Board approves budget

Tax levy for '11-'12 down from last year

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

After several months of working on the details, the Wayne Community Schools' Board of Education approved the 2011-2012 budget.

The approved budget results in a tax asking of $1.1804 per $100 of valuation from property owners in the district. This is down from $1.186 in last year's budget.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan said the upcoming budget includes a larger request in the building funds to pay for the building/renovation project at the middle and high school and the amount of revenue in the General Fund is lower than he would like, but he said he was pleased with the budget and the fact that the district was able to lower the tax asking in spite of $700,000 less in state aid and the fact that the district is undertaking a $4.5 million

Board member Ken Jorgensen thanked Lenihan and Rochelle Nelson, who worked for several months to complete the budget and said. "lots of hard work went into getting the budget put together, but ultimately, it's all about the kids and what's best for them."

During the regular meeting, reports from administrators included information on ACT test scores by Wayne High gradu-

Mark Hanson, Wayne High principal, told the board that members of the graduating class of 2011 scored above state and national averages and noted that 76 percent of Wayne High graduates take the test, a much higher percentage than in other schools.

Rocky Ruhl, Middle School principal, noted that traffic at the Middle School seems to be moving fairly smoothly and the bus drop-off for students was changed, beginning Sept. 12 for a trial period. He said that with construction taking place on the east side of the building, a security system and cameras have been installed on the west side of the building, allowing office personnel the opportunity to view those who wish to enter the building during the day.

Lenihan told the board that the construction project continues to move forward and appears to be on schedule. He and Travis Meyer, director of maintenance,

Possibility of new car assembly plant coming here optimistic after meeting

Of The Herald

About 50 area residents had a chance last week to check out a prototype of a compressed natural gas vehicle that could be produced from an assembly plant that could make its way to Wayne by early next year.

Two meetings were held last week with Gene Gabus of Gabus Auto Distributors, an Iowa-based company that is looking to build an assembly plant that would produce the vehicles for sale to dealerships in Canada and the United States. Representatives from the company showed off the vehicle and answered questions during a series of two meetings in the First National Bank meeting room last Wednesday and Thursday.

After the second night of meetings was complete, Gabus expressed optimism that the plant could be built in Wayne in the

"We had good questions asked at the meetings, and people here are very interested in getting a plant set up," he said. "It would bring employment to the community. Initially it would be about 10 jobs, but it has the capability of bringing 40-50 decent-paying jobs to the community.'

Gabus said the only thing his company is waiting on, at this

We needed to redo the front crash test because we needed a collapsable steering column, but everything else has passed," he said. "The Department of Transportation's crash testing is harder here than anywhere else, so if you pass it here you pretty much pass worldwide.'

Wes Blecke of Wayne Area Economic Development said he is working with Ken Kwapnioski on putting together a business plan that a would-be investor could take on to bring the business to

"The purpose of doing this is that, at some point, we'd want to give this over to someone who wants to own and operate the business," he said. "We won't run or manage the business, so what we're doing is facilitating it and doing some of the legwork on that, which I felt is something we needed to do for this to have a chance of happening."

Blecke said he thought last week's meetings were well-attended, and there might be some interest come from those meetings.

"I've talked with a couple of different people who have an interest, but they are obviously cautious in proceeding on this," he said. "Our major concern is finding somebody for this project, and I think that will take care of itself."

A different kind of 'bowl' game

The Allen High School volleyball girls are having a "Big Blue Throne" fundraiser. It shows up randomly at people's homes and, for a small fee, the throne will be picked up and sent on to the next house. Funds raised through the Blue Throne fundraiser will be used for equipment, tourneys, camps, etc., for the volleyball program. They've raised approximately $200 so far. According to assistant coach Joy Bock, the blue throne will be around town until it has no one else to "visit," which will probably be the end of the volleyball season.

