Four candidates running in District 17 race

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Voters in District 17 of the Nebraska Legislature will vote for a new representative in the Unicameral in 2013, choosing between the current appointed representative and three challengers from Dakota County.

Semi-retired Hoskins farmer Dave Bloomfield was appointed to the position in 2010 by Gov. Dave Heineman after Bob Giese stepped down from the position to assume the Dakota County Treasurer position. Bloomfield has served out the last two years of Giese's term and is now hoping voters in the district will elect him to the seat he assumed.

Bloomfield is being challenged by retired South Sioux City Schools superintendent Van Phillips, retired school teacher Ron Hartnett of Dakota City, and Homer resident Darrick Barclay, who works for Car-gill's soybean refinery in Sioux City.

The District 17 race highlights three non-partisan races that voters will decide in Tuesday's primary election, which will reduce each race to two candidates who will move on to the Nov. 6 general election. The other two races include a University of Nebraska Board of Regents race between Norfolk attorney David Copple and Columbus businessmen Jim Pillen and Tony Raimondo Jr., and the NPPD Board of Directors Subdivision 11 race between Wayne E. Boyd, David Dowling and Fred L. Christensen.

Bloomfield, 66, felt he was able to accomplish some good things during his two years representing District 17 in the Unicameral, but there is still unfinished business.

"There is much work to be done," he said. "There are taxes that need to be cut or eliminated, there is spending that needs to be cut or eliminated, and there are regulations that need to be trimmed back or eliminated," he said. "There is waste in government programs and fraud being committed against our social service programs."

Bloomfield said he has served two full sessions and a special session of the Legislature and has learned a lot about the inner workings of the Unicameral. He said it has taken that amount of time to "learn the ropes" in Lincoln.

Bloomfield said controlling spending and taxes in state government is an important issue for him, and he said there is still plenty of cuts that can be made in state government.

"I think each department should go through a thorough audit to see where money can be saved and how the work can be performed more efficiently," he said. "The savings found in these examinations should then be passed on to the taxpayers of Nebraska in the form of reduced taxes."

Bloomfield is also concerned with government intruding too much into our lives through regulation, citing his work in passing LB907, which reduces regulation on Nebraska implement dealers.

"Nebraska, like the rest of the nation, is over-regulated," he said. "We have to find ways to get the government out of our lives as much as possible. There are too many rules and not enough common sense."

Bloomfield also points to legislation he prioritized and helped pass that prevented Planned Parenthood from opening clinics in Nebraska.

"I will do whatever I can legally do, to prevent abortions from happening in Nebraska," he said.

The 76-year-old Phillips said he is concerned with government spending, infrastructure and the state's most vulnerable citizens, which prompted him to run for the District 17 seat.

"Being a superintendent for 31 years and dealing with elected boards, there's a sense that we need to give something back," he said when asked why he chose to run. "I was in education for 40 years and was superintendent in South Sioux City for 31 years, and I think that experience will serve me well. I don't have an agenda, I just want to see taxpayers' money spent wisely."

First track meet a big hit for students at Wayne Elementary

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Above and beyond could best describe the reaction to the first Nebraska Spring Sprints track meet for students with developmental disabilities.

The first-ever meet was run Thursday at the Wayne Elementary track, and meet organizer Misty Bear said it was everything event organizers had hoped for and more.

"We had more kids than we thought we'd get and more volunteers than we were expecting. It was just a great day for everybody," she said.

The event was originally conceived by Jane Arens of Crofton, but the lack of an all-weather track at Crofton's schools prompted a phone call to Bear, who is the director of special education for Wayne Public Schools.

"They wanted to do it there, but they have a cinder track and they

Power projects will help save energy

Two separate projects at the Wayne Electric Production site will help save the city energy and meet federal requirements.

Two heat exchangers will be installed at the site on the south end of Main Street to heat and cool water at the facility. The water is used to cool the electricity-producing engines at the power plant.

"The current system needs to have the water heated in the winter so it doesn't freeze. It was installed in 1978 and is not energy efficient," said Gene Hansen, electric production superintendent.

Estimates are that the cost of operating the current system is $70,000 per year.

"We looked at how many years it will take to pay for the project in terms of savings and looked at our contract with Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) and came to the conclusion that we will be able to pay for the upgrade in 10 years," Hansen said.

With the help of a $250,000 grant from the Nebraska Department of Energy, the project will involve locating a new tower on the same site as a system used by the city in the 1930's.

The work on the heat exchangers is scheduled to be completed by Aug. 1 of this year. It is estimated that the cooling towers should have a life expectancy of at least 40 years.

The total cost of the project is approximately $700,000.

The city is also in the process of installing seven catalytic converters at the power plant to comply with the Reciprocating Internal Combustion Engine (RICE) Rules.

The federal government is requiring all such engines to reduce emission of carbon monoxide (CO) into the atmosphere and reduce the noise caused by these engines.

The installation of these catalytic converters will allow the city to generate elec-

Two separate projects at the Wayne Electric Production facility have been built, thanks to a grant from the Nebraska Department of Energy. Because of them, city will continue to generate electricity for NPPD.

Health Department's Outreach Partnership to Improve Health Literacy receives grant

The Nebraska Association of Local Health Directors (NALHD), a collaboration of 18 health departments serving 85 percent of the counties in Nebraska, recently received $450,000 from the Department of Health & Human Services, Health Resources and Services Administration to help improve health literacy in Nebraska.

Health literacy is the set of skills that the public and health care personnel need to communicate effectively with one another. In addition to reading and writing, health literacy also includes the listening, speaking, and math skills that patients and healthcare providers need to understand each other. The National Assessment of Adult Literacy, estimates that close to 90% of adults need some help with health-related communications (ranging from understanding how to take their medication correctly, to deciphering health insurance forms, to making sense of sometimes conflicting messages about the best way to stay healthy).

Limited health literacy affects adults of all races, ages, and economic status. Research shows that the consequences of limited health literacy and a failure to address it include:

- Limited use of preventive services,
- Misdiagnosis due to poor communication between patients and providers,
- Poor management of chronic conditions,
- Higher death rates,
- Greater number of medication errors,
- Frequent and longer hospital stays,
- Higher healthcare costs,
- Longer length of illness,
- Unnecessary emergency room visits, and
- Poor response in public health emergencies.

The NALHD Outreach Partnership to Improve Health Literacy will better prepare Nebraska's public health workforce to address health literacy's affect of the health of individuals and communities in our state. With this grant, local and tribal health departments will receive technical assistance, training, and resources that address health literacy needs in the populations they serve.

"We are very pleased to be able to implement a statewide health literacy program throughout Nebraska so that people can make informed decisions about their health when they understand their health problems," says Deb Scholten, Health Director at Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department which serves Cedar, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties. Scholten was one of the lead grant writers for the proposal along with colleagues; all charter members of Health Literacy Nebraska. She will serve on the advisory committee for the project.

The NALHD Outreach Partnership to Improve Health Literacy is a collaborative effort between NALHD, the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Public Health and the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services Office of Health Disparities and Health Equity. Susan Bockrath, MPH, will serve as the Project Director.

Bockrath has lead several health literacy interventions in communities across Nebraska including developing and delivering health literacy training for healthcare providers. She is an excellent fit to oversee the implementation of this grant.

Philip Rees

Philip Rees, 66 of Wayne, died Sunday, May 6, 2012 at Careage of Wayne in Wayne after a long and courageous struggle with multiple sclerosis.

Services will be held Saturday, May 19 at 10 a.m. at First United Methodist Church in Wayne. The Rev. Pete Phillips will officiate. Visitation will be at the church on Saturday, May 19 from 9 a.m. until service time.

Philip Everett Rees was born in March 7, 1946 in Wayne. He attended Wayne Prep and graduated from Wayne High School in 1964. While growing up he was active in 4-H, raising baby beef calves to show at the county fair and Ak-Sar-Ben. In the Boy Scouts he enjoyed camping, canoeing and other outdoor adventures. He earned his Eagle Scout Badge. Phil went to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering degree in 1968. At UNL he was a member of Eta Kappa Nu (the electrical and computer engineering honor society) and Sigma Tau engineering honorary society. Upon graduation he went to work for Bell Labs in Holmdel, N.J., a creative think-tank that has led to constant innovations in telecommunications. His career was interrupted with a notice from the draft board and he served two years in the U.S. Army. Prior to his release from active duty, Phil earned an Army Commendation Medal for his instrumental work in providing analysis and testing procedures on complex positioning system for artillery. Upon his honorable discharge in 1973, he returned to Bell Labs; they sponsored his Masters of Science in Electrical Engineering degree at Columbia University. He worked for Bell Labs in Chicago and at various locations in New Jersey. A highlight of his professional career was receiving the title of "Distinguished Member of Technical Staff" by Bell Laboratories in 1983. He continued his career with Bell Labs until he was no longer able to work due to his MS, and then returned to his hometown in 2002 and lived at Careage of Wayne.

