Hearings moved to Fire Hall

Hopes for Sept. 6 start are '50-50'

By MICHAEL CARNES

Hearings for two Wayne police officers who were terminated earlier this year will be held after Labor Day in a new location.

At Tuesday's Civil Service Commission hearing, the three-member board unanimously decided on a change of venue for the hearings, voting 3-0 to move the hearings for Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear from the City Council chambers to the Wayne Fire Hall.

The commission has held its previous meetings at the City Council chambers, including Tuesday's short meeting. However, with the anticipated number of witnesses and potential public and media interest, the board agreed that the City Council's facility, which seats about 50 people, will not be able to handle the number of people who likely will be at the Special counsel Scott Norby told the board that they aren't necessarily required to move the meeting, but open meeting law limits a governing body from holding a meeting in a facility that they know will be too small to accommodate an audience.

"If half the number of witnesses appear that have been identified (by counsel), we don't have room big enough to accommodate the witnesses, much less the public," he

Board chair Darrel Heier was the first board member to bring up use of the fire department's meeting room, which seats at least 100 people.

"The location there is good, and that seems to be a pretty good possibility," he

Board members Galen Wiser and Marci

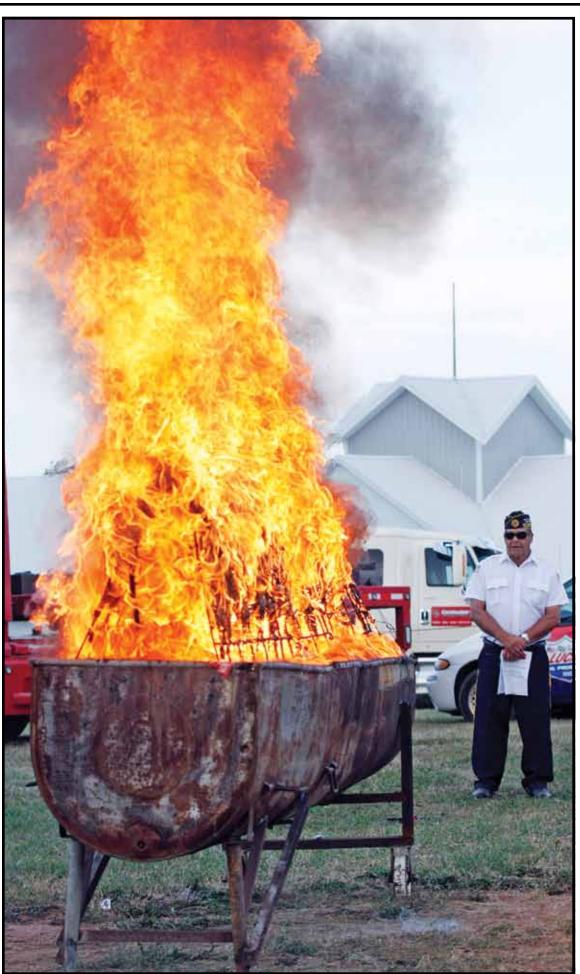

"By the time we get all the participants in this venue, it's probably going to be full . . . I think we should at least consider a change of venue," Wiser said.

Thomas both agreed.

"If the fire hall has all the equipment that is necessary, I think it's something we should consider," Thomas added.

One concern that was raised was making sure those in the audience would be able to hear the proceedings. Bill Seifert, news director at KTCH/KCTY, offered the use of the station's mobile sound system, which would allow for the inclusion of multiple microphones and could be set up in as unobtrusive a manner as possible.

Norby said that, while anticipating the audience's needs are, a sound system isn't a See HEARINGS, Page 4A

Flag fire

Denny Lutt, commander of the Wayne County American Legion, watches as more than 60 worn out American flags are burned prior to Thursday's tractor pull at the Wayne County Fair. In past years, the flags that are annually retired during the fair were burned in a hole at the south end of the grandstand area. This year, a specialdesigned pit was created to burn the flags more quickly. It took about seven minutes for the full complement of flags to be reduced to ashes.

Wasterwater facility ready to be tested

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Among the items on the agenda of the Wayne City Council on Tuesday was a payment to Eriksen Construction for work completed on the Wastewater Treatment facility.

Public Works superintendent Garry Poutre told the council that the project "is moving right along and within the next week, testing will take place on the individual pieces of equipment. Right now, we are on track to bring the system on line the week of Sept. 5."

