Cancer survivor is giving back

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

When Pat Carnes' gynecologist told her she needed to have a biopsy after her mammogram on June 17, 1999, she really wasn't too concerned.

"I always had my annual exam after school got out and I had had unusual findings before," Pat said.

However, when her doctor called her at 5 p.m. on Friday afternoon and said she need to see her right away, she knew something was not right.

"I had an appointment at 8 a.m. the following Monday and my doctor already had a plan. I am very thankful to my doctor. She had a plan in place and had already made appointments for me to see a surgeon and an oncologist," Pat said.

The surgeon suggested a mastectomy and the oncologist agreed. The surgery was performed June 28 in Norfolk and at that time it was determined that lymph nodes were involved.

At this time a schedule was set up and Carnes' doctors advised her to get a second opinion on the best course of treatment.

"I saw Elizabeth Reed in Omaha and she agreed with the doctors' diagnosis and offered suggestions. I started chemotherapy on July 20. The doctors put in a port and that didn't work, so they put in another and that didn't work either. This was one of the frustrating parts of the treatment," she said.

The treatment plan called for three months of adriamycin/cytosin, followed by three months of taxol.

"I had treatments every three weeks, always on a Wednesday. I would miss that day of school and then go to school on Thursday and Friday mornings and then rest in the afternoon. The school was my refuge, they were so good and very helpful throughout my whole treatment," said Carnes, who was a teacher at Emerson-Hubbard High School.

Commission can conduct discovery, issue subpoenas

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Wayne Civil Service Commission will allow special counsel Scott Norby to conduct pre-discovery hearings and issue subpoenas as required in the hearing for fired police officers Lance Webster and Phil Shear.

At Tuesday's meeting, the board was set to discuss the measure, as objections had initially been raised by city administrator Lowell Johnson, who suspended both police officers in February and terminated their employment two months later, as to whether the commission had the authority to conduct such hearings.

Norby told the board that counsel for the city administrator had conceded that the commission does have the authority to authorize pre-hearing discovery, so the issue is now a moot point.

"However," he said, "the city administrator's counsel has raised individual objections to many of the pre-hearing discovery requests . . . I have asked them to identify all their objections regarding those outstanding discovery requests by the close of business on Wednesday."

Once he receives those requests, Norby See DISCOVERY, Page 3A

City gets money from former administrator

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

Generally, the Wayne City Council agenda items deal with spending money, but the first item on Tuesday's agenda was accepting money.

Former City Administrator Joe Salitros was present at the meeting to present two checks.

Salitros, who served as City Administrator from 1990-2000, spoke of what the community of Wayne meant to him and his family and said that now, at his retirement from working with city governments, he has decided to give $100 per year of employment to each of the communities he has been a part of during the past 32 years.

"Our family was welcomed into the community, the school and the church here in Wayne. We had a great run here in Wayne and I want to thank all of you for that," Salitros said.

Locals offer helping hands

Local company building dam at new center

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

SOUTH SIOUX CITY – The shine of a brand new building was still evident as volunteers worked diligently to clear out its contents.

The new College Center, a joint venture between Wayne State College and Northeast Community College, was christened recently and was preparing for the summer semester of classes for both institutions. Those plans were altered, though, with the coming flood along the Missouri River.

Although the brand new $8 million building is more than a mile away from the river, officials are expecting the massive amount of water to flood a significant part of the northeast corner of Nebraska, and the College Center is right in the middle of where the flooding is expected to occur.

The two schools called on a Wayne construction firm, Milo Meyer Construction, to build an 11-foot high earthen dam around the building. The company was on the scene late last week, minutes after getting approval to go ahead with the project.

"We've done quite a bit of work with Wayne State, and they said they needed somebody to come over here as soon as possible," said Mark Meyer, who had arrived on the scene Friday afternoon with one of several pieces of heavy machinery that was scraping dirt and moving it into place. "We dropped all that we were doing and brought our equipment over."

As dirt was being moved into place,

Area storage units being rented by Sioux City area residents

By JAYCIE WOSLAGER
Of the Herald

Missouri River levels are increasing, and they are not likely to stop anytime soon.

Wayne and area towns have not seen the flooding, but will be affected by it. Local storage units are becoming popular among residents along the Missouri River who are looking for a place to protect their belongings from the coming flood.

Garry Poutre owns The Lockers in Wayne. Poutre has been contacted by approximately 7-8 homeowners in need of storage.

"Storage units are going to be in high demand if they're going 40 miles out of the way. This is assuming they've tried closer units, but have been declined," said Poutre.

He even received a phone call from the Yankton Chamber of Commerce, asking if any storage units were available. Unfortunately, Poutre has nothing to offer them. All of his units are full. He did have one available for a flood victim to rent, but then he called again saying he had found something closer. However, the next phone number on the waiting list was not a flood victim, but an employee at Wayne State.

There is a three-month minimum on the units, but people usually keep them for a long time.

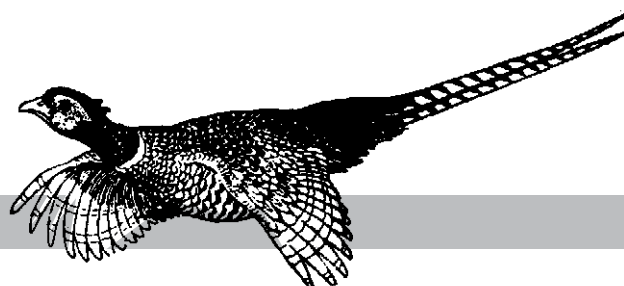

"I've had some units remain full for 10-12 years," said Poutre.

Ken Marra of Wayne, who owns Wayne Mini-Stor, has been contacted as well. Marra has rented to three different homeowners along the Missouri River, renting eight units total. Some customers have rented

Pay attention – what you plug in can cost you money

Here's a ghost story that's really haunting: Your appliances are plugged in, but even though none of them are turned on your meter still spins. This mystery may be solvable. Read on.

You have been doing your best to manage the energy you use in your home. You installed compact fluorescent lamps, invested in a high-efficiency heat pump system, and when they wore out you replaced your old less efficient appliances with newer, efficient appliances. As you open your latest electric bill, you can hardly wait to see the big drop in energy use and a much smaller bill. That is when it hits you. After all that work to reduce your use, your account still shows significant energy consumption. You were not even home much of the past month, yet the kilowatt hours are still there! How can that be?

Have you ever considered your "plug load"? A plug load is the energy consumed by any electric device that is plugged into a socket. Many of these devices consume power, even when you are not using them. That wasted amount of energy, often referred to as "vampire or phantom load," is the amount of energy devices consume while in standby mode or switched "off."

A recent Minnesota field study revealed that consumer electronics and entertainment devices account for 15 to 25 percent of the residential electric load. Today, we find that plug load is the fastest growing energy load in the residential sector.

Many of these devices are manufactured with an electronic interface that has a "standby" mode which accounts for 20 percent of the total electricity consumed by plug load.

What can you do to reduce this plug load energy consumption and phantom load waste? Here are some suggestions:

- Turn the TV and other connected devices off when they are not being used.
- Turn down the LCD's backlight.
- Turn on the power saver mode.
- Buy a television or computer monitor with a smaller screen.
- Reduce light output with other settings.
- Control room lighting.
- Watch TV together or watch less TV.
- Take inventory of all plug loads.
- Eliminate unnecessary appliances.

- Put gadgets on terminal strips that can be turned off easily.

- Disconnect devices everyday.

- Use your computer's power saving programs.

- Wash clothes in cold water and use extra spin cycle.

- Dry clothes on a low temperature setting.

- Use insulated carafes to keep coffee hot.

Combine a few of these measures to watch your energy savings add up! By understanding your plug load, with a little effort and a few small changes in how you use your appliances, you will become energy-wise in no time at all.

Items sought for Carroll time capsule

With the Carroll Q-125 celebration approaching, the Time Capsule that was buried at Carroll centennial celebration will be dug up and put on display in the Carroll Community Center.

The Carrolliner 4-H Club made all the preparations for the Time Capsule in 1986. The 4-Hers and area residents put a variety of items in the capsule, including a Cabbage Patch Doll, He-Man, money, newspapers, Book-It Pins, and many other items.

Everyone who would like to add to the items in the 2011 Time Capsule when it is buried is welcome to add whatever he or she would like. Donors may also indicate who they would like to receive the item when it is reopened again.

Contact Barbara Junck at (402) 585-4857 for more information on where the committee will be collecting new items to add to the capsule. All items should be placed in a zip lock bag and labeled. Items will be documented for a record of what is in the capsule.

The capsule will be re-buried a couple of weeks after the Q-125 so all items can be collected to be added to the items already collected.

The capsule will then be reopened in 2036.

Support for the library

Gardner Public Library was happy to receive a $100 donation from the Wayne Chapter Eagles Auxiliary 3757 on Friday May 13. While they may be the Wayne chapter, the group makes annual donations to libraries throughout the area, rotating between the smaller towns. This is their second donation to Wakefield. The group explained that their membership stretches beyond Wayne and they enjoy supporting the area. The donations are usually intended to support large print collections but can be used for whatever is needed. "They made the comment that it is only $100 but we think $100 is lovely," said librarian Kathy Muller. Three members of the group are shown here presenting Muller with the check. Student volunteers

When the administration and coaches at Allen contacted the students to get a list of volunteers to help with sandbagging, over 50 students signed up. Two busses took the students to the Wynstone Development at the Dakota Dunes on Monday. The students worked from 8 a.m. until noon filling and stacking sandbags.

Missouri River closed to rec boat traffic

Due to high water, the United States Coast Guard has closed the Missouri River along Nebraska to recreational boat traffic until further notice.

"The closure is due to floodwaters that put recreational boaters at risk," said Nebraska Game and Parks Commission Boating Law

Administrator Herb Angell. "The wash and wake caused by motorboats could cause additional damage to already flooded properties. Fast, deep water, loaded with debris has created a danger to boaters and public safety."

The river is flooding in many places because of increased discharges at Gavins Point Dam. Exceptional rainfall in Montana and the spring runoff has filled the reservoirs upstream from Gavins Point, causing the need for increased discharges.

