Area schools prepared for state aid reductions

Maynenews .com

BY MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The Boy Scouts' motto is "Be Prepared."

Area school superintendents have certainly followed that mantra in looking at their future budgets, especially as legislation is making its way through the Nebraska Unicameral that will reduce the amount of state aid being given to public schools in the state.

All five schools in the Herald coverage area will see significant decreases in the amount of aid they receive next fiscal year, compared to the current 2010-11 fiscal year. In some cases, the reduction in aid amounts to almost three-fourths of what they now receive.

Wayne Public schools will take an estimated $682,000 cut in aid next fiscal year, a number that could go higher that the current model that was released by the state last week.

Lenihan said the district has already made some cuts, thanks to absorbing positions after retirement of some employees. He said the district was prepared for the coming cuts.

"We knew the stimulus money was going away, which was about $260,000 for us, and there is another $180,000 in education job money that we have available, so when you factor that in, we have to replace about $240,000,' he said.

Lenihan said the district has put itself in position to better absorb the cuts.

"We've actually done most of our reductions already

AREA SCHOOLS LOSING STATE AID

Initial estimates of reduction in state aid for area school districts for fiscal year 2011-12 are as follows:

District	Amount Expected	Difference
Wayne	$1,242,025.79	($682,266.29)
Wakefield	$1,797,342.14	($183,909.11)
Winside	$176,777.42	($326,522.18)
Laurel-Concord	$47,765.76	($123,787.58)

and taken some proactive positions, so it's not going to cause a major impact," he said. "We can make cuts that don't affect programs or staff, so we can keep the cuts as far away from the classroom as possible.'

The same can't be said for some other districts in the area, including Winside, which is losing more than $326,000 of the $503,299.60 it received last fiscal year.

The loss of state aid will make school officials look closely at the entire district and what it can offer to students, according to superintendent Jeff Messersmith.

"It will certainly impact our school greatly," he said, "Any time you lose almost 10 percent of your budget, See REDUCTION, Page 4A impact on the students and staff at the school.

This was the general message Wavne Community Schools superintendent Mark Lenihan told the Board of Education at Monday's meeting.

Lenihan said that, for a number of reasons, the district will be somewhat less impacted by the cuts in funding.

He noted that $258,000 of the reduction is in stimulus funding the district received in past years, and that amount was used for technology purchases that have now been tenance/equipment costs and working with staffing to find the most efficient and effective way to utilize district employees.

Lenihan told the board that there will be an effort to tap into the district's cash reserves, although as little as possible.

All numbers presented at the board meeting are estimates, as the exact numbers will not be completed by the state legislature prior to July "Until we have hard numbers, it will be difficult to make decisions," said Board member Rod Garwood.

Superintendent Lenihan presented an updated school calendar for the 2011-2012 school year.

An additional week has been added to the calendar, resulting in the last day of school being May 25, 2012. Lenihan said that with the likelihood of snow days, the additional days are necessary.

Suspended officers' hearings are set

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Two suspended members of the Wayne Police Department will finally get a chance to tell their side of the story.

Attorneys for Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear contacted Wayne city administrator Lowell Johnson to request a Loudermill hearing. Shear will meet with Johnson on Friday, while Webster is scheduled to meet with him the following Friday, April 21.

A Loudermill hearing is required for a

Prior to the hearing, the employee must be given a Loudermill letter with a specific written notice of the charges and an explanation of the employer's evidence so that the employee can provide a meaningful response and an opportunity to correct factual mistakes in the investigation and address the type of discipline being considered.

Once the hearings are done, there is no government employee prior to imposing set time frame for Johnson to announce a decision. Once that decision is announced, however, the suspended officers will have to their liking. If that appeal is filed, a public hearing with the Wayne Civil Service Commission would need to be held within 10-20 days of the appeal.

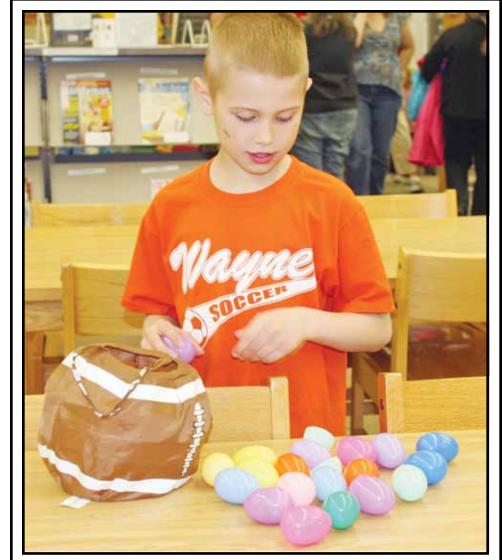

> Webster and Shear were suspended Feb. 17 by Johnson for a variety of allegations, including creating and tolerating a hostile environment within the department, inappropriate conduct and unauthorized use of city-issued equipment.