Poutre also brought a piece of fabric known as 'media' that is part of the filtering system for the facility. Prior to Poutre's presentation, council members dealt with several items in regard to annexing an area on the west edge of the Fourth Generation Family Limited Partnership, the division of Bomgaars, Inc. that deals with land purchases, presented a redevelopment plan to the city for an area known as Western Ridge

As part of the redevelopment plan, TIF financing in the amount of $220,000 was approved for the project. In addition, a portion of the TIF allocation will be used to pay for the assessment for sewer hook-up to Glen's Auto Body. At the council's last meeting Glen Nichols, owner of Glen's Auto Body, spoke to the council on the hardship he felt his business would incur if he were forced to pay for the services already at his business.

The council did pass the ordinance that will annex both Western Ridge Third Addition and Western Ridge First Addition on the third and final reading.

In connection with the Western Ridge Third Addition, council members passed three ordinances and waived the three readings on each of them. They will create street, sewer and water extension districts for the area. Those property owners who own land adjacent to the area will be given an opportunity to voice their opinions on the creation of the district as the project moves forward.

Council members heard from Wes Blecke, Executive Director of the Wayne Area Economic Development on status of LB840 funds in the community. Blecke said that after a busy start to the program, "the last six months have been slow." He did note that there have been several recent requests and explained to the council the amount of money that has been granted to businesses, versus the money that has been loaned and will be repaid to be used again.

The council tabled action on several ordinances that would change the traffic flow around the Wayne Middle School.

Wayne Public School officials are planning to make changes in the pick up and drop off of students at the school in anticipation of next year's consolidation of the schools in the district.

Council members were not opposed to the proposed changes, but felt it would be a good idea to allow adjacent property owners the opportunity to express their views on the changes.

Parents will be notified of the schools intent in regard to traffic before the start of the school year and the city council will act on the ordinances associated with them at the next meeting.

Council members also passed Resolution 2011-62, which approves an engineering services agreement with Olsson Associates to design, bid out and monitor installation of replacement silencers and catalytic converters for seven of the city's power plant engines. The work is necessary to comply with EPA air quality standards. The estimated cost for the project is $750,000 but is necessary to allow the city to generate power for Nebraska Public Power District as part of a contract that extends for another 10 years.

Considerable discussion was held on Ordinance 2011-15, which will amend the city code to allow trained personnel to discharge firearms within city limits. At issue is the need to get rid of turkey buzzards which have been Mission accomplished.

In recent times, members of the 189th Transportation Company in Wayne have traveled overseas for assignments in Iraq and Afghanistan.

This time around, the National Guard unit didn't have to go so far to carry out a mission, and they recently completed their work in helping people along the Missouri River avoid a major flooding disaster.

A total of 25 members of the 189th were involved in surveying and monitoring levies that were put up along the river. Most of their work was done 35 miles away in South Sioux City, but there were also missions at Fort Randall, Gavins Point Dam and in the Omaha metropolitan area.

John Wren, staff member at the 189th, said the unit took care of a number of duties during the past couple of months as the flood waters peaked.

"They did a lot of monitoring of the levy, looking at some hot spots where they had trouble during the 1952 flood," he said. They fixed a lot of minor things on the levies, and there were some truck missions where we hauled some pumps from Fort Randall and Gavins Point down to Lake

It's not the first time the 189th has been called on to help with a nature-related disaster. The ice storm of 1994-1995 that hit Omaha saw unit members stationed there to help pick up trees, and they helped out after tornados struck Jackson in 2004 and, most recently, in Kearney.

While in South Sioux City, the unit provided 24-hour monitoring of the levy and looked for any changes that could indicate a potential problem along the levy, said Maj. Kevin Heinz of the Guard's public affairs office in Lincoln. "They worked with local and county emergency managers and helped keep an eye on the levy and report to local officials if they indicated there might be any problems," Heinz said.

As many as a dozen members of the 189th were in South Sioux City at one time. A total of 25 unit members were involved in the levy monitoring efforts, and their work was greatly appreciated by the people of South Sioux City.

"They were just on the ball," said Marty Johnson, owner of Covington Links Golf Course on the northwest part of South Sioux City. "If somebody got on the levy that didn't belong, they were on it. If there was a boil on the back side, they were always on the spot. We had some troubles with animals poking holes (in the levy), and they'd get out there and sandbag it."

Kim Hansen met with the Wayne County Commissioners on Tuesday to discuss some maintenance projects for the Courthouse.

Hansen said she would like to see more hallway lighting on the top floor of the building.

"It's dark up here. It's August, so I thought it might take a little time so that's why I'm asking now. During the winter time and working at night, you can't see," stated Hansen. County commissioner Kelvin Wurdeman asked Hansen if she could just leave the balcony or landing light on to get to the top of the stairs.

