Project bids come in over budget for school renovation, building project

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

Members of the Wayne Community Schools' Board of Education received some less than pleasant news during Monday's Board of Education meeting.

Jon Carlson of Carlson, West Provonda told the board that bids for the renovation/remodeling project for the Middle School and High School were opened last week and all were over the projected estimate of $4 to $4.2 million.

At this time the lowest bid was submitted by Holtze Construction of Sioux City, Iowa at $4.745 million. Other bids were received from Hausmann Construction of Lincoln and Otte Construction of Wayne.

Carlson told the board that among the reasons for the higher bids was the fact that the areas of mechanical, electric and plumbing, which generally constitute approximately one-third of a project cost, were 42 percent of the project.

When questioned by Board member Rod Garwood on how this could have happened and what the next step is, Carlson said "It is our responsibility and we will go over all the numbers and re-do what we can to make this work. A number of things that were put in the project were done because we felt it would be a savings to the district to have them done at the same time as the rest of the project, but they can be taken out."

Board member Ken Jorgensen also questioned the numbers, saying, "How could the estimators have missed it by this much? Someone should have known about this."

The district has 40 days to accept or reject the current bids. A group of those involved are currently reviewing the plans and the costs and hope to have some type of recommendation for the board within two weeks.

Action on the project bids was tabled pending analysis in light of the project budget. A special meeting will be scheduled for the purpose of determining what the next step in the process will be, as well as several other issues that may need the board's approval before the July meeting.

In other action, the board accepted Superintendent Mark Lenihan's recommendation to hire Jill Pickinpaugh as Elementary School Principal to replace Daryl Schrunck.

Pickinpaugh is currently a sixth grade teacher at Wayne Middle School. She will be released from her teaching contract and begin her duties as Elementary Principal effective Aug. 1.

Superintendent Lenihan told the board that there were 28 applicants for the principal's position and that five candidates were interviewed by a team of 20 individuals including administration, teachers, the custodial staff and parents.

Also approved was the hiring of Terry Bear as High School Physical Education/Health Instructor, pending his release from Laurel-Concord Schools. Bear will replace Kevin Finkey, who as accepted an administrative position in Santee.

During the Superintendent's report, Lenihan gave the board an update on projects being completed this summer at the schools, including the moving of the two modular buildings at the high school, cleaning of carpets, stripping and waxing of floors and work on the gym floors.

Four of the district's 15-passenger vans have been sold. Due to a change in state regulations, the district is no longer able to transport students in these vehicles. One additional van will be kept by the district to be used for purposes other than transporting students.

Lenihan also told the board that a portable water heater can be used as a backup to the boiler system in the elementary school for the coming school year. The cost of the heater is $4-$6,000, considerably less than $20 to $30,000 for a new boiler.

Misty Bear, Special Education Director, told the board that at the present time, 116 students are being served through Wayne Community Schools Special Education program.

She also noted that the Knights of Columbus Tootsie Roll proceeds will be donated to the program and used for a reclining shower/commode chair to be used in the high school respite bathroom.

Summer services are being provided for 17 students, including six children in the birth-two year program.

Board approval was given to the Coventry Health Insurance proposal for the 2011-12 fiscal year. The proposal calls for a .5 percent increase in premium.

The date of the July Board of Education meeting has been moved to Monday, July 18, due to scheduling conflicts.

Relaying

Craig Florian presenting Elvis tribute show during Carroll's Q125 celebration on July 1

Organizers continue to finalize plans for Carroll's Q-125 celebration, planned for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 1-3.

Craig Florian brings his Craig Florian as Elvis! show to Carroll for a special performance during Carroll's Q125 celebration on Friday, July 1.

According to Florian's publicity manager, former Carroll resident Barry Dahlkoetter, "Audience members will delight in Florian's renditions of Hound Dog, Suspicious Minds, My Way, Don't Be Cruel and several other Elvis hits during his 8 p.m. show on the Main Street stage in Carroll. Admission to the show is free and open to the public."

"I always enjoy coming back to northeast Nebraska," said Florian, a graduate of Wayne State College. "This will be my first performance in Carroll, and doing a show for the town's Q125 celebration will be very exciting."

Florian, a native of Glenwood, Iowa, earned his bachelor's degree in broadcasting from Wayne State in 1990, and hosted the talk show "Small Talk" on KWSC-TV from 1988 to 1990. He was also involved with the Wayne State Theatre Department, and performed in numerous productions such as "Alice in Wonderland," "Born Yesterday," and "Pinocchio."

Since beginning the Craig Florian as Elvis! showcase eight years ago, Florian has made more than 100 appearances as a tribute to the King of Rock 'n Roll. Having performed extensively throughout western Iowa, eastern Nebraska, northern Kansas and northern Missouri, numerous fans have said, "It's the closest I'll get in my entire life to seeing Elvis. He's incredible!"

The Craig Florian as Elvis! tribute was born shortly after Florian's 2002 portrayal of King Pharaoh in Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat with the Mills Masquers Theatre Troupe, headquartered in Glenwood, Iowa. When creating the production, Andrew Lloyd Weber based the King Pharaoh role heavily on the Elvis persona.

