Police officers fired – appeals are set

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The two Wayne police officers who have been under suspension since Thursday, February 17, and both officers are looking forward to publicly stating their case before the Civil Service Commission.

Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear, who had been under suspension since mid-February, were formally terminated by city administrator Lowell Johnson. Both officers received their letters late last week.

A copy of the letter to Shear, obtained by The Herald, shows that Johnson felt no evidence was presented by Shear to refute allegations made by Johnson that led him to suspend Shear and Webster, with pay, on Feb. 17. Webster told the Herald he had also received a letter from Johnson, with the information in his letter mirroring that of Shear's.

The original filing of written accusations against Shear was made with the secretary of the Civil Service Commission on Feb. 17. In the letter, Shear was told he would be provided with a full explanation of the evidence the City had against him and give him an opportunity to rebut the evidence.

On March 7, Johnson turned over a 12-page letter and 44 exhibits explaining the evidence the city had against Shear to Shear and his attorneys. Shear and his attorney met with Johnson last Friday, April 22, where Shear presented his side of the story.

In the letter, Johnson said nothing was presented at the meeting that would change his mind.

"No evidence was presented to me by Police Lieutenant Shear at this meeting, other than oral denials and arguments made by Police Lieutenant Shear's attorney against the claims," Johnson wrote.

"After reviewing the evidence in support of the accusations and considering the oral arguments/denials by Police Lieutenant Shear's attorney, I have decided that the alleged misconduct, charges or grounds for investigation against Police Lieutenant Shear set forth in the written accusations warrant discharge of Police Lieutenant Shear effective today," Johnson concluded.

Both Webster and Shear have filed appeals with City Clerk Betty McGuire. According to City Code Sec. 26-47, a public hearing with the Civil Service Commission – a three-member board consisting of Galen Wiser, Darrel Heier and Marci Thomas – must be held within 10-20 days of the date of filing the appeal. The hearing can be continued beyond the 20-day window if agreed to by both parties.

In an exclusive simultaneous interview with The Wayne Herald, both Shear and Webster said they were not surprised by Johnson's decision to terminate them.

"I was hoping for a different outcome, but I wasn't surprised by the letter," Webster said. "Now it's to the point where we have to have the public hearing, and we shine the light of day on it, the people will see the truth and I'm confident we'll win the civil service hearing."

"He has to take action and I understand that, but it doesn't mean I agree with it or admit to doing anything worthy of discipline," Shear added. "It's a disheartening situation. My wife has a protection order against the ex-employee in this case, and yet here we are losing our jobs based on accusations made by that same person. I find the whole situation to be disheartening and hurtful."

Both officers said they were first notified of their situation back in January, when an expected meeting regarding back pay that had been withheld for both officers by Johnson turned into a meeting where both officers were presented with a severance package if they resigned immediately."

"I was not notified that I was under investigation, other than when (Johnson) asked me to resign and offered a severance package," he said.

"We went into that meeting (in January) thinking we were going to talk about our back pay, and they offered us a severance package. That was a surprise," Webster

Local, state FOP share concerns about administrator

The Wayne Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 54 is standing behind two of its members, who are appealing their terminations in the wake of allegations made by the city administrator.

In a news release given to The Wayne Herald on Monday by Jessica Bolles, a Wayne police officer and secretary of the local FOP, the union is looking forward to a full public disclosure of the evidence used by city administrator Lowell Johnson as justification for terminating Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear late last week. The two were issued termination letters Thursday and Friday, respectively, more than two months after being put on paid suspension by Johnson for a variety of accusations.

Firfighters battle blaze, breeze

Wayne firefighters battled windy conditions late Friday afternoon as they put out a grass fire at the Dale Johnson residence, located eight miles south of Wayne. High winds helped fuel the blaze, but firefighters were able to quickly take care of the situation. A cause of the fire was not known.

Council dislikes state control of street funds

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

The pros and cons of a plan to move STP money from local to state control was discussed during Tuesday's Wayne City Council meeting.

The majority of discussion at the meeting involved a presentation by Joel Hansen, Inspector/Planner/Street Superintendent for the City of Wayne told the council that the federal government is offering a plan that would allow STP money to go through the state and is offering the opportunity for the states to purchase the federal funds at a rate of 80 cents on a dollar.

"The pros of this plan are that it would result in a time saving for projects to be completed. We would not have to go through all the federal requirements. However, the cons of this happening is that the 25 first class cities, who would be affected by this proposal, would lose $2-$2.5 million. Also, the money would become part of the state's budget and could be taken away from us," Hansen said.

Council member Doug Sturm said that the proposal "doesn't make sense. I don't think it will save time and we will lose money. I don't want to leave the money in the hand of the state."

The decision on whether or not the first class cities (those with populations over 5,000) in Nebraska chose this option has been left to the League of Municipalities.

Hansen told the council that when the decision is made it will be "all or none and we can't go back and change our minds later."

Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain received a cap and recognition that the city has been a Tree City USA for 20 years.

Hansen explained the four criteria necessary for a city to become a Tree City and said that fourth-grade students helped plant a tree in the City Orchard near the Community Activity Center on Arbor Day.

Resolution 2011-32 was passed unanimously. It identifies the city's goals, some of which are already being worked on.

Council members approved the payment of $19,443.15 for the Kardell Subdivision Sanitary Sewer Improvements.

No action was taken on the appointment of Sandy Brown to the Recreation-Leisure Services Commission. Council member Kaki Ley, who was absent, requested the item be tabled until a future meeting.

Locals react to death of Osama Bin Laden

Excitement, caution regarding news

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

As television programming was interrupted Sunday evening for an announcement by President Obama that Osama bin Laden, organizer of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks on the United States, had been killed by American forces, citizens began reacting positively to the news.

Past members of the military who have served since the Sept. 11, 2001 attack were asked to comment on the fact that bin Laden was dead.

Adam Endicott, who enlisted in the U.S. Air Force in May of 2000 said he was excited when he heard the news.

"This was exciting for anyone who has served in the military. I am proud of the men and women who are over there," he said.

Endicott was first deployed to Kuwait in December of 2000 and then sent to Pakistan in October of 2001. He was later deployed to Afghanistan in November of 2002 and in August of 2003 sent to Iraq. He served approximately two years of his four-year tour of duty being deployed.

"We can't forget about those who are still over there. We have attained one goal, but still need to be concerned and involved in the war on terrorism," Endicott said. "Until all people are safe, it is important to keep our soldiers in our thoughts and prayers."

Matt Schaub, a teacher and coach at Wayne Middle School was a truck driver for Nebraska National Guard's 189th Transportation Company in Iraq from November 2005 to November 2006.

"I was glad to see Bin Laden was taken out but I think little will change as far as the terrorist threat. I don't like seeing the public celebrations in America over his death that brings similar images of Palestinians and Pakistanis celebrating the carnage and destruction brought to the United States by the terrorist attacks of 9-11. That stuff enrages the Islamic world."

Sales tax figures down second time

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

For just the second time in the last 18 months, sales tax receipts received by the City of Wayne were down in back-to-back months, according to figures released by the city.

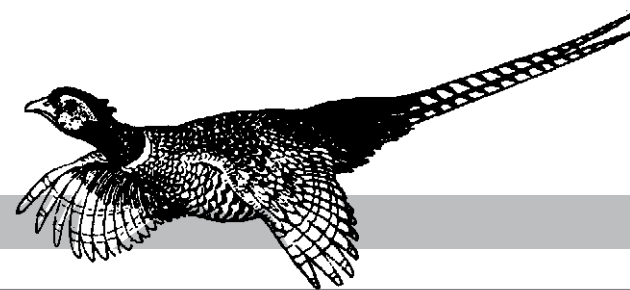

April's receipts, which are based on sales made during the month of February, were at $35,615.45, down more than $1,400 from the same time last year. It is the second straight month that the city received less than it had in the same month the previous year. Last month, the $35,615.45 received by the city was less than the $38,215.18 received in March 2010.

The city is still ahead of its 2 percent projection for sales tax receipts for fiscal year 2010-11. The city is averaging $43,434.95 per month through the first seven months, while its projected average is $43,395.44.

The city has not had back-to-back months of reduced tax receipts since November and December of 2009.

All the individual trees on private property and public areas in Wayne combine to create our local urban forest. Photos from the 1800's show that when the city's name was changed from "Brookdale" to "Wayne" the city was an open prairie without any mature trees. The collection of everyone's private tree plantings has made Wayne an attractive, landscaped shaded place to live for us and our children.

Our mature trees in the summer create large pools of cooler air around the city and in the winter they break the hard prairie winds. Shady streets and parks enhance our quality of life.

Check out our city tree planting incentive programs by calling or stopping by our utility office for applications. We can plant shade trees in many city terraces for $25 or you can buy your own tree from a private nursery and plant it, bring in the receipt and we'll reimburse 100 percent of your purchase cost up to $50.

If you have a Silver Maple or a Green Ash tree you may want to plan ahead to replace them in 10 years. Silver Maples are starting to die from iron chlorosis and Green Ash trees are threatened by the Emerald Borer which is moving toward Nebraska.

Additional wind turbine proposals from Renais, a private company, are being reviewed by city staff for their financial feasibility for the Wayne electric system. The original 2010 Power Purchase Agreement between the City of Wayne and Renais established a rate structure for turbine power that to-date has not been able to be financed for construction.

The very low cost of hydroelectric, coal and nuclear power to Wayne from Nebraska Public Power District makes wind turbine power a comparatively higher cost for the near term and likely lower cost in the long term. Financing wind in the current market incurs risk of future electric rate changes and makes the process complicated.

Spring is ideal time for cooling system tune-ups

While April showers bring May flowers, and May flowers bring passage into the start of summer, the start of summer brings another season of air-conditioning usage.

While any time is better than never, spring to early summer is the ideal time to tuneup your air-conditioning or heat pump system. Early system maintenance can prevent minor problems from becoming more expensive problems later on.

Furthermore, if your tune-up is scheduled early, you will beat the long waits and higher prices that come with peak season visits from your HVAC repairman. There are two main reasons to schedule an air-conditioning or heat pump system tune-up with your HVAC contractor: saving money and saving money. First, you greatly increase the odds that your contractor will catch small problems before they become big ones. Something like a small refrigerant leak should not cost much more than the service call to repair. However, having to purchase a new compressor, when low refrigerant levels burn out your current one, can cost a thousand dollars or more.

The second way an annual tune-up saves you money is by ensuring that your unit is working at optimal efficiency. A well-tuned system uses less energy to cool your house, and lower energy use means bigger savings for you on your monthly utility bills.

