, II and III to receive the prestigious honor. The scholarships are awarded to student-athletes who excel academically and athletically and who are at least in their final year of intercollegiate athletics competition.

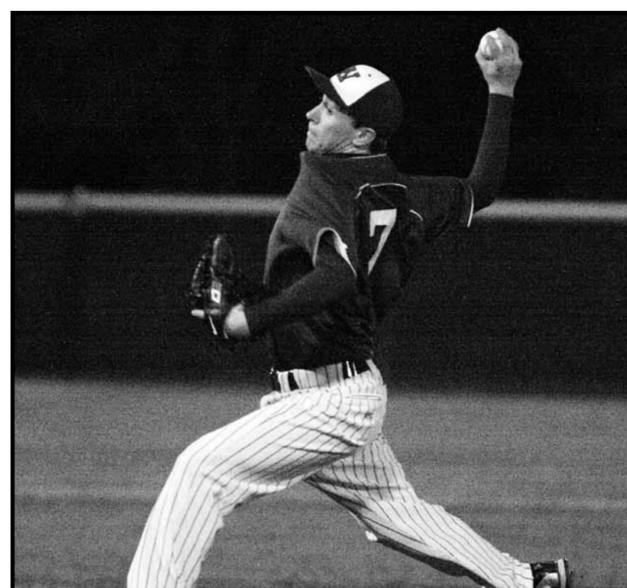

Hefner, who carries a stellar 3.93 grade-point average majoring in applied human and sport physiology, became the first athlete in Wayne State history to earn back-to-back first-team Academic All-American honors while also earning All-American honors on the court, receiving second-team AVCA All-American recognition as a junior and senior for the Wildcats.

The one-time grants are awarded for fall sports, winter sports and spring sports. Each sports season, there are 29 scholarships available for men and 29 scholarships available for women. The scholarships are one-time, non-renewable grants. Hefner has been accepted into Creighton University's program for the Doctor of Occupational Therapy Program.

Hefner was a first-team All-Northern Sun Conference selection for a third straight season this past season and finished her Wildcat career with 1,540 kills to rank fourth on the all-time list. She helped Wayne State College to a 26-4 record and a No. 9 national ranking, the highest season-ending national ranking in team history.

in April to compete for a national championship.

"We're hoping we can go there," he said. "It would be a massively big thing as far as the progress this program has made. These guys are very dedicated to it and they're pushing to do what they need to do to get there."

take advantage of their quickness.

"They're a smaller scrum, and very mobile and very fast," he said. "They have a lot of speed that they insert in the back line, which can cause a lot of problems. We'll make sure we commit just one or two people to a ruck on defense and try to fan out and maybe let them win some of the short-yardage situations so we don't give up any big-yard plays."

Barner said that, offensively, Wayne State will dance with the one they brought to the regional tournament, using their physical, straight-ahead attack.

"We're going to go straightforward with the scrum and throw out to the backs," he said. "We're very balanced there and we have a great kicking game, which can work to our advantage."

The second semifinal pits North Dakota State against Occidental College out of California. Barner said he hasn't seen either team play, but knows both teams will be tough in the finals on Sunday.

"We've played North Dakota

State a few times over the years, but we haven't seen Occidental," he said. "I'm sure, though, that if there's a chance for the Final Four on the line and they're playing in Wayne on Sunday, they're going to be very good."

Barner said the club is pulling out all the stops for this year's regional. They'll be giving away free rally towels to the first 400 fans, and the club will be tossing frisbees to fans after every Wayne State score, which include coupons good for free meals at local restaurants and tanks of gas from local convenience stores.

He optimistic about his team's chances, especially after watching their performance in last weekend's March Madness and Mayhem tournament at the Wayne Rugby Park, where they posted wins over Minnesota-Duluth and Northern Illinois.

"We've had a great year, and if we can play the kind of game we played against Northern Illinois, I think we've got a good chance," he said. "The kids played like a well-oiled machine in that match, and I was very happy with our performance."

If they win two games this weekend, they'll head to Washington, D.C., the last weekend first game. Beau Boryca and Travis Erickson each scored tries for Wayne State, and a gritty defensive effort kept Duluth off the scoreboard, giving Wayne State the win.

Taylor Foster scored the first of his two tries in the first half, but the Wildcats trailed Northern Illinois 12-7 at intermission. Foster scored a second try in the northwest corner of the field, which tied the game and left kicker David Synnott with a very tough point-after attempt. The senior fly half came through with a clutch kick, kicking from a tight angle into the wind and splitting the uprights to give Wayne State a huge momentum lift.

Later in the second half, Boryca ran up the middle, shook off a couple of defenders and dragged another into the end zone to give the Wildcats the win.

diamond started with a road game Tuesday at Fort Calhoun, and they waited out a rain delay to dominate the Pioneers 10-0 in the debut for both teams.

Wayne touched the Pioneers for four runs in the first inning, then added five more in the second to put the game away early. Wayne had seven hits in the win, with Onnen, Lenihan and Gage Rethwisch each pounding out a pair of hits. Rethwisch and Lenihan each had four RBI's in the win, and Onnen, Rethwisch, Zeiss and Tony Sinnger each scored two runs.

Rethwisch went three innings, allowing two hits and two walks while striking out five to get the win. "It was a great way to start the season," Zeiss said. "The kids played well and were really excited about the new era of Wayne High baseball."

In JV action, Wayne defeated Fort Calhoun 5-2 and outlasted Pender 5-4. Brady Soden had two RBI's in the first game to help Wayne to the win. Bradley Longe got the win, striking out three and allowing two hits. In the Pender game, Wayne came back from a 4-0 deficit to get the win. Carroll had two RBI's and Jordan Backer got the win in relief.

WSC women No. 14 in final basketball poll

The Wayne State women's basketball team was ranked No. 14 in the final USA Today/ESPN Div. II Top 25 coaches poll. It's the highest-ever national ranking to end the season for a Wildcat women's basketball team, topping the previous high season-ending ranking of No. 25 set by the 2005-06 team that finished with a 27-4 record.