During the next several years, Craig Florian as Elvis! blossomed into something amazing, as Florian performed at birthday parties, fundraisers, weddings, corporate events, and other functions, and he developed a holiday show to perform when appropriate.

In the summer of 2007, Craig Florian as Elvis! expanded into the competitive arena. Florian performed with numerous Elvis artists in the Lake of the Ozarks Ultimate Elvis Tribute Artist Contest (Camdenton, Mo.), and in the Images of the King Contest (Council Bluffs, Iowa).

In addition to Elvis, entertainment for the three-day event will include Mr. Hand, an Omaha-based rock band, that was formed in August of 1995. The musicians are bound by friendship, a desire to write, record and perform music. The band has spread their brand of Midwestern rock and roll across Nebraska, Iowa, and South Dakota.

Mr. Hand's chemistry is best displayed at their live performances, where they support their original music yet still enjoy playing crowd-pleasing covers. They've had the honor to share the stage with many great bands including Rick Springfield,

Community leaders gather to evaluate goals

Representatives of the city of Wayne, Wayne County, the Wayne Community Schools, Providence Medical Center, Wayne State College and Wayne Area Economic Development met Tuesday evening to determine if goals set by the group in March of 2010 are being met or need to be re-evaluated.

Wes Blecke, Executive Director of Wayne Area Economic Development (WAED), listed five goals that had been identified as important at the 2010 meeting.

"One of the things I would like to accomplish at this meeting is to determine whether or not these are still relevant goals and whether or not we are meeting them," Blecke said.

The goals included: updating the marketing plan and selling the opportunity building; developing a business retention and expansion program; developing 2-3 new retail establishments in 2-3 years; getting young people engaged in the community and developing short and long-term funding plan for the organization.

When asked about the plan to market the opportunity (spec) building, Blecke told those in attendance that starting in mid-July, WAED will be promoting the building throughout the community, including such events at the Vendor Golf Tournament. In addition, the building is being promoted in area newspapers in an effort to get the building sold.

The Retention/Expansion program is both a formal and informal program and those from the WAED office conduct conversations with business persons on a regular basis.

"Our office needs information from the community to know what is available, such as a business owner who would like to retire and find someone who is willing to take that business over," said Irene

Wisner Area Chamber of Commerce welcomes the business Plan B Consultants, including Amy Infante, owner, and employees, to the area with an official ribbon cutting.

Nation-wide business gives back locally

By JAYCIE WOSLAGER
Of the Herald

Amy Infante is all over the place these days, from Arkansas to Wisner. Infante expanded her business, Plan B Consultants, to her hometown of Wisner. Infante said it was very important to her to give something back to the community by creating jobs.

"It was good timing to expand. I wanted more quality control. I wanted to grow the Plan B culture," said Infante. Plan B Consultants is a sales and marketing firm that uncovers business opportunities for hotels. "I first started as a hotel industry director of corporate travel for Intercontinental Hotels Group. I saw a need for consulting, a hands-on business to business consultants," stated Infante.

So she started her own business just five years ago. Anyone can find them locally, nationally or internationally. Infante first started Plan B in Chicago, but then had to move to Arkansas for her husband's career.

The headquarters are located in Bentonville, Ark. The operations hub is now located in Wisner. Other Plan B Consultants are in Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Miami, San Antonio and New York City. Infante's business also works with hotels and resorts in Canada, Latin America and the Caribbean. "Customers are all over, so we can be anywhere," said Infante.

When Infante was working on the Wisner expansion, she advertised within a 30-mile radius. With resumes flying in the door, Infante chose her seven employees from the Wayne area. "We found great employees and had a great response from the Wayne area," stated Infante.

One employee they hired, graduated from Wayne State. Jeff Jensen saw an ad on the Norfolk Area Recruiters website. Jensen is from Chicago and is happy to be back in the area. This "jack of all trades" employee is the Wisner operations hub manager for Plan B.

All of Wisner is thrilled to have this business. "I like the professionalism, the fact that it's a native from Wisner coming back and the amount of job creations," stated Garry Clark, executive director of Cuming County Economic Development.

Popular Fishing Derby is back

After a short absence, the Wayne Izaak Walton League will once again sponsor the Kid's Fishing Derby at the lake northwest of Wayne.

This year's Derby will be held Saturday, June 18 from 9 a.m. to noon. The lake is located four miles north of the Seventh and Main Street intersection in Wayne, two miles west and one-half mile north.

Prizes will be awarded in three different age categories, 0-6 years, 7-11 years and 12-15 years.

The Wayne Chapter has held Kid's Fishing Derbies for almost 40 years to introduce and educate youth about the values of the outdoors and the outdoor activity of fishing.

The past two years the lake was re-stored so we were unable to have a kid's fishing derby. At that time the fish were being re-stocked and weren't big enough. We are now coming to a close on the restoration project and the fishing is somewhere between good and great! We still have a "Catch & Release" Rule this season, but this may change in early summer when we hope to get some keepable catfish stocked.

