Wurdeman recall election date is set

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The relevance of two state statutes did not stop the Wayne County Commissioners from setting a May 14 recall election date for First District commissioner Kelvin Wurdeman.

A hotly-contested discussion between one of Wurdeman's siblings and the board was ultimately decided via an impromptu appearance by County Attorney Mike Pieper, as the board voted 2-1 to set the date for a recall election.

The recall election did not go unchallenged, by any stretch of the imagination, during Tuesday's meeting.

Wurdeman's sister, Patty, quoted two state statutes and demanded that the recall election not go through on her brother, even though petition circulator Jerold

Meyer gathered 342 signatures, more than enough to meet the 250-signature minimum that would trigger a recall election.

Ms. Wurdeman claimed that the petitions were not valid, citing state statute 32-1303 (paragraph 4) that states that the papers must have a certificate noting the principal circulator and the date they were issued. Wurdeman said that those certificates were not noted on any of the petitions that were signed.

Ms. Wurdeman told the board that they were violating the state's election laws by approving the petitions.

"If you go against election law, you guys could be guilty of misdemeanors," she said.

County Clerk Deb Finn noted that the certificate was part of the package of the petitions circulated by Meyer, and was done in accordance with instructions taken from the Nebraska Secretary of State's website. Finn told The Wayne Herald that the process that was followed is similar to the process the state uses for statewide initiatives and referendums.

Originally, board chairman Dean Burbach wanted to set a Tuesday, May 7 recall election date, but Ms. Wurdeman claimed that would violate state statute 32-405, maintaining that a recall election is a special election, and under that statute, an election must be held the first Tuesday after the second Monday of the selected month.

Finn told the board that she received information from the Secretary of State's office that a recall election is not a special election, telling The Herald that recall election date requirements have their own set of standards under state law.

Burbach made the question of the date moot, amending his motion to move the recall election to May 14. The amendment, and the recall election date, were both approved on a 2-1 vote, with Burbach and Jim Rabe voting in favor and Mr. Wurdeman voting against.

Before the vote could be made, Pieper made an appearance at the meeting after taking a phone call from Burbach and Finn during Tuesday's meeting to answer a question regarding the legality of the petition.

Ms. Wurdeman, who was not able to hear Pieper's response over the phone, demanded that the county attorney appear in person to address the issue in a public meeting.

WSC alum makes run for governor

By ERICA BLAKLEY
Of The Herald

Charlie Janssen comes from a small town, but has big dreams.

As a Wayne State College graduate and current Nebraska state senator, Janssen has decided to put his bid in to run for Nebraska's next governor.

"Serving as state senator for the past five years has given me the opportunity to interact with thousands of Nebraskans on issues important to their daily lives as well as their future," Janssen said. "More and more, I came to understand that we shared many of the same ideas to move our state forward and grow our economy."

Originally from Nickerson, Janssen graduated from Logan View High School in 1989 and then Wayne State College in 1997. Upon graduating from high school, Janssen volunteered to join the United States Navy. He served as a search and rescue swimmer aboard a guided missile frigate during the first Gulf War, led a vessel in the hostile waters of occupied Kuwait and had two combat tours in the Persian Gulf.

After completing his time in the armed forces, Janssen set out on a new adventure — college.

"I was 22 when I first enrolled at Wayne State College, so I was looking for a place that I could focus on school, but also fit well into the community since I would be living there as a full-time resident," Janssen said. "I had visited many friends at Wayne when I was back on leave and got to know many people there. So, ultimately, I chose Wayne Janssen has always been into politics for as long as he can remember, a big reason why he wants to lead the people of Nebraska as governor.

"I have always been engaged in our political process, even from the days of student council in high school, and student senate at Wayne State College," Janssen said. "I am not one to sit on the sidelines and complain about what is not getting done. I would rather roll up my sleeves and find out why it's not getting done and work on how to fix it."

Janssen's time at Wayne State College proved to be beneficial in his career as a politician. From the classes he enrolled in to the professors he grew close with, his stay at Wayne has helped Janssen tremendously over the years.

"Maureen Carrigg was my advisor and I took many of her classes," Janssen said. "She was very down to earth, and I think we all connected well with her."

Janssen said that the core classes of broadcast communications has served him well when it comes to interacting with the

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Governor Dave Heineman visited the Temme Dairy, northwest of Wayne, on Tuesday afternoon as part of National Ag Day activities.

Heineman and several representatives of the Farm Bureau spoke as part of the afternoon's activities and praised the efforts of Nebraska ag producers in feeding people throughout the world.

"Agriculture is very strong in the state and the future appears even stronger. Technology and productivity are helping increase the amount of food Nebraska farmers are producing. In the future, we will be responsible for feeding more people with the same, or even, less land."

Heineman talked about trade relations with other countries, including Cuba and China and noted that while he has been governor, trade with these countries has increased.

Loberg accepted for RHOP Program at Wayne State

Katie Loberg of Wayne has been accepted for the radiography portion of the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College.

Loberg is the daughter of Brian and Bonnie Loberg of Wayne.

"The need for rural health professionals continues to grow," said Dr. David Peitz of Wayne State College. "These students have proven themselves to be gifted and dedicated to their profession. They have displayed the potential to develop into strong community leaders."

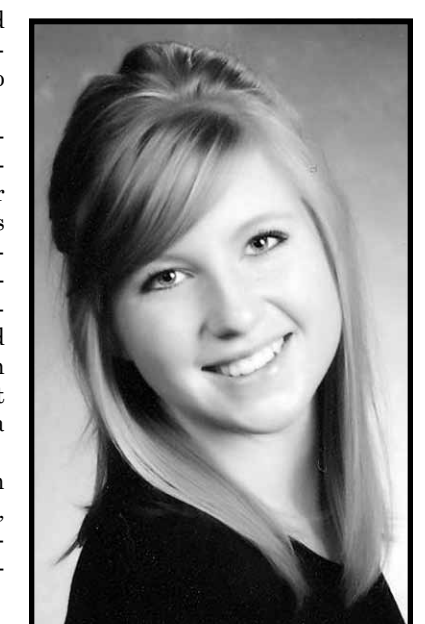

RHOP is a cooperative effort between Wayne State and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) and encourages students from rural areas of Nebraska to return to rural settings after graduation to pursue their career. Individuals selected obtain guaranteed admission to UNMC Colleges upon successful completion of studies at Wayne State College and receive a full-tuition waiver at Wayne State.

Areas of study under the program include clinical laboratory science, medicine; pharmacy; dentistry; dental hygiene; physical therapy, physician assistant and radiography.

A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted higher education institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989. Selection of candidates is based on an applicant's residency in a rural Nebraska community, academic potential and commitment to practice in rural Nebraska.

Information about the RHOP program can be found at: www.wsc.edu/schools/nss/rhop/ or by calling (402) 375-7329 or e-mail preprof@wsc.edu.

Laurel-Concord, Coleridge school districts take look at consolidation

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

For the past three years, the Laurel-Concord and Coleridge school districts have worked in a co-operative arrangement, sharing resources while maintaining their own identities.

The day may soon come when those two districts will become one, as the school boards and their shared superintendent are looking at that possibility, maybe as soon as the 2014-15 school year.

Representatives of both the Laurel-Concord and Coleridge school boards have been getting input from their respective communities regarding a consolidation of the two districts. And while all signs are pointing toward a merger, superintendent Randy Klooz told The Wayne Herald that it is not, by any means, a done deal.

"We're going through the process and seeing if we can agree on what we're looking at," he said. "Nobody I've talked to doesn't want to bring them together, but there are different points of view on how that needs to happen and we're trying to go about it the best way to make sure both sides are treated fairly."

After district reorganization planning meetings were held in late February, the two districts had a chance to go over the input they received from patrons in each community to get a better idea of where the communities stand on a consolidation of the Laurel-Concord and Coleridge districts.

The co-operative districts are already meeting simultaneously on the same night and in the same room, which has helped improve communication between the two boards.

"They each have different agendas, but both boards get to see how the other operates, and I think the communication has definitely improved between the two boards," Klooz said.

If a consolidation were to take place, it would have to be approved by a four-vote majority of both boards, as well as the state's school reorganization board. The soonest the two districts could consolidate would be in time for the 2014-15 year.

"We'd have to get teacher-negotiated agreements and budgets put together, and we'd need to have time to converse with the state and put all that stuff together," Klooz said.

Very little would change in the physical structure of a unified school district from the current co-op status. Elementary and high school students would continue to attend classes at the main building in Laurel, while middle school students would continue going to the Coleridge school building.

The two schools already share teachers and extracurricular programs, and the two districts recently went in together on the purchase of an activity bus, a sure sign that the agreement between the two districts is a solid one.

Klooz said the two districts had originally avoided discussion of a consolidation because of the change in state funding that would take place, resulting in fewer dollars for both schools.

"When they looked at this a few years ago, Laurel was getting $400,000 in state aid and they would have lost that money," he said. "Now, we don't get any state aid, so there's no money to lose and it seems a good time now to look at coming together permanently."

Extra hour no problem for local establishments

By KATIE KASL
Of the Herald

"Open til 2 a.m.!!!" reads a post on the Twitter account for The Max Bar and Grill.

"2 a.m. bar close!!!" reads another.

Since the March 5 City Council decision to allow bars in Wayne to remain open an extra hour year-round, rather than on certain requested days, the establishments have embraced the new 2 a.m. last call, permanently changing its Thursday, Friday and Saturday hours to reflect this.

Ken Jorgensen, owner of The Max, believes the adjustment has been "good, good."

"It's another hour," he said.

Jorgensen claims reactions from customers indicate that they have "no problem" with the 2 a.m. last call.

"People say (they're) getting used to it," he said.

But don't expect extended hours on the rest of the days of the week, as Jorgensen says he doesn't intend to stay open later on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, his least busy days at The Max, unless something special has been planned.

Across the street, White Dog Pub owner Bill Melena wants to do things a little differently.

"For the most part, we're probably not going to stay open," Melena said. "Business as usual, nine to one."

He is, however, willing to make a few exceptions. The bar extended its hours this past weekend for St. Patrick's Day, and Melena says he has plans to take advantage of the new last call during other events, including Wayne's alumni weekend, the Chicken Show and New Year's Eve.

"I was okay either way, staying open 'til two," Melena said. "I've benefitted from it in the past."

Though he's grateful to the city council for letting White Dog remain open during previous occasions, Melena isn't ready to take full advantage of the 2 a.m. last call. He believes the decision to stay open late should depend on the presence - or lack thereof - of customers and knows that tacking on another business hour would mean keeping bartenders and security people around longer, something he's already addressed with his workers.

"I spoke with the employees," Melena said. "Some of them seem fine with it."

But Melena admits there's more to the 2 a.m. decision than just making money.

"I'm always thinking about my employees and customers," he said.

There's a paper sign on the door at Mikey's Place outlining the bar's new hours. The establishment is willing to stay open until 2 a.m. - but only on Fridays and Saturdays and only at the discretion of the bartender on duty.

