County looking to address handicap issues

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

When the Wayne County Courthouse was first constructed in 1899, taking the handicapped into account wasn't something builders had to think about.

Now, more than a century later, the county needs to update a number of things to make the building more accessible to the disabled.

At Tuesday's Wayne County Commissioner meeting, the board was presented with a 14-page document that outlined changes that needed to be made at the courthouse and the nearby judicial building to deal with things that were noted after a recent inventory of the buildings in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act Accessibility Guidelines (ADAAG).

Melissa Rabbass, a clerk in the county assessor's and roads offices, worked with District 2 Commissioner Dean Burbach in detailing every inch of the 114-year old courthouse and neighboring judicial building.

"Some of the things barely don't meet specs, like the steps are 10 1/2 inches wide and need to be 11," she said. "The signs we have now we can keep, but we also need signs that meet (ADAAG) standards."

Rabbass and Burbach spent about a week going through the two buildings, and came up with a list of more than 100 items that need to be addressed, from visual alarms in the public and common-use restrooms to wheelchair accessibility in the courtroom.

"We tried to be very comprehensive, and I was surprised (with the number of items)," Rabbass said. "There are things we never would have dreamed of that had to be looked at, like the height of signs. There were things you just take for granted that you had to look at for accessibility. It was a real eye-opener."

Commissioner Jim Rabe wondered if some of the items could be addressed, due to the fact that the county courthouse has historical landmark status. Rabbass said there was some conflicting information regarding that issue that she was going to look into.

One of the items of interest was making the courtroom in the courthouse wheelchair-accessible. To do that, Rabbass said that some seats would need to be removed to allow for four wheelchair-accessible spaces to be created. Considering the age and installation of the permanent seating that was done many years ago, she wasn't sure how the county would be able to address that issue.

"We'd have to take out eight seats, but we're not sure whether or not the seats were installed in pairs, so we're not sure exactly how we can address that yet," she said. "If they don't come out the way we want, we might have to take out more."

The county has until July 1 to submit a report as to what their plans are for dealing with the handicap accessibility issues in the two buildings. Some of the items will not require much in the way of time or cost, while other items will require board action. A copy of the transition plan is available for public inspection in the county roads office at the courthouse, and the board opted to continue Tuesday's meeting to Monday at 9 a.m., where they will further review the document with Rabbass.

Groundbreaking opens door to opportunities in Laurel

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

About this time next year, there will be a new bump along the Laurel skyline.

The cozy community of 900-plus recently announced that, come August 2014, it will be home to Nebraska's third Agrex Inc. shuttle-loader facility.

Construction on the complex began in mid-April, when workers began building forms known as auger cast piles. According to Lucas Virgil of Laurel's Economic Development Department, eventually, there will be hundreds of these forms to support the massive structure that will be the shuttle-loader facility.

So far, work on the shuttle-loader can be viewed from its location along County Road 870, and construction crews were the backdrop on Tuesday morning, when a ground-breaking ceremony was held to commemorate the start of the building process.

"We have established great trust and friendship between Agrex and the city of Laurel," Shu Kobayashi, President and CEO of Agrex Inc., told attendees of the ceremony, adding that he hopes the same relationship can be formed between the company and local communities and farmers.

Governor Dave Heineman also made an appearance at the ceremony and was one of four to don a hard hat and turn over a shovelful of dirt at the site.

"This is a big deal," he said. "This is a huge deal."

And, after many months of hard work on the part of everyone involved, it should be.

Virgil says Agrex Inc., a Mitsubishi Corporation-owned company, spent between two and three years looking at potential locations, found Laurel and liked the availability of grain and the presence of the rail line.

"That really enticed Agrex to look at the site," he said.

B.J. Laven, General Manager of the Nebraska Operations Division of Agrex Inc., explains the attraction to the location.

Gov. Dave Heinemen speaks to audience members at Tuesday's groundbreaking ceremony of Agrex Inc. in Laurel.

"We saw that there was an area for a shuttle-loader, and (we wanted to) bring value to the producers there," he said.

He reports that the company did studies of production and demand on the sites it considered, but the results weren't all desirable.

"We looked at several other locations and walked away from them," Laven said.

With the amount of corn and soybeans grown in the Laurel area, he hopes this expansion of Agrex Inc. will add to the northeast Nebraska town.

"Our objective is to source grain tributary to our demand in Japan," Laven said. "This area feeds that demand."

