Judge will rule quickly on officers' appeals

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Wayne County District Judge Robert Ensz said he would rule fairly quickly on appeals by two former Wayne Police Department officers whose terminations were upheld by the Wayne Civil Service Commission late last year.

On Thursday, Judge Ensz heard arguments from attorneys representing former Chief Lance Webster and former Lt. Phil Shear, along with attorneys representing the City of Wayne, regarding the April 2011 termination of both officers by Wayne city administrator Lowell Johnson. Johnson suspended both officers three months earlier amidst allegations of improper conduct, sexual harassment and other items. The two officers appealed their terminations to the Wayne Civil Service Commission in May, and a week-long hearing was held at the Wayne Fire Hall before the three-member panel. Just before Christmas, the Civil Service Commission voted to uphold Johnson's termination of both officers, and the two officers appealed that decision in Wayne County District Court in early January of this year.

Lincoln attorney Sean Brennan, representing Webster; and Omaha attorney Steven Delaney, representing Shear, both were critical of the city's handling of their clients' terminations, and accused the Civil Service Commission of issuing an uninformed decision in upholding those firings.

Brennan said that Johnson, acting as arbiter in his client's Loudermill hearing, had already made up his mind and Webster was not given a fair chance to defend himself before he was terminated.

"The decision-maker must be an impartial person, and that can't occur when that person has already made up his mind," Brennan said. "Johnson spent countless hours and thousands of dollars creating a case, including going to the extreme tactic of fabricating evidence. . . (the city's attorneys) essentially concede that Johnson was not impartial and it doesn't matter."

Brennan said Judge Ensz should reject the Civil Service Commission's decision, and asked that Webster be ordered to be reinstated as the city's chief of police.

"This court should reject (the Civil Service Commission's findings) and find that a due process violation occurred and reinstate Webster as chief of police," he said, "or, at a minimum, send it back to the city for a determination by an impartial tribunal at a pre-disciplinary hearing to determine whether the allegations made by Johnson have merit."

Brennan said the Civil Service Commission's decision was arbitrary and capricious, disregarding the facts in the case.

"A simple review of the definition of arbitrary will show that (the CSC's) decision was uninformed and illogical," he said. "Johnson spent countless hours and thousands of dollars creating this case, engaging in a surreptitious investigation. He wasn't investigating the complaint, he was the complaint, spent all this time doing so, and the culmination of all of that was the commission's arbitrary and capricious decision to uphold the termination of Lance Webster as chief of police; and in doing so, the commission did not make a conscientious examination of the evidence, but instead, rendered a decision without any reliable basis."

Delaney, speaking on Shear's behalf, said his client was presented evidence by Johnson after he had already been terminated.

"Unfortunately, the termination had already taken place before that additional evidence was offered. It was like 'Oh, by the way, here's some additional evidence and you can have another (Loudermill) hearing," Delaney said. "How do we know that he didn't rely on that information in the first place?"

Delaney also accused Johnson of paying Renee Alonso, a former dispatcher who was alleged to have had an affair with Shear, for saying she had been sexually harassed, although evidence presented at the hearing seemed to suggest that she was the one pursuing Shear.

"There was no evidence that Phil Shear sexually harassed her, and it's not until Lowell Johnson and the city goes and offers her money that she comes forward and says she was," Delaney said. "Johnson wanted (Shear and Webster) gone and did everything in his power, including fabricating evidence. This case was created to support a termination, and we hope this court sees that and determines that (the CSC's decision) be overturned."

More storage available as new Wakefield facility opens

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

A warm summer breeze blew through the gigantic open doors as area farmers and businessmen arrived Tuesday afternoon at the new Central Valley Ag grain and agronomy hub.

A number of trolleys were kept busy with tours of the new complex located along Highway 35 on the southeast edge of Wakefield, giving visitors the opportunity to tour the recently-opened facility, which promises to be a hub of activity for area farmers in the coming years.

Representatives from the company, along with people from around the area, gathered inside the new 53,000-square foot agronomy warehouse for opening ceremonies, which included thank-you remarks from Central Valley Ag CEO Doug Derscheid, Wakefield manager Kent Meyer and Wakefield Mayor Jim Clark, who cut the ceremonial ribbon to officially open the new facility.

Central Valley Ag acquired 118 acres of land a few years ago in hopes of putting this facility together.

"From initial concept, it's been a little more than two years to get to this point," Doug Derscheid, CEO of Central Valley Ag, said Tuesday afternoon. "We really started working in earnest a year and a half ago, and we've been able to work with the city of Wakefield and their zoning board, along with the gas pipeline people, and all of that has taken some time to get us to where we are today."

The new facility on the south edge of town will help the Wakefield hub of Central Valley Ag expand significantly from its current facility in downtown Wakefield.

"It really modernizes what we're doing," Derscheid said. "We have a lot of technology with blending and mixing fertilizer, and this facility does what we've been able to do at our old facility here, and it also has a lot more storage capacity. This facility goes way beyond what we were able to do in the old facility."

Part of the new hub is an 8,000-ton dry plant and 20,000-ton liquid fertilizer facility, which allows the company to receive dry fertilizer and distribute dry and liquid fertilizer to area farmers. The dry fertilizer storage includes nine separate bins that can hold up to 2,100 tons of product, while a 1 million-gallon liquid fertilizer storage tank is located at the north end of the complex.

The agronomy warehouse is 160 feet by 120 feet and will store package chemicals, seed, bagged feed and oil, along with tanks that will store chemicals in bulk. There are two 426,000-bushel bins available for grain storage, with enough room to store up to 1 million bushels of grain in a temporary ground pile if needed. The facility will

New park has gone to the dogs

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Man's best friend will soon have a new place to spend time, thanks to the efforts of a group of Leadership Wayne graduates.

A Bark Park is being planned for south of the Summer Sports Complex and a number of fundraising activities have been scheduled to raise the $15,000 necessary for fencing, signage and waste stations.

Recently, a sign was designed by Laura Burtwistle and donated by Jason Schulz of Quality One Graphics. It has been placed near where the park will be located.

A Dusk Dog Dive will be held at the Wayne City Pool, 1220 Lincoln Street, on Thursday, Aug. 16 from 8-10 p.m. For a fee, dogs will be allowed to play in the water during that time. Bark Park T-shirts will be available to purchase also.

