Traffic adjusting to one-way streets at school

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Parents who are getting into the routine of dropping their kids off at school every morning are quickly adjusting to some traffic changes around Wayne Middle School.

Earlier this month, the Wayne City Council acted on a request from the school district to make Sherman and Douglas streets one-way traffic zones around the school. This created some initial headaches for parents, as the ordinances for the two streets were approved the night before the start of the school year.

Do Not Enter signs have been posted to help with the flow of traffic around the school, and parents seem to be adjusting to the new dropoff procedures, according to Wayne Public Schools superintendent Mark Lenihan.

"We've encouraged parents to drop off and pick up their kids on Fourth Street, and hopefully the traffic will settle down and people will get accustomed to where they can drop off and pick up the students," he said. "It seems to be working pretty well so far."

The reason for the traffic changes is due to the closing of the east entrance to the building, due to construction that will expand the building for the school's plans to move elementary students into the building next school year, while sixth and seventh graders move into a new addition at the high school.

As a result, traffic between Third and Fourth streets is northbound only on Sherman Street and southbound only on Douglas Street.

Lenihan said the one-way traffic also allows for the school buses to have a convenient drop-off point on the west side of the building.

"Sherman Street is kind of a narrow street, and the buses take up most of the width of the street," he said. "The students can get out on the building side of the street, so they won't have to cross the road. It will be a safer place for students to drop off."

Lenihan said the traffic flow could be further aided if more students walked or rode their bike to school.

"I'd encourage parents, if it's safe, to consider having their kids walk or bike to school," he said. "It's good exercise, and we have quite a few who bike to school already and that helps with the traffic flow."

Lenihan said the school will take a look and see how the traffic flow goes during the school year. The streets will revert back to two-lane traffic during the summer, but if all goes well, Lenihan said the school will probably ask the city to make the traffic flow on those two streets permanent.

"We used to load buses on Douglas Street, but we can't this year because that entry way is closed," he said. "We may shift back to Douglas, but we'll talk about that before the start of the next school year." Construction at the middle school is expected to be finished by next July.

Alcohol, parties are focus of new We Agree effort between schools

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

With the start of the school year, college kids are getting acclimated to their new surroundings and experiencing a certain sense of freedom that comes with leaving home for college.

Wayne State College and Northeast Community College are collaborating on a new program that helps college students understand the pitfalls and responsibilities of a social life that includes alcohol consumption, and the "We Agree" program was unveiled during a news conference at Wayne State College Tuesday afternoon.

Wayne State president Curt Frye said that alcohol consumption is a major concern, not only at colleges, but in the communities those colleges reside, including Wayne.

"Close to 40 percent of college students engage in binge drinking," he said. "Almost 2,000 college students die from alcohol-related accidents, and another 600,000 are injured. In an effort to reduce these types of problems, Wayne State and Northeast Community College have formed a partnership to address alcohol-related issues and college students in the community."

The program, funded in part by the Nebraska Prevention Center for Alcohol and Drug Abuse and the U.S. Department of Education, includes pamphlets, door hangers and other promotional material to educate students on being responsible when it comes to consuming alcohol or having a house party.

Norfolk Police Chief Bill Mizner and Sgt. Marlin Chinn of the Wayne Police Department both discussed their cities' procedures for dealing with loud parties and illegal alcohol consumption.

Mizner said the police department's goal is to make sure college students have a positive social experience.

"You can help make sure that experience is positive by obeying our laws, particularly those concerning alcohol and loud parties," he said. "We make hundreds of alcohol-related and disturbing the peace arrests each year, many of which result from loud party complaints. By consuming responsibly and legally, and respecting the rights of others, you can enjoy your social life and have an outstanding college experience."

Both Mizner and Chinn said their departments take a zero-tolerance stance on these violations. Chinn said Wayne's police force follows procedures similar to Norfolk, and will also take a proactive approach if officers notice a situation getting out of control.

"Normally, our officers come in contact if there is a call, but if they are out and notice a gathering getting too large or noisy, they will make contact with the tenants and make them aware of the city's disorderly house ordinance," he said.

Wayne's police department also notifies landlords of residences where they are called to, sending them a notification letter that the police department responded to their property for a disturbance call.

Student representatives Joe Whitt of Wayne State and Tim Young of Northeast expressed support for the initiative, and encouraged students and community residents to work together to make sure a positive experience is had by all.

Officers' hearing is moved to Oct. 31

The hearing for two fired Wayne police officers has been moved back to Monday, Oct. 31, according to information released by the Wayne city clerk Tuesday morning.

The hearing for the two officers, Chief Lance Webster and Lt. Phil Shear, was originally scheduled for Monday, Sept. 6. That has been moved back after a pre-hearing conference between attorneys for the officers and the city was held last Wednesday, Aug. 17, at the office of Scott Norby, special counsel for the Civil Service Commission.

It was determined that the parties involved could not be ready by the scheduled start of the hearing and the scheduling change was made.

Detective work leads to quilting history lesson

BY CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Approximately three years ago, Beverly Hansen bought a box of scrap fabric at an auction. The fabric was to be given to her home church in Page for fundraising projects.

However, when going through her purchase, Hansen discovered a shoe box in the middle of the fabric and that led to detective work to find the story associated with the box and its contents.

"The box was filled with quilt pieces for two different quilts. The outside of the box had writing on it, but because it was in pencil, it was too light to read," she said.

She knew both of the ladies at whose auction she purchased the fabric (Wilva Jenkins and Etta Fisher), but could not make out either of their names on the box.

The only name that did stand out was "Leota Mary Johnson." Hansen knew that Leota Swanson was a resident at The Oaks Senior Living Community. She asked her daughter, Rhonda Sebade, who works at The Oaks, to do some inquiring into the possibility that the box belonged to her (Swanson).

While Leota was the person mentioned on the box, it and the contents did not belong to her.

Hansen continued her quest to solve the mystery and began carefully tracing the words on the box.

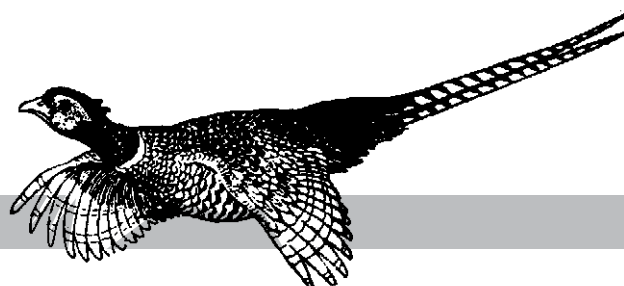

Her work resulted in determining that the box did indeed belong to Wilva Jenkins, and contained quilt pieces that Wilva had worked on in 1936, but never completed.

The box contains a "diary" of Jenkins' life, listing her age, height, weight, address, the contents of the box and her teacher's name and address, along with that of her lifelong friend and classmate, Leota (Johnson)

Black Hills Energy upgrading Wayne gas equipment, to be finished this fall

Black Hills Energy is partnering with natural gas transmission company Northern Natural Gas on an upgrade to natural gas equipment in and around Wayne.

"Part of the work that's taking place includes the construction of a new natural gas pipeline and installation of two new district regulator stations on the Black Hills Energy gas distribution system, which - when finished - will be a major upgrade to our Wayne natural gas system," said Scott Zaruba, Black Hills Energy North Region gas operations manager.

Work is under way on the east side of Wayne where Northern is installing a new town border station that it will own and operate. The new TBS is located north of state Highway 35 along 579th Avenue. It will replace Northern's current town border station east of Hillside Drive in Wayne.

A town border station is a delivery point for natural gas. Northern transports gas on its interstate pipelines to retail customers, in this case, Black Hills Energy. Black Hills receives gas for Wayne at Northern's TBS and from there delivers the gas to Black Hills customers in Wayne.

A new approximately 2.5-mile natural gas pipeline that Black Hills Energy will own and operate is being installed from Northern's new town border station to Black Hills' existing natural gas distribution system west of Hillside Drive. The new line runs from the TBS to just east of Wayne Municipal Airport where it turns south to Highway 35 and then west along the highway.

Two new district regulator stations at Highway 35 and Hillside Drive that Black Hills Energy will own and operate are also being installed. District regulator stations reduce the pressure of the gas for residential, commercial and industrial use.

The line currently in use will be taken out of service when the new line and other work is completed. Work began in late July and is expected to be finished in late September or October.

Three hurt in crash near Carroll

A Friday evening vehicle crash on Aug. 18 sent three Carroll residents to a Norfolk hospital.

At about 6 p.m. at a location one mile south and two miles east of Carroll, two pickups collided. Three persons in the pickup driven by Brian Kesting of Carroll were taken by Winside ambulances to Faith Regional Hospital in Norfolk, where they were treated for their injuries and released.

The pickup driven by Kesting was westbound, and a pickup towing a trailer hauling sheep was southbound and driven by Larry Rohlff of rural Carroll. Both drivers stated they did not see each other due to the crops on the intersection.

Rohlff was alone at the time in his vehicle and Kesting was accompanied in his vehicle by his two children. Everyone was belted into their respective vehicles. Rohlff did not require hospitalization.

Several sheep perished as a result of the crash.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the Carroll Fire and Rescue Department, Winside Fire and Rescue Department and the Nebraska State Patrol.