Parks, bricks on City Council agenda

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Steps were taken to set closing hours for several parks and the Summer Sports Complex in the city of Wayne during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Police Chief Marlen Chinn and Deputy City Attorney Amy Miller said a number of reports of potential unlawful activities at the Summer Sports Complex, Rugby Park and Swimming Pool Park have been reported and having posted signs with the park's open hours would allow for police officers to have probable cause to approach a suspect car or pedestrian in these areas at night.

First reading approval was given to Ordinance 2013-33, which will allow the three areas to be open from 5 a.m.-11 p.m.

Council also spent a considerable amount of time discussing the sale of city street bricks.

Public Works Superintendent Garry Poutre told the council that there are 70,000-80,000 bricks located in the city's brick pile. He also noted that the bricks are used to replace those that are broken or no longer usable when a street project involving the removal of bricks is completed.

Discussion was held on the number of bricks that could be sold to any one individual and who would be eligible to purchase the bricks.

Following debate, the council voted to approve the sale of up to 20,000 bricks at a cost of $1 each to non-commercial residents of the city of Wayne.

The council approved Mayor Ken Chamberlain's request to re-appoint Gary Boehle to the LB840 Sales Tax Advisory Commit-

Green envelopes are business scam

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Businesses in Wayne should be aware of an official-looking mailing they received in the mail that is being called a scam by the Nebraska Secretary of State's office.

The questionable mailer, which arrives in a green envelope, has prompted a flood of calls to the office of Secretary of State John Gale, who said the mailing is a hoax.

"This is not necessarily new," he said. "Complaints about this direct-mailer have been reported in other states since last year. However, this is the first time we're hearing about it here in Nebraska."

The mailer, titled, "2013 Annual Minutes Form," is being sent to Nebraska corporations from a business that calls itself Corporate Records Service. The mailing urges business corporations to file information and send payment in the amount of $125 by a certain date in order to maintain proper records.

The solicitations include a reference to the Nebraska Business Corporation Act, and do appear to be official documents. However, the Secretary of State is alerting businesses in Nebraska that this service is not necessary to maintain good standing in the state of Nebraska.

"These letters did not originate from our office or any other government agency," Gale said. "Furthermore, Corporate Records Service is not registered to do business in Nebraska."

Gale said that official notices from the Secretary of State's office will include the letterhead and/or contact information for the Business Services Division of the Secretary of State's office.

"Other secretaries of state have posted alerts on their websites regarding these mailings," Gale said. "Unfortunately, businesses are often the target of such scams. Obviously, there has been a lot of confusion regarding this most recent mailing, as evidenced by the number of phone calls we've received in our office the past few days. We hope that by responding quickly to these complaints, we can get the word out that businesses should be watchful for this mailing and disregard it."

Finding their niche in right place, right time

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

The story of Harder and Ankeny, P.C. is one of those in-the-right-place-at-the-right-time kind of tales, and it begins almost two decades ago, when accountants Michelle Harder and Joel Ankeny were each looking to start their own business.

Harder's husband Troy, who knew Ankeny and knew he shared an aspiration with Michelle, put the idea into both of their heads, and the rest, as they say, is history.

"My husband was kind of the one who brought us together," Harder said.

Their accounting firm was born on July 1, 1997, and has been helping customers with their income and payroll taxes, bookkeeping and budget preparations ever since.

"We have over 50 years experience between the two of us in the accounting industry," Harder said.

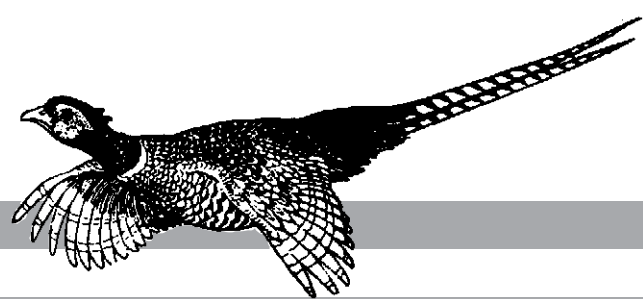

Harder, a transplant from Allen, and Ankeny, who's from rural Cedar County, started their forays in the money business in the 80s - he in late 1981, and she in 1988. Harder's decision to pursue her cur-

Undefeated state champs will reunite during Chicken Show

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

In a city that loves its baseball, no team had more success in a season than the 1966 Wayne Midgets American Legion team.

Coached by the legendary Hank Overin, the Midgets were undefeated and won the Class B state title that summer, going a perfect 24-0 and finishing with a 7-5 win over Auburn in the state finals.

