Area farmers to feel effect of NRD decision

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Producers in several areas in Wayne, Pierce and Madison counties will be affected by last week's meeting of the Board of Directors Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD).

A large crowd was on hand for the meeting, including a number irrigators, domestic well owners and the general public.

Rick Wozniak, water resources manager for the LENRD, spoke to the group and shared a list of five standard controls that LENRD staff recommended to the board in regard to groundwater management area rules and regulations.

These include no new irrigated areas in the subarea, mission is granted to irrigate cover crops), mandatory educational requirements, installation of devices for measuring groundwater withdrawls on irrigation wells and new and replacement domestic wells must be constructed to a depth that they are less likely to be affected by seasonal groundwater declines.

The subareas in Wayne County, which includes all of Hancock, Brenna, Plum Creek and Strahan Townships, the south half of Chapin townships and sections 25 through 36 of Hunter and Wilbur Townships will be required to have measuring devices installed by May 1, 2013 and will be allowed to apply 13 inches of water per acre per year with a sprinkler irrigation system and 17 inches for a gravity system.

The Eastern Madison County subarea will have requirements similar to that of the Wayne County subarea, including the installation of measuring devices by May 1, 2013 and allocations for sprinkler and gravity irrigation systems.

"Our staff worked with Bill Kranz, Irrigation Specialist at the Haskell Ag Lab at Concord, to estimate how much water it has taken to produce corn. We determined averages for an area near Elgin and at Concord. Then we added in a standard deviation to arrive Several areas in Madison and Pierce counties will at make sure there is enough water to produce a crop,"

Wozniak said.

Several members from the audience spoke to the board, including Dave Domina of Omaha, an attorney for several producers.

He offered several suggestions and opinions in regard to language in the amendments.

Following approximately two hours of discussion, the board voted 12-1, with Joel Hansen of Wayne voting against, to adopt the staff recommendations for amending the groundwater management area rules and regulations; and 12-1, with Hansen again dissenting, to issue an order to designate quality subareas in Pierce, Madison and Wayne Counties.

The board also voted to provide assistance to domestic well owners who had submitted applications after the original deadline, but before the end of 2012.

BLUE DEVILS IN THE PINK WHILE THEY 'TAKE A CHARGE FOR CANCER'

The Wayne High girls basketball team hosted 'Take A Charge For Cancer' night Thursday when they played West Point-Beemer at Wayne High School, and there was plenty of pink on display in support of local efforts to fight cancer. Wayne County Relay For Life sold baked goods and three local businesses - Tacos & More, Sinclair and JZ's Skills and Drills, donated a combined $540 as the result of the number of fouls called in the game. From pink shoelaces to pink T-shirts and polos worn by the Wayne High coaching staff, Blue Devil fans were definitely "thinking pink" during Thursday's basketball game.

Gail Hill

Gail Lorene Hill, 86, of Allen, died Sunday, Jan. 20, 2013.

Private graveside services were held. Saturday, Jan. 26 at Eastview Cemetery in Allen. A memorial service was also held Saturday, Jan. 26 at the United Methodist Church in Allen.

www.mywaynenews.com

Gail Lorene Hill was born to Merle and Edna Jones and grew up on the family farm south of Allen. Gail went to country school before going into Allen for High School. Upon graduation, she took a job as a teacher in a one-room school where she not only taught all the subjects for grades 1-8, but also was the janitor, kept the wood stove going, shoveled a path to the door, and did any other chore that was needed to keep the school operational. When the war began, she went to work driving a fork lift in a bomb factory in Mead. Soon after, she was at a basketball game in Allen when she was spotted by Keith Hill, just home from the War after a stint in the Navy. Sparks flew and they were married on Sept. 18, 1946 at the family farm.

Keith and Gail set up home in a tiny house in Allen. While Keith was working at the Cash Store, Gail was the housekeeping queen of Allen polishing and shining and starching curtains like nobody's business. They welcomed two children into this home - Janice and Kevin. In 1955, they moved up the hill to the house where Keith had grown up. Shortly after, Timothy was born and the family was complete. Gail continued to work in the home, sewing clothing for the kids, providing delicious meals and a wonderful atmosphere for her family. Once Tim graduated from High School, she joined Keith at the Cash Store, a mainstay in the Allen community, and they operated it until they retired in 1988, turning the reins over to Kevin. Always one for exercise, she walked to work everyday, often accompanied by the family dog, Lucky. She was involved in many activities in the Allen Community - Brownie and 4-H leader, ELF Club, Legion Auxiliary, and many committees in the Allen Methodist Church where she was a member until her death.