The 2011 NSIC regular-season champions finished 21-1 in league play this season and were 26-4 overall, advancing to the second round of the NCAA Div. II national tournament for just the second time in school history. The Wildcats beat Colorado Christian in the first round 78-73 before falling to then-No. 10 Metro State 74-55 in the second round in Durango, Colo.

3-on-3 tourney is April 9

On Saturday, April 9 the Journey Christian Church College Group will host a 3-on-3 basketball tournament to raise money to help build wells for clean water in Africa.

The tournament will be at the Wayne Community Activity Center. Registration starts at 9 a.m. and the tournament will begin at 10 a.m.

The cost is $50 per team, and those participating can have up to five people on each team. The first-place team will receive the entry money back as well as a T-shirt for each member. The second place team will also receive a T-shirt for each member as well. Each team is guaranteed at least three games.

To register or ask questions, contact Jorji McPhillips (308) 550-1185 or Justin Raulston (402) 518-0609. More information can be found on Facebook at "Out Play Thirst 3 on 3 Tournament."

Rugby women fall 5-0 in regional tourney

The Wayne State women lost a heartbreaker to Mesa State, 5-0, as they had three tries negated by penalties and a fourth called off due to a controversial forward pass call late in the match.

They beat Truman State 31-10 in the consolation game to end their 11-1 season.

Dirt Devil tourney set for June 3-5

The annual Dirt Devil Invitational Girls Softball Tournament hosted by the Wayne Softball Association will be held June 3-5 at the Wayne Summer Sports Complex.

Divisions include 10-under, 12-under, 14-under, 16-under and 18-under, and is an open class tournament. Teams are guaranteed four games with full field in all divisions.

Entry is $190 plus two new cor.47 optic yellow balls. Entry deadline is May 1. Entries will be registered as received and space is limited. Entry forms are available at www.dirtdevilsoftball.com.

Track and field teams picked fourth

The Wayne State men's and women's track and field teams were both picked to finish fourth in the Northern Sun Conference in a preseason poll of conference coaches.

MSU Moorhead's men and University of Mary women were the preseason favorites among conference coaches.

Among the Wayne State athletes to watch are indoor All-Americans Ross Bunchek and Nicole Brungardt. Bunchek was an All-American in the weight throw during the indoor season, while Brungardt earned honors in the 60-meter dash, the long jump and as part of the 1,600-meter relay team.

Senior distance runner John Kern and junior thrower Casey Buskirk were also noted as athletes to watch on the men's and women's sides, respectively.

Wayne State opens the outdoor season this weekend at the Vance Butler Invite in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Softball

"We're trying to find a No. 2 pitcher and have given Jordan and Natalie (Hauschild) some work," Unger said. "Jordan kept the ball low and kept them off balance, and it was huge for her to go all seven innings. I think it gave her a big confidence boost, and we can expect a little more out of her."

The Wildcats took advantage of a Missouri Western error to score two runs in the second inning. Hannah Engelkamp walked, Earleywine reached on a bunt single and Radley singled to load the bases with two outs. Brittany Greenwood reached on a throwing error that scored Radley and Earleywine to put the Wildcats up 2-0.

Wayne State added another run in the third when Aeriell Earleywine singled down the left field line and later scored when Engelkamp lined a shot off Missouri Western pitcher Jonnelle Belger. Harris reached on an error and scored on Dani Sandel's pinch-hit single in the fourth to give the Wildcats a 4-0 advantage, and they cruised to the sweep from there.

Harris went the distance for the Wildcats, striking out seven while allowing five hits and three walks. Engelkamp was 2-for-2 with an RBI to lead the Wayne State offense.

On Wednesday, Wayne State jumped on UNK for five runs in the first inning on six hits. Blaire Kuhl's two-run homer to left center highlighted the inning, along with run-scoring singles by Radley, Goetzinger and Greenwood. Radley added a two-run homer to make it 7-1, and Vicki Nielsen had a two-run, pinch-hit single to help in the first-game blowout. Radley, Kuhl, Goetzinger, Engelkamp and Rachel Dukich each had two hits to lead a 15-hit assault, and Goetzinger struck out 10 in the circle for the first-game win.

In the finale, Engelkamp hit a two-run homer to left in the first, and after UNK tied the game at 2-2, Aeriell Earleywine stroked a two-run single and Greenwood added another RBI single in the second inning to put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

The Wildcats added two more runs in both the third and fourth innings to take a 9-2 lead, then ended the game on a Greenwood single, scoring Sloane Masters with the game-ending run.

Three Wildcats went 3-for-3 in the second game, as Greenwood, Radley and Engelkamp each had three hits. Greenwood and Radley both had three RBIs while Engelkamp added two RBIs.

Goetzinger picked up the win, pitching the final three innings to move to 7-3 on the season. She allowed two hits and struck out four while allowing no runs. Hauschild started the second contest for the Wildcats, going two innings and allowing one earned run on four hits.

"I think we're on the right path," Unger said of her team's recent success. "We're hitting the ball better and playing better defense, so I think we're moving in the right direction."

Weather forced a change in the Wildcats' schedule this week. Tuesday's doubleheader at UNO was moved to Wednesday, forcing a postponement of a scheduled doubleheader at Northwest Missouri State. They host University of Mary and Northern State in doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday.

opportunities for female athletes to represent their schools in interscholastic competition. Killing a men's program doesn't satisfy the women's interests - it's like putting a Band-Aid on a broken arm.

What needs to be addressed are the interests of the student body as a whole. What opportunities are out there that female athletes are interested in that could be supported by an athletic department?

At Wayne State, rugby is the obvious first choice. The club's rugby program is already a national player on the rugby scene, and while the sport is not an NCAA championship sport (like basketball, volleyball, etc.), it is considered an "emerging sport" that would help satisfy the participation prong of Wayne State's Title IX issue.

Even with the addition of rugby, though, the school still has a ways to go to bring its participation numbers even with its enrollment numbers. Adding a second sport, like women's tennis, would bring it closer, and would also show the school is making an effort to address these issues, which is another aspect of satisfying Title IX.

Additionally, the school has conducted a survey to see what interests are out there among the student population, which - in effect - helps satisfy a third requirement of Title IX.