"For me, it worked for 100 years and now it's not?" said Commissioner Wurdeman.

Hansen also brought with her a wooden handrail to show the commissioners. This handrail will be assembled on part of the stairs where the other rail stopped. Hansen said she has the brackets to put them up.

"It was brought to my attention that someone could fall real easily,' said Hansen.

Another maintenance project Hansen brought up is the finish of the steps in the Courthouse.

"When you are on the main floor and you look up at the steps, it looks decent. When you look from the main door at the steps, it doesn't look so nice. The wood hasn't cracked, but the finish is cracked. It's not taken care of very well," stated Hansen.

Different services available at new nail salon in Wayne

By JAYCIE WOSLAGER Of the Herald

Chuong Van Huynh has been in the nail business for 10 years.

In 2003, he received his nail technician degree from a school in Boston, Mass. His first nail salon started in Columbus, and he opened the Royal Nails II business here in Wayne opened up during the second week of July.

"Oh yes, we have a good location right on Main, and so far we're doing well. I'm happy with it," said Van Huvnh.

Right now, he drives back and forth from Columbus to Wayne to monitor each business.

In the Wayne salon, they can fit up to four clients at a time for manicures, and they can also fit up to four clients for pedicures and foot massages. But for right now, Van Huynh can only seat two to three clients at a time. He only has two employees - himself and Simon

"If we can pick it up we will get more (employees). If it goes well, I'll get more help," stated Van Huynh.

They offer many services for one's nails, such as pedicures, manicures, full sets, french manicures, nail take off, nail design, air brush design, polish change and coating.

They did not, however, reach a decision on the Community Activity Center Director Position. Discussion centered on whether or not the position should be full-time and what the responsibilities of the director should be. Also discussed was the utilization of Wayne State College students in programs offered at the Community Activity Center.

Mayor Ken Chamberlain said he would like to see "one person in charge of the Activity Center and others in charge of specific programs."

Additional discussion on options will take place at the council's next meeting, which will be held Tuesday,

Time for Wayne to leave RBL?

A good friend and legendary wrestling coach, Mike Denney, has long preached the positives of going up against top-level competition, no matter what sport it is.

"Steel sharpens steel," I can recall him saying, more times than I can count, during my days as E-publisher of Nebraska Wrestling Illustrated.

A perfect illustration was season-opening wrestling tournament hosted by the University of Nebraska at Omaha. The Kaufman-Brand Open was the largest single-day college wrestling tournament in the country, bringing more than 700 wrestlers from all levels of college wrestling, from the small junior colleges to the big boys from Iowa, Oklahoma State, Minnesota and other wrestling juggernauts. Young wrestlers from Div. II UNO would compete against Div. I studs who would go on to be not only NCAA champions, but Olympic competitors as well.

The UNO kids would lose some tough matches to some very tough wrestlers, but that experience of competing against top-level competition would make them better wrestlers and help them finish the season, more often than not, as All-Americans and national

This past summer, both Wayne American Legion baseball teams had eye-popping records. The Juniors were 20-3 this season, while the Seniors finished Tuesday with a 23-5 campaign. Both teams were top seeds in their area tournaments, and their records were well ahead of the others in their respective

At the Juniors level, Wayne played fellow area tournament teams Albion and Pierce. They split a pair at Albion (their only regularseason loss, which was followed by a one-sided win), and they beat Pierce convincingly every time they played

This was typical of the competition the Juniors faced this season. And this isn't to say the team didn't deserve the record, because it's a very talented team and they were clearly the most dominant team on the field every night out – until the area tournament. The same thing was true of the Seniors. They beat Pierce and Central City during the regular season, and yet, when it came time to face a team of similar highquality talent level, like Aurora, the team was unable to come out on top.

The problem, as I see it, is that Wayne doesn't play a tough enough in-season schedule to allow it to be at its best when it comes time to play teams of similar capability in the postseason.

Both of these teams are tremendously talented. They both have good coaching. They have a great facility to play its home games. They have great community support. Everything is in place for Wayne baseball to be a perennial state tournament competitor.

The problem is, they are tied to a schedule that doesn't sharpen their skills enough to do battle with programs like the Aurora Seniors and Albion Juniors, both of whom – it can be argued – play much more challenging schedules that helped both teams reach the state tournament (ending Wayne's season in the process, coincidentally). Aurora faced Class A teams like Kearney and Hastings this season. They battled a McCook team that is going to state, and games like that made them a little more ready for the postseason by the time they got to the area tournament at Hank Overin Field. Who did Wayne play to get ready? West Point.