The switch, owner Mikey Meyer stresses, "is on a trial basis," one he hopes will be trouble-free.

"Most of the things that happen after one usually aren't good," he said.

That's part of the reason Meyer claims he'd have no problem nixing the extra business hour if necessary. There's more too, and the bar owner says he voiced his opinion about the 2 a.m. closing time at the first council meeting in which it was addressed.

"My format for being against it contains, first of all, my employees are college students and/or have another job," Meyer said. "Their focus should be on their school and their regular job."

In addition to his workers, Meyer's also worried about the extra work the town's law enforcement may face.

"I feel the Wayne police force and the sheriff's office will be taxed, because people in the satellite towns that do close at one will make an attempt to get here to close out the night," he said.

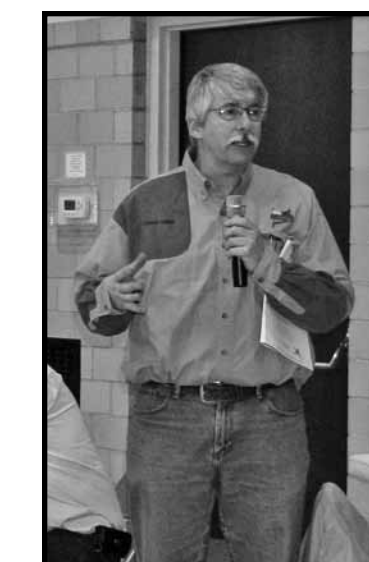

And he's heard from others too.

"I would say that the greater percentage say that it's not needed," Meyer said.

But he and his employees are going to give it a try. He wants to test it out for his younger customers, to, hopefully, hold onto their business.

Meyer's workers, he says, are also onboard.

"They think maybe the Friday and Saturday thing will be okay," he said.

the rest of the state information about Nebraska's number one industry, agriculture," the governor said.

"I am really proud of you (farmers). You do the right thing every single day and offer community support that can only be found in small communities," he added.

He also praised the work ethic of Nebraskans, many of whom grew up on farms and said that because of this Nebraska enjoys the second lowest unemployment rate in the country at 3.8 percent.

"The values we believe in this state originated on the farm."

Steve Nelson, Nebraska Farm Bureau President told those in attendance that Ag Day is a "time to think about all we (those in agriculture) do. We feed the people of the world."

Sen. Ken Schilz, Chairman of the Legislative Committee for the state of Nebraska, said "Nebraska is a great place to be. Growing up on a farm, agriculture shaped my life, as I'm sure it has for many others in the state."

Also in attendance was Greg Ibach, Director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture. He spoke of the positive future of agriculture in Nebraska.

"We are currently in a great agricultural financial situation. We need to continue to see how agriculture fits into our future," Ibach said.

He said that agricultural jobs are plentiful and not only in the production of food.

"We need to keep everyone aware of the role of agriculture in Nebraska, especially consumers."

Following the governor's remarks, he and those in attendance took a tour of the Temme Dairy, which is a third generation operation, started by Fritz Temme and currently being run by Fritz's son, Doug, and grandson, John.

The Temmes recently expanded their operation and Doug and John explained the milking operation, which includes milking 680 cows, three times a day.

Audit, property sale highlights Council meeting

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

The city's financial health, the installation of a barrier fence and the sale of city-owned property just outside city limits were among the items discussed during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Terry Galloway, with Alquist, Maltzahn, Galloway & Luth, PC., was present at the meeting to discuss the fiscal year 2011-2012 audit of the city's finances.

Galloway praised the efforts of those city employees he works with when conducting the audit and noted that he uses Wayne as a model when working with other cities.

"I enjoy working with the City of Wayne. You have good, competent people," he said.

Galloway had both good news and bad news for the city during his presentation.

He noted that the city does a good job of holding down spending and keeping under budget. Taxes paid by local residents, as well as spending within city departments is generally lower than in other parts of the state.

However, he told the council that rates for electricity and fees at the transfer station need to be examined and increased to create additional resources for these departments, which are currently operating negatively.

Galloway also noted the city needs to look at increasing its General Fund Reserve, which currently stands at $616,269. He said the amount in that funds should optimally be closer to $1.2 million.

The council spent considerable time discussing the installation of a partial visual barrier fence on city property on the northwest side of the city trail, which borders the Benscoter Subdivision.

The owner of the subdivision and the owner of the trailer court, adjacent to the city property, have both agreed to contribute $5,000 toward the cost of fence if the city would pay $5,000.

The fence would remain in place for five years while shrubs and trees being planted in the area grow to create an open park area.

After five years, the fence would become city property and could be used to fence in other city property.

Discussion centered around why the city should have to pay for the fence and the fact that a precedent had already been set several years ago when the trail was originally built and the city said no to a request from a property owner to install a fence along the trail route near his property.

Council members voted 4-3 on the action, with council members Jennifer Sievers, Jon Haase and Dale Alexander voting against. Because a vote to expend city funds requires the majority of the elected council, the action was not approved.

The city moved forward with plans to sell 10 acres of land in the Kardell Industrial Park area to Robert Woehler & Sons Construction, Inc.

Acting as the Community Development Agency, council members and B.J. Woehler, who was present representing the buyers, discussed the conditions of the sale and what needed to be done with the land to make it more usable. Discussion centered around engineering costs and the use of LB840 funds for preparation costs associated with the property.

Wayne County Emergency Manager Nic Kennitz was present at Tuesday's meeting to present information for the adoption of a Disaster Response and Recovery Plan.

He said every county is required to have such a plan and the plan needs to be updated every five years.

Kennitz told the council that the elected officials are "the boss" in terms of making decisions should a disaster occur.

Council members indicated they would be willing to attend training offered by Kennitz to learn the basics of what they, as council members, would be responsible for in the event of a disaster.

Council members approved job descriptions for several city employee positions, including Police Sergeant, Senior Patrolman, Administrative Assistant and Building Manager.

The council gave its approval to Resolution 2013-28, which amends the wage and salary schedule for city employees

The event was sponsored by the Nebraska Humanities Council, City of Wayne, and the Wayne State College Office of Multicultural Affairs and the Office of Residence Life. Therese St. Cyr, mother of several of the dancers of the Many Moccasins, performed with the group on March 17 at the Wayne City Auditorium. New judges named by Gov. Heineman

Nebraska Gov. Dave Heineman has filled the two vacancies on the state's Seventh Judicial District bench.

Norfolk attorneys Mark Johnson and Mike Long have been tabbed to fill the vacancies left behind by the 2012 retirements of judges Robert B. Ensz and Richard Krepela.

Johnson, 57, is president and a partner at the Norfolk law firm of Johnson, Morland, Easland and Lohrborg. He has previously worked at law offices in Norfolk, Fremont and McCook, and received a 2010 special appointment from the Nebraska Attorney General's office to serve as an assistant attorney general for a case. He holds bachelor and law degrees from the University of Nebraska.

Long, 45, is the deputy county attorney for Madison County who was responsible for prosecution of felony and misdemeanor criminal cases, including sex offender proceedings. Before then, he served as a deputy attorney in Scotts Bluff County and was the Antelope County attorney. He is a Nebraska-Kearney graduate with a law degree from Creighton University.

Wayne County to host national search class

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Wayne County will be the host site for a national search and rescue school next year.

The week-long class, which will happen sometime in April 2014, is a Coast Guard Class that deals with search and rescue operations. This is the first time a Nebraska entity has hosted this national class.

Nic Kennitz, Wayne County Emergency Manager, said the opportunity to host the school came after the county's emergency management operations were called to Ponca for action last summer in a water rescue along the Missouri River.

"Someone at the state emergency management agency knew we had been up there and how things went, and they mentioned the class was looking for a host site," he said. "We looked over the requirements and found that we met them, and the state and National Guard Nebraska approved our application, so we sent it in."

The National Search and Rescue School will be limited to 24 students from all across the country, a combination of military and state and county emergency personnel who will be trained in a variety of search and rescue situations. According to information Kennitz presented to the Wayne County Commissioners on Tuesday, some local emergency personnel could be among the 24 students who will be in attendance, which includes state and county emergency services, state or county law enforcement, agencies who respond to missing aircraft searches, first responders and other similar personnel.

Kennitz said there is an online application process for those who are interested in attending the class, and the Coast Guard will determine which students will be able to attend the class.

"They won't deal with more than 24 students, so as not to jeopardize the quality of the class," Kennitz said.

Since it's the first time such a class has been held in Nebraska, Kennitz said there are a lot of items on the agenda to get ready for this class to come to town.

"It's never been in Nebraska before, and it's a classroom exercise so there won't be a bunch of people out in the woods or anything," he said. "We'll not only be representing Wayne, but all of Nebraska, so we want to make sure we do a good job hosting it."

media and the public. A philosophy class he took has also stuck with him over the years.

"It's amazing how a lot of that critical thinking applies in so many different instances," Janssen said.

It's safe to say that Janssen has faced many challenges throughout his lifetime, and becoming governor of Nebraska is just another challenge that he is ready to tackle.

Wurdeman

Fifteen seconds after she made her request, Pieper walked in and immediately conversed with the county board and Finn, asking the County Clerk if she carried out the petition requirements and found the existence of a valid number of signatures.

Wurdeman did move that the board delay accepting the petition until they could get a clarification regarding the question of state statute 32-1303. Pieper asked if there was a second to Wurdeman's motion, which was quickly denied by both Burbach and Rabe.

In other action, the board:

- received an offer from Jerry Conradt of the Wayne Municipal Airport Authority for a county board member to sit in a non-voting capacity with the Airport Authority.

- heard an update on financing county road and bridge improvements from Phil Lorenzen of D.A. Davidson and Co.

- heard an update on the Hoskins-to-Neligh transmission line from Jedd Fischer of Nebraska Public Power District.

- accepted a bid of $151,034 from Murphy Tractor of Sioux City for a new 42,000-pound hydraulic excavator.

- accepted the delinquent tax sales of March 4 in the amount of $57,824.60 for 32 parcels.

- appointed Mae Greve to a three-year term on the Northeast Nebraska Area Agency on Aging advisory board.

- determined that a meeting with the City of Wayne on the flood plain administrator position will need to be held in the near future.

- awarded lawn mowing and spraying services for the courthouse and Health and Human Service property to Hytrek Lawn, and irrigation services for both buildings to Claussen and Sons.

- heard an update on the Avenue of Flags from Brad Wieland.

Meeting as the Board of Equalization earlier in the day, the board approved tax exemption applications for Bethany Cemetery Association of Carroll, Forward Wayne (also known as Majestic Theatre) of Wayne, and Wayne Veterans Association. Applications were rejected for Providence Medical Center, Grace Lutheran Church, Carroll United Methodist Church, Winside St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Norfolk Area Habitat For Humanity.

Area gridiron stars to take field for first all-star game

Three area football players will be part of the first Northeast Nebraska All-Star Football Classic, scheduled for June 8, at Norfolk's Veteran's Memorial Park.