Sunday, Aug. 26 is National Dog Day.

"We will be having an event that day going from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. at the Wayne Bark Park location," said Jessi Hansen, a member of the Bark Park Committee.

"Our goal is to serve taverns, hotdogs, chips, pop/water. We also plan to have a bounce house, face painting, kids games, and dog games," Hansen said.

Dawn Jacobson of Canine Design will be at the event, giving out dog food samples and clipping dogs toenails for a free will donation. Dr. Melissa Heithold from the Wayne Vet Clinic will be there

City tables zoning issues until January

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

After voting to table any action until next January, the Wayne City Council heard from a number of residents regarding possible changes in the city's zoning laws.

Council members were told by their legal representatives that they are working with attorneys for Woehler and Sons to arrive at a solution to what could result in the business having to cease crushing concrete.

A total of six public hearings, with corresponding city code changes, were on Tuesday's agenda.

However, following the tabling of the first ordinances to change the definitions of agricultural industry, light industry, general industry and heavy industry, the remaining public hearings drew no public response.

B.J. Woehler of Woehler and Sons, told the council, "There are lots of issues with this ordinance. It would de-value our business, and I feel that the city is trying to kick us out. If that happens, the city will lose the tax dollars we pay."

He said the business, which crushes concrete one week per year, is trying to control the dust created during the crushing, and if the business is allowed to remain where it is, he intends to plant trees to help control the dust. He also noted that the business has tried to purchase other pieces of property to move the business, but has not been successful in that attempt.

Wes Blecke, on behalf of Wayne Area Economic Development, asked the council if adding the language to the city code would make it easier for businesses to operate and in regard to future expansion of existing businesses in the community, "Are we treating the businesses we have here fairly?"

City planner/zoning administrator Joel Hansen said the changes would not create a new zoning district, but instead would add

County, resident spar; legal action threatened

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The ongoing feud between a county landowner and the Wayne County Commissioners reached a new level with the daughter of the landowner threatening legal action Tuesday.

Linda Kirsch, speaking on behalf of her parents, Leroy and Ione Rubbeck, told the county board that she wanted copies of a survey of a road with three bridges that was once located south of her parents' property, and wants that road built with the three bridges to replace the road the county had built through her family's land and, until last year, had a long-standing lease agreement.

She threatened litigation if she doesn't get her way, but board members said they had no knowledge of any survey that was done with a three-bridge road in that area about four miles south of Winside.

Kirsch said a state easement was located have 3.5 million bushels of upright grain storage, with another 1.5 million bushels of temporary storage. By comparison, the old Wakefield facility had a total capacity of 750,000 bushels.

A separate office building that includes an 80-foot raised scale, with room to add a second scale, is also located on the site.

The new facility is a positive for Wakefield's growth as well, according to the town's mayor, Jim Clark.

"It took a little bit of doing and there were a lot of meetings, and we were able to get it put together and it worked out well," Clark said. "It means quite a bit to have this out there, and for them to have faith in us to build this facility here is huge."

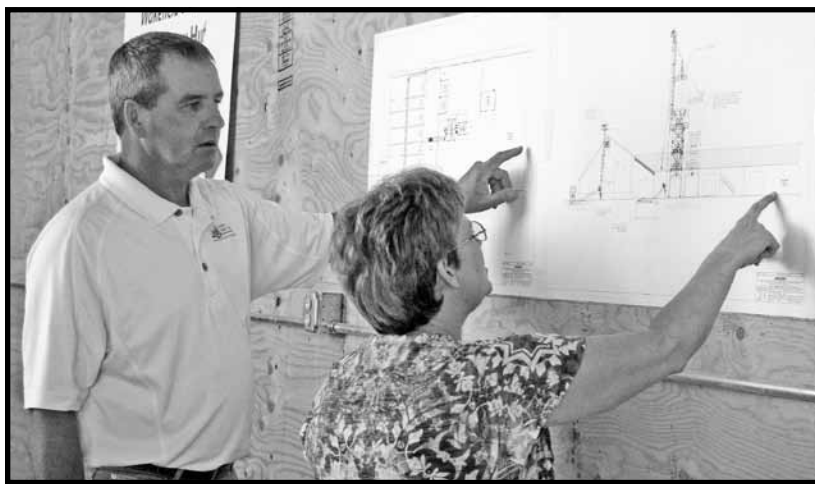

The new facility offers easy access for trucks coming into and leaving the facility, which helps speed up the process for area customers.

"It should be a lot better, and we won't have to deal as much with the in-town traffic and it will be easier for people to get around," said Kent Meyer, manager of the Wakefield facility.

Meyer said the new facility will be a key benefit to area ag professionals.

"It speeds up the process for our grower-customers, and it give us a larger inventory and ability to supply product," he said. "This allows us to have a good supply on hand to help our growers."

Derscheid said the new facility will allow current staff to better utilize their skills, and offers opportunities for future growth as well.

more, broad definitions of activities allowed within the zoning district.

Lynelle Sievers, who lives near the Woehler and Sons business, told the council that there are residents trying to live in the area that need to be taken into consideration.

"The dust makes living horrible. We have to put everything on hold," Sievers said.

Carol Bauermeister, whose son Rodney also lives in the area, told the council that silica in the dust could cause health problems for those breathing it.

"The dust has been terrible and it was wet until we complained. This needs to stop because it will cause health problems."

Ken Kwapnoiski, who owns a building in the area, questioned whether the changes in definitions in the city code would affect the agricultural industry also, as there is a "huge amount of dust coming from the field to the south of there during harvest. There is also dust coming from the grain elevators. There is a lot more to this than just concrete dust."

The council will again address the proposed changes to the definitions at its second meeting in January of 2013.

In other action, the council tabled an ordinance that involves establishing a code of decorum for the city council and mayor. At issue was the issue of attendance at council meetings and proper procedure for speaking during council meetings.

The council approved a resolution allowing for an agreement with Arnie's Ford, Inc. regarding the use of the public right-of-way to install conduit for the placing of cable. The cable will allow for the installation of security cameras for the business.

Approval was given for the payment to Elkhorn Paving for the Pheasant Run Paving Project and Luxa Construction for the Western Ridge II Paving project.