Two years ago the Nebraska Legislature approved All Terrain Vehicles (ATV's) with only the operator riding and straddling the rig, utility-type rigs with bench seats and room for riders and mini-trucks on some public roads. Since that time we've had some requests to allow these and golf carts to be driven on city streets in Wayne. The legislature also established a list of requirements for ATVs, utility type vehicles and mini-trucks and their drivers to improve the safety for the operators and other vehicles on public roads. The legislation specifically excluded golf carts by name from approval for operation on public roads

The vehicle requirements are as

All-terrain, utility-type, or minitruck vehicles may be operated only between the hours of sunrise and sunset and shall not be operated at a speed in excess of 30 miles per hour or less if the posted speed limit is less. When operating any of these vehicles as authorized in subsection (B) of this section, the headlight and tail lights of the vehicle shall be on and the vehicle shall be equipped with a bicycle safety flag, which extends not less than five feet above ground level attached to the rear of such vehicle. The bicycle safety flag shall be triangular in shape with an area of not less than 30 square inches and shall be dayglow in color. The vehicle shall also be equipped with turn signals, brake lights and a horn.

The operators have to be 19 years old, have a valid driver's license and proof of insurance.

The legislature has made some review for interested citizens and the mayor and council.

Services were held Wednesday, Sept. 14 at the Maple Valley Anthon Oto School Gym in Mapleton with Pastor Scott Jensen officiating.

Christopher Ryan Oberg was born May 9, 1991, at Columbus, the son of Steve and Sue (Sextro) Oberg. He was baptized into the Lutheran faith on July 14, 1991, and confirmed May 7, 2006. When Chris was one year old, the family moved to Mapleton, Iowa where he grew up and was educated in the Maple Valley Anthon Oto School system, graduating with the class of 2010. While in school, Chris was an accelerated student, demonstrating a high degree of athleticism. He was a letterman in four sports: football, baseball, basketball, and track, and ran at the State of Iowa track meet three years. He was a member of St. Matthew Lutheran Church in Mapleton and enjoyed his work for Midwest Land and Auction in town - mostly due to his ability to buy $1 "treasures" to give to his friends. As soon as he could, at age 18, Chris became a volunteer fireman for the Mapleton Fire Department. He relished the position so much that he went on to train for certification as a Level 1 Firefighter. After making the choice to attend Wayne State College in Wayne, he was solicited by the Wayne Fire Department to join their team, but declined due to his classes and being a member of the Wayne State College track team, where he was part of the 4 x 200 team that set an indoor record for the college. Chris had chosen Political Science and Criminal Justice as his majors and planned to complete law school. At the time of his death, he was a sophomore at Wayne State. Chris never had a bad day. He was part of a very close and loving family, and especially enjoyed his big sis, Jaime. Always larger than life, he had a very quick wit, which enabled him to fire off classic Chris come backs. He enjoyed hunting, was a Nebraska Huskers fan, and liked playing PS3 on line with his friend, Joey Flanigan. Over the summer, Chris, Sue, Steve, Jaime and Grandma and Grandpa Sextro were able to spend a week together on a cruise to Alaska. Of the many trips the family was able to take together over the years, it was one of Chris's favorites and the memories of that trip will forever be cherished. Chris also enjoyed his time spent on Grandpa and Grandma Oberg's farm where he loved to help Grandpa, hunt, and ride Grandpa's four-wheeler.

Malvin Bruns appeared just slightly anxious prior to take-off for his 'Ageless Dream' of riding in a 1930's-era airplane out at the Wayne Airport.

Oaks resident lives dream, rides in 1930's-era airplane

Malvin Bruns, a resident of The Oaks Senior Living Community, always wanted to ride in the cockpit of a plane similar to that used by military pilots in the 1930's and

That wish came true on Monday when The Oaks, in conjunction with Ageless Aviation Dreams, was able to provide Bruns with a plane ride around Wayne.

Darryl Fisher, who owns the plane and was the pilot when Bruns was taken for a ride, is based in Nevada but has spent this summer on tour throughout the United States. The goal of Ageless Aviation is to provide plane rides to seniors and veterans.

Bruns said of his ride, "it was wonderful." He told those who gathered at the Wayne Municipal Airport to witness the flight that when the staff at The Oaks asked if anyone wanted a plane ride, he immediately said "yes.'

With Darrel Fisher piloting the plane, Bruns was able to fly over The Oaks to see what the facility looked like from the air. He said that he was not really scared during the flight and noted that the best part of the 15 minute experience was "the good ride he gave me." He observed that from his vantage point in the front seat of the Boeing Stearman, "everything looked flat."

