Candidates gather for forum at Majestic

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Candidates for local, state and federal offices pitched their cases in front of local voters Monday night at the Majestic Theater in Wayne.

Three candidates for Wayne City Council were joined by candidates for the Legislature, Board of Regents and both Congressional seats in a 90-minute forum sponsored by Wayne County Farm Bureau and Wayne Area Economic De-

Issues concerning economic development, education, state funding for roads and the nation's energy concerns dominated discussion during the question-and-answer session. Candidates were given about two minutes to answer questions on a variety of topics as a reporter-estimated crowd of about 50 voters listened in and provided written questions during

One candidate for the House of Representatives was on hand Monday, as Plainview commodities broker and farmer Bob Lingenfelter, who is opposing current District Three Rep. Adrian Smith in the Republican primary, was on hand to talk about his desire to represent the state in Congress.

"In February, I saw that Adrian was running unopposed, and there isn't any of that crew that deserves that run unopposed," he said. "Since (Smith) has been there, the individual share of our national debt has gone up more than $18,000, and there's a good chance I'm not going to live long enough

Lingenfelter said he is particularly interested in the agriculture economy, including the ethanol industry. Nebraska has benefitted greatly from a blenders credit that has played a key factor in the increase in corn prices over the years.

"Before the facility opened (near Plainview), I sold corn at $1.37 a bushel," Lingenfelter said. "I sold corn about four weeks ago at $6.40 a bushel. That's a considerable difference in a state that raises 1.6 billion bushels of corn.'

Lingenfelter said that, under Smith's watch, farmers and ethanol producers have lost that blenders credit, and he believes mandates to blend ethanol in the nation's gas supply is not far behind.

He also touched on the Keystone XL pipeline issue, agreeing with concerns about the dangers of placing the pipeline in the Sandhills region.

"They just put one out by Columbus, so why not use the areas that are already established," he said.

Kent Pulfer has been training for next week's Boston Marathon, running 6-7 miles a day. He qualified to compete in the world's biggest marathon after running in the Lincoln Marathon.

Pulfer is ready to run in Monday's Boston Marathon

For the Herald

Wayne's version of the "Running Man" just might be 47-year-old

The Elgin, Iowa native did some recreational running in college to stay in shape but for the most part gave it up when he started having some knee issues. Fast forward a couple decades to the mid 2000's, and he found himself running once again – for recreation, of course – when his oldest son Jacob entered junior high and was out for the sport of

"I was at the age where I felt I wanted to get back into running some, plus it gave me a chance to run with my son. I do enjoy running and again I was into my early 40's and thought, this is the use it or lose it time for my body," he said. The elder Pulfer enjoyed his recreational running, but like most people that have a tinge of competitiveness in their system, he began stretching the miles during his runs. "Once you start stretching the miles you begin to wonder how far you can go," Pulfer said. "That's kind of how I kept at it, plus I had some nudging from friends to try a marathon eventually. In 2009, Kent ran in the Lincoln Marathon, an annual event held each May. A goal of many first-time marathoners is to finish the 26.2-mile course. He did. In 2010, not only did he finish the race, but his time was good enough to earn him a spot in the world re-knowned Boston Marathon. "There are certain marathons you can run that are what they call "BQ" qualifiers," Pulfer said. "Simply put, if your time falls with in a range of what the Boston Marathon standard is for your particular age group, you can qualify. That's why you might here someone say they ran a BQ time of whatever." Since the Boston Marathon is held on the third Monday in April, and the Lincoln Marathon is in May, Pulfer's qualifying time in the 2010 Lincoln Marathon basically allowed him, if he so chose, to run in the 2011 Boston Marathon.

"By the time I looked into pursuing running in the Boston Marathon in 2011 it was too late," Pulfer said. "Just because you have a provisional qualifying time doesn't guarantee you get in. They have numbers limits and they were full."

Still, qualifying for such an event is not an easy task. He kept running and kept logging his miles on a computer. In fact, in 2011 he ran a total of 1,181 miles. So far in 2012 he's run nearly 450 miles. A typical week includes about three days of running of 6-7 miles each time. Last May, Pulfer once again ran the Lincoln Marathon and, sure enough, his "BQ" time was good enough to earn a spot in this year's Boston Marathon, which takes place next Monday morning. This time, he will be there with his running shoes in tow. He will be one of the masses of more than 27,000 people that will embrace the challenge of running in one of the most recognized marathons in the world.

There are actually two starting practices used in marathon run-

"There's a gun time and a chip time," Pulfer said. "That is the only way to do it, since you have so many people running and they all can't be at the starting line at the same time."

An RFID, which stands for a radio frequency identification device, is placed on each of the runners, which will keep track of the time and distance electronically.

The marathon actually starts in Hopkinton and not Boston," Pulfer said. "Approximately 500 people per minute will push past the starting line which means it will take close to an hour to get everyone officially past the starting line. That's why you have an The runners that run professionally, will start at the front and basically just be on gun time.

Planting trees can help energy costs

As energy prices increase, so does choices for wind protection. the cost to heat and cool our homes. However, many people do not reala tree can result in energy savings. How much? Three trees in the household between $100 and $250 you'll pardon the pun, that is a lot of green! Read on to learn more. Deciduous trees (those that lose their leaves each fall) save energy in the summer by shading houses, paved areas, and air conditioners. After the leaves drop, the bare tree allows winter sunlight through to help heat and light the home. Evergreen trees and shrubs save energy by slowing cold winter winds. So, where should your trees be planted?

Shade trees reduce air conditioning needs by blocking and absorbing some of the sun's radiant energy. Therefore, plant deciduous trees in two general areas: 1) so they will protect the eastern side of the house during the morning hours and 2) to shade the west side in the afternoon during the months of June, July, and August.