Business after hours

It was a busy afternoon in the clubhouse at Wayne Country Club on Friday as the first Business After Hours of the season was held, giving businesspeople and their families a chance to enjoy and unwind on a Friday afternoon.

Keep focus on long term with investments

Local investors should not allow short-time stock market fluctuations to derail their long-term investment decisions, representatives from the local Edward Jones office in Wayne said.

"Today's stock market volatility is being fueled by fear - fear over U.S. and European debt, not by market fundamentals, which we believe are generally strong," said Reggie Yates. "We believe that long-term investors should stay the course if they have a well-diversified portfolio of quality investments and a long-term perspective."

The financial services firm does not see today's volatility as a repeat of 2008, when the country was in a recession and a financial crisis.

"Because there are now fundamental differences in economic and market conditions, we believe this has the potential to present good opportunities for long-term investors to purchase quality investments at lower prices," said Ted Perry.

Edward Jones cites positive economic growth, an additional 1 million jobs added in the first seven months of the year compared to about the same as in all of 2010, and record high corporate earnings as indicators of strong market fundamentals.

In addition, oil prices are lower, giving consumers some help, and U.S. financial companies in general are in better shape as many are much better capitalized and have reduced risks in their businesses.

The sidelines are no place to be when it comes to one's long-term money, the firm added.

Moving day at WSC

Nearly 700 freshmen are enrolled at Wayne State College this semester. Many of them arrived on campus on Friday to move into the dorms before Freshman Orientation.

One hospitalized in two-vehicle crash

At about 9:45 a.m., Wednesday Aug. 17, a two-vehicle crash sent one person to a local hospital.

At an intersection four miles east and five miles south of Wayne, a pickup driven by Christopher Bovee of Bancroft struck a semi driven by Raymond Kingsley of rural Randolph.

Kingsley was alone at the time of the crash and Bovee had his six-year-old son with him at that time.

The Providence Medical Center ambulance took Bovee to Providence Medical Center in Wayne. He was later taken to a Sioux City hospital for further treatment of his injuries. His son did not require medical attention. Kingsley was also uninjured in the crash.

Kingsley reported that he was wearing his vehicle restraints and Bovee reported that his son was wearing his restraints but the investigation revealed that Bovee was not restrained and was thrown from his vehicle.

The Wayne Fire and Rescue Units assisted the Wayne County Sheriff's Office at the scene, along with two ambulance crews from Providence Medical Center.

Whitt encouraged college students to meet their neighbors and understand their concerns.

"Poor relationships with neighbors is one of the common reasons why students have negative experiences with the Wayne Police Department," he said. "The target is not the party, it's the offense that occurs that interfere with the quality of life of others."

Whitt also encouraged the community to get to know some of the college students that live in their neighborhoods.

"These are good kids that have chosen to come to our community, so I challenge you to get out there and meet them. You might be surprised at what you'll find," he added.

Young added that a common misconception is that most college students drink.

"A survey recently found that one in three (students) drink, so to have a good social experience in college, you don't need to have a drink and you can still have fun," he said.

Quilting

Swanson. It was dated Jan. 2, 1937, making the contents 75 years old.

The uncompleted quilts, one a Sunbonnet pattern and the other a Necktie quilt, sat in the box for some time until another of Hansen's daughter's, Heidi Bonsall of Norfolk, asked about them and volunteered to put them together into quilts.

"Heidi loves to sew and bought fabric to connect the blocks. She sewed them together earlier this year and then we took them to the Wayne Senior Center to have the ladies there quilt them," Hansen said.

Hansen said the Sunbonnet quilt is made of used sugar sacks and scraps of material. She noted that for being 75 years old, the blocks were in 'very good shape.'

Jenkins said that as a child, she grew up 12 miles west of Wayne and attended District 83.

"I had four brothers and two sisters. I was third from the youngest. I remember going to Star Extension Club meetings with my mother, where the ladies would work on quilts and I think that is where I worked on these," she said.

"I'm not really sure why I didn't ever finish the quilts. I guess I just lost interest in it at the time and then the box was put away. I didn't even remember that I had it," Jenkins said.

Barb Bailey, Jenkins' daughter, said she knew her mother had quilted in her earlier days and remembers going to Ladies Aid meetings and watching her mother and grandmother quilt, but was not aware that the quilt pieces existed.

The future of the quilts has not yet been determined. However, they are currently on display at The Oaks through the end of the month.

Early days of Nebraska football highlighted in film at Majestic

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Most University of Nebraska football fans know a lot about the glory years of Husker football, from the arrival of Bob Devaney to the success of Tom Osborne and the most recent years of gridiron glory.

On Sunday, the Majestic Theater will have a special movie for true Husker fans – one that goes back to where it all began in the late 19th century.

"Bugeaters" is a film directed by Omaha filmmaker Jim Fields, and its focus is on the early years of Nebraska football, back before the team was known, as they are now, as the "Huskies."

Before the 1900's, Nebraska's football team had nicknames such as Old Gold Knights and Bugeaters before a Lincoln sportswriter stuck them with the name Cornhuskers at the start of the 20th century. Historians Mike Babcock, Mark Ficke and Dave Harding go into detail about the history of those early days.

Melanie Loggins, theater coordinator, said the movie details those early years and includes historical recreations and animation of some of the first football games played at the University of Nebraska.

She said she was contacted by Fields about showing the movie at the Majestic Theater, and she said she wasted no time saying yes to the offer. The movie will be shown at the theater Sunday at 7 p.m.

Fields will be at the theater Sunday for the showing and will answer questions about the making of the movie. Copies of the movie will be for sale at the theater.

Disaster center available in Blair

A Disaster Recovery Center (DRC) operated by the state of Nebraska and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is now open in Blair to assist those affected by recent flooding.

The Blair DRC will be at the Washington County Courthouse, located at 1555 Colfax St. It will be open 9 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Counties designated for assistance to individuals are Boyd, Burt, Cass, Dakota, Dixon, Douglas, Knox, Sarpy and Washington. Future DRC locations will be announced as they are scheduled. Flood survivors may visit any DRC location for assistance.

Before visiting a center, people with flood-related losses should register with FEMA even if they have applied for assistance with the USDA, filed a claim with the U.S. Corps of Engineers, received assistance from local voluntary agencies, or have called the NEMA flood hotline to report their damage.

Register with FEMA by calling 800-621-3362 or online at www.disasterassistance.gov. Help is available in most languages. Persons affected by the floods also may apply for federal assistance through a web-enabled mobile device or smart phone. Visit m.fema.gov and follow the link to "apply online for federal assistance."

The Disaster Recovery Centers are staffed by experts from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, U.S. Small Business Administration providing loan information for individuals, renters and businesses, as well as other agencies. They will explain disaster assistance programs and help flood survivors.

Country Club titles are all in the Baldwin family

By KEVIN PETERSON
Of the Herald

Joey and Kari Baldwin captured the men's and women's annual Wayne Club Golf Tournament, Sunday at Wayne Country Club in slightly different fashion.

Kari fired an 80 with rounds of 40-40. She birdied No. 9 to take a 2-stroke lead on Amber Gamble heading to the final nine holes. Both players kept things close during the closing round, with Gamble drawing to within one stroke with two holes to play. Baldwin however, shut the door with a par-par finish.

Denise Erb captured the net title in the championship with a 68.7. In the women's second flight, it was Ann Kinney notching the victory with a net score of 64.3 with Jessica Olson finishing second at 69.5. The net score is subtracting the handicap from the actual score that was shot.

Joey Baldwin took a different approach en route to his third straight championship. He raced to a seven-stroke advantage over the first 18 holes before putting it on cruise control over the final nine holes. He finished with a 5-under par 103 over the 27-hole tourney. Baldwin had six birdies in the opening round on holes 1, 2, 9, 10,

He birdied holes 1, 5 and 9 in the championship round. Brad Hansen edged Rob Sweetland via tiebreaker for third place as each carded 112's.

WAYNE STATE COLLEGE FALL SPORTS PREVIEWS

Offensive changes coming for Wildcats

If you've watched a lot of the last few years of Wayne State football videos to get ready for the 2011 season, you're in for a little surprise.

A change at offensive coordinator will mean a few new wrinkles for the Wildcats, who look to improve on last year's 6-5 mark and make a push for the playoffs against what will be a very challenging schedule.

Jon McMenamin assumed the offensive coordinator duties this past spring, and seventh-year coach Dan McLaughlin said fans will see some things they haven't seen from the Wildcats in recent times.

"We've reintroduced ourselves to a couple of positions called tight end and fullback that we haven't had in the past," he said during the team's media day last week. "As far as fundamentals, it hasn't really changed. We have some different formations and different ways of attacking things. It's a little bit different rodeo, but fundamentally we're not that much different."

Six starters on offense and five on defense are back for this year's team. The Wildcats will have to find a replacement for Frederick Bruno, who was the team's all-time kick returner and one of the top receivers in school history.

The Wildcats will look to run the ball more, which means more carries for returning running back Nick Pulscher, who led the team in rushing last year with 463 yards on 126 carries.

"Nick's a great back. He's a solid sledgehammer and he's going to get you 4-5 yards whether you block for him or not," McLaughlin said. "We also have Bryce Hawthorne, a UNO transfer who is the fastest kid on the team, and Vincent Patterson, who redshirted last year, so we have three really good options at that position."

Pulscher will have some help in the backfield. McLaughlin said Chad Koch, Brock DeVries and Garrent Anthens all show promise at the position.