Bruns, 92 years of age, said this was only the third time he had Darrel and his father, Bill, were at the Wayne Municipal Airport on Monday to talk to Bruns, his family and other residents of The Oaks, about the two planes that are part of Ageless Aviation Dreams.

Both planes have been part of the Fisher family for many years. In fact, the plane Darrel flew while fulfilling Bruns' dream had been fulfill dreams of flying.

It was sold and later bought back by a member of the family in 1983. It was put into storage for many years and recently brought out and restored.

Big week for football

Memorial Stadium at Wayne State College is going to be a highprofile football facility in the next

There will be three football games taking place on Cunningham Field that football fans will want to see, including visits by the defending state and national champions in classes where Wayne High and Wayne State both compete.

The first game on the agenda is a big one for a different reason. With the Blue Devils' 25-20 loss at North Bend last week, homecoming is going to be a really big deal as Wayne plays host to Boone Central.

The Cardinals, like the Blue Devils, come into this matchup off a loss last week, and both teams are looking as this as a must-win game if they want to entertain postseason hopes at the end of the season. Wayne High doesn't have a whole lot of room for error after Friday's disappointing effort at North Bend. With the No. 1 and No. 2 teams still looming on the agenda, the Blue Devils don't have a whole lot of wiggle room left.

If Wayne wins on Friday, they'll be 2-1 heading into a home matchup against Norfolk Catholic. The defending Class C1 champions are loaded yet again and are averaging more than 50 points a game. They pasted West Point-Beemer by a 56-7 margin, and the only weakness that I've been able to spot has been with their third-string waterboy.

Wayne High will have to play well this week and carry that momentum into next week's game with the Knights, Frankly, I think a 1-3 start will be very tough for this team to bounce back from, which makes this week's matchup with the Cardinals so important. If they can win this week and survive the Norfolk Catholic game next week, this team could finish with three wins in their final four games and take a 5-3 record into the playoffs, which should allow them to avoid the "big two" (Catholic and/or Pierce) in the first round of the playoffs.

In between those two big high school games, Wayne State has a date with Minnesota Duluth, the defending national champions in Div. II, and the current No. 1 team in the country.

Duluth opened the season with a big win over preseason-No. 8 Augustana, but looked a little sluggish defensively against an Upper Iowa team that wasn't expected to give much of a battle. Although they lost 49-22, the Peacocks racked up more than 450 yards in total offense against a Bulldog defense that held Augie to less than 250 the previous week.

Special teams could play a big role in this game, and Wayne State is showing some very good things in the kicking game. Both Tommy Warren and Kevin Paulsen have taken kickoffs to the house, and I'm trying to determine if there is a better punter in the country, regardless of class, than junior Randy Weich, who is averaging a very impressive 46.5 yards per punt and had a 73-yarder to his credit in last week's win at Crookston.

There is a lot of good football that will be played on the campus of Wayne State College during the next nine days. If you love good football, it would be worth your time to make the trip.

Wayne High and Wayne State football teams will get to light up a brand new scoreboard beginning this week.

The old scoreboard is more than 20 years old and was bought already used in the early 1990's, according to Wayne State officials I talked to earlier this week. The new scoreboard will be able to do a lot more than keep track of the time remaining in the fourth quarter, as it includes video capabilities that will allow fans to watch replays and see updated statistical information for Wildcat and Blue Devil players.

All that's left is field turf and a dome over the stadium and I think we're ready to join Nebraska-Omaha in the Summit League.

WHS cross country teams sweep titles at home meet

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

While Rocky Ruhl was confident his boys cross country team would score well Tuesday, he wasn't so sure about how well the girls would finish at the Wayne

After a disappointing eighth-place finish at Friday's Norfolk Catholic Invite, there was some cause for concern about the Blue Devil girls. Those concerns were eased somewhat, though, as the Wayne High girls edged Norfolk Catholic to make it a clean sweep of the team titles for the host team on a beautiful latesummer's afternoon.

"We were disappointed with how the girls ran in Norfolk on Friday, and we talked about it and the girls were focused and ran a great race today," Ruhl said. 'Now, we have to work at being consistent.'