As a Community Development Agency, the council approved a resolution for the issuance of Tax Incremental Revenue Bonds for the Benscoter Project, but took no action on changing the new housing construction loan incentive program currently in place.

The council voted against a resolution approving an agreement with Eisenbraun & Associates for design and construction services for a street project on 10th Street between Main Street and Windom Street.

Council members were concerned about the "not to exceed cost of $99,960" in the agreement and felt the work would be obtained for a lower amount.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Aug. 21 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Anyone wishing to make a dona-

The Bark Park became a reality

after the city granted the group permission to use the ground. The park will be about an acre in size, with a small dog side and a large dog side. There will be a double gated entrance that will take dog owners to either side of the area. Signs will be posted with the rules and regulations of the park. There will also be dispensers that will hold plastic bags to pick up waste and a place to dispose of it.

side of the argument, reminding Enz that his job was to determine whether the Civil Service Commission acted properly in upholding the terminations, not re-weighting the validity of the evidence presented in last year's hearings.

"Your job is to hear and determine the appeal to see if the action of the commission was based on consideration of evidence, and whether that decision was arbitrary and capricious," she said. "It's not your job to re-weigh the evidence, it's not your job to judge the credibility of the witnesses, it's not your job to sit in the position of the commissioners who had the chance to personally observe and judge the evidence."

Haase cited other Supreme Court cases regarding Loudermill hearings, stating that the city did not need to present an independent arbiter in the pre-termination hearings.

"As long as the post-termination hearing is unbiased, it is not required in the pre-termination stage. The hearing can be presided over by the employer, and that is exactly what happened here," she said.

Haase said the Civil Service Commission hearing was conducted properly, and there was nothing in the hearing that suggests that anything was done wrong.

"There is no specific document that was improperly admitted, or objection that was overruled," she told the judge. "They're just throwing everything up there to see what sticks."

Haase praised the work of the three-member Civil Service Commission, which spent a lot of hours and pored through tens of thousands of pages of evidence before rendering their decision.

"This is a Civil Service Commission that took on yeoman's work, carefully reviewed literally tens of thousands of pages of evidence, and reached a careful and thoughtful decision," she said in asking the judge to uphold the commission's decision.

Thursday's hearing was moved to Cuming County District Court in West Point, due to scheduling conflicts between the attorneys involved in the case. The hearing lasted about 45 minutes, with a handful of interested local residents in attendance.

Micah's Closet set to open Monday, will donate to area charity projects

Just in time for back to school shopping, a new business has opened its doors in Wayne.

Micah's Closet, located in the back of the Verizon building at 602 1/2 Main Street, is owned by First United Methodist Church of Wayne and managed by Matt Vawser.

A ribbon cutting for the business is planned for Monday, Aug. 13 at 10 a.m.

"The store's name is taken from the bible verse, Micah 6:8, which encourages us all to do justice, love kindness and mercy and walk humbly with our God," said Pastor Pete Phillips of First United Methodist Church.

The thrift clothing store contains clothing from infant to adult, shoes and accessories such as belts. A suggested donation will be accepted for all purchases.

Donations of these items from the public will be accepted during regular business hours, Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. A receipt for tax purposes is available to those making donations.

"This store goes along with our church's mission and will hopefully help out a lot of people. Any money that is generated will go back into other projects, such as the Food Pantry," Pastor Phillips said.

to the south that goes into a neighboring field, but District 3 board member Jim Rabe said that marker is actually located farther north.

"I know where the marker's at, and it should be farther north," he said.

"So you're calling me a liar?" Kirsch asked.

"I'm not calling anybody anything," Rabe replied, "I've just never seen (the disputed easement)."

After Kirsch's departure from the meeting, board member Kelvin Wurdeman wondered if it would be easier for the county to build a road than get into a legal battle with Kirsch and her parents.

"It might be cheaper in the long run (to build a road)," he said. "We need to get some idea of what the cost would be, but we'd have to hire an outside attorney because (County Attorney Mike Pieper) also represents Linda."

The county will be getting new digital radios after approving a bid from Tri-State Communications of South Sioux City for the purchase of 50 new radios that will be installed in county vehicles before the end of the year.

Because of legal requirements regarding digital communications, the county will replace the current radios with the new radios at a cost of $39,562.50, which was far below the state contract bid, according to Cedar County emergency manager Kevin Garvin, who assisted Wayne County emergency manager Nic Kemnitz in researching the new equipment. The county will get a discount of about $3,000 for trading in the old radios for the new 160-channel digital radios.

The county was considering radios that were dually compatible in analog or digital formats but the likelihood of even more stringent regulations down the road made the investment in the digital equipment more cost-effective.

"It would cost less, but the feds are going to require digital at some point, and it's not worth buy radios again later," Rabe said.

In other action, the board also approved the bids of Midwest Service and Sales of Schuyler for road projects southeast of Winside and northwest of Hoskins in the amount of $36,434.74 and $52,664.36, respectively; and approved the bid of Nebraska Machinery Company of Norfolk in the amount of $35,700 for a new lowboy trailer.

The board's next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 21, at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse.

Are you ready for some . . .

Fall sports action? It won't be long until the opening kickoff, first pitch and opening tee shots of the season get going in area high school football, softball and girls golf, with the first serve and first firing of the starter's gun of volleyball and cross country not far behind. Monday was the first day of practice for football, softball and girls golf teams across Nebraska, and Wayne High's teams were getting in the swing of things. At top left, new football coach Terry Bear shows his quarterbacks how to set up to throw the ball. At top right, softball player Maddie Morris is focused on the ball as she gets ready to lay down a bunt. At left, golfer Aspen Pflanz, one of a handful of Wayne girls golfers with varsity experience from last year, works on her putting game at the Wayne Country Club. First action for softball is Thursday, Aug. 16, while the golfers open Thursday, Aug. 23 and the football team begins its season Friday, Aug. 24. First practices for volleyball and cross country begin this coming Monday, Aug. 13.

Area all-star game to debut in 2013

Northeast Nebraska's top football talent will get a chance to shine beginning next summer.

The first Northeast Nebraska All-Star Football Classic will be played Saturday, June 8, 2013, at Memorial Field in Norfolk. An announcement was made last week by the Norfolk Area Sports Council.