A system tune-up is an important part of making sure you get long lasting and efficient performance over the life of your equipment. Here is a short list of common maintenance procedures your HVAC contractor should include with a routine tune-up:

- Perform a visual inspection of your system.
- Check for proper refrigerant levels.
- Clean the outside compressor unit coil.
- Check the indoor coil.
- Blow out the drain line.
- Check belts and lubricate motors, if needed.
- Check, clean, and/or replace filters and discuss a replacement schedule.
- Discuss proper system operation and proper temperature setback.

Typically tune-ups on cooling systems that have been neglected for a few years can provide 5-15 percent energy savings, or more. While a tune-up every year can help optimize your system's efficiency, you may be eligible for a $30 EnergyWise incentive every three years to help offset the cost of a tune-up. Visit with your local electric utility to see if you qualify.

Don't spring into this summer without considering your cooling system. A tune-up may be all you need to ensure a cool and comfortable place to escape heat!

National Hospital Week highlights the people

A hospital is more than a place where people go to heal, it is a part of the community that fosters health and represents hope. From providing treatment and comfort to the sick, to welcoming new life into the world, hospitals are central to a healthy and optimistic community.

That's the message organizers are touting with the 2011 National Hospital Week theme "Champions of Care."

"National Hospital Week, first and foremost, is a celebration of people," Mike Hammond, interim administrator of Providence Medical Center, said. "We are extremely proud of each member of our staff and we recognize the important role they play in extending a sense of trust to our patients and our communities."

National Hospital Week, May 8-14, dates back to 1921 when it was suggested by a magazine editor who hoped a community wide celebration would alleviate public fears about hospitals. The celebration, launched in Chicago, succeeded in promoting trust and goodwill among members of the public and eventually spread to facilities across the country.

Providence Medical Center will host the Friday, May 13 Chamber Coffee, beginning at 10 a.m. The public is welcome to attend.

public disclosure of all the facts pertaining to the alleged misconduct of some of its members so that the citizens of Wayne can be assured of the integrity and professionalism of the men and women of the Wayne Police Department and its elected and appointed officials."

The union questions the money spent on the investigation and the reasons for the investigations, as well as Johnson's handling of the situation. The union is accusing Johnson of targeting the police department, creating adverse working conditions and creating a sense of distrust in his leadership.

Also in question is the use of a private investigator, Colleen Floth, who asked questions about items discussed in FOP meetings, under the guise of investigating other actions within the department.

"Members also mentioned another potential investigation where they were called by Administrator Johnson and compelled to report for interviews with Colleen Floth regarding questions about the then former WPD dispatcher accused of misconduct," the release said. "However, during said interviews members were asked questions focused on items discussed in FOP meetings pertaining to (Johnson's) actions and behaviors and possible actions to be taken by the lodge regarding these matters."

"Members were also questioned about issues which could potentially result in disciplinary actions without Weingarten or Garry protections," the release added. "When one member asked to have legal representation present before they answered a specific question, they were told they did not have the right to such counsel, a statement which the FOP challenges."

The concerns raised by the local FOP were echoed by the Nebraska Fraternal Order of Police. In a letter to incoming mayor Ken Chamberlain, dated Dec. 8, 2010 - which was also sent to every City Council member, city attorney Mike Pieper, city administrator

Lowell Johnson - president John Francavilla said the local police union is being targeted by the city administration.

"... Members of Wayne FOP Lodge 54 feel as though they are being unfairly targeted by the previous administration," Francavilla wrote in the letter. "Adverse working conditions such as these created by some members of the city's administration can make for a difficult work environment, and an aura of no trust in the city's leadership."

Francavilla encouraged Chamberlain to meet with the local union to determine if any active investigations of members of the local union concerning any allegations of wrongdoing were taking place, and if an investigation was ongoing, they would be told the scope of the investigation and their role in it. Francavilla also told Chamberlain the state lodge has directed members of the Wayne union to have representation present in any future interviews by anyone other than their immediate supervisor. The local union was also instructed to mechanically record any interview that involves action that may result in a suspension, demotion, removal or discharge of a member, and that a Garrity Advisory is read and signed by the employee being interviewed.

The union said it is committed to protecting the community and serving its citizens, and feels an open dialogue between the FOP and elected officials within the city is important, and they hope to cooperate with Mayor Ken Chamberlain and the City Council.

added. "I was disappointed, obviously. I've been her 15 years and had very good performance evaluations throughout this time. I was not made aware we were under investigation."

The officers and their attorneys received the evidence Johnson had obtained in justifying their suspensions on March 7, consisting of a 12-page letter and 44 exhibits. After seeing the evidence presented, both Shear and Webster said they were actually happy to see what Johnson was using to justify their suspension and eventual termination.

"I look forward to this being looked at by others and welcome the opportunity, because I believe there is no evidence of any wrongdoing," Shear said. "There are some accusations in there and I have said some things that have been misconstrued by Mr. Johnson, and he isn't telling you the whole story."

"As far as the sexual allegations, their own investigation will tell you that it never happened, along with the sexual harassment," he added.

"As I went through their evidence, I was somewhat relieved because I've maintained all along that I'm not guilty of what they're accusing me of, and we don't believe the evidence supports their allegations," Webster added. "The only complaint is from Mr. Johnson, and he's the hearing officer as well. We hope to have a disinterested third party look at the evidence and hope for a different outcome. It's going to be a public hearing, and we welcome that."

Both Shear and Webster are optimistic that their firings will be overturned, and both look forward to getting back to the jobs they are both quite passionate about.

"I miss my job and like it very much, and I care for the people who work there. We have a close bond with them, and I miss working with them," Shear said.

"I enjoy my job and working in the community of Wayne," Webster added. "We are a close-knit group, and by the nature of our business we have to be... so I'm looking forward to getting back to work."

Chicken Show committee is 'egg-cited' to announce schedule

Committee members have been scratching through options and are "egg-cited" to announce the line-up for this year's Chicken Show, scheduled for July 8-10.

Friday night, also known as Henoween, will feature Craig Florian as Elvis, with the addition of Marilyn Monroe for a 75-minute show beginning at 8:30 p.m. on stage at Third and Main streets. The event is titled "Elvis and Marilyn: Together at Last!"

Performing at 12 p.m. on Saturday in the park will be Larry Myer. Larry also performed at the 2009 Chicken Show.

According to information from the artist, "Larry Myer is an energetic singer, songwriter and acoustic performer. He has played more than 200 towns in his homestate of Iowa and more than half the states of America, working his way up from a busking street performer to concert venues around the country. He has released two recordings, the landmark "Flatlands" CD and the followup, "The Ring and Other Ballads". Larry is also a winner of the Branson Songwriting Contest."

Larry's live show is an aggressive performance that connects with a wide array of audiences.

Myer will also open the Saturday night Street Dance at 8:30 p.m. on the south end of Main Street. Performing until 1 p.m. will be Nathan Wade and the Un4given. Wade has opened for country artists Eric Church, Joe Nichols, Sarah Johns, Lee Brice and Lost Trailers.

The Chicken Show committee needs to secure business sponsors for these events to help cover the costs of bringing this "egg-cellent" entertainment line-up to the 31st Annual Chicken Show. Main Stage sponsorship is $1,500 per show, and includes ample marketing opportunity to the sponsor.

Sponsoring businesses will be able to introduce the entertainment on stage, display company banners, and be listed in all media releases prior to the event.

A $1,000 sponsor is also needed for the sound system used downtown Friday and in the park on Saturday. For more information on how to sponsor any of the Chicken Show events, contact Chicken Show Committee Chairs Nancy Johnson and Ashley Mulhair or the Wayne Area Economic Development office at 108 West Third Street, (402) 375-2240 info@wayneworks.org

The next meeting of the Chicken Show planning committee will be held on Monday, May 9 at 5:30 p.m. in the South Meeting Room of the City Auditorium.

Softball sweeps No. 10 Augie

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

One mistake can make the difference between victory and defeat.

Wayne State's softball team found this out in heart-wrenching fashion, breaking a scoreless tie with the help of an Augustana error in the opener, then scoring on a wild pitch with two out in the bottom of the seventh to sweep the top team in the Northern Sun Conference and the NCAA Div. II Central Region on Saturday at the Chapman Complex.

The 1-0 and 4-3 wins ran the Wildcats' home winning streak to 26 games, but they weren't for the faint of heart.

In the first game, pitchers Katie Goetzinger and Ashley Meyer battled to a scoreless tie for five innings, as both pitchers got out of potential run-scoring jams.

Wayne State had the bases loaded in the third before a fielder's choice and a groundout got the Vikings' Meyer out of the jam. On three occasions, 10th ranked Augustana had a runner in scoring position, but Goetzinger, who struck out five and walked none in throwing a four-hit shutout, got good defensive support to keep the game scoreless.

Wayne State finally broke the tie with two out in the sixth. After Jennifer Radley walked and was lifted for Heather Cook as a pinch runner, she moved to second on a Blaire Kuhl sacrifice and took third on a ground to short. Blair Masters then hit a routine grounder to third, but the third baseman juggled the play and lost control of the ball, allowing Cook to score the game's only run.

The Wildcats took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the nightcap on an RBI single by Radley. Augustana tied the game in the top of the second, but Kassie Nurton's RBI single brought home Masters to make it 2-1.

the fifth and took the lead in the sixth, but Wayne State had one last chance in the seventh.

Masters led off with a walk and Brittany Greenwood reached on an error. After Nurton struck out, Aeriell Earleywine advanced the runners with a groundout and Dani Sandel brought Masters home with the game-tying single to center. Two pitches later, the ball got away from the Augustana catcher and Greenwood scored the game-winning run.

"Those were two good wins for us," coach Krista Unger said after the game. "They're ranked really high and we needed to pick up our defense, but I thought we played well."

Goetzinger again went the distance, striking out four and scattering nine hits, and Unger was happy to see her senior All-American go the distance in both games.

"We wanted to try to get her to throw both games and get ready for the tournament, and we wanted to get two wins today," Unger said. "The girls never gave up and kept pushing, and they didn't want to lose at home because we haven't lost at home for a while and we needed to give it everything we had today."

Last Wednesday, the Wildcats split with No. 12 Winona State on the road, taking the opener 9-2 and losing the finale 3-1.

In the opener, Sam Earleywine was 2-for-4 with a homer and a double to lead a balanced attack. Sandel also had two hits and Kuhl added a double. Goetzinger got the win, striking out five and scattering eight hits.

Fields capping outstanding college golf career with third regional trip

By KEVIN PETERSON
Of The Herald

It's been nearly five years since Adam Fields first walked on to the Wayne State College campus.

The Sioux City Heelan graduate was an all-state baseball player during his prep career, but it would be golf that would define his collegiate athletic success.

Earlier this month, he capped his career by winning the Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference Golf Championship. That crown is earned over five rounds of golf that starts in the fall and finishes in the spring.