Pitchers' duel is decided on unearned run in seventh

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

WAKEFIELD - Baseball is most certainly a game of inches, and plenty of evidence of that truth could be found last Wednesday in the Class C, Area 2 championship so they tried it again and Wakefield was inches away from plating the first run of the game, only to see a line drive snared by a breaking shortstop. In the end, it was the inch or two that allowed a ground ball to pop out of a fielder's glove that gave Pender the 1-0 win and a trip to the state tournament.

The starting pitchers for both teams - Wakefield's Dusty Sherer gotten a run home there." and Pender's Zack Johnson - put on a masterful performance. Both pitchers threw the ball well and had opposing batters guessing, and both got out of potential run-scoring on a fielder's choice. The team's situations for six innings before Pender finally broke the ice with two out in the top of the seventh.

Sherer, who has been battling injuries throughout the season, pitched very well in a losing effort. He gave up just three hits, struck out six and walked seven.

"He really competed hard," coach Paul Eaton said after the game. "He's been hurt all year long, but he did a super job for us. He has really good stuff, and (umpire) Mike Test did a good job behind the plate and made the kids throw strikes, and Dusty did a good job."

Both teams left runners in scoring position in each of the first three innings, but it looked as if giving Pender runners at third and Wakefield was finally going to break the ice in the bottom of the fifth.

Wakefield had another chance to score in the sixth when A.J. Bormann singled, moved to second on a wild pitch and went to third hopes for breaking the scoreless tie were dashed, though, when reliever Eric Browning struck out Brendan Nicholson on a 2-2 fastball that dusted the outside part of the plate to end the threat.

Pender broke the ice in the seventh with the help of two errors in the inning that allowed them to score an unearned run.

After Sherer walked Jon Smith to start the inning, Benny Oliver came on to sacrifice the runner ahead. His bunt was fielded perfectly by Jake Nelson, but the third baseman threw off his back foot toward first and ended up throwing the ball well over the head of Adam Drieling, second with nobody out.

"Jake's played good defense all With two out and Michael Eaton year long, and it was just too easy the hard part and fielded the ball quickly, and I think he knew when he let it go it was going to be over Wegner hit a sharp grounder deep in the hole at third that Nelson couldn't come up with, and Oliver - who was moving with the crack of the bat - came home to score the game's only run. Browning set Wakefield down in order in the bottom of the seventh to give topseeded Pender the area title.

While the Wakefield Seniors finished with a 12-18 record, Eaton said the team saved its best for the end of the season, a season that was a challenge for the team.

didn't know if we could do that," he to compete for a state title. said. "We've had a lot of success, healthy enough to be able to play at the end, and A.J. came back late in the season and he's meant so much to the program.

"We've been fortunate," he added. opportunity comes again. "For 45 years, we've always gotten good kids, and I'll take these guys any day. We had a lot of fun."

the teams - but when you think about playing the best so you can be at your best at season's end, it's roughly the equivalent of the Wayne State volleyball team winning the rec league title at the Community Activity Center before competing in the NCAA regional tournament.

The Wayne school board took a bold step last year in bringing baseball back, and the payoff was evident this summer. Even though they only played 13 spring games (and stumbled to a 3-10 effort), this team was well ahead of the field when the summer season started Coach Jeff Zeiss pointed to Trent Beza as a perfect example of how much spring ball helped. Beza went from being a rarely-used pitcher to one that was a consistent starter who pitched some fantastic games

But did spring baseball put us THAT far ahead of Pierce, Hooper and Ponca to the point where it looked like one team was playing chess and the other playing checkers this summer? Most certainly -Wayne faced tough competition during the spring season, and it made both teams that much better when the summer season started. There is no doubt that Wayne is a great baseball town, and the two Legion teams that represented this community were outstanding this summer. I just believe a softer schedule was ultimately the anchor that held both teams back from what should have been a much-deserving state tournament appearance this summer for both teams.

Tradition is a hard thing to change, and I know Wayne has been playing in the RBL a long time. Looking back on this season, though, I wonder if the Wayne baseball program should ask how "When the season started, our much tradition is worth hanging on goal was to field two teams and we to, when the goal for both teams is

To be the best, you need to beat and thank goodness we got enough the best. Wayne baseball is worthy (players for two teams). Brock of being the best in the state (Soderberg) and Dusty both got but they need to face the kind of competition that is going to sharpen their skills and force them to play their best every time out so they can be at their best when that

> Fifteen-running teams like Pierce 20 times a season, quite frankly, isn't going to make that a reality.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes Managing Editor

Time to change Congress is now

When would NOW be a good time

This is a question that is often asked by self-help expert James Arthur Ray, and it's a loaded question meant to get an individual to take action on an opportunity to better his or her life.