Phil was a loyal, kind man, always willing to support his friends and help those who needed him. He had diverse interests including a great appreciation and love of music, literature, cars and Nebraska football. He enjoyed going to Italian operas in New York City and crewing on sailboats on the Atlantic Ocean. He once built a TV from scratch and repaired it for years. Phil's devotion to family and friends, his positive, patient attitude during his illness, forgiving personality and ready smile will be greatly missed by all.

Survivors include two brothers, Daniel Rees and his wife, Lee, of Seattle, and David Rees and his wife, Chris, of Columbia, Mo., a niece, Annie Rees, of Minneapolis and a nephew, Alan Rees, of Columbia.

Burial with military rites will be at Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne. Memorials may be made to the MS Society in Phil's name or to the Wayne United Methodist Church.

Hasemann Funeral Home of Wayne is in charge of arrangements.

OPPORTUNITY TO TEST YOUR WELL!

Wayne, Nebraska - 23 million people in the U.S. rely on private wells for drinking water; however, there are currently no drinking water standards for private well water and no requirements for private well testing.

To help owners better understand their private well and get a baseline reading for nitrate in their well water, the City of Wayne, in cooperation with Wayne County 4-H, will hold a Test Your Well Night on May 17, 2012, from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. at the Wayne Fire Hall Meeting Room, 510 Tomar Drive.

Many people generally do not think about their drinking water - it comes out of the tap and that is the end of it. While public water systems must comply with state and federal drinking water standards, private well owners are responsible for testing and maintaining the quality of their well water.

Interested well owners are asked to bring a sample of their private well water in a clean container to the Test Your Well Night to be tested confidentially for nitrate at no charge. Well owners will also have the chance to learn more about groundwater, private wells, nitrate, and pollution prevention; and have their questions answered. Municipal water will NOT be tested.

The Test Your Well Night is part of Wayne's source water protection project, which is funded by a grant from the Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality (NDEQ). The City is also working with JEO Consulting Group and the Lower Elkhorn NRD on the project.

For more information on the Test Your Well Night, contact Garry Poutre, Superintendent of Utilities and Public Works, at 402-375-2896.

Teaching award presented Steve Elliott (right), Associate Professor of Art and Design at Wayne State College, was awarded the State National Bank Teaching Excellence Award by Matt Ley, Chief Executive Officer of State National Bank, at the Wayne State College baccalaureate ceremony on May 5 on campus in the Willow Bowl. This prestigious honor is awarded on the basis of rigorous standards that require a superior level of effective teaching. Elliott also was Wayne State's nominee for the Nebraska State College System George Rebersdorf Teaching Excellence Award. The State National Bank Teaching Excellence Award was established in 1998 when David Ley, State National Banks' chairman of the board and a trustee of the Wayne State Foundation, began the award as a way of recognizing and strengthening outstanding teaching at Wayne State College. The Ley Family and State National Bank of Wayne support the college through scholarships and other invaluable forms of assistance.

Wayne State students synergize Winside Museum

The Winside Museum has recently been the center of attention for several business classes at Wayne State College.

The museum is located in the Village of Winside, home to 427 people according to the 2010 U.S. Census Bureau. Through individual and small group projects, the Wayne State students combined their ideas to promote awareness and visitation of the Winside Museum. Dr. Laura Dendinger, Associate Professor of Business at Wayne State College, provided the students with guidance throughout the project.

"Synergy can be defined as the interaction of two or more forces so that their combined effect is greater than the sum of their individual effects," said Dendinger. "By means of synergy, Service-Learning projects through Wayne State increase students' understanding of the course content and strengthen the community by meeting community needs that have been identified. I welcome opportunities to discuss ideas with nonprofit organization leaders about how they can get more information about synergizing."

The Winside Museum can be found on Main Street; however, it hasn't always been. The Theophilus Church is the original name of the structure. It was moved from its original location (east of Winside) into town in 1987. Since then, a machine shed, the original doctors' office of Winside, and an abundance of donated and collected items have been added to the Winside Museum.

The Wayne State College business students' Service-Learning project got underway with a visit from Lin Brummels, member of the Winside Museum Committee, who provided background information and goals for the museum.

After much research, brainstorming, and collaboration, the business students have put together a portfolio to aid in the Winside Museum's recognition. The portfolio is comprised of projects such as event and attraction ideas, grant opportunities, and several documents containing the ingredients to build an "image" for the Winside Museum. The Winside Museum Website is under construction, but can be found at winsidemuseum.org.

"This Service-Learning project has been very helpful, especially for an organization like ours with limited resources and memberships," said Bill Burris, President of the Winside Museum Committee. Institutional funding provides support for Service-Learning at Wayne State College.

For more information, contact Lisa Nelson, Wayne State College Service-Learning Coordinator at (402) 375-7182.

Phillips said that government spending and lower taxes are an important issue, stating that the state government must "live within its means and not add increased hardship to already tax-strapped Nebraskans."

"Nebraskans, especially in District 17, need to know that their government will not raise taxes, but will indeed live within its means, just as our citizens are forced to do," he said.

Infrastructure is also a key concern for Phillips, adding that a strong infrastructure will help lure business to the state and to Northeast Nebraska.

"Nearly every city and town . . . is making an effort to promote economic development as a means of providing jobs and increasing the tax base," he said. "We have a lot of roads and bridges and culverts that need maintenance. I'm interested in rural revitalization, and the infrastructure has to be good or we won't be able to entice those businesses to come."

Phillips is also concerned with the state's youth and vulnerable adults, and wants to make sure the state protects those citizens.

"The state has many obligations, but none are more important than taking care of children, adults with developmental disabilities and the unborn," he said. "They must have a safe, caring and nurturing environment to live and learn, and I will support education, vital services for those who can't protect themselves, and will protect life at all levels."

Hartnett, 60, feels that voters in District 17 need a strong voice in Lincoln, one that he feels he is capable of brining to the Unicameral.

"I just feel the Unicameral needs a strong voice from District 17," he said. "Right now, somehow it seems we're forgotten up here. We have growing communities in Wayne and South Sioux City and Thurston County, and I think we're such a vital part of the state and I want to be a clear voice for farmers, ranchers, educators and businesses in Nebraska."

Hartnett said bringing jobs to the area is a key element to future growth in the district, and is looking to technology to help spur that job growth.

Redistricting changed voting boundaries

Registered voters are noticing the effects of redistricting.

The congressional districts were redrawn as a result of the 2010 census, and Wayne County is now part of the Third Congressional District.

The City of Wayne also had to redistrict. Some residents are now part of a different ward and are represented by different council members.

Wayne County Clerk Deb Finn said a number of residents in the county have been surprised to receive mailings from Third District

Congressman Adrian Smith, who is running for re-election to the state's largest district, based on geography. Redrawing of population boundaries for the three districts moved the area from District Two, represented currently by Jeff Fortenberry.

"We got some calls from some people wondering why they were receiving literature from Adrian Smith," Finn told The Wayne Herald Monday.

In Wayne, some redrawing of ward boundaries has taken place. Eastview Drive and Hillside Drive are now in the First Ward, South Nebraska Street is in the Fourth Ward and the 300 and 400 block of West Eighth Street is in the Third Ward.

Postcards have been mailed out by the county clerk's office that includes the voter's precinct/ward and corresponding polling place. Make sure you check your card before going to vote to see if your polling place has changed.

"We've put the cards out and hopefully people are looking through them," Finn said.

Voting runs from 8 a.m.-8 p.m.

"With the increase in technology, I think there are great job opportunities out there," he said. "If we grasp that and use it, we have a great opportunity. Those are jobs of the future that will help attract businesses to the area and make this a more viable place to live."

Hartnett also believes there is a vital population of multi-lingual residents that can help improve the quality of life in the area.

"We have a vital population of Latinos and other nationalities that know two languages, and that is such a powerhouse attraction," he said. "We have a lot of resources here that we haven't tapped, and I'd like to see if there is a way we can accentuate our bilingual community and use that to help attract business to the area."

Barclay, 33, wants to bring back state's rights and protect individual liberties.

"If we don't get people in local and state government who are goign to protect state's rights, we're going to be in big trouble," he said. "If I get elected, I'm going to do everything I can to protect our rights."

Barclay said the state should move to join states like Utah that have legalized using gold and silver as currency in an effort to protect the state from the devalued dollar.