Keith and Gail enjoyed many adventures with family and friends ~ trips to Europe, New Zealand, Australia, Tahiti, Hawaii, the Caribbean, as well as trips with their kids and their families. They also spent 20 years wintering in Sun City West, Arizona. For the last two years, she and Keith resided at Northern Hills Independent Living in Sioux City, Iowa where they made new friends and were even crowned King and Queen of the Northern Hills Homecoming festivities.

Survivors include her husband of 66 years, Keith; daughter Janice and Bob Eder of Tucson, Ariz.; son Kevin of Allen; son Tim and wife, Karen of Elkhart, Kan.; grandchildren Collin Eder and wife, Jaime and Gail's first great-grandchild, Adeline Mae of Portland Ore., Derek Eder and wife, Aya, of Chicago, Emily Hill of Northglenn, Colo., and Adam Hill of Ft. Collins, Colo.

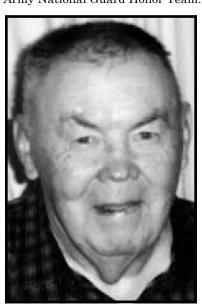

Gail was preceded in death by her parents; one sister, Arlene Luhr, and one brother, Merlin Jones.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

City Council Meetings

Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Going Long

In the 1980's Wayne placed a large bet on the long term quality and quantity of ground water five miles north of Wayne when they spent several million to purchase the right to pump water from private land and install wells and a 15 inch water main back to Wayne. There are three wells there now and two wells closer to Wayne.

To date, this has proven to be a good, long term investment. As a part of our due diligence for our drinking water customers, we need to pay attention to the areas around the wells. We have just completed a thorough look at these areas and at the ground water there. As expected, except for one marginal well close to town which we monitor closely, we found the areas to be very clean, continually well managed by the landowners and the water to be good.

The city council has scheduled a public hearing at 5:30 p.m. at the Tuesday, Feb 19 city council meeting to adopt a permanent long term Well Head Protection Plan to provide a long process to monitor our drinking water source areas over

This meeting will be held at the Senior Center and we invite Wayne and Wayne County residents to attend. The purpose of our Well Head Protection Plan is to:

- 1. Identify the Wellhead Protection Areas.
- 2. Inventory potential sources of contamination.

- 4. Develop emergency and contingency plans and long term water system planning.

BLACK CYAN MAGENTA YELLOW Basketball goals are back up in Wayne City Auditorium

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Ten years ago, the opening of the Wayne Community Activity Center and renovations to the Wayne City Auditorium led to the removal of the basketball goals at the downtown building.

Now, they're back up again.

The Wayne City Council approved the reinstallation of basketball goals at the 75-year-old building last month, and city crews put the finishing touches on the new goals this past week.

"When the city renovated the City Auditorium, they decided to take kets set up at the Activity Center," few meetings, but is not in use during the week."

The growth of youth basketball, along with other youth recreational sports, led to the addition of temporary basketball goals at the auditorium. The goals, however, encroached the end line, and with the help of donations, the permanent goals were installed on the north and south walls of the auditorium, bringing basketball back to the old facility.

Koch said Wayne basketball basketball lines on the floor of the city recreation director Alex Koch auditorium last year, and donations said. "But the need I've seen is that from Kelby and Joelle Hermann we have this nice building that is and the Wayne Basketball Developonly used for some weddings and a ment Association (WBDA) made the hoops and padding on the walls possible. The Kniesche family also purchased a portable scoreboard that can be used for games played at the auditorium.

> The reinstallation of baskets has been a welcome addition for Koch who has had a tough time scheduling all the recreational and travel teams' practices. A total of 10 travel teams - including boys and girls in grades 4-8 - and eight city recreation teams play in Wayne.

"There is a constant need for facilities for practices, since teams generally practice 2-3 times a week," Koch said. "We have an overflow of basketball teams and other recreation sports like wrestling, so the (City Auditorium) needs to be used and it would be better utilized with the hoops in place."

Nominations needed for WHS Athletic HOF

To recognize exceptional achievements of Wayne High School athletes and others who have made worthy contributions to the athletic program, the Hall of Fame Board is accepting nominations for the "Athletic Hall of Fame".

To be considered for the Hall of Fame, a period of 15 years must have passed since graduation for an athlete and a period of five years since leaving Wayne High School must have passed before coaches are eligible.

Nomination forms for former athletes/coaches may be obtained at the Wayne High School office or by visiting the Wayne Schools web page at wayneschools.org under high school/student services/athletics/ Hall of Fame forms.

The deadline for nominations is Friday, March 15, 2013. Nominations must be submitted to: Rocky Ruhl, Athletic Director, Wayne High School, 611 W. 7th St., Wayne, NE 68787 or e-mailed to roruhl1@ wayneschools.org.

Results no reflection of who we are

Many times, deep in the heart of the winter sports season, I get to thinking about life away from inside the lines

Lately, my thoughts have been about how easy, and wrong, it is to define who we are by the sports teams we associate ourselves with as fans.