The Blue Devil girls had four of their six varsity runners place among the top 15 individual runners, led by Angie Nelson's runner-up finish, just 16 seconds behind winning runner Nicole Aschoff of Norfolk the top 10, finishing seventh and eighth; and Meagan Stalling came through with a 14th-place effort that allowed the Blue Devils to finish three points ahead of the Lady Knights, 27-30.

We were waiting to see the girls get going, and they did a good job today and did a good job running in a pack," Ruhl said.

While a lot of eyes were focused on whether or not the girls would come through, the boys made their run to the top spot seem almost effortless. All six Blue Devils earned individual medals for a top 15 finish, and were once again led by senior Quentin Jorgensen.

Jorgensen usually runs in the middle of the pack and works his way to the front, but he was in the lead early and kept putting distance between himself and the competition. His time of 17:03 was more than a minute ahead of teammate Tyler Ellis, who was runner-up with a time of 18:07.

"Quentin is just a smart runner and keeps attacking the whole race," Ruhl said. "You could see, with every 1,000 meters, that he just kept attacking and was aggressive, and his times just keep coming down and he gets better and better."

All four scoring runners for the Wayne High boys team finished in the top eight, as Joe Dunklau took fifth and Aaron Bernal placed eighth. Wayne's nonscoring runners - Ben Hoskins and Sawyer Jager, finished ninth and 12th, respectively.

Wayne also ran well in JV competition. Jared Peterson led a sweep of the top six positions in the boys race, followed by Jacob Reynolds, Luke Pulfer, Cornelio Espino, Tyler Schoh and Grant Anderson; and Emily Nelson finished as runner-up in the girls JV race.

"I think we're back on schedule," Ruhl said. "I think we're improving at a good pace and I think we're in great shape."

"I think that's going to be a season-long battle between those two," coach Jennifer Kesting said of the dueling Hansens. "Colin beat John at Hartington last week, and John beat Colin at the first race, so I think those two are going to really push each other."

Kesting said she was glad to see her top two girls earn top 10 finishes as well.

"It's a good effort for both of them," she said. "This is a big meet for them with a lot more competition, and I think both girls ran well."

"We didn't play real well the first half," he said. "We had some turnovers and gave up some big plays and looked out of sync, but we came out the second half and played a lot better. The defense stepped up and the offense took advantage of some opportunities."

The Wildcats took the opening drive of the game and marched 60 yards on just five plays in just 1:52 to take a 7-0 lead on a Nick Pulscher two-yard run with 13:08 to play in the first quarter. "They busted a couple of long plays, and we made some mistakes and put ourselves in a hole, but we got that ship righted at halftime,"

It would stay that way until the fourth quarter, when Evan Johnson called his own number on a 19-yard scoring run to give the Wildcats the lead for good, and Pulscher added his third touchdown of the day with 6:29 to go to give the Wildcats the

LCC girls take runner-up honors

In the Lyons game, Amy Pritchard had 10 kills and Jade Cunningham had eight kills and 13 set assists. ## Wildcats go to 2-0 behind stellar defensive perfomance cats got an outstanding defensive effort in posting its second win of the season, taking care of Scribner-Snyder on the road Friday, 52-12.

The Wildcats held the Trojans to 37 yards in total offense, drawing praise from coach Tim Manzer.

"I was very pleased with our defensive effort," he said. "They did an excellent job in holding Scribner to 37 yards in total offense. It was a good win for the kids."

The Wildcats had a solid attack on the ground, rushing for 296 yards on 62 carries. Forrest Jones led the way, running for 180 yards on 33 tries, while Gage Main added 51 yards on 12 carries.

While the offense put up some nice numbers, Manzer said he had hoped for a more balanced attack.

"We weren't as sharp as I'd like to be, particularly in the passing game," he said. "We didn't run our routes correctly or we would have thrown the ball more. But once the score got out of hand, we stuck to running the ball and we ran the ball very well."

Goal derailed, but back on right track

quest I had embarked on.

My major person goal for 2011 has been to "deliver the baby" -- and trip aboard the Excuse Train. lose about 30 pounds to get me down to around 160 pounds. I had grown tired of the back problems, the lethargic evenings at home and the ongoing source for self-deprecating humor hanging over my belt buckle.