Ramsey Jorgensen of Wayne High and Laurel-Concord/Coleridge standouts Kyle Kardell and Justin Saunders will play for the Red team, coached by former Wayne High coach Rich Rethwisch.

Blue Devils open with good efforts at Wayne State Indoor

The Wayne High track teams kicked off the 2013 spring season with the annual Wayne State Indoor Invitational on Saturday at the WSC Recreation Center.

On the girls side, Wayne picked up a total of nine medals, highlighted by runner-up finishes from the 640- and 1,600-meter relay teams.

The sprint relay team of McKenna Frevert, Sarah Maxson, Cassie Heier and Meagan Backer finished in a time of 1:34.34, while the 1,600-meter foursome of Backer, Maxson, Sydney Harris and Angie Nelson were clocked in 4:42.22.

Heier, Nelson, Maxson and Abbie Hix all were multiple medalists on the day. Nelson placed fourth in the 1,600 and ran a leg on the fifth-place 3,200-meter relay with Hix, Sylvia Jager and Alyssa Schmale. Hix recorded a sixth in the 3,200, Heier was third in the 400 and Maxson placed third in the high jump.

Madison Frevert and Lexi Sokol also earned medals. Sokol placed third in the shot put, while Frevert was sixth in the 55-meter hurdles.

In boys competition, senior Grant Anderson was a surprise high finisher for Wayne, jumping for the first time since his freshman year and taking runner-up honors in the high jump with a best effort of 6 feet, 4 inches. He was one of two Blue Devils to medal in that event, as Ben Hoskins finished fifth.

Sweetland named as head coach for WHS boys hoops

By MICHAEL CARNES
 Of The Herald

Wayne High School Athletic Director Rocky Ruhl is turning over the reins of the boys basketball program to his longtime assistant.

Rob Sweetland has been named the next Blue Devils head boys basketball coach, replacing Ruhl, who stepped down earlier this month after 20 years at the helm.

Sweetland, who currently teaches physical education at Wayne Elementary, has a total of 17 years of experience as a junior high and senior high basketball coach, 15 of which have been at Wayne. Most recently, he has served as Ruhl's head assistant on the boys varsity program.

"We are very excited for coach Sweetland to take over the program, and I believe his experience and preparation for the position will be a great benefit to our basketball program," Ruhl said.

Sweetland said he is excited about the opportunity.

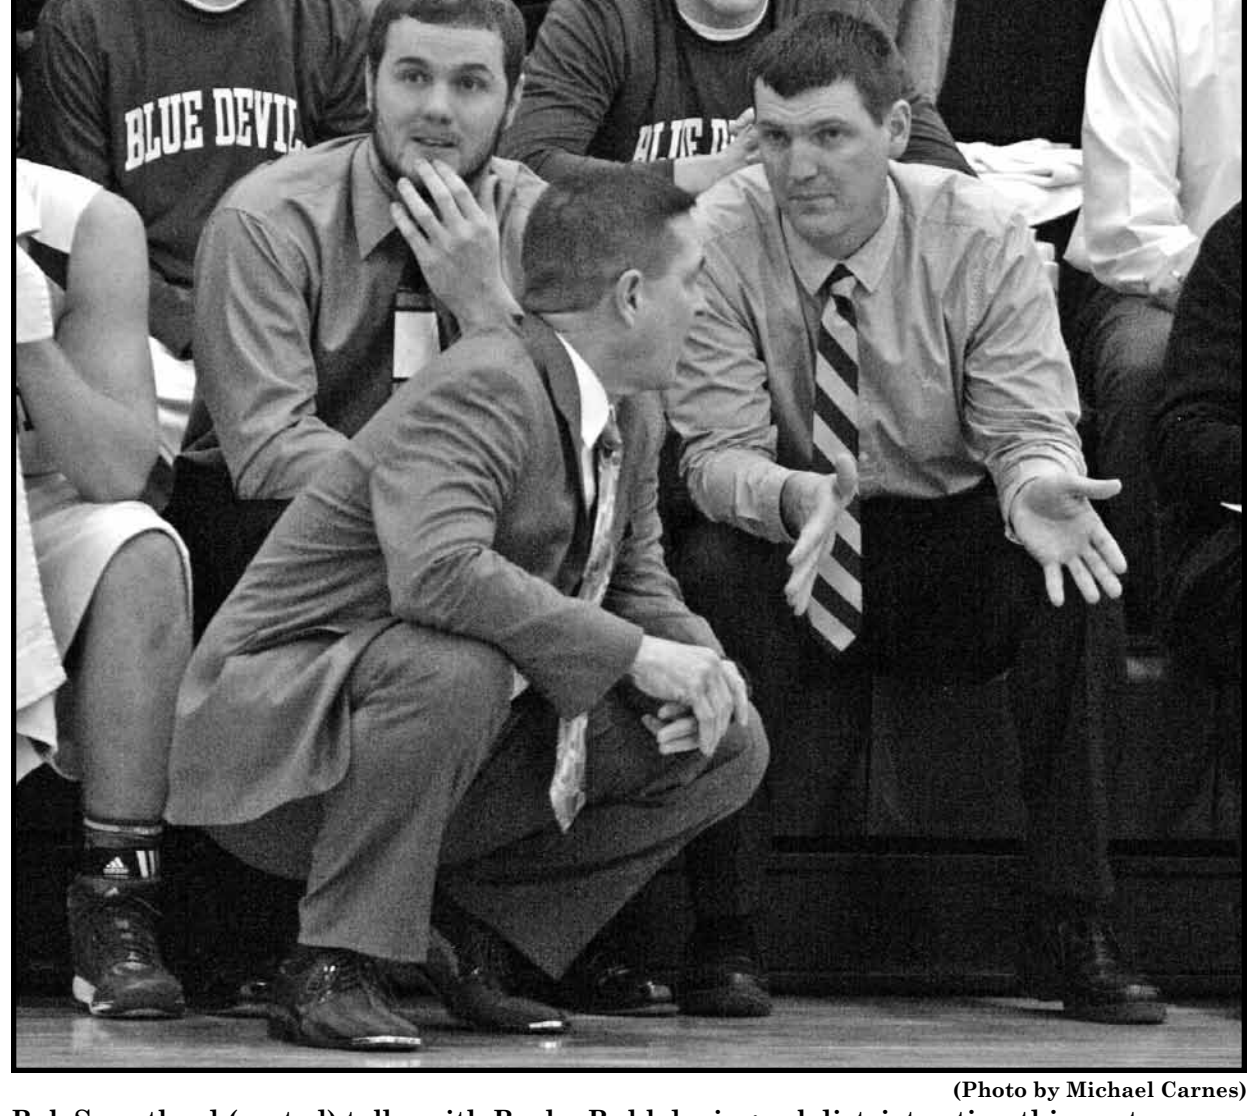

"I am grateful for the opportunity to take over a great basketball pro-

Sweetland will continue to be the head softball coach at Wayne High, a position he has held for the past 11 years, leading the Lady Blue Devils to a 294-58 record, 10 state tournament appearances and two state titles.

Best bracket comes down to ignorance

Got brackets? This is the time of year when all the college basketball know-it-alls find out that, truth be told, they don't know jack.

Or Duke, for that matter. In past columns, yours truly has attempted to show the viewing public just how smart he really is, pitting himself against individuals who, on paper, couldn't hang with me when it came to prognosticating college athletics.

One year, I thought it would be fun to put my hoops IQ up against the basketball intelligence of my (now-former) spouse. Even 20 years later, her knowledge of sports is limited to three things:

- Nebraska has a football team,
- Nolan Ryan pitched for the Texas Rangers, and
- Joe Montana had a nice tush.

Asking her to break down a 16-team bracket was a little like asking my 5-year-old niece to summarize the social, economic and geopolitical ramifications of a My Little Pony episode on Cartoon Network. The randomness of my ex-wife's bracket provided no end of comedy for those who read it and compared it to the surgical precision of my expertly-constructed bracket.

She liked Arkansas to beat Duke, because her family was from Arkansas and her brother's nickname was Duke. I liked North Carolina over Connecticut, for reasons that made much more logical sense, from a basketball perspective, than hers.

The first weekend of that tournament, I sat and watched in horror as three of my Final Four picks - including the Tar Heels and Huskies - went down to defeat in the span of 90 minutes.

So who played for the championship that season? Guess. And, yes, Arkansas did beat Duke on Championship Monday.

I filed for divorce Tuesday morning.

I'm sure there are bracket-picking contests aplenty floating around town, to go along with the gazillion other "bracket-buster" contests available on the Internet. And if you're one of those guys (or gals) who loves your college basketball, and who knows the difference between Gonzaga and Georgetown, you should know something - you've got NO chance to win.

On the other hand, if you are picking your teams using any of the following criteria:

- Cuteness of school mascots,
- Familiarity with a school's assistant coach,
- The city a school is located, or
- Some weird random association that nobody else could possibly understand, then you are most likely the one who will be cashing in by the time the Final Four rolls around.

The only sure thing in picking an NCAA tournament bracket is that you can guarantee four first-round wins by picking the No. 1 seeds. Never, since the tournament went to 64 schools in the mid 80's, has a top seed lost to a bottom seed (although there have been a few close ones).

After the 1 vs. 16 matchups, though, it's anybody's guess.

The kiss of death for most bracket pickers is by picking too many No. 1 seeds to go to the Final Four. If you pick one or two, you have a pretty good shot. Pick three (as I have this year), and you're going to have to ride a serious wave of luck. Only morons pick all four No. 1's to go to the Final Four (I think it's happened once).

Ultimately, the more you know about college basketball at the Div. I level, the less likely you are to win your company pool. The best way to win is to beat the pick-'em donkeys at their own game and hope you pull out some upsets.

The key to a successful bracket-picking contest is not in what you know, but what you DON'T know. Ignorance is bliss for those who want to win their bracket contests. Just ask the former spouse.

Area athletes earn medals at indoor meet

Athletes from Allen, Wakefield and Winside carried home a nice haul of medals Friday during the season-opening Wayne State Indoor Invitational at the WSC Recreation Center.

In girls action, the top effort of the day was turned in by the Allen 3,200-meter relay team of Candice Rastede, Vanessa Klug, Lexi Oswald and Brittany Sullivan. The Lady Eagle foursome won their event in a time of 11:05.87 to earn the only first-place finish of the day for area girls.

Several runner-up efforts were turned in by area girls on Friday. The 640-meter relay team from Winside - Jade Hogenkamp, Selena Finn, Carly Schwager and Nazya Thies, finished second in a time of 1:35.47. Taryn Hingst led three area girls in the 3,200-meter run with a time of 14:09.23, coming in one spot ahead of teammate Josephine Peitz and two spots ahead of Allen's Klug. Rastede also finished second in the 800, with a time of 2:44.22.

Other third-place finishes were earned by Schwager in the 55-meter dash, Jayd Roberts of Winside in the 55-meter hurdles and Allen's Rachel Finnegan in the triple jump.