Boaters on the lower Platte River also should use caution, and Game and Parks recommends that airboaters stay off the river.

volunteers and employees at the center were hard at work, filling sandbags and moving pallets loaded with the finished bags into place so that they could be set up to keep water from coming in through doors and windows.

The work was ongoing to protect the brand new building from the wrath of Mother Nature, said Dr. Bill Path, president of Northeast Community College.

"The levy around the building will be about 5 1/2 feet above the building level, and the water will have to break through two city levees and our levy to get here," he said. "We've got sandbags around doors and windows and foamed all the conduits where utilities are to make those water-tight, and we hope that will be enough. If Mother Nature had her way, there would probably be 4-5 feet of water in the building when it's all done, and we're not going to let that happen if we can help it."

While a lot of the furniture in the building is being moved to the second floor of the building, the two colleges have worked with area officials to move classes and administrative services to other areas. Classes will be held at the middle school in South Sioux City and at Homer High School, while administrative services – including financial aid, the bookstore and admissions – will be housed at the South Sioux City library and be available during the week from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

"We've had quite a bit of cooperation from area schools so that we can start classes on Monday," Path said Friday afternoon. "We apologize to our students for the inconvenience, but this building is a great source of pride for everyone in the area and we need to take every effort that we can to protect it."

With the help of local residents and business owners, the effort to minimize the damage the coming waters will create has been quite a venture.

"We're in our 60th year, and I don't think we've ever had to do anything like this," Meyer said. "This is something I've never seen in my lifetime."

already full, but Marra has several people renting multiple, smaller units.

"Most people were looking for bigger ones," said Marra.

He does have some empty units, because a few renters cleaned out their units this past weekend. Marra says the storage units are in pretty significant demand, even though Wayne is pretty far from the river.

Wayne Mini-Stor has a one-month minimum and then it is a month-to-month lease. Wayne Mini-Stor is in the process of building 24 new units and already have 224 units.

Dawn Casey of Laurel has received calls from approximately 3-4 homeowners along the Missouri River seeking storage as well. Most people that called had vacation cabins in the flood area.

On the positive side, Dawn does have some storage units available for the taking.

"We built a new unit that contains six units. Total, we have 16 units but three-fourths of the units are full already," said Casey.

Like Wayne, Laurel's storage units are quite full and should stay that way. Renters like to keep them. Casey's smaller units have a one-month minimum or the larger units have a 12-month lease. Casey said that the flood victims have not started moving their belongings in yet.

Discovery

said he will give counsel for the two officers a week to respond before moving forward.

The commission gave unanimous approval to a resolution that allows Norby to enter orders, sign subpoenas, issue protective orders and conduct other matters to keep the process moving forward.

Concerns about media and public access once the hearings start in August led to the commission tabling a decision on media access to the hearings after questions were raised by three representatives of media that have covered the event.

Michael Carnes, managing editor of The Wayne Herald, suggested that some of the limitations on how much equipment can be used is out of date, as the Herald, Norfolk Daily News and radio station KTCH-AM/KCTY-FM all have the capability to utilize their traditional media, as well as Internet, still photos and video.

"Some of these regulations are behind the times," he said. "We have three media entities that have multiple capabilities, and – with some of the limitations that are expressed here, I would ask the board to allow area media to make use of the multiple capabilities they have available."

Concerns were also aired by Jerry Guenther, regional editor for the Daily News; and Bill Seifert, news/sports director at KTCH-KCTY.

"(The proposed regulations) are geared more for court proceedings, and this is more subject to the Open Meetings Act," Guenther said. "I would suggest finding a different venue that could handle more people for (the first and final day of the hearing) at least."

Norby said he wasn't sure what other venues would be available, and was unclear how much public interest could be reasonably anticipated.

"This room has a capacity of 48-49 people, and it would make it a pretty tight room," he said of the City Council chambers. "With counsel for three parties and witnesses who may need to be present, we'll need to try to balance all these interests so it works."

Norby said the commission can't pick and choose which media would be allowed to cover the meeting, much the same as they can't pick and choose which members of the public can attend and observe the meeting. He said the regulations, as they are drafted, gives the commission to manage the media as necessary, "to assure that both parties have a fair hearing."

"The rules listed are not necessary to follow, but should be considered when a situation arises," he added, noting that media could cooperate and pool interests wherever possible.

"If we believe this room can't accommodate the attendance, the commission should look at another venue," he said. "If there is available public space that could accommodate these proceedings and accommodate the public, I think, at a minimum, we have an obligation to evaluate that."

Norby asked the board to hold off on setting a date for the next meeting, as he expects pre-hearing discovery to take 4-6 weeks.

"Our investigation is going to remain open until that's completed, and unless there are some other issues that come before the commission that require official action, the other issues are the procedural issues I'll have to rule on . . . I intend to do that as aggressively as I can to keep things moving forward."

Significance of Relay For Life important as local event approaches

The following is an explanation of the significance of the timing of this year's Relay For Life event, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, June 10-11.

"Relay For Life starts at dusk and ends at the next day's morning. The light and darkness of the day and night parallel the physical effects, emotions and mental state of a cancer patient while undergoing treatment.

"The Relay begins when the sun is setting. This symbolizes the time that the person has been diagnosed as having cancer. The day is getting darker and this represents the cancer patient's state of mind as they feel their life is coming to an end.

"As the evening goes on, it gets colder and darker, just as the emotions of the cancer patient do. The time around 1-2 a.m. represents the time when the cancer patients start treatments. They become exhausted, some sick, not wanting to go on, possibly wanting to give up. As a participant, you have been walking and feel much the same way. You are tired, want to sleep, maybe even want to go home, but you cannot. You cannot stop or give up, just as the cancer patient cannot stop or give up.

Team captains from the 14 teams involved with this year's Relay For Life turned in a total of $54,956.25 as of Monday evening in an effort to reach this year's goal of $70,000.

"The time around 4-5 a.m. symbolizes the coming of the end of treatment for the cancer patient. Once again, they are tired, but they know they will make it.

"The sun rising represents the end of treatment for the cancer patient. They see the light at the end of the tunnel and know that life will go on. The morning light brings on a new day full of life and excitement for new beginnings for the cancer patient. As a participant, you will feel the brightness of the morning and know that the end of the Relay is close at hand.

"When you leave the Relay, think of the cancer patient leaving their last treatment. Just as you are exhausted and weak, so is that person after treatment.

"Remember, there is no finish line until we find a cure."

Cancer

Dec. 22 and "meant we had a very quiet Christmas that year." Carnes kept a journal and tried to keep her normal routine as much as possible.

"My family, my friends, my church and my faith helped me through this. I know there is never a good time to have cancer, but I feel my cancer developed at one of the best times in my life. My sons were grown and through college and my husband, Ron, had retired from teaching so he was able to go with me to every one of my chemo treatments," Carnes said.

Following the chemotherapy, Carnes started radiation treatments in January and received 33 treatments.

"When I finished these treatments at the end of March, it was the first time in 10 weeks that I had gone a week without seeing a doctor," she said.

Carnes says she has a family history of cancer, as her mother has had cancer and three of her mother's brothers have had prostate cancer. In addition, she has lost a cousin to breast cancer.

"All of my treatments were in Norfolk. In fact, Johnny Carson had just donated additional money to the cancer center there before I started treatments. I am so thankful to the wonderful people there. In fact, it was a little sad to leave when my treatments came to an end," she said.

In 2001, Carnes became involved with the Wayne County Relay For Life event.

"In 2001, a group of friends and I had a small team. In 2002 my church (Our Savior Lutheran) started a team and we have gotten better at fundraising in recent years. For the past two years, I have worked with Kim Dunklau as a committee member for the event, taking care of the food which is served throughout the event. Relay is a great event," she said.

This year she sold $750 worth of tickets for a dinner for eight, which her church is raffling off for the event.

Pat is also thankful for the services offered by the American Cancer Society.

After her diagnosis, she was visited by a representative of the ACS, who helped her with things such as finding a wig and prosthesis and providing other information.

Carnes continues to be thankful for all those who have been a part of her journey during the last 12 years and credits all of them for her recovery.

"From all the doctors, to my family, my school, my friends and my church, I feel very fortunate that my cancer treatment was handled in the way it was. I am now happy to be able to be a part of Relay For Life and share my story with others."

Careage of Wayne will be under new ownership, as The Ensign Group, Inc. has purchased the business from Careage Management, LLC.

Careage to be under new ownership soon

Careage Management, LLC announced on Tuesday that it has agreed to sell its long-term care facilities in West Bend, Cherokee, Hawarden, Fort Dodge and Clarion, Iowa, as well as its facilities located in Beatrice, Falls City, Randolph and Wayne to subsidiaries of The Ensign Group, Inc. (Nasdaq: ENSG).

The sale is expected to become effective in July, 2011. This sale includes Careage Home Care in Cherokee, Iowa.

Careage Management is a Sioux City-based long-term care company owned by Dan and Ann Myers and Greg and Teri Grupp of Sioux City, Iowa and Jim and Jane Schulte of Omaha.

The company purchased Careage of Wayne from the Boyle Company in March of 2010.

Careage of Wayne is currently licensed for 60 skilled nursing beds and 32 Assisted Living beds.

Changes at the facility since Careage's purchase include updating the decor of the building, a change to a resident-centered philosophy of care and abundant choices for the residents.

Dan Myers, Careage President and CEO, said that Careage contemplated offers from various suitors before settling on The Ensign Group.

"Having had the opportunity to tour several Ensign facilities and visit with their staff and residents, we determined that Ensign best shares our philosophy of resident-centered care and providing a loving, dignified, home-like environment within the communities we serve," said Myers.

Careage employees were advised of the pending sale last week.

Greg Grupp, Careage co-owner, noted that Dan and Ann Myers have created a long-term care model whereby resident dignity, care and choice became the hallmarks of Careage. Ann Myers is head of Careage nursing and quality assurance. "You will not find two more compassionate leaders in the long-term care industry than Dan and Ann. They raised the bar and caregivers throughout the Careage organization delivered," said Grupp. The Myers will remain with the incoming Ensign operators for an indefinite period to ensure a smooth transition.

