School foundation looking for ways to further help district

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Noting that the group is "attempting to become more robust and become more visible to the community and the alumni," two members of the Wayne Community Schools' Foundation made a presentation during Monday's meeting of the Wayne Community School Board of Education meeting.

Laura Gamble, who serves as president of the Foundation; and Jodi Pulfer, the current treasurer, told the board that as the district's budget becomes tighter in the future, the Foundation could be beneficial to the district in a number of ways.

Gamble also told the board that after returning from a conference for foundations such as Wayne's, she feels the best way for the organization to attain its goals is to hire a full-time executive director.

"The foundations that are bringing in the most money are those that have a full-time director. We need to have someone to take care of marketing and grant writing. A director would also be responsible for managing and working with investments such as land and property donations," Gamble said

Pulfer said she has done some research and found that executive directors of foundations are generally paid for by the school district, rather than the foundation.

She also listed some of the projects the Foundation has supported and help fund, including the Kern track, wrestling mats,

"Somebody Call 9-1-1"

When we make that phone call for a fire, someone always comes to put the fire out. Who are these people that run toward burning building buildings when the rest of us are running out?

The answer to the question at the end of today's article is "10-15 percent" The question is at the bottom.

Wayne fire department serves both rural and city residents. All the fire fighters are volunteer men and women who are willing to walk into smoke they can't see through break into rooms when they don't know what is in there, tear your car apart in chunks to get you out of a crash, and climb ladders to get to dangerous places.

Their employers and families put up with pagers in the middle of the night and in the middle of family events. They work in physically risky places. They do this for free because they want to make a difference in this community.

If you weren't able to make it to last Sunday's fireman's breakfast you can still send them a contribution made out to Wayne Fire Chief, City of Wayne, 306 Pearl, Wayne, Nebraska and tell them thanks when you see them.

The question is "how much time in a work week does the average active fire fighter donate to training, meeting or on calls and clean up?

Tietz honored with 'Caring Kind' award

Mark Tietz, an employee at Providence Medical Center since December of 1989, is this year's "Caring Kind" award recipient from PMC.

Tietz will receive his award at the Nebraska Hospital Association's Caring Kind Luncheon in LaVista on Oct. 21. He was also a recipient of the hospital's 2003 Employee of the Quarter award. He is a member of the hospital maintenance staff and is an active EMT as well as a volunteer fireman with the Carroll Fire Department.

"I can't say enough about the outstanding contributions our employees make to our hospital," said administrator Mike Hammond. "Mark is a fine example of such an employee. He is very dependable in every area in which he works. He follows through and completes projects and his peers remark that he is always willing to drop what he is doing to help out whenever and wherever he is needed, especially in an emergency situation. He is most certainly a 'caring' individual who richly deserves to be honored by the Nebraska Hospital Association."

COLUMBUS - Save the best for last.

When a group of seniors plays its last tournament together, the team can either fall apart from the emotions of that final outing, or rise up and make their final time out on the course together a memorable

Suffice it to say, the Wayne High girls golf team will have quite a memory to carry for the rest of their lives after finishing as the state runners-up in the Class C State Girls Golf Championships that concluded Tuesday afternoon at

The Blue Devils put together two of their best round of the year, shooting a season-low 375 on the first day and a solid 382 the second to finish with a 757, 25 shots behind three-time champion Boone Central and 15 shots ahead of third-place Valentine.

"Coming into the day, there were four (teams) within six strokes, and we talked about it and we decided we'd play every hole and every shot the best we can, post what we can and let everything take care of itself," coach Josh Johnson said after the tournament. "It was the second-best round we shot this season and it was good enough to get us the runner-up trophy, so I'm very pleased."

Wayne High started the tournament in good shape, with all five golfers making the turn in under 50. There were some ups and downs on the second nine, but when Monday's play concluded, Wayne was in third place behind firstday co-leaders Boone Central and Valentine.

Boys win again

I didn't know what kind of "chocolates" we were going to get-it was going to be somewhere between very sweet and disappointingly bitter.

Well, suffice to say it was good no, it was very tasty.

This team had a little of everything out at Quail Run Country Club in Columbus. Potter shot her career low with an 89 on the first day. McCorkindale matched hers with a 94. Burke was a couple of putts away both days from her best-ever round. Roberts didn't shoot low enough to be included in the team scoring either day, but there are about a dozen coaches in that team race that would have traded Roberts' score for any of their bottom two or three scores in a heartbeat.