Have you ever noticed that, when your favorite team is winning, it's all about "we." Conversely, when your favorite team is losing, suddenly "they" are getting beat.

To give you an example, I heard people in town talking about the Wayne State women's basketball team. Last year, when the team was driving toward its first Elite Eight appearance, all the discussion was about how "We're going to the Elite

Less than 12 months later, as the team lost has struggled to maintain the level of success it has experienced in recent years, those same people are talking about how "THEY are not playing well right

It's the same thing in pretty much every town you drive into. "We" are having a great season in a certain sport if the team is winning, while "they" aren't doing so well if the team is losing. We've all said that at some point in time when we're talking about one of the local high school or college teams, or even our favorite college or pro team (Believe me, I'm just as bad – when the Seattle Seahawks were horrible throughout much of the 1990's, "they" were awful; today, "we" were just seconds away from the NFC championship game before Atlanta came back to knock "us" – or is it "them"? – out of the playoffs).

I sometimes wonder if this "we" vs. "they" mentality gets to the kids who are representing their schools between the lines. Does the success and/or failure of a team cause a positive or negative self-perception in the kids who represent their schools, and communities, in the athletic arena?

Again, as an example - Winside's basketball teams are having what could generously be described as a disappointing year. The girls have won only a couple of games, while the boys are playing with a roster of seven varsity players and are winless on the season.

Are these boys and girls losers? Are they physically challenged? What's wrong with these kids, any-

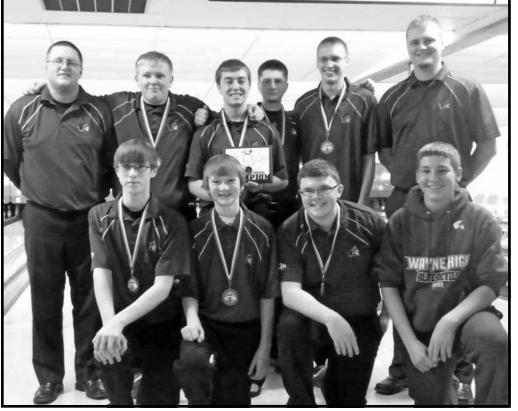

The answer to those questions are: no, no and nothing.

Some communities are known for certain sports. Winside is known for its wrestling. Their wrestling program has had a tremendous amount of consistent success for much of the past 2-3 decades, thanks to some tremendous coaching and a community-wide passion for the sport.

That's not to say Winside's basketball players are the also-rans in the student body. They're good kids with a passion for the game of basketball, faced with the challenge – due to their lack of numbers and/or inexperience – of playing kids at a varsity level that, in a normal year, would likely be playing JV or freshman ball.

That doesn't make them losers, or also-rans, or any other negative connotation you can come up with. The scoreboard may be judge, jury and executioner when it comes to the game being played, but it has little to no bearing on the game of Wayne High's football team went 2-8 this season. The boys basketball team, as of this writing, is 16-3. Is the losing season "they" had in football any more, or less, a representation of the success "we" are having in basketball this season? Considering that most of the players on the basketball team were also members of the football team, the obvious answer is that they are one in the same, and we, as Wayne residents, should be proud of their efforts, re-

The Lady Bears of Laurel-Concord/Coleridge are starting to heat up, as they have a chance to be the last NENAC girls basketball champions later this week.

After posting a 54-29 win at Wakefield on Thursday, the LCC girls entered NENAC tournament play for the final time this week and won its first two games to earn a shot at the championship against top-seeded Randolph on Thursday

The Lady Bears reached the tournament finals with two solid wins, beating Creighton on Saturday 58-47 and claiming a 50-42 win over West Holt on Thursday at Creighton High School.

In the first-round matchup, the Lady Bears got off to a slow start, but finished strong behind the shooting of Cameron Eddie, who led three Lady Bears in double figures with 20 points. Ellie Arduser added 16 points and Katie Gubbels put in

On Monday, the Lady bears used combination of patient offense and tough defense to hold off the Huskies and move on to the finals on Thursday. LCC led by nine at the break, but West Holt made a game of it before the Lady Bears put it out of reach in the final period.

WSC's Epp is out for season

The most imposing figure in the middle for the Wayne State women's basketball team has been forced to the sidelines for the remainder of the season.

Epp has sidebeen lined with a heart ailment for the rest of the 2012-13 campaign, according to coach Chris Kiels-meier. "It's one

those things that's out of your control and we're not going to hang our head on it," he said. "We've had to battle through a lot of adversity and we'll try to get through it and hope for good things for Whitney.