Originally, the vision was to reach that goal by the start of football season. I got off to a good start, working out four times a week, changing some of my eating habits and trying to take better care of myself. I had developed a 45-minute montage of inspirational music to keep me going as I worked toward my goal, using classic rock songs with inspirational titles like Boston's "Don't Look Back" to songs with specific lyrics that help keep me going when I hit that imaginary

I had gone above and beyond my usual efforts to stay healthy and keep positive energy going with my state of mind, but on the morning of the State Wrestling Tournament, the flu bug snuck up on me and made three days of broadcast reports a painful experience.

After recovering from that rare bout with the flu (I get sick about as often as politicians tell the truth), I suffered a knee injury during a night out on the town. A wrestling mom (true story) tried to throw me in a headlock at one of the local watering holes, and in bracing myself, one of my knees locked up and I strained a ligament.

Earlier this year, I told you about thanks to a tender knee, I went from being committed to getting back in shape to taking a long, extended

> The Excuse Train, I have found, is a very crowded form of transportation. Everybody seems to have a seat on this vehicle, and mine had been upgraded to First Class. My couch and I got to know one another again, and by the time summer was over, I had not only gained back the eight pounds I had worked very hard to lose early in the year - but I had tacked on another five just for grins and giggles.

I had now creeped to within striking distance of 200 pounds. This weight is fine if you're 6-foot-2, but I slip in at a very tall 5-foot-5, and my ideal weight is nowhere near the two-bill mark. I'm not sure if the federal government would classify me as "obese" at this point, but I certainly was gaining ground hopefully griped some English – and weight – that would put me in that category.

I enlisted the help of Tim Fertig, who has been successful in the child welfare system, reporters launching the Boot Camp fitness program at the Activity Center and is now handling individual clients as well. Tim has me eating right (for the most part) and has me working out twice a week at a level that was about twice as hard as what I was pushing myself earlier in the year.

I'm happy to report that, as of this writing, I'm down 11 pounds (although I may have picked one up over the weekend, since we had cake and ice cream for my dad's birthday on Sunday) and am extremely So, after more than a week away focused on knocking off the last 21 from the Activity Center because to reach my goal of 160 pounds by

Child welfare revision, not reform

WE HAD TO CALL OFF

IT HAD TO HAPPEN

SENATOR NELSON...

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - The recent fiasco resulting from Nebraska's attempt to partially privatize child welfare services is remindful of two things. The first is that anytime government hands off an important duty to the private sector, it should be as certain as possible that things are set up to make the transition

When the Department of Health an Human Services began in 2009 to oversee a private contractor that would handle child welfare services it wasn't prepared to do the job, as noted in a caustic report from the state auditor's office that scorched

The costs of child welfare efforts increased by tens of millions of (taxpayer) dollars between 2009 and 2011.

The privatization effort was supposed to save money, ultimately; to enhance efficiency and oversight. In the vernacular of the Internet it would be labeled: FAIL.

The audit cited failures of oversight, overpayments, wrong payments and failures to use the bidding process to let some contracts and ... a lot of other stuff. Then there was the other thing, previously referenced, that griped some reporters (like this one) and teachers. Throughout the development of the plan to privatize a portion of constantly referred to the proposed changes as "reforms." And when everything went south, reporters still referred to problems with the "reforms."

Or changes, if you prefer. They definitely were not reforms. The word "reform" does, by happened to the child welfare system, it wasn't "reform," was it? That is why politicians and reporters should refer to proposed revisions in laws and programs as revisions.

The word "revision" means to change something. It is neutral in judging the merits of the revisions.

Why is this important? Because words have meanings. Even in election years.

It's also a tad important because In fact, the changes were not raising the issue serves (I hope) "reforms." They were revisions. to let you know that editors and reporters discuss these types of sometimes pound desks. Some of never meet one interest that isn't definition, mean to make something us have the advantage of being special to someone.

better. To improve it. Whatever columnists, so we can prompt discussions. Or arguments.

> And without having to hear anyone holler, we get away with saying: "There is nothing to discuss! 'Revision' is the correct word, and 'reform' is the wrong word, and our readers deserve the correct word."

> The view from here: This is a good opportunity to bring another thing into the marketplace.

> Virtually everyone describes interest groups as "special interest groups," which is a redundancy so obvious that its use should be a misdemeanor, at least.