Of course, adding programs costs money, and if you've been paying any attention to what's going on in Lincoln, the state is facing some serious budget cutting. Between the support the school receives from the state, along with fundraising and booster club efforts, the money needed to fund and support any new program (or programs) would have to be there.

Ultimately, school officials will have to see what the OCR comes up with during its investigation next week, and it may be some time before we know which direction the school will go. In talking with Wayne State athletic director Eric Schoh, I know he wants to do anything BUT cut a sport. He certainly doesn't want to be Wayne State's version of Alberts - whose stock among the UNO alumni and boosters has dropped lower than a centipede's shoelaces - and is going to work to make Wayne State's athletic department come out of this experience in better shape than it is today.

Wayne State made a big move several years ago by leaving the NAIA level of athletics and making the big step forward to NCAA Div. II. The Wildcat program is competitive and has become a player on the national stage in recent years, particularly in women's athletics.

And anybody who thinks Wayne State isn't committed to women's athletics, to be honest, is absolutely clueless. The past 12 months, alone, should be an obvious indicator of the college's commitment to women's sports - softball was two games from the College World Series last year and is off to a great start this spring; volleyball had its best year ever and was ranked No. 1 twice last season; basketball won the NSIC regular-season title and was ranked in the top 10 for the first time in team history; and indoor track had a breakout season with its first three-time All-American and its highest-ever finish at the national meet.

The only problem with Wayne

State's athletic program, from a gender perspective, is the ratio of male athletes to female, compared to the ratio of students in each gender who are on campus. Outside of rugby and tennis, I'm not sure what other sports Wayne State could bring in to satisfy the needs of female students on campus. The college doesn't have the facilities needed for swimming (the indoor pool on campus is not Olympic-size in length or width), and there are really no other sports at the Div. II level that would fit on this campus.

Wayne State finds itself in a rather interesting situation as the Office of Civil Rights prepares to visit campus next week. Whatever the result, I believe the school is going to come out in even better shape than it now is - and from where I sit, it's looking pretty good

Discover a Watershed: The Missouri River - A Workshop for Educators

An educator workshop focused on the Missouri River Basin will be offered by Nebraska Project WET (Water Education for Teachers) on May 5-6; registrations are due April 5. The two-day workshop, which is free to participants, will take place at Ponca State Park. Lodging and meals are included, along with free activity guides and a stipend for eligible educators.

Project WET Coordinator Jennifer Swerczek said the workshop will cover a broad range of topics - hydrology and management of the river, effects of land use practices, plant and animal species that depend on the river, and water use issues, to name a few.

"The workshop is intended for educators," Swerczek said, "but individuals with an interest in many other areas will enjoy it also. It's all covered in the context of the Missouri River Basin, which is an important watershed for Nebraska."

The workshop is made possible through funding from the Nebraska Environmental Trust, a beneficiary of the Nebraska Lottery. It is sponsored by the Nebraska Forest Service.

For more information, contact Swerczek at (402) 472-7765 or email jswerczek2@unl.edu.

Becoming an Outdoors Woman Workshop to be held at Ponca State Park

The Nebraska Game and Parks will conduct its Annual Becoming an Outdoors Woman (BOW) Workshop on April 8-10 at Ponca

State Park.

This workshop is designed to provide women with some of the "start-up" skills and knowledge to participate in a variety of outdoor activities including: outdoor cooking, shooting sports, fishing, and general outdoor enjoyment.

Participating women will be lodging at the Park's two-bedroom cabins. Instructors/mentors will be on-site throughout the weekend to guide participating women through a variety of hands-on activities. Women need to bring all weather clothing, toiletries and a spirit of adventure.

Activities include Beginning Muzzle-loading, Archery, Dutch-oven cooking, Fly-fishing, Introduction to Botany, Bird-watching, and How to Fry Fish.

The minimum age limit for this event will be 18 years of age and the maximum number of workshop participants will be 28 women.

BOW is for women who want to learn, in a friendly environment, various skills so they may become active outdoor participants. Women interested in attending must pre-register by visiting NebraskaBOW.com or calling Peggy Kapeller at (402) 471-5482.

Zane Jensen

Jensen named Geographic Bee finalist

Zane Jensen, son of Karla and Leland Jensen and an eighth grader at Winside Public School, has been notified by the National Geographic Society that he is one of the semifinalists eligible to compete in the 2011 Nebraska Geographic Bee, sponsored by Google and Plum Creek.

Bees were held in schools with fourth through eighth grade students throughout the state to determine each school's Geographic Bee winner. School-level winners then took a qualifying test, which they submitted to the National Geographic Society.

In each of the 50 states, as well as the District of Columbia, the Department of Defense Dependents Schools and the U.S. territories, the National Geographic Society invited the students with the top 100 scores to compete at the state level.

The 2011 Nebraska Geographic Bee will be held on Friday, April 1. The state winner will receive $100, the "Complete National Geographic on DVD" and a trip to Washington, D.C. where he/she will represent Nebraska in the national finals at the National Geographic Society headquarters on May 24-25.

The first place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship and lifetime membership in the Society. The national winner will also travel (along with one parent or guardian), all expenses paid, to the Galapagos Islands. The winner will experience geography firsthand through up-close encounters with the wild-life and landscape of Galapagos. Travel for the trip is provided by Linblad Expeditions and National Geographic.

Provisions in Affordable Care Act helping out cancer patients, families

One year after the new health care law, the Affordable Care Act, went into effect, key provisions are improving the health care system for those with cancer or who are at risk for developing the disease, according to an official with the American Cancer Society.

Cancer patients and their families are benefitting from provisions in the law that are improving the quality and cost of their health care.

"We want people to understand that the law, while not perfect, will meaningfully improve the health care system for people with cancer and save lives," said David Holmquist, Director of State Legislative Government Relations for the American Cancer Society's Nebraska Region. "Provisions in the law are making health care more adequate, affordable, available and easier to understand for cancer patients, survivors and their families."