The 6-foot-6 sophomore from Des Moines, Iowa was out for a couple of weeks earlier in the season, but returned against Augustana last Tuesday, Jan. 22. She played some in home games against Minot State and University of Mary before the ailment slowed her down a second time.

Epp started in five of 10 games this season and averaged 2.4 points, 3.2 rebounds and 3.1 blocks per game. As a freshman last year, she led the team in blocks with 59 and had a career-high six blocks three times last season.

Wildcats drop two on road, back home this weekend away with a 73-59 win Friday in Northern Sun Conference action in Mankato, Minn.

The road wasn't any kinder to the Wildcat men on Saturday, as they fell to 12-8 overall and 6-8 in the NSIC with a 74-65 loss at Concordia-St. Paul on Sat-

Wayne State trailed 12-11 on a Jordan Holdsworth layup about 7 1/2 minutes into the game, but the Mayericks went on a 9-1 run to take a 21-12 advantage, putting the Wildcats in catchup mode from then on.

Wayne State got baskets from Holdsworth and Derrell Williams with seven minutes to go before the half to make it 21-16, but Wayne State would not score again until almost 2 1/2 minutes into the second half, as the Mavericks scored the last 12 points of the first half and the first five of the second to take a 38-16 lead.

Williams tipped in a miss to finally end the scoreless streak with 17:42 to go, and Wayne State did make it interesting, using a 13-0 run to cut a 28-point deficit down to 15 before the Mavericks righted the ship and finished with the 14-point win.

Williams had 17 points and eight rebounds to lead Saturday at 6 p.m. at Rice Auditorium.

Seventh-ranked Minnesota State held Wayne State the Wildcats in the losing effort, while Holdsorth scored without a basket for more than nine minutes and came a career-best 15 points. LaTroy Wright also finished in double figures with 12 points.

Wayne State jumped out to an early 8-3 lead at Concordia on Saturday, but the Golden Bears bounced back and finished the first half in good shape to take an eight-point halftime lead after a Holdsworth 3-pointer tied the game at 25-25 with 4:03 to go in the half.

Concordia-St. Paul went on a 10-2 run before intermission, then followed that up with an 8-2 surge to start the second half, turning a tie game into a 14-point lead with 14:45 to go.

Wayne State rallied to within four points four minutes later on a pair of free throws by Ty Bauschek, but Concordia answered with a seven-point run of its own to lead by 11, and Wayne State never got closer than Williams led the way with 20 points and seven boards for the Wildcats, while Ty Bauschek added 15 points and Wright put in 14.

Area wrestlers do battle at Plainview Invitational

PLAINVIEW - With the regular season winding down, both Wayne and Laurel-Concord/Coleridge faced some tough competition and earned a combined nine medals at Friday's Plainview Invitational. Austin Roach of LCC was the lone first-place medalist from the area at Friday's meet, winning an exciting match over Brandon Becker of Norfolk Catholic in the 170-pound final. It was a rematch of another exciting battle between the two six days earlier at the Oakland-Craig Invite, only it was Roach coming away with the pin, as he stuck Becker midway through the second period.

"Last week, Austin was up 3-1 late in the third and just ran out of gas and got pinned, but today he got after it and was pumped and ready for him, and he wanted him really bad," coach Don Maxwell said. "This was a good win for him, and the Wakefield meet will be a really good tune-up for him before districts. He's really on fire right now."

Ramsey Jorgensen and Demetrius Alexander both earned fourthplace medals to lead the Wayne High boys. Jorgensen faced a tough matchup with Battle Creek JV heavyweight Louis DeJager, who pinned the Blue Devil senior midway through the third period. Winside traveled west to compete in the Ainsworth Invitational, a tournament that featured five highlyranked teams from Nebraska and South Dakota and gave the Wildcats some much-needed experience to prepare for districts and state.

"We went into a meat grinder of a meet, and for our small group I think we came out OK," coach Paul Sok said. "There have been a few years where we've had a hard time getting one or two in the finals here, and we came away with three in the finals and one first, so I felt like we held our own.'

The Wildcats had seven wrestlers win matches on the day, with a number coming up one match short of the medal round. Three did earn medals, led by 195-pound champion Caleb Lienemann, who avenged his loss in last year's final here with a first-period pin of Cory As-

Marcos Escalera wrestled well in the tournament, losing one match in an 18-16 overtime thriller. Dylan Tweedy, Sam Wolfe and Zach Jones also fell one match short of the medal stand.

NSIC launches effort against driving drunk

Late on Saturday night in July of 2012, a drunk driver swerved school will be seen during halfinto oncoming traffic and collided time of conference basketball with a car carrying Southwest games the weekends of Febru-Minnesota State's head men's basketball coach Brad Bigler, his wife, his wife's grandmother and his five-month old son, Drake. Drake was killed in the crash. The driver of the other car had two previous drunk driving arrests in 2000 and 2005.