On the boys side, Winside's Colin Hansen and Wakefield's Anthony Gustafson came away with first-place efforts in field event competition.

Gustafson, a state qualifier in the high jump last year, cleared 6 feet, 2 inches to take top honors on Friday. Hansen also came through a winning effort, clearing 40 feet, 9 1/4 inches to take top honors in the triple jump.

Jacob Lunz of Wakefield had a hand in two runner-up finishes for the Trojans. He placed second in the 800-meter run, and was joined by Gustafson, Levi Nelson and Anthony Victor for a silver in the 1,600-meter relay. Winside's Garrett Watters also earned a second-place medal with his mark of 44 feet, 5 inches in the shot put.

Austin Connot earned a third-place medal in the 400-meter run to highlight the Allen boys' effort. He also was part of two medal-winning relay teams for the Eagles.

Wayne State Coaches Show
 Exclusively on mywaynews.com

Interviews with Wildcat coaches and highlights from each week's events Available every Wednesday afternoon mywaynews.com's Michael Carnes sits down each week to talk to Wayne State coaches about their teams' efforts throughout the 2013 season. We'll recap the previous week's games and talk about upcoming opponents.

2013 SPRING SPORTS PREVIEWS

Wayne track teams fielding competitive teams this spring

Both Wayne High track and field teams should field some competitive athletes this spring, according to coach Dale Hochstein.

The Blue Devils have a total of six returning state qualifiers from last year, five of those on the girls side, where he feels they will have some good depth this season.

"We graduated a little depth in all areas last year, but we have some really competitive kids, so our improvement should be exciting to watch," he said.

Two athletes to watch for the Wayne girls are coming back from injuries. Juniors Meagan Backer and Ashton Schweers should be interesting athletes to watch for the Blue Devils. Backer missed all of last season with a knee injury, while Schweers is just now getting back into shape after suffering a knee injury early in volleyball last fall.

Schweers is one of five state qualifiers from last year who return to the Wayne girls lineup. Senior high jumper Sarah Maxson, junior distance runner Angie Nelson, and half of last year's 400-meter relay – junior Jalyn Zeiss and sophomore Cassie Heier – give Wayne a good nucleus to build around.

The girls have several other athletes to keep an eye out for this year. Senior McKenna Frevert was an alternate on the state-qualifying relay teams the last two years, junior hurdler and weight thrower Victoria Kranz has shown a lot of potential, and sophomores Lexi Sokol (weights), Alyssa Schmale (distance) and Madison Frevert (hurdles) look to have some potential this season.

On the boys side, junior sprinter Demetrius Alexander is the only state qualifier back from last year. He just missed qualifying in the 100 after making it in the 200 as a sophomore, and with his quickness out of the blocks, he has the capability to make it to state in both events this year.

"Our boys numbers are up, and we have some solid kids back," Hochstein said. "The area where we'll have the most to replace is in our middle and distance runners."

The Blue Devils have the potential for some outstanding results in the high jump. High-flying Grant Anderson is hoping to take his dunking skills in basketball and apply them in the high jump pit, along with sophomore Ben Hoskins, who will also be a contender in the distance events.

Juniors Jared Anderson (hurdles/jumps), Trevor Pecena (sprints), Jose Vergara (sprints) and Austin Keiser (throws) also show a lot of potential this year. Pecena is coming off an injury last season, and with him and Vergara joining Alexander, Wayne has the potential to put together a very solid 400-meter relay this season.

Hochstein said the key to both teams' success is avoiding injuries and getting younger athletes to develop and mature. They will compete in a tough district, but he's hopeful the Blue Devils will be well-represented by the time the state meet rolls around in mid-May.

Allen track teams look to leaders

The 2013 Allen Eagle boys track team have been challenged by the coaches to get better daily. That is the immediate goal, and of course, all good things stem from working hard daily.

Only 13 boys took the challenge, but the 13 that took that challenge, are exactly the kind of athlete track and field demands.

"This is a group of young men that like to work, see its benefit, and continue to get better," Uldrich said. "If they stay the course, they will achieve personal bests, and more. It is not about if you are good enough, it is about if you want to get better as an individual by challenging yourself, never giving in, until you meet the challenge. Track and field challenges each person with competition against the clock and tape measure, and no one can hide from what either of those instruments read. It is a pleasure to go to practice and not have a single person talking about the difficulty of a workout!"

Junior Austin Connot returns from his state meet experience of a year ago, and will be one of the leaders daily for the younger athletes to work with. Connot has run twice on the Eagle 3,200-meter relay teams in Omaha. The Eagles' lone senior, Jon Bausch, will be called upon to continue his improved efforts in the long jump.

Juniors Trevor Stapleton, Myles Flores, and Cole Stewart will be field competitors in 2013. Stapleton and Flores in the discus and shot, while Stewart will jump and run relays.

Sophomores Brian Boese, Coleman Kneif, Wade Connot, and Brandon Abts will hit the track, as Boese will hurdle, Kneif and Abts will run the distances and distance relays. Caleb Thomas and Brady Krakau will throw the shot and discus respectively and take to the track also in relays.

Freshmen Austin Crom will work the shot, and run on the track. S.T. O'Keefe will provide depth in the distance events.

The Allen Lady Eagles have 18 athletes out this year, and coach Denise Hingst is anxious to see how this year's girls team performs.

"We are looking forward to a very successful season," she said. "We have a large amount of young kids out and a strong group of leaders on our team. We have a total of 18 girls which includes some returning state qualifiers from last year."

Returning state-qualifying runners include Lindsay Jones, Candice Rastede, and Vanessa Klug, and Hingst said there are a number of athletes who should score well in the jumps.

"I also have some very good jumpers from last year who I think will really help our team in scoring along with several runners. I like what I have seen thus far in practice, and feel like there are a lot of options for relays."

Hingst said she is trying to put together some good relay teams, and has a good group of kids to choose from.

"We have several girls that are still working for a spot on the relays, and they will have to continue to work hard to earn a spot on any of relays teams," she said. "Each day at practice, these girls are working extremely hard and are showing us how to earn the respect of their teammates, coaches and other athletes."

Trojan tracksters return talent

Wakefield should have a good combination of depth and experience on both the boys and girls sides of the ledger for this spring's track and field season.

Coach Mike Hassler said the 20 girls that are out give the Trojans some good talent, although they need to grow as a team.

"For the first time in a while the Wakefield girls team will have some numbers," he said. "It may be a little bumpy at first trying to find the best fit for these ladies on the track, with six freshmen and two foreign exchange students, but we have a couple of early meets to try some things and see how they shake out."

The Trojan girls didn't have any state qualifiers last year, but Hassler thinks he has one with potential to make it this year in senior hurdler Sydney Rose.

"Sydney Rose has an excellent opportunity," he said. "She's been knocking on the door three years in a row. If Sydney can focus on the task at hand and take care of the things she can control, she'll once again have a great opportunity."

Other Trojans looking to step up and put up some team points will be Lauren Lehmkuhl in the discus, hurdles, and high jump. Sophomore Taryn Hingst returns in the distances races, where she has been a consistent scorer for the Trojans.

Wakefield's boys lost four state qualifiers from last year, but return three this spring, led by junior Anthony Gustafson, who just missed earning a medal last year with a ninth-place finish in the high jump.

"We have a nice core group back this year and I think we can do a lot of good things," Hassler said. "Our numbers are a little lower than previous years, and that may have an affect us when it comes to competing for team titles, but I still feel we can be a consistent top-three team at most meets this year."

Gustafson cleared a personal best of 6'3" at the state meet last year to finish ninth, and will be a threat to make the medal stand this spring.

"Anthony was one jump away from finishing fourth last year down at Omaha. It was great to see him go down there as a sophomore and have some success. He's hungry, he wants to go higher and he wants a medal, as a coach you can't complain about that," he said.

Josh Dolph has been the Trojans' most consistent performer over the past two seasons. Last year Josh medaled at state in the 800 and 1600.

"Josh is just another great Wakefield distance runner in a long line of them. He has the potential to do some big things in the next two years for this track team," Hassler said.

Also returning will be Jacob Lunz, a qualifier in the 1,600-meter relay. With two key members gone off last year's relay, Lunz will be looking at other options to get back down to Omaha.

"I think Jacob has a great opportunity in the open 800. He consistently improved in that race last year, if he wants to get back to state that will be his best bet," Hassler said.

Blue Devils to rely on small-ball

Don't expect a lot of big bats and long balls when the Wayne High baseball team takes the field this spring.

Coach Adam Hoffman said the Blue Devils will have to be aggressive on the basepaths and make the most of the talent they have returning from last year's team.

"Our team will be inexperienced with varsity action, and we'll have to use small ball and be aggressive on the basepaths," he said.

The Blue Devils do have some good experience returning, led by pitcher Brady Soden, catcher Ramsey Jorgensen and outfielders Danny Melena and Bradley Longe.

Drew Carroll should help anchor a solid infield for Wayne this season, and will be one to watch on the basepaths with his base-stealing abilities.

The Blue Devils also have a number of returning lettermen who will be expected to contribute, including Steven Sherman, Jake Lutt, Curtis Moeller and Luke Rethwisch.

"Defense will be the key for us," Hoffman said. "I think our team will have good chemistry and we'll play hard, and we will need some younger guys to step up for us and replace some of the seniors we lost from last year."

Two seniors to lead Wakefield boys golfers

The Wakefield boys golf team has a few more players out this year and has several returning lettermen who should make the team more competitive this spring.

Returning from last year are varsity veterans Devin Anderson and Owen Salmon, along with Tim Anderson and Dalton Fudge.

"Devin and Owen have been playing varsity all four years, and have great leadership abilities to help our younger players," coach Kein

The Blue Devils' first two scheduled games at Arlington and Fort Calhoun were called off, due to inclement weather. They are scheduled to play at Pender on Thursday and Crete on Monday before their home opener Friday, March 29, against Blair at Hank Overin Field.

Roberts said.

Anderson and Salmon make up one third of the Trojans team this spring. Preston Paulson and Zach Pommer are also out this spring, giving the Trojans a full varsity complement for tournaments this season.

The Trojans begin the season on April 4 at the West Point-Beemer Invitational at Indian Trails near Beemer.

Two-time state champ joins talented LCC boys golf team

The Laurel-Concord/Coleridge boys golf team already had a good group of returning lettermen coming into the season, but added a real ace in the hole for the 2013 campaign.

Two-time defending Class C state champion Mitchell Klooz joined the Bears squad this season, giving coach Scott Petersen a great addition to what was already expected to be a competitive team.

"We are very excited about the prospect of having Mitchell join a veteran and talented team with six returning lettermen," Petersen said.

Klooz, who is being recruited by a number of Div. I schools, has put together quite a resume heading into his junior season. He was the Nebraska Junior Amateur champion last year and finished as runner-up in the state Men's Amateur tournament.