Several patient protections included in the law improve the health care system for cancer patients and their families by:

- Banning pre-existing condition exclusions,
- Eliminating annual and lifetime benefit limits,
- Guaranteeing health coverage to all applicants,
- Prohibiting insurers from charging people more for coverage because of their health status, and
- Refocusing the health care system on disease prevention and early detection.

The American Cancer Society High Plains Division and its national advocacy affiliate, the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network (ACS CAN) have been working at the federal and state level to insure that provisions of the law that help cancer patients are protected and implemented effectively.

"Many cancer patients, survivors and their families are benefitting from the law and can't afford to have critical patient protections taken away," says Holmquist. "We call on lawmakers to implement and strengthen these provisions that are expanding access to quality health care for families affected by cancer, so they aren't ever again forced to make the difficult choice between saving their life and their life savings."

Since the passage of the Affordable Care Act, The Society's High Plains Division and ACS CAN have been educating the public about how provisions in the law directly benefit cancer patients and their families. As part of this effort, the Society developed a consumer-friendly brochure: The Affordable Care Act: How it Helps People With Cancer and Their Families. The guide outlines how the new law improves the quality and cost of health care for people with cancer and those at risk for cancer. It also clarifies some of the myths about the new law that began circulating during the legislative debate. In addition, the guide highlights three real-world stories of people who exemplify how the law is meaningfully improving the health care system.

The guide is posted on both the Society's and ACS CAN's Web sites. Visit www.acscan.org/healthcare to access it.

ACS CAN is also part of a coalition of some of the nation's most trusted organizations representing consumers, patients, physicians, nurses, hospitals and pharmacists that launched a new comprehensive online resource - HealthCareandYou.org - to give Americans easy-to-understand information about the law so they can make informed health care decisions for themselves and their families.

Wayne State College to host 'Pfaltzgraff and Pfriends' concert series

The "Pfaltzgraff and Pfriends" concert series will continue with a "Composers I Have Known" performance in Ley Theatre, located on the second floor of the Brandenburg Education Building, on Tuesday, April 5 at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

The concert series began in the fall semester of 2008 and has featured a variety of performers, repertoire and themes in a concert each semester during the Wayne State College school year. The concert features music by composers who are friends of Phil Pfaltzgraff, staff accompanist at Wayne State.

Samantha Bierbower, a Wakefield High School student, will perform piano music from a work by Travis Worthy. Dr. Linda Christensen, Wayne State music department chair, will perform work by David Biedenbender. Katie Bencken, a music major from Lincoln, will perform a work by Howard Frazen.

A faculty chamber ensemble will perform. The group features Melissa Derechaillo on French Horn, Joshua Calkin on Tuba and Phil Pfaltzgraff on piano for an instrumental trio selection by Dr. David Gillingham.

The Wayne State Chorale will present a choral piece by Philip Rice.

Dr. Gwen Jensen, professor and director of theater at Wayne State, will narrate the program.

Habitat for Humanity putting finishing touches on third building

The Wayne Area Habitat for Humanity group met in March and addressed finishing work on the newest home in the Western Ridge subdivision.

This spring will see grass seeding and planting of two shade trees in the yard along with the payment of the last expenses from the build.

The group discussed ways to further recognize all of contributors of in-kind and monetary donations, as well as those who volunteered their time in building the new home.

Parochial worldview is parochial

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN – If you have lived long enough to be someone who reads newspaper columns about what's going on in state government, you have lived long enough to know that life isn't fair. It's just inexorable.

Life has ways of reminding us, individually and collectively, that our world isn't everything. Or, more specifically, that the world isn't ours to the degree we usually presume it is.

A tsunami will do it, probably for billions of people, simultaneously.

Sometimes, it takes only a conversational ripple to remind us that our parochial worldview is, in fact, parochial.

A few days ago I was around and about downtown Lincoln. What with the Legislature being in session, and this being the time of year when decisions start being made, it's also the time of year when policy matters of all sorts might begin to clog a reporter's brain. Especially if he's been around long enough to have his brain clogged with government history the way his arteries are clogged with sausage gravy. (I've spent years in Nebraska diners, eating breakfast and reading newspapers.)

And somewhere along the way to some place during this downtown excursion, a longtime acquaintance happened along, and the usual sidewalk palaver ensued.

"Hey! You look happy and healthy. How's the family?"

"Everyone's good."

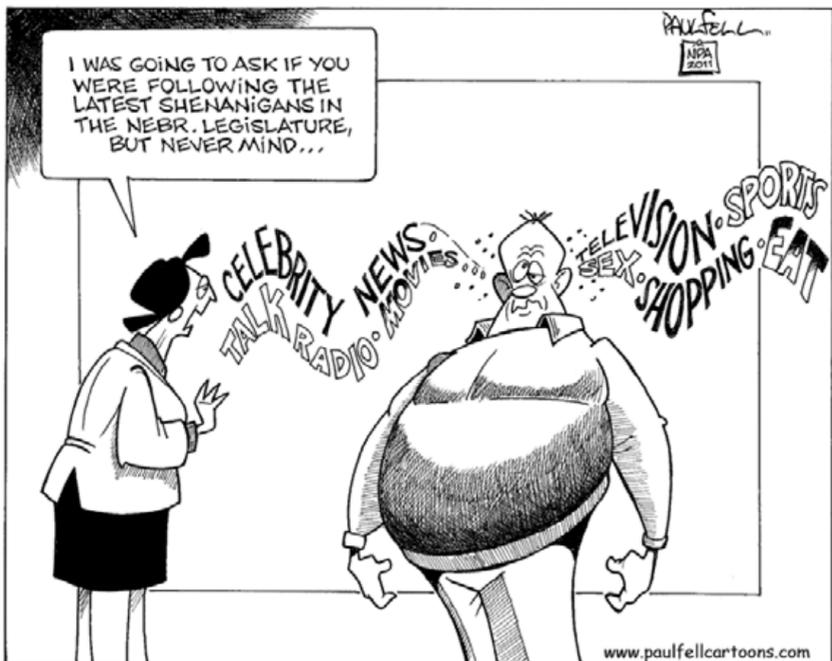

"Glad to hear it."

"Is the Legislature in session these days?"

"What? (Incredulously). What did you ask me?"