The game will be sponsored by Faith Regional Health Services of Norfolk, with proceeds from the game benefitting the purchase of equipment to support the needs of athletes at a new rehabilitation and wellness center being planned by Faith Regional.

Players from 59 teams throughout northeast and north central Nebraska will be considered for the all-star game. Coaches will nominate players at the end of each season, and coaches will be named for each game.

The classic's board of directors includes former Wayne High coach Rich Rethwisch, along with area football coaches Jeff Bellar of Norfolk Catholic, Mark Brahmmer of Pierce, Eric Kessler of Humphrey St. Francis, Tom Olson of Norfolk High and Mike Speirs of Howells-Dodge.

Wayne Optimist Club hears from new business

Members of the Wayne Optimist Club met Aug. 6 at the Coffee Shoppe for the monthly meeting.

The guest speakers for the evening were Mark Kanitz and Lukas Rix sharing information as to their new business in the community Rustic Treasures. The business model is simple - people bring in their old goods that aren't necessarily valuable to them anymore, but still might be worth owning to someone else. Rustic Treasures cleans and sells those items, and the profits are split evenly. Specializing more in collector's items than antiques, Rustic Treasures is a retail consignment thrift store. Rustic Treasures located on Main Street in downtown Wayne has an eclectic selection of household items, furniture, decor and antiques.

Mark Kanitz is the store manager and shares his artistic skills of arranging the many items in the store for easy accessibility. Owner Lukas Rix originally from Lyons, worked in retail consignment and relocated this business to Wayne after attending college at Wayne State.

Items addressed during the meeting were appointing Jan Kristjanson and Jessica VonFange as delegates to the District Convention in Sioux City Aug. 10-12. The fund raising Pork Loin, Steak and hot-dog cookout at the Henaween for Chicken Days was a great success. The group will have a table at the Welcome Back for college students on Sunday, Aug. 19. On Sept. 9 board and new officers will meet at Jan Kristjanson's home for dessert and plan for the 2012-13 year. On Tuesday, Sept. 11 the group will hold their regular meeting wrap up at Sunnyview Park at 6:30 p.m.

Plans were discussed for the Annual Punt, Pass and Kick event. Mike Varley noted that the state golf player for Optimist, Zach Taylor, went to Florida to the national tournament and lost by one stroke.

The meeting closed with the Optimist Creed. The Optimist's goal is bringing out the best in kids. Anyone interested in joining the group may contact any of the members or President Kim Dunklau at (402) 369-1696.

Small game workshops to be held Aug. 25, 29

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and the Lincoln Izaak Walton League will host a small game hunting workshop Aug. 25 at 9 a.m. and a dove hunting workshop Aug. 29 at 6 p.m. Both events will take place at the Izaak Walton League clubhouse.

The clubhouse is located a half-mile south of Nebraska Highway 2 on 134th Street. Space is limited. Register at HuntSafeNebraska.com.

Support staff recognition

Cindy Franzen was awarded one of two support staff recognition awards at Wayne State College. She began her career at Wayne State College in May 2005. Franzen has held the positions of an academic records clerk, an office assistant II and is currently an academic credentials technician in the Records and Registration office. Her nomination included the statement: "To say that Cindy Franzen exceeds the expectations of a support staff employee at Wayne State College would be an understatement. Cindy always displays her positive manner with a great smile."

Northeast's paramedic program is accredited

Northeast Community College's paramedic program has successfully completed a national accreditation process to become one of only four accredited programs in Nebraska.
 Doug Dekker, director of Northeast's paramedic program, recently received word of the accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (CAAHEP.) The two-year, associate of applied science program was approved through the State of Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services Regulations and Licensure Department some time ago.
 According to Dekker, the accreditation process was rigorous, taking nearly two-and-a-half years to complete. The process included a 22-page Initial-Accreditation Self Study Report (ISSR) and a site visit by two staff members from the Committee on Accreditation of Educational Programs for Emergency Medical Services Professions (CoAEMSP) last November.

 Dekker said the site visitors looked at the physical make-up of the instructional classrooms and equipment, interviewed college administrators, and hospital employees who supervise Northeast student/interns. The visitors also spoke with the staff and administration of the Norfolk Fire Division and other employers of Northeast paramedic graduates, Northeast's paramedic advisory committee members, and current and past students.
 Dekker said the site visit was extremely successful, with the visitors suggesting only procedural and paperwork issues that Northeast had addressed earlier. "I was extremely pleased with the outcome of the site visit," Dekker said. "To essentially get a clean bill of health on our first site visit was very gratifying after all our hard work."
 The CoAEMSP Board of Directors recommended approval of Northeast's paramedic program in May to the CAAHEP Board of Directors. The accreditation is good for five years.
 With a long history as an emergency medical technician (EMT)/paramedic, Dekker was employed by the Norfolk Fire Division for many years. He joined Northeast Community College in April of 2011 on a part-time basis and became the full-time director of the program last spring.
 Students enrolled in Northeast's paramedic program graduate as field/clinical-ready paramedics with the knowledge and skills to care for injured or ill patients. Upon graduation, they are eligible to take the National Registry for Emergency Medical Technicians' test. After certification by the National Registry, students can apply for a license to practice as a paramedic in Nebraska.
 "Northeast is very proud of our most recent accredited program of study," said John Blaylock, vice president of educational services. "As a community college, we strive to serve our 20-county area with training that helps sustain our communities. The need for certified, paid and volunteer paramedics is critical for all our large and small communities."
 "Our accredited paramedic program will allow individuals to attain the necessary education for national registry testing," Blaylock continued. "Under the leadership of Doug Dekker, Northeast will continue to expand the EMT and paramedic offerings to our constituents."

Want real change? Do your research before you vote

Now that most of the community celebrations and county fairs are over, it's time to get down to the business of the busiest part of the year – and, unfortunately, I'm not talking about Friday night high school football.

It's the political season, and for the next three months we will be inundated with lies, mistruths, and the non-stop spin of numbers, personal connections and comments made by candidates who, in all honesty, wouldn't know the truth if it walked up to them and bit them on their backside.

Not that we haven't already – for the better part of 18 months, we've heard all kinds of horror stories from Democrats about Republicans, and the Republicans have been reminding us what horrible people those Democrats are.