In honor of Drake, and to encourage students and fans to not drink and drive, Brad and Heather Bigler, the Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference along with the NCAA and the TEAM Coalition are bringing this campaign to NSIC basketball schools. The program will engage Student Athlete Advisory Committees (SAAC) in creating short (30-60 second) videos to underscore the theme - "It's a Slam Dunk - Don't Drive Drunk". Students from each school were able to submit as many video entries as they desire in a contest to determine a school winner and a conference winner.

After the videos were submitted they were judged on Overall Impact, Creativity, Memorable Content and Delivery and Clear Message.

Winning entries from each ary 1-2 and 8-9, 2013. The most outstanding video from all the entries will be recognized during halftime at the NSIC Basketball Tournament Championship

To help further raise awareness, on the weekends of February 1-2 and 8-9, each NSIC SAAC group will have a booth at their arena to have people in attendance sign a pledge card stating that they will not drive drunk. Each person that signs the pledge card will receive a blue bracelet with an inscription of the theme "It's a Slam Dunk-Don't Drive Drunk", the NSIC and NCAA logos along with Drake's name on

Check out a roll of toilet paper?

I've long had a theory - there are more than 7 billion people on this planet, and that's waaaaaaay too many.

To support my theory, here are some items from the "Bits and Pieces"

- From the "This gives new meaning to asking the teacher if you can go to the bathroom" department: A Pennsylvania High School is requiring boys who want to use the facilities to actually request toilet paper.

The school put the policy in place after a number of toilets were intentionally clogged by male students (obviously, girls must have better things to do when they're in the restroom).

Parents are reporting that their kids are coming home sick, rather than suffering the embarrassment of having to, shall we say, ask to squeeze the I guess asking all the boys to knock off the practice under threats of detention – or, better yet, cleaning every toilet in the building – weren't considered by the school administration. Some wayward youth in Great Britian thought throwing snowballs at firefighters working on a boat was a good idea.

The last laugh was on them, though, as a firefighter who had been pelted on his helmet turned a water cannon loose on the nimrods, giving them a nice, icy blast of water from the river the fire crew was floating on.

You can't fix stupid . . . but you can sure hit it with a good blast from a

- If you're one of those individuals who likes to donate to the area casino through the play of slot machines (they don't call 'em one-armed bandits for nothing, folks), here's a story just for you:

A man in Vietnam was playing a small-change slot machine that was advertising a maximum jackpot payout of under $50,000. But he got a little more than that when a machine he was at malfunctioned and displayed an amount equivalent to – brace yourselves – $55,542,296.73.

The casino refused to pay the amount, then offered the winner $8 million before reducing the offer to $10,000, and the case wound up in a Vietnam courtroom. A judge sided with the gambler, and the casino operators may now be forced to pay the $55 million, along with about $3 million in

- From the "Only in Ireland" department: A local township in Ireland is asking the Irish government to allow drivers to be able to drink up to three pints of beer and then be allowed to drive home without penalty.

The Kerry County Council voted 5-3 (with seven abstentions) in favor of Heineman said in his annual State the measure, saying it would "greatly benefit people living alone looking at four walls and restore some bit of social activity in local pubs, and may also help prevent depression and suicide.

The permits would be issued only to people in isolated rural areas who use narrow county roads, where it is difficult to travel faster than 25-30 miles an hour. Police would decide who was eligible to drink and drive.

Sure – let's replace common sense with a bit of suicide-preventing social activity that could lead to unnecessary death and injuries.

- From the "You stay classy, Roger Goodell" department: The National Football League, the pro sports organization that gives lip service to brain injuries and fines and suspends players without just cause, is now in the market of intimidating fans who have trademarked great ideas.

An Indiana man came up with the idea for trademarking "Harbowl" in honor of coaching brothers John and Jim Harbaugh – who are facing off this weekend in Super Bowl XLVII.

Last year, the two coaches met in a regular season game, and remembering Pat Riley's "Three-Peat" trademark, decided to trademark "Haroowl" and sell T-shirts and hats with the insignia on it.

Well . . . since the NFL makes bazillions of dollars every year, they decided that they needed to shut down this little one-man operation, lest it be left out of making a couple thousand dollars on his idea. They intimidated the man after he applied for a trademark for "Harbowl" and "Harpaughbowl," saying that the names infringe on their trademarks.

Rather than cut a deal with the man, the NFL threatened to sue him if he didn't abandon his application, stating they would sue him to recoup

- Annnnnd finally, from our "Some lawyers you CAN trust . . . but not THIS guy" department: A Minnesota lawyer had his license indefinitely suspended after he tried mixing business with pleasure – by billing a client for the time they spent involved in, shall we say, romantic pursuits.