"I asked if the Legislature was in town. Oh, (bleep!) You're going to make a speech now, aren't you? (Testily) You're going to do that same old show . . . Not everyone wakes up every day and worries about government!"

It was embarrassing. Not because someone was standing in the street berating me; over the years, that hasn't been as unusual as it should have been. It was embarrassing because she was right. The "same old ..." stuff was on the tip of my ego. Or, it had been.

After promising that no lecture would be unleashed, I didn't apologize, but I did offer an explanation.

Parents tell you to stand up straight. Accountants tell you to keep your receipts. Dentists tell you to floss. People who have "lived government" most of their lives tell you to pay attention to it. The problem with the latter is that some of us don't "leave it at the office."

Last year I wrote a column forever swearing off columns aimed at cajoling, scolding, encouraging or otherwise nudging people along the path toward paying attention to government, or writing to their state senators every so often, and like matters. Such columns were mostly useless, and presumptuous.

That resolution has been easily observed.

My new resolution, hereby solemnly affirmed, is to forego turning conversations into classrooms. It has finally dawned upon me that it is too often as rude as it usually is pointless.

After all, my parents told me to stand up straight, my accountant told me to save receipts, and my dentist told me to floss. And here I sit, a guy with bad posture and false teeth, who'd be ten years behind on his taxes if his wife didn't keep his receipts.

Sometimes, it takes only a conversational ripple to remind us that our parochial worldview is, in fact, parochial.

Ethanol, roads are under discussion

All-day sessions began last week, as most committee hearings had ended. There will still be hearings to confirm the Governor's appointments to various boards and commissions within the state government structure. Committees will also hold executive sessions on priority bills that are still being held by the various committees.

Ethanol and roads were two main topics of discussion this week. LB698, introduced by Sen. Mark Christensen of Imperial, would allow dealers to not label ethanol-blend fuels at the pump unless they are more than a 10 percent blend. Discussions on this bill were very interesting, and came down to increasing the sale of ethanol versus the consumer's right to know what is being purchased. The ethanol industry and supporters of this bill believe more ethanol will be sold if this labeling requirement is removed. Fifteen others states do not require labeling at the pumps. Opponents of the bill have said the consumers have the right to know what they are buying.

I am a strong supporter of ethanol, and use ethanol blends in my vehicles. I do not support LB698, however, because I do believe people need to know what they are buying. I think there should be more promotion of ethanol in Nebraska. We do not need to sneak around and figure out ways to get people to buy ethanol blends without knowing it. We should not stoop to that level. Let us not hide the light of ethanol under the proverbial bushel in hopes of selling an extra gallon. LB698 received 25 votes to advance to Select File, and there are still questions as to whether or not the bill will actually pass this year. I will continue to oppose hiding this fine Nebraska product.

LB84 is another bill that legislators talked about for eight hours. The bill, introduced by Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine, would set aside $125 million per year for twenty years, starting in 2013, for new highway construction and addition to the state's delayed expressway system. This money would come from state sales tax revenue that is already being collected, amounting to about one-half cent out of the state's current 5.5 cent sales tax.

Proponents believe that legislators must make a commitment to improve the state's failing infrastructure. Currently, state policy utilizes only "user fees," like taxes paid on fuel and fees on motor vehicles licenses. Opponents believe we cannot afford to fix our roads and bridges without reducing services to families and children, as well as education. In the current proposed budget, the Department of Roads is receiving an increase of $20 million this year while some other agencies are being cut.

Many amendments were not

Legislative Update

State Senator, District 17

discussed during round one of debate, because opponents made priority motions to bracket the bill, reconsider a vote, and also recommit the bill back to the Revenue Committee for more study. Due to this filibuster, we did not have an opportunity to debate whether or not $125 million is too large of a commitment for us to make at this time, or have the chance to lower that amount if necessary.

I did not vote on the advancement of the bill, and hope that we can discuss some of the proposed changes that have been introduced but not acted on. I weary of some people who would rather talk than to try to move forward. I will probably support LB84, though I am not wild about it.

Teacher was a turbine of info

He filled the air with knowledge, enthusiasm, fairness, friendship and romanticism. He made his students and all whom he met better than they really were.

This January's death of Dr. Robert Johnson of Ponca leaves a terrible void in my life, and most certainly in the lives of others.

Dr. Bob was a turbine in the classroom. Even Wayne State quarterbacks – whose fumbles were higher than their GPAs – clamored for a seat in his classes. He told all at the semester's outset that he couldn't teach them if they weren't there. None of us knew anything about semantics before we learned that the map is not the territory.

Visiting him often at his river home, our boat trips and walks with his dogs resembled Aristotle and the peripatetics. He was the pennant of adventurism and a steward of life's lessons I both needed and appreciated.

We meet many, forget most, revere few. Dr. Bob, however, was like no other. The Lord verily sent him and his spirit to us so we could, like Gideon, blow our own trumpets. If philosophy is just a footnote to Plato, so must Dr. Robert Johnson truly be the heart and soul to those who loved and admired him the most: his students.

Johnson should have third party look at allegations

"The actions of man, rather than his words, are where people should look for his character."

Mr. Lowell Johnson recently released allegations to the press detailing alleged misconduct by Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear. According to press releases from the Fraternal Order of Police and Mr. Webster's attorney, these allegations are "without merit."

As the city administrator, Johnson sits in judgment of all cases of misconduct brought before him concerning one employee's allegations against another. In the case where he is bringing the allegations, he sits in judgment of these allegations. So the accuser is also the judge in this case. Does this sound fair? That does not sound like fair justice.

If Justice is truly an aim of the esteemed Lowell Johnson, the case he has before him should stand on its own merits. A man of value would recuse himself from the situation and seek an independent third party beyond reproach to judge it. That way, whatever the decision, the city has maintained a fair and balanced hand in the matter.

Why is fairness a must in this case? How justice is handled can open the city to all sorts of expensive liability if the process of its justice can be impugned. Any judgment Johnson makes in disfavor of the two officers in question opens the city to this liability. If a third party, agreeable to both sides, like a retired judge, would make the decision, it would be beyond reproach. Whatever the reason Johnson has for bringing these charges should stand on their own, regardless of whether he is looking at them or an independent party is.