"The way Washington is spending money right now, it's going to drive the dollar to nothing," he said. "We should legalize gold and silver like they have in Utah and protect our citizens from the coming crisis."

Barclay said the state needs to provide tax incentives for families who home-school their children, joining Iowa as one of several states who provide incentives for home-schooling.

"With the way public schools are right now, they're teaching toward tests and that's why we're falling behind," he said.

Barclay would also work to provide incentives for organic farming and protect consumer's rights with labeling of GMO-based (Genetically Modified Organisms) groceries.

were looking for an all-weather track, so they called us and we volunteered to host it and see how it went," she said.

It went well - even better than they were hoping for.

More than 200 people turned out for the day's competition, with members of the Wayne High National Honor Society helping and encouraging kids to run, jump and throw in a variety of events, from the standing long jump and softball to races on the track.

Volunteers from Crofton and Wayne helped out throughout the day, as athletes from Wayne, Tower School, Crofton, Bloomfield, Homer, Winnebago, Wynot, Newcastle, Creighton, Hartington and Wakefield competed and won trophies for their efforts.

"The day was a great success, thanks to the many volunteers," Bear said.

The hope for meet organizers is to eventually have this meet be a part of the Special Olympics program. Plans are already being made for next year's event, and Bear is hopeful that Special Olympics will pick up the event.

"We have to show that we can build and sustain the program, and we're hoping to get endorsed by them next year," she said. "A lot of volunteers went into making this a great event, and we're already looking forward to next year."

Results will be published in the May 17 edition of The Herald.

tricity sale to NPPD. The city currently has a lease agreement with NPPD to generate electricity which brings in approximately $650,000 per year.

"Without these upgrades we would only be allowed to generate electricity for 50 hours per year. This equipment needs to be installed by May of 2013," Hansen said.

Involved in the installation of the catalytic converters are Woehler Construction, which is doing the cement work, Mid States Erectors of Lincoln and Olsson Associates, who are doing the engineering for the project.

Wayne has the second largest diesel generator plant in the state of Nebraska and the installation of the new equipment will allow an unlimited number of hours of use of these engines.

Rugby a big score for local biz

I'm not sure what a typical week-end's worth of revenue is like for some businesses in town, but my guess is that last weekend in March is one of the best.

Details from a study conducted by the UNL Bureau of Business Research that was sent exclusively to The Wayne Herald earlier this week indicates that particular weekend is a good one for many local businesses, thanks to the March Madness Rugby Tournament that has become an annual ritual for ruggers across the Midwest for the last decade or so.

This year, teams from 17 different states and Canada descended upon Wayne, America, and the numbers that were gleaned from a study by Dr. Eric Thompson are pretty impressive.

The financial impact on the area is huge – just over $400,000, according to the study, thanks to an estimated 3,170 people who attended the event. The vast majority of those dollars were spent right here in Wayne, with an impact also seen in communities like Randolph, Wisner, Laurel, Norfolk and West Point, as well as Vermillion, S.D., and Sioux City, Iowa.

The vast majority of those in attendance came from out of state, which is significant when you consider that Wayne's legendary Chicken Days celebration is more of a local event where the majority of those in attendance live within a 25-mile radius of Wayne.

Also noted in this study was the fact that local spending was not included in the $400,000 figure. That means the money that comes into the area during the rugby tournament originates from outside our area – outside the state, in fact – and most of it is spent on food, entertainment, lodging and fuel.

This year's tournament was held while the new Cobblestone Inn and Suites hotel was still under construction. One would think that by the time next year's tournament rolls around, an even bigger local impact will be felt on the Wayne economy as the new 44-room motel will allow more teams to stay in Wayne, which means more lodging dollars and – one would assume – more money spent in restaurants and other areas of town.

Wayne also played host to a National Small College Rugby Organization regional tournament last month, and while that didn't draw near the number of people the annual March Madness tournament brings to town, the fact remains that the club rugby program at Wayne State is not only providing opportunities for college students to continue participating in sports, but is helping provide a rather hefty economic blast for the community as well.

We'll have more information on this study in our May 17 edition of The Wayne Herald.

From the "Sometimes we get ahead of ourselves" department – Winside superintendent Jeff Messersmith informed me that a recent story in the Herald announcing the re-hiring of Teresa Watters as the Wildcats' volleyball coach was a tad premature.

The Winside school board will make a decision on the position at its meeting later this month, and Watters is being considered for the job that became open after Brooke DeBolt stepped aside after one season as Watters' replacement.

There is at least one other coaching change that is on the horizon at Winside, but I'll go ahead and wait until the official announcement comes.

It's been an interesting winter and spring with coaching changes. Wayne High will have three new head coaches next year – which might be the most turnover of a coaching staff at that school in recent memory – and with the changes that have been, shall we say,

Blue Devils finish in the middle at 'Mac' Invite

With the district meet coming up next week, Wayne High golf coach Dave Hix is hoping he can get his five varsity golfers to fire on all cylinders.

Some misfirings on the course at Wayne Country Club on Thursday left the Blue Devils in the middle of the pack at the annual "Mac" Invitational, as Wayne High finished 10th in the 20-team field, coming in with a score of 358 that was 27 shots behind tournament champion Hartington Cedar Catholic.

"It seems that we can just write down somewhere around 355-360 every time," coach Dave Hix said. "The players are aware that, at times, just one or two misfires costs them a good round."

Kaje Maly led the Blue Devil linksters with an 81, finishing eighth in the 97-player field, one of the biggest in-season tournaments in the state. Hix said that if a few putts fell here and there, he might have been a contender for medalist honors.

"Kaje played well and hit 11 greens in regulation, but he had the stats today that he could have shot a 75," Hix said.

Maly was one of two Wayne High golfers to shoot in the 80's, as Sean Ganseboom led the JV team's 13th place effort with an 87, finishing just two shots out of the top 20 medalists.

"Sean came back with a nice round for the JV team today, which was good to see," Hix said.

Following Maly's lead on the Blue Devils varsity quintet was Ezra Brodersen, who bounced back from a tough front nine to come in with a 90. Tyler Schoh followed with a 93 and Max Morris had a 94, while Eric Schoh struggled on the back nine and ballooned to a 99.

On the JV side, Ganseboom was followed by Ryan Grosz with a 95, Andrew Pulfer with a 98, Jared Peterson with a 99 and Drew Holland with a 102. Other JV squares included Zach Keating with a 118, Casey Dalager with a 121 and Reed Trenhaile with a 125.

The Laurel-Concord/Coleridge golfers bettered the Blue Devils by two strokes, finishing ninth with a 356. None of the Bears linksters finished in the top 20, as Wayne High pitcher Gage Rethwisch fires a pitch home as Joey Lenihan (7) gets ready to defend during the Blue Devils' 9-0 loss to Wahoo in the B-6 district tournament.

Bats silenced in 9-0 district tourney loss

WAHOO – A combination of silent bats and defensive miscues made for a quick exit for the Wayne High baseball team in B-6 district action Saturday.

The Blue Devils were held to a pair of singles and the defense broke down late in the game as the top-seeded Wahoo/Raymond Central/Lincoln Lutheran Warriors ended Wayne's spring baseball season with a 9-0 defeat.

Coach Adam Hoffman was not happy with his team's effort, which brought their 6-11 campaign to a close.

"We didn't play very well," he said. "We only had two hits, and you're not going to win many games with two hits."

Drew Carroll and Joey Lenihan picked up the Blue Devils' only safeties in the contest, as Wahoo's pitching kept Wayne's hitters at bay throughout the game.

Added to that was some defensive miscues which helped the hosts blow the game open with a five-run fifth inning off starter Gage Rethwisch and reliever Corey Doorlag.

"It doesn't show up in the box score, but we had a number of mental errors that hurt us, and you can't give a team like that more outs than they need," Hoffman said. "Then again, if you only get two hits at the plate, it really doesn't matter how good you play defense. We need to compete better at the plate, and it's something we'll work on this summer."

Rethwisch threw four innings, allowing four earned runs and five hits while striking out two. Doorlag mopped up in relief with three earned runs on four hits and a pair of strikeouts.

Wayne State senior Mike Bisenius had a big weekend in his final home games for Wayne State, capping a busy weekend with a pair of home runs to help the Wildcats finish a four-game sweep of Concordia-St. Paul.

Wildcats sweep home games, roll into conference tourney

Wayne State's baseball team solidified its place in the Northern Sun Conference tournament this week after closing the regular season on a hot streak.