Careage resident prepared to celebrate 105th birthday

Pearl Wright has celebrated lots of birthdays – 104 to be exact – and on Wednesday, April 20 she will celebrate another, her 105th.

4A

Pearl has no secret to living this long and said, "I didn't plan on living this long. No one else in my family lived to be this age."

Pearl was born in Pacific Junction, Iowa on April 20, 1906. Her family had moved there from Kansas. Pearl was the youngest of seven children. She had two sisters and four brothers.

"I remember that people then traveled with horses, buggies and wagons. There was no electricity on the farm. We heated our house with coal," Pearl said.

After attending country school, Pearl graduated from Pacific Junction High School in 1926. She married Paul Wright when she was 18 years old and the couple farmed near Pacific Junction.

Pearl and Paul moved to Wayne in 1967. Paul was a janitor for the Wayne schools. Paul died in 1987. She later moved to Wakefield and in 2009 Pearl became a resident of Premier Estates (now Careage of Wayne.) Shortly after that her family members gathered for a six generation photo.

Although she is somewhat limited in her ability to get around and take part in activities at Careage, Pearl says she remembers playing checkers and Scrabble. When she was younger she liked to read, play the piano and enjoyed raising a big Athletic Director Rocky Ruhl spoke on several athletic issues, including the athletic banquet, which has been rescheduled to Wednesday, May 18, and the possibility of dividing Class C schools into three categories, rather than the current two.

Superintendent Lenihan told the board members that he is looking into options for a second boiler at Wayne Elementary School, as well as a water heater that needs to be replaced. With the building being used by students for only one more year, the possibility of a used boiler is being investigated.

The Wayne Community School Board of Education will next meet in regular session on Monday, May 9 at 5 p.m. in the High School.

Martoz family gives to Winside

VerNeal Marotz of Winside recently provided a gift to his local community in an effort to give back. Winside Public School is one of 53 organizations being presented with a grant from Fontanelle Hybrids Stalkholder dealers, including Marotz. The focus of these special grants is to fund projects and programs that will benefit entire communities. Winside Public School received a F.O.C.U.S. grant for a new activity sign. that's a significant impact to what we have to ask of our local property owners."

Earlier this winter, Winside voters approved a levy override that will allow the district to go over its limit if it is needed. Messersmith said the district will be frugal in dipping into that extra levy, and will take a hard look at everything the district offers.

"We'll be very frugal with how we go about things," he said. "We need to look at every program and make sure we'll be able to maintain things. At the same time, it's a substantial amount of money, and to make that up will take some significant budget review.'

Messersmith said the district plans to keep its programs in place.

"The board and the public have clearly told me they want to keep the programs we have as strong as we possibly can keep them, and we intend to try and keep everything we have for our kids.'

the Legislature indicates that they want local districts to foot more of the bill for the cost of education.

"With valuations going up and state aid dropping, the way it looks to me, the Legislature is telling us that the local economy should maintain their share of the school system," he said. "I think we'll be OK, but it will be more of a local superintendent Rich Patton said burden."

superintendent Wakefield Clayton Waddle said his district is losing almost $184,000, a number he said is actually lower than first expected.

"We actually predicted our total state aid loss at somewhere between $200,000 and $400,000, and if you look at just the state portion of this, we'll actually have an increase."

Waddle said the district's recent addition of a preschool program helped the district, and the district's proactive approach in budgeting for the future should help them avoid any major budget problems.

Waddle was critical of Gov. Dave Heineman, who he said is downplaying the perceived reduction in state aid to public schools.

"The governor has said there is not a reduction in state aid, and he's completely wrong," he said. "Any time you go from $950 million to $810 million, that's a reduction. He said that the current mood in The education committee came out with a little more than the governor wants to give us, but the governor has said over and over that there is no reduction, and that's not helpful." Laurel-Concord will lose more than 60 percent of its state aid from the previous year, according to the numbers released by the state.

While that number seems high, aid for fiscal year 2011-12.

the district already took a $363,000 cut the previous fiscal year, so a lot of the painful cuts that had to be made were made for this school year, he said.

"We RIF'd 2 1/2 instructional positions and 1 1/2 classified positions last year, and made some other cuts as well," he said. "The very difficult things were done last year, so our budget isn't in as dire a condition as it may be in some other districts.

"Last year was very difficult, but we did what we needed to and were able to make the cuts without losing services to students," he added.

Patton said he wasn't too concerned about the latest numbers, adding that his district has already lost most of its state funding already.

"Laurel-Concord is getting very close to the point where we won't receive very much state aid at all, so we're not really counting on getting much next year," he said. "They really can't take too much more away from us."

Coleridge, which co-ops with Laurel-Concord, will gain $412.77.