What was most impressive, though, was the warrior-like effort given by Peterson. She had a pretty good round going after the front nine and was trying to overcome an unfortunate ruling on No. 10 that led to an ugly 10 on the scorecard when she felt her wrist pop on her tee shot at No. 12.

Brittney played through the pain on Monday, and struggled with it again on Tuesday. It would have been very easy to have cashed it in. In fact, coach Josh Johnson was thinking about pulling Peterson early in the second round to avoid risking further damage. She battled through the injury and gave Wayne a score it could use on the second

In the end, this was a group of young ladies that was going to leave the final high school golf tournament of their careers with something that they can look back on years from now. They really played well when it counted at the end of the season, recording their best two rounds at state.

This was a group of girls that overcame their inconsistencies, their injuries and the challenges that a tournament such as this presents, and rather than letting all of that define who they were and what they were capable of, they rose above it and left Columbus with a silver medal around their neck, the state runner-up trophy to bring back to the trophy case, and – most important - one sweet finish to what has been a fantastic season, and career, for these five seniors.

Softball team going to state for 'first time' – as a wild card

By MICHAEL CARNES

BLAIR - In the Wayne High softball program's 10year history, there have been a lot of memorable firsts.

There was the first district championship that led to the first state tournament appearance in the team's first year in 2002, followed by the first state title in 2003 and a second consecutive title the following year, a first for the school. The starting pitcher of that team, Molly Hill, became the program's first major college recruit when she took her pitching talents to the University of Nebraska. They were also the first – and, at this time, only - champions of the Mid-State Conference.

On Friday, the Blue Devils experienced a couple of firsts that they had not counted on this season.

The three-time defending Class B champion Blair Bears handed the Wayne High softballers their first loss of the season in the first championship game of the B-4 district tournament Friday afternoon, and when a seven-run fifth inning catapulted the Bears to a 9-0 win in the second championship game, it left the Blue Devils with another first – their first-ever trip to the state tournament as a wild card.

This is the Blue Devils' ninth appearance in 10 years in the state tournament. In each of their previous eight appearances, Wayne High was one of the district champions that got into the tournament.

The Blue Devils locked up a state tournament bid Thursday afternoon with a 10-0 win over Lutheran High Northeast, but the two losses to Blair on Friday after a 4-3 win over the Bears moved Wayne into the championship game left the Blue Devils and Omaha Skutt as the wild card teams for the state tournament that got underway Wednesday in Hastings.

Coach Rob Sweetland said heading into the state tournament as a wild card, and not a district champion. is certainly a new experience for the program.

"It is different," he said. "I'm kind of old-fashioned and think you should earn your way as a district champion. However, since you don't serpentine districts based on points, then you do need a wild card. I guess it's a good thing for us today, but being a district champion sure feels a lot better than being the runner-up."

excitement continued well into this week, as coaches and runners from the Mid-State Conference were trying to figure out who the girls team champion was for 2011.

The Blue Devils racked up their 29th and 30th wins of the year on Thursday with their wins over Lutheran High Northeast and the runs in the first inning of the first host Bears.

Wayne left no doubt that it was the top seed in the tournament in the first inning of the first game, touching the Eagles for five runs. Cassy Miller had an RBI triple and Kristin Carroll added a runscoring single to highlight the early explosion. They were joined by Victoria Kranz and Jalyn Zeiss with two hits apiece in the game as Wayne advanced to the winner's bracket final.

Blair drew first blood in the first of three district games between the two teams, scoring a run in the bottom of the second. However, Wayne's bats got hot in the fourth inning, highlighted by a three-run blast by Carroll to give Wayne a 3-1 advantage.

Caitlin Fehringer got the big inning started with a two-out single to right. Miller followed with a single and was replaced by Marissa Fallesen as a courtesy runner, setting the stage for Carroll, who hit her third career home run in a little more than a week when she took a Shelby Welchert fastball and lined a shot over the wall in left center.

Blair would come back and tie the game in the bottom of the fifth, but the Blue Devils got the lead back when Fehringer hit a long double off the wall in right and later came home on a sacrifice fly by Hannah Gamble. Miller shut down Blair in order in the sixth and seventh to seal the win, striking out nine and allowing five hits in the win.

With a wild card bid in hand, the Blue Devils were looking to end Blair's hopes for a fourth straight Class B title in Friday's championship game, but Wayne came out flat offensively in the first game and the Bears' bats were loaded for a big day.