Wayne State won its final six games of the season last week to run its winning streak to eight games, sweeping Minnesota Crookston on Wednesday (10-2, 15-0) and posting a four-game sweep of Concordia-St. Paul over the weekend, winning 5-0 and 4-3 on Saturday and 11-6 and 11-2 on Sunday.

Taking a 32-16 (23-9 NSIC) record into the conference tournament is something coach Brian Disch is only too happy to carry into the postseason.

"We've got some momentum going into the conference tournament," he said. "The biggest thing we've been fighting is our hitting, and it's nice to see our bats come to life. If we can continue to do that, I like our chances in the postseason."

The Wildcats earned two wins over Crookston at the Pete Chapman Complex, spotting the Golden Eagles a run in the first inning and taking control of the doubleheader from there.

In the first game, Crookston scored early in the game, but Wayne State responded with nine runs in the first three innings and notched a season-high 15 hits to pick up the easy win.

"The first inning was scary," Disch said. "They loaded the bases and got the early 1-0 lead, and we came back and scored five in the bottom of the first and didn't look back."

Wayne State sent 10 batters to the plate in that first inning, highlighted by a Travis Parsons RBI triple and run-scoring singles by Brett Keim and Luke Abkes to take the big lead early.

The Wildcats continued to pour it on, with Mike Bisenius and Jake Ritzdorf recording RBI hits in the second inning. Justin Beranek was 3-for-3 with three runs scored to lead the balanced attack, and Austen Wisroth overcame the slow start to strike out four and scatter six hits over five innings to get the win. "Austen settled down and pitched fine after that first inning, and then we got some good pitching from Tom and Tyler in the second game to get the shutout."
Tom Doran and Tyler Hohenstein combined on a four-hit shutout in the second game, as the Wildcats pounced the Golden Eagles for 15 more hits, led by three hits apiece from Ritzdorf and Mike Servais, while Keim and Beranek each had two hits. Beranek was 5-for-7 in the doubleheader. Wayne State scored six runs in the fifth and cruised to the easy win.
On Saturday, pitching and timely hitting helped the Wildcats sweep the visiting Golden Bears.
Tadd Johansen tossed a two-hit shutout in the first game, striking out eight and getting his third complete game and first shutout of the season.
"Tadd's been great for us this season," Disch said. "We're very confident with about any starting pitcher we have out there, and Tadd is competitive and when you start with a two-hit shutout, that gives the team a lot of confidence."
Johansen got good support at the plate as the Wildcats knocked out 11 hits. Luke Abkes was 2-for-3 with two RBI's, while Beranek and C.J. Nolen both went 2-for-3 and Braulio Acosta was 2-for-4.
Parsons had the big bat in the nightcap, hitting a pair of home runs in the contest, including a two-run shot that helped the Wildcats bounce back from a two-run deficit to earn the sweep.

"It was nice to see Travis come through on senior day with two home runs," Disch said. "We were down 3-1 and it was nice to see us respond the way we did. It was a nice team win."
Parsons opened the scoring in the nightcap with a solo homer in the second inning, but the Golden Bears came back to tie the game in the fifth, then scored two in the top of the eighth to take a 3-1 advantage.
Wayne State's bats came through in the bottom of the inning. Beranek singled and scored on a Bisenius triple, and Parsons followed that up with his second dinger of the day, bombing one over the wall in center field to give Wayne State the Saturday sweep. He and Beranek both had two hits to highlight Wayne State's seven-hit effort.
On Sunday, Bisenius made his last home games in a Wildcat uniform count, coming through with a huge 7-for-9 effort on the day to help the Wildcats sweep the Golden Bears for the second time in as many days.
"He's a fifth-year guy, and it was nice to see him have a great day in his last home game," Disch said. "It was nice to see our seniors play well this weekend and end our home stretch in good shape."
In the first game, the Wildcats had a season-high 17 hits. Bisenius, Servais and Keim all had three hits in the win, while Bisenius, Parsons, Nolen, Keim and Abkes each had two RBI's.
That was more than enough for Mike Frericks, who worked six solid innings on the mound to get the win.
In the nightcap, Bisenius had a monster game, going 4-for-5 with a pair of home runs and three RBI's to pace a 14-hit attack. He got Wayne State on the board with a solo shot in the first inning, then highlighted a seven-run eighth inning with a two-run shot. Beranek also had a two-run triple in the big inning and went 2-for-5 with two RBI's.

Freshman Nick Ragan got the win on the mound with 7 2/3 innings of solid work, sending the Wildcats into the postseason on a good note, and Disch is hopeful the team can play well enough in the conference tournament to secure a spot in next week's regional tournament.

Bleachers

foreshadowed in Winside, it's going to be an interesting sports year for yours truly in 2012-13.

We are winding down to the end of the high school sports year, with district track taking place this week and district golf and state track on the docket for next week.
This week, I'll be attending my 20th state track meet, coming three months after I enjoyed my 23rd state wrestling tournament (and I can already hear Paul Sok and Lee Koch over in Winside dialing the phone to tell me what a rookie I am in comparison to the combined 237 state track and wrestling tournaments those two have witnessed during their lives). I've been blessed with the opportunity to witness and write about some outstanding area sports personalities over the years - people like Matt Nelson, Bethany DeLong, Bo Brummels and so many more from this area (and I'm just pulling those three names out at random . . . I could write a 10,000-word column and still leave somebody out).

It's amazing how much high school athletics has evolved over the years. The athletes have changed, the coaches have changed and the sports have changed - but the thrill of watching young men and women compete at their highest levels is something that never changes.

Tourney

"Gage was doing OK early on," Hoffman said. "They got their first run on a walk, a balk and a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice fly, but it was just a matter of not making plays on defense. They broke it open, and you have to give Wahoo credit because they hit the ball well and we just didn't play well."
The baseball team will make the transition into summer American Legion baseball these next two weeks, opening the season around the Memorial Day weekend. Hoffman said the entire team, including the coaching staff, will work at getting better to compete this summer.

"It's a long season from February to August, and we need a little time off," he said. "This summer, we'll really need to work hard at competing at the plate and coming in with an attitude at the plate, and we need people who want to make the play on defense and be the guy that steps up."
"I have to do a better job as well getting them going," he said. "It all starts at the top, and we have to do a better job all the way around."

Hartington Cedar Catholic edged Blair by one shot, 331-332, to take the team title, while O'Neill and Norfolk JV tied for third at 338. Pierce was fourth at 341 and Battle Creek rounded out the top five with a 350.

Allen, Winside tracksters excel at Winch Invite

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

LAUREL - Normally, teams wait until state tournaments before printing T-shirts to remember the event by.

The Allen boys came away with a runner-up finish at Thursday's Jim Winch Memorial Invitational, and coach Dave Uldrich said that second-place effort put a $168 dent in his wallet.

"I told them that if we got runner-up in this meet that I'd buy them a T-shirt, and it's $168 worth of T-shirts," he said after the meet. "At the start of the year, I thought we might score 10 points at a meet and today we scored 85, so I was happy with the kids."

The host Winside girls came away with third-place honors to lead the area teams in the girls competition. Winside's boys were fourth and Allen's girls placed sixth in the nine-team regular-season finale before this week's district meet.

The Eagles scored well on the track Thursday, particularly in the 800-meter run, where they scored the highest possible 24 points for a single event with a 1-2-3 finish. Austin Connot led the Eagle charge, with Kyle Finnegan less than a second behind and Charles Brahmsteadt finishing 19 hundredths of a second behind Finnegan.

"We went 1-2-3 in the 800, and I was hoping that we'd be able to do that," he said. "We really challenged everybody on the team to step up today, and we had people step in everywhere."

Another positive moment for the Eagles came in the 3,200 meter relay, where two freshmen stepped in for Finnegan and Connot and helped the Eagles run their fastest time of the year at 9:12.9.

"We took our two best runners out of the 3,200 relay and still came through with our best time," Uldrich said.

Finnegan had the most impressive individual effort of the day, cruising to a win in the 3,200 with a time of 10:35.2 that is among the best in Class D heading into districts. The Eagles also earned runner-up honors in the 1,600-meter relay and with Finnegan in the 1,600.

The Wildcat boys also had some multiple-medal efforts, particularly in the throwing events, where they scored 31 of the team's 70 points.

Alec Sindelar and Blaine Meyer

both earned runner-up honors in the throwing events. Sindelar led a 2-3-4 effort in the discus, with Gattin Jensen and Garrett Watters following behind; and Meyer posted a personal best to lead a 2-4-6 finish, followed by Watters and Caleb Lienemann.

"We were really excited to see Blaine crack 45 feet, and Caleb got over the 40 foot mark, which is great," coach Mark Toniges said. "We just had an outstanding day with our throwers and had a number of personal bests."