The 17 members of that championship team have never gotten together since winning the state title, but will be reunited next month during the annual Wayne Chicken Show, getting together for a reunion and picnic in Bressler Park on Saturday, July 13.

Steve Schram, now living in Norfolk and a retired administrator at Northeast Community College, said that 13 of the former players have made plans to get together in Wayne that weekend. They plan on playing some golf on Friday, then will have a get-together in Bressler Park Saturday afternoon before making an appearance during the Class B, Area 4 Juniors tournament at Hank Overin Field later that day.

"This is our first reunion of the team, and we have people coming from Arizona, Tennessee,

"They were out there doing calasthenics before the game, and here we were, just a bunch of farm kids from Wayne. But we came out and jumped on them the first inning . . . and won the state title."

— Steve Schram

Remembering 1966 championship team

Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska," Schram told the Herald.

Schram said the team had a few close calls on their way to winning the state title after going undefeated during the regular season that summer.

"In our first game in districts, we had a tough one against Coleridge and managed to come out on top, 4-3," Schram said. "And after we beat Randolph and Laurel to get to the area finals, we had to come from behind twice to beat Scribner, who was also undefeated, 7-5 to get to state."

Schram said Wayne faced Gering in the semifinals at state, and at first he wondered what kind of a team they were going up against.

"All of their kids were like 6-foot-3 or 6-foot-4, and they were out there doing calasthenics before the game, and here we were, just a bunch of farm kids from Wayne," he said. "But we came out and jumped on them the first inning and won 9-3 to go on to the finals against Auburn and won the state title."

Schram said he remembers that Overin was a stickler for the fundamentals, and he said a lot of what Overin taught his teams are lacking in today's game.

"You can really appreciate the quality of coaching Hank gave us back then," he said. "He stressed the fundamentals and made practices fun, and he always told us to know what we were going to do before the ball was hit to us. It's amazing that what he taught us back then is still relevant today."

The team is planning on meeting in Bressler park at 11 a.m., with a program and picnic to follow at about 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 13.

Combs steps down as WSC hoops coach

Taking job closer to home at Div. III Carroll Univ.

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The opportunity to be closer to family and do something he loves proved to be too much of a temptation for Paul Combs.

After four years as the Wayne State men's basketball coach, Combs announced early Saturday that he was stepping down from the position to take the head men's basketball coaching job at Carroll University, a Div. III school in Waukesha, Wis.

Combs, who was 54-58 in four years with the Wildcats, said the opportunity to be closer to family was too much to pass up.

"Wisconsin is home for our family, and the opportunity to raise kids much closer to our family was very appealing to Michelle and I," he said.

Combs played his college ball at Ripon College, which plays in the same conference as Carroll University. He said that familiarity with the league he'll coach in was also important.

"Carroll has a really strong tradition, and they play in The Midwest Conference, which was the same league I played in as a student-athlete so there's a lot of familiarity with the university and the area and the league," he said.

Combs built the Wildcats back into a salty contender in the Northeast Sun Conference during his four-year tenure. After going 14-15 in 2009-10 and 13-14 the following year, his team dropped to 10-17 in 2011-12 before rebounding for a 17-12 season last year, marking the most wins by a Wayne State team since Greg McDermott's last Wildcat squad went 26-6 in 1999-2000.

Wildcats under Combs, as they led the NSIC in scoring defense in three of four seasons. The 2009-10 team set a new school record for field goal percentage in a season, making 49.5 percent of their shot attempts.

Combs said he was grateful to have had the opportunity to be a part of the Wayne State family and said he and his family would leave some quality friendships and relationships behind as they make their way to Wisconsin.

"My family and I will forever be grateful to the Wayne State College administration for welcoming us into the Wildcat athletic family," Combs said. "After much consideration, the opportunity to move home and have our three young kids be closer to family was a very important factor in our final decision. We leave a Wayne State team with great returning leadership that is extremely hungry to continue the strong momentum from this past season, both on and off the court. We have a community here in Wayne full of close friends with relationships that will last a lifetime."

Athletic director Mike Powicki said a national search for a new coach is underway, and he praised Combs for his efforts these past four seasons.

"Coach Combs was a true professional and went about his business with the utmost integrity," Powicki said. "We thank Paul for his time here at Wayne State and wish he and his family the best in the future. We now move our focus to finding new leadership for our men's basketball program, and a national search for our next head men's basketball coach will begin immediately."