Blair touched Miller for three game, taking advantage of a wild pitch and an error to take the 3-0 lead. They doubled their advantage in the fifth, highlighted by a tworun single by Welchert and an RBI double by Katie Ruwe as Blair took the first game 6-0 and handed Wayne its first loss of the season, limiting the Blue Devils to four hits in the contest, two coming from Kranz.

Wayne had a chance to put some pressure on Blair early in the second game after Fehringer made a great defensive play, robbing Ruwe of a home run and momentarily getting her leg caught in the fence. Zeiss singled to right and moved all the way around to third on a sacrifice bunt by Leeper, but Wayne could not get the run home.

"I thought the girls did a good job forgetting the first game and came out and played well early on," Sweetland said. "It would have been nice to get on top early and put some pressure on them, but we couldn't come up with that timely hit all day and it's a contagious thing with these girls.'

Wayne had another opportunity in the third when Zeiss doubled to center and moved to third on a sacrifice fly by Leeper, but once again Wayne could not score.

Blair broke the scoreless tie in the fourth with a pair of runs, then exploded for seven in the fifth inning, capped by a two-run homer from Sara Olsen. Wayne could only manage a bloom single by Gamble in the top of the fifth as Blair won the district championship game on the eight-run rule, the first time Wayne has experienced a margin of defeat that big since the Bears opened the 2010 season with an 8-0 win in Wayne.

"If one gets going, then another does, and we just didn't adjust very well today," Sweetland said. "We hit the ball hard at times and hit it right at them, and we need to do a better job hitting ground balls and line drives. We had to make the No. 2 seed and were to play state tournament. adjustments better, and Blair did that today and that's why they're the district champions."

Wayne dispose of the Warriors in straight sets.

"We were able to pass the ball and serve well, and Laura (Muren) did a nice job mixing it up and getting all our hitters involved," Hoskins said. "That's what we want. We don't want anybody to focus on one girl, and that's what we were able to do Thursday at Crofton."

Hoskins said Wayne's back row is doing a great job setting up the offense with solid digs and passes.

"Cassie (Harm) is our libero and has been fantastic with her serve receive and defense, and we also have people like Meagan (Backer) and Jessica (Biermann) and Katie (Hoskins) in the back row," she said. "Because they're doing their job, it makes Laura's job easier to get the ball to our hitters and our hitters are ready and doing the things we need from them. and two aces, Backer recorded 10 digs and Biermann had seven.

In other action, the JV team had no problems with a straight-set win, winning 25-12, 25-22; and the freshman also came away with a straight-set win, 25-21, 25-10.

The Blue Devils will put their winning streak on the line Thursday for Parents' Night as they take on Battle Creek, and Hoskins said her team is prepared for what should be an emotional night for everybody, including the coach.

"It'll probably be a little emotional for me with this being Katie's last home game," she said. "It's been an honor to coach her, both as a coach and a mom, and hopefully the seniors will go out and play well on their home court for the last time."

Eagles bitten by Osmond, 51-16

Osmond roll out to a big halftime lead and cruise to a 51-16 win over Allen in a district football matchup here Friday.

The Tigers used three long touchdown runs by Carlin Kreinert and a 56-yard punt return by Chris Schmit to help forge a 36-0 halftime lead. Schmit returned the second-half kickoff for another score and Kreinert added his fourth touchdown run early in the fourth quarter before Allen was able to scores.

"We did not tackle well at all." coach Dave Uldrich said. "That was a large contributing factor for the scoring outbreak on their part."

The Allen offense took some time to get going and could only rack up 209 yards in total offense.

"Offensively, there are people not finishing their assignments, and we'll make some personnel changes this next week," Uldrich said.

Allen avoided the shutout in Friday at Allen.

OSMOND - Big plays helped host avoid the shutout with a pair of the second pass when Coty Reuter scored on a one-yard run and Brian Boese connected with Zach Crom on a 10-yard pass.

was the best of the rest behind the three-time champion Cardinals, who cut 14 strokes off their firstday total to easily win the Class C crown for the third year in a row.

For a team that had experienced its ups and downs throughout the fall season, Johnson was thrilled that they were able to put it all together in the final two meets of the season, winning their second straight district title and taking the silver medal in the state tournament.

"To see these girls work so hard for four years, and then to have it click at the right time was great," he said. "I told them at the beginning of the year that if they all played their best golf at the same time, we'd be right there with anybody. All vear, somebody would struggle and somebody would play well, and we were finally able to put it all together at state."