The Wildcats also got a good overall performance from Collin Hansen, who won the triple jump and placed fifth in the 200 and long jump. Meyer also posted medals in the 100, finishing second, and as part of the 400- and 1,600-meter relay teams.

On the ladies' side of the ledger, Winside was third in a close girls team race, where 13 points separated the top three teams.

"We had an outstanding day," Tonniges said of the girls' effort. "We had PR's all over the place and did a fantastic job. It was a lot of fun to see our kids compete today, and we've got some excitement building for districts."

The Wildcats got individual wins from Jayd Roberts in the 100-meter hurdles and senior Shelby Lienemann in the discus, as well as McKenzie Gray in the high jump as part of a 1-3-4 finish with Nazya Thies and Dana Doffin. The 400-meter relay team of Jade Hogenkamp, Selena Finn, Carly Schwager and Thies posted one of the surprises of the day, coming out of the outside lane to win the 400-meter relay.

The Allen girls finished a very respectable sixth, placing just 21 points behind the Wildcats despite battling through some illness and injuries.

"We've had a few gone with sickness and Olivia is still banged up, but we had some girls compete and do very well for us today," coach Denise Hingst said.

Senior Olivia Schneiders returned to the track for the first time since an injury a few weeks ago, and while she wasn't back to championship form, she did medal in the 1,600 and 3,200, earning runner-up honors in the latter.

"Olivia has been dealing with some leg injuries, and I'm hoping we can get her doctored up before districts," Hingst said.

The Lady Eagles did run well in the 3,200-meter relay, taking first-place honors with a lineup of Candice Rastede, Vanessa Klug, Alexis Johnson and Schneiders.

"Alexis stepped into the 4-by-8 for us today and ran a good time for us to help us win that race," Hingst said.

Courtney Reuter also ran well, finishing as runner-up in the 300-meter hurdles and taking third in the 100 hurdles. Candice Rastede ran well in the 800 and as part of the distance relay.

Districts were scheduled for Wednesday in Hartington, and all three coaches were hopeful their teams would be able to qualify some entries for next week's state meet in Omaha.

"We're getting excited," Tonniges said. "Last year, we were shut out of state, and right now I see a lot of good things and I think we'll see some great performances from our kids (at districts)."

"Overall, we competed really well today, and I'm hoping we can get everybody healthy and ready to go for next week," Hingst added.

"We had people step in everywhere today, and our districts are going to be like a mini-state," Uldrich said. "We'll struggle to place high, but I think we have a chance to get some people in. Our 3,200 relay has a chance to do some great things."

Blue Devil teams second at Battle Creek

BATTLE CREEK - The last tune-up before this week's district meet was a good one for the Wayne High track teams. Both teams earned runner-up honors Thursday at the Battle Creek Invitational, as the entire Wayne High team was able to branch out and try a number of events before district action takes place this week in Pierce.

"We had a good day for the most part," coach Dale Hochstein said. "With it being an open meet, we were able to get more athletes involved in a variety of events."

Thursday's meet was a chance for the coaches to get one last look at a number of people in several events, to help them put together a lineup that will be competitive at districts. "We have a few kids just getting healthy and had a chance to see what they could do," he said. "It also gave us a chance to run a few kids in different events and see how they might stack up in our district meet and see what their chances might be of qualifying for state."

In the girls race, the Blue Devils came away with a number of wins. Alyssa Schmale took top honors in the 800, Angie Nelson won the 1,600, Caitlin Fehringer took the 100-meter hurdles, Lexi Sokol won the shot put and the 400-meter relay of Fehringer, Cassie Heier, Marissa Fallesen and Jaly Zeiss crossed the finish line first.

On the boys side, Demetrius Alexander came away with a first in the 200-meter dash, Sawyer Jager won the 800, Tyler Ellis took the 1,600, Quentin Jorgensen won the 3,200, and the 3,200-meter relay of Luke Trenhaile, Jager, Ellis and Ben Hoskins came away with top honors.

"This meet has some strong competition, which helped us improve a number of district qualifying times," Hochstein said. "Now we just have to see how that will carry over to Thursday at Pierce."

Sixth grade outing

The Wayne Middle School sixth grade students and their teachers traveled to Lincoln on April 30. While in Lincoln, they visited Morrill Hall, Memorial Stadium, as well as the state Capitol. Wayne State College students selected for Rural Health Opportunities Program

Wayne State College has accepted more than 20 students into the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College. "The need for rural health professionals continues to grow," said Dr. David Peitz of Wayne State College. "These students have proven themselves to be gifted and dedicated to their profession. They have displayed the potential to develop into strong community leaders." RHOP is a cooperative effort between Wayne State and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) and encourages students from rural areas of Nebraska to return to rural settings after graduation to pursue their career. Individuals selected obtain guaranteed admission to UNMC Colleges upon successful completion of studies at WSC and receive a full-tuition waiver at WSC. Students from communities of populations less than 10,000 are granted special consideration for admission to the RHOP program. Arreas of study under the program include medicine; pharmacy; dentistry; dental hygiene and medical technology. A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted higher education institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989. Selection of candidates is based on an applicant's residency in a rural Nebraska community, academic potential and commitment to practice in rural Nebraska. Individuals who will enter the RHOP program in the fall, their hometowns and areas of study include: Clinical Laboratory Sciences - Christian Smith of Fremont; Medicine - Ashley Bode of Elgin, Morgan Jones of Benkelman, Cassy Miller of Wakefield and Patrick Opperman of Hastings; Nursing - Alisha Dunlap of Newman Grove, Andrea Konecky of Wahoo and Bailey Kuchta of Wynot;

Pharmacy - Jenna Derner of Saint Paul, Brody Focken of Ansley, Jazmin Lee of Creighton and Amy Venteicher of Pierce; Physical Therapy - Nicole Buse of West Point and Cody Wisnieski of Dodge; Physician Assistant - Bethany Peters of Blair, Sam Rayburn of Juniata and Lu Wang of York; Dental Hygiene - Jennifer Crabb of Tilden and Daniela Garcia of Dakota City; Radiography - Pierce Fiala of Grand Island and Haylee McKelvey of Kearney; Dentistry - Colin Boyle of Plattsmouth, Natalie Poppe of North Platte and Dasirae Sieh of Stanton. Classroom make-over

Several months ago Eakes Office Supply conducted a contest in which Nebraska teachers could send in photos and videos of why they thought they should receive a classroom makeover. Lisa Meyer and Mike Jaixen, teachers at Wayne Elementary School, placed in the contest, each receiving a $500 voucher for classroom furniture/supplies from Eakes. Pictured are Natasha Seacrest of Eakes, Mike Jaixen, Lisa Meyer, Wayne Elementary Principal Jill Pickinpaugh and Bill Hoiem from Eakes in Norfolk.

Local Spanish students score well on national Spanish exam

Several Spanish language students from Wayne High School attained national recognition for excellent performance on the 2012 National Spanish Examinations.

Students from Wayne School earned a total of one bronze medal and two honorable mentions.

Kori Witt

“Attaining a medal or honorable mention for any student on the National Spanish Examinations is very prestigious,” said Kevin Cessa-Buscemi, National Director of the Exams, “because the exams are the largest of their kind in the United States with 143,641 students participating in 2012.”

This is the first year students from Wayne High School have received such high achievement on these exams. In Spanish II, Bryce Sebade received a bronze medal and Victoria Kranz earned an honorable mention. They were taught by Mrs. Emily Duerst. In Spanish IV, Dulce Torres received an honorable mention, and she was taught by Mrs. Christa Dutcher.

The National Spanish Examinations are administered each year in grades 6 through 12, and are sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

Stenberg selects 12 essay winners

State Treasurer Don Stenberg has selected 12 winners in the 10th annual "Why I Want to Go to College" essay contest for seventh and eighth graders sponsored by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office and the Omaha Storm Chasers baseball team. The essay contest winners will be recognized May 20 at Werner Park in Papillion before the Storm Chasers' game with the Tacoma Rainiers.

First Congressional District winners included Andrew Simpson, Wayne, Breeze Hill Academy, first place; second - Kathryn Scanlan, Springfield, Platteview Central and third - Madison Swann, Lincoln, Scott Middle School.

A total of 679 essays were received. Initial judging was completed by students and faculty in the College of Education at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

"We congratulate the winners and thank all the students who took part in this year's contest and took time to reflect and clearly articulate the reasons why they want to go to college," Treasurer Stenberg said.