Trees with mature heights of at least 25 feet should be planted 10 to 20 feet east and west of the house. Plant smaller deciduous or evergreen trees with lower limbs northwest and northeast of the home to provide late afternoon and early morning shade.

Trees planted to the southeast, south, or southwest will shade a building in the summer only if they extend out over the roof. But in the winter, when maximum sun is desired, such trees will provide too much shade. Even deciduous trees that have dropped their leaves cast quite a bit of shade in the winter. To avoid over shading in the winter, locate trees no closer than 2 1/2 times their mature height to the south of a building. Trees planted to the southeast or southwest should be about four times their mature height from the building.

Trees should also be planted to shade paved or asphalted areas. Light energy striking dark asphalt is absorbed, causing the air above to be heated. Light colored pavement absorbs less energy, but can reflect it toward the home. Tree leaves absorb light energy and use it to evaporate water reducing both heat absorption and reflection below the Air conditioners should also be shaded from mid-morning through evening. Shrubs and trees should not be planted near the air conditioner or they will reduce and the unit's cooling efficiency. Prune branches to allow at least several feet clearance around air conditioning equipment to encourage air

Trees can be very effective at reducing energy use for heating by blocking cold winter winds. These winds infiltrate homes through small openings and also carry heat away from the building's outer surfaces. Effective windbreak trees have crowns that extend to the ground and branches that keep their foliage in winter (evergreens). Junipers, spruces, firs, Douglas fir, and evergreen shrubs are good

Trees for winter wind protection should be planted upwind of the ize that the simple act of planting area to be protected. This will often mean planting on the west, northwest, and north sides of a home. right location can save the average However, local conditions like hills or other tree lines may cause preannually in energy costs. Now, if vailing winter winds to be from other directions.

Windbreak trees can be planted in straight or curved rows or in linear groupings. They should be close enough so their crown edges meet within a few years without overcrowding. Small or narrow-crowned trees can be as close as six to eight feet while larger trees can be as far as fifteen feet apart. Shrubs can be planted as close as two to four feet apart. Windbreaks can consist of one or two dense rows or several less-dense rows. Wind protection extends downwind ten to twenty times the windbreak height, so the trees need not be planted close to the home to be effective.

Plant trees far enough away from sidewalks, driveways, and buildings so the crown has room to develop. Full-crowned trees that naturally keep their branches all the way to the ground should be planted at least one-half of their mature crown width from any obstruction. Trees that can readily be pruned as they grow, like most deciduous trees, can be planted closer and allowed to overhang low obstructions.

Incumbent Dave Bloomfield, who was appointed by Gov. Dave Heineman two years ago, said he wants to continue to work to provide incentives to develop industry in rural communities and encourage growth in the state's smaller towns, away from the big cities of Lincoln and by offering incentives to people to move into small towns and develop industry, and we're seeing some of that here in Wayne," he said. "It's essential that we continue that."

Taking care of the state's roads is a key element in industrial growth, and the three Legislative candidates all had ideas on how to improve the state's infrastructure.

Former South Sioux City school superintendent Van Phillips said

Wayne City Council candidate Kathy Berry was joined by opponent Jennifer Sievers and Ward Three candidate Cale Giese as local representation during Monday's candidate forum at the Majestic Theater.

"We have taken action in Lincoln the state needs to look at revenue sources to help fund road construc-

> "With gas as high as it is, it's not prudent to add another tax on top of that," he said. "I think we need to look at other funding streams and sources, and I don't know what the answer to that is, but it's way too expensive to redo the entire road system, so we have to figure out a way to come up with the dollars to take care of our roads.

Bloomfield said the state passed LB84, which takes a quarter-cent of state sales tax to put into a special fund for state roads, and he said he helped make sure that funding wasn't raided in the past session of the Legislature.

"There have been attempts to raid that and take it away, and we've headed those off," he said. "I won't agree to any fuel tax increase, and I don't want a sales tax increase and I think this quarter-cent will go a long way."

Dakota City native Ron Hartnett said the state should go all-in with casino gambling to provide that rev-

"When it comes to a revenue stream, we've got to have gambling," he said. "More than $3 million went from Nebraska to Iowa on gambling, and another $360,000 to South Dakota. Iowa had $1.8 billion in revenue from gambling, and we have to seriously consider it as a revenue stream.'

The topic of prenatal care of illegal aliens was a hot topic as well, with candidates looking at the financial and legal issues involved. "This was one of the more contentious things we've dealt with this year," Bloomfield said. "People who support this aid take it as a pro-life issue. I personally see it as a health issue, and I'm opposed to that aid on the basis that if you're not here legally, we should not be spending Nebraska taxpayer dollars to take care of you. I don't feel we should be spending Nebraska dollars taking care of illegal aliens."

Phillips said he wasn't sure that he disagreed with Bloomfield, but looked at it more as a financial is-

"If you look at the research Sen. (Mike) Flood did, without the prenatal care, we'd get a woman who comes into the hospital to deliver, and the youngsters have low birth weight and have a lot of differlot more money than if they would have had prenatal care. Somehow you have to balance it out and look at the bottom line, as well as the emotional side.

Hartnett said he is pro-life and is concerned about the woman's health.

"The health of the woman is essential, and we need to put our best foot forward so they have an equal chance to be successful.'

The three area candidates for University of Nebraska Board of Regents all discussed the need to deal with skyrocketing tuition costs. Norfolk attorney David Copple, Columbus businessman Tony Raimondo and Columbus veterinarian Jim Pillen all said the university needs to figure out how to reduce costs and make education more affordable.

"We need to take a look at the standards and expectations within our system, so we can translate that to a more affordable education for students," Pillen said.