Allen is also expected to lose funding in the next fiscal year, taking around a $35,000 cut in state

Golf team gets big lift for regionals

A few points to ponder while Mother Nature tries to figure out whether or not winter is over yet:

- Congratulations to coach Troy Harder and the Wayne State men's golf team for a runner-up finish in last week's NSIC tournament. It's the best finish in team history, and it came with a rather nice bonus, as Adam Fields was the tournament medalist, the first time a Wildcat has taken home the conference equivalent of the green jacket (I believe it was either a bright yellow baseball cap with the NSIC logo on the front or a gift certificate to the seafood buffet at the Golden Corral in Sioux Falls), and it's a big lift for the team as they try to qualify for regionals next month.

– The Office of Civil Rights have come and gone from the campus of Wayne State College as they investigate a Title IX compliance complaint. The good news is that, for the moment, the athletic department is conducting business as usual while looking to address the issues that they will face when the OCR comes to its conclusions.

I'm very interested to see what kind of recommendations are made. Even if the college adds two women's sports (tennis and rugby are the best bets), I'm not sure the studentathlete population ratio is going to match, to the OCR's satisfaction, the general enrollment of the school from a gender perspective.

The addition of sports and the ongoing effort to provide equal opportunities for student-athletes of both genders would satisfy two of the three requirements of Title IX, which ought to be enough to make things OK. If not, then it might come to pass that one (or more) for the Wayne State men's golf Troy Harder said. "Coming in, team, as they posted their best-ever our goal was at least to get third, finish and recorded the first-ever because we were only behind the overall medalist in the Northern third-place team by two shots.'

The Wildcats rocketed up to the runner-up slot with three rounds in the 290's to finish behind champion The Wildcats shot a final-round Minnesota State.

"We were the only team to shoot runner-up honors. They finished 21 in the 290's all three rounds in the spring segment, so it was pretty the NSIC all-tournament team impressive for them to do that," he said.

Senior Adam Fields became the first player in school history to capture a NSIC individual golf title, firing an even-par 71 in Sunday's final round to finish the 90-hole tournament at 356. He finished "I thought it was an awesome four strokes ahead of second place performance, especially considering Kyle Bahe of Minnesota State, who we were down 24 strokes coming shot a 360. Fields was also selected

It was a record-setting weekend into the last three rounds," coach one of five players to the NSIC alltournament team.

"Adam has been a solid player for me for four years, and he's a big part of our success," Harder said. "I can't say enough about him winning conference, and I hope he can help us get to regionals for the first time ever. He's probably one of the best to have gone through Wayne State."

Joining Fields as a member of was senior Jake Hirz, who shot a one-over par 72 Sunday to finish at 373, tied for third overall with Jon Anderson of Upper Iowa.

"Jake really showed up and showed what he could do, and I was very impressed with that," Harder said. "We had five players contribute in this thing, and that's always good to score four and know you have a fifth that can contribute."

"We had a pretty good day," Bears coach Terry Beair said. "We had a lot of kids get some personal bests and competed very well, and we saw some kids get some marks that would be automatic qualifiers for state if they can hit that at districts, so it was a pretty good day."

male sports might have to cut back the size of their rosters.

I'm just thinking out loud here, but football and baseball, because of their numbers, would be the most likely targets (and good luck convincing Dan McLaughlin and Brian Disch that they can field a competitive team with smaller numbers than what they already work with). I would be shocked if athletic director Eric Schoh cuts a program – none of the male sports would impact those numbers by their removal (except for football and if you think the folks in Omaha got fired up about losing the football team at UNO, just watch this town go nuts).

– I realize this is the first season of spring baseball at Wayne High. However, Tuesday's performance at Pender was disappointing, even by first-year team standards.

Nine errors? Wow – talk about a rough night at the office. For as well as Brady Soden pitched in a losing effort, he deserved a better fate than the one dealt him . . . the defense playing behind him was about as dependable as a FEMA staffer during hurricane season.

Now if this was a bunch of firstyear players who have never picked up a bat and glove before, we could pass this off as first-year hiccups. But I've seen this group play ball before, and I have a pretty good idea what these kids are capable of doing. The majority of these kids played in an American Legion state tournament last year, so it's not like we've got a bunch of left-handed fielders playing with right-handed gloves.

I've seen teams with less talent bounce back from disasters like this and finish strong. I know co-coaches Kevin Finkey and Jeff Zeiss are frustrated with the effort, and I'm optimistic these guys are going to bounce back and play at a level they are capable of playing.

-Is it me, or has winter overstayed its welcome?

Tuesday, April 12, was by far the best day of the spring so far. By Saturday, the weatherman says we're supposed to have snow and temperatures near 40. That's beautiful weather for a Nebraska vs. Iowa football game in late November – not so much for the Spring Game in mid-April.

Wayne High pitcher Brady Soden fires one home during the first inning of Tuesday's 7-2 loss to Pender, the Blue Devils' fifth straight defeat after a 2-0 start.

Defense breaks down, baseball team falls to 2-5

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Tuesday was the kind of comedy that didn't tickle a lot of funny bones among the Wayne High faithful.