By pursuing it the way Mr. Johnson has so far, he is leading the city down the road of a legal quagmire. All the while, the city is bleeding money on lawyers, court costs, Johnson's time, and other city employees' time.

By recusing himself of the situation, and having a mutually acceptable third party judge look at the case, the city can avoid a future legal quagmire if the decision is against the officers in question. If the decision is for them, then Johnson can save face and actually work with them again.

The actions of man, rather than his words, are where people should look for his character.

Rebecca Jaixen of Wayne has been accepted into the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College.

granted special consideration for admission to the RHOP program. Areas of study under the program include medicine; pharmacy; dentistry; dental hygiene and medical technology.

A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted higher education institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989. Selection of candidates is based on an applicant's residency in a rural Nebraska community, academic potential and commitment to practice in rural Nebraska.

Jaixen is the daughter of Mike and Sara Jaixen of Wayne. She will study within RHOP as a pre-dentistry/biology major.

Deans' list announced at University of Nebraska-Kearney

The University of Nebraska at Kearney has announced the names of students who have earned a place on the Deans' List for the fall semester.

To earn a place on the Deans' List, university students must complete 12 credit hours, or more, with a 3.5 or better overall average. At least 12 of the hours must be for quality points, i.e., 4.0 for an "A," 3.0 for a "B" and 2.0 for a "C." Courses taken on a credit/no credit basis do not earn quality points, and thus, cannot be included among the necessary 12 credit hours.

Students who earned a 4.0 (all "A's") average are noted by an asterisk after their names. In recognition of their academic achievements, Deans' List students will receive a certificate from their respective deans.

Local students named to the list include:

Heath Erwin of Dixon; Brianna Johnson of Laurel; Kelsey Bard*, Nicholas Curnyn, Stephanie Klein* and Sara White, all of Wakefield; Joshua Fink, Cory Foote, Kelly Gentrup, Jesse Hill, Michelle Jarvi*, Shannon Jarvi, Hannah Mitiku*, Reggie Ruhl*, Nathan Summerfield* and Joni Veldkamp, all of Wayne and Jaycie Woslager of Winside.

Wayne State College students spend Spring Break in Service Learning

By MICHELLE OLSEM
Wayne State student

"This is very serious, you're in big trouble you know," said the border patrol agent at the Mexican/American border as I tried to return without a passport to the United States after an afternoon in Mexico. The few hours I spent in Mexico were the most intense moments of my week long spring break service learning trip to Texas.

Seven other Wayne State College students and I took part in this service project under the direction of Sister Cynthia Hruby, Wayne State College Catholic Newman Center's Campus Minister, from March 5-12. In addition to a fee paid by the participants, this trip was made possible by Catholic Newman Center donors, a Wayne State College Service Learning sub-grant for travel, and a Multicultural Center donation toward lodging.

The focus of the trip was to visit and serve at La Posada Providencia in the lower Rio Grand Valley of South Texas. This is a shelter for people who come from around the world to find safety, security and opportunities for a better life.

Taking off from Wayne at 5 a.m. Saturday morning, we spent 26 hours - including a few intentional and a few accidental detours - driving time to bring us to La Posada at 9 p.m. on Sunday, feeling potentially as tired and travel-wearied as the immigrants who arrive at their front door seeking shelter. Sister Theres and Sister Margaret, the directors of La Posada, immediately made us feel at home.

The focus of our first day in Texas was interacting with the clients of La Posada and tutoring them one-on-one in English as a second language. Despite language challenges, we were able to make quick bonds of friendship and learn about the language students' backgrounds. Many of them fled from violence or injustice in their country, and had to leave their families behind. Some were even abandoned by their families at a young age in the United States.

Since 1989, La Pasada has provided a safe haven for more than 5,000 people such as these from more than 70 countries. They provide shelter, food, training, transportation and mentoring to immigrants in the resettlement process. The ministry is sponsored by the Sisters of Divine Providence.

Along with tutoring the clients, we also spent time playing basketball, soccer, volleyball, ping-pong, Uno and other games with them. We ate together and prayed, talked and laughed as one big family, just as the quote on the wall read: "Many cultures, one family in God." We pitched in our services to cook, plant flowers, rake leaves, clean up sticks, tend chickens, and garden to help out.

Tuesday and Wednesday of our trip were spent touring places of interest in the area. The first stop we made was the Holy Family Birthing Center in Weslaco, where we learned about natural births and midwives. At the border of Mexico, we met with Sister Maureen. After checking with the Border Patrol officer about our documents to cross into Mexico, and I was assured that my two forms of ID were sufficient, five of us girls piled into the back seat of Sister Maureen's truck and made the journey into Mexico, through Nuevo Progreso and into a small town.

We went to The Catholic Church Our Lady of Mercy, which Sister Maureen's community built there 10 years ago, and hosted Bingo for the families of the church. I mostly stayed outside and played with more than 30 children that showed up with their families. The kids were so joyful and extremely open and friendly with us. They all came from backgrounds of poverty, but they didn't know any different and were happy with what they had: a simple soccer ball, a dirt road and friendly people from America to play with.

Crossing the border back from Mexico was the challenge. The agent stopped me at the check point after walking across the bridge and asked me if I was applying for my passport. I said no and he informed me of the law passed on June 1 of last year, making it illegal to cross over into Mexico and reenter the United States without a passport. That's when he looked me in the eyes and informed me of the major trouble I was in. However, maybe due to my composed demeanor, he let me go with an "official warning" not to cross the border again without my passport and I made it successfully back into the States.

"Hearing the stories and experiencing crossing the Mexican border made me realize the reality of the situation and how I don't know anything about it," said Macaela Post, Wayne State College student. "Open-mindedness is what our nation needs. When it comes to health care, immigration, or social welfare, the world keeps turning and we all need to keep up."