We're living in a deflationary period, yet tuition rates are escalating on an exceptional inflationary rate and that's not acceptable," Copple said. "People who work for a living can't afford to send their children to college with these tuition rates."

"Some tough decisions need to be made by the administration to reduce costs and create efficiencies," Raimondo said. "Whatever we do, ent things that cost Nebraskans a we want to be the best at those programs, so we may need to eliminate some things and may have to make some tough decisions."

Wayne City Council candidates Kathy Berry and Jennifer Sievers (Ward Two) and Cale Giese (Ward Three) all expressed an interest in working with Wayne State College to help promote economic development in the community. The trio also discussed the possibility of a new swimming pool and where it might be constructed.

Wayne Library to honor volunteers

Wayne Public Library is honoring all the volunteers who have contributed their time and talents in the last year, and invites the public to join in the celebration during National Volunteer Week, April 15-21

Throughout the day on Tuesday, April 17, refreshments will be available, as well as information about volunteering at the library.

Over the last 12 months, 70 people have donated approximately 800 hours to help make the library an integral part of the community.

"We feel privileged to have so many people wanting to participate in the work the library does," said Lauran Lofgren, Library Director. "Their contributions are appreciated not only by the library board and staff, but by all our patrons."

everyone can enjoy," said Robert Sweeney, Records for Rapha leader. "It's going to be a great event and everyone should bring a blanket and lawn chairs and come join us for the afternoon."

In addition to the concert, Records for Rapha will also be selling T-shirts, CD's and bracelets in an effort to raise $1,500 to donate to Rapha House.

"This is intended to be a community event," said Ashleigh Rhoads, a Records for Rapha leader. would be so great to see the community and the college come together and support the children of Rapha.'

Journey Christian Church chose Rapha House as their mission's project for the year and challenged the college students to raise the money in creative ways.

"We've committed $5,000 to Rapha, which will provide food and water for the rescued girls for a year. Any excess money will be used toward the purchase of a van for them to transport rescued girls to safe houses." JCC pastor, Justin Raulston said.

So they got creative.

"Somehow the idea came into my head at three in the morning while driving back from a men's retreat, to record and sell a CD to help raise money for Rapha," Sweeney said. "Then the ball got rolling and God was like 'If we're going to do this, we're going to do it right and so now here we are."

And "here" is an event and day that's become bigger than these Wayne students.

"While this is a fund-raising event, we also want to raise awareness of child trafficking around the world," Rhoads said. "That's why we're referring to this as 'National Rapha Day'. We're really hoping this will stick and get rolling.'

"National Rapha Day" not only includes the R4R concert and 5K Run for Rapha in Wayne but has sparked interest in Lincoln, where another 5K run is being held. Raising awareness for child trafficking has gone as far west as California where a group is holding an event to also raise money for Rapha House. It has even reached to Kansas City where students are building prayer teams and selling R4R merchandise to raise money for Rapha House.

"Rapha House is something I'm really passionate about and I really hope everyone can come out and help support these children as well as the student's who have put in so much effort," Erica Julsen, Records for Rapha speaker said. "God's got big plans and He will use this event for His glory, no matter what.'

"My goal is to be under the 3:25 mark," he said. "If I could run my Lincoln marathon pace of 7.43 (min-race. Some local friends will be travutes) per mile, I can accomplish that goal."

Pulfer will start in Wave 2 and Corral 1. He will reach the official starting line about 20 minutes after the gun goes off to start the race. the Boston Marathon at 1497 miles His bib number is 9877. Would hate to see Eric Schoh leave

While rummaging through the bills at home, a couple of sports-related thoughts passed between my

- As you are reading this, Wayne State athletic director Eric Schoh is interviewing for a similar position at Winona State University, where he is one of three finalists for the

Not long after I sat down in this chair, I had the opportunity to play a round of golf with Schoh and recently-hired men's basketball coach Paul Combs, and the afternoon was nothing short of hilarious. Schoh and Combs were engaging in a back-nine smackdown of hilarious proportions, one that I quickly determined was something I would be best served observing, rather than trying to get in a word edgewise.

Over the course of the past three years, I've had the opportunity to talk with the head guy in the Wayne State athletic department and see the results of his leadership. He has hired some of the top coaches in the country during his tenure here, including Dan McLaughlin and Chris Kielsmeier, and has helped put Wayne State College in position for an outstanding future as it continues to make a name for itself in NCAA Div. II.

His tenure at Wayne State has been a successful one, which makes him an attractive possibility for other schools who are looking for a leader who can take an athletic department to a higher level. And while I wish nothing but the best for Schoh and his family, it would be a disappointment to see Winona State steal away an outstanding administrator and athletic director.

- While we're on the topic, I know there has been some talk around town about how long the school will be able to keep Kielsmeier around as women's basketball coach.

Wayne State fans have been through this before. More than a decade ago, Greg McDermott took the men's basketball program to the Sweet 16, a place no Wayne State had been to since its move up to NCAA Div. II. Not long after that, he left for greener pastures and eventually made his way to his current position at Creighton Univer-

Longtime Wildcat fans are wondering when the other shoe will drop on Kielsmeier's tenure here. After all, he has already won a Div. III national title and elevated the Wildcat program here to the Elite Eight. His non-stop work ethic and passion for success are the kind of qualities a Div. I program would love to have leading its women's basketball program, so the question for some is not IF he will leave, but Kielsmeier and I have had a number of discussions about his future, and he is thrilled with where he is at here in Wayne, America. And while I'm sure anybody in his position would at least take a look at an opportunity, Kielsmeier is focused more on how this program will respond to this past season's breakthrough and continue to build on that success.