"We have a Boy Scout Eagle Project coming up to get the clubhouse re-painted and have recently created a walking trail around the North portion of the property," said Scott Brummond, long-time Izaak Walton member.

"Things are looking better than they have in a long time" Brummond added.

The local business community has always sponsored this event tremendously and many, many prizes will be awarded to the participants.

"We want to get the tradition re-started; so bring out your kids, grandkids, neighbor's kids, whatever," Brummond said.

The rain date is Sunday, June and the times would be shifted to 1-4 p.m.

In case of inclement weather, those planning to take part are asked to listen to the local radio station for updates.

Anyone with questions about the Fishing Derby is asked to contact Scott Brummond at (402) 375-0747 or Erin Eilers at (402) 375-2359.

What does it take to open up a restaurant?

BY JAYCIE WOSLAGER
Of the Herald

Primo Gonzalez, the owner of Costa Brava, has had over 24 years of experience in the restaurant business.

In 1998 Gonzalez began by working in Joe's Crab Shack of California as a cook. He worked there for 11 years and eventually became senior kitchen manager. After working in the kitchen, he decided he wanted his own restaurant. He started Costa Brava in California but then sold it and came to Nebraska.

"It was my first job. I liked it. I worked there all my life," stated Gonzalez.

The first Costa Brava in Nebraska was in Columbus. Visiting Wayne, Gonzalez liked the college town with a lot of students moving in and out, and it has many seniors. He decided to expand.

"We came here and didn't see any seafood restaurant or anything like our unique recipes," said Gonzalez.

Two months ago, Costa Brava started in Wayne. They serve lunch and dinner with Mexican and seafood entrees. Their hours are 11 a.m.-10 p.m.

At Costa Brava Clara Gonzalez serves Mark and Nancy Sonnenfelt of Stanton, who passed through Wayne for Memorial Day.

"Here at Costa Brava we make the food fresh and from home-made recipes," said Gonzalez. He will expand his business again by starting one in Sioux City some-time.

Barn destroyed in Sunday blaze

Firefighters from four departments battled a blaze at the home of Joe and Kelly Kenny, northeast of Carroll Sunday afternoon.

According to Carroll Fire Chief Rick Davis, a call came in at approximately 2:30 p.m. of a barn on fire. Firefighters from Carroll, Winside, Wayne and Belden spent approximately four hours on the scene and while they were not able to save the barn, they did prevent an adjoining building from burning. Approximately 50 fire personnel were involved in fighting the fire.

Davis said the building was a total loss. No one was injured in the blaze, but 200 baby chicks were lost. Equipment that was in the building was saved.

It has been determined that the fire was electrical in nature.

Goals

Fletcher, Assistant Director of WAED.

In the area of getting young people engaged in the community, the Leadership Wayne class has graduated 38 students in the two years it has been in existence.

A number of success stories were shared by both the leaders of the class and those in the audience. The program has been very positively received by those taking the class and those in the community.

When asked by the participants of the classes what they would like to see offered in the community, often a new swimming pool was mentioned. In terms of attracting new businesses to the community, it was agreed that the goal should be updated to state "additional businesses" as new businesses have been added to the community, while others have closed.

Discussion was held on the process of starting a new business, including grant money available, creation of a business plan and incentives.

The question was raised on the incentives available for small, retail business to start up in the community and it was noted that often incentives are tied to job creation.

Additional discussion centered on whether job creation should be focused on major employers or small retail establishments.

Don't get me started

Staying ahead of technology

As I've looked back on more than a quarter-century in the media business, I've seen a lot of changes over the years.

When I first started, offset printing was the way a newspaper was done. Pictures were taken on 35mm film that had to be processed before you could see a negative of the image, which was then taken into the darkroom and turned into a picture. Typing stories and laying out pages was all done by hand. The typesetting was done on a unique computer that required the user to plug in specific media – a floppy disc or a magnetic band with slots that were read by the computer to determine the font type and size – and printed on a special film that was then rolled through a hot glue machine and pasted on the page.

In the mid 90's, the newsroom began to enter the digital age. I remember what a big deal it was to be able to scan the negatives, adjust them on computer, and print them out on a laser printer. Wow – we were cooking with gas. Before long, we could actually lay out copy, headlines, photos and graphic elements on the computer. No more cutting single lines of copy to match up columns, no more hot glue, no more running long strips of copy through a processor.

When digital photography came along around the turn of the century, we were really traveling at warp speed. Now it was possible for us to grab a camera, go to the scene of a news story, snap a few shots and return to the office and have it on the page in a matter of minutes, not hours.

The newsroom has changed – and it keeps on changing.

Today, the addition of the Internet has helped us break news stories faster than we could have done in the past. Rather than waiting for the paper to hit the streets, we can cover a news story and have it on our website in no time. In fact, some stories can be updated as they are happening.

Now, with the addition of social media such as Facebook, Twitter and others (media the Herald will eventually add to its repertoire), we can communicate with the world in ways I couldn't even think of when I started out in this business. Story ideas come from anywhere now – I have found more than a handful of stories just by checking out the Facebook profiles of people and businesses here that I am personally linked to.