On Thursday, we toured the Ozanam Center in Brownsville, Texas; a shelter that provides people in need with 30 days of shelter, three meals a day, clothing, English classes, job training, transportation, limited medical attention and recreation. Next, we visited the International Emergency Shelter (IES), a detention center for unaccompanied children from other countries. Our afternoon and evening were spent on South Padre Island, enjoying the sun, collecting sea shells and, for me, swimming in the ocean for the first time.

"This service learning experience is one of the highlights of my academic years. I was able to integrate the classroom learning with the actual working environment," Wayne State College graduate student, Annie Kang said. "Even though the experience was short, I felt that some of the things I've learned in books and classroom became real and alive. Hearing from the people who have been struggling to survive makes me understand them better and ever grateful for what I have."

I also am very grateful for what I have learned through this experience. I learned that people are people, no matter what their legal residency status is. I learned the importance of being aware and informed of issues such as immigration. Finally, I learned that as an American citizen, I should not take my ability to get a passport for granted.

Basic dietary guidelines remain

Every five years, the U.S. departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services form new dietary guidelines for everyone age two and older. The 2010 dietary guidelines were influenced by the health conditions of obesity and heart disease.

The new guidelines are focused on three basic messages: eating wholesome foods, eating at home and watching simple sugars and salt.

Eating at home is a focus because people are eating out more and more in today's world. Restaurant portions are large, resulting in more calories consumed, more sodium and hidden fats and sugars people may not be aware of. Parents used to tell their children to clean their plates, but that may not be the best statement today. Plates used to be six to eight inches, but now they are eight to 12 inches.

When eating out, consider cutting the food portion on the plate in half. Put half in a to-go box right away, then eat the other half that is left on the plate. This will eliminate the feeling that it is necessary to clean the plate.

When eating at home, try to stay away from processed foods and follow these suggestions:

- cover half of the plate with fruits and vegetables;
- switch to nonfat or one percent milk;
- reduce sodium to one teaspoon

Extension Educator
4-H & Youth

or 2.3 grams;
- drink water instead of sugary drinks; this doesn't have to be bottled water; tap water is recommended, if it is safe.

For more information, go to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's website at www.usda.gov and click on "Food and Nutrition."

Market Value versus Market Price; aren't they the same?

"Market Value is an opinion of value based on an analysis of data." This is according to Modern Real Estate Practice 17th Edition. For example a real estate agent will perform a CMA (competitive market analysis) to come up with a Market value for a seller's home to determine the price they want to start at when listing their house.

Market price however is the price that a property actually sells for. Shouldn't these two terms be the same? In a perfect world the answer would probably be yes. However, in today's economy they rarely are the same.

You see, market price can be influenced by many things such as when a short sale reduces the price of an otherwise more valuable home or even when sellers have to sell right away due to a job change. The price usually drops in these two instances, yet the home itself is still worth more than the actual selling price.

Sellers; it is always a good idea to have a CMA performed when you are planning to sell your home. This gives you a realistic place to start so your home sells quickly for a price you can agree to. The closer you can keep the market value to the market price; the better off you will be in the sale of your property.

Buyers; when you are planning on buying your next home, make sure to differentiate between these two terms so you are able to negotiate to the best of your ability. The more information you can arm yourself with, the better position you will be in when it comes to settling on a price.

So do not be fooled into thinking that terms are interchangeable. Knowledge is a key factor in negotiating no matter which side of the table you find yourself on. If you have questions, I would be happy to help you find the answers. Please email me questions and comments at: Wendy@mwico.net.

Minerva Club gathers at Senior Center

Phyllis Rahn hosted Minerva Club on March 28 at the Wayne Senior Center.

After the meal Phyllis and her husband, Darrel, shared with all those at the center and members of the Minerva Club pictures of their trip to Ireland in 2008.

In keeping with the theme of famous monthly celebrations, March as Irish American Heritage month was explored.

Phyllis noted that there are over 36 million Americans with Irish roots. War strife and the potato famine brought most of them over during the 1800's and early 1900's. Most of them were firefighters, policemen, transit workers and later they went into mining areas. Those coming in late 19th century helped build canals and railroads.

The DVD showed places of interest from Dublin the capital of Ireland which has a population of 2 million people to touring the Waterford Crystal factory, Cliffs of Moher, sights along the coastal route of Ring of Kerry, a Dairy farm visit, and all heard music from Liam O'Donnell playing his accordion. He is known as the having the fastest fingers in the world.

The video closed with a visit to a castle featuring a medieval banquet and beautiful music in which Darrel and Phyllis were the featured King and Queen of Ireland for a few hours.

Members of the Minerva Club then went to the Board room to have their meeting.

President MaryAnn DeNaeyer shared with the group several humorous kids clips as well as teacher student clips. Members answered to roll call sharing an Irish Joke or blessing handed out to the members from Phyllis. Hollis Frese, club historian, read minutes from Feb. 14 and 28, 1994. The theme for that year was each member sharing their family heritage with the group as well as sharing family pictures.

Norma Koeber and Verna Reese were the members highlighted those two meetings. Norma and Verna were the most recent members to pass away who belonged to the club. It was noted that the club donates a book in their memory to the Public Library.

The birthday song was sung to Twila Lindsey.

Lila Brown will host the next meeting which will be Monday, April 11 at the Senior Center for a noon meal.

Nebraska is topic of Acme Club meeting

Ruth Victor was the hostess when the Acme Club gathered on March 21 at the Wayne Senior Center. There were seven members and one guest, Theresa Jensen, present for the Spring Fling noon lunch and to listen to the Burdette Heithold Band.

Following lunch members met for the regular meeting. Joann Temme gave the Thought for the Day, "Blessing within the Clouds," from a past issue of the Lutheran Digest.

Roll call was answered with members telling why they like living in Nebraska. For the program Delores Utecht read a poem about Nebraska, especially things to see and do. Ruth Victor gave a reading of the many facts about Nebraska. Many food items were first started in Nebraska, such as Dorothy Lynch dressing, Runzas, Kool Aid, Ted's seasoning and others. Members agreed, "We surely live in a great state!"

The club will have its annual collection for the Children's Home for Easter at the next meeting, which will be a no-host meeting on Monday, April 4 at the Senior Center. It will also be Joke Day.