Cyle Schultz and Evan Johnson will once again battle for the top job at quarterback. Both played a considerable amount last season, and while Johnson saw most of the action last year, McLaughlin said Schultz has shown some good things in the preseason.

"Cyle's really stepped up there," he said. "Both of them have done really well, and we're confident enough in our quarterbacks that it doesn't matter who's on the field."

The quarterbacks will have some quality targets, including junior Kevin Paulsen, who led the team with 53 receptions for 564 yards last year. Mitch Montgomery was a big-play receiver last year, and UNO transfer Aaron Konicek and senior Tommy Warren should see time as well.

The Wildcats should also get some production out of the tight end slot, with Sam Blake and Grant Auten looking good in the preseason.

The Wildcats will have a good offensive line to work with, despite losing three starters from last year.

Coach says team has tools for great year

Last fall was a memorable year for the Wayne State volleyball team.

The team started with a school-record 16 straight wins, which led to their first-ever No. 1 ranking in NCAA Div. II. They had a second-team All-American in Jennifer Hefner and a second short stay at the top of the rankings, only to see the season end in a first-round exit in the regional tournament.

While there are some big shoes to fill heading into 2011, coach Scott Kneifl feels this team has the capability of doing some even bigger and better things by the end of this season.

"We lost three really good leaders last year, but we have some players that are stepping up," he said. "We might take some bumps at the beginning, but at the end of the year we can be really good."

Five starters from last year's 26-4 team are back, led by senior hitters Tali Fredrickson and Mindy Moody.

Moody will move from the outside hitter position to a middle hitter, and Kneifl feels that will give the Wildcats some added depth at a very important position.

"Mindy is sliding into that position and will be more of a go-to player this year, and we also have Alex Armes there, who has done some really nice things and is a fabulous athlete," Kneifl said. "We're probably more athletic in the middle than we've ever been, but the experience and consistency might not be there early on."

Fredrickson is only 5-foot-7, but has incredible leaping ability and will be a leader on the floor this year.

"Tali has really been a steady player for us the past two seasons, and we're looking for her to do much of the same," Kneifl said.

NSIC Libero for the year Leigh Connot is coming back for her senior season after recording an impressive 507 digs in 30 matches.

"Leigh's doing some really nice things to start the season, and her passing and floor defense are really going to be a key to our success," Kneifl said.

Sophomore midfielder Kelly Lange is part of a Wayne State soccer team that finished 4-1-1 in their final six matches to post an 8-5-5 record last year.

Soccer team hopes to build on '10 finish

Last year, the Wayne State women's soccer team finished with a flurry and almost made it to the conference tournament.

With seven starters and 13 overall letterwinners returning, it's not likely the Wildcats will sneak up on anybody on the pitch this fall, but third-year coach Molly Grisham said she is looking forward to seeing what this year's team has to offer.

"We were pleased with how we ended last season," she said. "We had some things click and our seniors stepped up and we put ourselves in a position to be in the conference tournament. We ended up one point short, but we're pleased with how we ended the season and I hope we can pick up where we left off."

The Wildcats return six starters from last year, including two of their top scorers from last year's 8-5-5 team.

Seniors Liz Israelsen (six goals, two assists) and Kelsey Meyer (four goals, six assists) give the Wildcats a good 1-2 punch on offense. Team MVP Christie Johnson is back as a returning defender, and Darian Mochizuki started in all 18 games last year as well.

"I think our seniors are going to do a great job leading our team," Grisham said. "All four are transfers who bring some quality experience in, and I've been impressed with what they are doing off the field as well as on."

The Wildcats will look to play a possession style of soccer that focuses on keeping possession and moving the ball up to attack in the front third of the field.

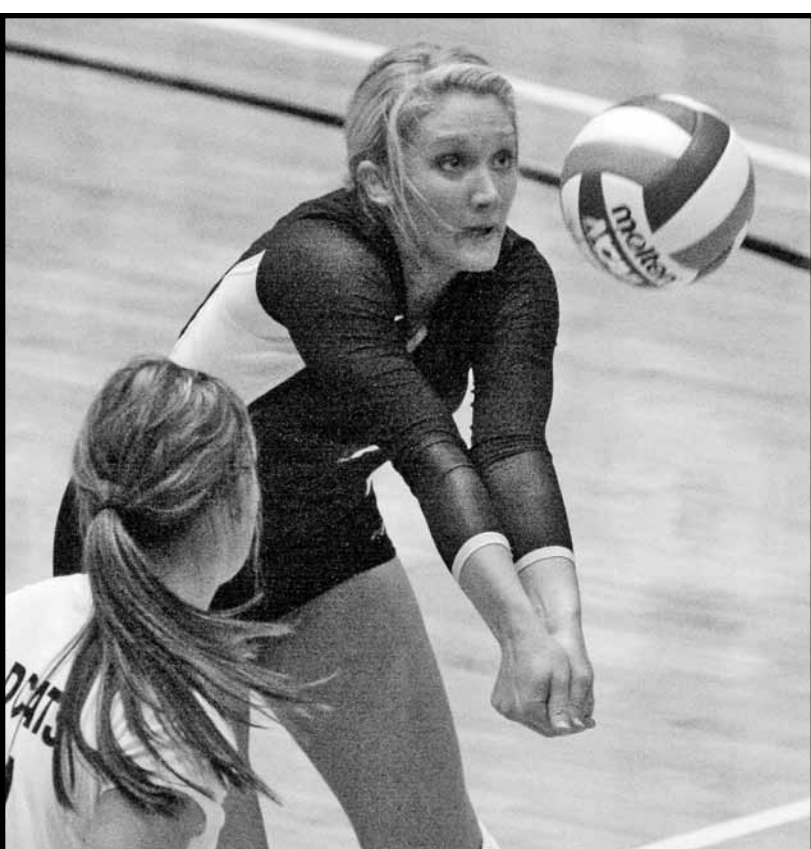

"If we can hold on to the ball, we're going to put ourselves in position to be successful," Grisham said. "We like to take on players in the front third, and I think we have the players to do that this year."

Sophomore starters Kelly Lange and Macy Hagen both have goal-scoring potential, and sophomore Heather Feltes is back as a defender after a solid freshman season.

Six other letterwinners are back for the Wildcats, including sophomore goalkeeper Ryan Wells, who saw limited action but will battle freshman Jessica Stringer for netminding duties this season.

"We're going to be young regardless," Grisham said of her goalkeepers. "They're both pretty inexperienced, but they're getting better and we have a back line full of veterans, so I'm confident that

Softball team opens season with tournament sweep

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Wayne High's softball team was hoping to get off to a good start on the road Thursday.

Mother Nature had other ideas, raining out the Blue Devils' season opener at three-time defending Class B champion Blair on Thursday, but Wayne was the recipient of a perfect weather forecast on Saturday and started their 2011 season with three wins at their annual softball invitational at the Wayne Softball Complex.

The Blue Devils didn't give up a run on the day, shutting out a salty Tekamah-Herman team 2-0 in the finals after getting to the championship with easy wins over North Bend (14-0) and Lutheran High Northeast (10-0).

"Any time you can hold the opponent to zero runs, you're going to win," coach Rob Sweetland said. "It was good to have to play a full game there (in the finals) and have to execute and make some timely hits, and I was really pleased with the girls' effort."

Wayne drew first blood in the first when Jalyn Zeiss singled, advanced to second on an error and scored on Cassy Miller's opposite-field single to right center. Wayne wouldn't score again until the sixth, when Hannah Gamble came through with a two-out double to left center, scoring Marissa Fallesen, who came on as a pinch runner for Miller after she reached on an infield single.

That was all Miller needed. She worked out of a pair of situations where the Tigers had two runners in scoring position, finishing with a complete-game three-hitter. She struck out 13 and was the winning pitcher in all three shutouts on the day for the 3-0 Blue Devils.

"Cassy pitched well all day," Sweetland said. "She got into some situations and was able to get out of it. Tekamah is going to win a lot of games this year. Their pitcher had some good movement, and our hitter struggled with it."

Wayne ran themselves out of a couple of innings earlier in the day, but Sweetland said that aggressive baserunning is going to be standard operating procedure for the Blue Devils this season.

"We're going to be aggressive, and it wasn't always the runner's mistake as much as where the ball was hit," he said. "Early in the count with a runner on third, you can't hit an inside pitch unless you're going to left field. We need to learn to wait for a pitch and drive it up the middle, but we also had some aggressive baserunning that got us extra bases, so we'll take the good with the bad."

In the opener, Wayne got off to a slow start early, but heated up with a big third inning to defeat North Bend.

Wayne led 1-0 in the third when they erupted for six runs in the inning, highlighted by RBI doubles from Miller and Victoria Kranz.

They added two more in the fourth, highlighted by a two-run homer down the left field line by Miller.

Zeiss and Caitlin Fehringer each scored three runs in the win, while Miller added three hits. McKenna Gibson and Sydney Harris both had doubles, and Miller threw a one-hitter, striking out seven.

In the semifinals, Miller struck out nine of the first 10 batters she faced and struck out 12 in five innings, allowing two hits. That pitching was more than enough for the Blue Devils, as they easily defeated Lutheran High Northeast.

Wayne broke the ice in the second with RBIs by Hannah Gamble and Kranz. Kristin Carroll scored all the way from first on a Kranz single in the fourth, then doubled home Gibson and Courtney Davie to highlight a three-run fifth that helped Wayne into the championship game.