Wayne Seniors win two in league play

It was a good week for the Wayne American Legion Seniors baseball team, as they won two of three games, including a win over in-county rival Wakefield.

On Wednesday, the Seniors used back-to-back extra-base hits in the first inning to get on the board against Wakefield, then broke the game open with eight runs in the final three innings to end the game on the 10-run mercy rule.

In the first inning, Drew Carroll reached base on a two-out single, then came home on Brady Soden's RBI double in the gap in right center. Soden followed Carroll home later when Steven Sherman laced a triple to right, offsetting Wakefield's first-inning score, which came when Evan Nicholson singled and later scored on an error.

The second when Nicholson singled home Wes Torcson, but Wayne came back with two more in the bottom of the inning to take the lead for good. They added two in the fourth, four in the fifth and two in the sixth to finish off the win.

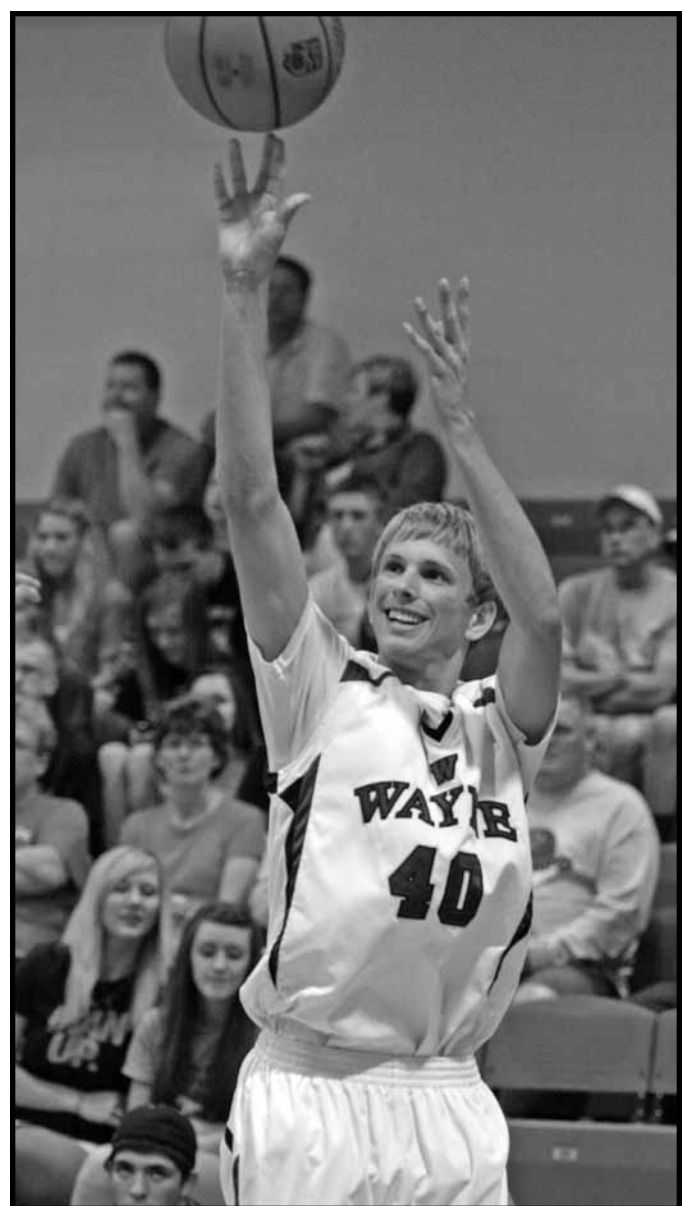

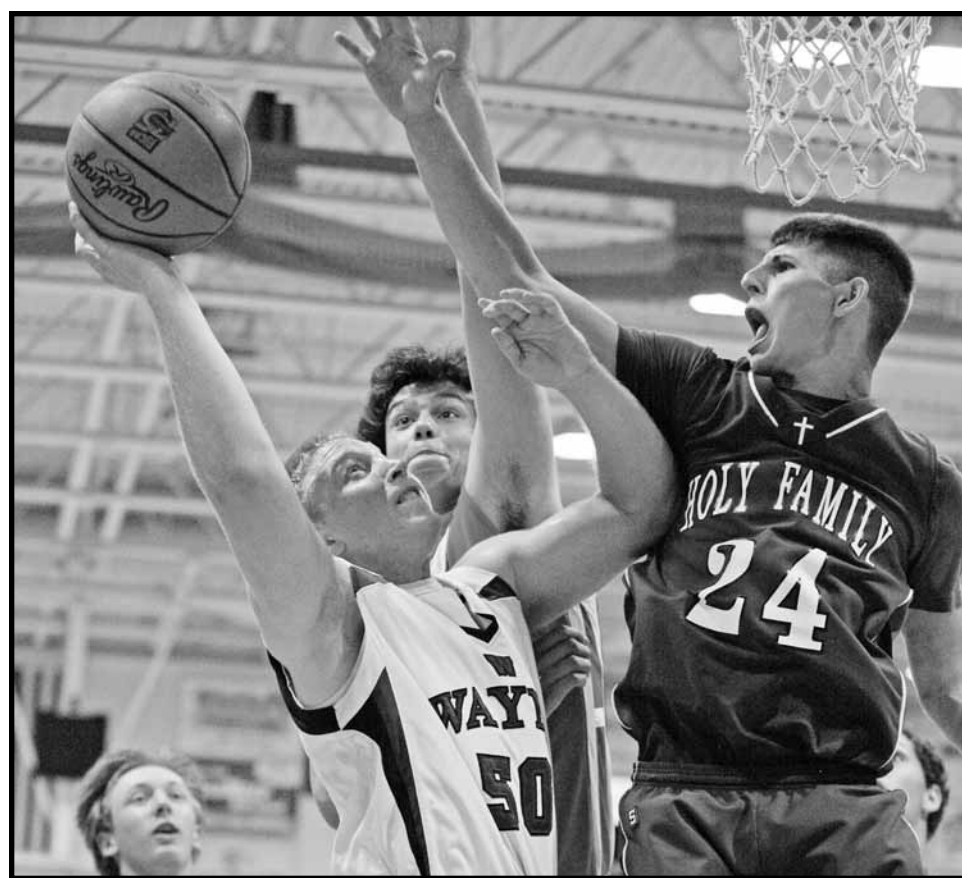

Soden had a big night overall, throwing a complete-game win with eight strikeouts and adding three hits and four RBI's at the plate. Carroll, Danny Melena, Joey Lenihan and Corey Doorlag each added two hits to highlight a season-best 14-hit attack for the Wayne Seniors.

On Saturday, Wayne made a valiant comeback on the road, but Valparaiso came back with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to come away with a 9-8 win in non-league action.

Wayne Juniors get wins over Wakefield, Pender

The Wayne American Legion Juniors came from behind with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to post a 4-3 win over Wakefield Wednesday at Hank Overin Field.

The Juniors trailed 3-2 going into the bottom of the inning. Micah Sprouls hit a ball in the infield, but a throwing error on a double play attempt allowed two runs to score, giving Wayne the victory.