Overall, Burke and Potter both finished with two-day totals of 183 and were among a trio of girls who tied for 12th individually, giving both of them individual state medals for a top-15 finish. "Taylor's been pretty consistent all year and has really been our rock that we could count on for a great score," Johnson said. "Katlin has always had the tools, and she had some fine tuning the last couple of weeks and was able to put it all together. For both of them to medal was a great feeling for me." McCorkindale and Peterson who became only the second Wayne High girl to qualify for state four times in girls golf – finished with two-day totals of 194 and 197, and Johnson was thrilled with both players' efforts.

"When we needed her most and she got hurt, she just willed her way through it.

"Hannah has really developed," he added. "She's consistently been at around 105 or so, and she really got into rhythm and played well at Scotus and districts and really peaked at the right time."

Roberts also played well this year and benefitted from the push she got from several other younger golfers.

"Burgandy and Aspen (Pflanz) and Alexis (Reinert) were right in there for that No. 5 spot, and it really paid off for Burgandy today," he said. "To have a fifth who can score like that really gives you a good feeling as a coach, because there are a lot of teams whose third and fourth golfers were above that. We have three or four golfers who were in the hunt for that spot, and getting that push really paid off for

In the women's game, the Wayne State ruggers continued their dominance of the Great Plains Rugby Conference, shutting out Augustana 37-0 to win the team's ninth consecutive conference title in as many years.

In a rematch of last year's league final, the women's team gutted their way to a 10-0 halftime lead, as Maggie Warrick willed her way to a 15-yard try and scrumhalf Rochelle Reinke scored from eight yards out. Wayne State could have had a third try right before halftime, but a miscommunication between the scrum and the backline resulted in a broken play that kept the Wildcats out of the try zone.

Wayne State came out with a purpose in the second half, totally dominating Augustana and winning a number of scrum-downs while maintaining possession and keeping the Vikings' backline from possessing the ball.

The Wildcats put the game out of reach with five scores in the second half, as Becka Hill, Tiff Randall, Lacey Tonniges and Hailey Wright all scored tries.

With the win, Wayne State will be the No. 1 seed for the Sweet 16 tournament that will be held at the Wayne Rugby Park Nov. 5-6. They will take on the No. 1 team out of the Minnesota Conference in the wins regionals, they will advance to the Final Four in Cherry Hill, N.J., located just outside Philadelphia, on Nov. 19.

After last week's 115-0 win over South Dakota, the Wayne State men were looking for a good test to show whether or not they are worthy of the No. 4 national ranking they carried into Saturday's matchup with St. Thomas of Minnesota.

The Wildcats were more than up to the challenge, defeating the Minnesota Conference's top team in smashing fashion with a 45-0 victory.

St. Thomas coach Rob Holder has been a part of four national championship teams, but he didn't have an answer for the Wildcats' attack, which worked on a lot of scrums during the week in preparation for the matchup against the bigger St. Thomas squad.

Wayne State used its scrum work to its advantage, staying low against St. Thomas' front row and keeping them back on their heels. With great ball control and possession, the backline got some great open-field runs and passed the ball well while lighting up the scoreboard.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes Managing Editor

Get drunk drivers off of our streets

A good friend of mine was killed by a drunk driver on Christmas Eve, so my feelings regarding a recent legislative committe meeting in Lincoln might come across as a little harsh to those who have been convicted of the offense.

And my response to that would be – tough tuchus.

As it stands now, judges in the state of Nebraska are far too lenient on drunk drivers. And the laws currently on the books make it possible for repeat offenders to not be charged as such, or to be charged at a level far less than where they should be.

The drunk driver who killed my friend was never charged with motor vehicle homicide, or even DWI (thanks largely to incompetent law enforcement that left him unattended just long enough for him to slip away and work off the intoxication). In fact, five years after he killed my friend, he racked up no fewer than three DWI offenses. Each time, he was charged with first-offense DWI and received a much lighter sentence than he deserved.

Drunk driving is the No. 1 cause of death among teens and young adults. The Legislature has tried to do something about the problem, making more than 100 changes in the state's DWI laws in the last two decades.

And yet, drunk driving and the violent changes to innocent lives that it causes still takes place far too often – not just in Nebraska, but nationally.

At a recent hearing on the problem, an Omaha woman talked about how her daughter had twice been convicted of drunk driving. For the second conviction, her daughter received a one-year revocation of her driver's license, a year's probation and 10 days of house arrest.

Ten days of house arrest? For a SECOND conviction of DWI? I wonder if the judge who issued the ruling shouldn't be tried for SWI – Sentencing While Intoxicated.