"We are anxious to build on Careage's outstanding reputation for resident care and patient outcomes," said Mike Dalton, President of Bandera Healthcare, Inc., the Ensign subsidiary overseeing the transition. "We admire the great work done by the Careage owners and the incredible Careage staff, and we look forward to working with them as we strive to strengthen partnerships with families and residents to provide quality care." He added that Ensign expects the Careage operations, with their 549 skilled nursing beds and 72 assisted living units, to be very positive for Ensign.

More information about Ensign is available at www.ensigngroup.net.

President Frye loses interim tag

Nebraska State College System Chancellor Stan Carpenter announced today that the NSCS Board of Trustees has appointed Curt Frye the 12th president of Wayne State College.

Frye began his career at Wayne State in 1985 and has held a number of leadership positions at the college, including interim president in 2003 and 2010 following the resignation of former President Richard Collings.

Board Chair Larry Teahon said, "Curt's ability to engage the community will allow him to position Wayne State College as a leader in higher education and make it an even stronger institution. His experience and insight at the college will allow him to hit the ground running. The Board and I are excited for what the future holds for Wayne State under his leadership."

Frye said, "I am honored to be named the 12th president of Wayne State College, and I look forward to facing the challenges and rewards that come with the position. Working with Chancellor Carpenter and my colleagues in the Nebraska State College System and involving the greater Wayne State community are critically important to moving Wayne State into the future."

"Curt Frye has been at the heart of the action at Wayne State for many years and has demonstrated a profound appreciation for the college and its role in Nebraska and the region. We are fortunate to have someone with his background and passion for working with students and the many other college and community constituencies in northeast Nebraska. I look forward to working with him and am excited about what Wayne State will achieve under his leadership," Carpenter said.

Trustee Carter "Cap" Peterson of Wayne said,

"I am delighted with the Board's decision to appoint Curt president. He is a long-time Wayne resident and has served the college and community with distinction. Curt and his wife, Dianne, are valuable assets to the college, the community of Wayne, the Nebraska State College System and the region."

Frye began working at Wayne State in 1985, serving as associate dean of students, dean of students, and in 1993, vice president and dean of students. A native of Elk City, he holds a Bachelor's degree in education from Midland Lutheran College and a Master's degree in education from Chadron State College.

Prior to coming to Wayne State, Frye was a teacher and coach at Cody/Kilgore and a guidance counselor in Neligh and Wayne. He and his wife, Dianne, have two children and two grandchildren.

Educators get offers from school district

Candidates for the elementary principal position and the high school physical education/health instructor position have received offers from Wayne Community Schools.

According to Wayne Schools Superintendent Mark Lenihan, "both of these offers are pending approval from the Wayne Board of Education at the June 13 Board of Education meeting."

Jill Pickinpaugh, a sixth grade teacher at Wayne Middle School has been offered the position as elementary principal. If approved, Mrs. Pickinpaugh will take over as elementary principal effective Aug. 1, 2011.

Terry Bear has been offered the high school physical education/health instructor position. Bear has been employed at the Laurel-Concord school district and would begin his new position at Wayne effective with the start of the 2011-2012 school, pending his release from the Laurel-Concord district and board approval at Wayne.

The Wayne Board of Education meeting is scheduled for Monday, June 13 at 5 p.m. in the high school library.

Board to receive county court costs

BY JAYCIE WOSLAGER
Of the Herald

KimBerly Hansen met with the Wayne County Commissioners Tuesday to discuss the county court costs.

These court costs can be waived and some cannot due to state statute, so then it is claimed to the county. These costs have not been submitted for a long time. Hansen had receipts from 2007 to present. The county has collected most of the money, but some still needs to be collected. The county board decided to have the county court costs submitted to them monthly.

The county board also decided on a driveway policy. The policy states that if the county receives requests for access to driveways and culverts, then the following guidelines have been proposed and will be in place:

Farmstead Drives: Wayne County will furnish access across county road ditches to any new home site that has no existing access drive. The drive will be constructed with up to a 40-foot long culvert. Wayne County will determine size, if needed. Extra width will be at owner's expense. The location must be agreed to by Wayne County.

Field Drives: Wayne County will furnish one drive per inside 80 acres or two per quarter section or corner 80 acres. Standard drives will be constructed with up to a 40-foot culvert. Extra widths will be at owner's expense. Wayne County will determine culvert sizes. Acreages less than 80 acres will be provided one access drive. All existing drives or fills, regardless of when or who installed them, are considered current drives.

Culverts: Culverts removed from existing drives or grade project drives will be the property of Wayne County, unless ownership by others is proven. Wayne County will determine if culverts are needed in driveways and what diameters are necessary.

Right-of-way: Dirt work in county right-of-way by owners/farmers/contractors must have permission from Wayne County.

Road Grade Projects: Existing drives will be reinstalled at no charge. Disturbed gravel drives will be regraded by Wayne County.

Fence Line Ridge: Fence line ridge removal with a patrol along county road right-of-way will normally be done for free.

Wayne County reserves the right to remove any improperly placed fills, tile, or culverts installed in county right-of-way, at landowner's expense.

He also spoke of the positive impact the Wayne Boy Scouts program has had on both of his sons and because of this, part of the money he was giving to the community will go to Wayne Boy Scouts Troop 174.

Following his presentation, Council President Doug Sturm accepted a check for $600 and Gary Wright, representing the Boy Scouts, accepted a check for $400.

The city will use the money to purchase two benches to be installed along the walking trail.

In other action, the council awarded a bid of just over $566,000 to Smeal Manufacturing in Synder for the purchase of an aerial ladder truck for the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

Wayne Fire Chief Tom Sievers and Brent Doring, a member of the committee who has been evaluating the bids for the truck, spoke to the council on the bids and noted that two other bids, both considerably higher, had been received.

The new truck will be a 2012 model and could take up to 330 working days to be completed.

Discussion was held on what to do with the current aerial truck, which is 35 years old and not capable of meeting the requirements for an aerial truck.

The council also spent a considerable amount of time discussing how much, if any, liquidated damages to assess to Layne Christensen Co. in connection to the Well House and Municipal well 2009-1 project.

Public Works Superintendent Garry Poutre told the council that he and JEO Consulting had worked to determine the actual amount of additional costs incurred by the city due to the delay. The contract had originally stated that the city could claim $242 per day in damages for each day beyond the contract date that the project was not completed. The total for this amounts to just over $45,000.

He noted that the project was originally set to be completed in early 2010, but an extension was granted to the contractors due to the unusual winter of 2009-10. He said the work was not 'substantially complete' until early 2011 and that because of this, an additional $16,500 was spent by the city in engineering costs and city labor.

In addition, the roof on the well house was installed by a contractor who was not certified by the company that produced the roof materials and therefore, the city would not be able to get the normal 10-year guarantee.

Lou Benscoter, who was a subcontractor on the project, said that he was unaware that the person who did the actual installation of the roof was not certified, but that his insurance carrier would insure the roof in the event of a failure within the next 10 years.

Layne Christensen Co. has offered the city a $1,500 deduct on the project for the roof issue.

After discussion, the council voted 7-1 to allow for a total of $18,000 in liquidated damages for the project. Council member Jill Brodersen voted against the proposal, saying "I have not seen anything that states why the project took so long. I feel that the entire amount of the damages is not unreasonable."

A contract was awarded to Mid State Erectors, Inc. for $612,762 for the Power Plant Cooling Tower project.

Gene Hansen, Electrical Production Superintendent, told the council that the improvements will save the city approximately $60,000 in electrical costs by not having to heat the water necessary for operation of the city's generators.

Tuesday's agenda contained a number of items dealing with street closing for upcoming community events, including Henoween (downtown streets), the Chicken Show (streets around Bressler Park) and a Wayne State College event entitled Stay-Cation, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 27. State law requires the city pass resolutions when dealing with the closing of a state highway.

All of the requests received unanimous approval from the council.

The council also approved a change order in the construction of the wastewater treatment facility.

Roger Protzman with JEO Consulting told the council that when the project was first designed and put out for bids, "We were concerned that it might come in over budget, so we did not include all of dissolved oxygen sensors in the bids. Because the bids came in almost a million dollars under budget, we feel it would be a good idea to put them in. They are an operation item, not a construction item," he said.

Council member Sturm asked why the sensors are needed and noted that "just because we are under budget, doesn't mean we need to spend more."

The additional sensors are expected to add approximately $44,000 to the project cost and mean an additional one month to the completion date.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, June 21 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

From The Bleachers

Michael Carnes

Who's next in college scandals?

Who's next? I don't know about you, but a long time ago, The Bleacher Bum stopped being surprised by some of the shenanigans that are going on in college athletics these days. In fact, I laugh when I see ESPN reporters or online scribes trip all over themselves trying to be the first to express shock and outrage at the violations of NCAA rules that are perpetrated by this coach or that athlete.

Oh the horror, they seem to be saying – an athlete (or coach) has violated NCAA rules by (insert criminal conduct here). How will this impact School X, yadda yadda yadda. What is this world coming to?

Yeah, big deal – all I really need to know is this: which school is the next one to cross off the checklist for having committed unthinkable major violations of the behemoth that is known as the NCAA rule book?

USC? Check.
Tennessee? Check.
Alabama? Check.
Florida State? Check.
Notre Dame? Check.
Oklahoma? Check, check and double check (some of you may not be old enough to remember when Barry Switzer and Bud Wilkinson thought the NCAA manual was nothing more than a glorified paper weight – Oklahoma's been on probation more often than the Delta boys in "Animal House.")

Next on the list – THE Ohio State University. By the time this current scandal du jour is finished, the folks who bleed crimson and gold in SoCal are going to take a second look at the penalties they got for the Reggie Bush scandal and say to themselves, "Geez, what we got is a slap on the wrist compared to what they're getting over there."

There are so many funny things about the situation involving the five Buckeye players who traded memorabilia for tattoos, drugs and money – and later received the kinds of deals on used cars that my uncle wouldn't even offer his family (and, yes, it's nice having an uncle in that particular business) – that it's hard for me to find a jumping-off point.