Davie had three of Wayne's 12 hits in the win, while Kranz and Miller each added two hits.

Miller was as solid behind the plate as she was in the circle. She went a combined 7-for-11 during the three games, and Sweetland complimented the senior's work at the plate.

"If people keep throwing to her like that, she'll hit .600 this year," he said. "She's swinging the bat so good right now and doesn't swing

Everybody back for WHS golf

When you have your entire starting lineup back from a team that finished fourth in the state a year ago, you would expect a coach's optimism to be pretty high.

That certainly is the case with Wayne High golf coach Josh Johnson, who has all five varsity players from last year's Class C district championship team back in the fold for the 2011 season.

"With everybody back, the expectations are higher and the girls' expectations are higher," Johnson said. "We finished fourth last year, and I hope we can make some more noise this year."

Leading the team back on to the links will be three-time state qualifier Brittney Peterson. Peterson was the team's leading scorer last year and has a state medal finish (15th as a sophomore) to her credit. She finished fourth in last year's district meet, and has played a lot of golf during the summer to get ready for this coming season.

District medalists Burgandy Roberts and Taylor Burke are also back from last year's team. Roberts finished eighth and Burke was 10th at districts last year, and Burke led the Blue Devils' effort at state, which saw Wayne finish fourth overall.

"Taylor was the low girl on the team at state last year, and Brittney is a three-time state qualifier, so we have a lot of experience to push forward this year," Johnson said.

Fellow seniors Katlin Potter and Hannah McCorkindale are back in the lineup, and Alexis Reinert has shown some promise on the links as well as a returning letterwinner.

Johnson said it's a new feeling on the team this year, as this year's team comes into the season after finishing strong during the 2010 fall campaign.

"The last couple of years, we were trying to gain momentum and now we've got momentum and need to keep pushing forward," he said. "The girls know what to do, and we just have to get the most out of them and see what happens. I think we can do some special things if things click this year."

Johnson feels the Blue Devils will be in the thick of the Mid-State Conference golf race, with Boone Central the favorite and Norfolk Catholic being in the mix. He likes his team's chances in districts, and if they can qualify for state, they have the potential to finish very well.

"Last year, there were three teams and everybody else, and we were the best of everybody else," he said. "Some teams lost people, where we gained a year of experience and our girls worked their tails off. We have the pieces to do it, and we'll see if we can get it done."

Wayne opened the 2011 season with a home triangular Thursday, and will serve as the host for Friday's Wakefield Invitational at the Wayne Country Club.

Canned food drive at West Point game

The West Point Student Council is sponsoring a canned food drive Friday, Sept. 2 during the football game between Wayne High and West Point-Beemer.

For each canned food item that is brought to the game, the donor will put his or her name in the drawing. Ten names will be drawn and the winners will receive a cake. Items need to be taken to the main gate.

Wayne State football team will be carried live on the Nebraska ETV network.

Wayne State will take on Nebraska-Kearney in a 6 p.m. matchup at Cunningham Field on Thursday, Sept. 1. It will be the first-ever live statewide broadcast of a sporting event on the Wayne State campus, and the first time since 1993 that a Wayne State football game has been aired on statewide television.

This will also be the last regular-season matchup between the two schools for the foreseeable future, due to conference obligations. UNK moves to the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 2012, while the Northern Sun Conference moves to 16 teams next year. Both schools will play 11-game conference schedules starting next season.

starting experience on the front line.

Defensively, the Wildcats will be led by returning starters Mike Bazata and Richard Daniel. Daniel is a preseason All-American and NSIC South Division Defensive Preseason Player of the Year after finishing with a conference best 17.5 tackles for loss. Bazata doesn't have the big numbers that Daniel has, but is consistently the biggest challenge for opposing offensive lines.

"He demands double teams every time he plays, and he controls the line," McLaughlin said.

The Wildcats are loaded at linebacker, led by the team's leading tackler, Ben Perry. He had 83 tackles last year, along with two interceptions and three forced fumbles. McLaughlin also has senior Dan Leacraft as a potential starter, and some young players like Jared Curry could find themselves in the mix at linebacker this season.

Austan Pomajzl is the only starter in the secondary for the Wildcats. He was the team's second leading tackler with 65 stops, and he will lead a young secondary this season.

In the special teams area, Max Martin and Nick Bell should once again share placekicking duties, and junior Randy Weich is back after an outstanding season last year that saw him average 43.4 yards per punt and launch a school-record 95-yard blast in the home finale against Augustana.

The Wildcats will get a fast idea of where they stand, as they host two of the top teams in the country within the first three weeks. They host 12th ranked Nebraska-Kearney to open the season on Thursday, Sept. 1, then play host to defending national champion and preseason No. 1 Minnesota Duluth on Sept. 17.

"Kearney, on paper, is better than us, but I don't know if they'll be better than us when we kick it off," McLaughlin said. "We'll have our work cut out for us right off the bat, then you have Duluth coming in the third game. It's a great schedule, but that's why you play."

McLaughlin feels the team is capable of winning the NSIC South Division, and it will depend on how well the team plays week in and week out.

"I just want us to play well, and if we do that we have a chance of being really, really good," he said. "We need to play well, stay healthy and not turn the ball over. If things fall our way, teams are going to have to play awfully well to beat us."

Wildcats

Schultz and sophomore outside hitter Cori Hobbs also return to the lineup, along with defensive specialist Nicole Brungardt, who had 239 digs last year coming off the bench.

The setter position will be an important spot for the Wildcats this year. The loss of senior Diedra Artz means Wayne State will be looking at a young leader to run the offense.

Sophomore Tatum Wroblewski and freshman Leisa McClintock both bring some good things to the table, Kneiff said, and he is hoping both can contribute this season.

"Tatum does a nice job running the team, and both she and Lisa bring different facets to the game and both are very good," he said. "I see some really good things coming out of both of them."

Returning letterwinners Melanie Placke and McKenna Reagan should also contribute to the team's success, and incoming freshmen Jaecee Barta, Stephanie Brand and Courtney VanGronigen are expected to show some good things this season.

The ninth-ranked Wildcats will open up with a killer weekend of volleyball, as they must face three teams ranked in the top six going into the season, including four-time defending NSIC and national champion Concordia-St. Paul. They will face No. 2 Central Missouri and No. 6 Southwest Minnesota State in the first day of the Concordia Classic, then finish with the Golden Bears on Saturday.

"We're playing No. 1, No. 2 and No. 6 right off the bat, so we're going to find out what this team has," Kneiff said. "I think this team is capable of handling that situation, and it's OK if we lose early. Concordia proved that last year, and we need to make the NCAA tournament and be playing our best volleyball at the end of the year."

Being picked fourth in the NSIC may seem low for a team with this much talent, but Kneiff said the top five teams in the conference are among the top 16 in the country.

"It's going to be a battle every night, and we'll need to strap our helmets on and be ready to go because the conference is extremely strong," he said.

Soccer

we can play good team defense and give our keepers a chance to settle in and play well."

Other returning letterwinners include the team's lone junior, midfielder Allison Reynolds, and sophomores Alexa Romek, Kayli Hopper, Norma Volkmer and Janice Riesberg.

"We have a bench full of players who have the experience and understand the style of soccer we want to play," Grisham said. "The new players have come in and the returners have embraced them. We're young, but we're all on the same page with the style of soccer we want to play."

The Wildcats face a challenging schedule that includes regional matchups against Missouri Western and Emporia State at home. Grisham said the team will be challenged by a conference schedule that includes some tough road games.

"Our road schedule in the conference is brutal," she said. "We have some regional opponents that we're excited to play, and we need to be competitive with those teams."

Grisham said it will be important for players like Israelsen to step up and score goals this season, and the defense will have to continue to play as well as last year's team, which gave up only 24 goals.

"The 24 goals last year were the second lowest in school history, so if we can play well defensively, hold the ball in the middle third and get in the final third, we have players who can put the ball in the back of the net," she said.

The Wildcats open the season Saturday, Sept. 4 at Northwest Missouri State. Their first home game is Friday, Sept. 9 at 5 p.m. against College of St. Mary.

Wildcats No. 9 in preseason poll

Wayne State is ranked No. 9 in the 2011 American Volleyball Coaches Association Div. II Top 25 Coaches Preseason Poll.

The Wildcats received a total of 530 points in voting conducted by various NCAA Div. II head coaches from across the country. The Wildcats return five starters from last year's 26-4 team that was 17-3 in the NSIC, good for a third place finish.

Wayne State opens the 2011 season at the Concordia-St. Paul Tournament Sept. 2-3 in St. Paul, Minn. The Wildcats face three of the nation's top six teams at the tournament, meeting No. 2 Central Missouri and No. 6 Southwest Minnesota State on Friday, Sept. 2 and facing Pittsburg State and No.

Pfaltzgraffs concert at Wayne State

Dr. Brian Pfaltzgraff and his brother Philip Pfaltzgraff of Wayne State College will present "Ships in the Night: A Musical Realization of Heine's 'Life's Passing'" in Ley Theatre located in the Brandenburg Education Building on the Wayne State College campus, at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 29.
 They will be assisted by Joshua and Lauren Calkin, also of the WSC Music Faculty.
 The musicians will perform the works of Scarlatti, Beethoven, Fauré, Tchaikovsky and Vaughan Williams. In an era when constant communication is facilitated by Facebook and cell phones, the sentiment in "Life's Passing" is as true now, as when Heinrich Heine wrote his "Youthful Passions": separation and time do little to ameliorate the intense burst of emotion that accompanies the formation of the most meaningful relationships of our lives.
 Pfaltzgraff is an assistant professor of voice at Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa. A tenor, Dr. Pfaltzgraff has performed over 30 leading operatic roles and an even wider range of concert works.
 The public is invited to attend the presentation.