The woman had met with the lawyer in August of 2011 to see about having him represent her in a divorce case, and soon after they began an affair that lasted until the following spring. He billed her for legal services on the dates of their romantic encounters, coding the time as meetings or "drafting memos."

And this isn't the first rodeo for this lawyer, who admitted to the woman's allegations. He was also put on probation in 1997 for purchasing cocaine for a client.

Heineman proposal's future?

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

Given the propensity of politicians and pundits to refer to the Syracuse Tax Study of 1987, it is obvious that Nebraska's tax policy needs to be revamped . . . or at least revisited. Plans announced by lame duck Governor Dave Heineman - who wants to eliminate the state income tax - could easily begin the discussion. The problem with eliminating the tax, a move that Heineman says will spur the growth of business, is that a couple billion dollars of lost revenue will need to be replaced. The governor wants to remove some sales tax exemptions to make up the difference in a move that will seemingly penalize agriculture (farm machinery, energy and water), hospitals (tax on medicine and rooms) and college students (tax on dormitory rooms). A group called the OpenSky Policy Institute brought one of the nation's leading tax policy experts to Lincoln recently. Dr. Richard Pomp, a University of Connecticut professor, says the process by which Nebraska tax reform should occur needs to be careful and well thought-out. Specifically, it needs to be researched, and it should not be hurried. "It certainly isn't something that should be completed in a single legislative session," he cautions.

Renee Fry, executive director of the OpenSky Policy Institute, calls for a complete and thorough inventory of Nebraska's tax system to ensure it is the best code for all Nebraskans. Pomp adds that Heineman's call for the disposal of the state income tax is NOT backed by "substantial empirical evidence" indicating that it has the potential to attract businesses and jobs to Ne-

Governor Ben Nelson created the 3-R Committee (Revenue, Restructuring and Revitalization Committee), which was charged with developing a long-term solution to Nebraska's personal property tax crisis.

True, the issues centered on personal property tax, not the income structure. And they weren't as sweeping as the bold tax move of Governor Norbert Thiemann, who eral public learned the meaning of businessman J.J. Exon, who was making his first bid for public office.

> So now we are left to question whether Heineman's suggestion to bag the personal income tax is a bold bid for a Thiemann-like legacy or just simply folly. Heineman is term-limited as governor and has been all but ruled out as ever being a potential candidate for the U.S.

I also understand that some have concerns about adding more restrictions to these individuals, but I do not see the harm keeping individuals that have committed a sexual crime against a child from living by a park where young children play.

LB601 is a bill that would require Natural Resource Districts to give notice of subcommittee meetings. It also lays out other regulations that the subcommittee meetings would need to adhere to, like the fact that reasonable arrangements need to be made to accommodate the public's right to attend, hear and speak at the meeting, including seating and a reasonable opportunity for input.

The last bill I introduced was LB602, which is the Nebraska Firearms Freedom Act. This bill states that any firearm made/sold and retained in the state would be beyond the authority of Congress under its constitutional power to regulate. This is another way of strengthening our Second Amendment right to own and bear arms. This is also a little push-back against an ever more intrusive federal government.

Wildlife tax checkoff option

Tax season provides an opportunity for Nebraskans to contribute to wildlife and habitat conservation.

Line 42 on the 2012 state income tax form (Form 1040N) allows individuals to donate all or a part of their tax refund to the Wildlife Conservation Fund, which is used to manage nongame and endangered species in the state.

The tax check-off is an important funding source for implementation of Nebraska's Natural Legacy Project. This plan was developed to conserve wildlife before they become rare and more costly to protect.

For taxpayers not entitled to a state tax refund, contributions can be made via NebraskaWildlifeFund. org or by mail to: The Wildlife Conservation Fund, Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, NE 68503-0370.

Are you ready to Wendy Vawser list your house this spring?

Following a successful summer and a very busy fall, spring is around the corner and buyers are looking! So how do you know that now is a good time to list?

Real Estate, like most industries, has a peak time when most of the purchasing is done in a relatively short time. For many years this has been at the end of March through April.

Times are changing! The peak in Real Estate is now close to March 1st. Buyers are getting ready to spend their tax refunds, the sun is shining and everything is stacking up to be a wonderful time for housing sales this spring.

Also, a busy fall season for housing sales, means that the inventory of homes is down even more than normal. Buyers are looking for new inventory, in addition to what's presently on the market. Listing your home now, will catch the attention of many potential home buyers. With home prices rising and the economy recovering, don't delay, start making plans to list your home today.

Call me 402-375-3385 for tips on items you need to pay attention to before listing your house in the spring. I would love the opportunity to sit down and discuss the many ways we can help you.

Your comments are always welcomed at: wendy@mwlco.net.