First off, the players get a deferred five-game suspension from the NCAA. They didn't get five games when it happened – the NCAA was encouraged to allow them to play in a bowl game, even though they were already being punished for violating NCAA rules. Can you imagine taking your parents' car without their permission during homecoming your junior year, and getting your two-week grounding deferred until after your senior prom? The Bleacher Bum has long been a critic of the way the NCAA does things, but this was a situation that defied even the NCAA's level of logical thought (which, obviously, isn't all that high).

Then there was Jim Tressell – the coach that had this persona of high ethics and incredible moral values. He was going out of his way to teach and preach. He wrote two books on values and living the good Christian life. Here was a man of such high moral fiber that it absolutely blew my mind when news started coming out that not only did he lie to the NCAA about the problem, but that he had received news of his players' misdeeds eight months before the news started to break and did nothing about it.

Ohio State, like almost every Div. I institution, offers lip service about maintaining integrity and playing by the rules. Those rules are all well and good, unless you want to win a national championship, play in a BCS bowl game and bring home wheelbarrows full of $100 bills every year so that your coaches can earn millions and your kids have to get by on nothing more than a scholarship. If that's your goal, then the rule book, evidently, doesn't

16-under Devils win 18-under division

Wayne team finishes 5-0 at Dirt Devil Invitational

The Wayne Dirt Devils 16-under team picked on older opponents and came away with first-place honors in the 18-under division of the Dirt Devil Invitational over the weekend at the Wayne Softball Complex.

The Dirt Devils were a perfect 5-0 for the weekend, starting action Friday with a pair of big wins, shutting out Pierce (13-0) and Winside (10-0).

In the Pierce game, Wayne got four runs in the second inning, three coming on a bases-clearing triple by Jalyn Zeiss. Zeiss had the hot hand in the first game, going 4-for-4 with two triples.

Wayne got five more in the fourth, keyed by a solo homer by Caitlyn Fehringer and RBI hits by Victoria Kranz and Kristen Carroll. McKenna Gibson also had an RBI in the big inning.

Wayne added four more in the fifth to end the game on the eight-run rule. Gibson finished with a perfect game, setting down all 15 batters she faced. She struck four in pitching the gem.

Wayne continued its hot bats against Winside, scoring five in the second and five more in the fourth to win their second game. Carroll and Megan Hoffart each had two-run doubles in the second inning, and Zeiss had a triple to start the fourth-inning explosion.

Carroll tossed a four-inning no-hitter, walking two batters. Only one batter got as far as second base in the game.

Wayne's only game on Saturday was a good win, as they beat the Pinnacle Bullets 6-4.

Wayne trailed 2-1 going into the fifth, but came through with five runs and sent 10 batters to the plate. Sydney Harris had an RBI double to highlight a six-hit inning for the locals.

On Sunday, Wayne came through with a 4-3 win over the O'Neill Heat. Carroll singled and scored the

In the final game of the tournament, Wayne jumped on the Atkinson Blaze early and pulled away for a 12-3 victory. Zeiss was 4-for-4 with a homer and a double and scored four runs in the win, while Hannah Gamble and Amanda Hurlbert each scored two runs. Gibson got the win in the circle, allowing three runs on five hits. She struck out six and hit a batter in getting the complete-game win.

Seniors start season with wins over Wakefield, Wisner

The Wayne Seniors American Legion team got the summer off to a pretty good start, winning their first two games in Ralph Bishop League action and going 1-2 at a tournament in Seward over the weekend.

On Wednesday, the Seniors could only manage three hits in the game, but made that stand up as Joey Lenihan and Gage Rethwisch combined on a no-hitter to help Wayne defeat Wakefield 4-0.

The Wayne team scored two runs in the first and two more in the fifth before the game was called due to lightning. Alex Onnen had two of Wayne's three hits, with Jacob Zeiss picking up the other safety.

Lenihan went four innings and struck out two while walking four and hitting a batter. Rethwisch finished things off, striking out two and hitting two batters in two innings of scoreless relief.

In their other league game, Wayne got some good offensive production and Brady Soden came up from the Juniors team and tossed a complete game to help the Seniors beat Wisner, 8-3, at Hank Overin Field.

"We played a good defensive game with only one error, and we got some timely hitting," coach Jeff Zeiss said. "Brady pitched a very good game. He came in and helped out with our shortage of arms after the tournament and pitched well."

The Wayne squad finished with 10 hits in the game, three coming from Rethwisch and two apiece from Onnen and Frank Bernal. Bernal had three RBIs, and Trent Beza executed a perfect hit-and-run play to score Drew Carroll and ignite a five-run third inning.

The Seniors found the going tough in Seward over the weekend, losing to the host team (8-1) and Lincoln

10-under Devils go 0-4 at Dirt Devil tourney

The Wayne Dirt Devils 10-under team took their lumps in their division of the Dirt Devil Invitational over the weekend, going 0-4 with three losses in pool play and a loss in bracket action.

On Friday, the Dirt Devils got off to a slow start and lost a 7-1 decision to the Norfolk Golden Girls. Tori Kniesche pitched well in a losing effort, striking out nine and allowing four hits. Norfolk took advantage of 10 walks and came away with the win.

"We got off to a slow start," coach Alesha Finkey said. "The girls just need to get up to the plate and swing the bat, because once they get on base we can usually execute from there."

In their first game Saturday, Wayne came up on the short end of a 12-5 matchup with the Norfolk Impact. Josei Thompson and Katelyn Grone each doubled and scored a run, while Annie Kniesche Amigos (10-6) while salvaging an easy 14-0 win over Syracuse to go 1-2 in the four-team, round-robin tournament.

Wayne battled Seward for most of their Friday matchup, but an error, two walks and a key hit helped Seward break the game open, scoring four in the fifth and three in the sixth to break the 1-1 tie.

Beza pitched well in a losing effort, scattering six hits and walking two while striking out two. He also had an RBI single in the game.

Wayne unleashed their bats on Syracuse in Saturday's game, exploding for seven runs in the first and adding five more in the third to turn it into a runaway.

Zeiss had two hits and scored two runs to lead Wayne's offensive effort. Taylor Carroll scored two runs in the game, as did Rethwisch and Lenihan. Rethwisch went all the way for Wayne in the four-inning game, striking out nine and scattering three hits while walking nobody.

Wayne tried to come back from a five-run deficit in Sunday's matchup with the Amigos. Lincoln scored six in the second, but Wayne came back to make a game of it, trailing 6-4 going into the fifth.

The wheels fell off Wayne's comeback, as errors led to a four-run fifth inning that helped Lincoln pull away.

"Our bats came alive, but we had five costly errors and allowed only two earned runs," Zeiss said.

Lenihan hit an inside-the-park home run as part of a three-hit day for him. Bernall also had three hits, while Trent Beza had a pair of hits.

The Seniors, 3-2 overall and 2-0 in league play, travel to Pierce for a matchup Friday at 8 p.m. They will host the Summerfield Tournament this weekend at Hank Overin Field, taking on Crete Saturday at 5 p.m. and finishing with matchups against David City and Pierce at 2:30 and 5 p.m., respectively.

picked up a hit and scored a run.

"It was a better game for us," Finkey said. "The girls started swinging the bat and started getting on base, and Tori pitched a good game for us."

In their final pool play game, Wayne came up short in a 9-8 loss to Blair. Grone pitched well, striking out five and allowing two hits and nine walks, and she helped her cause on offense with two hits, including a double. Abby Ankeny also had a double.

"Katelyn did a great job on the mound for us," Finkey said, "and the girls in the field did a great job behind her. They did much better at the plate and made some very good pitch selections and ran the bases well."

In tournament action Sunday, Wayne lost to Bennington 19-4. Allison Clausen highlighted the offensive effort by getting on base twice and scoring a run.

On Monday, the 10-under team got back on the winning track, posting a 10-2 win over Bancroft in league action at the Wayne Softball Complex.

Annie Kniesche had two hits and scored two runs, Grone added a double and Josie Thompson and Rachel Brudigam both had hits to highlight the offense. Grone pitched well, striking out nine and allowing to hits a deight walks.

"Katelyn had a great game for us, and she also excelled on the offensive end," Finkey said. "I was pleased with the way the girls came back from the tough game the day before. They swung the bat very well and did a great job running the bases. It was a huge improvement."

The 10-under team plays at Dodge on Monday.

12-Under Devils take second in tourney

Team goes 4-1 in own division, plays well at Dirt Devil Invite

The Wayne Dirt Devils 12-under team came through with runner-up honors in their division of the Dirt Devil Invitational over the weekend.

The 12-under squad went 4-1 in the round-robin tournament, posting wins over the Norfolk Golden Girls (9-3), Columbus Bullets (5-1), Norfolk Impact (5-3) and Yankton Extreme (13-0) while losing to the Scribner Red Rippers (6-0).

Coach Amanda Pearson was happy with her team's effort over the weekend.

"Really, aside from the Red Rippers' game, we hit the ball pretty well and I was happy with how the team played," she said.

Wayne was limited to a Jamie Gamble single in the loss to Scribner, but got good production up and down the lineup in the four wins during the six-team tournament.

In the win over the Golden Girls, Ashton Gibson scored twice to help her own cause in the circle. She threw a complete-game two-hitter against the Norfolk team, striking out two. Nicole Kraft helped out with two hits and two runs scored.

Against the Bullets, Hannah Belt picked up the pitching win, striking out eight and allowing just one hit. Danica Schaefer paced the offense with a two-run double.

In the win over the Impact, Wayne came back from a 3-0 deficit to get the win. Belt tied the game at 3-3 in the third with an RBI single, then doubled and scored the go-ahead run in the sixth off a single by Schaefer.

Wayne unloaded on Yankton in their final game, scoring 11 runs in the first inning. Gibson crossed the plate three times as one of five Wayne batters to score more than one run. Emily Matthes, Rylee Bessmer, Kennedy Maly and Kiera Hochstein each scored two runs. Gibson threw a one-hitter in the three-inning game, striking out half of the 10 batters she faced.