Wayne State College names John Dunning as Chief Information Officer

John Dunning's first step onto the Wayne State College campus came in 1986 as a high school student attending a WSC-hosted science academy. A 1992 WSC graduate, Dunning has dedicated the past 18 years to providing state of the art computer functions through the campus network.

Dunning

A recent promotion to chief information officer, a leadership position he began to fill Jan. 7 on an interim basis, will present him with new opportunities to guide the growth and development of the WSC network.
 A search committee conducted a formal search during the spring 2011 semester. Dunning was offered the position as CIO at Wayne State College on May 5.
 "WSC has for years provided wonderful opportunities to grow into technology leadership," Dunning said. "I was fortunate to have a wonderful mentor in Dennis Linster and am thrilled to be leading an exceptionally talented and dedicated team of individuals into a new phase of technology excellence for our students, faculty and staff. WSC has been a regional technology leader for years and our goal as a team will be to continue to foster technological innovation provided in a responsive, customer service focused framework."

 Earning a bachelor's and a master's degree at WSC, Dunning participated in a number of activities on campus that have enriched him as a leader. A few of his valued experiences included providing leadership in the design of WSC's state-of-the-art data center and the Nebraska Student Information project.

 Dunning also serves as interim chair of the Midwestern Higher Education Compact technologies committee, a regional 12-state organization that provides cost savings opportunities for more than a thousand public and private non-profit institutions of higher education.

Hometown Hero Comes Home

There is no doubt in my mind why America is envied around the world and why she is known as the "Home of the Free, Because of the Brave."

Recently, it all came home as one of our own young soldiers, Sgt. Joshua Jacob Mann of Winside came home one last time. Yes, folks, Joshua came home to be with our Lord and Savior and this past Saturday, Aug. 6, 2011 demonstrated what I have always believed, "Community in small towns, builds hometowns."

It has been several years since our small community, actually the village of Winside, had the solemn duty of welcoming home one of our brave soldiers. As many may recall during the Vietnam War, Winside suffered a great loss with the war casualties of Robert Alfred Wagner, Robert Lee Dangberg and Mark Steven Witt, all graduates of Winside High School; namely, the years of 1966, 1967 and 1968, and Wayne County's three recorded casualties of the Vietnam War.

Even as our men and women of our armed forces are serving around the world in the hope of a lasting peace and freedom for all, we suffer losses not on the battlefield but still losses that deserve honor. This is such the case for Sgt. Joshua Jacob Mann, son of Dave and Melanie Mann of Winside; brother of Ben (Melissa) Mann of Lincoln and Jacob Mann of Winside; and husband of Rachel Wolff Mann of Norfolk. Sgt. Mann succumbed to heat-related circumstances, on active duty, and his passing is no less painful to family, friends and community than those we experienced during Vietnam.

For anyone attending the burial of Sgt. Mann at Pleasant View Cemetery in Winside, you could not have missed the majesty of the sacred ground to which Joshua was laid. As you entered the gate at Pleasant View, you noticed the youngest of Boys Scouts there providing water to American Legion Riders and the Patriot Guard, who escorted Joshua home; you had the Winside Volunteer Fire Department directing traffic on Highway 35 and at the entrance to the cemetery; you had the older Boys Scouts directing traffic for parking inside the cemetery; you had The American Legion Color Guards from Carroll, Wayne and Winside and Sons of the American Legion at gravesite and also orchestrating the smooth operation of traffic and directing of people to the gravesite; and then you had the members of the 82nd Airborne Honor Guard conducting the military rites along with Joshua's Lutheran pastor. But what probably caught your eye and will remain with you the longest is the vision of the Avenue of Flags at the cemetery and another internal Avenue of Flags created by those of the American Legion Riders and Patriot Guard. It was an awe-inspiring imagine as you came through the gates at Pleasant View. It indeed was a Kodak moment with an imagine that will be imprinted upon your heart for a long, long time.

Time will only begin to heal the loss of our community but nothing will diminish the service and sacrifice our young men and women of the United States Armed Forces and those of past war and peacetime service. Our Veterans rank right up there with our greatest commodity — our children — and indeed Joshua's life, though brief, has impacted each of us in a different way. We can but give God the glory that Joshua was in our lives and was able to leave his footprints upon our hearts. Thank you, Joshua, may you rest in peace.

For those behind the scene providing water and ice included members of Roy Reed Post/Unit/Squadron No. 252, Winside; Pac-N-Save Grocery, Sinclair Station, Casey's General Store and Wayne East all of Wayne. Thank you everyone. This simple act of kindness brought comfort to so many.

Campaign law is questioned

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — The U.S. Supreme Court says that sometimes the candidate who has less money and qualifies for public campaign financing can be a threat to the First Amendment rights of the candidate who may have lots of money to spend.

That decision by a 5-4 majority puts a portion of Nebraska's law for public financing in jeopardy, according to Attorney General Jon Bruning.

The view from here: Even a lay person (like a statehouse correspondent) can read the June decision, which threw out an Arizona public finance law, and easily understand how the Nebraska law might be on the losing end of a court challenge. And even a cursory reading of Bruning's opinion makes clear how he easily arrived at his decision.

The Arizona law provides public dollars for candidates who agree to abide by its provisions, intended to curb potential corruption. The law provides money to match the spending of candidates who choose not to abide by the law's provisions.

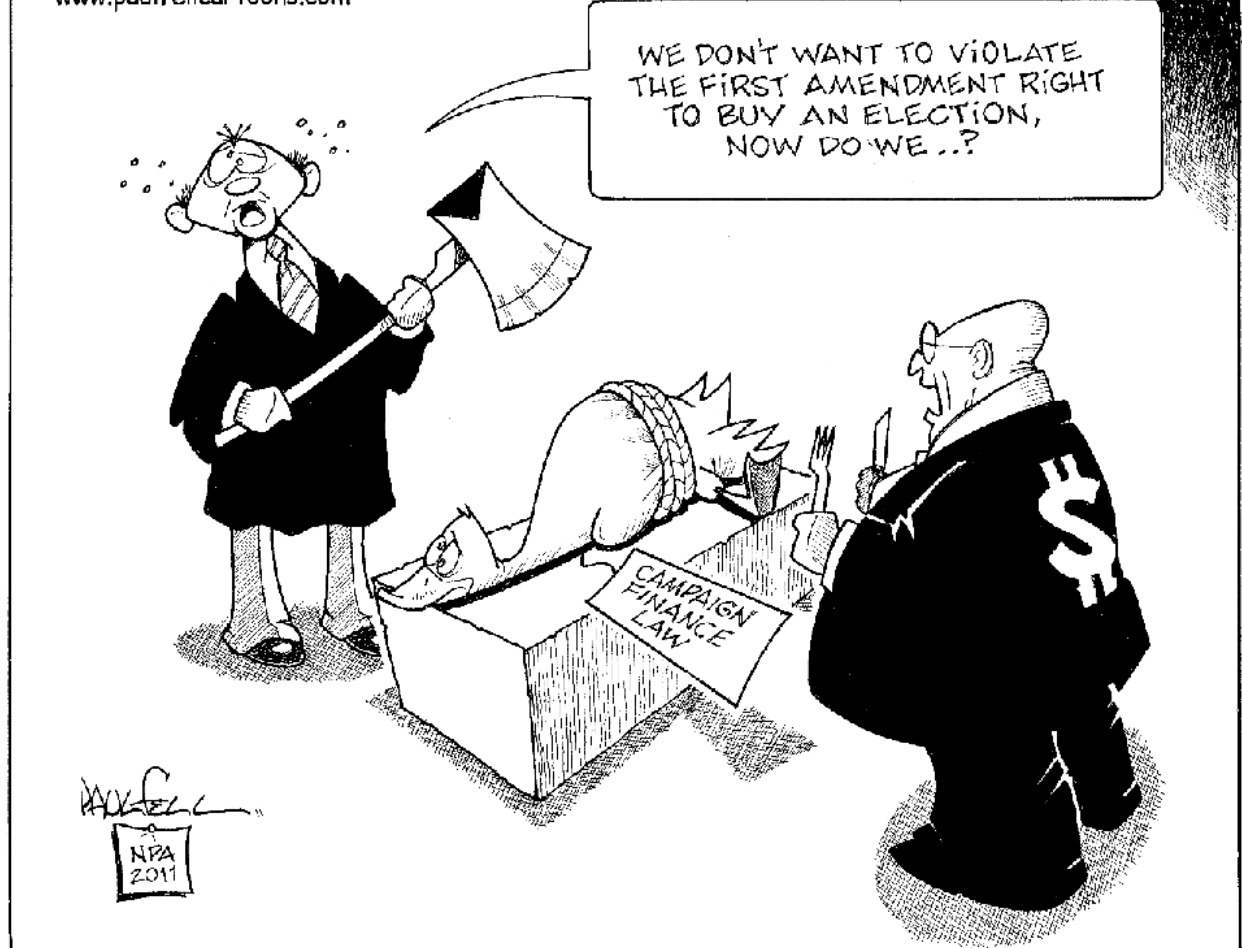

The Supreme Court majority figured it this way:

The candidates funding their own campaigns might effectively have their right to free speech violated because . . . they might be afraid if they spend more money to get their message out, they would have to worry about more public financing going to their opponents, thus indirectly helping the opponent getting out his or her message.