Some believe that the newspaper will eventually go the way of the dinosaur and become an extinct medium. These are the same people who were writing the same obituary for the newspaper industry almost a century ago, when a little device known as the radio achieved cultural mass. It was repeated when TV became a staple of entertainment and information a few decades later. And yet, the newspaper continues to thrive and survive, even as the ways we receive our news and information change.

There is no doubt that the newspaper's timeliness is being challenged, and the newspapers that die will generally be those whose publishers refuse to grasp the importance of utilizing the opportunities the new media bring.

The Wayne Herald has no plans to go anywhere, and we will do our best to continue doing what we do better than anyone else – covering the hometown news that is of greatest importance to the communities we serve. Whether it's print, video, Internet or whatever forms it takes – we welcome the opportunity and look forward to serving the community the way we have for more than a century and a quarter.

Speaking of our Web site (mywaynews.com, in case you haven't checked it out yet), we had a video on the site recently regarding the work being done at the College Center in South Sioux City.

The newly-christened $8 million building, which is being shared by Wayne State College and Northeast Community College, is in the line of fire for the flooding that is slowly developing along the Missouri River. We were there as work was being done to build a 5-foot dam around the building in an effort to keep the raging flood waters from getting into the building.

I drove around certain parts of South Sioux City and got a good look at the flooding that was already underway that afternoon. It is expected to reach its highest point sometime this week, and the flood waters are expected to hang around until late summer.

While the view was already discouraging, it was great to see one of our local businesses, Milo Meyer Construction, hard at work on the site. We also have some photos of some youth from Journey Christian Church who were at the Tyson Events Center helping with sandbagging efforts.

Say what you will about Nebraska, but there's one thing that you can always count on, and that's the concern we have for our neighbors. It's amazing, but not the least bit surprising, to see people here helping out those not far away who stand in the way of this ongoing disaster. It's efforts like this that make me proud to be a Nebraskan and thrilled to live in a great community like Wayne, America.

Senators discuss pipeline

By Ed Howard
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

What role might the proposed Keystone XL pipeline play in Nebraska's 2012 elections?

The proposed pipeline, which would move sand tar coal across a portion of the Sand Hills and the Ogallala Aquifer, is catching almost enough hellfire and brimstone to qualify as a Bible story.

U.S. Sens. Ben Nelson and Mike Johanns have raised a variety of concerns about the thing, which many landowners and environmental interests have labeled as a project whose environmental risks outweigh whatever financial benefits might spring from it.

The specter of oil polluting the aquifer is an understandably cause for worry, both environmental and economic.

How do you clean up contamination of underground water?

Interestingly, the U.S. Department of State has yielded at least twice to demand for additional public meetings, so the citizenry can air their grievances and worries.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency recently told the State Department that the latter's analysis of the potential environmental impact of the pipeline was woefully inadequate. The State Department keeps saying its final recommendation the pipeline will come before the end of the year. A reading of political tea leaves would at least suggest that such might not be the case.

Countering the criticism of the pipeline are labor and business interests.

Construction of so huge a thing means jobs by the score. Organized labor has downplayed potential risks, while ballyhooing the paychecks angle.

Letters to the Editor

Don't fall victim to fraud

We want to remind everyone that there are fraudulent scams out there and they are happening in northeast Nebraska. These so-called scam artists will go wherever they can to find someone to take advantage of. Unfortunately they are very good at their chosen "job".

They are not selective, they will take money from anyone who will give it to them. As a Western Union agent we see these scams almost every week. Here are just a few of the latest we have witnessed at Copy Write.

A customer came into our store stating that someone had called him several times telling him that a large sum of money had been sent to him and he could pick it up at Copy Write. They called him by name, an attempt to create a personal relationship and used a local store name to create a sense of trust. Criminals wear many masks and

What ground will Republican Senate hopefuls Don Stenberg and Jon Bruning stake out? Amid Democrats pointing fingers and clamoring over it, Bruning returned a $2,500 political contribution to the pipeline company. (Republican Gov. Dave Heineman did the same.)

Stenberg appears to have straddled the issue, saying a pipeline is needed, but that he opposes it in close proximity to the aquifer.

Democrat Nelson and Republican Johanns have effectively been on the warpath – though not walking companions – demanding more answers and information on the project.

In Nebraska politics, one would ordinarily expect candidates to stumble over each other yelling Huzzahs for any large-scale project connected to the magic words – economic development.

Nelson doesn't want to be accused of depriving Nebraskans of jobs, nor do any of the Republicans. But neither do any of them want their name connected with a project that has an honest potential for environmental havoc. It is hardly possible to overstate the importance of the Ogallala Aquifer to the Cornhusker state.

Another Candidate for GOP Senate Nomination?