The Blue Devil baseball team capped a frustrating week's worth of baseball by committing a comedy of errors in a 7-2 loss to Pender Tuesday evening in Pender. The Wayne defense committed more errors (nine) than the two teams combined for hits (seven) as the Pendragons scored six unearned runs to avenge an earlier 5-4 loss at Wayne less than three weeks ago.

The defensive miscues tarnished otherwise-solid an pitching performance by Brady Soden, who scattered three hits and two walks while striking out four in an 83-pitch, five-inning effort.

"He was delivering the pitches to give us some ground balls, and we had some uncharacteristic errors from some veteran kids who don't normally make those errors," cocoach Kevin Finkey said after his team's fifth straight loss following a 2-0 start. "It wasn't typical of what we do and it's frustrating, because it's not what we've seen in practice." Pender scored an unearned run in the first inning when Levi Beutler, who reached on a two-out error, scored on a passed ball. They added another run in the fourth when a throwing error brought Caleb Hansen home after he reached on a wild pitch after a dropped third strike.

The bottom fell out on the Wayne defense in the fifth, when three errors led to three unearned runs for the home team. Wayne committed at least one fielding error in every a single and pinch-hitter Jordan inning, and only one of Pender's runs were earned.

League game, and some of them were just so costly," Finkey said. We'd get two quick outs and it looks by Gage Rethwisch was snared like we're getting out of the inning, on a diving catch by Josh Wegner, and then the errors start and they multiply on us. We know what the kids are capable of, and it's easy to get frustrated and down and we just need to come out of that."

Wayne avoided the shutout in the seventh when Pender started making some mistakes of their own. Mason Wren came on as a pinch-hitter and drew a one-out walk. Alex Onnen followed with Backer walked to load the bases. A wild pitch brought Wren home, and "Nine errors is like a Little Onnen came home on an error to give Wayne a little bit of life. The rally ended when a looping fly ball sending Wayne to its fifth straight

As bad as the defense struggled, the offense didn't help the cause out, either. Pender pitcher Jalen Flock struck out 12 and walked four while allowing just three hits in the complete-game win. He got out of a two-on, one-out situation in the first and allowed only four other baserunners in the second through sixth innings.

"Ross has brought a lot of excitement, he has an outgoing personality, and he fit well with the team," said Wayne State track coach Marlon Brink.

The Wakefield girls were sixth. while a partial lineup of LCC boys finished ninth. Allen's boys finished in the middle of the 12-team pack, while the Lady Eagles were 11th.

Senior Katie Jacobsen had a big day for the Lady Bears, winning three events and running well against some top area runners in the 400-meter dash and as the anchor of the 1,600-meter relay.

"Katie hit another home run for us," coach Terry Beair said. "She ran a 60 (seconds) in the open 400, and we kind of approached that as a sprint workout to help her get ready for state. We wanted to put her in there with Keri Lunz from Wakefield and see how she would do and she came through there. She also caught the Dahl girl from Homer from about 20 meters back on the anchor leg in the four-by-four and edged her at the tape."

The 1,600-meter relay of Jacobsen, Ashley Lunz, Sami Camenzind and Kelsey Dietrich edged out the host Lady Knights foursome, led by Karlie Dahl, one of the top runners in the area, by three-tenths of a second.

Lunz also medaled in the 100 and 200, and Beair was happy to see the senior compete alongside Lunz of Wakefield and Dahl.

"Ashley was right in there with those two, and I thought she competed very well," Beair said.

On the boys' side, the Bears had half of their team gone for other events, but were led by sprinter Mitch Heikes, who was third in both the 100 and 200 and anchored the third-place 400-meter relay team.

Wakefield got some solid performances on the track from Lunz and Jon Bodlak, who won the 1,600-meter run and also medaled in the 3,200.

"Josh broke five minutes for the second time (in the 1,600) and he's sitting pretty good right now in the district," coach Mike Hassler said. Wakefield also scored well in the field events, as Anthony Gustafson finished fourth in the high jump and Valadez and Jose Calderon posted a 3-4 finish in the long jump.

Robinson inks with Mount Marty

Wayne High senior Elisa Robinson has signed a letter of intent to play volleyball at Mount Marty next season. Robinson was a key player in the middle for coach Joyce Hoskins during her senior season on the Wayne High volleyball team. After missing part of the season due to a broken finger, she bounced back to have a solid campaign and help the Blue Devils to a third-place finish in the Mid-State Conference and a 21-11 season. Robinson said she is undecided on her major. She is pictured with her parents, Jerry and Kris Robinson (seated), Mount Marty coach Candice Climer and Wayne High coach Joyce Hoskins.

"That was really good to see," Beair said. "We weren't sure how she was going to respond after being out with a broken wrist, but she jumped pretty well for her first meet of the season."

Amy Pritchard had runner-up finishes in the triple jump and long jump, and her triple jump effort of 35 feet would be good enough as an automatic qualifier if she reaches that mark at districts next month, Beair said.

The LCC boys finished third and got first-place efforts from Trevor Hefner in the shot put and Mitch Heikes in the 100-meter dash.