In doing so, Fields quietly moved himself to the pinnacle of golf at Wayne State. He is the most decorated golfer in Wayne State history. The bar has been raised to a level it's never seen.

How he got there, however, is through a lot of hard work.

"I was a baseball recruit for some area colleges," the former first baseman said. "I love golf though, and was recruited by Matt Murken (former assistant men's basketball coach) to play golf at Wayne State."

Fields redshirted his first year at Wayne and spent that year working in the weight room to get stronger.

Of course, it didn't hurt that his father, Danny Fields, a former track and field standout at Kansas State pushed him toward the weight room.

"My dad is actually the one who designed my workout program," Fields said. "Core strength was the main focus."

While Fields was working the iron (weight room iron, that is), Wayne Country Club pro Troy Harder was picked to run the men's and women's golf programs at Wayne State. In Fields' first start on the links in the fall of 2007, he played the number two spot behind what would turn out to be his very close friend Tyler Dejong, a Papillion, native.

"I remember that first meet because I played very well," Fields said. "I shot par and from that point through the rest of my career, I played the number one spot. I also know that I gained 10 to 15 yards on my drives and irons because of the weight room."

The youngest of three kids, he often spent time on the driving range as a youngster with some other boyhood friends. During one of those outings he was introduced to a man named Hal McSparron, who gave him

Thomsen wins highlight area effort at Classic

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

NORFOLK - Zach Thomsen has been a monster in the middle distance races for the Wayne High track team this spring, so it was something of a surprise to see him in the mix for the 200-meter dash at Thursday's Northeast Nebraska Track and Field Classic.

Thomsen had only run the race one other time this season, but that effort at the Schuyler Invitational was enough to get him into the all-star race at Norfolk High School, and it proved to be the highlight of the day for what would become an effort worthy of being named the meet's Outstanding Male Athlete.

Thomsen won two individual events, anchored a winning relay team and added a fourth-place medal to earn the honor, an honor he said was the result of a lot of sweat.

"I worked really hard to get here, and this means a lot," he said. "It shows all the hard work I've been doing is paying off."

Thomsen started the day running the anchor leg of the winning 3,200-meter relay team, joining Seth Onderstal, Quentin Jorgensen and Luke Trenhaile in a winning effort of 8:31.58. He later ran to victory in the 400, just missing his personal best with a time of 51.03.

His effort in the 200 was probably the result that clinched the outstanding athlete award, though, as he beat Dylan Sawyer of Battle Creek by almost two-tenths of a second, running the race for just the second time in eight days.

"We wanted to put him in the 200 and see what he could do there," coach Dale Hochstein said. "We threw him in it at Schuyler, because we felt he'd always had the speed and we wanted to see if he could handle it. He did a really nice job, and that will give us some other options down the road."

Thomsen was one of three area athletes to come away with gold medals in the annual lineup of the best-of-the-best from Northeast Nebraska.

Wayne High's Keegan Dorcey dives back to first base to avoid a pickoff attempt during action Monday at Hank Overin Field. The Blue Devils lost to Seward, 6-3.

Baseball team's woes continue

The number six hasn't been a very pleasant number for the Wayne High baseball team this season.

The sixth inning proved to be the undoing of the Blue Devils on the diamond last week, as South Sioux City and Seward both recorded big numbers in that pivotal inning to post wins over Wayne, extending the Blue Devils' losing streak to eight games.

On Thursday, Wayne was involved in a pitchers' duel with the Cardinals in South Sioux City, but a controversial call on what should have been an inning-ending strikeout turned into a six-run explosion for the home team, as they handed Wayne a 6-0 setback.

With the bases loaded and two out, Jacob Zeiss appeared to have gotten out of a bases-loaded jam with a strikeout. The ball popped out of catcher Frank Bernal's glove and in front of the plate, and the umpire ruled that the ball had hit the batter. That brought the tie-breaking run home and opened the floodgates as Wayne couldn't bounce back from the controversial call.

"After that call, it snowballed into five more runs," co-coach Jeff Zeiss said.

Brady Soden pitched four solid innings, allowing just two hits. Jacob Zeiss was the hard-luck loser after scattering three hits in 1 2/3 innings. Wayne was held to no hits in the defeat by Austin Groth.

On Monday, a four-run sixth inning by Seward helped the visiting Bluejays post a 6-2 win at Hank Overin Field, as four errors in the inning helped Seward pull away late.

"The last two games, the sixth inning has been a problem," Zeiss said. "Both games were close going to the sixth, and it's just those little routine things that are hurting us.

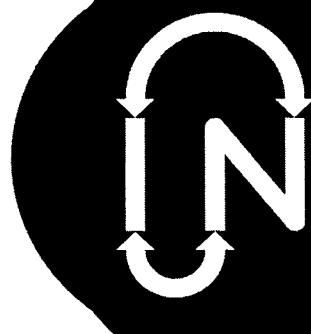

We've battled and been in every game, and we just have to get back and keep playing."

Wayne took a 1-0 lead in the first when Drew Carroll scored on a Tony Sinniger single. Wayne made a game of it in the seventh when Trent Beza was hit by a pitch and scored on a two-run homer by Alex Onnen, but were unable to come back from their sixth-inning setback.

In JV action, Wayne beat South Sioux City 5-2, as Bradley Longe tripled and stole two bases while picking up the win on the mound. Against Seward, the visitors won a 17-12 slugfest. Miles Anderson, Jordan Backer and Dylan Sokol each scored twice and Longe and Tyler Robinson each had two RBIs in the losing effort.

Wayne battles Douglas County West in the first round of districts Friday at 6 p.m., with the winner facing Elkhorn on Saturday.

Golfers win at O-C, claim home triangular

By KEVIN PETERSON
Of the Herald

The Wayne boys golf team captured top honors at the Oakland-Craig Invite Saturday, posting a one stroke victory over Blair with a 332.

Coach Dave Hix said he would have to consult his record books, because it has been a while since the Blue Devils had won this tournament.

"This group never ceases to amaze me," Hix said. "A 332 at Oakland is more impressive to me than a 329 at Albion. Except for putting, our stats were impressive."

Collin Preston notched his second runner-up finish in invitational play this season with a 78, just one stroke off the winning score of 77 by Jared Warrick of Blair.

"Collin played two solid nines," Hix said. "He hit 50 percent of greens in regulation, which is a sign of good ball striking."

Hix said Zach Rasmussen played solid and earned a ninth-place medal with an 82 including a 40 on the back nine with three, 3-putts and a 4-putt. Ezra Brodersen and Kaje Maly ended up tying for 16th place with rounds of 86. Sean Ganseboom finished shot 44 on both sides to finish with an 88.

Last Thursday, the varsity competed at the Elks Country Club in Columbus as part of the Lakeview Invite, where the Blue Devils finished third with a 363. Norfolk's JV team won the 14-team invite with a 353, followed by Elkhorn South at 358.

"We were a little erratic in this round," Hix said. "We didn't get off the tee box consistently and that hurt us. "We hit just 36 percent of our fairways as a team, and on that course that is trouble. Zach played a solid front nine but missed fairways on the back. He ended up placing eighth overall with an 88. Ezra also placed 11th after carding an 89."

Other Wayne scores included Preston with a 92 and Ganseboom at 94 while Maly finished with a 98.

While the varsity was busy in Columbus and Oakland, the JV's competed at the Pierce Varsity Invitational, with Wayne placing fifth in the 11-team field with a 380. Hartington Cedar Catholic claimed a 15-stroke victory with a 331 with Battle Creek notching a 346. Laurel-Concord was third at 351.

Wayne's Tyler Schoh earned a varsity letter with a 16th place medal, emerging as the winner of a five-way tie with an 89. Schoh carded a personal best 42 on the front side. Ryan Grosz finished with a 95 and Eric Schoh had a 97. Kody Frahm posted a 99 and Jared Peterson carded an even 100.

"I thought we had good balance and our overall team continues to improve," coach Terry Munson said. The Blue Devils hosted a triangular Monday with Crofton and Laurel-Concord, with Wayne winning after posting a 170. Crofton finished 13 strokes back, edging Laurel-Concord by a stroke.

Medalist honors went to Preston with a 38 with Maly two strokes back at 40. Brodersen carded a 43 with Ganseboom and Rasmussen each netting 49's.

There was no JV meet but Wayne carded a 194 led by Tyler Schoh with a 43. Grosz followed at 49 and Eric Schoh had a 50 while Frahm and Peterson followed with a 52 and 53, respectively. Max Morris finished with a 52 and Andrew Pulfer, 58.

some tips in swinging the golf club the correct way.

McSparron became his swing coach at age 15 and still is today. In fact, the retired McSparron lives in Phoenix, Ariz., and during the recent Rocky Mountain Conference Tournament near Phoenix, in which Wayne State took part as one last shot to reach regionals as a team, McSparron was not only in attendance but followed Adam the entire 54 holes.

Fields, like many other young golfers, dreams of professional golf, if and when that opportunity presents itself. But, the criminal justice major, who graduates this Saturday in the Class of 2011, has had job interviews already in the law enforcement arena.

"I'm still trying to decide what I'm going to do," Fields said. "The Dakota Tour is a real competitive pro golf tour in our area, but that costs money. These people that think the life of a pro golfer is easy, don't really understand exactly what it takes to get to that level."

So what is Adam's strength on the golf course?

"Definitely my short game," Fields said. "There are tons of guys who can smash the ball off the tee, but the bread-and-butter in golf is the chipping and putting and I've put a lot of time in that area. I'm a self-feel type of player. A lot of my mannerisms in gripping the club and putting style, I've developed on my own. "As long as my head is over the ball while I'm putting, it doesn't matter."

"I'd say the highlight of my golf career at Wayne State was winning the conference title this year," Fields said. "There are a lot of good players in our conference and I managed to play the two fall rounds and three spring rounds from a range of 69-74."

He also won the conference title by four shots. He has qualified for the regional tournament in each of his last three seasons in locations of Wilderness Ridge in Lincoln, Palm Desert in Calif., and Albuquerque, N.M.

Golf has treated Fields pretty well the past four years, but the Sioux City, Iowa native says the friendships he's built will carry him through the rest of his life.

"This year's team was pretty close with Tyler DeJong, Jake Hirz, Tyler Thompson and Brett Shively and even going back to Blake Thompson and countless others, it's been a great ride," he said.

"I wouldn't change anything about my time at Wayne State," he added. "Well, check that, I wish our team could have qualified this year to go to Regionals — we finished just two shots out."

Perhaps just a chip and a putt.

The Warriors earned a split by holding off a Wayne State rally in the seventh. The Wildcats had two runners on before a strikeout ended the threat. Wayne State was limited to four hits in the finale.