Every so often, we are actually subjected to some wild generalizations from the candidates about what THEY will do when you elect them to office – but then they compare it to what will happen if you elect the OTHER candidate:

"I have a plan that will put people to work, cut the national deficit in half, reduce our dependency on foreign oil and bring illegal immigration to a halt," one candidate will say before adding, "If you elect the other candidate, that individual will quadruple the national debt within his (or her) first 45 minutes in office, drive up gas prices to one half your monthly salary, triple your taxes and leave you so destitute, you'll be forced to live off ramen noodles and whatever roadkill you can scrape up off the sidewalk."

Once that ad begins running, it won't be long before the head of the opposing political party will call out that candidate, calling him everything but a "gosh-darned poopie-head." The party leader will demand a retraction, an apology and the opposing candidate's firstborn, sauteed in garlic and olive oil and delivered with a bucket of KFC (extra crispy, of course). Of course, the candidate will offer a response that, loosely translated, would be something of a request that the offended individual should take a one-way trip to someplace, shall we say, terminally warm.

With all of that awaiting us between now and Tuesday, Nov. 6, what is a proud, but confused, voting American to do when he or she goes to the polls to cast his or her ballot?

Four years ago, I publicly announced, to anybody that listened (or read any of the state's major daily newspapers) that I was not voting for a single Democrat or Republican in the 2008 general election. I had discovered that there were two constants with all that ailed the halls of Congress, and those two things were:

- Democrats, and
- Republicans.

The way I saw it at the time, if we wanted REAL change in Washington, we first had to remove the scum that was causing the problems. Voting for a member of EITHER party was not going to change ANYTHING. Therefore, I opted to vote for independent or third-party candidates, doing a bit of research along the way to see which of those candidates best aligned with my belief system.

Of course, those who have always voted for Republicans or Democrats (or both) were quick to ridicule my idea as nothing more than a wasted vote. Four years later, that change they voted for turned out pretty well, didn't it? And by pretty well, I mean that not a blasted thing has changed after electing or re-electing Democrats and Republicans to those offices in Congress and the White House.

As per our newspaper's policy, I am not going to endorse any particular candidate for any public office. Even though neither of the national wings of the Democratic or Republican parties will spend a penny's worth of advertising in any weekly newspaper in the state (throwing their money, instead, into TV, radio and other print advertising options, while expecting us weekly papers to provide free publicity anytime one of their candidates "visits" our community, a practice we are no longer engaging in), we do not believe it is our duty to side with one candidate over the other.

However – I do have two things for you to take away from this column:

- 1) The two major political parties that dominate every second of national news coverage are wholly corrupt and so overcome with greed that their candidates' legitimacy as people who can actually change the course of our nation is, at best, questionable.
- 2) With a little of your own research, you can find candidates for public office who are not aligned with EITHER the Democrat or Republican parties, who do advocate policies and visions that have a much better potential of creating REAL, positive change for our nation. There are other choices out there this November, and you don't have to waste your vote on the two choices the mainstream media says you have to vote with.

This nation CAN move forward, so long as the people who have the power to make that change have the courage to do so. The only ones with that power are the ones who enter the ballot box on Tuesday, Nov. 6 with an informed decision – one that, this writer believes, neither the Republican or Democrat parties are capable of offering.