ORTHOTICS

Orthotics are 10% off the entire month of April!

Alleviating pain in one part of your body often requires treating a different part. The pain felt in your neck could be caused by a misalignment in your spine which is caused by unbalanced positioning in your feet.

It's a chain reaction!

By stabilizing and balancing your feet, custom made orthotics enhance your body's performance and efficiently reduce pain and contribute to your total body wellness. Orthotics compliment the chiropractic treatment when you stand, walk, and move about in your active life.

In an effort to help future students reach their full potential, a committee has been formed to start a scholarship fund in honor of Mr. Wilmes. This scholarship will be awarded annually to one student at graduation. All students showing an interest in agriculture or the industrial arts along with scholastic achievements and strong ties to FFA will be considered.

The committee asks that anyone interested in helping to contribute to the "Tom Wilmes Memorial Scholarship Fund" send their contributions to Allen Consolidated School, P.O. Box 40, Allen, Neb. 68710 - Attn: Wilmes Scholarship Fund.

Advice on parenting shared

Thinking about parenting styles, which we did at the birthday party a week ago, I ran across an article in Parenting magazine I thought was too good not to share. (I don't subscribe to this magazine, but found a copy on the table in the break room at work last week. Actually, the only magazine I do subscribe to is Nebraska Life, but that is off the subject.)

The editors of the magazine asked moms and dads to describe their parenting style in three words, on Twitter. The answers caused laughter, and even some tears:

- Whatever works today
- Mindfully winging it
- Trial and error
- Doing my best
- Take no prisoners
- Intelligent, intense, inspirational (don't you love alliteration?)
- Laugh, cry, pray
- Positive, patient, happy (who is this saint?)
- Not always graceful
- Is this right?
- Stop, don't panic
- Take deep breaths
- Trust gut instincts (I love this one)
- Laugh at everything!

By: Pat Meierhenry

Cross my fingers
Flexible, friendly, accountable
Fun but firm
Always love first
When I look back on those years, I wonder where I got the energy, and I marvel at the stories of grandparents who are raising grandkids. One of the stocking gifts we received at Christmas is a Grandmas and Grandpas calendar.

I don't do well with these, because I'm usually several days behind. But there are some gems in this thing.

For instance, for St. Patrick's Day, there is an Irish proverb that says you've got to do your own growing, no matter how tall your grandfather was.

This Sunday, April 3, is Mothering Sunday in the UK and Ireland. The founder of The Foundation for Grandparenting states:

"Considering the state of our world, environmentally, culturally, philosophically . . . ad infinitum, it is more imperative than ever that grandparents do not sit idly by, but rather apply their wisdom, experience and life perspective to change the world for the better."

Of course, in the Pickles column in the funnies, we have Earl Pickles expounding on his wisdom to grandson Nelson, and grandma Opal putting her own spin on it. I do hope you have access to Pickles; it's one of the best strips there is, next to Funky Winkerbean and Baby Blues and Zits!

If you don't have access, I guess you are just going to have to make do. But your parents out there, know that this, too, shall pass!

Pruning workshop, nitrogen calculator are discussed

There will be a tree pruning workshop at the Haskell Ag Lab near Concord on Thursday, April 7 at 3 p.m.

Those attending will learn how to properly prune shade and fruit trees for optimum growth and tree health. There will also be a discussion of what new varieties of trees to plant and updates on the new tree pests; pine wilt which is already killing Scots pine trees in the area, and emerald ash borer which is still a ways away.

With increasing nitrogen prices, farmers can determine the most profitable nitrogen rates using several free tools available to the public.

The most accurate recommendations are made when farmers

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi

have a soil organic matter test and soil nitrate test conducted for their fields. Based on these values, their yield expectation, how much they expect to get per bushel and the price of nitrogen fertilizer, they can calculate the amount of nitrogen fertilizer needed for corn and make economical adjustments in just six easy steps using UNL Extension's Corn Nitrogen Rate Slide Rule.

The slide rule is funded by the Nebraska Corn Board and available to farmers free. This slide rule updates the original version by including an adjustment for economic conditions. It is a simple way to calculate nitrogen rates for those without access to a computer.

The price of corn and nitrogen fluctuate, and depending on how an individual buys and markets their inputs and grain, the economic adjustments personalize the nitrogen recommendation. This tool is useful for farmers who want to adjust their rates based on current conditions. With the slide rule, farmers can calculate the adjustment based on the ratio between the prices of corn and nitrogen.

There are several other adjustments that the calculator does not consider, and these can be added after the rate is determined. They are a timing factor, irrigation water nitrates, previous crop credits and manure nitrogen availability.

To obtain a slide rule, send a self-addressed envelope with postage for two ounces to Charles Shapiro at the Haskell Agricultural Laboratory in Concord, or order one from a local UNL Extension office. The spreadsheet calculator also is available for download at soilfertility.unl.edu. Just click on Corn Nitrogen Recommendations Calculator.

Heat-damaged hay reduces nutrition for cattle

Piles of ground hay that have been lying around heating and steaming aren't good for cattle's nutrition. Producers should know what happens when hay heats and steams and how to prevent it.

When producers grind hay, those piles sometimes can begin to steam. Some piles heat so severely that they become black in the center. When this happens, it is caused by a chemical reaction between protein and sugars in the hay that forms a compound acting like lignin, making it indigestible for livestock. Fiber in the hay loses some digestibility when this happens, too. Consequently, the heat-damage reduces the amount of protein and energy in the hay that can be used.

Heat produced from microbial activity, which is activity stimulated when extra oxygen and moisture are available in the hay, causes this reaction. The reaction can also happen when hay is baled too wet in the summer. Since snow or rain has moistened the hay and the grinding process traps air inside the hay piles, this can be happening in freshly ground hay now.

Hay can seem to be more acceptable and tasty after it has been heated because the chemical reaction produces a sweet, caramelized odor and flavor cattle like. However, producers shouldn't be fooled. Think of the cattle as children with candy. Just because the candy tastes good and they will eat it doesn't mean they get the nutrition they need from it. To avoid these problems with hay, producers should either not grind hay, only grind very dry hay or grind small amounts at a time.