On Thursday, Wayne State swept Upper Iowa in a doubleheader at Fayette, Iowa, winning 11-2 and 8-5 in eight innings. Kuhl was 4-for-8 with a homer and seven RBIs in the doubleheader for the 34-13 (22-4 NSIC) Wildcats.

Wayne State scored six in the fourth inning to blow open the first game, highlighted by Kuhl's three-run homer. Aeriell Earleywine had a two-run double in the fifth to put the game out of reach on the eight-run rule.

In the nightcap, the Wildcats scored three in the top of the eighth, thanks to a bases-loaded walk to Radley and sacrifice flies by Goetzinger and Kuhl. Sandell, Kuhl and Aeriell Earleywine each had two hits.

LCC's Kayla Wiese set a personal best and finished second in the pole vault.

Coleridge both earned first-place efforts on the day, and both were close to bringing home multiple gold medals on the day.

Lunz got a rough start in the 100-meter dash early in the meet, finishing third; but made up for it by winning the 400 and coming in second in the 200 to make it a three-medal day.

"I got a bad start in the 100, but my 400 and 200 both felt pretty good," Lunz said. "I thought I ran well in the 400. I had my strategy down with the wind and had a good finish, so that was exciting. I think this kind of raises my confidence level and will get me ready for districts and state."

"Seeing Keri perform at a high level was outstanding," Wakefield coach Mike Hassler said. "She had a PR in both the 200 and 400. She got out of the blocks slow in the 100, but she really bounced back well in her last two races."

Jacobsen won the 800 and was in a three-way battle for top honors in 1,600 before finishing behind Melissa Parks of Norfolk High and Andrea Weeder of Lindsay Holy Family.

"Coach (Terry Bear) and I talked about it before, and we were debating whether or not I should kick in the last 100 or 200," Jacobsen said of her finish in the 1,600. "I went at 200, and I think I went a little early, but it was fun to race against them."

"I knew from the mile that I kicked too early, so I waited in the 800 and I felt really good with my time," she added.

"Katie was a shining star for us," Bear said. "She left a little early in the 1,600 and battled to get a personal best, and she ran an outstanding 800 and knocked five seconds off her time. She had to run the 3,200 about 10 minutes after the 800, and she battled and she was more upset she didn't make the medal stand."

Not having much time to recover from three distance races, Jacobsen gutted out the anchor leg of the 1,600-meter relay, helping the team to a fourth-place finish.

All three schools had some solid efforts in the all-star meet, including runner-up efforts by LCC's Kayla Wiese (pole vault) and Amy Pritchard (triple jump) and wayne's 400-meter relay on the girls' side. On the boys' side, Wakefield's Brendan Nicholson (110 hurdles) and the Blue Devils' Jorgensen each earned third-place medals to lead the non-winning efforts on the boys' side.

"I was really happy with our kids' efforts today," Hochstein said of the Wayne athletes. "Our guys had some really good times and ran hard, and the girls had some good performances as well."

Hassler was happy to see Nicholson finish strong and get within reach of the school record in the 110-meter hurdles.

"He missed the school record by three hundredths, so he's running extremely well for us," he said. "Josh Dolph also is getting better and took seven seconds off his time in the 1,600 and was able to get a medal, so that will build some confidence for him."

"We had a number of personal bests today," Bear said. "Kayla got over 10 feet in the pole vault for the first time, which sets her up well for districts, and the girls 1,600 relay put themselves in good position. Ashley Lunz had a 60-second split in the relay, so I think we're going to move her from the 100 to the 400. She showed some really good stuff there."

Area teams have solid efforts at Lewis and Clark track meet

WINNEBAGO – All three area teams saw some good performances at Saturday's Lewis and Clark Conference track meet.

The Wakefield boys finished a solid third and the Trojan girls were fifth to lead the area effort. The three area schools combined for three individual conference titles, with Wakefield taking home a pair of golds and Allen accounting for the third.

In the girls' team race, Wakefield senior Keri Lunz had a solid day, winning the 400-meter dash and taking home runner-up honors in the 100 and 200.

The Wakefield girls had some good balance and got some much-needed help in the hurdle events. Katelyn Tuttle had a solid day, earning medals in both races, while Sydney Rose returned from a hamstring injury to earn a runner-up medal in the 100-meter hurdles.

"Katelyn has been solid across the board for us all year, and we've also got Sydney back and she's done really well the last couple of meets," coach Mike Hassler said. "We were happy to get her back and get some extra points there."

The Allen and Winside girls finished right behind one another, with Allen scoring 26 points and the Wildcats taking home 25.

Allen scored well in the field events, with Mariah McCoy earning medals in the shot put and discus. Lindsey Jones earned a seventh in the 400, and Allen also got points in the 400-meter relay.

For Winside, Nazya Thies earned a pair of individual medals, finishing third in the triple jump and seventh in the long jump, while Jayd Roberts was a double medal winner as well and Natasha Jensen picked up a fifth-place medal.

"Jayd ran really well in both hurdles, and we were surprised to see Dana Doffin get a medal in the high jump," Winside coach Mark Tonniges said. "We had a lot of good things come out of this meet. Our 1,600 relay ran well, and that was the first time they've run all year."

The Wakefield boys finished third, even though they were without the services of Hugo Ortiz, who was out with an injury.

Wakefield scored well on the track and in the field. Alex Calderon, Jon Bodlak, Pedro Valadez and Anthony Gustafson all earned medals in field events for the Trojans. Brendan Nicholson was the runner-up in the 110-hurdles, and Jose Calderon earned runner-up honors in the 100-meter dash.

The Eagles brought home gold with their 3,200-meter relay team of D.J. Kennelly, Dylan Mahler, Kyle Finnegan and Austin Connot.

"The team won in a state-leading time, so we did some very good things," coach Dave Ulrich said. "It was only our second outdoor meet of the season, and we did very well on the day."

Bruno, Goetzinger WSC athletes of the year

Frederick Bruno and Katie Goetzinger were named the Male and Female Athletes of the year during the Wayne State athletic honors banquet Monday night.

WSC athletes compete at Drake Relays

Wayne State's Ross Bunchek and John Kern had career-best days at the Drake Relays Saturday afternoon in Des Moines, Iowa.

Both athletes set new school records while also achieving NCAA qualifying marks in their respective event. Bunchek set an automatic NCAA qualifying mark by bettering his school record with a heave of 206 feet, 6 inches in the hammer throw to finish ninth overall. Kern placed sixth in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a provisional qualifying time of 9:03.14, setting a new school record in the process.

On Sunday, Bunchek and Carly Fehringer had big days as the Wildcat throwers competed at the Nebraska Open in Lincoln.

Bunchek captured first place honors in the men's hammer throw with a top mark of 196 feet, 8 inches. Three other Wildcats also competed in the shot put, as Tyler DeWit was ninth, Brad Wright was 12th and Matt Peter finished 14th.

Fehringer, a freshman from Wayne, recorded a pair of fifth-place finishes on the day. She was fifth in the hammer throw at 167 feet, 8 inches, and took fifth in the shot put at 46 feet, 7 1/4 inches, both NCAA provisional qualifying marks. Fehringer's effort in the hammer throw now moves her up to 12th nationally in NCAA Div. II.

Other Wildcat women throwers competing included Lachel Milander, who was eighth in the shot put, eighth in the discus and 12th in the hammer throw. Casey Buskirk was 10th in hammer throw, and Mackenzie Masching took 14th in the shot put.

Next action for the Wayne State track and field teams will be Friday and Saturday when the Wildcats compete at the Howard Wood Dakota Relays in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Bruno finished his career ranked second on the all-time receptions chart with 191 and in receiving yards with 2,626. He is the school's all-time kickoff leader, averaging 32.6 yards per return his senior year. He is a three-time All-NSIC South Division honoree and was AFCA Div. II first-team All-American as a junior.

Goetzinger holds every Wayne State pitching record. She is 27-6 with a 0.98 earned-run average this season with 272 strikeouts and 17 walks in 200 innings of work. She is a three-time All-NSIC pitcher and was named third-team All-American last season. She is also an ESPN The Magazine second-team Academic All-American.

The Freshman Athletes of the Year were Luke Farrar and Carly Fehringer.

Farrar is second on the Wayne

State baseball team with a .342 batting average and leads the team with a .473 on-base percentage. He has been named NSIC Player of the Week this season.

Fehringer, a freshman from Wayne, was sixth in the shot put at the NSIC Indoor Championships and was ranked in the top 30 nationally. During the outdoor season, she has recorded NCAA provisional marks in the shot put and hammer throw and is ranked 12th nationally in the shot put.

Joe Bundy received the Wildcat Inspiration Award and the Bob Cunningham Male Scholar-Athlete Award. Bundy, an Academic All-District honoree, earned first-team All-NSIC and first-team All-Region honors in football while dealing with some challenging family issues. His brother, Ben, passed away after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage during a weightlifting session, while his mother, Peggy was diagnosed with cancer this past year. His father, Keith, is blind, yet comes to every game to support his son.

Jennifer Hefner won the Cunningham Scholar-Athlete Award for women's athletics. She had a 3.93 grade-point average in applied human and sport physiology and won the award for the second straight year. She was a second-team All-American in volleyball and earned her second straight first-team ESPN Academic All-American honor this past year. She also was one of 29 female athletes to receive a $7,500 postgraduate scholarship from the NCAA. She is a three-time All-NSIC honoree and finished fourth on the all-time school list with 1,540 kills.

Wayne performs well at conference

PIERCE – Both Wayne High track and field teams exceeded their coach's projections in posting solid finishes at Saturday's Mid-State Conference meet.

The Wayne boys won seven events and finished a solid third behind deep teams from Pierce and Norfolk Catholic. The Wayne girls didn't win an event, but showed good depth in putting together a fourth-place finish in the eight-team meet.

"Going into the meet, the boys were projected to score 90 points and the girls 70, and both teams exceeded those projections," coach Dale Hochstein said. "The boys won seven events, but couldn't match the depth of Pierce and Norfolk Catholic. The girls didn't win any titles, but they had balanced scoring in a number of events and we had a number of personal bests."

On the boys' side, Zach Thomsen led the way with three individual titles and anchoring the winning 3,200-meter relay with Seth Onderstal, Sawyer Jager and Luke Trenhaile. Thomsen won the 200, 400 and 800 to make it a 4-for-4 day at the top of the medal stand.

Jorgensen was a triple gold medalist on the day, adding wins in the 1,600 and 3,200 to his effort in the 3,200 relay. Chris Rogers had a super day, throwing the shot 48 feet, 2 inches to take the title in that event.

Drew Loberg medaled in three events, earning places in both throwing events and as part of the 400-meter relay. Justin Anderson ran on two medal-winning relays and earned fifth in the long jump.