A FIRST offense should include a year's license revocation, a year's probation and a mandatory 90-day stay in a drug rehabilitation clinic (at the offending party's expense, obviously). If that doesn't get somebody to see the light, a SECOND offense should include a mandatory prison sentence, a significant fine (I'm cool with $100,000 - make sure it hurts the convicted party, not these $1,000 fines that are nothing more than an inconvenience that a potential enabler can cover), and a five-year license revocation. Do you REALLY want to know what I think third-timers should get?

In addition, there are far too many cases of these drunk drivers operating a motor vehicle while their license is under revocation. For those folks, I would think a mandatory jail sentence of 3-5 years would be a fantastic deterrent from wanting to tempt fate with the bottle and the vehicle.

The state has found other approaches to help deal with the problem, including education and tools like ignition interlocks. But in order for a real dent to be made in the battle against drunk drivers, the best approach that I believe can be used is to simply get them off the streets for a long period of time.

It won't bring my friend back . . . but maybe it'll keep yours alive for

Capitol View Society has become complicated

By ED HOWARD Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - It always has been absolute gospel in this corner that without the First and Fourth Amendments the remainder of the Bill of Rights would be useless, easily circumvented by a powerful central government.

The First Amendment is the one usually referred to in conversational shorthand as that which guarantees the freedoms of speech, press and religion.

The Fourth Amendment is the one intended to protect the citizenry from unreasonable governmental search and seizures of persons, places and things. Places are usually thought of as homes, although others are included.

This piece is dedicated to the First, as well as a look at how complicated our society has become. The Fremont Public Schools told a 12-year-old girl she couldn't wear a rosary-necklace because the school district had been warned by the cops that the rosary had become associated with some gang or gangs. Importantly, the district acted after consultation with attorneys.

The American Civil Liberties Union, often the whipping child of religious and conservative interests, and sometimes of liberals, immediately came to the defense of the little girl.

So did the chancellor of the Catholic Archdiocese of Omaha.

Freedom of speech was involved, said ACLU Nebraska. And so was freedom of religion, said the archdiocese.

The view from here: Put yourself in the position of the Fremont Public Schools - which otherwise allows symbols and clothing expressive of religious faith - and it isn't that simple.

information provided by police, and in light of advice from attorneys. Let's say some miscreant gangster or wannabe does harm to a child, any child, wearing a rosary or something akin to it.

You can anticipate the outcry and the lawsuits.

The arguments would be that the school was negligent for not banning the gang-appropriated rosary symbol after having been it in a different context, " \ldots full of warned, the by cops and attorneys, sound and fury, signifying nothing. that not doing so could make the school district liable if someone was hurt or worse.

the Catholic Church in particular, do you? And to do it in the face of a school policy that generally allows kids to wear objects and clothing expressive of religious faith?

An internal investigation revealed that direct care staff hit, pushed or choked seven residents. Additional care staff members knew about the abuse but did not report it. A number of supervisors and "hands on" caregivers face discipline because the abuse occurred on their watch. This new abuse on vulnerable residents is totally unacceptable and must be addressed immediately. Council urged to keep 1 a.m. bar closing time

At the Wayne City Council meeting on Oct. 4, extending bar hours was on the agenda for the second time in a month, and both times the proposal faced opposition. The reason for the opposition comes from hard evidence based on the science from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The CDC recommends evidence-based strategies for communities to adopt or maintain to prevent excessive alcohol consumption and related harms. Several strategies were suggested by the CDC, including strategies to maintain limits on hours of alcohol sales.

With that in mind, we would encourage the City Council to help prevent excessive alcohol consumption by maintaining the current 1 a.m. closing time for bars. The extra hour for consumption will only promote an environment that encourages heavy alcohol consumption. The additional hour would benefit few and likely negatively impact many. In light of recent alcohol-related incidents (the death of two WSC students in a drunk driving crash and a major house party resulting in 41 Minor in Possession citations), it would seem wise for Wayne to adopt policies that help promote the reduction of excessive alcohol consumption, ultimately protecting the safety and health of the community.

Adopting what's being called a "trial 2 a.m. closing time" makes for poor policy planning that weakens community standards and invites problems associated with excessive alcohol consumption. Not to mention what the additional hour will do to already-stretched resources for both Wayne State College and the Wayne Police Department.

We respectfully urge the City Council to vote down the expanded hours of alcohol sales to help prevent the tragedies and social harms that result from increased alcohol consumption. There's an opportunity to either encourage or discourage increased alcohol consumption. We hope the City Council will discourage the behavior for one simple reason - the risks far outweigh the benefits.