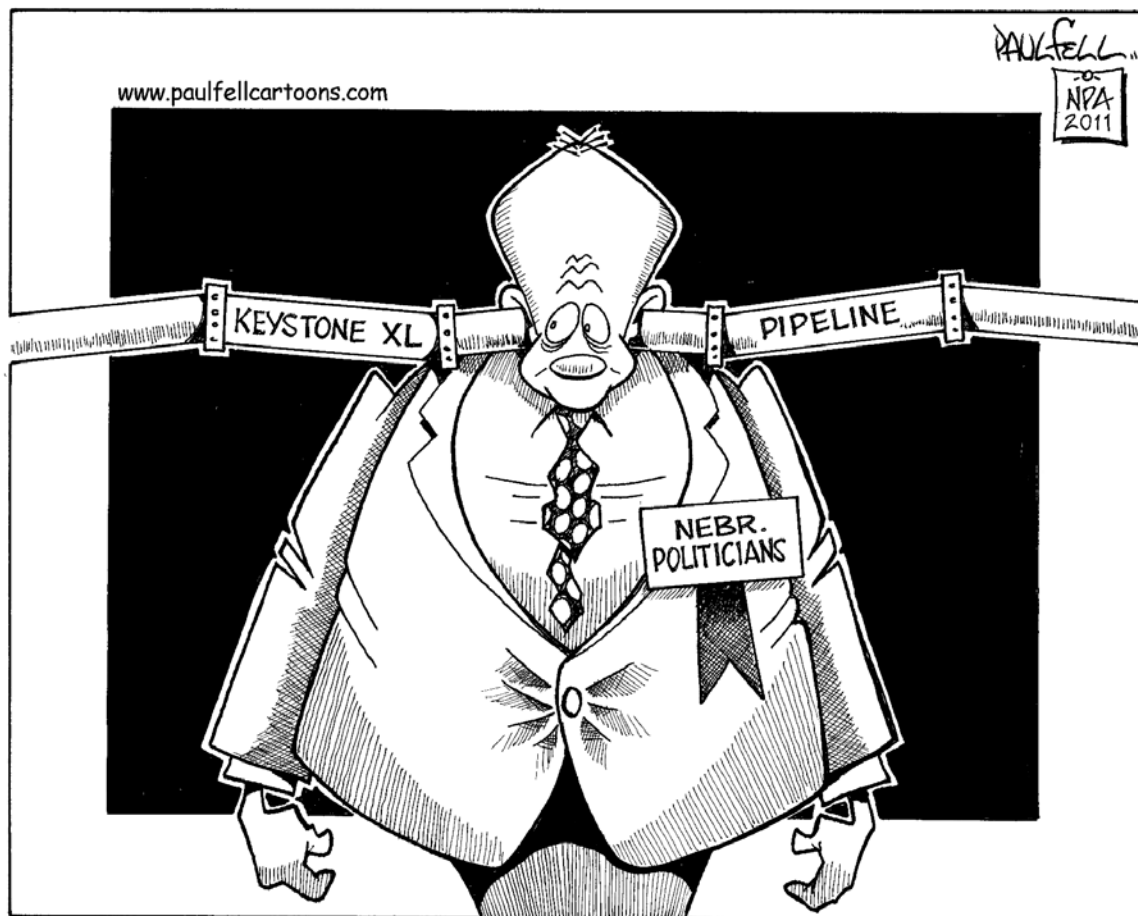

State Sen. Deb Fischer of Valentine might have declared her candidacy for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate by the time you find this column in your local newspaper.

Fischer made a name for herself during eight years in the Legislature. Her most noticeable achievement from enacting a law that will – for the first time – guarantee roads projects a share of the state's sales tax dollars.

She believes she can be a competitive fundraiser in the primary.

The Republican who ultimately challenges Nelson in the November election probably won't have to worry about money. The national GOP and several conservative groups have targeted Nelson as ripe for defeat if he seeks a third term.

make you believe they're people you know or can trust. Don't be fooled. In this scenario, the fraudsters will try to convince the victim to send them a sum of money (a sizable sum of money) for "processing fees" or "taxes" and in return will send the victim "prize money and gifts." As you can guess, the prizes never materialize.

A few months ago, a grandmother came in to send her grandson money. She was upset and worried when she came into our store and when questioned about it she told this story: her grandson had wrecked someone's car, was in jail and if she sent money to him he would be released from jail. If your grandchild called you with that story you would be "flustered" and want to do whatever you could to help them out. The "grandson" told her that she couldn't call him because the police had taken his cell phone.

The "grandson" knew enough to say things that made her believe it was really HER grandson. In the end, this grandma did try to call her grandson and you can imagine the relief when he DID answer his phone and was not in jail.

No one is immune – they'll try to catch anyone. Don't let them catch you.

Here are a few tips to protect yourself from fraud.

Only use Western Union for sending money to friends and family. You should NOT proceed with your transaction if it's:

- for an emergency situation you have not personally confirmed
- to someone you personally don't know or have met online
- for an internet purchase
- for an employment opportunity
- to claim lottery or prize winnings meeting will follow at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome to attend. Everyone will need to bring their own table service and a dish for the potluck. No gifts Please!! farm at Royal.