Jack Belt got the win in relief of Jake Lutt, who struck out 13 in 6 2/3 innings. Brook Bowers doubled and scored, and Lutt had two hits.

Wakefield's Alex Corley had two hits and scored three runs in a losing effort. Julio Perez added two hits and took the loss.

On Friday, the Juniors battled Pender and won a 6-3 decision in a game that was called due to rain.

The Juniors had just two hits in the win with a Lutt double and a Belt single. Belt scored twice, and Noah Braun stole two bases. Curtis Moeller got the win, striking out five and allowing one hit.

On Saturday, the Juniors ran into a solid team on the road at Valparaiso, coming up on the short end of a 12-2 decision.

Wayne had five hits in the game, two coming from Braun. Kaden Korth added a double to the effort for the 5-5 Juniors.

18-under Devils take runner-up at Columbus

The Wayne Dirt Devils 18-under team earned runner-up honors at the Fire and Ice tournament this past weekend in Columbus.

In round-robin action Saturday, Wayne went 2-0-1 on the day, shutting out the Norfolk Golden Girls (3-0), playing to a 6-6 tie against St. Paul and beating Albion 6-1.

In the first game, Shelby Wobken hit a two-run homer, and Cassidy Miller singled, doubled and scored a run to lead Wayne. Miller got the complete-game win in the circle, allowing three hits and two walks while striking out four.

Against St. Paul, Wayne was out-hit 11-6 but got a three-run homer from Miller to help salvage the draw. McKenna Gibson and Caitlin Fehringer both doubled and scored, Wobken scored twice, and Jalyn Zeiss added a run.

In their final pool game, Wobken and Kristin Carroll combined in the circle to get the win for Wayne. Carroll and Lauren Gilliland both had two hits and scored a run, while Fehringer, Abbie Hix and Kendall Gamble each added hits.