It's also the perfect question for me to ask regarding the right time for us to begin the process of clearing out the pathetic excuses of representation that have driven our nation's financial status to the cliff

Late Tuesday morning, the U.S. Senate voted on a measure that would increase the nation's debt ceiling by $2.5 trillion dollars. Before the vote, the nation was on the brink of defaulting on its debts, which have exceeded $14 trillion.

The bill includes spending cuts that, allegedly, will happen over the course of 10 years, amounting to about $2.5 trillion, but there are no specifics about what will be cut, or when the cuts will actually take

For weeks now, the two political parties that are driving us into financial ruin have spent almost every waking hour shooting down the other side's proposals, pointing fingers of blame at the other side for our ever-increasing debt, and waiting until, literally, the 23rd hour before finally coming to an agreement that, ultimately, nobody in Congress is all that excited about. And experts are telling us that the measure approved by the House and Senate does nothing to truly address the fact that the federal government's spending habits need to be brought to an immediate halt.

comptroller general, told CNBC that America is less than three years away from facing a financial disaster similar to that experienced in Greece. Greece has nearly defaulted on its debt twice in the past two years. The new deal does next to nothing in the way of reducing our nation's deficit and does nothing in the way of cutting

How can we possibly trust the current 535 "representatives" in Washington to actually make meaningful spending cuts that allow us to knock down a deficit that is surging toward $15 TRILLION? These overpaid monkeys can't even balance their own checkbooks, let alone be entrusted with making sure our tax dollars are put to good use, and that we don't spend more than we take in.

It's funny how some of these "representatives" preach about balancing budgets and how they have criticized the concept of raising the debt ceiling, when - in fact - a number of them have personal financial issues of their own.

According to CNN's Political Ticker blog, a number of "representatives" in Congress have massive personal financial debts of their own. Utah Sen. Mike Lee has $15,000 in credit card debt and a $50,000 line of credit at a bank in his home state. Arkansas Rep. Tim Griffin owes American Express at least $15,000. Illinois Rep. Joe Walsh allegedly owes more than $117,000 in back child support.

And these jokers are being asked to handle our nation's finances? If this isn't the fox guarding the henhouse, I don't know what is.

And it shouldn't be much of a surprise to anybody that, immediately following Tuesday's decision, both houses of Congress decided they needed a five-week vacation. How many of them will return home to face the music with their constituents? Are they ready to deal with the anger and frustration the people back home are feeling?

The big question, though, is this - how much of this will we remember when it comes time to go to the polls 15 months from now and vote for our next representatives in Washington? And will we, the people, be brave enough to stop the insane idea of voting for either a Republican or a Democrat on the false hope that they might bring change in Washington?

Remember that word - change? It was King Obama's rallying cry when he suckered enough voters to select him as President of the United States three years ago. There was promise of a more open government, eliminating all the muck and mire from the halls of government in Washington.

And what do we have, three years later? Not only has Obama NOT offered any real change, he has deepened the slimy mud pit that has only fed the monster of debt that will take at least three generations to pay back. My first grandchild is David Walker, the former years away from even being born yet, and already he (or she) is faced with a mountain of debt

Four years ago, I publicly stated that I would not vote for a single Republican or Democrat in the elections for House, Senate or the Presidency. My votes went independent or third-party candidates.

Some viewed my decision as a waste of a vote. Considering the mess we find ourselves in right now, I would counter that those of you who voted for a Republican or a Democrat are the ones wasting your votes. There is no change, regardless of which party is in charge in Washington – any attempts to "change Washington" by changing form a (R) to a (D) – or vice versa – is the definition of insanity.

There was a lyric from a band called Queensryche from a song "Revolution Calling" that went as follows: "The time is ripe for changes, there's a growing feeling, that taking a chance on a new kind of vision is due.'

After watching this latest pathetic display by those "representing" us in Washington, I believe the time to take that chance is now. I fully intend to do my part to eliminate the insanity that the two parties are displaying in Washington.

When would NOW be a good time for you to follow suit?

Pipeline issues spring a leak

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - Don't get excited about the House of Representatives approving legislation involving the Keystone XL oil pipeline that would pass through Nebraska, including portions of the Sand Hills and the Ogallala Aquifer.