No matter how long you witness things. Actually, they holler and the policymaking process, you will

If you're an environmentalist you might consider the oil industry a "special interest." What's special about it? It's no more special than the insurance industry, the agricultural chemical industry, the automobile industry or groups that want REVISIONS in laws or regulations which apply to midwifery, the nursing of infants in public or the qualifications needed for obtaining a real estate licenses.

"Special interest" is thrown into conversation like a rock. It has become a pejorative. And it has always been redundant.

And redundancy, like clichés, should be avoided. Like the plague!

Dixon Post Office meeting next week

The United States Postal Service, in a notice posted in the Dixon Post Office and a form letter to customers, proposes to close or consolidate the post office.

This is the first step, under law, that the U.S. Postal Service must take prior to closing or consolidating a post office. This notice must be given 60 days prior to a final decision on the matter to allow time for local customers of the post office to evaluate the proposal and offer comments. This is a stipulation of the Postal Reorganization Act of Postal officials are required by law to schedule a public meeting with customers of any post office proposed for closing or consolidation. Locally, this meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 21, at 7 p.m. at the Community Center in Dixon. Written comments may also be submitted by the local district office of the U.S. Postal Service Central Plains District Manager, P.O. Box 1995000, Omaha, Neb. 68119-9500, or faxed to (402) 930-4434.

Local customers served by the Dixon Post Office should seriously consider the consequences of the USPS proposal and be prepared to voice their concerns at the Sept. 21 meeting. Only the citizens of the community may take action to to each community in the county prevent the closing or consolidation of their post office, and prevent service from being transferred to a contract community post office and/ or rural or cluster box delivery.

To preserve their post office as it now exists, a regular United States Post Office operated by career postal employees, local citizens must speak up now.

In addition to the 60-day period provided by law for customer comments, the law also provides appeal rights for local citizens if the final decision is in favor of closing or consolidation. The appeal from local citizens must be in the hands of the Postal Rate Commission in Washington, D.C., within 30 days after the U.S. Postal Service's written determination for closing or consolidation.

Local citizens should take notice that once the Dixon Post Office has been closed or contracted out, there is very little possibility of it ever returning to its present status.

Wednesday, Sept. 7, I was at the State Capitol for a Health and Human Services (HHS) Committee hearings on Child Welfare. State Auditor Mike Foley presented his audit report on the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), and it was quite a browraising report to say the least. As predicted, DHHS has a long road ahead of itself to get on track and do their job in serving our state's children and families, as well as foster care. There will, I think, be

I attended a Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) meeting at Wayne this same date. Wayne is in the process of trying to bring an automobile assembly facility to Wayne. Gene Gabus of Des Moines Motors and owner of the Noble car line was on hand to discuss the progress and had a car on display. If this can be accomplished, it would bring a new industry and some good jobs to the Wayne area. Wes Blecke has been working on this project and has more knowledge on it than I do.

On Aug. 6, our District suffered a loss of life of Petty Officer 1st Class John Douangdara in the Chinook shoot down in Afghanistan. A memorial service will be held in honor of John on Sunday, Sept. 25, at 2 p.m. at the South Sioux City Convention Center, located south of the Marina Inn. Area veterans' organizations will participate and the public is invited. I would encourage everyone to try to take a little time to remember John, please join us on Sunday if to be an informative tour.

What is the Wendy Vawser Residential Sales average length of time it takes to sell a house? The answer depends on the following 3 factors.

1. Price; is the house priced where the market is presently selling comparable houses?

2. Condition of the house; Does it need work? Are there major factors affecting the house?

3. Agent; Does the agent have a marketing plan in place? Is the agent actively advertising the house? Does the agent have a follow up plan in place for prospects? Are you getting detailed communication from your agent on a regular basis?

In short, when you have priced the house appropriately, prepared the property so it is ready to sell, and have an agent who markets the house properly, the house will sell.

So, how long does all this take? In the Wayne area, with the above factors taken into consideration, your home should sell in 90-120 days. Yes, even in today's market. If you have had your home on the market for longer than that, it is time to take a strong look at why it hasn't

Fall is an ideal time for tree planting ReTree Nebraska Week begins on Sept. 18. Here are a few tidbits of information about planting trees in the fall. Most of us think of planting trees in the spring but fall planting has its advantages.