On Tuesday, the 12-under team hosted West Point in a doubleheader at the Wayne Softball Complex, and both teams came away with a win. The Dirt Devils took the opening game, 6-3, while West Point came back to win the nightcap, 6-1.

In the first game, Gamble and Maly each scored two runs, and Belt picked up the win in the circle, striking out six and allowing just two hits. West Point scored three runs in each of the first two innings of the nightcap and shut down Wayne's bats to earn the split.

The Dirt Devils 12-under team plays in a tournament in Sergeant Bluff this weekend before hosting districts June 17-19 at the Wayne Softball Complex.

Wakefield teams battle league foes Bleachers

The Wakefield American Legion baseball teams saw action last week, as the two teams battled Ponca and Hooper in Ralph Bishop League action while the Seniors took part in a weekend tournament at Wahoo.

On Friday, Wakefield hosted Ponca in a Juniors-Seniors doubleheader, and the two towns came away with a split for the night. The Ponca Juniors edged Wakefield 6-3, while the Seniors came out on top, 12-4.

On Monday, the Juniors were on the short side of a 10-2 loss to Hooper, while the Seniors came away with a high-scoring 11-8 triumph.

The Wakefield seniors lost three tough matchups at the Wahoo Invitational over the weekend.

On Saturday, the Wakefield nine lost to Omaha South 17-2, and battled the home team to the very end before coming up on the short end of a 9-8 decision. They closed the tournament Sunday with a 5-2 loss to Millard South.

From Page 1B apply to your particular institution of - ahem - higher learning.

So now it's come to this - no longer should we be stunned when a Div. I athletic department employs a Jim Tressell, a Pete Carroll, a Rick Neuheisel or a Bruce Pearl and watches as that coach treats the rules like an oversized doorstep. The question is no longer when it will happen, because you should know by now that it's going to happen.

The fun in all of this will come in trying to figure out which school will have to vacate entire seasons because of an ineligible player - or players - that is getting paid off or commits some other crime that muddies the reputation of a university.

Who's next? Your guess is as good as mine. And if you think your favorite school couldn't possibly be next on the list - you've got another think coming.

Wayne Juniors off to 4-0 start

The Wayne Juniors American Legion team is on an early roll, moving their record to 4-0 with a pair of league wins last week.

On Wednesday, Wayne broke a 2-2 tie by scoring seven runs in the final three innings to come away with a 9-2 win over in-county rival Wakefield at Hank Overin Field.

The Juniors broke through with two runs in the first inning, but Wakefield came back to tie the game in the second inning. It would stay that way until the fourth, when Wayne pulled away for the victory.

Drew Carroll, Luke Rethwisch and Danny Melena each scored two runs for Wayne in the winning effort, while Miles Anderson had two RBI's. Corey Doorlag pitched six solid innings for Wayne, striking out six and allowing one hit.

On Monday, the Juniors made it four in a row with a convincing 13-0 win over Wisner, breaking it open with a 10-run third inning.

Wayne led 3-0 going to the third, and put together its best effort of the young season with six hits in the inning, including a two-run single by Melena, a double by Jordan Backer, and RBI singles by Rethwisch, Anderson, Tyler Robinson, Steve Sherman and Bradley Longe each had RBI singles.

That was more than enough offense for Carroll, who allowed just one hit and one walk in four innings of work to get the win.

Urwilers honored with Good Neighbor Award

Scott and Diane Urwiler of Laurel were among the 49 recipients of the Good Neighbor Award, presented by The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben Foundation and the Omaha World-Herald.

The Good Neighbor awards recognize individuals from Nebraska and western Iowa who have performed neighborly acts and deeds unselfishly without personal gain.

The 49 recipients represent 28 Nebraska counties. Later this year, award winners will be recognized at their local county fair with a certificate and Good Neighbor lapel pin.

The Urwilers help many of the youth programs in their community. Scott removes snow from neighbors' acreages. Last fall he noticed a fire at a neighbor's home and assisted in putting the fire out. Also, he has recently helped pull out an individual who's car went into a road ditch.

The Good Neighbor Award program is one of several recognition programs the Foundation offers as part of its mission "to leverage collective business leadership to build a more prosperous Heartland."

Jensen tabbed for RHOP at Wayne State

Page Jensen of Winside has been accepted into the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College.

"The need for rural health professionals continues to grow," said Dr. David Peitz of Wayne State College. "These students have proven themselves to be gifted and dedicated to their profession. They have displayed the potential to develop into strong community leaders."

RHOP is a cooperative effort between Wayne State and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC), and encourages students from rural areas of Nebraska to return to rural settings after graduation to pursue their career. Individuals selected obtain guaranteed admission to UNMC Colleges upon successful completion of studies at WSC and receive a full-tuition waiver at WSC.

Students from communities of populations less than 10,000 are granted special consideration for admission to the RHOP program. Areas of study under the program include medicine; pharmacy; dentistry; dental hygiene and medical technology.

A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted higher education institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989. Selection of candidates is based on an applicant's residency in a rural Nebraska community, academic potential and commitment to practice in rural Nebraska.

She is the daughter of Kenneth and Deanna Jensen of Winside. Jensen plans to study dental hygiene. She will be attending Wayne State College in the fall of 2011 and attend the University of Nebraska Medical Center in the fall of 2013.

Information about the RHOP program can be found at: www.wsc.edu/schools/nss/rhop, call (402) 375-7329 or (800)228-9972 or e-mail preprof@wsc.edu.

Area residents encouraged to take precautions during flooding, clean-up

Some areas of Nebraska are experiencing water entry into homes from flooding, and residents should take special precautions.

Flood waters may contain fecal matter from sewage systems, agricultural and industrial waste, and septic tanks. Wear rubber gloves, protective clothing and a tight-fitting facemask, such as an N-95 or N-100 air filter mask, when working around mold and contaminated flooded areas. Persons with medical problems such as suppressed immune system or breathing problems, young children and the elderly should not be involved in the cleaning, said Shirley Niemeyer, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension housing and environment specialist.

If you have open cuts or sores exposed to the floodwater, keep them as clean as possible by washing them with soap and disinfectant and boiled water. Apply antibiotic ointment to reduce the risk of infection. Do not allow children to play in floodwater and the area contaminated or with toys that are contaminated by floodwater.

Basic hygiene is very important during flooding. Always wash your hands with soap and clean water before eating, and after toilet use, cleanup activities, or handling items contaminated by floodwater or sewage.

Removing some flood contaminated materials and household goods and thoroughly cleaning or drying out others are essential steps to combat mold, Niemeyer said.

Floodwaters compromise household fixtures in different ways. Porous materials are nearly impossible to clean. Flood soaked carpets, carpet pads, linoleum, fabric covered furniture, mattresses, drywall or wall board, wet insulation and ceiling tiles should be discarded. For heirloom rugs and furniture, contact a professional cleaner.

Mold problems often continue to appear five to six weeks after a flood has occurred, but steps can be taken to combat mold growth and its potential to cause serious health problems as well as structural damage to homes. Warm humid weather speeds up mold growth.

Appliances such as refrigerators, freezers, stoves, dishwashers, hot water heaters, washing machines and driers contain insulation that may harbor mold spores without visible evidence and should be discarded or inspected by a qualified professional appliance repair person, Niemeyer said.

Heating and air conditioning filters should be changed and if contaminated, the ductwork cleaned by a professional. Have a heating and cooling professional inspect air conditioners and heating systems to determine the damage.

Damaged wallboard should be discarded. Water can rise in the material higher than the visible water line. The best practice is to remove the wallboard at least two feet or more above the water line. Leave the wall cavity open for several weeks to months to allow the components to dry. A moisture meter, available in some plumbing, heating and air conditioning businesses or through the Internet, can be used to determine when the materials are dry. Even though the wood or other materials may feel dry, the moisture level may still be too high to close up the cavity. To prevent mold growing within the wall or floor cavity, wait until the wood and area is completely dry.

It may be necessary to open up the floor cavities to prevent buckling of the floor, to clean, and to allow drying. Remove some of the floor covering and decking to determine the extent of the damage. When possible, inspect from the underside of the floor.

Hard, non-porous surfaces, including glass, steel, most ceramic, metal and hard plastic, can usually be cleaned. A water and detergent can be used to wash down surfaces. Because floodwaters carry contaminants, bacteria, viruses, etc., a disinfectant should be used. Follow directions on containers and take particular note of warnings. Mixing chlorine and ammonia creates an extremely dangerous poisonous gas. Wear rubber gloves, protective clothing and a tight-fitting face mask when working around mold and when working with biocides.

ARBOR DAY ASSEMBLY

On May 4, in conjunction with the school's award assembly, elementary students at Allen Consolidated Schools enjoyed a visit from J. Sterling Morton (Isaac Verzani) and his wife Caroline (Haley Stapleton) in honor of Arbor Day.

After an introduction by Tree Board chairman Marcia Rastede, fourth grade students gave a brief history of the Mortons' move to Nebraska in the mid 1850s, their early interest in the environment and agriculture of Nebraska, and establishment of Arbor Day. Mr. and Mrs. Morton then told the audience about the various shapes of the crowns of trees. Through the use of a slide show of pictures of actual trees and of large cardboard cut in the shapes of various trees, other fourth grade students demonstrated the many shapes trees have as well as identifying kinds of trees of each shape.

The first display was the globe shape shown by Heidi Johnson and Anna Roth. The second shape was columnar narrated by Benjamin Finnegan and Gabrielle Macrander. The common oval shape was shown by Bethany Kneifl and Toni Miles. Everyone recognized the familiar Christmas shape of pyramidal demonstrated by Alexis Brahmsteadt and Summer Adair. Just the opposite of the pyramidal tree was the v-shaped or vase shape. Devin Twohig and Kolby Gill told about that tree's shape. An appropriately named crown was the weeping shape shown by Kyle Smith and Haley Stapleton. The last shape, also reviewed by Kyle and Haley, was the majestic spreading shape. Mr. and Mrs. Morton then reviewed the seven major shapes of the crowns of trees. Tori Miles invited everyone to not only enjoy looking at trees this spring as they begin to leaf out, but also to note the shape each tree.