Another look at term limits

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

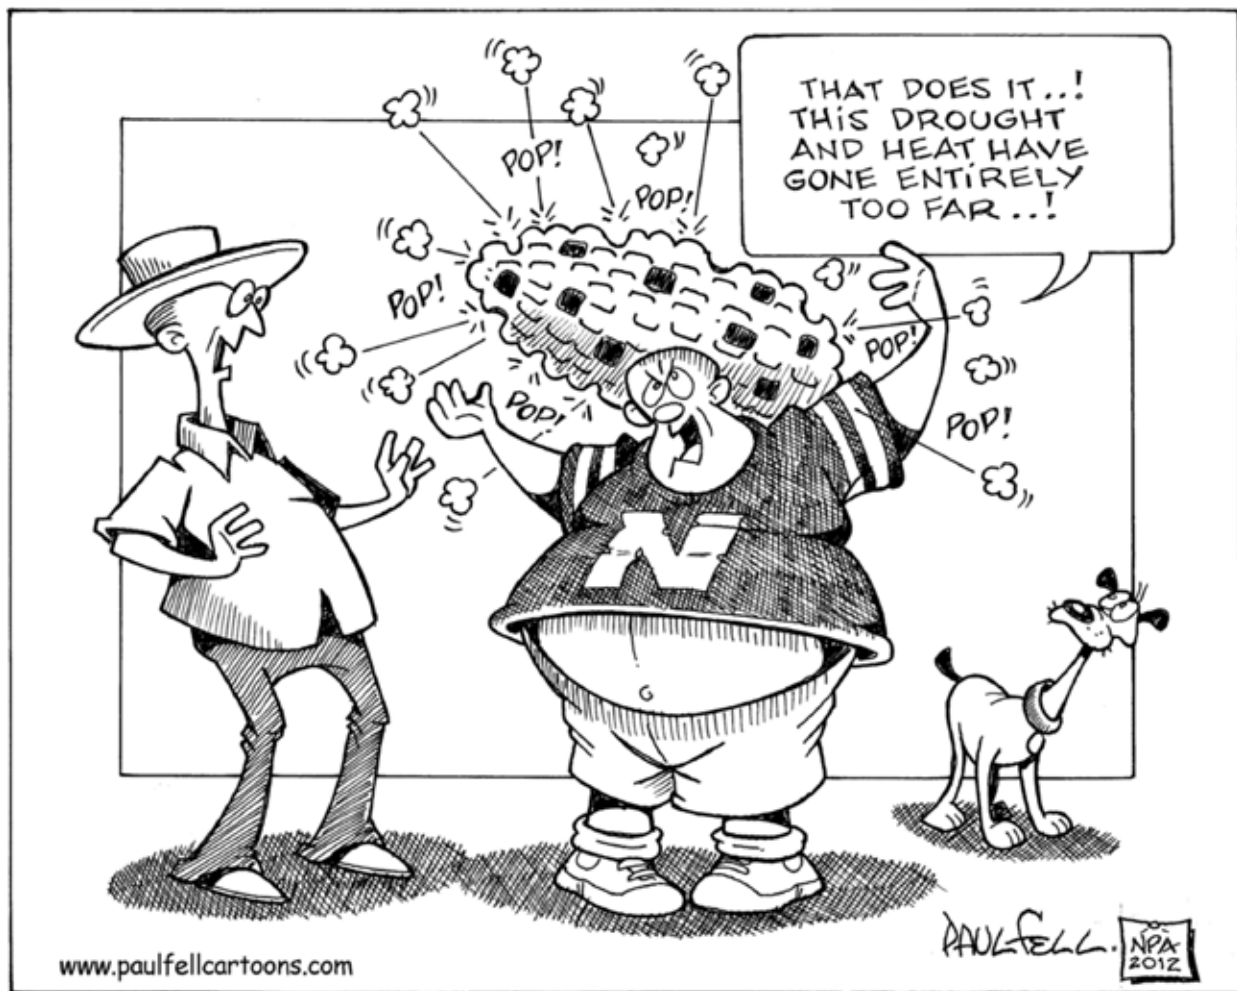

In a year when the downside of term limits is being realized, voters will get a chance to tweak the law in the election, which is now less than 100 days away.

There are 26 legislative races on the November ballot – the 25 odd-numbered districts plus one even where the incumbent stepped down early. There are nine retiring incumbent lawmakers who must step down because of term limits. That group includes one of the most popular Speakers of the Legislature in recent years as well as the heads of five committees – including the powerful Appropriations and Revenue Committees. How's that for a downside?

In the nation's only non-partisan, one-house legislature, institutional memory is very important. That's something that probably escaped the framers and promoters of the law change passed by voters several years ago to limit senators to two terms.

With the brunt of their focus set on removing the venerable Ernie Chambers – clearly the senior member of the 49 with 38 years experience – they clearly overlooked the fact that other turnover could occur and have an impact. Opponents of term limits argue that two terms, 8 years, is hardly enough time for a lawmaker to understand the system and make a difference.

Proponents, fueled by their dislike of Chambers often-obstreperous ways, forged ahead and convinced voters that he had to go. Chambers was often called the second house of the Legislature for his ability to play the legislative rule book like a piano and cause his colleagues to slow down and totally scrutinize a number of bills that might otherwise have flown through the process. That can happen in a unicameral.

It's doubtful they could foresee a situation where: Appropriations' Chairman Sen. Lavon Heidemann; Banking Chairman Sen. Rich Pahls; Natural Resources Chairman Sen. Chris Langemeier; Revenue Chair Sen. Abbie Cornett and Transportation Chair Sen. Deb Fischer would all be term-limited out. To say nothing of Speaker of the Legislature Mike Flood, known for his cool-headed, even-handed ability to bring lawmakers to consensus.

Other veteran exits are being done by: Omaha Sen. Gwen Howard; Ellsworth Sen. LeRoy Louden whose Sand Hills and partial Panhandle district is going to the Omaha area because of population shifts and redistricting; and Lincoln Sen. Tony Fulton who was appointed mid-term to replace his predecessor turned State Auditor Mike Foley. Fulton could have challenged the law's definition of "term," but chose not to and is stepping down.

In an interesting twist, Chambers has sat out the one term required by the law, and is on the ballot again, seeking to unpeep his successor, Sen. Brenda Council. On another ballot issue, voters will have a chance to decide if they want to change the term limits from two terms to three terms.

Legislative Update

Legislative page job applications due

The first thing in the "newsletter" this week is to wish Beverly Neel (my administrative assistant) a speedy recovery. Beverly took a spill at the Wayne County Fair on Sunday, July 29, resulting in a broken ankle. Beverly is at home now and will be there for a while yet. Please include her in your thoughts and prayers. Fortunately, as I mentioned last week, Jessica Shelburn joined our staff on Monday, July 30, on a part-time basis. Jessica is splitting her time between this office and the office of Sen. John Wightman, she is here during the afternoon hours. I guess what I am trying to say is that if you call the office in the morning, you will get the infernal answering machine. If that occurs, please leave a message and we will get back to you, or please try to call after noon until Beverly is back on her feet.

During the night of Aug. 1, we were blessed with .35 inch of rain at our farm home north of Hoskins. While it was not wide spread, it was very welcome. I have heard reports of over an inch of rain in some areas. Unfortunately, there were many reports where no rain was received. Nebraskans are a tough lot, we will survive this, we may not like it, but we will endure and overcome this drought as we always have, with help from God.

As the kids start heading back to school, I would like to bring your attention to an opportunity for the youth that call District 17 their home. Every year, Legislative pages

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

are selected in the fall to work for the upcoming legislative session, beginning the following January. Pages work in the center of the action on the floor of the Legislature and in committee sessions. As a legislative page you will respond to senators' request lights on the legislative floor, run errands, deliver messages, photocopy materials, assist the presiding officer, set up and staff committee hearings and perform other duties as assigned.

Pages must be high school graduates who are currently enrolled in a Nebraska college or trade school with a minimum grade point average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale. They must be able to work 20 hours a week during session and it is preferred that they work the same four-hour shift each day. The legislative session will begin Jan. 9, 2013, and will go through May of 2013. This is a paid position with first-year pages earning $9.47 per hour and second-year pages earning $9.85 per hour. In addition, a page may also be able to receive credit hours through their college. This is a great opportunity to learn about the legislative process here in Nebraska and make a few dollars to help with school expenses. Jessica (our new legislative aide) once served as a page, and she can explain the process better than I can.

Applications are available from my office in Lincoln: Senator Dave Bloomfield, State Capitol, District 17, P.O. Box 94604, Lincoln, Neb., 68509-4604, or from the Clerk of the Legislature's Office, Room 2018, State Capitol, 1445 K Street, Lincoln, Neb., 68509. If you are interested in becoming a legislative page or have any questions I encourage you to contact my office. I would be happy to submit a letter of recommendation for any eligible student from District 17. This year, applications are due by 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 28, 2012.

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or e-mail dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

Thanks to Class of 1982

The Wayne County Historical Society would like to thank the Wayne-Carroll Class of 1982 for generously choosing to donate to the Wayne County Museum in recognition of their 30th class reunion. To date, they have given $650 for use in having our beautiful museum repaired and repainted.