The dissenters said Arizona's compelling interest in seeking to hold down corruption should outweigh the majority's perception of a free speech issue.

The Nebraska law is based, in

part, on providing public funds for candidates who agree to abide by established spending limits after their opponents exceed certain spending levels.

The state's Accountability and Disclosure Commission, which oversees the state's campaign finance laws, planned to review the Supreme Court's decision and Bruning's assessment before the end of August.

Wishing the governors luck

The governors of a bunch of "Missouri River states" hope to come up with some mutually agreeable notions as to how the Army Corps of Engineers should handle the river's flows. They met recently in Omaha at the invitation of Gov. Dave Heineman.

South Dakota has sport fishing interests. So do some other states. And there are agricultural concerns, and the barge trade is desperate to make sure of sufficient flows to allow them to do business.

After this year's devastating floods, there seems to be a consensus that perhaps the Corps' top priority in the future should be flood control — first and foremost.

How much weight a recommendation from a majority of the governors might have can't be guesstimated at this stage. But it can be guesstimated that there won't be unanimity among the states' chief executives.

Government officials from Congress to city halls want to know what can be done to avoid a reoccurrence of the flooding that topped levies, flooded communities and farmland and wreaked havoc with transportation in some areas as waters poured over roadways.

It's hard to imagine the issue being settled by anything other than a test of power and wills in Congress, where the representatives with the most power can work their will.

Legislative Update

A busy agenda with trips around area

It is good to begin this article this week without sad news about our District 17 military people but with a plea to keep them and their families in thought and prayer. We owe them so much for defending our freedoms and this small "act of kindness" can bring comfort to many.

Friday, Aug. 12, I was in Winnebago with Sen. Mike Johanns discussing flood issues, school crossing child safety, and mosquito infestation issues in the area. As I write this article the "Your Speed Is" digital sign is back on Highway 75 as school begins to draw attention that school children are out and we need to take extra precaution to keep them safe. Increased traffic on Highway 75 is still a concern as the flood levels on other highways force increased traffic through town. We are working with Sen. Johanns' staff on the safety and mosquito remedies. I think a "push button" light should be installed.

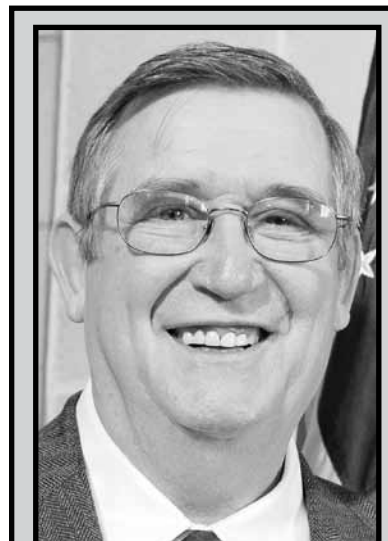

Saturday, Aug. 13, I traveled to Magirl Park in Jackson for the annual community picnic recognizing the community coming together after the devastating tornado of 2001. Many citizens were on hand to reminisce on how Jackson rebuilt its school, homes, and businesses and for the great volunteer effort provided by everyone. Having grown up in the Jackson area, it was a good opportunity to visit with folks I have known for a long time.

Sunday, Aug. 14, I was asked to speak briefly at a Republican Party event in Wayne on concerns in District 17. We also discussed upcoming events within the organization. Most of you know that I am a former chairman of the Republican Party in Wayne County. I would note here, that I am willing to meet with folks from the Democrat Party as well.

Monday, Aug. 15, the Health and Human Services (HHS) and Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committees held a joint briefing on insurance exchange program with the Nebraska Department of Insurance. Representatives were on hand to discuss the issue of Medicaid and national health care. This was to help us get more informed on the health care law passed by the U.S. Congress and signed by President Obama. There is still a strong possibility that the Supreme Court will find the whole thing unconstitutional, but until that time we are forced to spend time and money implementing it.

Tuesday, Aug. 16, the Nebraska Department of Roads held a public hearing at the Lifelong Learning Center on the campus of Northeast Community College in Norfolk. Topic of discussion focused on highway construction on Highway 35 northeast of Norfolk. This is what is left of the proposed Highway 35 expressway down to Highway 275 via Victory Road in Norfolk. There will be a portion of Highway 35, roughly from the Nucor turn off northeast of Woodland Park into Norfolk which will be made into four lanes. The stop light at Highway 35 and Victory Road will be replaced by a roundabout, and Victory Road will be made four lanes from the intersection south to Highway 275. Any plans to do more between Norfolk and Dakota City are on an indefinite hold. Any movement in that direction will require new environmental studies, and a whole lot of new funding.

Correspondence this past week with constituents concerned LB267 — requiring application for a waiver to limit the types of beverages which may be purchased with Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits. This legislative bill did not make it out of Committee this past session but would have limited "beverages" to milk, 100 percent juice and plain water. I think this is probably not too bad of an idea.

Friday, Aug. 26, at the State Capitol, the HHS Committee will meet to discuss changes in Medicaid as described in LB603.

Our office is preparing for a tour of the Siouxland Ethanol Plant, Gill Landfill and Methane Plant at Jackson, to be held on Thursday, Sept. 15. There are, at this time, 15 participants scheduled for this tour and it is hopeful it will be informative and an opportunity for State Senators and/or staff to visit with the workforce at these facilities. We also hope to learn a little more about ethanol and it's byproducts.

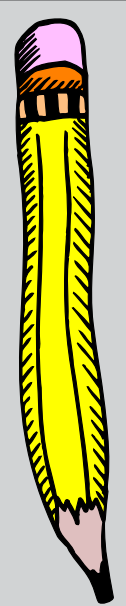

Take time, if you can, to visit the Nebraska State Fair at Grand Island through Labor Day.

Book of Romans is focus of sermon at Praise Assembly

The worshipping congregation at Praise Assembly of God welcomes you to its times of study, worship, and fellowship in the coming week. Located at 1000 East 10th Street, just east of Providence Road in Wayne, the congregation meets for Bible Studies in the "Fireside Room" on Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m. The current study, "Little Books with Major Themes" will conclude this week with its study of Jude and a consideration of the warning to "Beware of Deception!" The next series (beginning on Aug. 31) will be entitled "Let's Trust Genesis!" and will focus on the Biblical account of creation and continue through Genesis chapters 1-11. On Saturday evenings there is an "Hour of Prayer" which meets from 7-8 p.m. in the Sanctuary of the church. This is a time for individual intercession and seeking the Lord for the needs of our community. On Sunday mornings, Sunday School for adults starts at 9:30 a.m., also in the Fireside Room. Currently the study is entitled "What Did They Have?" and focuses on the book of Acts and the early Church. Plans are being made to begin Sunday School classes for children within the next few weeks. These will also meet from 9:30-10:20 a.m. Watch for announcements of these children's classes. At 10:30 a.m., in the sanctuary, the morning worship begins with a time of praise and worship. Jeff Dose will sing "We Will Remember" for the offertory this weekend. Rev. Dennis Preston, pastor of Praise Assembly of God, will preach a sermon in his continuing study in the book of Romans. This has been an excellent Bible teaching series. Within a few weeks, the congregation will add "Kids' Korner," a program for children, which will meet during the morning worship service, following Praise and Worship, from 11:05 a.m. until the conclusion of the morning worship service at noon each Sunday. This Sunday evening at 6:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall the congregation welcomes the regional Presbyter, Rev. Kevin Roach from River Hills Church in South Sioux City. There will be an informal fellowship time, hosted by the members of the Advisory Team. This will be followed by a time of worship and prayer together, and devotions by Rev. Roach. This is intended to be a "get-acquainted" meeting for friends and family of the congregation and this area who will meet the presbyter for the first time since his election earlier this summer. "Praise Assembly of God Church is a community of believers in Jesus Christ; we are committed to make disciples and to strength families through 1) honest teaching of the Bible, 2) heartfelt worship and fervent prayer, and 3) sincere fellowship. There is a place for you at Praise Assembly of God Church," Pastor Preston said.

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid holds Aug. 10 meeting

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid met Aug. 10 for a 9 a.m. brunch. President Fauneil Bennett called the meeting to order. The LWML Pledge and the common table prayer were said in unison. Mary Janke and Bonnadell Koch were hostesses. Roll call was answered by 16 members, Pastor Feldmann, Pastor Lilienkamp and guests, Amy Steinmeyer, Karl and Grace. Ellen Heinemann gave opening devotions, taken from the Mustard Seed website. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was given and filed for review. Correspondence read was a thank you from Our Savior Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Hour Ministries. A potted plant was presented to Joann Temme in honor of her and Fritz's 60th wedding anniversary.