On the girls' side, Wayne had six runner-up efforts on the day. Caitlin Fehringer had a hand in two of those silver medals, earning seconds in both hurdles to go with medal-winning efforts in the 400 and 1,600 relay.

Ashton Schweers was a silver medalist in the high jump, while the 3,200-meter relay of Angie Nelson, Emily Leeper, Kristin Carroll and Megan Stalling took second place. Nelson had her own silver medal in the 1,600, while Meagan Backer took second in the 100-meter dash.

Fehringer, Nelson, Leeper, Carroll and Backer were all multiple medalists for the Wayne girls at the conference meet.

Wildcats win streak climbs to 10 games

By TRAVIS CORLEY
Of The Herald

The Wayne State baseball team swept 29th-ranked Winona State in a doubleheader last Wednesday, winning 4-0 and 7-6 at the Pete Chapman Baseball Complex.

Winona State took a one-run lead at the top of fourth inning after a single to left field. Following an error by the Wildcats, the Warriors scored on fielder's choice.

The Warriors doubled to left center field to start the sixth inning. Following a strikeout, the Warriors' third baseman connected on a single that scored their second run.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Wildcats answered with two runs. Travis Parsons and Nick Bidroski both scored. The game was tied at 2-2 heading into the seventh.

After a two run seventh inning, Winona State reclaimed the lead 4-2, but Wayne State sent the game into extra innings with two runs of their own in the seventh.

Both teams played great defense in the ninth and 10th innings.

After a lead-off double in the 11th, and a sacrifice bunt, the Warriors had a runner on third before another double to right field. Winona State then received its second run of the inning after a single to left field. The Warriors left one runner on base to end the inning.

The Wildcats tied the game at 6-6 in at the bottom of the 11th. Wayne State leadoff hitter Jake Ritzdorf singled to left center. After a wild pitch by the Warriors' closer, Ritzdorf advanced to second. With one out, Luke Farrar singled and Ritzdorf reached third. Another wild pitch scored Ritzdorf and Farrar advanced to second. C.J. Nolan connected on a single and Farrar scored.

At the top of the final inning, the Wildcats defense was impressive to end the Warriors at bat with two strikeouts. "The defense made great plays," said coach Brian Disch. Bidroski reached first base following a wild pitch. Slade Bolles then reached base due to an infield error as Bidroski advanced to second. Ritzdorf sacrifice fly to center field advanced Bidroski to third but Bolles stayed at first after a fast recovery by the Warriors.

Acosta hit a fly ball to right field that scored Bidroski. The Warriors' right fielder was unable to field Acosta's fly ball due to the shining sun and gust of winds that were pushing the ball in a different direction.

"Right field is a hard place on our field with the sun shining that way, and 30 mile-per-hour winds don't help either," said Disch.

The Wildcats won the first game behind solid pitching from Tadd Johansen as he completed his fifth game of the season.

"Tadd pitched well, pitched on four days rest and pitched us out of some jams," said Disch.

After two scoreless innings, the Wildcats placed a run on the board at the bottom of the third. Ritzdorf singled and advanced to third on two sacrifice hits before he was brought home by a Beranek single.

In the fourth, Parsons opened with a single. Bidroski was walked and Parsons advanced to second. Bolles sacrifice bunt advanced both runners in scoring positions. Ritzdorf singled down the left side, which advanced Bidroski and scored Parsons. Ritzdorf reached second after Acosta's sacrifice bunt. Farrar singled, which scored Bidroski for the Wildcats.

"Parsons had a great game for us today. When we are in tough jams, he's our guy," said Disch. "He accepts his role as the clean-up hitter very well."

Wayne State added another run in the fifth inning. The Wildcats finished the game with eight hits and one error.

Wayne State ran its win streak to 10 games after sweeping Minnesota Crookston 7-0 and 18-4 on Tuesday.

Wayne State scored all of its runs in the first two innings in the first game. RBI doubles by Parsons and Slade Bolles highlighted a five-run first inning.

Austen Wisroth struck out three in two innings of work to pick up the win. He combined with Eric Schwieger and Trevor Reeves on a five-hit shutout.

The Wildcats ended the second game early, pounding out 16 hits in the seven-inning game.

Wayne State scored eight runs on seven hits, three going for extra bases, in the first two innings to take control. Parsons hit a three-run homer to highlight a six-run fifth inning as the Wildcats continued their winning ways.

Burkhart was 3-for-5 with four runs scored in the win, while Parsons was 2-for-4 with four RBIs and Bisenius scored three runs.

Wayne State, 22-16 overall and 15-9 in the NSIC, close out the regular season at home this weekend, facing Southwest Minnesota State in 12 p.m. doubleheaders on Saturday and Sunday.

TREE CITY USA COMMUNITY

Arbor Day Foundation named Allen a Tree City USA Community. Allen has been recognized by the nonprofit Arbor Day Foundation as a Tree City USA community for the 18th year for its commitment to urban forestry during 2010.

Bree Almgren

Almgren earns professional scholarship

Bree Almgren, RN, BSN, a graduate of Laurel-Concord High School, has earned the Colorado Trust Health Professional scholarship.

Bree is the daughter of Mike and Lorie Bebee of Wayne and granddaughter of Caroline Peterson of Laurel.

She plans to use her scholarship to pursue training as a family nurse practitioner.

According to a release from the University of Colorado, "Bree is familiar with the life and trails of rural America. She has been drawn to a career of service to this population. Bree's teaching of nursing students in Delta, Colorado and volunteering at the Montrose Medical Mission for four years solidified her education path."

Scholars in medicine, nursing, pharmacy and other health professions receive two-year, $30,000 scholarships to assist them in their tuition payments. In return, they agree to work in rural or urban underserved areas for a minimum of two years.

The Allen Community Club held its Easter Egg Hunt on April 26 at the Allen Park. Several children dressed warmly and enjoyed the morning searching. Pictured are the Easter basket winners, Ashley Kraemer and Jerrod Van Sloten.

Parents offered advice on dealing with frustrated child

Susan Strahm, Coordinator of the Northeast Early Childhood Professional Development Partnerships at Educational Service Unit # 1 in Wakefield has offered the following as a guideline for parents when dealing with a frustrated child.

Have you ever tried to put something together and no matter how much you try and how faithfully you follow the directions, the parts won't come together?

When a child is faced with a task like this, he or she may become frustrated. At first the child may be too upset to wait for help. Then the child gets mad when help is offered. As good parents, we want our children to learn to manage their frustration and not give up when faced with a challenge.

What you can do to help – Talk your child through what is happening.

"You are good at scooping and it's okay if some of the sand falls out, you can get more," or "You made such a great tower and it was so tall, it couldn't stand up. Wow."

– Be sympathetic. If your child becomes angry, let him know you understand how difficult this task is. "That puzzle is really hard! It's so hard, it makes you mad!" Then help your child think of new ways to approach the situation: "I wonder what would make this easier?" Maybe if we look at the picture and pick out pieces that match the picture?"

– Teach your child the value of taking a break. "Whew, this is such hard work, let's go get a snack and come back to this later."

– Be a role model by asking for help. "Would you please help me fold the clothes from the dryer? There are so many!" Let your child know all of us, even big people, need help at times.

– Make the situation humorous. For example, if you talk to the block that won't go in the box, your child may relax and think it's fun. "Hey, you mean old blue box, you'd better get in their or I'm going to tickle you."

Stick to it or move to something else?

Learning persistence is valuable for a child. As your child's persistence grows, so will his or her tolerance for difficult things and new challenges. If you follow these tips and the task is still too frustrating, help redirect him or her to a different activity.

New security system in place: find your helmet

I'm still trying to sort out the Easter candy I snuck out of my niece's basket after the family Easter egg hunt. While I do that, here's a few tidbits from the "Bits and Pieces" file:

— Remember the confusing multi-tiered color-coded terror alert system that was established after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001?

Those are a thing of the past. Homeland Security has informed the public that we now have a two-level system — elevated and imminent.

This sounds eerily similar to an old Ron White joke when he talked about what his two-level security system would look like: "Go find a helmet . . . and put on the damn helmet."

— Speaking of 9/11 . . . the news of the death of terrorist mastermind Osama Bin Laden at the hands of U.S. Navy Seal forces on Sunday came as welcome news to all Americans, as we have finally been able to bring the man who led the attacks on our nation almost 10 years ago to his rightful day of reckoning.

As news of Bin Laden's death became public, an interesting happening occurred during Sunday night's baseball game between the Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets. Fans began chanting "U.S.A." as word spread throughout the stadium in Philadelphia and the celebration ensued.

What was most interesting, though, was the information on the scoreboard on the TV. The game was in the ninth inning, with the score tied 1-1.

If that doesn't convince you of a higher power, there's no hope for you.

— This one's for all you bar-hoppers in the audience: have you heard about the new drink you can order? It's called "The Osama" — two shots and a splash of water.

Thank you, thank you. I'm doing two shows Friday and Saturday.

— This week's evidence that professional athletes aren't always the brightest bulbs in the chandelier of life: a brain-imaging expert has told the National Football League that they should watch out for players who try to fudge on tests for brain damage after they suffer a concussion. Some are actually taking Ritalin, which boosts activity in the front part of the brain, to try to beat the test.

Players who get their bells rung now must pass a 6-8 minute test that measures memory, balance, concentration and cognitive thinking.

My thought on this is: if they're trying to fake their way through the tests, it's pretty obvious that the cognitive thinking thing isn't going very well inside their coconuts.

— From the "Giving slackers like the rest of us a bad name" department: Sally Gordon retired recently as a legislative sergeant at the State Capitol. This doesn't seem like much of a news story, until you get to the part where they talk about how old she is: 102.

Gordon became the Capitol's first female sergeant at arms at the ripe young age of 75 and held the position for 27 years before deciding that it was time to step down.

From all accounts, she is in good health and good spirits, which is pretty good for a woman old enough to have actually seen the State Capitol being built almost 80 years ago.

What does a newly-retired 102-year-old woman do to pass the time? I'm a good 20 years from being eligible to retire, and I sometimes have trouble getting out of bed in the morning.

— Today's proof that some people just shouldn't be allowed out in public: the former "green jobs czar" for the Obama regime is pushing for human rights status for — brace yourselves — Mother Nature.

A global summit on sustainable development that will take place in Brazil next May will include this push, led by Van Jones, the former Obama regime member who is a board member of an obscure new age organization called the Pachamama Alliance, which is trying to make human rights for Mother Nature a reality.