In the fall, warm soil, cooler air temperatures and (usually) adequate moisture promotes root growth well into November. This gives plants time to establish new roots before having to support new spring growth. Fall planting also avoids the stress of summer heat.

The greatest concern with fall planting is if an extremely cold winter follows. Many trees sold are tagged with the hardiness zones on them; often a range of zones are given. Hardiness zones are based on low temperature averages. The zones are 2-9 in the continental United States with the cooler zones having lower numbers. In this area we are right in the middle of zone 5. For very hardy trees, those hardy to USDA cold hardiness zones 4 or lower; fall planting is usually not a problem. Spring planting is recommended for trees hardy to zone 5. Trees hardy only to zones 6 or higher are not recommended for planting in our area.

Trees need to be planted early enough to allow adequate root growth to support trees over winter. Roots stop growing when soil temperatures drop to 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Ideally, shade trees are planted at least four weeks before this happens, which is usually sometime in November. For Nebraska in general, September into about the third week of October is a good time to plant most container grown and balled and burlapped shade trees that already have developed roots. These trees will establish new roots into surrounding soil up until soil temperatures become too cold for root growth. Since we are in northern Nebraska, I would feel better if we could get trees planted before mid-October.

If large trees are to be transplanted, moved from one location to another with a tree spade, it is best to wait until just after the first freeze when leaves are no longer transpiring and losing moisture. When large trees are transplanted, 80 percent or more of the roots are lost. By waiting until after the first freeze, the demand for water from roots is reduced.

Fall planting of evergreens is more of a risk because evergreens continue to lose moisture from green needles throughout winter. Evergreen conifers, such as pine and spruce, also prefer warmer soil temperatures of around 60 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit for root growth. These are best planted in September to allow for adequate root growth and water uptake to cover the loss of water from needles during winter.

Some trees do not adapt well to fall planting. Over the years, Kelly Feehan horticulture educator in Platte County, has compiled a list that includes Magnolia, dogwood, tuliptree, red maple, birch, hawthorn, poplars, cherries, plum, ginkgo, willow, many oaks, bald cypress, fir and yews. While these trees are best saved for spring planting, if an exceptional bargain is found, go ahead and try to fall plant these trees.

What are the best trees are to plant? A better question may be what not to plant. We have a good idea from experience that some trees have chronic problems and don't function well in this area. Do not plant pin oak, silver maple, European white birch, green ash and Scotch pine (Scots is the proper name of this tree and may be on the tag). Avoid planting Austrees, 'Autumn Blaze' maple, Siberian elm, poplars, sawtooth oak, aspen, black locust and royal pawlonia.

Kelly's personal list of "good to great" trees for this area (this is not a complete list) includes ginkgo, white oak, hybrid elms, silver linden, bur oak, Kentucky coffeetree, Norway maple, Ohio buckeye, Japanese tree lilac and star Magnolia.

Okay to good trees (mainly because they tend to be overplanted, untried, or have issues such as disease) include river birch, northern catalpa, hackberry, thornless honeylocust, American and littleleaf linden, northern pin oak, American sycamore, black walnut, black cherry, hedge maple, black alder, and European mountain-

Good evergreens include ponderosa pine and jack pine on sandy soils: Norway spruce, Serbian spruce, Black Hills spruce, concolor fir, balsam fir, and white pine in protected locations. Colorado blue spruce and Austrian pine have been popular over the years, but these do have many disease problems. It showed the last couple of years as many of my calls in the Dixon/Dakota/ Thurston County area involved problems with these two trees, and I guess that I would not include them at all on my personal list. Lots of these problems occur when trees are planted too close; as they grow they crowd each other and become more prone to disease. Remember your spacing when planting rows of trees; you may have to thin them out later if you are planting seed-

Do not plant Scotch (Scots) pine because pine wilt is in the area and they will soon be attacked. It's been sad to see these beautiful trees die out but people aren't destroying the dead ones soon enough and the disease keeps spreading. Green ash is under threat from the emerald ash borer so be aware of this potential problem, planting this tree should be avoided.

For more information, go to retreenebrasksa.unl.edu and join in the goal of planting 1,000,000 new trees in our state by 2017.