"Students displayed a depth of understanding of the value of higher education in their essays. While many wrote that they wanted to go to college to get good jobs that would enable them and their families to live comfortably, others said they were motivated to go to college to take fascinating classes with interesting instructors, to experience new surroundings, and to learn to work with others. They also said they wanted to learn to live and make decisions on their own, to make their parents proud, to make the world better, and even to play baseball or volleyball," Treasurer Stenberg said.

Four first-place winners each will receive a $1,000 contribution to a Nebraska college savings plan; four second-place winners will each receive a $500 contribution to a Nebraska college savings plan; and four third-place winners will each receive a $300 Nebraska college savings plan contribution. As in previous years, three winners were selected from each of Nebraska's three Congressional Districts and three winners were selected from outside the state.

The Nebraska State Treasurer's Office is the trustee of the Nebraska Educational Savings Trust (NEST), Nebraska's 529 College Savings Plan, which offers four college savings plans for investors not only in Nebraska, but across the United States. First National Bank of Omaha is the program manager.

Excerpts from Andrew's winning entries follows: "As an American and a Nebraskan, I believe that both our country and our state's heritage is a history of its people striving to improve themselves through work and learning...Even in our great state of Nebraska, the early settlers built colleges and universities, the most well-known being the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. I believe that college is a present day way to improve ourselves and our lives."

Daughter's mom, my ex, an amazing, wonderful mother

Mother's Day is this weekend, and I'd like to tell you about one amazing, wonderful mother.

Now here's the kicker – I want to tell you about the mother of my daughter, Kylie – my ex-wife.

It was 22 years ago this winter that I was blessed with the birth of my daughter, Kylie Kay. She was born on a Monday afternoon and has not failed to bring joy and happiness to the lives of her parents.

Kylie's mom and I had a rather interesting relationship during our 5 1/2 years of marriage. Because of my all-in attitude that I took in my early years in journalism, there were a lot of nights where she would be home alone, taking care of our daughter. She spent a lot of lonely nights rocking her to sleep, cleaning up dirty diapers and runny noses, and otherwise entertaining our child while I was covering ball games, City Council meetings and multi-vehicle accidents on the Interstate at 3 a.m. in the dead of winter.

After a while, it became clear to both of us that the relationship was past the point of no return, and we agreed to go our separate ways. And while there was some anger and bitterness bouncing between the two of us during those early months, one thing we were able to come to terms with was that we would have to be united, as our child's parents, in dealing with whatever issues our child would have as she grew up in two separate homes.

In the years since, my daughter's mother has been nothing short of amazing. During the first couple of years, we shared custody and would trade weeks with Kylie. After I moved to Norfolk, those arrangements changed and she worked with me on those times when work had to take me away from those weekends I was scheduled to have Kylie (I was fortunate to have my mom and sister living in Norfolk at the time, which gave them some quality time with their granddaughter and niece).

A lot of the parental responsibilities have fallen on her shoulders over the years, due to the fact that my career has uprooted me from several locations during my daughter's life. She is the one who has made sure Kylie went to school, did her homework and was raised with good manners. She has taken care of a number of things that, I must admit, I have not participated in over the years.

That's not to say I'm a deadbeat dad – far from it, in fact – but she has done so much to help my daughter become the wonderful young lady that she is and has helped push her to succeed in pursuing a degree in elementary education at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

I see a lot of my ex-wife in Kylie – she has her mother's beautiful eyes and smile, has similar physical characteristics to her mother and shares her no-nonsense way of dealing with things. My daughter has her dad's quick wit and ability to unload sarcasm on a situation, but she's a wonderful example of the kind of mother my ex-wife has been for our daughter.

I sometimes wonder what life would have been like if my daughter's mother and I had not gone our separate ways. Who knows how, or where, life would be had we been able to find a way to make our relationship as husband and wife work. I do know this, however – while neither one of us was the perfect spouse, there's no doubt in my mind God picked the perfect woman to be my daughter's mother.

Letters

Proud of Wayne Stand For Silent

On behalf of Kirk and Laura Smalley and the Stand For The Silent organization, I sincerely thank the Wayne Stand For The Silent chapter for the outstanding balloon launch they displayed at the elementary school track on April 19 for the Nebraska Stand For The Silent Day proclamation by Gov. Dave Heineman.

Thank you to all those that helped fill the balloons the night before, and to the kids and the adults, all the planning and work you did to make this such a beautiful, heart-felt event.

What a wonderful thing it was to see adults and kids all stand together to help stop bullying from happening to another child. This is not an Oklahoma problem. This is not an Iowa problem. This is a GLOBAL problem.

This is a non-profit organization that is not just for kids. We, as adults, all need to step up and back these kids in order for this to end. Please take time to check out and join the Wayne chapter of Stand For The Silent and help to make a difference in the lives of others.

Beautiful event! Thank you everyone! Keep up the good work.

Mothers are our driving force

Mothers are the driving force in our world. Without mothers, there are no fathers, no sons and daughters, no brothers and sisters.

In 1904, our organization, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, set out to thank these brave, selfless women by making a public plea for a national holiday in their honor.

A decade later, that holiday became a reality as President Woodrow Wilson passed a law designating the second Sunday in May each year as Mother's Day. As it is now, men, women and children everywhere spend the early days of May picking out cards, buying flowers and wrapping gifts to show their appreciation.

Like many of our holidays, Mother's Day gradually became less of a day of honor and remembrance and more an enterprise. In 2012, we're asking citizens everywhere to get back to the true spirit of Mother's Day. Take the time to give thanks and share stories. Tell the tale of how an upstart organization used its membership to pressure national leaders into doing the right thing and designating a day for those who gave us life.

Explain how, in a time when women were still denied the right to vote, Frank E. Hering stood up and made a plea to honor our mothers and all they do to make us who we are. Instead of buying a card, write her a letter. Instead of buying flowers, help her plant some. Realize the best gift you can give this year can't be purchased from a store. It can only come from within.

This year, let's close our wallets and open the history books as we celebrate Mother's Day. After all, it's hard to know where we're going if we don't know where we came from.

Children need proper home

By ED HOWARD
Statehouse Correspondent

LINCOLN – There is an ages' old axiom about how countless arguments could be avoided by giving a wide berth to discussions of religion and politics.

Dating back to the 1960s, at least, that axiom should have been expanded to include another subject: Statistics on crime/punishment and race. Any such discussion is going to quickly evolve – or descend – into questions of racism.

A new study by the University of Nebraska-Omaha affirmed what you would suspect: Kids who are black, Hispanic or Native American get arrested more than their white contemporaries and wind up in court and in jail more often, too.

Every study of this type – including this one – brings forth assertions from the appropriate parties that the criminal justice system needs to be diligent in its efforts to see that race, per se, doesn't put anyone at a virtually automatic disadvantage when accused of a crime.

The current head of the Urban League of Nebraska, Thomas Warren, is a former Omaha police chief. He was quoted: "It's obvious there's gross disparities and over-representation of minorities in the juvenile justice system, as demonstrated by this report."

Warren's comment is the sort that can spark heated, sincere and endless argument.

Do cops and prosecutors swing a bigger stick, and swing it harder, when minority kids get jammed up?

Legislative Update

Deadlines are coming for applications

Two deadlines are quickly approaching, and I want to let you know about them ASAP.

Details were released this past week on the deadlines and requirements for the new Nebraska Children's Commission and the new Foster Care Review Committee. Both were created by the Legislature this year.

The main focus of this past legislative session was child welfare. LB821 was one of the five major bills introduced by the Health and Human Services Committee, of which I am a member. LB821 created the Nebraska Children's Commission to meet and create a strategic plan to reform child welfare programs, services and reporting on it to the Legislature and the Governor. Major changes were implemented through legislation this year, but there is still a need to focus on the future and how we are going to move forward with all the changes recently mandated by the Legislature. Recommendations from this Commission will be introduced in legislative

Or, do the statistics simply reflect that, for whatever reasons, minorities commit more crimes, and more serious crimes per capita than white youths, and that many of them are repeat offenders?

Broken homes, poverty and gang affiliations are partners in crime. Who are those factors most likely to involve, most often?

The view from here: When a youngster seriously runs afoul of our law enforcement and judicial institutions, it is likely that the most basic and important of institutions – the family – has not played the role it should.

This conclusion is based in part on 38 years of covering the Legislature, and listening to the testimony and debate of lawmakers, educators, law enforcement officials, judicial and juvenile authorities – among many others.

A young offender's problems don't begin at the courthouse. More likely, they have their roots in a household that was not a proper home.