The museum is the main repository for memorabilia to preserve the accomplishments and contributions of those who have gone before and their impact on our lives today. We are all becoming part of that history. Perhaps other classes will take this on as a challenge when they have reunions. Thanks again to the Class of 1982.

4-H is your career connection

Most people know that 4-H members take projects to learn about various topics and then exhibit the projects at their county fair. They may potentially represent their county at the State Fair in Grand Island.

What many don't realize, however, is that 4-H projects are very often the basis for a young person's career decision.

Children begin thinking about their future careers while they are in the elementary school. For some, a decision is made and at that point it does not change much. Other young people change their ideas of future careers as they experience classes in school and activities outside of the classroom. 4-H offers many projects and activities to help a child think about their skills, their interests and their future. With over 157 projects offered in 47 project areas, there really is something related to almost every career.

When 4-H projects began over a hundred years ago, the projects

Jackie Steffen
Cedar County

helped young people learn about topics needed for farming and homemaking, which were the two most common careers for men and women at that time. As the career areas have changed and expanded, so have the 4-H projects. Today you may find projects in computers, GPS, ecology, wildlife, shooting sports, fitness, entrepreneurship, aerospace, and electricity. The more traditional 4-H projects have also evolved. Young people may learn about food and nutrition, which might lead to careers as a chef or dietician. Young people may also learn about finances and money management, forestry, and safety. The list is endless.

As career exploration becomes more important to youth and their parents, 4-H offers a wonderful opportunity for youth to explore a variety of topics, develop skills in those areas, and then work with adults with expertise in those areas.

In addition to projects, 4-H also offers a variety of activities that help young people develop knowledge and skills they may use in their future careers. From public speaking to presentations, to contests and camps, youth have many opportunities to learn. These events offer in-depth, hands-on experiences where youth can make new friends who have the same interests and can interact in small groups with the experts in the area. 4-H is probably one of the best experiences for youth to truly understand what their favorite career is really all about.

Finally, the other very important "Career Connection" with 4-H is the development of workplace skills. The 4-H motto says "Make the Best Better". That is one of the work values employers are seeking. Through 4-H activities and project work, youth learn how to work, to improve, to compete, to be fair, and to serve others. 4-H actually is designed to teach thirty-six life skills needed for youth to become successful adults and contributing members of our society.

Family Reunions

Lessmann Family

The 36th annual Lessmann Family reunion was held Aug. 4 at Geno's Steakhouse in Wayne.

Guests came from Beresford and Yankton, S.D.; Bennett, Laurel, Lincoln, Omaha, Winside and Wayne in Nebraska.

The 2013 reunion will be an informal gathering on Saturday, Aug. 3, 2013 at 6 p.m. at Geno's Steakhouse in Wayne with those attending ordering off the menu.

Fleer Family

The 2012 Fleer Family reunion was held Aug. 5 at the Shelter

House in Gilman Park in Pierce.

Thirty-seven people were in attendance from Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska.

Walt Fleer of Hoskins was the oldest person present. The youngest was Miles Wurdeman, one-year old son of Dan and Brenda Wurdeman of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Three families from Minnesota traveled the farthest.

The afternoon was spent swimming, walking through the park and enjoying the Antique Tractor Show and the museum in the park.

Next year's reunion will be hosted by Mark and Lois Fleer and Dave and Lavonne Fleer.

BISPHOSPHONATE THERAPY AND THE ORAL CAVITY

What are bisphosphonates?
Bisphosphonates are a class of drugs that are used to prevent bone loss and weakening. Some of these drugs can be taken by mouth, while others must be given intravenously at a hospital or clinic. Are there side effects to my mouth from taking these drugs?
Yes, there is an important but rare side effect you should know about. Less than five years ago, doctors began reporting cases of individuals having difficulty healing after undergoing tooth extraction or other invasive dental procedures, a phenomenon called osteonecrosis of the jaw. The only common factor in these patients was that they were taking bisphosphonate drugs. As a result, most doctors agree that there is an association between osteonecrosis of the jaw and bisphosphonates.
What can I do to avoid this condition if I am taking bisphosphonates?
You should discuss with your dentist ways to minimize the risk of needing invasive procedures (extractions and oral surgery).

Frequent professional cleanings, attention to home care, and careful observation of any changes in your mouth are a good start. It is best to attempt to preserve teeth, rather than extract them. The best scenario is one where dental work is planned and executed before therapy with bisphosphonates is started.
Should I stop taking my bisphosphonates before dental procedures?
No. Not without the advice or instruction by your physician. These drugs have been shown to be stored within the bones and slowly released over time. It is believed that, even when not taking the medications, the drugs can persist in the bone. There is no evidence that stopping the medication will reduce the risk of developing osteonecrosis of the jaw.

Using weather-damaged corn requires caution

You've probably seen all this, but it bears repeating.

Drought, hail, wind, heat, and other factors can cause grain yield of corn to be extremely low. Often, there is much salvage value as forage remaining in this low- and no-grain corn. Silage, green chop, hay, and grazing all are potential options. However, cost of residue harvest can be high, especially when yield per acre is low, so carefully evaluate economics of any salvage operation. Remember to go to droughtresources.unl.edu for all sorts of information.

Check labels of all chemicals applied to be sure they are cleared for forage use and that the minimum harvest interval has been met. Also, check with the USDA Farm Service Agency to maintain compliance with farm programs and check crop insurance requirements before actual harvest.

Nitrate concentrations can reach toxic levels in weather damaged corn. The method of harvest can affect the nitrate level in the forage eventually fed to livestock. When sampling silage or green chop for nitrates, take representative grab-samples from at least six areas of the feeding face of the pit or mound mix the samples and get an amount to fill a plastic bag that can be sealed at the top. Compress the air out of the bag and seal. Samples can be chilled or frozen if a delay in shipping is anticipated.

Two widely used labs in Nebraska are Ward Labs out of Kearney and Midwest Labs in Omaha. Fees vary from about $7 for just nitrate testing to $15-$30 for a more thorough feed analysis. Check their web pages for fees. We have some sample bags and mailers from Ward Labs at the Haskell Ag Lab in Concord.