Those in attendance will also get a chance to visit the historic Mars Campground, a town that once was, located at the Dick Haskin farm at 86951 519th Avenue near the community of Royal. (Go 3/4 mile north of Ashfall Park, 1 1/2 miles east, then 1/2 mile south, look on the west side of the road.) The regular

Browned evergreens may still be alive

There seems to be a lot of browning of foliage on pines, firs and other evergreen trees this past winter.

Don't be in a hurry to cut down evergreen trees just because the needles browned this past winter. Give them until the last of May, at least, to see if they recover. Even though the foliage may be brown, the buds may be alive. Live buds form the new year's growth and foliage.

After a few years the old browned needles will be shed and the browning effects from last winter will not be noticeable.

Often the browning (winter drying) is the result of desiccation of needles by warm, dry winds during the winter when water conduction is restricted by frozen plant tissues or frozen soils. Winter drying damage is often noticeable on the south and west side of trees. In severe cases the buds could be killed.

If the tree hasn't broken bud or if new growth isn't obvious by late May, it may be dead or damaged enough to warrant removal.

The only exception is Scotch pine. If foliage on the entire Scotch pine tree turns completely brown over winter, it may be caused by pine wilt disease. Trees killed by pine wilt should be chipped, buried, or burned by the first of May to prevent emergence of the beetles that spread the disease to other trees.

Needle browning at other times of year may be indicative of a disease or insect problem. If you suspect disease or insect damage, take a sample to a local UNL Extension office for diagnosis.

Close to Home

The home inspector's report scared us beyond belief; what do we do?

Wendy Vawser
Residential Sales

Sound familiar? In many cases after reading a home inspector's report, buyers are understandably nervous and unsure about moving forward. Are home inspectors are trying to scare buyers? No, it's their job to find every imperfection and list it as well as the positives on their report to the potential buyer. However, when a home's every imperfection is listed in brutal detail, the effect can be daunting to say the least.

So what can buyers do? There are 3 things to focus on when reading a home inspector's report.

1. Stick to the facts. Do not assume anything unless it is proven by a licensed person including making sure the home inspector is licensed. Get a second opinion if necessary.

2. Know which imperfections are structural and which are cosmetic. Cosmetic imperfections do not affect the overall integrity of the house, can be fixed over time and should not be cause for major concern. Structural imperfections may require further investigations. Although, even structural imperfections can be remedied; it's a matter of whether the buyer and seller can come together on how to accomplish that.

3. Realize that every home has imperfections even new construction.

So, read the report, keep the facts in mind, and make an informed decision about what you can live with and what needs to be fixed. What do you think? Email me your comments at: wendy@mwlc.com.

Participants in First Presbyterian Church's Vacation Bible School take part in a soccer match as part of the "Mega Sports Camp" theme.

'Mega Sports Camp' theme of Vacation Bible School

Forty young people joined 18 grown-ups for First Presbyterian Church's Mega Sports Camp vacation Bible school, June 6-9.

Participants chose either soccer, basketball, cheerleading, or baseball and learned skills for their respective sports. An opening and closing rally emphasized the overall theme - "Go the Distance" - as well as the themes of the day: endurance, rest, teamwork, and finishing strong.

The Bible verse that kids and adults alike learned was "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. Now there is in store for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day." (2 Timothy 4:7-8a)

Committees present updates at Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid meeting

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid met June 8. Vice President Kimberly Hansen called the meeting to order. She welcomed guests Deb Jensen, Bea Kinslow, Janet Fuoss and Lenora Sorensen. She gave a devotion entitled "Why the doers do and the do not do not." based on Phil. 2:13.

Roll call was answered by 21 members, four guests, and Pastor Lilienkamp. The minutes of the April and May meetings were read and approved as read. Correspondence was read from seminary student Ben Vogel and his family. He has now graduated from seminary school and has accepted a call to Lakes Lutheran Church in Brighton, Mich. and was ordained on June 5. They thanked the Ladies Aid for the monetary gift each month and for all the prayers and concerns for them.

The group also received a thank you from Orphan Grain Train for a monetary gift, from the Harry Barholz family for serving the funeral and from Ladies of Our Savior Lutheran church for the lovely time they had at guest day.

An invitation was read from Trinity Lutheran Church in Martinsburg for Guest Day on Wednesday, June 8 at 6:30 p.m.

The treasurer's report was read. It will be filed for financial review.

Committee reports are as follows: Sewing: The ladies met and tied six quilts. They will not meet this summer. They encourage everyone to sew quilt tops for the fall.

Historian: Esther Baker reported she was given a picture of the quilt parade last month and had pictures of the Vogels to put in the book.

Visiting: Ruth Victor reported sending many cards to members of the church. LaVon and Ruth will be one more month.

Funeral: Betty Wittig reported serving Shirley Fredrickson's funeral. Bea Kinslow explained the book she made to help streamline the calling list.

Old business: The outlets in the kitchen will be tabled until July. Barb Greve reported that she is still looking for a replacement bush or plant for the southeast corner of the church.