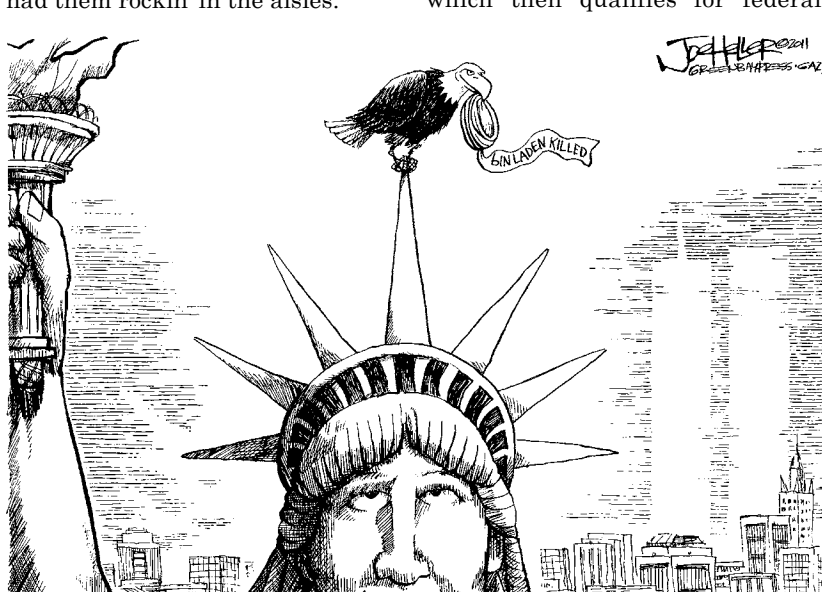

What's next — driving privileges for spotted owls?

— A Catholic priest has drawn the ire of his community, but it's not for what you think it is.

According to reports, Rev. James Tieggs kicked about 250 middle school-age kids out of Mass recently because — wait for it — they weren't singing loud enough.

I don't know about you, but if not singing loud enough was all it took to get you kicked out of church, the pews at some churches would be darn near empty every Sunday morning.

This is just a suggestion, but if the priest would have set up an American Idol-like stage on the pulpit and downloaded the hymns to the kids' iPhones, he might have had them rockin' in the aisles.

Capitol View Showdowns are shaping up

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — A showdown or two might be shaping up in the Legislature.

Actually, as this column goes to press, the shows might be going down. Or have gone down. Still, we're talking about interesting stuff.

Gov. Dave Heineman has long been viewed as having plenty of juice when it comes to getting the Unicameral to see things his way.

The officially nonpartisan Legislature is manned by an overwhelmingly Republican majority which boasts of its conservative credentials. And that's pretty much how Heineman can be described; overwhelmingly Republican and proudly conservative.

But Heineman is (or was) looking down a double-barrel of possible policy losses.

First, there was that revolutionary business about earmarking state sales tax dollars for the first time, ever, to pay for highway projects. It is being pushed by the ever-pushy Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine.

Heineman told lawmakers it was a bad idea from the beginning, but they gave it first-round approval.

Thereafter, Heineman said it was a really bad idea, but they gave it second-round approval, and by an even bigger margin.

And then Heineman said it was a really, really bad idea.

The question is whether Fischer can champion the idea across the goal line, and then override a veto if Heineman decides to put policy principles, and political pride, on the line.

And then there is the issue of putting a higher tax on nursing homes that handle Medicaid patients. Heineman vetoed the thing, saying it amounted to a $14 million tax increase on nursing home patients.

The bill was passed on a 44-1 vote. That's 14 more than were needed to override the veto and enact the measure over Heineman's objections. And that is what happened — Heineman's veto was slapped down, 44-0.

The measure would have the state use the $14 million tax on nursing homes and thus open the gate for $20 million in federal matching funds. That money would be funneled to nursing homes as a portion of their payment for Medicaid patients.

Heineman said the bill is no more than an accounting gimmick to allow the state to collect more federal dollars through a program that will eventually stop providing those funds.

Nebraska and Social Security

One can debate what, if anything, Congress should do to bolster the Social Security system . . . other than not robbing it any more to pay for other programs and lying about repaying the money.

The economic impact of Social Security benefits on Nebraska's economy is not debatable.

First, consider that Nebraska is among the states that tax Social Security benefits as income.

Second, according to figures from AARP, Social Security makes up at least half the income for over half of Nebraskans age 65 and older. And 25 percent of older Nebraskans say Social Security is their only source of income. Those same figures showed that 47 percent of Nebraskans over age 65 would fall below the poverty line without Social Security benefits.

Legislative Update

Veto override highlights busy Legislature

A veto override was the highlight of the week, as it was the first such procedure of the year and first during my time as a voting member of the Nebraska Legislature.

LB600, a bill introduced by Sen. Kathy Campbell of Lincoln, is intended to generate additional federal funding for payment of Medicaid rates to Nebraska nursing facilities. Under federal regulations, a state may collect an assessment from a class of health care providers (i.e. nursing facilities — in this case). Once collected, the state pays 100 percent of these assessments back to nursing facilities. Under federal law, this is considered a state payment to Medicaid providers, which then qualifies for federal matching funds of 58.44 percent. Proponents of the bill say that 39 other states have similar nursing facility provider assessments, and we should also be in line for the matching federal funds.

Gov. Dave Heineman vetoed LB600 and LB600A (the funding bill), saying the bill artificially inflates provider rates to a level that is neither fiscally responsible nor sustainable. The National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform has referred to the provider taxes as a gimmick and recommended elimination of the practice. I was in South Sioux City when the bill first passed, so I was absent when the first Final Reading vote was taken. During the override attempt, I was present but did not vote in favor of the override. I understand that nursing facilities need all the money they can generate to cover increasing costs. I do worry, however, when states develop systems with the sole purpose of receiving "free federal money." If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is, and I don't want the federal government to end this program and leave the state in a more difficult financial situation.

Legislative Update

By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

The veto was overridden with a 44-vote majority.

LB463 is a bill that was debated and advanced to Final Reading. The bill would strengthen a law passed last year concerning chronic truancy in many of the state's public schools. Last year, approximately 23,000 Nebraska students missed more than twenty days of school; approximately 82,000 missed more than 10 days. LB463 would require schools to share information with child welfare officials, courts and the Nebraska Crime Commission regarding students who miss more than 10 days a year. The bill also requires schools to develop policies to deal with extended student absences because of serious illness. LB463 makes other changes as well: (1) it would allow law enforcement officials to have access to sealed juvenile records before hiring applicants for employment; and (2) establishes a grant program for Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASAs). CASA volunteers are appointed by judges to watch over and advocate for abused and neglected children. I support this bill, and hope it will make a difference in the lives of many Nebraska children.

The Appropriations Committee recently released the 2011-2012 proposed budget. The Legislature now has ten days to debate, modify and pass a budget. Speaker Mike Flood told state senators to prepare to work into the evenings on certain nights during the month of May to make sure the business of the Legislature is completed before adjourning in June.

Then there is LB628, the bill that would allow governmental bodies to give away vehicles rather than selling them and returning the money to the government. I asked for and received an opinion from the Attorney General's Office, and there are some issues. I have had more amendments drawn in hopes of stopping this giveaway. We will see if the body is, in fact, intent on giving away your property.

Prepare selves, plants for proper planting this spring

As spring arrives, the planting season is underway. When planting trees and shrubs, spring is the second best time of year; second only to fall, with its long period of moderate temperatures allowing more time for root development before the plant is tested by a hot Nebraska summer.

Gardeners wanting to plant trees and shrubs this spring have a window of time from approximately April 1 through June 30 when soil is workable and temperatures are favorable for new plant establishment. Avoid planting trees and shrubs in the middle of summer, from July 1 through August 20, when conditions are very hot and dry.

Bare root plants, such as fruit trees, small fruits and roses, are normally planted earliest in the spring while they are still in a dormant state and before their buds begin to swell. Ideally, bare root plants should be planted the same day they arrive. However, this is not always possible. Plants may need to be stored until planting conditions improve. Careful handling before planting occurs will determine success or failure. Bare root plants have had the soil washed or shaken from their roots after digging from the field. Since bare root plants lack a rooting media that supplies water to the plant, they must be stored in a dormant state with temperatures slightly above or below freezing and high humidity levels around 95 percent. However, do not allow them to freeze.

When bare root plants are shipped from a nursery, their roots are usually wrapped in damp sphagnum moss or newspaper. The plants are then placed in a plastic bag and packaged in a wax-coated or cardboard box. After receiving the plants, inspect them briefly to ensure they are healthy, undamaged and that the packing material is still moist. Re-wet the packing material if necessary and then store the plants in their packaged state, under cold temperatures, until they can be planted.

It is helpful to re-hydrate the plants by soaking them in a bucket of water for a couple hours right before planting. However, do not store the plants with their roots in water overnight.

Container plants have a longer window of time when they can be successfully planted. That time approximately is from late April through the end of June. Be careful with plants that have been protected in a greenhouse when planting them outside before the last spring frost date. Providing protection may be necessary if heavy frost is predicted to avoid leaf damage. To minimize stress on the plants, try to plant on a calm or cloudy day, and keep the plants moist during the planting process.

With wood plants, like trees and shrubs, it is best to plant them directly into the native soil, without any soil amendments. New roots will tend to stay within the area of amended soil instead of spreading out and providing good support for the tree. Eliminating soil amendments actually results in a more extensive root system.

When planting any tree or shrub, one of the most important considerations is making sure it is planted at the correct depth. Roots need oxygen from soil to properly grow. If a plant is planted too deep, the root system doesn't develop as well because it doesn't receive enough oxygen. As a result, the plant can be stunted, have low vigor and be more susceptible to insects and diseases throughout its life.

To determine the proper planting depth, find the first main root at the top of the root system and plant it just below the soil surface. If the plant is in a container, remove it from the container, then pull the soil away from the top of the rootball until the first root or the "root flare" is located. The root flare can be found on all trees at the base of the trunk where the trunk widens before differentiating into the root system. When planted properly, the tree's root flare should be visible at the soil surface after planting.

When ready to plant, don't dig the hole any deeper or loosen the soil at the bottom of the planting hole any more than necessary. If the soil is too loose, it will settle after the plant has been in the ground for awhile, causing the plant to sink. Dig a shallow, wide hole and loosened soil around the sides. Roughing up the edges of the hole will avoid "glazing" from the back of the shovel that can make it difficult for the root to penetrate through the soil as the tree begins to grow.

Remove any burlap, ropes, strapping materials, plastic containers, wire baskets, plant tags or any other type of labeling attached to the plant before putting the plant in the planting hole. Once the proper planting depth has been checked, backfill with soil, gently firming the soil around the base of the roots. When the hole is filled, apply water and soak the planting hole, allowing water to eliminate any remaining air pockets. Finally, apply a two to three inch layer of organic mulch, such as wood chips.