Sponsored by Republican Rep. Lee Terry of Omaha, it would require the U.S. State Department to make a decision by November on whether to issue a construction permit for the pipeline. The pipeline would move sand tar oil from Alberta, Canada to the Gulf Coast of Texas.

The House did send the bill to the Senate, but it's likely to be there for a very long time. Its chances of enactment are minimal. Besides, the Obama administration previously said a decision was expectable before the end of the leaks that would occur are going to be minimal and not hazardous to the Ogallala Aquifer," Terry said. Well, goodness gracious!

"I'm vastly positive that any

Proponents and opponents of the pipeline ought to find that outburst interesting.

Given the recent incidents of pipeline spills, particularly those involving the Keystone crowd, that seems mighty optimistic. Even for a fortune teller. Especially when one considers the delicate nature of the enormous, but shallow, aquifer.

Add to that the independent study

A footnote: When a controversial measure is passed by the House, it would be appropriate for reporters to insert a sentence or two noting the bill's next stop will be the U.S. Senate. And it would be a good idea if that sentence were pretty high up the pipeline.

- Supporters of Nebraska's groundbreaking 2010 anti-abortion law can point to an apparent victory reflected figures compiled by the state Department of Health and Human Services.

The 2010 "fetal pain law" banned abortions after the 20th week of pregnancy. The law is based on the disputed assertion that a fetus can feel pain at that stage.

Preliminary reports

1,153 abortions were performed in Nebraska during the first six months of this year. In 2010 the department noted 1,288 abortions in the same period.

* ACTUAL QUOTE

The Nebraska law was the first in the country to move away from the viability standard adopted in the landmark Roe v. Wade decision of 1973. It generally allowed abortions until a fetus was viable outside the womb, generally considered to be between 22 and 24 weeks.

Legislative Update Fairs, briefings, pipeline on the agenda the excessive heat that we have been experiencing. I will spend some time at the political booths in the "commercial" building at the fair, and hope to see many of you there. Even though it is no longer in District 17, I want to remind everyone of the Dixon County Fair, which will start the same day the Wayne Fair ends.

The Legislature's Health and Human Services Committee held two briefings this week in Lincoln. On Thursday morning, I attended a briefing at the Nebraska Children's Home regarding child welfare. The

In the afternoon, the Health Committee met with representatives of the Department of Health and Human Services. We discussed issues relating to child and family services. Other areas of concern are contracts with outside organizations that are currently providing services previously offered through this department. The Health Committee has a big job ahead to work with the Department to try to provide needed services while staying within a reasonable budget. There will be additional meetings held across the state, Aug. 3, in Grand Island, Sept. 15 in Norfolk, and other meetings in Scottsbluff and Omaha.

Another important this week is the TransCanada Keystone XL Pipeline. The House of Representatives voted 279-147 to require the State Department to determine by Nov. 1, 2011, if they will issue a permit for this controversial pipeline. The Keystone XL Pipeline, if approved, would carry crude oil from Hardisty, Alberta, Canada through Nebraska to destinations in Oklahoma and Texas. Congressmen Lee Terry of Omaha introduced the bill, which was also supported not be held hostage by fears of by Congressman Adrian Smith disturbing some bird or insect.

of Gering. Congressman Terry believes the pipeline would provide a major jobs boost to Nebraska. Congressman Jeff Fortenberry opposed this legislation because of his concerns of the potential danger of locating the pipeline in the Sandhills and over the Ogallala Aquifer. Because the pipeline would cross into the United States from Canada, a Presidential Permit issued by the U.S. Department of State is required for the project to proceed. The U.S. Senate is also required to pass a similar bill before this legislation would be presented to President Obama, which is not likely to happen before the Nov. 1

This proposed oil pipeline is an important issue for our state's future and one we must continue to monitor. If I were to have my way about it, we would encourage building a refinery in western Nebraska, which could create thousands of good jobs and help revitalize our economy. Unfortunately, the environmental extremists have caused us not to build a new refinery in the United States for over 30 years. There has been an ongoing battle for over 10 years now on a refinery proposed for eastern South Dakota. At some point if we are to survive as a great nation, we must override some of the kooks and move forward with "reasonable" caution. We should

Five Days Of Festivities

A large number of Brudigam-Krusemark family members were at the Wayne County Fairgrounds on Friday to accept an Ak-Sar-Ben Pioneer Farm Family award. The farm, located south of Wakefield, was originally purchased by Carl and Bertha Brudigam on March 7, 1911. Currently Ron and Corlliss Krusemark live on the land, although many family members continue to stop out to visit on a regular basis.