Last year, Klooz shot a 4-under par 68 on the first day of the Class C state tournament in Kearney and finished with a 2-under 142 to win the individual state title by six shots to help Plainview tie for runner-up honors, finishing one shot behind state champion Sutton. As a freshman, Klooz won a playoff after shooting an even-par 72 in the rain-shortened Class C competition to help Plainview tie for fourth overall.

Klooz will lead a talented bunch that includes returning lettermen Nathan Schmitt, Shawn McCoy, Nate Granquist, Cory Peterson, Jany McCoy and Brendan Groene.

The Bears are expected to battle Plainview for top honors in the final NENAC golf tournament this spring in Neligh, and LCC should be one of the teams battling for a state playoff spot when districts roll around in mid-May.

The Bears open the golf season April 4 at the West Point-Beemer Invitational.

Juniors to lead WHS golfers

The Wayne High boys golf team is short on numbers this year, but have a good varsity nucleus returning that should make them competitive on the links this spring.

Coach Dave Hix said he expects his team to keep improving throughout the 2013 spring campaign.

"We will struggle early, but we'll keep improving throughout the year," he said.

Seniors Ezra Brodersen and

Ryan Grosz are back in the lineup this spring, along with juniors Kaje Maly and Jared Peterson. Brodersen was a consistent player on the varsity team for much of the spring last year, while Grosz, Maly and Peterson all developed and improved and should be solid competitors this spring.

Hix said the two juniors should be team leaders on the scoreboard this season.

"I expect the leadership to come from our juniors," Hix said.

The Blue Devils play in a very tough district, and Hix isn't happy with the scheduling the Nebraska School Activities Association set up for Wayne's district.

"District will be tough at Woodland Hills in Eagle, and (the NSAA) put us in a district that is 140 miles away," he said. "Districts comes the day after graduation, so we'll have to travel down that (graduation) evening and stay in a motel the night before, but we'll make the best of it."

Winside track has good group

The Winside track and field teams have some good athletes returning this year, and coach Mark Tonniges is optimistic on how things will go in the Wildcat camp this spring.

"We have an excellent group of athletes that will compete at every meet," he said. "They were part of a team from last year that averaged about 20 personal bests per meet."

On the girls' side, sophomore Jayd Roberts is the only returning state qualifier, and will be a contender once again this spring in the hurdles. She made it to state last year in the 100-meter hurdles, and is on pace to make it back to state again this spring.

The Wildcats should have some good jumpers with athletes like Nazya Thies and Jade Hogencamp, and have some good all-around athletes like Courtney Petzoldt and Brienna Wurdeman back in the fold.

Other athletes who should make an impact include Selena Finn, Brittany Janke and Carly Thies.

On the boys' side, senior Colin Hansen leads a good group of returning lettermen for Winside. He is expected to score well in the jumps and on the track as well.

The Wildcats have a good 1-2 punch in the throws with juniors Garrett Watters and Caleb Liemann, and senior Gatlin Jensen is also expected to contribute to the team's success.

Good talent back for LCC tracksters

Coach Nate Sims is anxious to get his kids outdoors and on the track as the Laurel-Concord/Coleridge boys and girls track teams get ready to start the season.

Both the boys and girls teams have a good mix of returning experience and young talent that should make both teams fun to watch this spring.

"We're anxious for the season, and even more anxious to get outside and practice if the winter ever turns to spring," he said. "We have a great group of kids this year, and they have been working hard thus far."

On the girls side, the Lady Bears should be particularly strong on the track with returning veterans like Sammie Camenzind, Kiley Thompson, Kelsey Dietrich and Sadie Petersen. Audra Corbit blossomed as a high jumper last year and earned a trip to state, along with Petersen, so both are expected to be leaders in the scoring department this season.

On the boys side, the Bears have some returning state qualifiers back in seniors Kyle Kardell, Justin Saunders and Brett Haisch. Sims said the boys have a number of newcomers who could come along and score well for the LCC squad this season.

In all, LCC has seven state qualifiers returning, along with 14 lettermen. They will host their annual LCC Relays on Tuesday, and will also play host to the final NENAC conference sporting event, hosting the conference meet on Thursday, May 2.

Seven wrestlers represented the Wayne State College Wrestling Club at the National Wrestling Championships in Allen, Texas last week.

Wayne State seniors Matthew Peter and Rob Peter and junior Jon Mullen led the Wildcat wrestlers to a 15th place finish in the National Collegiate Wrestling Association national tournament.

“Wayne’s final rank of 15th in NCWA’s 47-school Division-II category shows the strength of the program against much larger schools like champion Massachusetts Institute of Technology and runner-up South Carolina,” head coach Greg Vander Weil said. “Our ability to compete so strongly with such a small school

WSC track adds five recruits

Wayne State track and field coach Marlon Brink announced that five student athletes have either signed national letters of intent or committed to compete for the Wildcats and continue their track and field careers and attend Wayne State College in the 2013-14 academic year.

Signing with the Wildcats today are Cortland Cassidy of Fremont, Adam Hochstein of Hartington, Cody Kralicek of Osmond, Brandon Marker of Springfield and Cristina Murillo of Bertrand.

Cassidy is a distance runner who ran track and field and cross country at Logan View High School for three seasons. Cassidy was part of a track team that won the East Husker Conference track and field championship in 2010 and 2011 while being runner-up in 2012. His cross country team also won the conference championship in 2010 and was runner up in 2011. Cassidy was a state qualifier in track and field in 2012 while also being named All-Conference and first-team All-State.

Hochstein is a middle distance runner who competed in football, basketball and track and field at Hartington High School. Hochstein placed second at the 2012 Nebraska State Track Meet in the 1,600-meter run with a time of 4:33. He was also part of the 2012 3,200-meter relay team that placed sixth at the state meet with a time of 8:33. Hochstein was also honorable mention in football in 2012 when his team finished the regular season undefeated.

Kralicek is an intermediate hurdler and long sprinter from Osmond, where he competed in football, wrestling and track and field. During his junior track season, Kralicek competed at the Northeast Nebraska Track and Field Classic in the 300-meter hurdles and got fourth in the event. He was the district champion in the 300-meter hurdles with a time of 42.3 and qualified for the state track meet in the event. He was also an All-District middle linebacker his junior and senior seasons in football.

Marker is a sprinter from Platteview High School, where he competed in track and field, football and basketball. While at Platteview, Marker set a personal best in the 100-meter dash at 11.3 and had a personal best of 23.8 in the 200-meter dash.

Murillo is a distance runner from Bertrand High School, where she lettered all four years in both cross country and track. She was a state qualifier all four years in cross country and a three-year qualifier in track during her four years in high school including a fifth-place finish in the 3,200 meter run at the state track meet in 2010 while also medaling in 2012 taking fourth place in both the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs.

Murillo’s cross country teams also achieved high success during her four seasons, as they were district champions for four consecutive years while also placing no lower than fifth at the state cross country meet. Her cross country team placed all four years at the state meet, finishing fourth in 2009, third in 2010, fifth in 2011 and fourth in 2012.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Make the most of time with friends

More and more, I'm being reminded of an ugly truth about myself – I'm not going to live forever.

I received my latest abrupt reminder when I came home from work recently and saw a message on my Facebook page – it was the brother of an old, close friend of mine asking for help in trying to contact his brother, who had failed to report to his duties as a guard in the state prison near Tecumseh.

Concerned, I immediately called up Todd's number on my cell phone and tried to contact him. All I got was his voice mail, the message delivered in his familiar, relaxed tone: "Hey, this is Todd – sorry I can't get to my phone. Leave me a message and I'll call you back."

Turns out, it was the last time I would ever hear his voice.

Todd's brother messaged me on Facebook a few minutes later with the bad news – Todd was found dead in his home, the victim of a heart attack. It seemed illogical, because Todd's heart was the biggest part of his body. It had to be, because he wore it on his sleeve and gave it to so many people.

Todd and I met in college at the now-defunct Fairbury campus of Southeast Community College. He was a broadcast and theater major, while I was pursuing a mass communications degree. We became fast friends, and more often than not were at the same parties, drinking the same booze and chasing after the same girls.

We were on the front lines of the battle to try and save the Fairbury campus from the corrupt powers that be within the SCC governing body and its administration. While we failed to save the campus, we did succeed in removing all seven board members who voted to close the campus in 1986 in their re-election bids. I still remember the day, while campaigning against my hometown candidate in Milford, when Todd jumped out of my car, ran into the opposing candidate's business (the local bank – the guy practically owned an entire three-county area, it seemed) and plastered a flyer with his opponent's information on it. He was so proud of himself, he acted like he had just gotten away with the commission of a felony.

In his younger days, Todd enjoyed his alcohol – sometimes to his own detriment. On his 21st birthday, we got him good and liquored up and drove around the courthouse in Fairbury (that's the thing for young folk to do there, even 30 years later). He saw a friend on the street and was going to sit on the window of my car to say hello, but lost his balance and landed face first on the brick street – while the car was in motion. I stopped the car, jumped out and poured him back in, taking him to a friend's house to treat his wounds and give him his last drink of the night – a tall glass of water.

We fought, laughed and loved like brothers. Aside from my best friend from high school, Todd was one of the few non-family members of my circle that I could always count on when the chips were down. Although we were politically as far apart as two people could be (he could make Rachel Maddow sound like Rush Limbaugh), we could always talk about anything from politics to families.

The number of people I have in that particular circle of friends is very few. We all have different levels of friends – friends that we can hang out with, friends that enjoy some of the same things that we are passionate about – but there's that one special level of friendship where it's almost like an extension of your family, the people that you know you can count on – and who can count on you – in good times and bad. They're what I like to call my "brothers from other mothers" (or "sisters from other misters" for those on the female side). It's a small, but dedicated, fraternity, and the ugly truth is that – one by one – they are all beginning to move ahead to the final destination.

I was able to reunite with some of my old college friends, including two women who were part of our circle of friends in Fairbury during the college years. One, who I haven't seen since college, has battled addiction and has made a remarkable comeback, finishing off her engineering degree at Cal Maritime. The other, who I have been close friends with for many years, is recently divorced and rebuilding her life as a grandma (I can't believe I'm old enough to be in the running for grandparenthood . . . MAN, am I getting old) and a restaurant manager. Being able to sit and talk about the old times, like they just happened yesterday, was a great way for us to remember Todd and come to terms with his passing.

Another old college friend, who was best friends with Todd, provided some wonderful memories for us, both with the eulogy he delivered and showing some of the funny movies he and Todd made together over the years.

Our time on this earth is so short, and we should make the most of the opportunities we have with the people closest to us to get every ounce of fun out of the time we have left in our human form. I know Todd will be waiting for us when our day comes to join him, and the party we'll be able to enjoy, unlike our time here on earth, will most certainly last forever.

Will soft drink tax cure obesity?

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

In a state where farmers feed corn to cattle to fatten them for market, a senator wants to tax drinks – many of which feature corn syrup sweetener -- as a way to curb obesity.