"Mitch ran really well for us, and it was good to see Trevor medal in both the shot and the discus," Beair said.

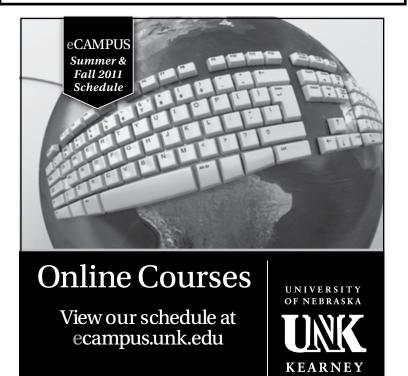

The Wayne high track teams brought some of their younger athletes to the meet, as coach Dale Hochstein opted to rest some of the varsity competitors and prepare them for Thursday's Elkhorn Invitational, but he felt those kids who did compete performed well.

"We ran a lot of our young athletes today, and I thought we competed well," he said. "Looking at the seeding times and where they finished, I thought both the boys and the girls did a nice job improving."

sophomore Nazya Thies, who was third in the triple jump and fifth in the high jump and 200; and John Hansen, who medaled in the 1,600 and 3,200.

"John and Nazya both had good days for us, and Jayd Roberts came out and performed well also," coach Mark Tonniges said. "Nazya jumped really well and had a good time in the 200. It's a different track from what we're used to, but it's a good track and the kids ran well."

The aliens have landed – in Iran

Because there is far too much most kids before the age of 13 insanity in the world – here's a have seen pornography online and much-needed purging of the "Bits not just a still image – moving and Pieces" file to make you realize pictures," he said. "And if you're you're the only sane one left:

- From the "Aliens have landed" department: According to a release from the Iranian news service, the Islamic Republic has built a flying saucer.

Called "Zohal" (a Persian word meaning either "Saturn" or "Nutjob"), the spaceship is designed for aerial imaging and can fly either indoors or outdoors. It is run by auto-pilot, has GPS and two separate imaging systems.

Some Western news services are skeptical, but I'm a believer – Mahmoud Ahmadinejad looks like he's from outer space. One look at those beady eyes tells all.

- From the "And on the eighth day, He created divorce lawyers" department: According to an Oxford scholar, God did not live alone.

That's right, folks – Francesca Stavrakopoulou, a senior lecturer in the department of theology and religion at the University of Exeter, has created a documentary series that theorizes that God once had a wife. Inscription on pottery dating back to the eighth century B.C., found in the Sinai desert, asks for a blessing from 'Yahweh (God) and his Asherah.'

Although this Asherah is not referenced directly in the Bible, there are references to her that would indicate, according to the author, that God did not act alone.

This only seems to make sense – I got a lot more done at home when I $\;$ being that those girls actually work was married than I have since I've a 9- or 10-year-old, and your first encounter with sexuality is some kind of pornography online, then that's definitely a loss of innocence.'

- And while we're on the subject of sex: Taylor Swift told a British newspaper that she will not be doing any nude spreads, now or ever.

Say what? A young, beautiful, blonde in the entertainment world who is saying no to the "sex sells" mantra? What is this world coming to? The next thing you know, decency and chaste behavior will become the norm, and then what kind of chaos will we have?

- So the governor of Nebraska is worried about the salaries being pulled down by school superintendents.

In a recent Omaha World-Herald interview, the leader of our state said superintendents' salaries should be tied to the academic performance of their school districts. The comments came after an investigative study by the newspaper found the leader of Omaha Public Schools makes an astounding $413,607 annually.

I think we should take it a step further and require EVERY individual working on the taxpayers' dime to be paid based on their performance. If we did that, based on Heineman's performance, his salary would be less than one of the college girls tending bar at The Max – the only difference, of course, to earn their pay.

Capitol View Leeway in drawing boundaries

LINCOLN - Not all of you are reading it here first, but if the Legislature's upcoming redistricting efforts devolve into an urban v. rural territorial fight, keep in mind something Sen. Ken Schilz of Ogallala said not too long ago.

"It is my goal to maintain as many rural districts as possible. I know many of you may have heard that we will lose at least two western districts. This is not a given. I have worked alongside many helpful individuals that understand the process and we have been able to redistrict, using current estimates, without losing two western districts."

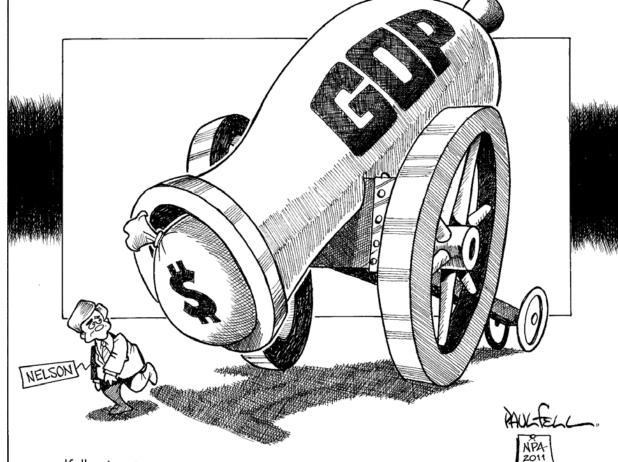

Schilz offered those thoughts to constituents via his website in February. And if the Legislature's redistricting plan eventually ends up in a courtroom dispute, as sometimes happens, the Schilz comment might well be marked as an exhibit.