Applications for the Nebraska Children's Commission are due by the close of business on Friday, May 11. The following positions are available for those who are interested in serving on this Commission: director of a child advocacy center; administrator of a behavioral health region; community representatives from each of the five child welfare service areas; a prosecuting attorney who practices in juvenile court; a guardian ad litem; a parent currently or previously involved in the child welfare system; a foster parent; a court-appointed special advocate (CASA) volunteer; a member of the state or local Foster Care Review Board; a representative of a child welfare service agency that directly provides child welfare services; a young adult previously in foster care, and a representative of a child advocacy organization. Applications can be found at www.governor.nebraska.gov.

ing applications for the new Foster Care Review Committee, created by the passage of LB998. The current 11-member state Foster Care Review Board will be dissolved on July 1, and the new five member Foster Care Advisory Committee will take over on that date. The Governor will receive a list of applicants submitted by the Health and Human Services Committee, and will choose three members from a list of twelve local board members; one member from a list of four persons with data analysis experience; and one member from a list of four persons who are residents of the state and representatives of the public at-large. The deadline for submitting a letter of application and a resume is Friday, May 25. If you are interested in being appointed to the new Foster Care Advisory Committee, you will find the application at www.nebraska-legislature.gov, go to "reports" under "standing committees," click on Health and Human Services, and you will see "application for appointment to the Foster Care Advisory Committee." Nominations will be screened by the Health and Human Services Committee. Names will be forwarded by the Committee to the Governor for his consideration.

Tuesday, May 15, is the date of the 2012 Nebraska primary election. I would like to take a moment to encourage everyone to get out and vote on that date. There are many candidates running for numerous positions throughout Nebraska, including U.S. President, U.S. Senate, U.S. House of Representatives, Nebraska Legislature (there are four in District 17), city councils and some that I have not mentioned. President Dwight D. Eisenhower once said, "The future of this republic is in the hands of the American voter." Men and women throughout our country's history have fought and died to protect the freedoms we hold dear, including the right to vote. Voting is one of the best ways we can honor our American patriots who gave the ultimate sacrifice, their lives, so we have the freedom of speech and the freedom of expression.

Please make sure you let your voice be heard on May 15. You have options to vote early if for some reason you can't be at the polls on May 15. You can get details on these options and voting locations from your county clerk. It has always been my contention that if you decide not to vote, you should not complain about the way "the government" acts. Your chance to effect the government that affects you is Tuesday, May 15. You should be there.

19 Years - Tree USA

Marcia Rastede, chairman of the Allen Tree Board, announced at the May 4 Awards Assembly that the Arbor Day Foundation named Allen a Tree City USA Community for the 19th year because of the town's commitment to urban forestry during 2011.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by the Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service. Allen has met the four standards which are having a tree board, a tree-care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program, and an Arbor Day observance and proclamation.

Communities that earned the Tree City USA recognition know that trees promote healthier communities by filtering the air we breathe by removing dust and other particles, moderate climate, conserve water, provide vital habitat for wildlife, reduce the heat island effect in urban areas caused by pavement and buildings, increase property values, and reduce energy use as well as adding beauty to homes and neighbors.

More information about Tree City USA can be found as www.arborday.org/TreeCityUSA.

Items collected for soldiers

The Allen American Legion Auxiliary Post 131 teamed up with the Allen elementary classes and gathered travel-size hygiene items for our combat soldiers that are still overseas.

A total of 32 bags for female soldiers and 32 bags for male soldiers were made. Also, some letters were written to the soldiers by the students that will be sent with a bag to a soldier. Each class was assigned an item and the winning class will receive an ice cream party. Because there was a close count by two classes, the auxiliary announced that the second grade and third grade class wins the ice cream.

The Allen American Legion Auxiliary Post 131 would like to thank Allen Consolidated School's administration for allowing them to team up with the students for this wonderful community drive for our troops.

Jazz Band, several soloists: Cortney Surber, Candice Rastede, Liz Nelson, Lindsey Jones, Samantha Sullivan, Coleman Kneifl, Lindsey Sullivan & Morgan Bathke; fifth and sixth Grade Choir, High School Choir, Junior High Band, and High School Band. Community Cleanup

The Allen community clean-up day will be May 9. Volunteers are asked to meet at the school parking lot at 1 p.m. to meet with junior high students who will help. All items must be on the curbside as no one will go inside homes to carry items out. Items should also be no bigger than what junior high students can lift.

Auxiliary Drive for Troops

The Allen American Legion Auxiliary Post 131 teamed up with the Allen elementary classes and gathered travel size hygiene items for our combat soldiers that are still overseas.

Letters were written to the soldiers by the students that will be sent with a bag to a soldier. Each class was assigned an item and the winning class will receive an ice cream party. Because there was a close count by two classes, the auxiliary announced that the second grade and third grade class wins the ice cream.

Forensic science opportunities available

UNL's College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources Forensic Science Program provides students with a well-rounded education in the sciences, mathematics, and statistics.

In addition, there are two options from which students can select to help them meet their interests and career goals. These include Forensic Biology and Crime Scene Investigation.

Forensic Science includes any science that is conducted for use in the legal system. The need for science in the courtroom has greatly increased as a result of legal rulings and the positioning of forensic science in popular culture.

The Forensic Science Program is designed after the curricular recommendations of National Institute of Justice and the Forensic Science Education Programs Accreditation Commission. Accreditation will be sought following the graduation of two classes.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln is one of only two Forensic Science undergraduate programs in the Big Ten. They have strong working relationship with regional investigative agencies and the Nebraska Institute of Forensic Sciences, Inc. provides students with access to professionals within a classroom setting.

Readily available internship and research experiences provide valuable real-world learning opportunities for students beyond a classroom setting. The interdisciplinary nature of the program provides flexibility for students to build strong competencies in several areas. The curriculum is structured so that students can tailor their degree to best meet interests and career goals.

To learn more about educational opportunities or a career in forensic science investigate: the department's website at: casnr.unl.edu/web/CASNR/ForensicScience or contact Craig McGill, Academic Advisor, (402) 472-2967 or e-mail cmcill2@unl.edu.

— WE BUY GOLD EVERY DAY —

Close to Home

Wendy Vawser Residential Sales

Once we have an accepted purchase agreement on our home, how long does it take to close?

The answer to this depends on 3 things;

- 1. Type of loan the buyer is applying for and if the buyer has been pre-approved through a lender. Going through the pre-approval process before looking for a home can take up to two weeks off the closing timeframe.
- 2. Contingencies in the purchase agreement. Contingencies on a home inspection or appraisal must be addressed. If there are any issues found during the inspection, these must be negotiated and resolved before the contingency can be removed.
- 3. Title Commitment. Title insurance is required on most loans to show that the title is clear and can be transferred. Normally this process can be done in 2-3 weeks. However if there are any issues such as a cloud on a title, these must be corrected before moving forward to closing.

Once these three processes are completed, the closing can normally be scheduled. In today's market, the timeframe for closing is approximately 30-45 days.

Links Between Childhood Asthma & Obesity

Asthma is a chronic disease that causes airways to become inflamed. Does your child have this disease? If so, you're no doubt familiar with symptoms such as coughing, wheezing, chest tightness, and trouble breathing. Today, a whopping nine million children under age 18 have asthma - or have had it in the past.¹

But with rates of childhood obesity climbing this number could quickly skyrocket. Why? Because children who are overweight or obese are more likely to have asthma than children of a healthy weight. Overweight or obese children have double the risk of asthma as their normal-weight peers if they become or remain heavy in their early school years.²

Extra weight isn't considered a cause of asthma, simply a contributor. But what, then, accounts for the connection between the two? One theory is that a hormone found in fat tissue increases the body's chronic inflammation. And this may increase the risk of asthma.^{3,4}

Extra weight also sends kids with asthma to the doctor and emergency room more often and requires higher doses of asthma medications.⁵ In fact, a recent small study found that overweight and obese children needed about twice as much of a commonly used asthma medication (an inhaled corticosteroid) as healthy-weight kids. These findings are similar to those reported on earlier in adults.⁶

If your child has asthma, don't forget that I'm here to help you and your child manage this condition as well as you can. Remember that your child's asthma management plan may be different than another child's. I can help guide you in understanding how and when to use asthma medications. Getting the right care by a knowledgeable allergist or physician can help in figuring out whether a child has asthma, what is triggering it, and how to move forward to treat it effectively.⁷

UNL Extension offers Mid-Plains BEEF Practicum

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension's Mid-Plains BEEF Educational Series begins in June at the UNL Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead.

The series will draw on the expertise of extension educators and specialists from across Nebraska to share their beef cattle expertise with participants.

The program is designed for producers, veterinarians, college students or others involved in the beef industry. Participants will learn more about the systems approach to beef cattle production through these multi-session, hands-on learning experiences in beef production, economics and forage management.