She invited all to come to the open house on Aug. 21. The mite box collection was taken. Sewing: Ruth reported sending three quilts for the Lutheran High Northeast Beef Blast. The next scheduled sewing date is Thursday, Sept. 22. Funeral: Pam Janke is the new committee member. Seminary student: Pastor Feldmann said he had a long conversation with Nathan Stephen Misch, and he is looking forward to letters from Grace Ladies Aid. Mission Service: Joann Temme will be asking for volunteers for confirmand mentors. Old business: President Bennett gave the results of the survey taken last month. The Cookie Walk has 14 "no" votes; basement floor, 11 "yes"; lighting, five "yes," dividing curtains, one "yes" and two blanks. The group voted to get estimates for the flooring, after confirming the move with the Mission Council. President Bennett appointed Mary Janke, Ellen Heinemann and Betty Wittig to the committee. New business: President Bennett appointed Rhonda Sebade and Ellen Heinemann to the nominating committee. The group voted to pay half of the expense for the Oct. 2 LWML Sunday bulletins. The giving of baked goods for the coffee house will go through the congregation. Pastor Feldmann asked for a write-up from the Aid as to how to join, what the group does, etc. so

Wayne church donating special offering for assistance in Africa

Last Sunday, the congregation of the United Methodist Church in Wayne held a special offering for the horn of Africa. One hundred percent of all donations go directly to the people in the horn of Africa. The congregation will continue to collect donations through the end of August. Pastor Pete Phillips, senior pastor at the church, shared the following information about the situation in Africa. "The United Nations has declared a famine in two regions of southern Somalia as the two areas suffer their worst drought in over half a century. Further exacerbating the situation, al-Shabab, an al-Qaeda-affiliated group which controls vast areas of southern Somalia has denied that famine and had banned foreign aid. It appears now that al-Shabab has backtracked on this ban to some extent, but al-Shabab's command is highly fractured and so it has still been nearly impossible to import aid into Somalia. Al-Shabab may be resisting outside assistance because they are largely to blame for the famine. They reportedly block rivers away from impoverished areas and redirect them to corporate farmers who in turn pay them 'taxes.' In the face of famine, disease, and starvation; and with no relief in sight, people are fleeing southern Somalia into Kenya and Ethiopia. Al-Shabab is of course capturing and detaining many of the women and children who are trying to flee the country. Recently, a reporter began investigating why it is that there are so few men in the refugee camps to find out that al-Shabab is reportedly killing men trying to flee Somalia. Thousands of Somalis arrive in Kenyan and Ethiopian refugee camps every day. The largest refugee camp in Kenya is now home to nearly 500,000 people. With 12 million people in southern Somalia starving, and with no aid making it to them, aid workers fear a mass exodus which they could not even begin to handle. The refugee camps are already dangerously over-crowded and in desperate need of supplies. Children are the most vulnerable. It is estimated that every 30 seconds, a child in Africa dies of starvation. That's two children every minute; 120 children every hour, and 2,880 children every day. This doesn't include the thousands of children who die of other preventable causes such as disease and exposure and with conditions deteriorating in Somalia, these statistics are rising. "The people of the First United Methodist Church of Wayne have responded and are currently accepting donations. Through the United Methodist Committee on Relief, 100 percent of all donations go directly to the people in need in the Horn of Africa. To make a donation, please contact the church office at (402) 375-2231 or stop by the church at 516 Main Street," Pastor Phillips said.

Deadline nearing for Norfolk Beef Expo

The Norfolk Beef Expo, which is open to 4-H and FFA members statewide, will mark its 62nd run next month.

The event will be Sunday, Sept. 11, at the Northeast Community College Ag Complex near the intersection of East Benjamin Avenue and Highway 35. Steer and heifer entries will be received only from 3:30-7 p.m. Sept. 10.

Members of the agri-business council of the Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce, a sponsor all 62 years, are readying the final details under the direction of Josh Kammer, ag council chairman.

Judging of the classes, divided by hip height, begins at 8:30 a.m., on Sept. 11, with the public welcome to attend.

The junior, intermediate and senior showmanship classes will follow.

Selection of the grand and reserve champion market heifers and steers begins at 5 p.m., immediately followed by the premium auction. The premium will be on a per-head basis.

As an added educational component for the youths, this year's expo will again include a carcass contest with the entries to be evaluated on both quality grade and yield grade. Prizes of $125, $100 and $75 will be awarded to the first-, second- and third-place exhibitors, respectively.

Any member of a Nebraska 4-H club or FFA chapter - who is at least 8 years of age and not older than 19 years of age on Jan. 1, 2011 - is eligible for the 62nd expo. Each showman may exhibit two market cattle, with a $20 entry fee per head.

Entry forms must be signed by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension educator or FFA adviser and sent to the Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce office. Entries must be postmarked by Friday, Sept. 2.

In addition to the agri-business council, the other major sponsors of the 62nd Norfolk Beef Expo are Progressive Nutrition, Agrex, Elkhorn Valley Cattlemen's Association (Madison and Stanton counties) and Northeast Community College.

Monetary prizes for the top three showmen in each of the three age divisions will again be sponsored by the Pierce Elevator.

The Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce said the Norfolk Beef Expo's scholarship program is now in its fifth year.

This year's applicants must exhibit at the 62nd annual Norfolk Beef Expo, be at least a current high school sophomore or planning to attend college during the next school year. Applicants must be majoring or planning to major in agribusiness or a related field.

The application deadline for this year's $500 scholarship, which is sponsored by the agri-business council of the Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce, is Oct. 15.

For more information on the expo, contact a local extension educator, FFA adviser or Susan Kumm with the Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce at (402) 371-4862 or information@norfolk.ne.us, or visit www.norfolk.ne.us.

Results announced from 2011 Wayne County Fair PeeWee Bucket Calf Show

Twig Marsden, part of the UNL staff from Norfolk, watched as 14 young showmen and women paraded their calves in the show ring. The youngsters were interviewed individually by the judge about their animal and how they care for it.

Then, they circled the ring one last time before heading out of the show ring. Each contestant picked up a cash award from Roberts Simmentals of Wakefield, a new calf halter from Felt Farms of Wakefield, a rainbow rosette ribbon and tickets for rides at the fair from the Wayne County Fair Board.

This year Toby Braun, Virginia Kniesche, James Torres, Ashton Munsell, Anaka Krueger, Aden Sellin, Charli Sievers, Tristen Janssen, Madyson Sievers, Jared Puls, Landon Roeber, Alex Frank, Gracie Junck and Samuel Junck all competed in the show.

Helping them to guide the calves around the ring were 4-H members: Morgan Quinn, Tarrin Quinn, Riley Nichols and Henry Greve.

Connie Robers, PeeWee Bucket Calf Superintendent, would like to thank everyone who supported this show - parents, brothers and sisters, grandparents, friends and neighbors.

Thank you to Roberts Simmentals, sponsor, and Felt Farms (Merlin and Delores Felt) for the halters.

LOWER ELKHORN Natural Resources District

LOWER ELKHORN NRD NEBRASKA

Sign up today for the LENRD Cover Crop Program

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) is encouraging landowners to participate in the Cover Crop Program for Highly Erodible Land (HEL) that is currently in a continuous no-till cropping system.

Cover crops may be planted into corn or soybean fields. Fields where corn has been cut for silage are not eligible. Priority will be given to current or past participants in the LENRD No-till Incentive Program.

Each participant will enroll a total of 10-40 acres (minimum contract amount is $150). Participants in this practice will apply at their local NRCS office on a LENRD 100a form for Cover Crop Seeding for three consecutive years. Applicants must pick from three cover crop seeding options and three cover crop seed mixture options.

Aerial application or ground application by hi-boy (system that can be used in standing crops) will be performed starting in the last week of August to third week of September. The optimum timing will be at or shortly before soybean and corn plant senescence or yellowing of the lower leaves.

If the producer is not able to get the aerial seeding performed by the third week in September they must no-till drill the cover crop immediately following harvest (by Oct. 25).

LENRD Assistant General Manager, Ken Berney, said "Participants may change seed mix alternatives and options approaches in the three year contract but must notify their local NRCS Field Office if a change is to be made prior to planting the cover crop."

Producer is responsible for obtaining his own seed according to specifications and arranging for seeding either by pilot or ground application. Producer also must chemically kill the cover crop prior to planting the new crop.

Berney said, "Anyone interested in applying for this Cover Crop Program should contact their local NRCS office for more details." A copy of the program guidelines is available on the LENRD website: www.lenrd.org

Talk of roller skating brings back memories

Recently, the circles in our church put on its annual birthday lunch for everyone over 80. Three couples were chosen to play the Newlywed Game, even though only one was recently wed. The women were taken to another room first, and their spouses were asked things like the date of the wedding anniversary, the color of her eyes, and where they met.

The couple who has only been married a couple of years met at this church over 60 years ago. Both have lost spouses, and they obviously appreciate each other, even though both are now over 80 years old. And he did know their anniversary, and the color of her eyes.

One of the older married fellows told us he met his wife at the roller rink in Norfolk! That made us sit up and take notice, as the Big Farmer spent many a weekend evening there, looking for eligible gals. In fact, after he learned the maiden name of the woman this guy was talking about, he even remembered her being there.

It made us reminisce about roller skating. I read recently that the first rink was built in 1866. That is a very long time ago; in fact, I believe it precedes our great grandparents coming from the Old Country. I don't remember where it was built, but there was a time when most small towns had one. The one in Norfolk was actually an open air wooden floor, covered by a huge tent. And Mike has no idea where that floor was housed during the winter.