Marcia Rastede than thanked the fourth grade for their informative skit and reported that Allen had been named a Tree City USA recipient for the eighteenth consecutive year by fulfilling the requirements as set forth by the Arbor Day Foundation.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Right now, best option for Prez is 'none of the above'

I realize it's still 17 months until we have to elect our next President, but is there any way we can get a "none of the above" option on the ballot?

If you haven't figured it out by now, this columnist is not a big fan of either major political party. In fact, my favorite running joke about the two parties goes like this:

Q - If you put all the Republicans and Democrats in Washington D.C. on the Titanic, and the boat sank, what would you have?

A - A darn good start.

The Republicans are starting to march their "candidates" for the party's nomination for President, and it's getting more and more like a bad rerun of a horrible TV sitcom.

Didn't Mitt Romney run for President in 2008? Yeah he did, and he's back again.

Newt Gingrich was the former Speaker of the House when the Republicans rode their "Contract With America" to a taking over of Congress during the Clinton regime. Did anybody happen to notice a date when that contract was supposed to run out? And how much progress did the GOP make in cleaning things up in Washington? (If the needle on your sarcasm meter isn't buried, check your batteries.)

Then there are people like Ron Paul, who actually has some ideas that make sense, but are outweighed by some of the loony things that he does, like his support for third-party candidates after his 2008 bid for the White House went south (nothing like a turnout to represent you in the biggest race).

And just to make things interesting, no-namers like Tim Pawlenty and Rick Santorum are in the mix, along with a former pizza CEO (Herman Cain) and a crackpot House member (Michele Bachmann). There is also talk that former New York City mayor Rudy Giuliani might get in the race (one that I'd actually consider, based on his handling of the city in the aftermath of 9/11).

Then there is Sarah Palin, who has yet to come across a TV camera that she doesn't want to stick her mug in. She seems intent on keeping her name out in the public eye while, at the same time, bashing the media for being so interested in what she has to say.

Palin has not been shy about criticizing the Obama regime during the past three years, and there is an assumption that she would take over the Republican race if she were to get in it.

Then there is the current champion in the political lottery. For somebody's whose most notable achievement was being a social director, King Obama has done a fabulous job at driving our nation to the brink of economic ruin and reputational insolvency.

Here's a guy who spent the first year traveling the world, apologizing for whatever perceived wrongs our nation may have committed. His interest in turning our freedom-loving nation into a socialist society, the exponential increase in our already-mounting debt (started by the previous regime) and the utter failure in bringing down our unemployment rate (still hovering around 9 percent at last check) have made the current resident of the White House a prime target for removal next November.

The problem is - there is nobody . . . NOBODY . . . in either major political party who seems worthy of the job. Not even the current guy in charge has earned a second term, and yet he is in prime position to win that second chance by default.

There are other options available, such as Libertarian candidate R. Lee Wrights, Green Party candidates Kent Mesplay and Stewart Alexander (who is also a Socialist Party candidate), and independent candidates like Joe Schriener and Robert Burck (better known as The Naked Cowboy, the well-known street performer in New York City). But so little is known about these candidates because the mainstream media seems to think only two parties exist.

What I find funny in this political mess is that both parties seem to think the other party is the problem, and their party is the solution. Watch the ads on TV, and you'll see Republican "Candidate A" trash the voting record of Democrat "Candidate B" and make promises to change the way things are done in Washington. Two or six years later, after the Republican wins, Democrat "Candidate C" is playing the same tune that the Republican played, and makes the same promises to clean up the political process, only to perpetuate the same nonsense that Candidate A did before him, Candidate B did before that, and all the candidates - Republican and Democrat - who came before him.

In 2008, I told everybody that I talked to that I was voting strictly for independent and third-party candidates, and the first question that was asked was, "Why would you waste your vote on a candidate that can't win?"

My response to that was simple - why would I waste my vote on somebody who will do nothing to change the way our nation is run and, instead, perpetuate the mistakes that are leading to the mess we now find ourselves?

The odds, right now, are good that I won't vote for any of the current Republican or Democrat candidates for President this November. All I'm hearing and seeing from the current crop is the same old song and dance. It's time for a new tune and a new step, but right now the only option that seems to be the best, when looking at the current candidates for President, is "none of the above."

Capitol View Gov's omissions noteworthy

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - Understanding politics and policymaking often requires reading between the lines. Take Gov. Dave Heineman's farewell to the 2011 Legislature.

His Excellency generally congratulated lawmakers for successfully dealing with a revenue shortfall that once was estimated at up to $1 billion. Credit Heineman with guiding much of his budget and economic agenda through the session of 90 working days.

Between the lines . . . Heineman gave no mention to Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine, a fellow Republican and possible candidate for the GOP nomination to the U.S. Senate. That omission fairly screamed between the lines.

Fischer was the prime mover behind a bill that committed state sales tax dollars to roads projects. We're talking better than $65 million annually for 20 years. Heineman said, several times, that this was not the year for such a move. Fischer moved ahead. And she won.

Next came Sen. Steve Lathrop of Omaha. Rather, he was next to be omitted. He was a prime mover in the negotiations that led to revisions in the way the Commission on Industrial Relations handles disputes between unionized public employees, local government and state government.

Lathrop is a Democrat, which is automatically strike one. Heineman was frustrated and annoyed with the way Lathrop initially handled the negotiations.

Heineman commented on the CIR revisions, but he gave Lathrop not so much as a mention.

Tax Breaks For Big Oil

U.S. Senators Ben Nelson and Mike Johanns voted against a proposal that would have eliminated tens of billions of dollars in federal tax subsidies for the oil industry.

Democrat Nelson and Republican Johanns have long understood the energy industry's point of view when it comes to taxes.

Despite history-making profits, both Nebraskans believe the nation's best interest is served by encouraging the industry, via tax incentives, to produce more oil and gasoline and to create more jobs.

A majority of their Senate colleagues agreed with them. Nelson was among only three Democrats who voted to maintain the subsidies. The other two were from oil producing states.

Different Worlds

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie drew criticism recently when he had a state helicopter to chauffeur him to his son's baseball game. There was a car waiting on the ground to take him the next 100 yards to the field.

Christie watched some five innings, was chauffeured back to the helicopter, which then chauffeured him to what he and everyone acknowledged was a purely partisan political gathering.

Can you imagine a Nebraska governor doing that, or anything like that?

Nor can I.

And if anyone on a governor's staff suggested such a thing, they would immediately be recognized as an agent provocateur for the other side and sent packing.

Flooding is a big concern in the region

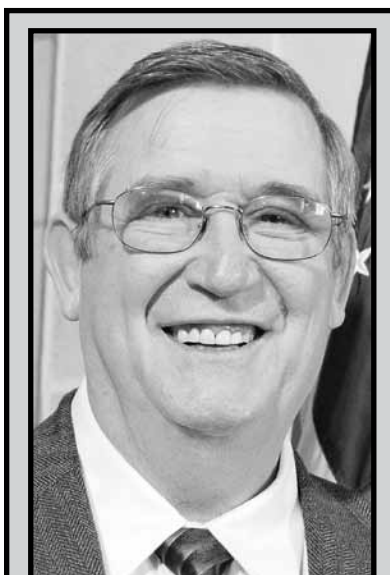

Flooding, unfortunately, was the topic of the week. According to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the rain that has already fallen, rain that is predicted to fall and the impact of snowmelt in higher elevations has caused the excess water in the Missouri River. The Corps is increasing the rate of flow at Gavins Point Dam near Yankton from 69,000 cubic feet per second (cfs) to 100,000 cfs in early June, to 150,000 cfs by mid-June. I have been in contact with city administrators in both Dakota City and South Sioux City. I will continue to monitor this situation and do whatever I can to assist those affected by the floodwaters during the next few months.

This past week, we have celebrated and remembered the lives of our men and women who have served in the armed forces and many who have given the ultimate sacrifice - life. On Memorial Day, the community of Carroll invited me to be their guest speaker for their program and it was well attended. This annual event seems to bring out the best of our small communities who do put on a grand affair to pay honor to their loved ones. Reading the local papers of District 17, I do believe there was a celebration of remembrance in most area towns. It is always heartwarming to see Old Glory lined up so precisely in the avenue of flags, displayed on street corners, surrounding a cemetery, lining the neighborhood or carried to a memorial on a hill.

On Wednesday, June 1, I traveled to my office in Lincoln and wrapped up a few items needing my attention such as letters, phone calls and the mail. From there, I traveled through Decatur, Macy, Winnebago, Homer, and Dakota City on my way to attend a meeting in South Sioux

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

City. I witnessed firsthand the preparations being made by these communities as the flood waters of the Missouri River approach. Governor Dave Heineman was in South Sioux City just the day before.

I continue to add District 17 events on my calendar and would welcome learning more about events in your area. You may send your information to my staff in Lincoln such as to dates, times and locations. My office email is dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov. I will attend as many events as possible.

Wayne County officials attend state seminar

James Rabe and Dean Burbach, Wayne County Commissioners, completed a seminar conducted here May 26 by the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

The workshop provided county commissioners, supervisors, and other county officials specialized training as they prepare to begin County Board of Equalization hearings.

Among the equalization-related topics addressed were the roles and responsibilities of county officials and other individuals involved in the process, the constitutional, statutory and regulatory provisions for real and personal property valuation, recent court cases and legislative changes in the tax equalization process.

Nick Monahan

Monahan is Achievement Award winner

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Nick Monahan of Wayne has been recognized by the United States Achievement Academy as a student of excellence in English.

This is a prestigious honor very few students can hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Monahan, who attends Wayne High School, was nominated for this honor by Sylvia Ruhl, a teacher at the school. He will appear in the United States Achievement Academy's Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting your youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy students should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Founder of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy recognizes students upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards for Selection set forth by the Academy. The Standards for Selection include academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a qualified sponsor.

Monahan is the son of Phillip and Pam Monahan of Wayne.