Some seem to think Wayne State can't hang on to top-notch coaches, a point that is easily rendered moot when you look at volleyball coach Scott Kneifl, who has had offers to move up to a Div. I gig and is happy with what he has here. Wayne State is building a reputation as a destination institution, rather than a stepping-stone spot on the map, so don't look for any change in the coaching staff anytime soon.

 Last year, a lot of would-be experts were writing off the Laurel-Concord/Coleridge girls track team after they had won three straight Class C titles.

With the graduation of Bethany DeLong, some thought the days of Lady Bear dominance in Omaha were done, but they forgot about the talent that was still around and managed to come within a point of

If the third time isn't the charm, maybe the fourth is the one that gets the job done.

Wayne State's rugby program has had a team reach the Elite Eight on offense from the fly half position, three separate occasions, but hasn't been able to get over the hump and reach the Final Four.

This weekend might be the program's best chance to reach that ations, and he is an incredible kickmagical semifinal round in the National Small College Rugby Organization tournament, as they play host to the West Regional this weekend at the Wayne Rugby Park.

The 17-1 Wildcats have a 12:30 p.m. date with University of Texas-Dallas in the first of two semifinal games. The winner will move to Sunday's 1 p.m. final against the winner of the second semifinal, set for 2:30 p.m., between California Maritime and University of Seattle-Puget Sound.

Coach Darrin Barner said he likes the way his team is looking heading into the regional tournament, especially after they bounced back from their lone loss of the season at Kansas to beat a very good University of Manitoba squad during last week's March Madness tournament here in

"Heading into the tournament, I feel pretty good about where we're at," he said. "Our back line is very explosive, and we're no doubt running the run-and-gun offense this weekend. We have some very strong, powerful backs and we're going to swing the ball around a lot this weekend."

English native David Synott leads a powerful and quick Wildcat and Barner said the Englander can hurt a team from anywhere on the

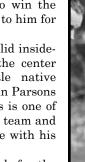

"He's great in short-yardage situer," Barner said. "He's capable of hitting a field goal from 60 yards out, and if we need it to win the game I'm not afraid to go to him for

So too, it would seem, is the Laurel-Concord/Coleridge girls track team winning the Krumwiede Invi-

"For having a track meet just two days previous to this meet, I thought we performed pretty well," coach Mike Hassler said. "For the most part, I thought the kids showed up

Petersen also medaled and gets better every time out, and in the sprints. They've also helped make our 400 and 1,600 relays better and make them contenders for Omaha.'

The 3,200-meter relay of Jacob Lunz, Evan Nicholson, Alex Conley and Nick Gonzalez got under the nine-minute mark to finish third on the day, and Hassler likes what he is seeing from that foursome.

"Our 3,200 relay is starting to come around," he said. "Jacob has bounced back from an ACL injury and is looking more like the runner ter relay team came home with a he was as a freshman, and Evan, Alex and Nick have competed really well for us. We need Jacob at about a 2:10 and the others around 2:12 by districts to have a shot at state, and that's a goal that is definitely within reach.'

The Trojan girls had an up-anddown day on the Homer track. Sydney Rose was a third-place medalist in the 100 hurdles, and Shelby Lierman continued to bounce back from an injury last year to finish third in the 3,200-meter run. Taryn Hingst had a pair of fifth-place medals in the two distance events, and the 3,200-meter relay finished fourth.

"I'm happy with some of the and Anthony Gustafson, and the strides we're making, but we also 3,200-meter relay team broke the took some steps backward," Hassler said. "The good thing is, I know a lot of our ladies weren't happy with their performances, and I look for them to make some adjustments and get that fixed by the next meet."

Allen's girls got a strong showing from senior Olivia Schneiders, who won three individual events and anchored the winning 3,200-meter relay team, helping the Lady Eagles to a fifth-place finish.

"It's not an easy task to come away from a large track meet like this with four gold medals, and Olivia did a great job leading our team," coach Denise Hingst said.

The Lady Eagles had a number of personal bests on the day and picked up a number of medals. Sam Johnson, Vanessa Klug, Courtney Reuter, Rachel Finnegan and Lindsey Jones all ended the day with medal-winning efforts, and a 400-meter relay team that is battling injuries managed a fourth-place finish.

"I can't say enough about how happy I am with all of the girls," Hingst said. "We have everyone working hard for the team and reaching their goals, and the girls have done a great job competing against some tough competition."

The Allen boys got a three-medal effort from Kyle Finnegan, who placed third in the 3,200, took sixth in the 800 and ran on the 3,200-me-

Area high school teams compete in Wayne State Invitational

The Laurel-Concord/Coleridge girls track team won its second meet in five days Tuesday, outlasting Wisner-Pilger to take top honors at the Wayne State Invitational.

The Lady Bears scored 129 points to better the 114.5-point effort of the runner-up Lady Gators in the seven-team meet. Wayne's girls finished fifth and the Winside girls placed sixth on the day.

In the boys competition, Wisner-Pilger scored 136.6 points to take top honors by 30 points over Stanton. Laurel-Concord/Coleridge finished fourth, Winside was fifth and the Wayne High boys placed sixth out of seven schools.

The Lady Bears won five events relay races and getting individual wins from Ellie Arduser, Audra Corbit and Amy Pritchard.

Arduser ran away with the 100-meter dash title and ran the anchor legs of both the 400- and 1,600-meter relays. She was joined by Mandy Nelson, Kiley Thompson and Sammie Camenzind on the sprint relay, and teamed up with Camenzind, Nelson and Kelsey Dietrich to win the mile relay.

Corbit teamed up with Erika Hochstein for a 1-3 finish in the girls high jump, while Pritchard won the triple jump and led a 2-3 finish with Arduser in the long jump.

The Lady Bears also got individual medal efforts from Camenzind, Nelson, Dietrich, Sadie Petersen, Jade Cunningham and Erin Gubbels, all of whom medaled in at least one individual event on the day. Petersen and Hochstein were double medalists in individual events.