It's actually easier than you may think. One way that you can help to educate your family about the importance of agriculture in their daily lives is by playing the "Where Does my Food Come from Game." This is a very simple activity that you can do using the meal that your family is eating.

Start by simply asking your family where do you think "x" comes from? For example: "Where do you think pizza comes from?" Answer: the store, restaurant, etc. These are all correct answers, but you can take this question one step farther by saying, "Okay, that's right but what do you think the main ingredient of crust is?" Answer: "Wheat" okay where does wheat come from? Answer: farmer's fields. Another concept you could discuss is in what states/part of the country is wheat grown. This game can continue on for each part of the pizza/meal.

Another fun activity to do with connection between careers/occupations and agriculture. Examples could include: Farmer/Rancher (that's an easy one), Banker (loan's money to producers and producers keep their money in a bank, Car salesman (farmers/ranchers purchase vehicles), Newspaper Owner (Producers may have a subscription or take out ads), Restaurant owner (producers raise the products used to create food), the list could go on

You could create a matching game out of everyday objects. This could be accomplished by finding pictures of various plants/animals and/or items made from them. Then you would ask your family to match the items up with the plant/ animal that they came from. For example: 100% cotton t-shirt - cotton, crayons - soybeans, marshmallow's - corn, leather - beef, chewing gum –corn, football – swine, etc.

As you can see there are many fun and entertaining ways in which you can teach your family about the importance of Ag Literacy in everyday life. If you need additional information/activities on the topic of Agricultural Literacy please contact your local UNL Extension Of-

Co-authors of the book "Tomorrow's Table: Organic ing population while sustaining the environment is a Farming, Genetics, and the Future of Food" are the Heuermann Lecturers at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 12, in the Hardin Hall auditorium on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's East Campus, 33rd and Holdrege.

The title of the book is the title of the public lecture by Pam Ronald and her husband, Raoul Adamchak. Ronald is a professor in the Department of Plant Pathology and the Genome Center at the University of California, Davis, and serves as director of Grass Genetics at the Joint BioEnergy Institute.

Adamchak is market garden coordinator in the Agricultural Sustainability Institute at UC Davis, where he teaches organic agriculture and manages the UC Davis student farm, a 5-acre market garden.

"Tomorrow's Table" was selected as one of the best books of 2008 by Seed Magazine and the Library Journal. In 2012, "Tomorrow's Table" was selected by The New Earth Archive as one of the 25 most powerful and influential books with the power to change the world. Bill Gates calls the book "a fantastic piece of work."

In their book Ronald, a geneticist, and Adamchak, an organic farmer, discuss one of the greatest challenges of our time: how to feed the world's growing population without further destroying the environment.

They'll describe what organic farmers and geneticists are doing to address this challenge.

The book is for consumers, farmers and policy decision makers who want to make food choices and create policy that will support ecologically responsible farming practices, Ronald said, adding it also is for anyone who wants accurate information about organic farming, genetic engineering, and their potential impacts on human health and the environment.

"We are very much looking forward to the Heuermann Lecture by Pam Ronald and Raoul Adamchak," said Ronnie Green, Harlan vice chancellor in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, home of the Heuermann Lectures. "Feeding the world's grow-date following the lecture.

Ronald's laboratory has genetically engineered rice for resistance to diseases and tolerance to flooding, serious problems for rice crops in Asia and Africa. Her research has been published in Science, Nature and other leading peer-reviewed scientific journals, and has been featured in such publications as the New York Times, Forbes Magazine, the Wall Street Journal and more.

She and her colleagues received the USDA 2008 National Research Initiative Discovery Award for their work on flood-tolerant rice. In 2011, Ronald was selected as one of the 100 most creative people in business by Fast Company Magazine. In 2012, Ronald was awarded the Louis Malassis International Scientific Prize for Agriculture and Food and the Tech Award for innovative use of technology to benefit humanity.

Adamchak has farmed organically for 25 years. He worked for eight years as an organic farm inspector for the California Certified Organic Growers, and has served as president of the growers' board. He also has been a member of the board of the Organic Farming Research Foundation.

Heuermann Lectures are made possible by a gift from B. Keith and Norma Heuermann of Phillips, longtime university supporters with a strong commitment to Nebraska's production agriculture, natural resources, rural areas and people.

The lectures focus on providing and sustaining enough food, natural resources and renewable energy for the world's people, and on securing the sustainability of rural communities where the vital work of producing food and renewable energy occurs. A 3 p.m. reception precedes the lecture.

Heuermann Lectures stream live at heuermannlectures.unl.edu, andare archived at the site shortly after the lecture. They are broadcast on NET2 World at a summer's, the long-lasting effects require long-term adaptations from producers who are working with the limited water supply.