The U.S. Supreme Court has given states a lot of leeway in drawing boundaries for state legislative and congressional districts.

political Outright Gerrymandering is okay, so long Douglas, Sarpy and Lancaster the schools with $32 million more conservative supporters are willing as a few rules are observed. For example: breaking up a district in order to dilute the voting power of a minority group might still raise a red flag.

The business of carving up legislative districts solely to keep a number of them "rural" or "urban" can also be problematic. Overpopulating some districts and under-populating others, without regard to a variety of judicial guidelines, can mean trouble.

Walton recently offered a thought worth considering on the matter of urban v. rural.

Counties could have as many as 25 of the Legislature's 49 seats. Should rural interests shake with fear and loathing? As Walton put it:

"Rural senators should take some comfort in asking this question: might do with it. How often do Omaha, Lincoln and Sarpy County senators agree?"

It is fair for legislators to say they are confronted these days with tough decisions. It's true enough. What is also true is that, while ultimately the people you elected insiders, in Washington and to local offices who have to live with them and shape programs and policies around them.

groups, such as the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), have proposed limits on these activities in other states. Opponents say the legislation is not needed because it is unlikely any group could gain restrictions on hunting, fishing, and trapping in a state like Nebraska. No votes have been taken on LR40-CA, but at this time, I do plan on supporting this constitutional amendment. If we can succeed at passing LR40-CA and LB305 (the meat inspection bill), it will give us a united front of ag producers and sportsmen to stand against encroachment from HSUS.

State aid for schools was another topic debated by state senators. Sen. Greg Adams of York, chairperson the Education Committee. of prioritized LB235, the bill that makes several changes to the state aid formula. The formula is used to determine the total amount of state aid available to schools as well as the amount given to individual school districts. State aid is approximately one-fourth of the total state budget.

The state aid formula itself is difficult to understand. Generally speaking, the formula determines the needs of the 251 public school districts minus their resources. Larger schools receive a higher percentage of the state aid than smaller schools. Many rural schools do not receive any state aid for Legislative Update By Dave Bloomfield State Senator, District 17 schools because of higher property valuations producing more property tax revenue. This year, schools received $950 million in state aid. LB235 reduced the current state aid formula to equal $822 million in aid next year. In 2013, the school aid would equal $880 million. LB235 advanced to Select File on a vote of 41-0, and I did vote in support of this bill. Many senators (including me) really don't like this system, but it is what we have for now. It could make it more palatable.

LB682 is another priority bill that was debated last week. This bill, introduced by Sen. Heath Mello of Omaha, would allow the City of Omaha to recapture millions of dollars in sales taxes over the next number of years. This money would be new sales tax revenue that will come into the state because of a federally mandated $1.7 billion sewer separation project.

LB682 allows Omaha to collect these state sales taxes plus city sales taxes earned on this project, and requires them to spend this money only on the sewer project. The city of Plattsmouth will also be eligible to receive some returned sales tax money under this bill. Omaha is not eligible to qualify for federal help to build this new sewer system

Senators are looking for ways to amend the bill so that other Nebraska towns and cities may qualify for a similar sales tax return in the future. I did not vote on this bill when it advanced to Select File on a vote of 25-17. I do not like the "turn back" tax idea, but when a city is hit with 1.7 billion dollars worth of unfunded mandates by the federal government, they do need to come up with some way to pay for it. I don't know where I will go on this issue. Amendments to the bill can be economical and fun. Seed packets and seed catalogues provide information to help you have a successful garden. The helpful parts on the packet back include: seed count, plant height, light, when to sow, planting depth, plant spacing, and days to maturity.

Seed Count

Knowing how many seeds are in a package helps greatly when ordering and planning a garden. It helps to know that 1M means 1,000 seeds. However, since the seeds of different plant types and cultivars often differ in size and weight, the number of seeds per package will vary.

Plant Height

Seed packets often include the mature plant height and width, which is usually also the size when it first blooms. Generally, plants are spaced in the garden at their mature width so that the edges of the plants just touch or overlap slightly when mature.

Light

On small packets of seed, and especially on flower seed packets, the light requirement is indicated. Full sun means at least six hours of direct sun per day. Partial sun means four hours of direct sun per day. Morning sun and afternoon shade are best in our intense summer heat, especially for flowers plants native to a milder climate.

When to Sow

The seed package will indicate when to sow the seeds for the best results, including the days from seeding to germination and from germination to when the plants the Seed Packet - G1953.