The Wayne squad came away with a pair of wins on the day. Alyssa Schmale won the 1,600-meter run and teamed up with Narelle Naeve, Taylor Burke and Sydney Burke to win the 3,200-meter relay for the Blue Devils. Schmale also medaled in the 3,200-meter run. Several Blue Devils came away lar winning the shot put and discus, with individual medals, including Naeve, Sydney Harris, Jaci Jenkins, Abbie Hix, Madison Frevert, Katie Hoskins and Paige Wacker. Taylor Burke earned medals in all three relays, and Keanna Swanson and McKenna Frevert were part of medal-winning relay teams.

For Winside, Carly Schwager medaled in two individual events and on two relay teams. Natasha Jensen also medaled individually and as part of a relay, Jayd Roberts medaled in both hurdles. Shelby Lienemann was a double medalist in the throwing events and Tarrin Quinn picked up a medal. Nazya Thies medaled in the long jump and as part of the 400-meter relay, while McKon the day, winning two of three enzie Gray medaled in the 3,200 relay and in the high jump. Also medaling in relays for the Wildcats were Jade Hogenkamp, Selena Finn, Alyssa Thies, Carly Thies, Samantha Siebrandt and Courtney

On the boys side, Mitch Heikes had a hand in four first-place efforts to lead the Bears. He won the 100 and 200 and ran legs of the winning 400 and 1,600 relays.

Justin Saunders also had a good day, winning the 400 and running on the two winning relays. Brett Haisch and Griffin York were both multiple medalists on the day, as was Kyle Kardell and Tyler Schnidler. Adam Haahr picked up a medal as well, finishing sixth in the 1,600.

For Wayne, the 3,200-meter relay of Wyatt Martian, Cornelio Espino, Ben Hoskins and Luke Pulfer led the way with a runner-up finish. Both Hoskins and Pulfer earned individual medals as well, with Pulfer scoring in the 3,200 and high jump and Hoskins medaling in the high jump. Austin Keiser was a double medalist in the throwing events, and Jason Holt and Kody Frahm also won individual medals.

Winside dominated the throws, with Blaine Meyer and Alec Sinde-

WSC baseball goes 5-1 on the road was a good week on the road for the Wayne State baseball team.

The Wildcats suffered through a rough start against Augustana, but rebounded to win their final five games of a weekend road trip that included a four-game sweep of Min-

"We started off with Augustana, and outside of a couple of rough innings we pitched pretty well and I was pleased to go 5-1 on the road last week," coach Brian Disch said.

Wayne State and Augustana split a doubleheader Tuesday afternoon in Sioux Falls, as the Vikings used four home runs to take the first game 6-2 before the Wildcats came back for a 10-1 win in the nightcap.

The first game saw the host Vikings belt four home runs in the first two innings off freshman Nick Ragan, who allowed six runs on six hits. C.J. Nolen connected on a oneout homer in the second inning to make the score 4-1, but the Vikings added two more runs in the bottom of the second to pick up the win.

The second game saw the Wildcats ride strong pitching from Eric Schwieger and a big day at the plate from Mike Bisenius to give Wayne State a resounding 10-1 win in the nightcan.

Wayne State took a 4-0 lead in the third as Bisenius connected on a two-run homer. Pat Burkhart had an RBI triple to score Cris Ely while Burkhart scored on a Braulio Acosta single to round out the scoring.

The Wildcats took a 9-0 lead in the fourth, scoring five runs as Bisenius had a two-run triple to score Ely and Burkhart, who both walked to start the inning. Jake Ritzdorf blasted a three run homer to cap the game, led by Bisenius, as the senior All-American was 3-for-6 with four RBI's. Ritzdorf was 2-for-5 with three RBI's and a homer, and Acosta added two hits. Schwieger (2-1) pitched six shutout innings to earn the win, allowing eight hits with four strikeouts and one walk.

On Friday, Austen Wisroth fired a three-hit shutout in the opener while the Wildcats erupted for eight runs in the sixth inning of the second game to highlight a 1-0, 11-6 sweep at Minnesota Duluth. The story of the first game was Trailing 4-2 entering the sixth inning, Wayne State had 11 straight batters reach base while scoring eight runs on seven hits.

Travis Parsons led off with a solo homer. The Wildcats then had backto-back singles followed by a pair of hit batters, then RBI singles from Acosta and Ritzdorf followed by an RBI fielder's choice from Bisenius. Nolen added an RBI single with Mike Servais contributing a tworun double to cap the big inning.

Parsons finished 3-for-3 with a double, home run and three RBI's to lead the balanced effort. Justin Beranek was 2-for-3 while Acosta finished 2-for-4 with two runs scored and Ritzdorf also had two hits in

Starter Tadd Johansen worked six innings to record the pitching win, allowing four runs on nine hits with four strikeouts and no walks. Bisenius was 3-for-5 with a home run and three runs scored while Wayne State pitching struck out 17 Minnesota Duluth batters Saturday as the Wildcats completed a four-game sweep of the Bulldogs with 4-3 and 4-2 wins to improve to 18-10 overall and 9-5 in the NSIC.

The second game saw Bisenius homer while reliever Trevor Reeves struck out eight UMD batters in stellar innings of relief as the Wildcats defeated Minnesota Duluth to complete the four-game series "Nick started earlier in the week against Augustana and responded well in this game, and Trevor Reeves has been money in the bullpen, so it was nice to see him get a couple of saves," Disch said. The 'Cats opened the scoring with two runs in the first inning as Acosta singled and scored on a Parsons single and Bisenius walked and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Ritzdorf for a 2-0 early lead. Duluth cut the lead to 2-1 in the

The Wildcats improved to 21-17 overall and 7-9 in the NSIC after a 4-2 week last week. Wayne State swept Southwest Minnesota State (10-7, 1-0) at home on Wednesday, dropped two at Concordia-St. Paul (4-1, 11-10) on Friday and took two at St. Cloud State (2-1, 3-1) to give coach Krista Wood her 200th win as a Wayne State coach.