State Sen. Bill Avery of Lincoln says his bill (LB447) being heard by the Revenue Committee is aimed at soft drinks, which have no nutritional value. He said the current exemption for soda pop is indefensible because the drinks don't belong in the same tax-exempt category as food. A similar bill filed last year never made it out of committee.

On one side, many nutritionists say soda consumption contributes to obesity. Others say that even so-called diet soft drinks are unhealthy because artificial sweeteners metabolize as deadly chemicals that injure the body. At least one brand of soft drink has a vegetable oil that is banned in Europe.

Avery says that ending the sales tax exemption would bring the state an estimated $11 million in new sales tax revenue. Of that money, 70 percent would be used for school wellness programs and data collection on student obesity and exercise and 30 percent would go to local health departments for health-related programs.

Opponents say the measure is just an unfair way to raise revenue for a new state program by singling out the beverage industry. One Revenue Committee member wonders if this would open the door to selecting even more previously exempted food items and further diminishing that tax-exempt status. Many say that drinking pop is just one piece of the problem. Lack of exercise, poor diet, family history and overeating should also share the blame.

It has been argued for years that taxing food would place an unfair burden on those who can least afford it – the poor. Governor Dave Heineman is unlikely to support what he sees as a new tax. He frequently cautions against creating programs that would increase taxes, even though Avery and other proponents say that spending the proceeds on wellness programs and data collection would benefit higher education and local health departments.

Dr. Bob Rauner, a leader in a coalition of Nebraska physicians, nurses, teachers and health organizations that is supporting Avery's effort, acknowledges that obesity has many causes. But he thinks that reducing consumption of soft drinks and other sugary beverages – perhaps by raising the price through taxes -- could cut into the obesity problem and help reduce the gluttony of spending on diseases caused by the drinks.

A spokesman for the American Beverage Association says it boils down to a matter of choice. Government can't legislate healthy lifestyles, and people are against letting government tell them what they can eat and drink, says the Association's Chris Gindlesperger. He said beverages constitute only 7 percent of all calories consumed.

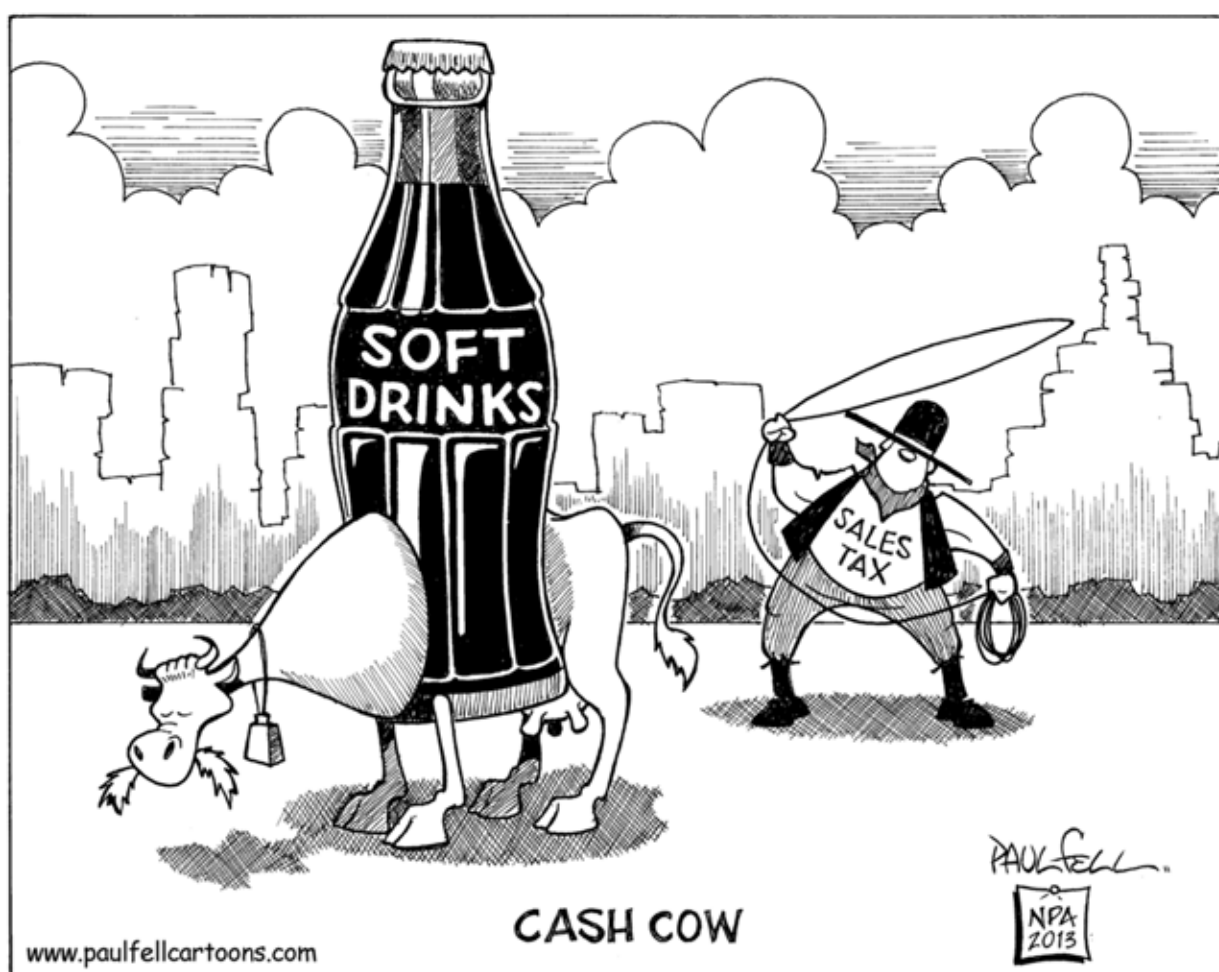

He said the beverage industry has pushed voluntary guidelines for the nation's schools – including replacing full-calorie sodas with water, milk and other drinks. That has resulted in a 90 percent decrease in calories consumed in schools in the past four to five years. He thinks that is a good start.

Proponents say that cutting obesity rates will ultimately save Americans billions of dollars in fighting related diseases such as Type 2 diabetes, coronary heart disease and stroke. Rauner said revenue from the measure would replace disappearing federal dollars that support many health initiatives such as healthier school lunches and exercise programs for students.

North Platte Sen. Tom Hansen, a member of the Revenue Committee, admitted that the new revenue might help the state close a $393 million budget gap, but worried that other foods might be targeted next. There are a lot of things that aren't good for you, he said. But it goes back to parental rights. "Just say no," if your kids want it and it's not good for them, he said.

Avery remains undaunted. He said it takes time for some issues to win public approval and that's no reason to back off.

Legislative Update

Several bills are heard in committee

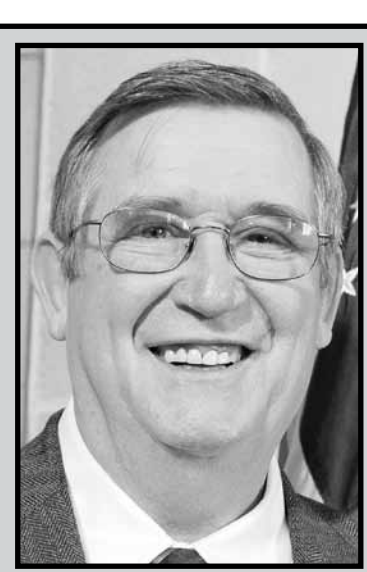

It was another busy week in Lincoln, I had two bills that were heard in committees and several bills have been discussed with the full Legislature.

LB143, which I introduced would allow schools to adopt a sexual abuse policy if they so choose, was heard in the Education Committee. I am cautiously optimistic that this bill will be advanced from the committee but time will tell.

LB473, which would add parks of at least twenty-five hundred square feet to the list of residency restrictions for Sexual Predators of Children, was heard by the Judiciary Committee. I am pretty sure that this bill will not come out of the committee. My hope is that the Judiciary Committee will spend some time reviewing the sexual offender laws we currently have and look at ways to improve them and as part of that process they will look into adding parks to schools and child care facilities as restricted areas.

Senators are allowed to select

Legislative Update

State Senator, District 17

one bill that they can designate as a priority bill every year. Priority bills have a priority status and are generally considered ahead of other bills. In addition to senators being allowed to select a priority bill, each committee is allowed to select two bills for committee priority bills. This year I have decided to make LB393, which would change helmet and eye protection provisions regarding motorcycles my priority bill.

LB105 introduced by Sen. Steve Lathrop of Omaha, is a bill that was discussed this week on General File that may be of interest to many of you in the district. This bill would require any child care facility which is licensed by the Department of Health to have written proof of liability insurance coverage of at least one hundred thousand dollars per occurrence. A provider that is already licensed by the state will need to obtain the liability insurance and provide written proof to the department within thirty days of this act becoming effective. A licensee who fails to maintain the required level of insurance will be deemed non-compliant with the Child Care Licensing Act. I think this bill will, in all likelihood, become law.

My reason for mentioning this in the newsletter is to suggest that each of you review your homeowner's policy. As I understand current law, if anyone within the home receives any amount of payment for watching a child, your homeowner's policy probably won't be responsible for any harm that might befall that child, whether you are licensed or not. So, if your daughter is being paid to watch the neighbor's child, your insurance may not pay if the child falls and gets hurt. Please protect yourself from financial loss, and check with your insurance agent.

I would like to recognize National Agriculture Day, March 19, a day to recognize the abundance provided by agriculture. We need to remember the many contributions made to our society by the agriculture industry.

Pet of the Week

PJ is a senior female mixed dog available at Tenderheart Animal Rescue. She is very sweet and loves to go for walks. She has a lot of pep for her age and is just a really nice girl. It will take a special home for her because she won't be around the longest and the loss of a pet is a very hard thing to go through, but it would be awesome to see her live out her final years in a great home. She has no health needs for her age and all around is just a great gal. For more information or to adopt PJ, call (402) 369-6030.

opening the meeting.

He shared information about the success of the recent Wayne State College Elementary Track event. The Optimist Club hosted the event by providing the ribbons and some help for the late afternoon event.

There were several March events that the group finalized. March 14 was the date set for the sixth grade class of Mrs. Thompson playing Bingo with the Oaks residents. Optimist will provide tokens for Bingo and students will give residents homemade cards. On March 25 members are encouraged to meet at The Coffee Shoppe at 6 p.m. to listen and judge the contestants who have signed up for the Oratorical Contest. A light dessert will be provided. Members are reminded to let the Coffee Shoppe know if they are attending.

On Friday, March 22, Optimists will have a booth at the Web Carnival and Thursday, March 28 Optimists will host the TeamMates who wish to Bowl at 3:30 p.m. at the local bowling alley.

After the business meeting Wes Blecke, executive director of the Wayne Area Economic Development, spoke to the group about their accomplishments the past few years. He was very excited about the many ribbon-cutting events held during the past year. He also noted that the three groups working together compliment each other to accomplish a host of events designed to improve local business climate, help existing businesses expand and attract new businesses.