On Sunday, Wayne opened tournament play with a 12-0 win over

Norfolk Kelly's in three innings, led by Karroll's three-inning perfect game, where she struck out six of the nine batters she faced.

Wayne spread around the hits, with Miller, Carroll, Hix, Gibson, Sydney Harris, Victoria Kranz and Jade Bottger all stroking safeties. Carroll, Kranz, Hix and Harris each scored two runs.

In the semifinals, Wayne had to go extra innings before beating the Golden Girls 5-4. Fehringer had three of Wayne's seven hits, including a triple and two RBIs. Miller came on in relief of Wobken and struck out four in three innings to get the win and move Wayne on to the finals.

In the championship game, seven errors hurt the Devils in their rematch with St. Paul, and Wayne came up short in a 9-5 decision.

Miller and Carroll tried to keep St. Paul's bats silent, but they pounded out 10 hits and took advantage of shaky defense by Wayne and came away with the win. Miller hit a three-run homer, and Carroll, Wobken and Gibson added hits.

Wayne continues play Thursday in Norfolk against the Golden Girls.

State trip awaits 10-under Devils

A trip to state awaits the Wayne Dirt Devils 10-under team after their finish in district action over the weekend. The team went 3-2 in the tournament and finished 10th out of 26 teams to qualify for state next month in Grand Island.

Wayne opened with an 8-3 win over Bennington, riding the six-strikeout pitching of Londyn Nelson. Kayla Fleming made a nice defensive play to Nikke Fertig, who also made a nice defensively play to safe a run.

In their second game, the Elkhorn Slammers Red handled Wayne, 8-1. Wayne played well defensively, with Fertig, Nelson, Sydney Redden and Fleming all making excellent plays on defense in a losing effort.

Wayne stayed alive in the tournament on Saturday with a 9-0 shut-out of West Point.

Annual 'NEST on the Farm' Scholarship Contest open to Nebraska farm families

First National Bank of Omaha and Nebraska State Treasurer Don Stenberg have announced the third annual "NEST on the Farm" scholarship contest for children of Nebraska farm families.

Three winners will each receive a $3,500 contribution and three runners-up will each receive a $1,000 contribution to a NEST Direct College Savings Plan account to be presented on Wednesday, Sept. 11, 2013, at Husker Harvest Days in Grand Island.

The scholarship contest is open to children and teens ages 7 to 13 who live on Nebraska farms or whose parents work on Nebraska farms. One winner and one runner up will be chosen in each of the following age categories: ages 7-9, 10-11, and 12-13. Each contestant is asked to submit a typed essay of no more than 750 words, describing how being in a farming family influences his or her higher education goals.

"First National Bank of Omaha has a proud history of working with Nebraska's agricultural communities. We are excited to offer this scholarship opportunity to farming families and help them get a jump start on saving for college," said Deborah Goodkin, Managing Director, First National Bank of Omaha.

"We are proud of our Nebraska farm and ranch families and admire the strong work ethic and good values that these families impart to their children," Treasurer Stenberg said. "We also know that the future success of our family farms and ranches, and our strong Nebraska farm economy, will require well-educated citizens. The enormous financial commitment, along with the increasing complexity of farm management, requires farmers and ranchers of the future to be well educated, well informed, and knowledgeable about a broad range of subjects."

All entries are due by mail or email by August 2, 2013. Three winners and three runners-up will be selected on August 23, 2013.

• Entries, preferably emailed in Microsoft Word format, must include a cover sheet with the following information: the entrant's name, address, phone number, age as of Aug. 2, 2013, and parent/guardian's name.

• If emailing, send to NEST@fni.com no later than 11:59 p.m. Aug. 2, 2013. The subject line should read NEST on the Farm Scholarship.

• If mailing, address to First National Bank of Omaha, ATTN: NEST on the Farm Scholarship, 1620 Dodge Street, Stop 1105, Omaha, Neb. 68197 (postmarked no later than Aug. 2, 2013).

• Each child must have a valid social security number and a Nebraska residential street address.

• The children must fall within their respective age groups on Aug. 2, 2013.

The scholarship will be awarded to the child and deposited into an account owned by the Nebraska Educational Savings Trust, held on behalf of the winner. For the official scholarship contest rules, visit the NEST Direct College Savings Plan at www.NEST529Direct.com or the State Treasurer's Office at www.treasurer.org/cs.