"We started off midweek with a sweep of Southwest, so I felt good about the team going into the Concordia games," Wood said. "We were 1-7 on the road going in, and we game. We came back and almost beat them in the second game, but we need to come out right away and fight and win these games."

On Wednesday, the Wildcats finished off a five-game season sweep of the Mustangs, winning a wild opener and then coming up on the right end of a pitcher's duel.

In the first game, Southwest jumped out to a 3-0 lead early and led 5-2 before the Wildcats began

End of the world coming with new Husker uniforms?

The Mayan calendar says that the world will come to an end by the middle of this December.

Even with the possibility of King Obama being anointed with a second term as supreme commander of all things American, I was skeptical that such an event could happen.

Skeptical, that is, until I unearthed these potential life-ending items from the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- From the "Cats and dogs living together . . . real wrath of God-type stuff" department: If you go to a Nebraska Cornhuskers football game this fall, be prepared for a potential shock to the system: the big news coming out of Lincoln is that the Huskers will sport "futuristic-looking" uniforms for one home game this season.

The school's apparel provider, adidas, is putting together the new threads for a game that is yet to be announced by the university. It's probably not going to be anything outlandish like what we see from the University of Oregon, and I would hope it's nothing as insane as the ones worn by Maryland last year.

However, athletic director Tom Osborne has told the Omaha and Lincoln news outlets that the uniforms will be "futuristic, but not so dramatic that no one will know which team is out there."

This isn't the first time the Huskers have gone with some type of uniform change over the years.

There was the time Nebraska went all-red for a game against Oklahoma in the 1980's, and different variations of stripes have adorned the jerseys and pants over the years. There was even a blast from the past with the old "NU" on the helmet and the throwback jerseys from the 1960's that were worn in recent years.

But this is big news for Husker fans – especially Osborne's telling the Omaha World-Herald that he couldn't confirm whether or not the team's iconic "N" helmet wouldn't be affected by the change.

I can only imagine how all the fans who have had season tickets since the Dana X. Bible era will react to the new duds . . . the shock to their systems might shorten up the program's waiting list for season tickets by a couple thousand.

- From the "If only they could be used on certain members of the human species" department comes this item: the use of glue traps to catch a wayward rodent in the Douglas County Courthouse has drawn the ire of the fine folks at People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (please note moderate sarcasm).

Recently, a giant rat was found rummaging around in the prosecutors' offices at the Omaha courthouse. County officials tried to subdue the creature with a baseball bat, but the rat found a hiding place away from the

The county went with a Plan B and made use of glue traps - with candy bars used as bait – to catch the furry critter, but not before the rodent had broken some blinds, chewed up some files and left some not-so-subtle reminders of its presence behind. This, of course, drew the folks at PETA out of whatever hole they happened to be hiding in long enough to issue this e-mail of protest to the county attorney's office:

"Glue traps should be avoided at all cost . . . panicked, ensnared animals struggle mightily, tearing flesh, breaking bones, becoming more entangled in the adhesive, only to die exhausted, frightened, injured, from shock, dehydration, asphyxiation or blood loss. Research shows that death can take more than 24 hours. And the screaming of ensnared rodents is extremely upsetting to staff and visitors.' I don't know about you, but if it's a choice between screaming, ensnared, entangled rats and an office free of rodent droppings and the dirty little critters themselves – not only am I trapping the blasted creatures, but I'm dropping them off at PETA's office to let them take care of the creatures

- It's often been said that any publicity is good, whether it's positive or

That has to be the case for former Denver Broncos and current New York Jets quarterback Tim Tebow, whose Christian beliefs seem to be of peculiar interest to a mainstream media that seems Hell-bent – pun intended – on mocking the superstar athlete's religious upbringing.

The simple act of dropping to a knee in a quick celebratory prayer by the Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback isn't something new, but since he started doing it after making it into the National Football League, the act not only has a name (Tebowing), but has become the source of parody for Saturday Night Live and anybody who wants to make light of this simple Legendary comedian Sammy Davis Jr. once said that if people aren't making fun of you, then they don't care about you. Right now, it looks like the mainstream media really has a thing for Tim Tebow.

Capitol View

Campaign depths are reached

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN - It is too much, but the sadder thought is that more and worse could be ahead.

Virtually anything might be alleged these days, regardless of how ridiculous or disgusting, in a political campaign.

Millions of people track millions of others these days on Twitter accounts. It's a big deal to have a big following. Last time I looked, Lady Gaga led the world.

Political campaigns track opponents, friends and just about everyone. The Tweet search is pretty much generic.

Republican Senate candidates Jon Bruning and Don Stenberg debated in western Nebraska recently; moreover they recited their standard assertions and allegations about people and things, including each other.

An audio recording captured this Bruning: "Well let me ask you this, Don. This Sunday my daughter walks in and she says, 'Don Stenberg's trying to follow me on Twitter.' My daughter's 14-yearsold. Now . . . I'd like to know why does a 62-year-old man want to follow a 14-year-old girl on Twitter. I'd really like to know. She said, 'Dad that's kinda creepy.'

Stenberg: "First of all I don't do it myself.

Bruning: "I was just kinda curious. It's not an attack. My daughter . . you tried to follow her on Twitter. Don, that's kinda weird.