Let us help you Go Green

Recycle your used toner and ink jet cartridges, fusers and cell phones.

Why Recycle?

- Did you know? Over 350 million cartridges are thrown into our landfills annually. That's over 29 million cartridges a month.
- Each discarded laser cartridge adds approximately 3.4 pounds of metal and plastic waste to our landfills - waste that will take as long as 1,000 years to decompose.
- More than 3 quarts of oil are used to produce each laser cartridge. The plastic used in each printer cartridge takes more than 10 centuries (that's 1000 years!) to decompose.

Does sleep deprivation affect your diet?

Does sleep deprivation really lead to unhealthy eating choices and decreased exercise? And does that outcome can lead to weight gain over time? This question has recently come up in the science and nutrition communities.

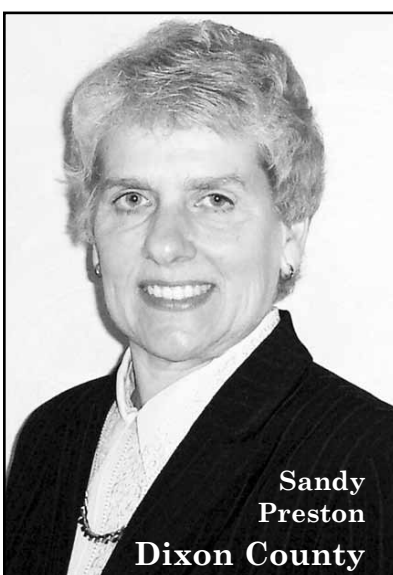

We all know the mantra: eat right and exercise to lose weight. It can be very tiring to find the time to prepare healthy meals and carve out some time to spend on physical activity or working out. Plus, you still have work, family and a life to live, right?

When we get busy, we tend to spend less time sleeping because we are trying to fit everything in. This may not only be unhealthy, but could also be counterproductive to maintaining or losing weight. How? Sleep deprivation causes an increase in appetite, often for unhealthy food choices, and decreases a person's metabolism, which means an increase in fat storage and weight gain.

If you don't get enough sleep, you may feel more sluggish and not always think clearly, which may affect your food selection. This can lead to a vicious cycle of eating more and feeling more run down, which decreases the motivation to exercise. These two factors lead to weight gain! Recent research has found a strong relationship between sleep and weight loss.

A review published in Best Practice & Research found that multiple studies observed an association between short sleep duration of generally less than six hours per night with an increase in body-mass index. Also noted was an increase in obesity, diabetes, and hypertension. Another review, published in the Annals of the New York Academy of Sciences, found multiple epidemiologic studies that have shown an association between short sleep periods and higher body-mass index, as well as, a causative role of short sleep in the increased risk of diabetes.

Sandy Preston
Dixon County

Recently, research from a study conducted at Columbia University found that well-rested participants consumed an average of 296 calories less than when they were sleep-deprived. And women ate an average of 31g more fat per day when they were sleep-deprived.

Start taking the time to eat healthy food, exercise daily, and take small steps to improve your health. Stop trying to be wonder woman/man and get your zzzzzz's! Determine what time you want to make it to bed every night, and stick to it! You'll notice a huge difference in your energy and motivation, which can lead to healthier food choices including consuming more fruits, veggies, whole grains, fat-free dairy, and lean protein. AND, don't forget to spend at least 30 or more minutes a day exercising.

Close to Home

Are houses in our area still selling?

Absolutely yes! Despite what you might hear about larger communities, Wayne's housing market has not come to a halt. In fact, we have a listing that is sale pending right now! Granted, the number of houses sold is down slightly from a year ago, but there are 2 main reasons our community continues to move forward.

One reason houses are still selling is that interest rates are historically low. This allows buyers to save big in monthly payments, making it more affordable to buy than to rent. Today's rates are around 4.5% but may soon begin to climb, so buyers should lock in rates as soon as they have finalized negotiations on the property they wish to purchase.

The second reason houses are still moving is that prices are very competitive. Buyers are looking for value, and sellers are looking to sell their houses at a price that makes sense. In this type of market, real estate agents are especially valuable in negotiating with buyers and sellers.

So although the economy around the country may be less than bright, you can still find value in the homes in our area! You can buy a great home, while paying less interest. If you have been waiting to buy your first home or want to upgrade to your next home, now is a great time to do it.

Shake It Up Cafe was the theme for this year's Vacation Bible School at Our Savior Lutheran Church.

'Shake it up Cafe' at Our Savior

Nearly 100 children, youth and adults explored the Bible as an exciting cookbook filled with recipes for living out God's word during Vacation Bible School at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne, May 23-27.

In the kid-friendly cafe full of chef's hats and aprons, pots and pans, checkered tablecloths and chalkboard menus, kids explored the Bible as a cookbook filled with recipes for living out God's word. They celebrated biblical festivals that revealed ingredients for being a follower of God.

Secret ingredients revealed during the week included: be ready for God, give happily to God, believe fully in Jesus, remember Jesus often, and celebrate God forever.

As the children brought their offering each evening, they were helping to provide school uniforms for the children attending the Kotela kindergarten in Tanzania. They had learned that many families in Tanzania do not have the money to purchase uniforms that they need for school. A total of $325 was brought by the children and their parents that will provide 65 uniforms for the kindergarteners in Tanzania.

Parents and friends joined in the fun on Thursday evening for the closing program. Dressed in their chef's hats and aprons the children shared what they had experienced during the week of Vacation Bible School.

Salute to our country

During the recent "5th Sunday Event," which was held at First Baptist Church, many of our country's wonderful patriotic songs were sung by the congregation. Above, the final audience prayer was the traditional "Dona Nobis Pacem" -- a prayer which is sung in three parts and simply is translated "Grant us peace". The event, held in each month that has five Sundays, is organized by Phil Pfaltzgraff. Due to scheduling conflicts, the next 5th Sunday event will be held Sunday, July 24.

Praise Assembly schedules weekend events

The week at Praise Assembly of God church begins at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday, June 12 with Sunday School.

The class will be finishing the Bible Study of Psalm 133 and will begin Psalm 134, the final in the 15-Psalm series called "The Songs of Ascents."

The morning worship service, starting at 10:30 a.m. in the Sanctuary, opens with praise and worship and also includes time for prayer for the needs of people in our community.

The Rev. Dennis Preston of Omaha is the interim pastor; he will preach the morning and evening message.

At 4 p.m. in the Sanctuary the Yeshua Ministries has its service with Sam Torres preaching.

Sunday activities close at 6:30 p.m. with the evening service in the sanctuary.

Wednesday evening is a men's Bible Study, with teaching in Spanish.

On Thursday evening a "mid-week" Bible Study will be held in the Fireside Room.

Saturday evening, June 18 at 7 p.m., there is a prayer and praise service held in the sanctuary.

"We welcome you to the ministries of Praise Assembly of God, a church in Wayne with open doors for all!" said Phil Pfaltzgraff, a member of the congregation.

Eagles Auxiliary gathers

The Wayne Eagles Auxiliary met June 6 with President Mary Kay Hasemann presiding.

Fathers and Mothers Day will be celebrated together on Friday June 17. All attending are asked to bring their own meat to grill and one other dish. Honored will be last year's Mother of the Year, DeAnn Behlers and this year's Mother of the Year, Cec Vandersnick. Father of the Year Paul Saundes will be honored by the Aerie.

A thank you was received from the Wayne Public Library for the donation. It was announced that 12 books were purchased with the donation.

The Eagles State Convention will be held June 8-12 in Hastings. The auxiliary's scrapbook was made by Sandra Gathje and was presented to incoming State President Bobby Lowry of Norfolk. The joint State President's Project will be The Munroe Meyer Institute.

The time of the auxiliary meetings has been changed back to 8 p.m. to meet at the same time as the Aerie.

Serving lunch was Cec Vandersnick.

The next meeting will be Monday, June 20 at 8 p.m.

Yeshua Ministries offers bi-lingual ministry Sunday

Yeshua Ministries of Wayne is a bi-lingual ministry pastored by Sam and Holly Torres.

The word Yeshua originates from the Hebrew meaning "Jesus."

"Jesus came for everyone and our ministry focuses on everyone's needs, regardless of race, creed, or color," Holly said.

The congregation is a Spirit led ministry, endeavoring to "do as Jesus did" according to Luke 4:18-19, which is:

Preach the good news;
Heal the broken-hearted;
Set free those in bondage;
Proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord;

Comfort those that mourn.

The services are bi-lingual in an endeavor to promote unity in the body of Christ. Services are as follows:

Sundays at 4 p.m. - Contemporary Worship Service with Sunday School for ages pre K-sixth grade; 7 p.m., Youth Group.

Wednesdays at 7 p.m. - Bible Study.

Saturdays at 7 p.m. - Contemporary Worship and Corporate prayer.

"We are honored to have Evangelist Armando Perez ministering in the meetings. He is a third generation Cuban American who is also of Messianic Jewish descent. He has worked for TBN broadcasting for seven years, and Benny Hinn for two years. Pastor Perez also assisted with the Brownsville Revival in Pensacola, Fla. for nearly four years and has since devoted his life to carry that revival fire and the message of God's love and salvation across the United States," Sam said.

Services are presently being held at Praise Assembly located at 1000 East 10th Street in Wayne. For more information, please contact Sam or Holly Torres at (402) 375-3755.

Local high school musicians participate in Masonic All-Star Marching Band

Four area students were among 265 high school students from across Nebraska who participated in the 17th Annual Masonic All-Star Marching Band, which performed June 4 during Shrine Bowl festivities in Lincoln.

Participating were: from Wayne High School, Katlin Potter, daughter of Kevin and Carol Potter; and from Winside High School, Alyssa Anson, daughter of Corey and Michelle Anson; Demi-Jo Gowler, daughter of Dale and Denise Gowler; and Laurel Olson, daughter of Jason and Wendi Dwinell.

The band members devoted four days of intense practice starting May 31, to learn the music, marching steps and field formations. The band gave their first public performance at SouthPointe Pavilions Shopping Center on June 3.