The wet mill and the dry mill combined produced more than one million gallons of ethanol per day. Ruth Victor gave the Thought for the Day, "What is the best gift you have ever received? Better yet, what is the best gift you ever gave?'

She went on to say, "perhaps you will recall that in each instance, the beset gift was the one that was tied with the heartstrings of the giver, one that included part of self." An additional thought was, "gossiping on the phone with your girlfriends for 10 minutes will firm up the jaw and chin and is far better than plastic surgery."

The male is vibrant red and slightly larger than the female who is a dull red-brown shade. The each possess prominent raised crests.

Both sexes sing clear, whistled song patterns, which are repeated several times and then varied.

Cardinals eat mainly weeds, grain and fruit, but will eat larger insects. Pairs mate for life and stay together year around. They have three or four eggs in their nest and incubation takes 12-13 days. They can have up to four broods a year, with the male caring for and feeding each brood while the females incubates the next brood.

The oldest cardinal banded by researchers lived at least 15 years; however, the high mortality rate span is only about a year.

As a child gets older, it is necesgive them room to communicate. When asking a child a question, new experiences and too much allow him or her five seconds or so development. This is really present to think about what he or she is when there is not consistency in going to say. Children generally will answer in that time frame. Parents and siblings usually answer the question for the child and don't develop communication so children will be able to communicate better

As children get older, parents should help set up play-dates with other children of the same age. This will help them learn social to play and gives him or her an skills with other children they do opportunity to develop knowing the not know. Remember at one to two years of age they may still be doing When a parent first begins to parallel play (playing next to anothtalk with a child, it is important to er child, not with them). They need keep helping their children with communication so they are able to socialize and communicate with other people. If necessary, arrange play activities for children so that they can continue to be watched. Guide them in communication with others. Remember children learn to socialize by watching their parents and how they communicate.

Sometimes a distance will grow in the communication between a child and a parent. To help with this, set aside a "talking time" with the child everyday.

Each individual child might have a different "talking time." For instance, some children will want to talk about their day right when they get home from school and others will talk during the car ride home from school or at a babysit-

One of the best times is right before bed. Parents can create this by setting aside time early in a child's development.

EIENN-AIR.

First anniversary observed

Winside United Methodist Church celebrated its first anniversarv in their new church building on Oct. 9.

Approximately 80 people attended the worship service and the pot luck dinner held afterwards.

Pastor Judy Carlson led the worship service and children of the congregation provided some special songs. Recognition was given to church members of over 50 years and also to the 11 new memberships of this year.

The new handicap accessible church process began in 2003 with the purchase of 15 acres of land on the west edge of Winside.

After much discussion and many years of planning, a ground breaking service was held on Oct. 18, 2009. The Church was completed in 2010 with the first worship service held Oct. 17, 2010.

The Sunday School children decorated cupcakes for the occasion. Breakfast - Cereal Franklin and Susan Gilmore of Carroll and Dick and Becky Keidel of Wayne were each presented with a prayer shawl and thanked for their contributions to making this church home possible.

Following the worship service, meal was enjoyed by all in attendance.

With high risk of combine fires high, precautionary measures are urged

Dry field conditions, high temperatures and include: wind gusts of 30-35 miles per hour are leading to an increased threat of field fires across most of the state.

The National Weather Service has issued a Red Flag Warning for much of Nebraska: "Dry and breezy conditions could lead to extreme fire behavior. Fires will start quickly, spread furiously, and burn intensely."

Earlier the village of Stapleton was evacuated due to a large fire that started in a sovbean field and quickly burned out of control, according to an Oct. 5 North Platte Telegraph storv. The National Weather Service at North Platte reported sustained winds of 30 miles per hour and gusts up to 41 in the area contributing to this and other fires.

Last week, volunteer firemen were called to three field fires in an area in eastern Nebraska between Waverly, Greenwood and Ashland, said Dave Morgan, UNL farm safety specialist.

This is likely typical of what the rest of the state is seeing. The State Fire Marshal's office reported major fires in northwest and central Nebraska and was aware of smaller fires in other areas.

Morgan recommends several steps producers can take to lower the risk of field fires and the resulting damage to combines and yield. These

- Keep equipment clean and in good repair. When done for the day, producers should take time to clean machinery thoroughly with an air compressor, power washer or even a broom to dislodge any crop residue or chaff from the combine.