Stenberg: "Quite honestly I don't (Stenberg's campaign manager) and no one had an interest in the torical question.

does it for me. We've got thousands and thousands of folks. And as soon as we get done here I'm gonna call Dan and make sure that's taken off. I don't think it's appropriate and I don't know if Dan even knew who he was communicating with, cause I don't know what the name was.

Bruning: "Well, she's 14 Don. Stenberg: "Well, yeah."

Parsons noted the campaign do my own Twitter. Dan Parsons tracks a ton of people on Twitter child's account, or even knew it was on the list.

The stomach-bothering part of this deal is in the quote from Bruning, although saying he was wasn't attacking Stenberg, he tosses out:

"Now . . . I'd like to know why does a 62-year-old man want to follow a 14-year-old girl on Twitter. I'd really like to know ...'

In today's world, obvious and awful things are implied by that rheIt is, as observed earlier, too

We are certainly in for worse. This was just an example of one family-values, conservative Republican taking a slap at another.

Imagine the depths of the general

Then again, don't. We will be caught among those depths soon enough.

Legislative Update

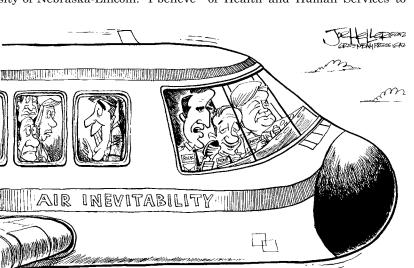

Legislative session drawing to a close

Three days remain in the 2012 this bill will help both farmers and contentious, but most of the priority have received a vote.

LB907, my priority bill, has been passed by the Legislature on final reading with a vote of 46-0. The bill would change provisions on the agricultural tractor permitting process, and continue the sales tax exemption on all tractors permitted in an Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) test station. Both of my bills that recognize the service of private duty nurses and home health care passed on final reading. Both LB1083 and LB1122 received 45 votes, and now are awaiting action by the governor. Various taxation issues have been discussed this year, and controversy has followed each bill through the legislative process. LB970 is Governor Heineman's tax cut proposal, which would amount to a small cut for lower and middle income taxpayers, has been passed on Final Reading. I did support this bill.

LB745, as discussed last week, would require a vote of the people if the annual increase is over a certain amount depending on the size of the city. This bill was passed by the Legislature, and is awaiting action by the governor. I supported this bill, too, after amendments requiring voter approval.

LB357 is a third tax bill, which would allow for a one-half-of-a-cent increase in the sales tax within a city with voter approval. Cities would be allowed to use this new revenue for infrastructure, including new streets. I opposed LB357 because I believe this bill clearly amounts to a tax increase on people other than those residing in the city, who would have no vote. This amounts to our old nemesis: taxation without representation. The bill was passed by my colleagues on Final Reading. Governor Heineman has promised a veto LB357 when it reaches his desk, and I will support his veto.

All of the major child welfare bills (LB820, LB821, LB949, LB961, and LB1160) have been passed by the Legislature, and await action from the governor. I am very pleased that many of the Health and Human Services Committee and the entire Legislature's priorities have passed. The Department of Health and Human Services will now have a very clear indication of the direcwill allow for a new or increase to tion they must go to better take care an existing occupation tax, but of our children who are state wards.

Northeast students qualify for honor society

Several students at Northeast Community College were recently inducted in to Phi Theta Kappa, (PTK), Tau Chi Chapter.

Since the installation of Northeast's Tau Chi chapter in 1996, some 2,232 students have been inducted into the international academic honor society for two-year colleges. For more than 80 years, membership in Phi Theta Kappa has signified a singular honor and a willingness to embrace the Society's shared commitment to academic excellence.

To be eligible for PTK, students must have earned at least 12 credit hours and achieved a minimum grade point average of 3.5 or above out of a 4.0 system.

Honorees include:

Ryan Burbach of Carroll; Sarah Kneifl of Dixon; Hillary Kuhlman of Laurel; Amanda Luhr of Wakefield; Justin Anderson, Parker Janke, Ashley Moeller, Elizabeth Sievers and Ian Webster, all of Wayne and Emily Backstrom of Winside.

These students qualified for PTK last fall semester:

Penny Babl of Laurel and Kelsey Denklau of Wayne.

Phi Theta Kappa sponsors are wellness/aerobics instructor Amy Ries, English instructor Bonnie Johnson-Bartee, and wind technology instructor Glen Lammers.

April is National Garden Month

Each April the National Gardening Association sponsors National Garden Month to encourage individuals to garden.

How many times have you heard the phrase "you are what you eat?" Stop and think about the importance of that statement. What we eat plays a large role in how we develop and grow. It also influences our health, energy levels, and attitudes. Learning about good nutrition should be a part of every

- typically don't sell. 1. Price
- 2. Location
- 3. Condition

If you have determined that your house is in a decent location and in reasonably good condition, there can only be one other obstacle.

It may be that the price was set too high in the beginning. Sellers think that by setting the price high, it gives them room for negotiation. This can be true, however it can also backfire. If the price is too high today's' buyers are aware of it, and then you start playing the price reduction game.

Houses that are priced far above the market rates typically end up selling for quite a bit less than if the seller had started out pricing closer to what the market

What can you do if you find yourself in this situation? Houses should sell in 90-120 days. If yours has been on the market longer, it is time to re-evaluate and discover the market price for your house as soon as possible.

The market is always changing and buyers are very aware of this. Position yourself to meet this challenge and you can still have your home sell. If you have questions, call (402-375-3385) or email me at wendy@mwlco.net person's life especially during habit-forming childhood years.

Gardening really is exercise. The physical benefits of gardening are often discounted because people don't think of it as "real" exercise. But, gardening offers the same benefits as other forms of exercise. You can burn as many calories in 45 minutes of gardening as you can in 30 minutes of aerobics. Depending on the task you are doing, you may be using many different muscle groups and increasing your flexibility and strength.