"These heros did it for you. They placed the desks here. Now it's up to you to sit in them, your responsibility to learn, to be good students and to be good citizens. The veterans paid the price so you could have the freedom to get an education and don't ever forget it," she said.

St. Mary's to undertake upgrade project

The current carpet in St. Mary's Catholic Church is original to when the church was built in 1968-1969. In addition, the church pews are also in need of repairs. "The carpet has served its purpose well but is showing wear and tear. This is an obvious need for our church," said Fr. Mark Beran, pastor of the church.

The church's facilities and maintenance committee, along with a flooring committee, has worked hard to look at options for replacing the carpet as well as look at other projects that need to be done.

It has been determined that the carpet will be replaced, pews refinished and the church painted this summer. In addition, a number of furnishings in the church will be replaced.

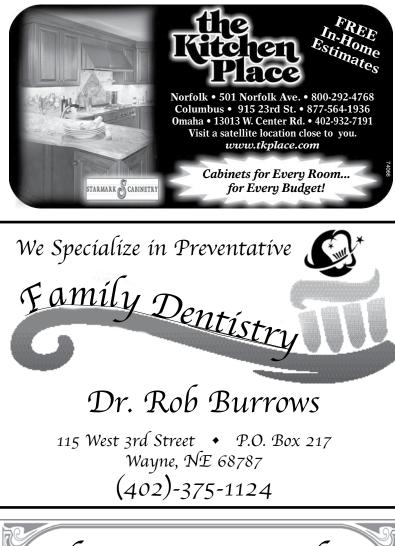

It is estimated that the total cost for the project is $75,000 and a campaign is currently underway to raise these funds. The goal is to raise the necessary funds by June 1, 2011.

version of "March Madness", competing in four 4-H shooting matches in four weeks in preparation for the Nebraska 4-H State BB Gun and Air Rifle Competition at Seward.

Each match consisted of three events. The first event for ages 8-15 was BB Gun. A BB gun match entails shooting 10 shots for score in prone, standing, sitting and kneeling positions in 10 minutes. A perfect score in BB Gun is 400. The second event is sporter Air Rifle. Sporter Air Rifle consists of 10 shots for score in prone, standing and kneeling for a total possible score of 300. Sporter air rifle is open to all competitors ages 8-18.

The last event which is open to all ages is the Precision Air Rifle class. Precision Air Rifle shoots 40 shots all standing. The two differences between Sporter and Precision classes are sporter shoots positions and has limited equipment, where as Precision air rifle shoots all standing and has unlimited equipment similar to the equipment used Olympic competitions.

Roadside cleanup

Twenty three members of the Blue Ribbon Winners 4-H group, helped with the road side clean up April 10. The group cleans three miles of the road ditches from the 3 mile corner south of Carroll to two miles south towards Winside. The group does this in the spring and the fall for their community service. The members of this group are from Carroll, Hoskins and Winside areas.

Time to enjoy spring (

Well! Spring is here, I guess! Last Saturday, in fact, I swore it was summer: temperature almost 90, humidity almost matching, wind blowing; good ol' Nebraska. But it has simmered down since then.

Of course, it scared up some storms first; my cousin in Lakeview, Iowa, is just 30 miles from the tornado damage, and his grandson was one of the EMS guys on duty all Saturday night. What we did not hear on Omaha TV, and you probably did from Sioux City, was about all the farmsteads that were hit, with hundreds of dead pigs and turkeys. Of course, it's still a miracle that there was no loss of life, but tons of other losses were incurred.

When Don and Marilyn Leighton moved to Winside, early in the 70s, they brought along four little girls. We watched those girls grow up. Kerri was in Kay's class and Kathy was in Ann's. Kim, the oldest, played trombone next to Jon in band for a couple of years. She went on to nursing at the Med Center in Omaha; I remember attending her graduation at the Civic Auditorium.

Then, she was a traveling nurse, and she worked in the East, and she worked for an insurance company, and finally, she was employed by the company that makes computer-aided mannequins for training health professionals. I was fascinated by a presentation she made at a luncheon at Bryan College of Nursing a few years ago with a simulator named Stan. Stan could be programmed to react to different scenarios, and was being used by student nurses. He was a long way from Mary Chase, the adult-sized doll we practiced on 50 years ago! The day Sue got her Master's at the Devaney center a few years ago, Kim received a doctorate in nursing! She marched in just a few people ahead of Sue; who would have thought? And now, she is part of the faculty at the BryanLGH College of Health Sciences.

Last year, Bryan cooperated with Southeast Community College and the UNMC campus in Lincoln to pool their mannequins in a central place; and that central location is on the west campus, which we still call Lincoln General. What a practical idea!

Last week, a bunch of Bryan and LGH alumni got a tour of what is called the Sim Lab. There is a lady like Stan who can go into heart failure, throw erratic heart rhythms, and even go into cardiac arrest. There is a mother with a baby in utero, and a couple of pediatric dolls. All are computer activated, and the faculty can improvise all kinds of dilemmas to test the students. Local paramedics also use the lab. It is an amazing place, and quite a useful one. I know I would much rather have practiced on something like this than on my classmate, or on a live patient.