NEST is a tax-advantaged 529 college savings plan and provides four plans to help make saving for college simple and affordable: NEST Direct College Savings Plan, the NEST Advisor College Savings Plan, the TD Ameritrade 529 College Savings Plan, and the State Farm College Savings Plan. The Nebraska State Treasurer serves as the Program Trustee. First National Bank serves as the Program Manager, and all investments are approved by the Nebraska Investment Council. Currently, more than 203,000 families nationwide, including 55,000 in Nebraska, are saving for their children's higher education through NEST. For more information, visit www.NEST529.com.

Supporting local libraries

Among the projects supported by the Wayne Eagles Club each year is that of providing funds to local libraries. This year, checks were presented to the Carroll Public Library and Wayne Public Library. Involved in the check presentation at the Wayne Public Library (above) were Rita McLean, Adult Services Librarian, Marsha Roth, Eagles Auxiliary President, and Julie Osnes, Youth Services Librarian.

The American flags led the group of tractors involved in this year's Tractor Run fundraiser for the Winside Q-125 celebration.

Despite less than ideal weather conditions, tractors of all sizes and colors, many of which were more than 50 years old, took part in this year's Tractor Run.

Winside Q125 Tractor Run attracts many Winside's Q125 committee held its second Tractor Poker Run fundraiser on June 1 with 43 tractors or other vehicles and 75 individuals participating.

"It was a cold, windy and damp day but everyone still enjoyed the event," said chairman Jeff Farran. "We left Winside at 9 a.m. from the AK Cafe and traveled to Wayne, where we had lunch at the Max. A card was picked up at the White Dog, then off to the Kevin Kay farm for another, then the Dennis Wade farm and the final card was drawn at Weible Transfer in Winside."

Bryce Roberts was the first place poker winner, Rose Janke, second place and Marla Miller, third place.

An auction was held afterward with items donated by Bomgaars and Grossenburg Implement of Wayne; Norfolk Implement, NAPA, and Dinkel Implement, all of Norfolk and Jensen's AK Cafe, Fugglies, and The Winside Farm Store, all of Winside.

"We thank everyone for their donations and participation in this event," Farran said.

The next fundraisers will be Friday-Sunday, June 21-23. Friday, June 21 will be a pitch tournament (contact Jensen's Cafe (402) 286-4300) and a teen dance in the Winside Auditorium from 7-11 p.m.; Saturday, June 22 will be a road rally (contact Jeff (402) 369-2298), water fights at 2 p.m. (contact Don Skokan (402) 286-4112) and a BBQ in the park 6 p.m. (Free will donation); and on Sunday, June 23 there will be a horseshoe tournament at 1 p.m. (contact Gene Jensen (402) 286-4300).

Winside's Q125 celebration will be July 19-21, 2015.

Rural Enterprise Grants help small towns

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack kicked off National Small Business Week by highlighting USDA's actions to help rural small businesses create jobs, get access to capital and spur economic growth. He also announced the selection of recipients for USDA's Rural Business Enterprise Grants. USDA remains focused on carrying out its mission, despite a time of significant budget uncertainty.

Secretary Vilsack announced 54 awards under the Rural Business Enterprise Grants program in 21 states including one for The Center for Rural Affairs in Lyons.

The Center for Rural Affairs will use $99,000 in Rural Development funds to grow small businesses within the Omaha and Santee Sioux tribes of Nebraska. "Small Business and Market Growth for Omaha and Santee Sioux Tribes of Nebraska" will provide training and technical assistance to develop at least two small businesses and create at least two and one-half full time jobs in the communities of Santee and Macy. Omaha and Santee Sioux gardeners will learn to grow vegetables for high value markets. Gardeners and artisans will gain business skills to sell at farmers markets and other outlets. A new farmers market for the Omaha tribe will be started.

"Small businesses are the backbone of the economy in small towns and rural communities, just as they are in our biggest cities," Vilsack said. "USDA supports small businesses by providing job training, business development opportunities, strategic community planning and other resources. We're focused on making sure that Main Street businesses have the tools they need to grow."

Gov. Heineman announces Nebraska's Veterans' Homes receive perfect scores

Gov. Dave Heineman has announced that all four Veterans' homes administered by the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) have received perfect scores on their most recent annual Health Care System Surveys from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Included are the Eastern Nebraska Veterans' Home in Bellevue, the Grand Island Veterans' Home in Grand Island, the Western Nebraska Veterans' Home in Scottsbluff and the Norfolk Veterans' Home in Norfolk.