Area communities are looking at the frame work and accomplishments this group has developed to use as a model for their community. Blecke noted that these accomplishments could not be possible without the community, businesses and his office staff working together.

The meeting closed with the Optimist Creed. The next meeting will be Tuesday April 2 at 6 p.m.

Diabetes program aims to set a 'Goal to Take Control'

Set a goal to take control of your diabetes during the Wednesday, March 27 session of 'Control Diabetes for Life.'

Those attending are being encouraged to aim for lower blood glucose levels to feel better now and stay healthy for years to come.

Managing diabetes can seem overwhelming at times. There are numerous tasks required to keep it under control which can vary depending on your overall health and personal circumstances.

One thing everyone with diabetes needs to focus on is controlling blood glucose. When you improve your diabetes control, you win both now and in the future. With tighter control on blood sugar levels, you are likely to feel better and more energetic. The long-term effects are even more striking. Major clinical trials have proven that good blood glucose control is the best way to prevent or delay diabetes complications. Even small reductions in blood glucose levels can improve your health.

Good control requires both diligence and willingness to try new strategies. Learn new strategies by attending Control Diabetes for Life. The March 27 session will focus on New Tools for Weight Loss.

Topics to be addressed on March 27 include: What's New in Diabetes Care, Weight Loss with Diabetes and Developing Compassion for You. These sessions are designed to supplement the education that you receive from your local diabetes education team and not a substitute for diabetes classes through your local health care providers.

Recipes for diabetic appropriate foods will be shared to help with food management goals. Team-teaching the program will be Stacie Petersen, B.S.N. & Certified Diabetes Educator; Deborah Willcox R.D., LMNT, both of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra Schroeder, UNL Extension Educator in Cuming County.

The program will be offered on Wednesday, March 27, from 1:30-4 p.m. at Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department in Wayne.

"Control Diabetes for Life" is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered free-of-charge. "Control Diabetes for Life" will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease.

Participants are asked to pre-register for Control Diabetes for Life by calling Wayne County Extension office at (402) 375-3310. Register by Monday, March 25, so the proper number of handouts may be prepared. Nebraska School Food Service Association has approved the session for two hours of continuing education credits for food service staff.

Heating bill concerns? Black Hills Energy offers help

Black Hills Energy offers payment plans to qualifying customers and contact information for local energy assistance agencies to customers who call seeking options for managing their natural gas utility account with Black Hills Energy.

"We encourage customers concerned about their natural gas service bill to call us before it's due," said Don Nordell, Business Operations Director for Black Hills Energy. "We can walk you through the qualification and enrollment process for our budget-friendly payment plans. Black Hills Energy will also help its qualifying customers by directing them to an appropriate assistance agency if that's a good option."

For customers with Internet access, www.blackhillsenergy.com is a good place to start. Black Hills Energy's 24-hour, toll-free customer solutions number is (888) 890-5554.

The suggestion to contact Black Hills Energy as soon as possible is especially timely now. Many customers have balances due on their utility bills as the winter heating season comes to an end. Several public agencies can help customers in need, including the local office of the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, which manages the federally funded Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP). Their website is www.accessnebraska.ne.gov.

Another program tied to the calendar is the annual Nebraska Cold Weather Rule, which applies to residential customers from Nov. 1 through March 31. During that time, bill-based service interruptions for residential customers are delayed an additional 30 days so they can pursue energy assistance.

Black Hills offers a special payment plan to qualifying customers through March 31, and Nebraska customers receiving LIHEAP benefits aren't subject to service interruption until April 1. In addition, Black Hills Energy suspends bill-based service interruptions from Nov. 1 through March 31 if the National Weather Service forecast is for a temperature 30 degrees or colder within the next 48 hours.

In addition to those programs, "Black Hills Energy reaches out in many ways to our customers and communities throughout the year," Nordell said. "For example, we match donations from employees and customers to our Black Hills Cares program. Black Hills Energy also forwards the tax-deductible donation and company match to the donor's local agency, so customers know that Black Hills Energy is helping someone in the customer's community."

Black Hills Energy's natural gas bill includes a form for making an optional one-time or monthly donation to Black Hills Cares. For more information on energy assistance, energy efficiency tips and energy solutions from Black Hills Energy, visit www.blackhillsenergy.com or call (888) 890-5554.

Beginning farmer, rancher workshop in Norfolk April 3

Six beginning farmer and rancher workshops are scheduled across Nebraska, including one at Norfolk on April 3.

The workshop, which will be held at the Holiday Inn Express from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., is funded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Beginning Farmer and Rancher Grant Program and are offered by the Center for Rural Affairs, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and the Nebraska Sustainable Agriculture Society.

The workshop will focus on the concepts of mob grazing and marketing grass-fed beef.

The will feature established farmers and ranchers that use one or both of these concepts. They will speak about their operations and answer questions. An attorney from Legal Aid of Nebraska will discuss pasture leases right before lunch.

Following lunch, there will be a session on beginning business planning, where participants will learn about basic business principles, such as net worth, cash flow, income profit and loss statements and how these can be important business tools in a mob grazing and grass-fed beef operation.

The free workshops include refreshments, lunch and some resources as part of the workshops. Please pre-register at least three days before each event, by calling Gary Lesoing, UNL Extension in Nemaha County, at (402) 274-4755.

Microbiology degree available at the University Birthday

Do you know a young person interested in going to medical or graduate school? Performing laboratory research? Possibly they envision a career in food safety or protecting the environment? Maybe they are interested in controlling infectious diseases, or preventing bioterrorist attacks. Perhaps they want to teach, become a technical writer, or make new discoveries in bioenergy.

All of these paths, and more, are available with a degree in microbiology from UNL College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources (CASNR).

Microbiology is the study of microscopic organisms such as bacteria, fungi, viruses, and other microbes. Microbiologists are in high demand, due to advances in biotechnology, emerging health challenges, environmental problems, and bioterrorism threats.

UNL's investment in scientific research has been steadily expanding, and the new Innovation Campus technology development park will further enhance research opportunities in microbiology.

Rewarding careers are available in a variety of venues, including pharmaceutical, health, and industrial research laboratories, and in the fields of medicine, government, education, agriculture, and the environment. Potential careers in microbiology are diverse and interdisciplinary. To accommodate this, students can use electives within the undergraduate microbiology major to direct their course of study to match their particular interests and goals.

Areas of specialization include: clinical and veterinary microbiology (including medical, dental, and other health related areas); food microbiology; biotechnology and industrial microbiology; applied and environmental microbiology to name a few.

RECESSION:

Exposure of the root surfaces of teeth is known as recession. It is a very common condition in adults over the age of 40; however, it can occur at any age. It can be just a sign of aging, the result of wear and tear or years of aggressive tooth brushing. However, sometimes receding gums can be a sign of something more, such as, periodontal disease (gum disease) and it often doesn't cause any pain and goes unnoticed until too much damage is done. Gum disease starts when plaque and bacteria build up on the teeth and gums. When the plaque is not removed daily, it produces toxins that irritate and inflame the gums. Eventually, the inflammatory process destroys the gum tissues, causing them to separate from the tooth and form spaces called pockets. The pockets hold more bacteria, which only compounds the problem. In the early stages, gum disease (gingivitis), marked by red or swollen gums that bleed easily, is reversible and can be detected and treated by your dentist or dental hygienist during regular check-ups. If the disease progresses to periodontitis, it can destroy the bone and soft tissues that support the teeth. In advanced stages of periodontitis, teeth can become loose, fall out or have to be removed by a dentist. The good news is these gum conditions can be prevented by good oral hygiene habits like brushing and flossing daily. Receding gums are best prevented by brushing regularly with a soft toothbrush, using mild pressure and small circular or very short back and forth motions. Avoid hard toothbrush bristles and long horizontal brush strokes with excessive pressure on your toothbrush. It is also a great idea to use a toothpaste formulated for sensitive teeth. Avoid whitening and tarter control toothpastes as these have small particles that can irritate gum tissue and cause continued recession. If you have noticed recession or bleeding when brushing, please schedule an appointment with your dentist today.

Senior Sounds

The "Senior Sounds" quartet from the Sioux City area entertained a nearly full Senior Center after dinner on March 15. The quartet includes George Polak, Sharon Ocker, Don Beals, and Jay Smith who sing various styles of songs unaccompanied. They even performed their own version of the Beatles' song "Yesterday," for which they modified the lyrics for an audience of seniors, or perhaps for a Ben Gay commercial.

Winside UMC plans Holy Week events

Winside United Methodist Church will observe Holy Week from Palm Sunday, March 24 through Saturday, March 30.

On Thursday of that week, which is commonly known as Maundy Thursday, the church will have a time of Communion that will cover six hours, and a time of prayer to remember the six hours that Jesus hung on the cross.

On Maundy Thursday, March 28, interested persons can come into the church any time between the hours of 12-6 p.m. and take communion.

"It will only take a few moments out of your time to stop and remember the Last Supper that Jesus had with his disciples and the six hours before He gave us His life so that we might live," said Judy Carlson, pastor of Winside United Methodist Church.

The Good Friday Service will be held on March 29 at 7 p.m.

Praise Assembly of God announces upcoming schedule

Praise Assembly of God Church members met this past Sunday afternoon for the "Annual Church Hall Meeting."

This is a gathering of the church attendees to look at the financial report from the previous year and to see what will be happening in the future. It was an exciting time together. The regional presbyter, Rev. Kevin Roach from S. Sioux City was present to moderate the meeting.

The Wednesday evening activities (Bible Study for adults and "Kidz Praise" for the children up through grade six) continue each week at 6:30 p.m. in the church. On Saturday evening there is an open sanctuary prayer time at 7 p.m.

Sunday mornings begin with a fellowship time at 9:15 a.m. and Sunday School classes for all ages at 9:30 a.m. This weekend (Palm Sunday) will be a special morning, as the 10:30 a.m. service begins with a procession with "palm branches", commemorating the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem, just a few days prior to his crucifixion. The week is called "Holy Week" across all Christian churches and includes Palm Sunday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Resurrection Sunday (Easter Sunday).

It is a pivotal time for the Church of Jesus (not a denomination when it is referred to in that way, but the entire "Church" of the Lord). On the day of Resurrection, Jesus proved the victory of God over everything in our earthly existence; since He is the Lord of life and the conqueror of death, then He is the Lord of all.

At Praise Assembly, Resurrection Sunday, March 31, will begin with a breakfast at 8:30 a.m., prepared by Merlin Heinemann and Tim Hansen. The 10 a.m. worship service will feature a message by the pastor of the church, Rev. Jason Pickering, as well as the ministry of the church choir (the "Voices of Praise"), the "Kidz Praise Singers" and soloists in a special Easter morning celebration service.

"Remember: if you don't have a church home, there is a place for you at Praise Assembly - right east of the new "Angel Acres" being built at the corner of Providence Road and 10th Street here in Wayne," said Pastor Pickering.