Staking trees is not recommended unless the plant is in a very high wind location. Also, don't fertilize new trees and plants for the first two to three years after planting. The same goes for pruning and shaping. Limit pruning to broken branches only during the first few years. Visit the Nebraska Forest Service site at nfs.unl.edu/retreenebraska.asp for suggestions on great plants for Nebraska landscapes. ReTree Nebraska's "Eleven for 2011" lists 11 great plants that are well-adapted to Nebraska conditions and should be used more widely across the state. Also, for more information on good techniques for planting trees and shrubs, visit the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum website at arboretum.unl.edu/plantinfo.html

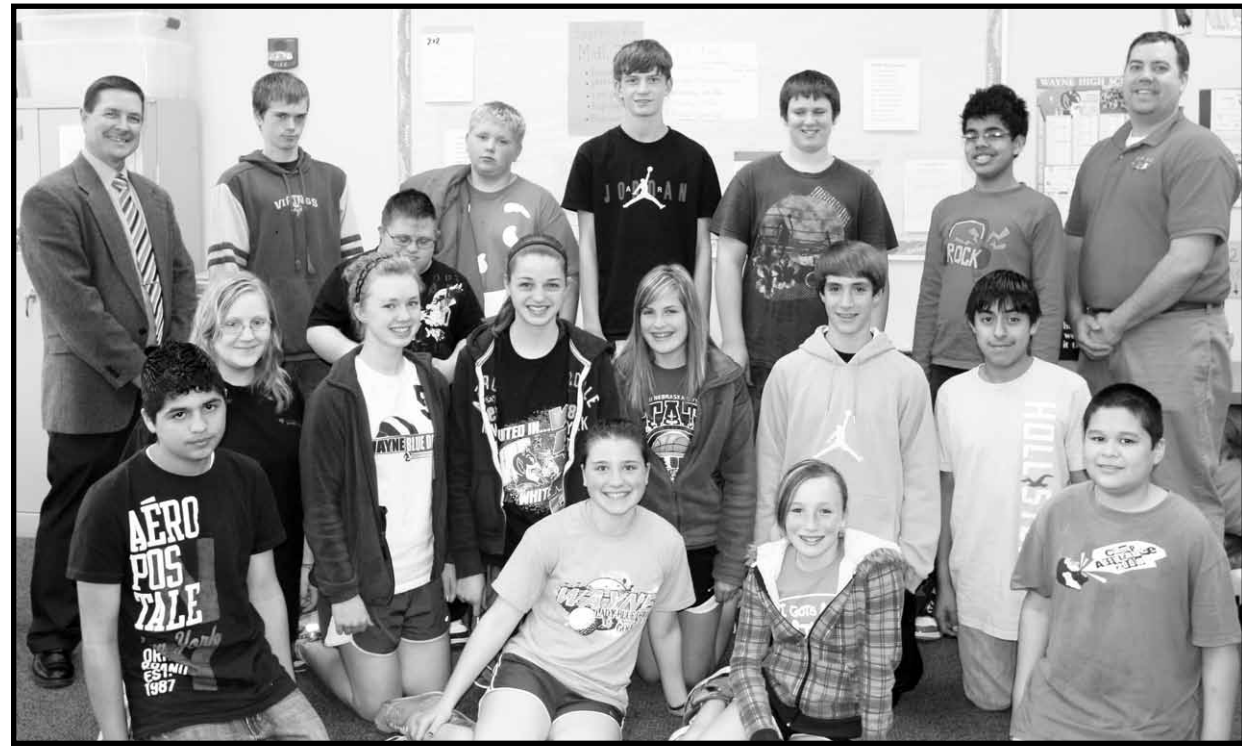

Sales for Schools

St. Mary's Elementary School received $675 during this year's Pac 'N' Save promotion. Adam Endicott from Pac 'N' Save, second from left in the back row, poses with the students and staff at the school. Mark Evetovich, Head Teacher at the school, said the money will be used to purchase general supplies as needed throughout the school year.

Those who spent time calculating the sales receipts at the Wayne Middle School were members of Mrs. Traci Krusemark's 212 Homeroom. Here they pose for a picture with Rocky Ruhl, left, and Adam Endicott, right. The school was the "winner" in the competition, collecting a total of $700 for the school.

At Wayne High School, the students in the Future Business Leaders of America counted the receipts and were awarded a check for $500. They include (from left) Annette Rasmussen, Advisor, Zach Rasmussen, Aspen Pflanz, Jenn Pieper and Adam Endicott from Pac 'N' Save.

Luke Trenhaile (left) and Emily Nelson will represent Wayne at this year's Cornhusker Boys and Girls State.

Candidates chosen to represent Wayne at Boys, Girls State

Emily Nelson and Luke Trenhaile, juniors at Wayne High School, will represent Wayne at the annual Cornhusker Girls and Boys State.

The two will spend the week of June 5-11 on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln city campus learning about their city, county and state government.

Emily is the daughter of Jeryl and Rochelle Nelson of Wayne. She is a participant in cross country, Spanish Club, Mock Trial, Speech and W-Club. She is a probationary candidate for the National Honor Society. She has been named to the Honor Roll.

She serves as a Vacation Bible School teacher, acolyte at Our Savior Lutheran Church, has worked at the Food Pantry, Orphan Grain Train and Relay For Life.

Luke is the son of Jason and Phylis Trenhaile of Wayne. He has been involved in football, basketball, track, varsity and marching band, has earned a Kiwanis Academic award and UN-L Breakfast of Champions Award. He is a probationary candidate for National Honor Society.

He was a Bible School assistant teacher, youth basketball assistant, is part of the Relay For Life team and WINGs Youth Group at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The two students are being sponsored for this event by the local veterans organizations and auxiliaries.

The objective of Girls State is to educate the participants about the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities in a democracy so they will return to their communities as better citizens. Delegates will have achieved a greater understanding of how the government functions, both on the municipal and state levels.

American Legion Cornhusker Boys' State is set up as a functional "51st state" and each boy learns how government subdivision operate by actually doing the job. Participants will campaign for offices, hold elections, take part in band and chorus, compete in athletics and be involved in other varied activities as part of the citizenship training program. They will set up their own state government and draft bills.

Among those involved in the Technology competition were (from left) Garrett Zink and Gage Main, both of Wayne - first place; Demetrius Alexander, Wayne, second place; Ty Gartner, Chambers, third place in CO2 Egg Hauler, Level 1.

Students take part in Industrial Technology competition

The 28th Annual Industrial Technology Competition was held recently on the Wayne State College campus.

Lifestyle

The Wayne Herald

Keep kitchen health inspector ready

No one wants to go to a restaurant that didn't pass its health inspection, but do people think about if their own kitchen would pass inspection? They should.

Clean kitchens provide more than something pretty to look at. Though people may not be able to see, smell or taste viruses and germs, they are present. These bacteria can spread easily between hands, utensils, cutting boards, sinks, food and counter-tops. It's important to keep food surfaces, surroundings and food preparers clean.

Hand washing is extremely important. Hands and kitchen surfaces should be washed with hot soapy water to prevent the spread of bacteria. Hand washing should occur before preparing food and after various activities: using the bathroom, changing diapers, sneezing, coughing, touching a cut or open sore, playing outside and playing with pets. When washing, scrubbing should occur for at least 15 seconds or sing "Happy Birthday" two times.

Also, the easiest thing to do is wipe up spills as they occur with dishcloths or single-use paper towels. Re-usable dishcloths should be changed daily and washed in a clothes washer with hot water before reuse. If wiping a very dirty counter with a dishcloth, it may need to be washed after that one time before it is re-used. Scrubbers and sponges should be sanitized and changed often, too.

The best way to deep clean and sanitize dishes and food preparation surfaces is for people to create their own sanitizing product by using one teaspoon of chlorine bleach in one gallon of warm water. Mixing chemicals is not advised, as certain chemicals, such as ammonia and chlorine, should never be mixed because together they create a deadly gas. Many cleaning agents contain one of these compounds. Baking soda alone also can be used for some cleaning purposes.

Wash utensils, cutting boards, dishes or counter-tops with hot, soapy water after preparing one food item before beginning preparation for the next food item. Also, use separate cutting boards for meats, poultry and vegetables. Replace boards when they become worn with cuts and grooves, as those cuts can harbor bacteria. Rinse all fruits and vegetables under cool water before eating them. Before peeling melons, oranges, lemons and bananas, rinse them under running tap water to remove bacteria. Also wash fruits and vegetables right before using them, not before storing them. Fresh produce should be refrigerated within two hours of peeling or cutting.

Another important step for keeping the kitchen health-inspector ready is by maintaining a clean refrigerator. Clean the inside of the refrigerator at least every three months by removing shelves and bins. Placing an opened box of baking soda on one of the refrigerator shelves can help keep the refrigerator smelling fresh. Do not use solvent cleaning agents, abrasives and cleansers that may give food a chemical taste or cause damage to the refrigerator's interior finish. Closely follow the manufacturer's instructions.

To clean the outside, use a soft cloth and mild liquid dishwashing detergent along with cleansers and polishes made for appliances. Make sure the front grill is free of dust and lint so there is free air flow to the condenser. Clean the condenser coil with a brush or vacuum cleaner several times during the year to remove dirt, lint and other accumulations.

USDA recommends throwing out perishable foods that should no longer be eaten once a week. Generally, cooked leftovers can be stored for four days. Raw poultry and ground meats can be stored for one to two days. If unsure about how long other meats, poultry and egg products can be stored, refer to a cold storage chart.

If food has spoiled and odors remain, the following steps can be taken to remove the odors:

- Wipe the inside of the refrigerator with equal parts vinegar and water.
 - Wash the inside of the refrigerator with a solution of baking soda and water, scrubbing the gaskets, shelves, sides and door. Let it air out for several days.
 - Stuff the refrigerator with rolled newspapers, close the door and leave it for several days. Then, remove the paper and clean the inside with vinegar and water.
 - Sprinkle fresh coffee grounds or baking soda loosely in the bottom of the refrigerator or place them in an open container.
 - Place a cotton swab soaked with vanilla inside the freezer, close the door for 24 hours and then check for odors.
 - Use a commercial product available at hardware and housewares stores, following the manufacturers' instructions.

Wendy Vawser Residential Sales

When getting your house ready to sell, does furniture really matter?

First, I feel that a house always shows better if you can leave a few large pieces in place for the showing. This allows the buyer to better visualize where they might put their "sofa" or "TV". It also quiets a room by eliminating echoes caused by empty rooms. However, be aware that while a room with too few pieces can appear cold and uninviting, too much furniture can make a room seem small and crowded.

The furniture placement is as important as how much furniture you have. For example, once while walking through a house I was considering purchasing, the current owners had a sofa positioned in the main doorway of the living room. Although you could enter the room from another door, this made the room feel very closed off. This type of arrangement could negatively impact buyers. Effectively keeping them from seeing the floor plan as it was designed to be used.