- Fix any fuel, hydraulic or oil leaks. When it's this windy, vegetative matter breaks up into really fine material that readily accumulates on oil and fuel leaks, Morgan said. This creates a source of solid and liquid fuel. From there, it doesn't take much to start the fire - a dry bearing or a slipping belt can quickly heat up or spark.

- Check fluid levels and carefully refill, being careful not to spill any oil or fuel on the equipment. But don't overfill fluid reservoirs. With high temperatures in the mid-80s, oil expands and may "burp" out the vent, creating another fuel source for fire.

- Carry at least one, preferably two, fully charged 10 pound ABC fire extinguishers on all equipment. (Be sure to have fire extinguishers inspected annually and refilled as necessary.)

"We recommend having a couple extra air pressure water extinguishers ready on the combine or in the pickup," Morgan said.

A dry chemical extinguisher will exclude air from the flame, but it doesn't cool the source of the fire, leaving hot, smoldering chaff, crop residue and dirt that could start another fire. A pressurized water extinguisher, with a tablespoon of dish soap added to improve spray, will cool and saturate the source.

"A five-gallon air pressured water extinguisher would weigh about 40 pounds and should be manageable. We recommend keeping one in a nearby pickup and on the combine, if possible," Morgan said.

If a field fire starts, call 911 first and then try to extinguish it. Aim the extinguisher nozzle at the base of the fire, sweeping if from side to side.

Under these unusually dry conditions, even with a clean combine, fires are going to occur and can quickly get out of hand, Morgan said.

Personal safety is always paramount, Morgan reminded growers.

"If the weather models are correct, the fire danger would be significantly reduced or eliminated for much of next week," Dutcher said. "Dry weather is then forecast to return to the region for much of next week and should allow producers the opportunity to head back to combine activities after fields dry enough to tolerate the weight of heavy machinery."

Conference Director Corinne Morris is the Associate Dean of Agriculture, Health and Science at Northeast. She is being assisted by office assistant Kathy Neidig. Over 75 area businesses have contributed as sponsors for the conference and many will have a booth in the exhibit hall that day.

The conference is designed to help farm wives, country gals, and agribusiness women empower themselves to meet the challenges of the diverse agriculture industry.

According to Morris, "No matter what their role, women in agriculture can fulfill it with more confidence and knowledge after attending this one-day conference at Northeast Community College in Norfolk," Morris said, "Every that gets the women talking about year we strive to make the confer-

This conference is ideal for women who want to learn more about farm/ ranch management, woman landowners, women involved in day-today business and family decisions, and women involved in other facets of agribusiness.

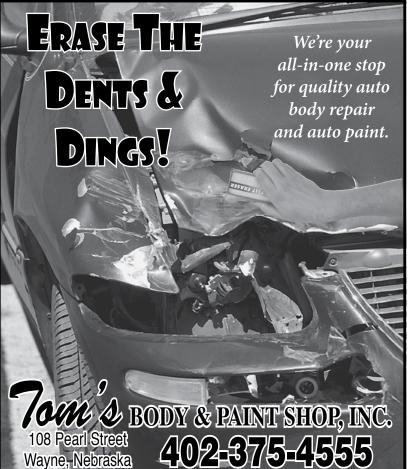

"We hope to help women meet their goals," Morris said. "Some women may have a goal of management/ownership, some may wish to build their knowledge of specific agricultural topics, others may want to improve their communication skills, and still others may wish to return to college. We want to provide the information they need to be successful."

Check-in and a continental breakfast with soy donuts, compliments of the Nebraska Soybean Board, are scheduled for 8-9 a.m. In the opening session, Dawn Caldwell will deliver a message Common Ground. Then, nationally

Kline will help captivate the hearts and minds of the audience with her clever blend of practical wisdom and refreshing humor. Kline will show the women how to treat themselves like royalty. Also, the 2011 AG-ceptional Woman of the Year will be named at the conference. Bonnie Schulz of Battle Creek was the 2010 AG-ceptional Woman of the Year.

During the day-long event, women can choose to attend three, 50-minute break-out sessions from a total of 21 different presentations. Break-out session facilitators include sales and marketing trainers, UNL extension educators, image consultants and trainers, insurance professionals, recordkeeping consultants, zoning administrators, commodities brokers, accountants, and more.

We were blessed with a visit from another old friend on Saturday morning.

Howard was a fraternity brother who raised wheat in Kimball County. Now that he's retired, he gets to the big city once in a while. Our conversation around the coffee cups reminded me again of the subject of friends I was going on about last week. A lot of these old friendships depend on what I call "shared history," at a particular time in our lives. For us, at least, we look upon our college days as a fun part, even though it happened a long time ago.