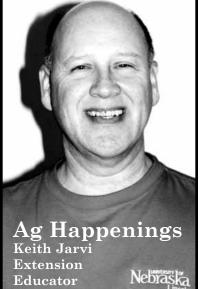

And Dr. Leighton led the tours; what a treat to have her. One of the other faculty is Renee Puls Schneider, one of our former babysitters. It makes this old nurse very proud. And it makes me realize just how far technology has come. The old CPR mannequins look rather outdated, also; even the ones that spit out a strip from their sides. Of course, none of these guys come cheap; that's why the colleges are sharing. I wish more health care entities would take a lesson. And, if you have a few spare bucks, Faith Regional Center in Norfolk is hoping to buy one. They have the room all ready; they just don't have it in the budget yet. I bet they would even name it after you, if you wanted to help purchase one.

Meanwhile, make sure your storm shelter is stocked, and keep a sharp eye on the weather; it's that time of year again. Stay safe!

Thoughts turn to planting

Well, time flies and the snow melts and with warmer weather our thoughts turn to planting, whether it's our lawns, trees, or crops.

Over the last 15-20 years, our crop planting dates have moved up considerably, and this has helped give us improved yields and more time to put the crop in the ground. Whether you believe in global warming or not, UNL research has shown that soil temperatures have not to plant into wet soil.

Planting depth is critical; the corn should be planted no shallower than two inches deep. When it is cool and wet some growers think that planting shallower than two inches will help germinate the corn faster. It might, but the resulting shallow root system will really cause problems later on, especially if later season growing conditions are less than ideal. Adjust your planning depth and seed spacing for best results. For do-it-yourself homeowners anxious to do something to your lawns, stick to mowing this first couple of weeks. Most pre-emergence herbicides for crabgrass are combined with fertilizer and this is best applied between April 20 and May 5. In northeast Nebraska the later date is preferred. Last year brought more than the usual amount of crabgrass in lawns. This was due to a combination of too early (prior to late April) herbicide application and wet, rainv weather causing more rapid degradation of herbicides. If crabgrass was an issue last year, wait until May 1 or slightly later to apply crabgrass herbicides. or consider making a second application six to eight weeks later if the first application is made before April 20 and we have another rainy May and June. This is more expensive and increases the amount of pesticide placed into the environment, but it is an options for lawn fanatics.

Food Processing Center schedules entrepreneurial summer seminars

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Food Processing Center offers a nationally recognized and unique program to help potential entrepreneurs start a food business.

Marcia Vodehnal of Burwell recently completed the Food Entrepreneur Assistance Program and started Country Neighbor Foods. Her first product, Country Sweet Onion Dressing, can be found in over 100 Nebraska stores.

"The University of Nebraska Food Processing Center gave me the information and tools to make my product a reality. They answered all my questions and guided me through any obstacles I might have had, although there were hardly any," Vodehnal said.

The program begins with a oneday "Recipe to Reality" seminar. The seminar explores all the key issues in deciding to start a food business. Discussion includes business planning, labeling, product development and food safety, promotion, costs and pricing and many more topics.

"The seminar helps participants nderstand the basics of starting

The advantages to growers include a longer growing season, increased vield, and possible lower fall freeze risk for some crops. Corn germinates at 55 degrees Fahrenheit and we now reach this temperature in northeast Nebraska on average during the third week in April (April 14-21). For further information on soil temperatures, including up to date temperatures provided by our automated data collection sites, go to the UNL website cropwatch.unl.edu .

Most area farmers now begin planting in April, and by the time you read this, some corn will already be in the ground if we don't get any rain to slow things down.

Newer corn varieties have been improved to withstand some of the stresses of earlier planting including cooler soil temperatures and air temperatures, and the addition of seed treatments can help protect against early season insects and disease problems.

However, there are two things that can really affect crops that rely on the farmers' decision making. That is when to plant to avoid compaction and planting depth. Patience is thin during planting, but a great deal of potential problems later on in the season can be avoided by planting when soils are in the right condition to avoid compaction. This is a friendly reminder a food company including the challenges they will need to overcome," said Jill Gifford, manager of the program. "This seminar allows attendees to understand and determine if starting a food business is the right choice for their situation."

Following the seminar, participants can choose to enter "Product to Profit." This second phase of the program provides entrepreneurs with confidential and individualized assistance in starting their own food business and bringing their product idea to the market.

"Recipe to Reality" seminars are offered throughout the year. The seminar will be offered this summer on June 3 and Aug. 19. Preregistration is required. To register for an upcoming seminar or to receive an information packet, contact Gifford at: Food Processing Center, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 143 Filley Hall, Lincoln, Neb., 68583-0928; phone (402) 472-2819; e-mail, jgifford1@unl.edu, or check out details on the Web at www.fpc.unl.edu.