Gardening reduces stress. Connecting with nature, digging in the dirt, and even weeding are some of the best stress reducers I have found. When I first started gardening, I dreaded the thought of weeding by hand. As the years have gone by, I have found that weeding is the everything else. I am so intent on one thing that lets me totally ungetting those weeds out of my garside.

Gardening slows down the pace of life. We are all so plugged in and connected that working in the garden is the one way that we can get away from the constant barrage of information being connected brings Gardening teaches patience. Think about it. You can't rush nature. If you sow seeds or plant seedlings, you can't make them grow faster than they are able to grow. They grow at the pace they are suppose to grow, no faster or slower.

Gardening releases our creativity. Planning the garden for the year or the season, choosing flower colors and plant palettes, and arranging the fresh flowers from your garden all require you to use your creative ground. Their diet also consists of grubs, caterpillars, grasshoppers and cultivated fruits and berries.

It is one of the first birds to sing at dawn. They are fairly large, about 10 inches long with a wing span of up to 16 inches and weigh about 2.7 oz. They have a black or dark grey head, brown back and a reddish-orange breast. The American Robin is known to be a carrier of West Nile virus. Crows and jays are often the first noticed deaths in an area with West Nile virus, but the Robin is suspected to be a key host. This is because crows and jays die quickly from the virus, but robins survive the virus longer, thus spreading it to more mosquitoes, which then transmit the virus to humans.

It is one of the first birds to lay eggs in the spring and can have two to three broods a season, which lasts from April to July. A new nest is built for each brood. They lay three to five blue eggs. Robin's egg blue is a color named after this bird's eggs.

It is the state bird of Connecticut. Michigan and Wisconsin. American popular songs featuring this bird include "When the Red, Red Robin Comes Bob, Bob, Bobbin' Along" and "Rockin' Robin."

The next meeting for the Acme Club will be Monday, April 16 at the Wayne Senior Center with a no-host lunch and mystery "Arm Chair" trip.

The Reason for Your Sneezin

Winter was milder than usual in many parts of the country this year. Warmer weather has brought earlier pollination of trees and – you guessed it – an earlier hay fever season as well. If you suffer from hay fever, buckle your seat belt. You and about 35 million other people may be in for a rougher ride not only this year, but also in years to come.

But what exactly is hay fever? And how can you know for sure whether your sniffles and sneezes are due to a late winter cold or an early hay fever attack? Hay fever is a nasal allergic reaction to airborne particles such as pollen from trees, grasses, and weeds. It's more likely to be hay fever than a cold if your symptoms last longer than a week or so and your nasal discharge is clear. Also, colds can cause body aches and fevers, but allergies don't.²

The symptoms of hay fever may include: Runny or stuffy nose; Sneezing; Coughing, along

You can do many things to ease the discomfort of allergies. First, track pollen counts in your area. In general, it may help you to know that pollen levels tend to be highest in the

Remodeling story brings back memories

It's Easter Monday evening, and we have had ham and asparagus and fruit salad and cake! In fact, we may have ham every day this week, I don't know. I do know that I love having leftovers; it makes meal planning so much simpler.

My friend/roommate in nursing school told me last week that they are adding on to their home, starting today. They have actually moved their furniture from the dining and living rooms into a portable trailer, and are extending those

I told her that sounded like too big a project for people who should be looking at retirement communities, and that it reminds me of a couple projects on our farm, when we were much younger!

The summer we put the house on jacks and dug out a full basement was bad enough, but the one in which the kitchen was remodeled was the worst! The stove and refrigerator were in the dining room, and we washed dishes in the bath tub! And, of course, in addition to a family of six and a couple hired men, we fed the carpenter and his helper, too!

that happened to my sis a few years ago. Which made me appreciate our guy all the more.

Recently, a nurse friend here in town put in new kitchen counters and floor; I declined to even think about it, saying the next owners could do that here. She said she decided to enjoy it herself. And I answered that this kitchen has the one at the Bed and Breakfast beat by quite a bit, so I'm content with it. It's all in your perspective, right?

Anyway, for some reason, talk about remodeling just doesn't interest me much. Which suits the Big Farmer just fine, as he still remembers the conversations we had about that kitchen on the farm. I finally pointed to the cement silos and told him those had been his project, the kitchen was mine!

Now, all I want to do is get out of it as soon as possible, with as little effort as possible. Hence, the Easter dinner leftovers. When there Since then, I've heard many hor- are only two to eat them, they last tear up the kitchen and then don't You can do a lot of creative things

One of the trends I've noticed over the years is that when things are going well, "new" advances/ products tend to come out with increasing frequency. One theme is pretty common, however. Becoming a "better manager" or "increasing yields" requires that you have to spend more money.

OK, so I'm being a little (maybe a lot) cynical. We live in a free market society which allows us to make choices and unfortunately lie (maybe mislead is a better word) about the attributes of the things we are trying to sell. changing the world. To create a successful future, people in rural America must anticipate and manage this ever-changing environment.

With that in mind, the University of Nebraska will host the inaugural Rural Futures Conference May 8-10 at The Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln. The theme of the conference is "Connecting Innovation" -- a challenge to participants to interact and think boldly about the future of rural Nebraska and the Great Plains.

The conference is open to anyone, especially those interested in ensuring a strong future for rural areas for the benefit of all of Nebraska and the region. Registration for the conference is open until April 30. Cost is $120, which includes all conference events, materials and meals.

"The conference is designed to implant the seeds for a new culture of innovation around the role of higher education in supporting positive rural futures," said Ronnie Green, vice president for agriculture and natural resources at the University of Nebraska and Harlan vice chancellor