As I prepared for their arrival, I got out my cookbook to find the coffee cake recipe I used to make while on the farm on Sunday mornings. This cookbook is a compilation of all those recipes I used to have to hunt in all the cookbooks for; or, the ones handed down, or given to me by great cooks.

I made copies for the kids a few years ago, and the notation on this coffee cake says, "I used to make this on Sunday morning, put it in the middle of the kitchen table, and not have to nag about having breakfast before church."

As I served it to Howard and his lovely wife, Peggy, I told them about the Sunday ritual, and as we reminisced about those long ago college days, the importance of memories struck me! As I see my mother's memory fade, I begin to realize what a loss that is. I have a friend with a shirt that says, "Of all the things I've lost, I miss my mind the most!'

While my mom was at the facility beauty shop yesterday, I visited she was well aware of her memory loss. For instance, she said, she and her husband had made two trips to Europe and she has albums of photos from those trips. Unfortunately, when she gets those albums out, she cannot recall the day the pictures were taken. That is so sad.

Of course, each of us has a different memory of some of the same events. We laughed as we compared notes on Saturday morning; what one guy could not think of, the other one could. For instance, the fellow who was our best man always teases Mike about bringing him home one weekend to pick up moldy milo! I guess there was an early snow storm and of course, the Big Farmer wanted to salvage anything he could.

Especially as we get older, our with another resident who told me memories become more precious. the nursing home!

As we listen to our kids talk about their hijinks, we shudder, and are happy we didn't know about them at the time. I know I don't look through our pictures often enough, but when I do, I can spend hours. I think I received my first camera when I was probably a freshman, and I used it a lot! Of course, some of those pictures are pretty bad; I've even thrown some away, but some have made me laugh, and crv. I have a hunch that reviewing them once in a while does help me remember the events, and the people.

There are other things that trigger memories; music, for instance. There are still some hymns that make me cry, mostly because they were sung at funerals of loved ones. There are some associated, of course, with very happy times, like all the songs I've sung and played for weddings.

Smells can bring back memories; still get homesick when I walk into a small community hospital. Most people can't stand those odors; I love them! I also like the smell of Clorox; to me, it's clean! And I used a lot of it at the Bed and Breakfast.

We spent this past Sunday in Cass County, at a waffle feed and a golden anniversary. We couldn't always put a name on the people we visited with, but we had many warm, wonderful memories of our twelve years there. Just as we have of our 30 years in Wayne County! We are products of the some total of our experiences, and our memories should be cherished for them. I pray that I can retain a lot of mine, even when I'm old and feeble and in

Cropland values have gone up considerably during last few years

A survey by the Ag Economics Department at UNL reveals what no one is surprised about. Cropland values have appreciated considerably in the last several some going for less than $100 an acre to bids for next year over $400 and much higher in some areas.

I'm no genius, but sooner or ears reflecting higher commod ity prices.

With only a few exceptions cash rental rates have climbed and followed gains in land values quite closely. A comparison of statewide average land prices from 2006 to 2011 shows that dry land cropland with no irrigation potential increased an average of 70 percent. Dry land cropland with the potential for irrigation development showed the highest percentage increase of all classifications, averaging a 105 percent increase over 2006 prices.

Center pivot irrigated land had the second highest percentage gain with a 102 percent increase over the five-year period. Cash rents increased from 46 percent to 91 percent during the same period. Land prices have climbed so rapidly that even the results of this survey, which is done in the spring, are showing prices much lower than recent land purchases have been.

age land values at the time of the survey have risen over 100 percent for dryland and nearly so for irrigated land since 2006. Rents have gone from an average on dryland from around $100 to $180 dollars an acre. Irrigated land rent went from an average of about $150 to $280. Most of you know that some pieces of ground have sold for much more recently later prices have to stabilize. Land prices are mostly tied to commodity prices and those prices have gone significantly lower since harvest began. The fed regulators are getting real nervous and are advising ag lenders to take "stress tests" to see if falling commodity prices will cause them problems later on. I'm not going to tell you where corn and soybean prices are going or what a fair price for land is, because I don't know.

I highly recommend reading "Farmland Values: The Effects of Commodity Prices, Yields, Profit Margins and Capitalization Rates" by Matt Stockton in the Sept. 14 issue of Cornhusker Economics, the newsletter published by the UNL Ag Economics Department. It gives a good summary of how the most important factors are tied together.