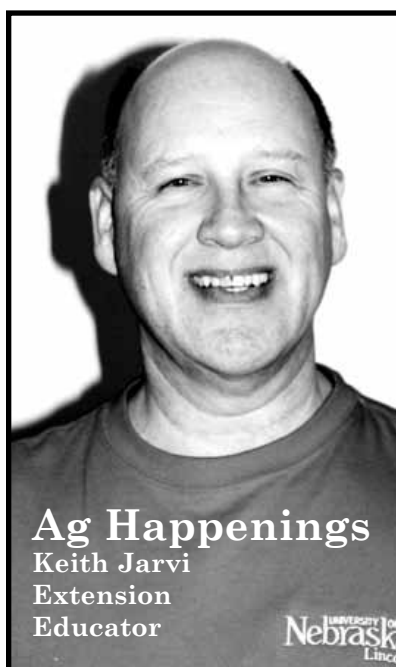

Silage may be the safest method of harvest as fermentation usually (but not always) reduces nitrate levels and risk. Timing is most critical with silage to get correct moisture for proper fermentation; the desired moisture level for silage is around 65 percent.

There are several ways to reduce moisture content. If corn has pollinated, delay silage harvest until all chances of increased biomass tonnage have passed or plants naturally dry down to appropriate moisture levels for silage. For proper moisture of silage, most leaves may need to be dead before chopping because the stalk and ear hold amazingly high water concentrations. Corn also can be windrowed and allowed to partially dry before chopping. Excessively wet material can be blended with drier feeds such as ground hay, cracked grain, or dried distillers grains but it can take a lot of material, about 500 lbs. grain or hay to reduce 85 percent moisture chopped corn down to 70 percent moisture!

Green chop minimizes waste but may be the most dangerous way to salvage corn. Nitrates, if present, will start to change into nitrites (about 10 times as deadly) as green chop begins to heat. Only chop and feed immediately an amount animals will clean up in one feeding. Chop and feed two or three times per day instead of providing excess feed from a single chopping. Clean out bunks if any green chop remains two hours after feeding and never feed green chop held overnight because nitrites can be exceptionally high. Be sure to allow plenty of bunk space (36 inches per cow is recommended) so boss cows don't overeat and timid cows can get their share.

Hay may be most difficult method of mechanical harvest, especially if ears have started to form. Both stalk and especially ears will be slow and difficult to dry. The use of a crimper when windrowing is highly recommended. Nitrate levels will not decrease in hay as they might in silage, so cutting to leave a tall stubble, such as 8 inches, will reduce some of the nitrate risk. Tall stubble also will elevate the windrow off the ground, allowing air to circulate better through the forage and aid in drying.

Ag Happenings

Extension
Educator

Challenges with grazing include acidosis risk for cattle not accustomed to grain if ears have started to fill (smart cows will selectively graze ears), waste from excessive trampling, availability of drinking water, perimeter fencing, and nitrates.

Reduce acidosis risk by feeding increasing amounts of grain similar to feedlot step-up rations before turning into standing corn. Reduce waste by strip grazing with at least two or three moves per week; daily is best.

Back fences are not needed because regrowth is not expected. Water can be hauled as with winter corn stalks or lanes might be constructed back to water sites using electric fence if the distance is not too long or across roads. If strip grazing, animals can walk back over previously grazed areas since back fences aren't needed.

Perimeter fences can be built using the same fencing as for winter stalks. Cows are likely to respect such fencing but inexperienced calves may not remain where desired. To better control calves, use a double strand of electric wire and/or a more visible barrier such as electric polyrope or polytape. Animals not already experienced with electric fences may need some exposure and training before risking in a corn field.

Nitrates usually are not a problem with grazing since the highest concentration is in the stem base, which is the plant part of the corn least likely to be consumed. Risk increases, though, if animals are forced to 'clean-up' a strip before moving to fresh feed and when corn plants are short (probably less than 3 feet tall) with small, palatable stem bases. Tests for nitrate concentration (whole plant and just bottom 8 inches of stem base) can be made prior to grazing to assess risk. If nitrate levels are risky, the hazard can be reduced by offering enough desirable forage to discourage consumption of hazardous plant parts as a major component of diet. Also, waiting for plants to mature more fully before grazing often lowers nitrate rise.

Enjoying the Olympic events

I was so looking forward to the Olympics. And, tonight, I find I am tired of them. One can only watch so much swimming and gymnastic events!

I don't even mind that we learn the winners before we see the actual competition. In fact, it makes it less stressful when we know that Michael Phelps has another gold, and that the little cutie nicknamed Gabby took the all-around gold. But, I'm ready to move on to track and field, and wrestling, and the basketball and volleyball finals.

Think how tired of it all the volunteers involved must be. It becomes a marathon like no other. Once again, we see empty streets and restaurants, because the locals have left town. We saw it happen in Atlanta, in 1996. We actually had guests at the B&B who had rented out their home and went on vacation. It's hard for me to imagine the organization it must take for this whole spectacle.

Most of all, we have enjoyed seeing Hooper, Neb., native Jordan Larson with that memorable jump serve. It's been strange to have Destinee Hooker on our side; she was such a presence when we had to play Texas and she was there. We were glad that the men's basketball team got some competition from

By: Pat Meierhenry

Lithuania on Saturday.

Coach K never seemed to get excited, even when we were behind. Geno, from Connecticut, however, coaching the women, gets very excited, unlike the fellow coaching women's volleyball. Different strokes for different folks, I think the saying goes.

When we learn the stories behind the competitors, it gets even more interesting. To think that Gabrielle Douglas knew at age 14 that she needed to move to Des Moines and work with Shawn Johnson's coach boggles the mind. And to think that her mother finally allowed it, and another family took her in. Such determination, and commitment, deserves to be rewarded. But, in order for her to win, someone else had to lose, and there were tears. These girls are only 15 and 16 years old, for goodness' sake. I can't imagine the pressure.

Speaking of a 15-year-old and pressure, what about the swimmer who won the women's 800? She started fast, and never slowed down!

I have a friend here in town who, I'm sure, is lamenting the fact that Federer got beat, but it was heart warming to see Murray go into the crowd and hug his family. It had been just the opposite on the same court a month ago.

One more thing, that lucky Will and Kate have been attending all kinds of events. It must be nice to have reserved seats in all the venues. And they are so cute!