Oats and Italian Ryegrass make high quality pasture

(Submitted by Ruth Vonderohe, UNL Extension Educator in Knox County)

High quality pasture always seems to be in short supply. This year all pasture may be short.

I like oat forage. It grows during spring when we are likely to receive rain and when moisture is used efficiently to produce forage.

Oats can be grazed earlier than anything else you plant this spring. Once it gets five or six inches tall, it quickly can shoot up to a foot tall in almost no time. Unfortunately, once oats gets that tall it may not stool out, tiller, and regrow after grazing very well. So it's important to start grazing early when oats get six to eight inches tall to stimulate it to form new tillers.

After this first grazing, keep oat regrowth between six and sixteen inches tall. Begin with a light stocking rate, about one animal every two acres. Then adjust animal number as oat growth changes.

For a longer grazing season, plant a mixture of oats and Italian ryegrass. Oats comes on strong early while Italian ryegrass tends to wait until June before it grows rapidly. Then it just keeps growing high quality leaves the rest of the year if moisture is available.

For straight oats, drill at least three bushels per acre as soon as possible. Oats will be 6-8 inches tall and ready to graze by early May. With good moisture and 40 to 60 pounds of nitrogen, oats can provide a couple months of grazing for 1 or 2 cows per acre. For extended grazing, drill just a couple bushels of oats plus around twenty pounds of Italian ryegrass per acre. Your stocking rate might need to be a little lighter at first, but with some timely moisture or irrigation you can continue to get great grass all summer and fall.

Do you need reliable high quality pasture this year? Oats, with or without Italian ryegrass, may be your best option.

Jones enlists in U.S. Army

Forrest Jones, a 2012 graduate of Winside High School, has enlisted in the U.S. Army.

Forrest, who is the son of Gerald and Kristin Monk of Pierce, will leave April 2, 2013 for basic training at Ft. Benning, Ga. He will be doing his individualized training in Radio Comsec Repair at Fort Benning, following completion of basic training.

He is the grandson of Dennis and Alice Rohde of Carroll, Linda Monk of Carroll, Rick and Terra Smith of Layton, Utah; the late Randy Jones and Kent and Jane Jones of Draper, Utah.

Brittney Janke

Janke accepted for RHOP Program at Wayne State College

Brittany Lee Janke of Winside has been accepted for the pharmacy portion of the Rural Health Opportunities Program (RHOP) at Wayne State College.

Janke is the daughter of Brad and Lisa Janke of Winside. She has participated in volleyball, basketball and track and field. She participates in the National Honor Society, Youth Leadership Council and served as a Cornhusker Girls State delegate. She also participates in band, color guard, girl scouts and 4-H.

"The need for rural health professionals continues to grow," said Dr. David Peitz of Wayne State College. "These students have proven themselves to be gifted and dedicated to their profession. They have displayed the potential to develop into strong community leaders."

RHOP is a cooperative effort between Wayne State and the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC) and encourages students from rural areas of Nebraska to return to rural settings after graduation to pursue their career. Individuals selected obtain guaranteed admission to UNMC Colleges upon successful completion of studies at WSC and receive a full-tuition waiver at WSC.

Areas of study under the program include clinical laboratory sciences; medicine; nursing; pharmacy; physical therapy; physician assistant; dental hygiene; radiography; and dentistry.

A shortage of rural health practitioners in Nebraska prompted higher education institutions to implement the RHOP program in 1989. Selection of candidates is based on an applicant's residency in a rural Nebraska community, academic potential and commitment to practice in rural Nebraska.

Information about the RHOP program can be found at: <http://www.wsc.edu/schools/nss/rhop/> or please call 402-375-7329 or EMAIL: PRE-PROF@WSC.EDU.

Drought challenged pastures need nitrogen

By RUTH VONDEROHE
UNL Extension Educator in Knox County

When and how much fertilizer should you put on pastures this spring? Current dry soils and forecasts of continuing drought should influence your decisions so stick around for some of my ideas.

Fertilizing cool-season pastures with nitrogen needs to consider fertilizer cost, moisture available to use the fertilizer, and when the extra growth is needed.

Normally we get plenty of early spring growth without much fertilizer. Any more just gets wasted so often I encourage waiting until early to mid-May to fertilize brome or other cool-season grass pastures. By waiting, my hope is that we will stimulate growth to be available for extra summer grazing when it might be more useful.

This spring, though, subsoils are dry and forecasts aren't promising. Most pastures will produce less grass than normal unless we have a very wet season. Plus, nitrogen fertilizer is expensive.

Still, we need as much extra and early pasture as we can get. That means applying nitrogen fertilizer to cool-season pastures as soon as possible. Early application will stimulate the maximum pounds of extra grass growth per pound of nitrogen applied. And since soils are dry, it is unlikely that the extra growth will be wasteful. But, if it doesn't rain, fertilizer dollars will be wasted.

So my suggestion this year is to apply a slightly lower than usual amount of nitrogen to only half to two-thirds of your pastures now. But wait until early May to better judge moisture conditions before fertilizing the rest of your pastures. Hopefully, this will give you the early pasture you need without risking too many fertilizer dollars.

Drought forces us to make many pasture management changes. When and how much fertilizer to apply is one of them.

Talking about history of CPR

Twice a year, I have the privilege of speaking to the nursing students at Southeast Community College about Hospice. I tell them they are a source of referrals, and I want them to be aware of what constitutes an appropriate referral.

I talk about the history, and about the fact that until the 1970s, people were allowed to die without the intrusion of technology. And I frequently mention that there was no cardio-pulmonary resuscitation when I was in nursing school. That usually opens some eyes. I think they believe it's always been around. It hasn't.

I did some searching about it the other day, and according to Wikipedia, Johns Hopkins experimented with it in the 50s, and in 1960, a child was successfully resuscitated. In 1962, a training movie was made and efforts to teach it began. At first, only medical personnel were taught. I remember the class at the hospital; the instructor encouraged us to try by saying "they don't get dead, they just get colder."

Next, those of us in hospitals realized that, many times, by the time the victim got to the emergency room, it was too late; and efforts to teach the general public began. Mannequins were produced so that folks could practice. I took the class to teach it, and I had to come up with a perfect strip from the Annie that was "wired" to show our technique. Between the checking of the carotid pulse, and the ABC's, and look, listen, and feel, and then finding the correct spot on the chest, there was a lot to retain. A nurse friend who has a Ph.D told me today that studies show that much of what we taught in those classes was not retained.

Then, we had to refine it for children, and then for infants. Those of us working in emergency rooms had to be certified in Advanced Cardiac Life Support; and Pediatric Advanced Life Support, and Neonatal Advanced Life Support! All of these, of course, use acronyms. We were even expected to use endotracheal tubes if necessary.

When taking the initial class, there is a fifty question test. Originally, there was a multiple choice question that said "CPR should be initiated _____?" And the correct answer was, "only in cases of sudden and unexpected death." Of course, that question has not been in the test for years. Because, of course, CPR has been initiated many times when it was obviously inappropriate. Which led to the necessity of advanced directives, and DNRs, Do Not Resuscitate.

Now, we see signs that say all of that faldrald was unnecessary; all we must do is call 911 and start pumping on the chest. And do you know what the friend with the Ph.D in nursing told me today? That, with all the training, and all the money spent, and all the publicity, results from CPR are no better now than they were fifty years ago, when it was first initiated. And, they still just get colder. Sad, but true. Which is why I prefer Hospice, and I still plan to have DNR tattooed on my chest!

Suggestions for potato planting

The Siouxland Garden Show is coming up and we don't want you to miss it.

The show this year will be at the Convention Center in Sioux City Iowa this Friday, Saturday, and Sunday March 22-24. This is in a new location and Sunday is an extra day that has been added. Over 50 exhibitors will showcase innovative garden products and services, 15 education seminars will be presented by regional experts and 20 "How To" sessions will be held.

New this year are "Make and Take" sessions where you can purchase kits and put together garden favorites like rain barrels, hypertufa, fairy gardens, flower arranging, gutter gardening, seed starting, and more.

"How To" topics include What's Bugging you (from yours truly), Salsa making, selecting and storing fruits and vegetables, firepits and pavers, worm farming, cooking with local fruit, container gardening, building water features, and building a garden shed through recycling.

Educational sessions include big ideas for smaller gardens, ornamenting the garden, raspberry gardening, herb gardening, attracting birds to your yard, avoiding common mistakes, and pizza gardening for kids.

There are many more sessions and plenty of activities for all ages. This event is co-sponsored by the University of Nebraska Extension and Iowa State University Extension. The cost to attend the event is only $5 for one day, $9 for a two-day pass, or $12 for a three-day pass. Children under 12 can attend free.

For more information and a schedule of events go to www.siouxlandgardenshow.org. Hope to see you there; this will be a fun event for everyone.

Since we have had some Irish luck with recent rain and snow, most soils are too wet to work, unless you want to deal with hard soil and clods for the rest of the season. We will need to be a little patient before starting spring planting. In most cases, this is a good thing for the plants and for production later in the season.

All seeds have a minimum soil temperature at which they will begin to germinate. Seed also has an optimum temperature range at which they germinate quicker and growth is steadier. If seeds are planted at the minimum temperature for the species, it will take longer to germinate. In the case of potato seed pieces, sprouting will be slower. Once germination or sprouting occurs, the seedlings often grow slower due to cooler soil and air temperatures. Slow or stunted growth early in the season can lead to less vigorous plants higher incidence of disease, and lower yields later in the season. Also there is the increased risk of freeze injury to young plants in early spring. When seeds are planted at the optimum range for the species, germination is quicker and plants grow faster and steadier. This leads to vigorous plants that perform well and produce better later in the season.

For potatoes, the minimum soil temperature for planting is 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Potato seed pieces typically take two to four weeks to sprout. There are good reasons to plant potatoes fairly early. Irish potatoes are cool season plants that perform best under cool conditions. Tuber (the enlarged underground stem that we eat) development is highest in cooler soils of 60 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Tuber production basically stops once soil temperatures reach 80 degrees Fahrenheit. This is why some gardeners had lower yields last summer. Not only were air temperatures some of the hottest on record, so were soil temperatures.

The benefit of cooler soils is why it is recommended to hill or mound potatoes. Once potatoes reach six inches tall, pull or push soil up around the base of the plant. Repeat the process once plants reach 12 inches tall. Mounding maintains a cooler soil temperature for increased tuber production. Be sure to start with certified disease free seed pieces and not grocery store potatoes. These are often treated to prevent sprouting.

Keep in mind if potatoes are planted as soon as soil temperatures reach 40 degrees, it can take four weeks for sprouting to occur. If one waits until soil temperatures become warmer, say 45 degrees, and stay warmer; then sprouting may occur in as little as two weeks and plants are likely to grow more vigorously and start tuber production sooner. Current soil temperatures are in the low thirties. To monitor soil temperatures, go to backyardfarmer.unl.edu and click on the soil temperature link.