New Business: Ellen Heinemann displayed the mat she was crocheting from plastic sacks. She cuts the bags into 3 inch strips and knots them together. It takes many bags and a long time. She received the pattern from Orphan Grain Train. She has patterns for the t-shirt dresses and the pillowcase dress if anyone is interested. The birthday song was sung for Verdelle Reeg and Mary Janke. A birthday cupcake was presented to Verdelle. The meeting was closed by saying the "Lord's Prayer" and the "Table Prayer".

Pastor Lilienkamp gave a Bible study entitled "Jesus-My shield and My Deliverer". It was a study of encouragement.

Lunch was served by Milly Thomsen. The next meeting will be Wednesday, July 13 at 2 p.m. with Joann Temme and Kay Denker serving.

Joy Circle meets at Our Savior

Our Savior Lutheran Church Women of ELCA Joy Circle met June 8.

President Dorothy Wert opened the meeting with announcements. Phyllis Rahn began with devotions taken from Luke 24:1-12. The devotion centered on God's love, "God who has been, is, and will be-always the same, loving God."

Darrel Rahn then showed his DVD on their most recent trip to Germany, Switzerland and Austria.

Emphasis was placed on the Passion Play in the community of Oberammergau in Germany. It was noted that the community is about the size of Wayne and about 2,000 people are involved in the play which put on 102 performances during the summer of 2010. This was the 41st production over a span of 376 years. This production is done every 10 years.

Darrel continued with pictures of a ride to the highest point in Switzerland, Pilatus where on a clear day you can see five countries. He closed with pictures from Austria where the Sound of Music was filmed and Motzart was born.

Lunch was served by Gena Puls and Lavonne Smith.

The next meeting will be Guest Night on Thursday, July 21 at 6 p.m. Invitations will be sent out to churches but all women of Our Savior Lutheran Church are encouraged to sign up for an accurate count. The program will be Women of OSLC portraying Women of the Bible. A light meal will be served at 6 p.m.

Why Recycle?

- Did you know? Over 350 million cartridges are thrown into our landfills annually. That's over 29 million cartridges a month.
- Each discarded laser cartridge adds approximately 3.4 pounds of metal and plastic waste to our landfills - waste that will take as long as 1,000 years to decompose.
- More than 3 quarts of oil are used to produce each laser cartridge. The plastic used in each printer cartridge takes more than 10 centuries (that's 1000 years!) to decompose.

Plot tours planned across the state

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension organic plot tours at UNL Research and Extension centers across the state will highlight wheat varieties and cover crop experiments.

The nearest tour is June 17 at the Haskell Agricultural Laboratory near Concord. There will be a complimentary meal at 5:30 p.m. followed by the tour at 6.

UNL crop breeder Richard Little will lead the tours and discuss yield, wheat canopy cover to suppress weeds, disease resistance and quality traits for each cultivar. The breeding program focuses on selecting cultivars with strong gluten traits for the whole-wheat organic market. Little will present results from top-dressing trials to improve protein content.

Wheat tours will be followed by a tour of specialty crops or cover crop experiments.

The Concord tour includes: soybeans planted after suppressing triticale by flaming and roller-crimping, multi-species mustards

Knowing when it is time to move

It's Monday evening, and I'm still checking email from last week; how does this happen? How in the world would I ever have time to check Facebook? I have way too many friends who like to forward stuff to me, but if I don't open them, I miss a few laughs, some political info, or stuff that just upsets me!

I think I may have mentioned that my dear mother was 95 years young in April. She has been "on her own" for a good many years; actually, even before my parents parted, she was basically on her own. She went to work off the farm when my little sister started school, and that was about 1952. Her first job was at the York Egg Plant, and they always closed for the summer, so she could still raise a big garden and a bunch of chickens.

About fifteen years ago, the arthritis in her knees was giving her enough trouble, she decided it was time to get out of her house into something all on one floor, with an association to do the lawn, shoveling, etc. She had a friend at church who was a realtor and he found a nice townhouse and got her house sold, all in a very short time. Since she is not a "keeper", it wasn't that hard to get her moved, either, even if it was in winter.

Two years ago, she had a little car accident and had to quit driving. Then, she had an attack of vertigo and her balance hasn't been good since. Also, we have been noticing memory loss. In fact, I saw a list of things that point to early dementia a couple weeks ago, and she has several of the symptoms. The problem is, she doesn't have the insight to realize what is happening.

So, from a person who knew when it was time to get out of her house, we now have a person who won't admit it's time to move

UNL Extension offers flood resources website

A new University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension website at <http://flood.unl.edu/> gathers news and information to help Nebraskans deal with the 2011 flood.

The UNL Extension Flood Resources site includes materials from UNL experts, other land-grant universities and government entities to help Nebraskans deal with flooding.

At the site, visitors will find materials in a number of topic areas, including: home, family, business, food safety, small business recovery, acreage and rural living, wells and drinking water, garden and horticulture, crops, cropland, livestock and pets.