Today's sellers are increasingly turning to professional stagers to help them arrange their house for showings. It has been shown that a staged house will sell quicker and usually for a higher price than a house that has not been staged. Your real estate agent can help you find a professional stager in your area. Call me if you have questions, I would be happy to help!

Our Savior to Welcome Houses for Health Leader

Our Savior Lutheran Church of Wayne welcomes Bob Kasworm as their guest preacher at worship services on Sunday morning, May 8. In addition to speaking in Our Savior's worship services at 8 and 10:30 a.m., Kasworm will also lead a special forum at 9:15 a.m. on Sunday morning.

"Bob Kasworm is truly a remarkable individual," said Pastor Bob Oleson of Our Savior Lutheran Church. "Bob, who lives and serves fulltime in Tanzania, is back home in Nebraska for three weeks, and we are excited and honored to welcome him to the Wayne community and Our Savior Lutheran Church!"

Prior to 2001 Bob had not much interest in visiting Africa, let alone living in Africa. Moreover, he did not know that his combined education in medical matters and business, along with his responsibilities managing most hospital departments for Alegent Health in Omaha were preparing him to serve in Tanzania.

From his first visit in early 2001, Africa became his passion and since that time Bob has led the Alegent Health initiative in Tanzania.

Living in the village of Machame on the lower slopes of Kilimanjaro since 2004, he serves on the leadership team of Machame Lutheran Hospital and as Administrator of the Machame Orthopedic Center. He is a Global Mission Associate of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and serves as the Nebraska Synod's commissioned representative in Tanzania where he directs the Houses for Health and Adopt-a-Dispensary programs and provides valuable leadership to additional Alegent Health and Nebraska Synod health efforts in Tanzania. He is a member of Lord of Love Lutheran Church in Omaha.

Bob Kasworm comes to speak at Our Savior as part of the congregation raising over $25,000 to build homes in Tanzania. The homes are being built through a Nebraska-based ministry that Kasworm directs called Houses for Health.

Bob Kasworm works with families in Tanzania to provide adequate housing.

Houses for Health is a ministry partnership of the Nebraska Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America and Alegent Health of Omaha. "Houses for Health grew out of the tremendous need for healthier living conditions in Tanzania," added Kasworm. "Through this program modest, functional homes are constructed for specifically targeted individuals and families in Tanzania whose poor health is threatened further by the conditions of their current homes."

Sermon series to reflect on last words of Christ

First United Methodist Church in Wayne is currently conducting a series of sermons on the The Seven Last Words of Christ.

The May 1 service focused on "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do."

The May 8 service topic is "Truly, I tell you, today you will be with me in Paradise" and the May 22 service will be titled "Woman, here is your son."

The series continues on May 29 with "My God, My God, why have you forsaken me?" and June 5 with "I am thirsty."

The final sermon in the series will take place on Sunday, June 19 and will be titled "Father, into your hand I commend my spirit."

"Please join us for the sermon series reflecting on Jesus' last words from the cross and their meaning for us today," said Pastor Peter Phillips of First United Methodist Church.

Sunday services at the church are held at 8:15 and 9:30 a.m., with a motto "Open hearts, open minds, open doors."

ened. Despite the medicine, it is not easy to survive AIDS, tuberculosis and more if you are wet, cold, and sleeping in the mud or dust.

To help address this need the Nebraska Synod in partnership with Alegent Health launched the Houses for Health program nearly 3 years ago. The cost for a home is $4,000. Houses for Health is able to generate meaningful employment by employing 100 percent local labor and directly injecting cash into the local economy through using 99 percent local materials.

For additional information concerning the ministries of Our Savior, please contact the church office at (402) 375-2899. Our Savior is located at the corner of Fifth and Main streets in Wayne.

Alfalfa weevils need to be monitored

It's time once again when alfalfa weevils begin feeding on first cutting alfalfa. I know it's a busy time but growers who want high quality alfalfa will want to check their fields for this insect pest.

Most alfalfa weevils overwinter as adults, and then become active and lay eggs. In the last few years some areas of the state have received damage to regrowth after the first cutting due to a combination of late larval feeding and adult feeding. This is something to be aware of after the first cutting.

Getting back to the present, based on growing degree days, alfalfa weevil larvae should be feeding, and small pinholes may be visible in the new alfalfa growth near the tips of the plants. While alfalfa weevil damage has been spotty in much of Nebraska over the past few years, the potential for damage always exists.

Alfalfa weevil and also clover leaf weevils feed on first cutting alfalfa as larvae, and regrowth after the first cutting as adults (and sometimes larvae). While research conducted in northeast Nebraska has shown that clover leaf weevil larva feeding does not result in yield reduction to first cutting alfalfa, Alfalfa weevil feeding can cause severe losses to yield and quality of the first cutting. It is essential that fields be monitored for alfalfa weevil feeding now. Damage consists of small holes and interveinal feeding on the newest leaflets near the stem tips. The larvae are a small (1/16 to 3/8 inch in length), pale yellowish green, becoming a darker green when larger. These legless worms have black heads and a white stripe the length of the back. The alfalfa weevil larvae spend nearly all their time on the plant. They curl into a C-shape when disturbed. Once the alfalfa is about 4-6 inches or so in height, take a bucket, carefully cut some stems at ground level (30 to 50 per field, from various spots in the field) and shake the stems against the side of the bucket. Average the number of weevil larvae per stem. In general, at today's prices if one or more weevils are found per stem and the alfalfa is less than 12" tall, an insecticide treatment may be necessary.

Ag Happenings

Charts have been developed to aid you in making a decision on whether to control alfalfa weevils. Each chart has been developed for a different alfalfa value. To treat or re-sample depends on the average number of weevils per stem, the stem length, and the value of the alfalfa. These tables can be found online at cropwatch.unl.edu/web/insect/alfalfapests

When alfalfa reaches a certain height, it may be more profitable to cut the alfalfa early rather than to treat. Finally, many insecticides are registered to control alfalfa weevil. Check the website above to find a list, or call your local extension office or ag supplier.

Whirlwind week full of activities

You know what, this has been a strange week for emotions; hearing last night that Bin Laden had been shot was just the last straw! To me, it almost feels like an anticlimax; especially when we learn he's been living in luxury "in plain sight."

Easter weekend was a blur, with the choir cantata on Good Friday, and early services on Sunday. That music was my "earworm" until Thursday night, when we traveled to Norris High to hear Randa sing in Les Miserables. She was Eponene, and sang some great stuff before being shot!

Now, it's Les Mis in my head: I Dreamed a Dream, Who Am I, Master of the House, Bring Him Home, and Empty Chairs and Empty Tables.

The first time I saw Les Mis was 25 years ago, when the Lied Center was brand new, and I was completely blown away. This was the high school version, but the music is just as powerful.

Since it was Grandma's 95th birthday, and she kept saying she wanted to hear Randa sing, we took her along. With arthritis in both knees, it's a project just to get in and out of the theater, but she stayed awake for the whole thing.

She actually celebrated all week, with her picture in the paper on the 24th, a cake at Bible study on Thursday morning, lunch with my sis that day, and dinner with a granddaughter who turned 13 on Friday, here on Saturday. There were also flowers on the church altar in her honor.

Before I could get to Norris High School on Thursday eve, I drove to Wayne and back to have lunch with the faithful hospice volunteers at

By: Pat Meierhenry

Providence. Thirty-one men and women were recognized, and 11 have put in 20 or more years. That is amazing!

Then, there was the Royal Wedding; we did not get up in the middle of the night, but saw reruns on both Friday and Saturday. It helped to take our minds off the devastation in the South caused by the tornadoes. A lot of the news photos can cause nightmares. My heart goes out to those who lost everything, even their lives. One particular picture broke my heart; a father who had made a cross from the crib of the baby who had been killed. I feel so blessed to be safe in my home.

Finally, on Sunday eve, it was Brothers in Song at a local church, an annual tradition. This year, the Norfolk Men's Chorus came on an Arrow bus (what else?) and sang two great numbers. There was also the Christ Lutheran Men's Chorus, the Hastings Plains Barbershoppers, the Beatrice "Heartland Hoedowners", and the Lincoln Continentals. When those 175 voices joined in singing Rise Up, O Men of God, the roof of that church was almost raised from its supports. It was awesome! So, now, I have all that music in the head, too!

And, as the director reminded us, music is healing. I also heard Erin Bode on The Prairie Home Companion sing Be Still, My Soul, just for the storm victims, and I cried. Thank God for the Red Cross, and Orphan Grain Train, and all the wonderful folks who are there to help. And pray for good weather! PS; I just got an email with pictures of the Texas wildfires; more sad stories.

Rural Domestic Preparedness Consortium bringing Department of Homeland Security-certified course to Wayne

Security is always a major concern when a large group of people come together for a public event, and rural first responders and public officials need to understand the importance of and necessity for planning and managing security for any event.

The Rural Domestic Preparedness Consortium (RDPC) is providing first responders and others in Wayne with the planning and management-level skills they need to develop strategies and implement security measures for planned events in a free Department of Homeland Security (DHS)-certified course.

This 16-hour, classroom-led course, scheduled to be delivered by RDPC on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 10-11, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Wayne Fire Hall, gives participants a basic competencies associated with the security concerns and considerations involved with planning any event.

MGT 335, Event Security Planning for Public Safety Professionals, is designed as a planning/management level course for practitioners in the emergency services sector, public health, local and state government, emergency management, and others involved in the first response community. The training introduces basic principles and skills associated with planning security for events in small communities and rural areas. It does not provide operational training regarding security at planned events.

The course, developed by Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Ky., an academic partner and executive agent for RDPC, enables participants to recognize and plan adequate strategies and security measures to prevent or mitigate security incidents related to planned events. The course reinforces the importance and magnitude of security planning required to execute a safe and effective event regardless of the size of the event.

SEWER CLEANING NOTICE
During the next couple of weeks, the City of Wayne Sewer Department will be having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the City. While a considerable amount of cleaning will be done in the central and western part of the City, there are a number of other small areas that will also be cleaned.
In this process, high pressure water is forced through the sewer pipe to clean it. This pushes solid materials to the manholes so they can be removed by vacuuming. This entire process is necessary to keep obstructions out of the sewer system and to insure proper drainage of waste.
Residents should be aware that when this process is done, the high pressure water pushes the air in the sewer line which occasionally enters the private sewer lines into homes and businesses. If this happens, it usually results in the air exiting through toilet bowls, shooting the water out of the toilet bowl. This air should exit through the sewer vent of the building, but inadequate venting or location of toilets can cause the air to exit through the toilet. This is a rare occurrence, and keeping the lid closed on the toilet during this time will keep most of the water in the bowl rather than on the floor.