Forage specialist suggests ways to cope with drought

As producers throughout the region search for ways to deal with the continuing drought, they can try to take advantage of the limited water they can access. University of Nebraska-Lincoln forage specialist Bruce Anderson suggests how they can do just that.

Many ponds and creeks dried up last year, leaving some cattle producers with only unreliable water "Maybe rain will replenish them good time to develop more wells or tanks," Anderson said. Tank water may be cooler and offer easier access than ponds or creeks. It is often healthier for cattle, and they usually prefer it. When the water and often deposit waste. "No wonder calves consistently choose tank water over ponds when given a choice," Anderson said.

Reports show that the higher water quality found in tanks provides a boost in cattle gains. Calves can weigh an extra 50 pounds at weaning when tank water is available, and yearling steers can gain an extra three- to four-tenths of a pound per day. With this much added performance, pumping water into tanks can pay off in just a few years and offers an even more immediate payoff in the case of dried up ponds.

Another related way producers this spring, but this might be a can adjust to water shortages, according to Anderson, is to grow limpipelines to reliably put water into ited irrigation forages rather than a grain crop. Many irrigated acres may not receive enough water this summer to grow a good grain or root

With a drought as severe as last they stir mud and sediments into one field to get a crop, but that still grass is one good choice. It's less exleaves the other acres with little pensive to plant, its primary water or no water at all," Anderson explained.

Forage crops also need water for highest production, but at least some useful yield can be gathered when total water available is very low. A perennial forage would eliminate the cost and time of establishing a new crop if water limits continue for several more years.

According to Anderson, switch-needs occur in early summer when water usually is available, and it can be managed for hay or pasture. Other warm-season grass options include big or sand bluestem and indiangrass.

"It may not be what you hoped for, but growing forages under limited irrigation may help you make the best out of a bad situation."

Remembering Stan the Man

When the Big Farmer and I were on our honeymoon, way back when, we spent a couple of days in St. Louis. And we took in a major league ball game at Busch Stadium, the old one, of course, and we actually saw Stan Musial play! I remember we marveled at the fact that they sold beer in the stadium, but I guess, considering who built the thing, that was to be expected.

Since then, one of our kids has become a devout Cardinal fan. Plus, a lot of our Lutheran pastor friends are, also, since they spent four years in the seminary in St. Louis. One even had a shrine to the Cards in his office! Kay and Allan make it to a couple games every season; last year, they were there for opening day when they celebrated the winning of the World Series in 2011. Stan the Man was there, as usual.

Mike was switching channels on Saturday, as usual, and he came to Fox Sports Midwest. They were filming the funeral service of Stan Musial. We found it very interesting, from the priest who gave the homily and had obviously known him well, to the eulogy by Bob Costas, to the final thoughts by a son

There were lots of things we did not know about Stan Musial. Number one, he was Polish. I guess that have been a genuinely nice man. The adjectives I heard were modest, patriotic (he was a veteran), and devout.

The son-in-law, who must be a doctor, went to Australia with Stanley and his wife, Lil, and found baseball fans in Tahiti and Melbourne who knew of Stan Musial! One had gone to school at Notre Dame and recognized Stan just from his photos. Stan took out his harmonica and played Take Me Out to the Ballgame for him.

The family was gathered around the bed a week ago, as Stan was dying. They had decided at 3:00 that it would probably be at 6:00. His number had been 6, and Lil had died at 6:00. But the doctor noted that his respirations and pulse had ceased at 5:45. Then, one of the daughters reminded them that he was always 15" early; he said," if you weren't early, you were late!"

Costas quoted Roy Campanella, who said, "To play baseball, you have to have a little boy in you." And then they spoke of the "field of dreams" where all these old ball players would meet again. It was a very touching memorial service, and we watched the whole thing! It was touching to hear all the accolades and learn that he was one fine fellow.

A sincere "Thank You" doesn't seem enough to our relatives and friends who gave cards, memorials, flowers, food, hugs and words of comfort at the loss of our son, brother and uncle, also for attending the Vigil service and funeral.

Thank you to Hasemann Funeral Home, Rev. Mark Beran, Deacon Pat Gross, the musicians, ushers, St. Mary's Ladies who served the meal and everyone else if I forgot you.

The Lord decided very suddenly that it was time for Steven to be with him, and because we believe, we accept that wholeheartedly.

God came for me on Friday to free me from my pain. I said "Dear Lord I'm ready," but there was no time to say "Good Byes" or even grab my cane. Do not grieve for me too long. Just be happy for me now.

I'm on my way to Heaven where Dad is waiting for me. He is going to be showing me around, including his fishing pond he wants me to see.

Do not grieve for me too long. Just be happy for me now. There may be a time when you hear piano music and singing coming from above. Well that will be just us, sending down our love. Do not grieve for me too long. Just be happy for me now.