"For those that have web access, this resource offers flood information in one location that Nebraskans can use to help them get through this time," said Rick Koelsch, UNL Extension assistant dean. "Local Extension offices also can help you access some of this information from the best research-based resources from across the United States."

New materials will continually be added to the site.

Flood news and information also can be found on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/UNLExtensionFloodResources> and Twitter @UNLFlood.

Too early to know West Nile Virus risk, but start mosquito control now

As areas along the Missouri and Platte rivers are hit by floods, the number of mosquitoes is expected to increase.

But it's too early to predict whether there will be an increase in the risk of mosquito-transmitted West Nile virus, because it depends on how long the floodwater stays around, said Roberto Cortinas, assistant professor in entomology and veterinary and biomedical sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"The thing with mosquitoes is we have two types of mosquitoes," Cortinas said. "We have floodwater mosquitoes and standing water mosquitoes."

Floodwater mosquitoes such as the Aedes vexans, also commonly known as the inland floodwater mosquito, will lay eggs in dry areas in anticipation of flooding or rain, Cortinas explained.

These eggs may survive a few years without water and hatch into mosquito larvae when water pools in the area. Mosquito larvae develop into pupae and then emerge from the water when they become adult mosquitoes.

Because of this year's flooding, the number of Aedes vexans likely will increase. These mosquitoes transmit dog heartworm, which infects animals, primarily dogs, but it is easily preventable, Cortinas said.

"Luckily, the Aedes vexans mosquitoes are not the key player in the spread of the West Nile virus," Cortinas said.

The West Nile virus is the most important mosquito-transmitted disease in North America. In 2010, 39 cases of West Nile were reported in Nebraska with two of those leading to death.

The mosquito that spreads West Nile virus is Culex tarsalis, a standing water mosquito. This kind of mosquito prefers to lay eggs in existing, stagnant water sources, such as water in a paper cup or old tires.

So for the Culex tarsalis mosquito population to increase substantially thus increasing the risk of West Nile virus transmission the floodwater would have to remain pooled for a few weeks, Cortinas explained.

In prior years, floodwater in Nebraska has drained quite quickly after floods, but that doesn't mean things can't change this year, Cortinas said.

"We can't anticipate how long the flooding is going to persist, so that's the concern," Cortinas said. "In the meantime, people can protect themselves against West Nile virus by controlling mosquito populations around their area and preventing mosquito bites."

Barb Ogg, UNL Extension educator in Lancaster County, said long-term mosquito control starts with people eliminating mosquito breeding grounds instead of just spraying insecticide.

"If they're going to spray their yard, it'll be effective for maybe a day or two," she said. "Anything in the yard that collects water, such as flower pots, cans and old tires, should be emptied. Dump out the bird bath at least twice a week, Ogg said, and check gutters to make sure they are not clogged."

For ponds or flooded areas, briquets or granules of the bacteria Bacillus thuringiensis israelensis (Bti) can be used to kill mosquito larvae, Ogg said, but it won't harm birds, fish mammals and other organisms.

People can avoid getting bitten by mosquitoes by making sure window and door screens are in good condition, and by remaining indoors during dawn and dusk, which is when mosquitoes are most active.

When venturing outside, it's advisable to wear long-sleeved clothing and long pants. Light-colored clothing seems to attract fewer mosquitoes than dark-colored clothing, Cortinas said.

Mosquito repellents help prevent mosquito bites, too. Ogg said the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends three kinds of mosquito repellents: DEET is the most common chemical used in insect repellents. DEET is effective, lasts up to eight hours depending on the concentration and is considered "the gold standard" for mosquito repellents, Ogg said. However, many people don't like DEET because it has an oily feeling and odor.

Picaridin is as effective as DEET but it isn't as long-lasting. However, it is not greasy and doesn't have an odor, so some people prefer Picaridin over DEET.

Oil of lemon eucalyptus (PMD) is extracted from the lemon eucalyptus plant. People like it because it's a natural substance, Ogg said, but it lasts for a shorter period of time than DEET or Picaridin of the same concentration, so it needs to be re-applied more frequently.

For more tips on controlling mosquitoes around the home, visit UNL NebGuide Residential Mosquito Control at www.ianrpubs.unl.edu/epublic/live/g2037/build/g2037.pdf

We would like to send our most sincere gratitude to all of those who have been so supportive of Kaden and our family. While the news of Kaden's brain cancer recurrence left us with great sorrow, we quickly found solace in the community's outpouring of support. At moments when uncertainty allies with despair, it can best be overcome by the hope and generosity delivered from family, friends, and well-wishers alike.

Kaden's fight is met with varying emotions, ambiguity, and, at times, cynicism. However, cynicism's most trepid opponent is the satisfaction a 12 year-old boy in a treatment room 500 miles from home receives witnessing a video of his classmates belting out a heartfelt rendition of "Lean on Me." And, it remains those moments that allow Kaden to realize that he can continue to fight because there are so many people he can indeed, lean on. The support ranging from cards, monetary contributions, or just a passive conversation letting us know that you are praying for Kaden have all been greatly appreciated.

Warmest regards, The family of Kaden Schmale