The band led the Shrine Bowl Parade down Lincoln's Havelock Avenue on June 4 and it also performed the pre-game National Anthem and during half-time of the 53rd Annual Shrine Bowl football game in Memorial Stadium on Tom Osborne Field, at the University of Nebraska—Lincoln.

The band members were hosted by the Masons of Nebraska and were directed by Brad Weber, Dan Sodomka and Dr. Dave Bohnert, band directors from Wayne High School, Aurora High School and Wayne State College, respectively.

Potter received a scholarship from Ms. Alice Lain of Omaha; Anson received a scholarship from Wayne Masonic Lodge No. 120; Gowler received a scholarship from Plainview Masonic Lodge No. 204; and Olson received a scholarship from Miloma Masonic Lodge No. 328, Omaha. The scholarships covered the cost of the camp.

Those participating in the Masonic All-Star Marching Band included (from left) Katlin Potter, Laurel Olson, Demi-Jo Gowler and Alyssa Anson.

"We demanded a lot of the students during the past week," Weber said. "They responded professionally and worked very hard. That was evident by the high-quality shows they performed Saturday. There's no doubt these young musicians are among the best in the state."

Coupled with hard work, the members also participated in a pool party, bowling and a dance. Many are looking forward to the opportunity to use the instruction provided by the band directors when they return to their respective high school bands.

"The band members worked hard during the week preparing for the Shrine Bowl performances," said Bruce Baker, Grand Master of Nebraska Masons. "They also had a lot of fun meeting new people and enjoyed the activities, but they also understand the main reason for the long hours and hard work. Patients at the Shriners Hospitals for Children will benefit the most from the band's efforts this past week. We sincerely appreciate their contribution to raise awareness and funds to enable the Shriners to help even more children."

Area 4-H'ers compete in speech contest

Several area 4-H'ers received awards at the Northeast Regional 4-H Public Speaking Contest held on May 26 at the Northeast Community College Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk.

Fifty-six youth from 20 counties throughout the state competed in their respective age divisions in the 2011 Regional 4-H Speech competition. Additionally, 28 contestants from 12 counties in the northeast district competed in their respective age division in the 2011 Regional 4-H Public Service Announcement (PSA) competition.

Contestants earn the opportunity to participate in regional compe-petition by winning their age division at the county level. Contestants may compete in one or both categories. 4-H members in the junior division (youth 9-11 years of age), intermediate division (youth 12-13 years of age) and senior division (youth 14-19 years of age) are required to prepare an original speech incorporating some aspect of 4-H in the content. The second category included 4-H members from those age groups recording a 60-second public service announcement promoting 4-H by using the theme "Meet the Future."

Contestants are awarded purple, blue, or red awards in recognition of their accomplishments in speech and/or PSA; in addition, the top four individuals in each division received medals. The four winners of the senior division speech and PSA competition are given the opportunity to compete for awards and scholarships at the State 4-H Public Speaking Contest to be held at 2 p.m. in Grand Island on Saturday, Aug. 27, during the Nebraska State Fair. All youth competing in state competition and staying for awards will receive special awards. The top two speech and PSA winners in State 4-H Public Speaking Contest receive scholarships courtesy of Nebraska Rural Radio.

Seniors selected to advance to state competition from the Northeast Regional Competition in the Speech category are:

Rebecca Blank, Madison, Madison County with her speech titled "Finding 4-H"; Katie Brown, Long Pine, Brown County with her speech "Speechin' Up 4-H!"; Joslynn Roth, Spencer, Boyd County with her speech "Imagine;" and Katie Nolles, Bassett, Rock County with her speech "Once Upon A Time."

Seniors selected to advance to 2011 state competition from the Northeast Regional Competition in the PSA category include: Boyd County 4-H member Joslynn Roth of Spencer; Holt County 4-H member Julie Jordan of Chambers; and Cuming County 4-H members Nicholas Peterson and Erica Lewis of West Point.

Exploring the world of quilts

You probably know that Lincoln is now the home of the International Quilt Study Center. I think it started because a Mr. and Mrs. James had been collecting quilts for years and wanted to make a gift of them to UNL. So, they decided to build a center just for quilts! And it was done with private donations, but is located next to East Campus, at 33rd and Holdrege.

I come from a long line of quilters. And they are kind of snobbish about their work, looking down their noses at machine quilting. But more and more, quilts are being quilted by machine. And they are expensive machines, I guess.

Well, I first visited the center with friend Marlyce a couple of years ago. We both remember playing in the church basement while our mothers, and several other mothers, worked on a quilt in a frame. The last time I was in that church basement, there was still a quilt there in a frame.

We were kind of disappointed with the quilts that were on display, as they were from Korea. We didn't see any that were made from feed and flour sacks! But it goes to show that quilting is universal. In fact, in research for my talk called Life is a Patchwork Quilt, I learned that the technique goes back for centuries.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

The next time, cousin Murt was here and we began our "quilt quest" at the home of Laurence Falk in Nebraska City. His wife, Carol, had taken up quilting in her retirement and he has some gorgeous examples, both on the walls and on one bed.

Then, we journeyed to the quilt center, where we again saw quilts from other countries. The center is home to hundreds of quilts, and they are taken out of storage and refolded every two years, on a schedule. The displays are done for a few months at a time, featuring a technique or country.

Last week, I finally saw some that were what I was looking for! Some were from the UK, and several were from the very early years in America. I also heard a talk, and saw slides, from a book on Sod Houses in the Plains and the quilts they found hidden in pictures by Solomon Butcher. Some were on a fence; others were inside doorways. Since the photos are now digitized, they can see things very close up. There is also a display of doll quilts.

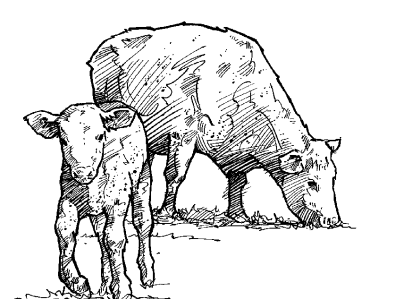

It was a fascinating evening, and I had a hard time leaving. Women have been creating works of art in fabric for many years. It's good that someone has saved so many. Come see it sometime! You can get in free on Fridays, from 5-7 p.m.

Mosquitoes and biting gnats are having a banner year

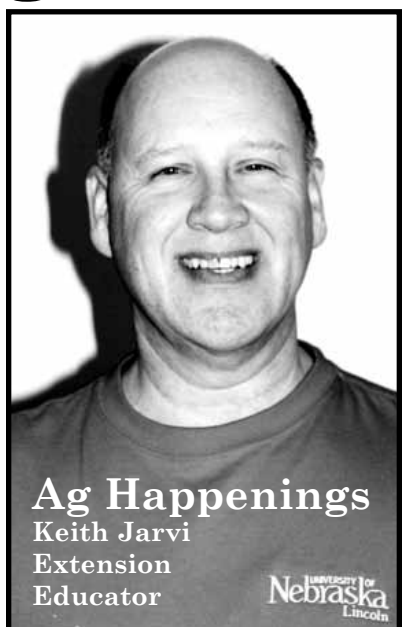

If you've been outside lately (like at last weekend's softball tourney in Wayne) you know that it's a banner year for mosquitoes and biting gnats.

Most of us are aware of mosquitoes but the gnats seem to be a little busier than usual these days. These pests have some things in common but also some differences that cause for some variation in how to approach managing them.

One thing that they have in common is that they are aquatic insects, needing water to breed in. Another common trait is that it is only the females that bite, needing blood to provide nourishment for developing eggs. Mosquitoes and black flies are both capable of transmitting diseases but in our area the mosquito is the major culprit carrying diseases like West Nile virus in humans and horses.

I haven't put one under my microscope but I suspect that the biting gnats are black flies, sometimes known as "buffalo gnats" since if you look at them closely they seem to have a hump-backed appearance. Black flies develop in moving water, unlike our biting mosquitoes which prefer slow moving or standing water to breed in. The larvae attach themselves to rocks and feed on various small organisms that drift by.

They prefer relatively clean water but are capable of surviving in some levels of pollution. They can fly many miles so you don't have to be right beside a stream or river to be affected. Once they emerge from the streams as adults, these miserable creatures bite by literally sawing a hole in your skin with their mouthparts, then lapping up the blood, which is part of the reason why such a small insect packs an irritating punch. Since they are so small they need to bite where blood vessels are close to the skin surface, which is part of the reason they tend to bite the facial and head areas.

Ag Happenings

Like mosquitoes, they use an anti-coagulant to keep the blood flowing which for many people causes the itching and swelling reaction we are all so familiar with. In the far northern climates, including Canada, they can be so numerous that they can actually severely affect cattle, poultry, and other livestock production.

Mosquitoes can breed in anything that will hold water for about 10 days, including man-made structures such as bird baths, old tires, and rain gutters. We have had a lot of rain lately and there are a lot of available breeding places for them.

Management options are a little different. For mosquitoes we as individuals can have a major impact by scouting out breeding areas like old cans, tires, and rain gutters and eliminating the water. Larger bodies of water like ponds and sewer treatment systems can be treated with a non-toxic larvicide that prevents the mosquito larvae from turning into adults.

Some cities have spray programs to kill adults but these are usually only a temporary solution as the mosquitoes will still emerge from the breeding areas. Mosquitoes tend to bite at low light periods and hide in bushes during the hot part of the day so if you plan on having a barbeque, spraying your hedges or bushes during the hot part of the day can make a difference. Wear long sleeved clothing and apply products with deet to repel mosquitoes.

Black flies aren't as intimidated by deet and some people think that vanilla extract will help repel them. I don't have any personal experience with natural remedies but give them a try if you like. Warmer water temperatures will slow down their breeding cycle which is why they tend to taper off later in the summer.

For more information on these critters go to entomology.unl.edu and check it out.

Bug zappers are fun to watch but will have little impact on black flies or mosquitoes since they are not attracted in large numbers to light; they zone in on our body by temperature and odor.

Funny, a song keeps going through my head. Buffalo gnats don't you come out tonight, come out tonight . . . or something like that. I thought I heard it on the internet.