Finally, we may have to water newly planted trees regularly this fall due to the very dry conditions we have experience the last month. Do not overwater, if you walk around the tree and water comes up around your shoes that is too wet. Tree roots need oxygen as well as water. Good luck.

Good-Fit Books are vital for youth

Much research has been written on the topic of choosing "good-fit" books for youth.

Leading literacy researchers confirm that in order to become better readers, youth need to read often and read books that are at their independent reading level.

Gail Boushey and Joan Moser, better known as "the sisters", address this issue eloquently in their book, The Daily 5: Fostering Literacy Independence in the Elementary Grades. They describe how choosing a book is similar to choosing a pair of shoes in their "I Pick" lesson.

I choose a book

- Purpose: Why do you want to – Interest: Does it interest me? Comprehend: Am I understanding what I am reading? - Know: I know most of the words.

All of us have a collection of various types of shoes in our closet. They include: our Sunday best, golf shoes, snow boots, etc. They each serve their own specific purpose. Just as we choose shoes to serve a purpose, we also select books with a purpose in mind as well. It may be to learn facts about a particular topic or for enjoyment.

Not all of us have golf shoes in our closet because golf is not a reading interests as well. That is why it is critical to expose youth to a variety books from different genres.

If youth were to swap shoes with a friend more than likely they would be either too big or too small. They just don't fit. This is comparable to books. Books that are good for one person are not necessarily a good "fit" for another. The book may be too hard or easy to read or they may not understand what they are reading.

Having perfectly fitting books will help youth read successfully improving fluency, intonation, comprehension, and motivation.

Teaching youth how to select a good-fit book is a lifelong tool and can be reinforced at home. Reviewing the "I Pick" lesson with sport that interests us. We may your children will empower them have bowling shoes instead. ## It's appropriate to reminisce

I've been procrastinating all evening about writing the column for this week; I can't keep sending lovely poems! I hadn't checked e-mail for a couple of days, so I had a bunch of forwards. I'm always amazed at how long some of the stuff stays in cyberspace and keeps coming around. Of course, there were lots of 9-11 tributes.

Which is why I've put off writing; I can't think of anything profound to say that hasn't already been said. There seems to have been a lot of retrospect regarding where we were that day; I know the Big Farmer and I were in the kitchen of the B and B, having breakfast; with no guests around. My brother called and told me to turn on the TV; we did, and then we sat there most of the morning.

I had a couple of insurance assessments scheduled west of Lincoln, so left late morning. It was very hard to concentrate on the questions, because, of course, they had their television sets on, also. All I could do was cry, and pray. The next night, there was a prayer service in our church.

Beginning on Saturday, I was surprised at finding myself crying again. There were so many neat photos in the paper, and on the news; and inspiring stories of the heroes from that day, and of the thoroughly enjoyed it; Jim Fields, who wrote and directed and edited and produced it used clever photography to make it look like old time silent movies.

I had heard of the black player, George Flippin, and of the Missouri team that would not play us as long as he was a member of the team. What really interested me was that he went on to medical school and practiced in Stromsburg, a Swedish community of all white folks. It sounds as if they thought a lot of him, and that he was a truly compassionate physician, in spite of being a ferocious football player. It makes a great story; I hope you got to see the film.

It's appropriate to reminisce about those things, and to stop and remember heroes from the past. It's true we will never be the same. The National Guard is no longer a group of weekend warriors. We know a lot more about the Middle East than we ever wanted to. It's no fun to fly. I hope it reminded everyone to appreciate our loved ones, and to remember to tell them

of different breeds. Call 402-518-8030 THANK YOU

The family of Sgt. Joshua Mann would like to extend a sincere "thank you" to everyone who has comforted us during this difficult time. We can't express enough how much we appreciate those who have so generously donated their time and talents to help honor and memorialize Josh. The support has been overwhelming and very humbling. The amount of patriotic pride our communities have shown only makes us more proud of Josh that he chose to serve his country in the United States Army.

We thank God for the 22 years we were blessed with Josh's dimples, blue eyes and witty sense of humor. We will forever miss him, but are comforted by the thoughtful and caring acts of friends, family, and even strangers.

Participants will tour the UNL Agricultural Research Development Center at Mead, partake in a taste panel and hear other hands-on presentations, including developing a marketing plan for a beef product.