Waco was much more upscale than that; ours was all enclosed in a long wooden building. I have no idea how it was heated, but it was open year round. In fact, for our class high school initiation we had to ask one of the seniors to go skating with us that evening. That wasn't too hard, as we had known the upper classmen for a long time by the time we actually hit the high school.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

It was great exercise, and a good place to meet other kids. We could rent shoe skates, and I envied the people who actually owned their own. The girls who had their own would make colorful pom poms for the toes of the skates; they looked so classy. They were certainly an improvement over the clamp on type we all had as little kids. These came with a key and we tightened them over our shoes. When my grandparents built a new basement and moved a newer house over it, we cousins had a good time skating on that cement floor with our clamp skates.

When our kids wanted to skate, we went to Wakefield. I don't know if they still have one or not. Later, there was a good one in Norfolk, not the kind Mike remembered, but really a pretty classy one. I did sometimes get tired of pulling little people around until they could stand up by themselves. But, hey, someone did it for me!

I could skate backwards, and couple skate, but I sure couldn't dance the way some people did. Lincoln is home to the National Roller Skate Museum, and I confess I have not been to it. And of course, now there is roller derby, and there are several female roller derby teams. They wear knee pads and helmets, and I understand it gets kind of rough. Not my cup of tea, for sure, not even to be an observer.

Elmwood had a rink, and we ladies used to walk there in the winter time. Now, it's a fitness center, but I understand you can still have roller skate parties there. I wonder if I could still stand up on the things? The owner when we lived there was married there, on skates! You know what, he and his wife are both pretty fit for their age, and he rides around town on his bike to this day. I'm sure it's as good for you as dancing, but I think I will postpone trying it again. We did have a fun conversation about the "good old days" when we could do those things without hurting ourselves!

I believe it's called nostalgia, and I've been having a lot of it lately. More about that next week; stay cool!

Time to check those rental agreements

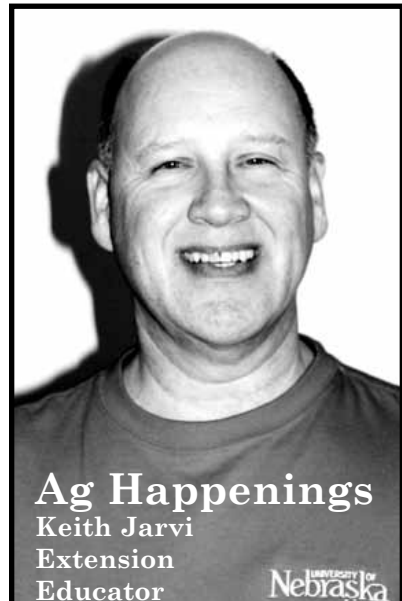

Farmland rental rates have increased sharply due to higher crop prices. The next year will likely show significant adjustments to cash rental rates. While many of these transactions have been negotiated and recorded in a contract format, there are still a number of landowners that continue to rely on oral agreements to lease their land.

In the State of Nebraska, oral leases are presumed to run from year-to-year with an automatic renewal unless proper notice of termination is given. The Nebraska Supreme Court has ruled through case law that while tenancy on farmland runs from March 1 to March 1, notice of change to an oral lease agreement must be given six months in advance.

If you currently have an oral contract with a land tenant, notice of change in the terms of tenancy must be provided by Sept. 1 of the year preceding the cropping year. Thus, if you wish to terminate an oral contract for farmland to be rented in 2012, notice of the termination must be given to the current tenant before Sept. 1, 2011.

In legal terms, if there is a need to renegotiate the rental price for a parcel of ground held under an oral lease, then the old lease must be terminated and a new agreement constructed. If proper notice of termination is not given by the Sept. 1 deadline, then the lease is considered valid for the next cropping year under the previously agreed upon terms.

Notice of termination may be given verbally; however if there is a disagreement, verbal notices are hard to prove; therefore, it is recommended that notices of termination be sent via registered mail. Case law has not defined what a notice of termination must include;

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension Educator

however if you need help in drafting one, please contact an attorney.

For those using written contracts, the termination date will be the last effective day of the agreement and requires no advance notice of termination; even if the contract is for one year or even five years. Many landowners or tenants will place a renewal clause into their contracts that states if a notice of termination is not given within so many days of the expiration of the contract, then it automatically renews for one year under the previous terms and conditions.

If a written contract expires without renewal and the producer maintains tenancy, then the producer is technically trespassing on the land. Removal of the tenant from the ground requires that the landowner initiates eviction proceedings. If the tenant incurs any expenses on the land pursuant to the next crop and the landowner has failed to complete the eviction process, then the courts have ruled that a hold-over lease is in play.

A hold-over lease allows the tenant to farm the ground with the terms previously identified in the expired contract. The landowner still maintains the burden of issuing a notice of termination six months prior to the termination date of the hold-over lease. The hold-over lease termination date will be one year beyond the contract's original termination date. For example, if your written contract expires on March 1, 2012, then the hold-over lease will expire on March 1, 2013. If you are using a written contract, make sure to check to see if you have a renewal clause in place, or if you need to begin the process of renegotiating a new contract.

Even though an oral agreement ends on Sept. 1 of the year preceding the cropping year and a written lease expires on the last day of the effective agreement, changes may still be made so long as they are agreed to by both parties. Thus, with an oral or written contract, changes may be made to the agreement at any time so long as both sides agree, even if the termination date has passed.

For the tenant with an oral agreement, it is often in their best interest to at least enter into negotiations with a landowner to modify the terms of the contract after Sept. 1, otherwise they may find they have no chance of renewal the following year. It is recommended that any and all contract changes, whether they are written or oral, be recorded in writing and signatures from all parties involved obtained for legal protection.

Pasture oral leases have no requirement for termination notice, so long as the oral contract period is for the traditional five-month grazing season. If you are renting crop residues or pasture ground outside of the traditional grazing, it is recommended that you draft a written contract complete with terms and conditions for use.

Regardless of the business arrangement, a well constructed written agreement should always be used to protect the business, and in many cases, the personal relationships of those involved. The written contract has the advantage of specifically detailing the terms and conditions of the arrangement, the dates of contract termination, any renewal clauses, and other special rental provisions, such as those that occur with flexible leasing.

If you are not currently using a written lease, then use this harvest season to draft contracts for all your rented land, regardless if you are a tenant or a landlord. Various lease examples for cash, share, and flexible provisions are available from your local University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension county office as well as online at agecon.unl.edu and cropwatch.unl.edu. If you need assistance with preparing written leases, or if you have additional questions, please contact an attorney.

Making family time count is key

The key to family growth is for family members to spend time together talking, but in the past few years, research shows that the number of household conversations has decreased by 90 percent.

Staying connected may be as simple as just eating one meal a day together. However, the number of family meals have decreased by 33 percent. Instead of sitting down at the dinner table and talking about their days, family members now grab a quick bite to eat as they head off to soccer practice or one of the many activities that now seem to rule people's time.

That is why it is important to have positive, substantial conversations to help keep a family connected. Leave conversations about grocery shopping and bad test grades for another time. Instead, ask family members how their days were.

Families could even have a jar that members could put questions or topics in that they want to talk about during the meal; for example, maybe mom wants to know more about her daughter's new job. Pick a topic from the jar to start off the meal and then let the conversation go from there.

Sitting down for a full meal everyday at home may not be possible, but having even a few minutes of substantial conversation will help bring a family closer together. Instead of rushing home from school, stop to get ice cream and share five minutes together.

While sharing a meal is important, families should try to find other time to spend together. As technology grows and vies for more of people's time, family members often disappear into different rooms after dinner to play video games or surf the Internet. Instead of going separate ways, get family members together in the same room and maybe play that video game together. Technology can bring family members together instead of pulling them apart. The important thing is not what the family is doing but that the family is together, talking and having fun.

Piano students take summer field trip

Several students of Mrs. Marcile Uken of Wayne took part in an annual summer field trip.

Students going on the trip were Treyton Blecke, Megan Forsberg (Laurel), Kelsey Haggemeyer, Cole Hochstein, Sean Hochstein, Breanna Kallhoff, Lindsey Kallhoff, Emily Matthes, Shane O'Donnell, Burgandy Roberts, Lindy Sandoz, Kate Schultz, Andrea Torres, Elisabeth Torres, James Torres, Ethan Wibben and Sarah Wibben.

Parents and family members on the trip were Kim Forsberg (Laurel) Barb Hochstein, Patsy Kallhoff, Cory and Ben Sandoz, and Holly Torres.

The first stop on the trip was Affiliated Foods in Norfolk, Nebraska. The group learned how the groceries items were stored, the different temperatures needed for various foods and how orders were sorted for shipment to stores.

The next stop was the Norfolk Art Center. Here the group had an art class. One group did origami, making some interesting designs and the others made animal and designs with pipe cleaners, colored beads and many different items.

The group then ate a sack lunch and relaxed for a short time before heading to Ashfall Fossil Beds, where the students were able to watch the ongoing excavation. Ashfall is situated on 360 acres of rugged rangeland in the Verdigre Creek Valley.

The last stop on the trip was Grove Trout Rearing Station, which operates year-around raising rainbow trout and occasionally brown trout. The trout are not hatched at Grove, but instead four-inch trout are transferred from the state fish hatchery. They are about 10 inches long when they are released into streams.

Feeding the fish and watching how quickly the food disappeared was fun activity for the students. Following this, the group returned home.