The multi-session program begins June 13 and continues Nov. 29 and Jan. 31, 2013. Participants may choose to attend one or all three sessions.

The theme for the 2012-2013 year is cattle herd health. Participants will learn about the management of diseases, insect control, pesticide toxicity, low stress weaning, preconditioning and vaccination protocols, pregnancy checking, ultrasound, body condition scoring and how it relates to production and economics, preparation for calving and dealing with calving difficulty and more.

Additionally, Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) principles will be taught and demonstrated at each session. Producers can become BQA certified if they attend all three sessions. All of these components are part of a systems approach with a connection between production, economics and forage management, and its important relationship to the production system.

Registration for the June 13 program is requested by June 6, registration for the Nov. 29 program is requested by Nov. 21 and registration for the Jan. 31, 2013 program is requested Jan. 24.

Registration is $60 per session or $160 for all three sessions, which covers educational materials, noon meals and breaks. Producers interested in BQA certification will incur a $20 certification fee.

The Mid-Plains BEEF Educational Series is an effort by a team of southeastern Nebraska Extension educators.

To register or obtain more information, contact them at: Lindsay Chichester, Richardson County, (402) 245-4324; Sara Ellicott, Saunders County, (402) 624-8030; Jessica Jones, Johnson County, (402) 335-3669; Darci McGee, Nuckolls/Thayer Counties, (402) 768-7212 or (402) 225-2381; Monte Stauffer, Douglas/Sarpy counties, (402) 444-7804; or Steve Tonn, Washington County, (402) 426-9455.

Grandkids make for busy week

It's really nice and cool this evening, and there has been a little more rain, with which we seem to be blessed about every other day here. After the heat last week, over ninety degrees, this is welcome. Peonies have been blooming all last week, also, about four weeks early!

I'm just home from Norris High School's end-of-the-year music concert. Yesterday, I was at a vocal recital, and last week, it was the middle school concert. Tomorrow night is Seward's honors night. Little did we know, when Alex and Randa were born eleven days apart eighteen years ago, that they would be in Class B high schools that frequently compete with each other, and are only about an hour apart. It's been fun to be able to watch them perform and grow and develop.

By: Pat Meierhenry

When my brother informed me that his 10-year-old grandson was the mayor of Munchkinville in a top hat and tails, we decided this is a family of hams! I've been told by several people they can understand why!

The Big Farmer has been faithfully watching the Huskers and the Royals try to win baseball games. Alex finally was four for four the other night, but there are times when he can't buy a hit. Kay and Allan cruised down to Kansas City and then across Missouri for the opening home game of last year's World Series winners, the Cardinals. We got a slide show of photos yesterday.

My word, it was quite a show! The players rode around the field in the backs of F150 pickups, with their names on the doors. Stan "the Man" came out on a golf cart; he is 91 years old, and I have to say, he looks it. We actually saw him play back in 1960, on our honeymoon. It was a big deal then to be in a major league stadium. Still is, for that matter, but I think the average citizen gets to do it a lot more often these days.

I had a late Christmas present last week; a trip to the Orpheum to see Fiddler on the Roof. What a great idea! I met Sue near the interstate and we trucked off to One Pacific Place to eat at Wheatfields. I think I'm the only one in the family who had never been there. I picked up a rhubarb pie for take home, too.

Of course, the music is outstanding, and the story has everything: humor, love, and sadness. I laugh when Teyve wonders if it "would spoil some divine plan, if he were a rich man." And I can relate when he sings of "tradition." And I'm sad when the Russians make a mess of the wedding ceremony, and when one daughter goes to Siberia to be with the man she loves, and the third daughter actually marries one of the Russians. It's just a wonderful play.

The choirs joined in a mass choir tonight, to sing a medley from The Lion King. That's another show I saw once at the Orpheum, and did not expect to be so completely taken with it. When they ended with "can't you feel the love tonight?" I had tears, knowing how the seniors felt. You certainly would not want to be in high school forever, but it goes so quickly, and graduation comes so soon. Here's to all the new grads, and as the vocal teacher implored yesterday, "be happy!" She had the seventh and eighth graders sing them a song about always having music in their lives. I also have a little bit of understanding for how the instructors feel, as they send them on their way. It's a crazy world they are getting into, and we can only wish them the best.

Lot of moths, worms being seen in area

We've gotten a lot of questions about the big moth flight we have experienced the last 10 days or so. A lot of people in the midwest call moths "millers" and my daughter asked me why they are called that. I think in the old days when it was common to get stored grain and flour infested with moths, people just associated moths with the production of flour (milling) and began calling any moths "millers".

Anyway, there are a lot of different kinds of moths and the ones we have been seeing are mostly army cutworms. These are very interesting in that they are one of the few insects that migrate. They spend the summer in the Rocky Mountains and then head east in the fall to lay eggs, mostly in wheat and alfalfa. After feeding in the fall as caterpillars, they then overwinter and feed as caterpillars again in the early spring. Occasionally in our area they can delay the first cutting of alfalfa by this feeding, although it appears there weren't enough to have a significant impact this year. When they get their fill they then transform into moths and fly back to the Rockies. Interestingly, they form an important part of grizzly bear diets as the bears store fat and protein for the winter.

Since these moths are headed back to the Rockies, they do not pose a threat to our crops. Unfortunately, a lot of chemical salesmen are using this large moth flight to try to sell farmers something they rarely need in our area, a post emergence insecticide spray. This is either ignorance of the identification and life cycle of the moth or just greed. Either way, it's not good. Remember, do not apply any chemicals unless it is really necessary.

Most early season insect damage would be caused by black or dingy cutworms, wireworms, or white grubs. Wireworms and white grubs are most often associated with fields that have been in pasture or CRP where the grasses were allowed to grow for more than one year. It is rare to see these problems in continuous corn or corn/soybean rotations, but exceptions happen. Since wireworms and white grubs feed underground and cutworms feed on or below the soil surface, scout for plant damage and then dig in soil around the plant to identify the insect causing the damage.

Cutworms

Cutworms and other insects may hinder emerging corn plants this spring, even if seed was treated with insecticide or Bt corn hybrids were used. High populations of insects can overwhelm the protection method, regardless of whether it was an insecticide applied at planting (liquid, granular, or seed treatment) or a Bt corn hybrid.

In some cases products are not labeled for the full spectrum of Nebraska insects. For example, Hercules I Bt corn hybrids list black cutworm on the label, but not other soil cutworm species.

Cutworms can cause serious damage to corn in the first couple weeks after emergence so it is important to scout fields early for damage. Several species of cutworms attack corn. The severity and the area affected will vary greatly, depending on species involved, previous crop history, and weather conditions.

The black cutworm does not overwinter in Nebraska, and infestations depend on moths moving up in southerly spring winds. They are most commonly found in the eastern one-fourth of the state. Fields with winter annual weeds or spring killed alfalfa are more attractive to the egg-laying black cutworm moths in the spring. Other cutworm species (dingy, claybacked, army, Sandhills) overwinter as partly grown caterpillars. Remember that early detection of a problem is essential because most of the cutting occurs within seven days of plant emergence.

Generally, a post-emergence "rescue" treatment should be considered if cutting is observed on 3-5% or more of plants and the worms are one inch or less in length. Rescue treatments are effective in controlling soil cutworms.

Wireworms

Wireworms are the larvae of click beetles. The adult beetles prefer to lay eggs in grass and the larvae

Winside St. Paul women gather

St. Paul's Ladies Aid and LWML met May 2 with 13 members and De Lana Marotz as a guest.

President Lorraine Prince presided over the meeting. The LWML Pledge was recited.

Pastor Steckling had the Bible Study on 1 Samuel, Chapter 10-11. "Jesus Lead Thou On" was sung.

Gloria Evans visited the shut-ins in April and Erna Hoffman will visit in May.

Get-well cards were sent to Don Langenberg and Dave Jaeger.

Birthday cards were sent to Gerthy Johnson (May 10), Gladys Rhode (May 17) and Betty Miller (May 24).

The birthday song was sung for Gloria Evans, Lorraine Prince and Pastor Steckling.

The Wayne Zone LWML Spring Workshop was held at St. Paul's in Winside on April 24.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, June 6 with Esther Carlson and Gloria Evans as hostesses.

cause up to the time of feeding, the stand may look fine. Often three-year grub damage is near shelter belts where the adults may congregate to feed and mate. Like wireworms, there is no rescue treatment for white grubs. Again, high risk areas need to be treated at planting. Products for white grub control are similar to wireworm control.

Replanting

If wireworm or white grub damage is serious enough to warrant replanting, use planting time treatments, although the odds for damage diminish with the warming of the soil. For more info, see cropwatch.unl.edu.