Marilyn and Pat Finn (holding plaques) and many of their children and grandchildren were on hand to accept the Ak-Sar-Ben Pioneer Farm Family Award. The "Fine Finn Farm," located northeast of Carroll, has been in the family for more than 100 years. It was originally purchased by Pat's grandfather in 1906.

Receiving the Kilroy Award at this year's fair were Mick and Sue Topp. The Topps have been active with the Wayne County Fair for many years, beginning as 4-H exhibitors when they were eight years old. Making the presentation were Shelly Keiser and Dave Jaeger.

Harvey Brader, center, accepts a clock from Bob Dowling with the Wayne County Farm Bureau as Brader's wife, Esther, looks on. Brader was chosen as this year's recipient of the Farm Bureau's Oldest Active Farmer award.

Georgia Janssen, center, accepts a token of appreciation from Dave Jaeger and Shelly Keiser, representing the Wayne County Agricultural Society. Janssen has volunteered for many years in the Ag Hall, working with Open Class exhibits.

Dave Jaeger, left, presents members of the Nebraska National Guard's 189th Transportation Company with a wood carving in memory of Joshua Ford, who was killed in the line of duty five years ago. Accepting the carving were Daniel Roeber, Brendan Dorcey, Chris Woehler and Lucas Munter.

3 Ways lighting can make a huge difference when showing your house.

1. Number of Lighting Sources: In an average sized living room, the industry standard is 3-5 sources of light. Most rooms are dramatically under lit with 1-2 sources of light being all there is. If you have a ceiling fixture and just 2 lamps all turned on for a showing, you can create a more positive atmosphere than just having a ceiling fixture alone.

2. Type of Lighting: Using today's newer light bulbs can result in a dimmer type of lighting for the first few minutes. Be sure to turn lights on well in advance of the showing time so that all lights are at their full capacity. Also use warm white bulbs (noted on the package) instead of cool white bulbs which look more commercial.

3. Placement of Lighting: Where you put the lighting is very important! By placing a floor lamp near a dark corner you can increase the visual size of your room. Also, accent lights can be used to highlight fireplaces to create interest. You can even use lighting to change the shape of your room. For example, a long narrow room will seem more balanced simply by placing lamps on the appropriate walls and visually balancing the room.

In short, lighting can make rooms brighter, more inviting and well balanced. If you have questions, call me I'd be happy to help. Also, email me your comments at: wendy@mwlco.net.

The first day of kindergarten can the security of their parents and caregivers. Parents may find that having a child enter kindergarten is stressful because it is a different routine and their child is moving into a new phase of their life.

> To help smooth this process, parents can help to minimize their child's fear of the first day of kindergarten by explaining relevant information about school and by establishing a routine well before school starts.

> A few weeks before school begins, parents should start talking to their child about how kindergarten works. They could share some positive things about their own schooling experience. For example, parents can explain that they were also scared to go to school when they were little, but that they learned a lot of new things and made new friends. This will let children know they don't have to be afraid of going

For a more hands-on approach, parents could read their child a book about going to school so that their child understands what he or she will do in kindergarten. Kids could also draw a picture story of them going to school on the first day such as pictures of the car ride, parents hugging them goodbye, going to class and parents getting them at the end of the day.

Extension Educator

Before kindergarten begins, parents also can create a routine for their children. If necessary, set an earlier bedtime for children, so they can easily get up earlier to get ready for school. Show children a series of tasks to go through each morning before school: eat break- Extension Educator.

fast, brush their teeth, comb their hair, change into school clothes, get their school bag, and so on. Parents should build these changes into the child's schedule at least a week before school starts so that he or she has time to adapt to these new

As a part of setting the routine, parents should also try to take their children to the actual school building. Show the kids the way to their classroom so that everything doesn't seem so daunting on the first day. Take them to meet their teachers and even their school principal. Let the children play in the school playground so that they familiarize themselves with the equipment and the surroundings.

Even after all the preparation, some children might still be afraid to go to school. On the first day of school, they might complain of physical discomfort such as a sore throat, fever or stomachache. This physical discomfort may be just a way of saying, "I'm really scared." Parents need to make sure they stay calm in these cases and listen to their child. Instead of getting angry, parents should be supportive and encourage the child.

Helping children prepare for that first day of kindergarten can help them as well as their parents have a more successful and smooth transition into school.

Our Savior Lutheran Church hosts Guest Day

Ninety-seven church women from the community and surrounding area enjoyed an evening of food, fellowship and entertainment at Our Savior Lutheran Church's Women of ELCA Guest Evening on

The evening began with a greeting of welcome from president Dorothy Wert and a devotion from Pastor Bob Oleson.

A sandwich and salad meal was enjoyed and the women then progressed to the sanctuary where a skit portraying Women of the Bible was presented by women young and old from Our Savior Luthean

These women shared the gifts they posess and the roll they played in the Bible. The women then passed these gifts on to the Women of Today in hopes that they will in turn share their boldness and gifts to the next generation. The group sang several songs and the evening closed with a power point presentation prepared by Tanya Heikes entitled "Simple Truths".

Each woman went home with a Pocket Prayer guilt with an enclosed cross. Three women went home with prizes from a drawing. Those receiving garden ornaments were Lila Brown and Bea Kinslow from Wayne and Carol Severa from Norfolk.

Recyle your used toner and ink jet cartridges, fusers and cell phones.

Why Recycle?

Did you know? Over 350 million cartridges are thrown into our landfills annually. That's over 29 million cartridges a month.

Each discarded laser cartridge adds approximately 3.4 pounds of metal and plastic waste to our landfills - waste that will take as long as 1,000 years to decompose.

More than 3 quarts of oil are used to produce each laser cartridge. The plastic used in each printer cartridge takes more than 10 centuries (that's 1000 years!) to decompose.

Books are 'old friends'

Another benefit of going through my mother's things: I'm discovering books I "loaned" her and we both forgot they were mine! I'm rereading several "old friends" now. These are compendiums of columns by those I've admired. Most are even from Nebraska. And I had been wondering what happened to

The first, "Keepers," is a collection by Joan Burney, whom I consider a wonderful friend and mentor. She had readers send in their favorites, the ones that were still on the refrigerators or in scrap books, and she compiled them and printed a book. They are now 30 years old, but I'm still enjoying

The second, "Love Made Me Do It," is by Dorthy Koepke, a former neighbor and another long time friend. (Yes, she does spell it Dorthy.) Dorthy grew up in South Dakota during the 1930's and can still remember picking up dry cow pies for fuel! She married Herman, even though he was 10 years older, and they moved to the farm north of Hoskins and proceeded to have 10 children. She used to give talks with that title, and said they had nine kids before they found out what caused it, and the 10th to have been collected and printed for posterity. They only had seven children; she said they were not Catholic, just "sexy Presbyterians."

I'm still missing "I Should Have Seen It Coming When the Rabbit Died," by Theresa Bloomingdale of Omaha. She also had 10 children, in the days when pregnancy tests were done with a rabbit, not an EPT from the drugstore. This lady has also gone to claim her reward in heaven. All these women were mothers of many, and it made for great "column fodder."

The last one is "Echoes in the Corners of my Heart," by Rae Turnbull. Rae is not a Nebraskan, but her poetry was published in the World-Herald for years, and it had a way of expressing my thoughts, and those of a lot of other women, in beautiful prose. I was upset when the paper decided not to keep printing them.

It's been just like rediscovering old friends, a written feast. And it's just in time for National Friendship Day, which is being observed on August first. It reminds me of the old saying, "Make new friends, cherish the old. The first is silver, the second, Gold!" Call a friend and tell them how much you appreciate

Health alert issued for area lakes

The state has issued health alerts for toxic blue-green algae at Lone Star Lake in Fillmore County, Rockford Lake in Gage County and Maskenthine Lake in Stanton County. An alert continues to be in effect at Willow Creek Lake in Pierce County.

Weekly sampling has been conducted at 49 public lakes in Nebraska since the beginning of May. Samples taken this week at the four lakes were above the state's health alert threshold of 20 parts per billion (ppb) of total microcystins (a toxin released by certain strains of blue-green algae.) The alerts at Lone Star, Rockford and Maskenthine lakes are the first at those lakes this year. This is the third consecutive week that an alert has been in effect at Willow Creek Lake. The alerts will continue at the four lakes for at least two more weeks, because lakes that are on health alert must have two consecutive weeks of readings below the threshold before the alert is

When a health alert is issued, signs are posted to advise the public to use caution, and designated swimming beaches are closed during the alert. Recreational boating and fishing are permitted, but the public is advised to avoid activities that could involve accidental ingestion of water and to avoid full immersion in water. People can still use the public areas for camping, picnics and other outdoor

The lakes will continue to be monitored weekly throughout the 2011 recreational season. Sampling results for toxic algae and bacteria will be updated every Friday and posted on NDEQ's web