"This is a noteworthy achievement and shows the dedication of our veterans home employees," said Gov. Heineman.

The facilities had no deficiencies in the areas of life safety, resident care, environment, staff training and development, dietary-food service, banking and billing services for veterans, recreation/activities, medical staff credentialing, social work, and all areas related to quality assurance and care.

"Nebraska has a proud tradition of taking care of its veterans,"

Prestigious Gold Award has a long history and lasting benefits

The Gold Award, the highest award earned in Girl Scouts, has been achieved by 19 Girl Scouts in Nebraska.

This prestigious award is comparable to the Boy Scouts' Eagle Scout Award. On June 1, one of five celebrations was held at Central Community College in Columbus. Celebrations were held in Grand Island, Lincoln, Ogallala and Omaha.

Among those recognized was Julia Casey of Laurel.

"To acquire the Gold Award is no small task. It requires a minimum of 80 hours of work in planning and implementing the project," said Fran Marshall, CEO, Girl Scouts Spirit of Nebraska. "More than 1500 hours of community service have been completed by the 19 Girl Scouts earning their Gold Award this year."

The project's hours must be completed by the girl. Although it is encouraged that the girl has troop members and others from the community to help her, their time does not count towards her 80 hour requirement. Plans must be developed with the aid of an advisor, and then a project proposal must be submitted and approved by the girl's local council before starting the project. A final report is given after the project's completion.

The range of projects varied from said Gov. Heineman. "I recognize that serving those who served our country is important and the right thing to do. Achieving perfect survey scores demonstrates our commitment to providing quality care to veterans."

Survey teams from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs are typically an interdisciplinary team comprised of three RNs, a Registered Dietician and a Life Safety Code expert from various parts of the country.

With a total capacity of 637 beds, the four Veterans' Homes provide a variety of medical, nursing and rehabilitative services, tailored to the needs of their members. Services range from assisted living care for members able to essentially care for themselves, to skilled nursing care.

Members' health care services are administered by dedicated nurses, physicians, dieticians, occupational therapists, speech therapists, physical therapists and other professionally trained personnel.

"To the best of my knowledge, this is the first time all four Veterans' homes have achieved deficiency-free surveys in less than a year," said John Hilgert, Director of the Nebraska Department of Veterans Affairs. "It obviously represents extremely committed and competent staff members who live the mission of serving America's heroes with honor and respect."

The four Veterans' Homes in Nebraska strive to serve the unique needs of each member by providing high quality services and holistic long-term care in a homelike veterans' community.

Wayne Optimist Club conducts June meeting

Wayne Optimist met June 4 at the Coffee Shoppe. The speaker for the evening was Cindy VonFange who updated the members about the Personal Growth and Involvement Program Passport process that each member may be part of.

One step of growth is knowing the history of the Optimist club. Cindy VonFange then shared that history.

Optimist Club is over a 100 years old, with the Optimist Creed being written in the early 20's. The oldest program is the Oratorical contest. Many famous people look back to their youth remembering their first speaking experience through the Oratorical contest.

Northeast Community College, Middlesex University in London sign articulation agreement

The flags of the United States and Great Britain are proudly on display at Northeast Community College in Norfolk and Middlesex University in London. A ceremony was held Thursday where administrators signed an articulation agreement between the two schools.

"Our agreement with Middlesex creates an opportunity for our students to transfer to their university with an associate of arts degree in business administration once they graduate from Northeast," said Northeast Vice President of Educational Services John Blaylock. "We intend to expand the agreement to include areas in fine arts such as theater, literature, and graphic design. This agreement also allows our students to be eligible for tuition assistance when transferring to Middlesex University," he said.

Northeast Community College students who will be entering their sophomore year will also have the opportunity to attend Middlesex during the summer, to experience the English educational system first-hand.

"This agreement with Middlesex University brings another offering to our global opportunity program. It sets Northeast apart from other community colleges by developing an articulation agreement with an international university, Blaylock said.

Middlesex educates 40,000 students at campuses in London, Dubai and Mauritius. A new campus will open in Malta in September.

Speaking Thursday via a live video feed from London, Melvyn Keen, Middlesex deputy chief executive, said this is a great opportunity for both institutions. "Although we have a lot of international experience, each new partnership is very exciting for us. Especially partnerships with organizations in the (United) States, which is a little bit of an unexplored country still for us," he said. "One of the things we may be able to do with this (agreement), is open up the rest of the world to yourselves."

This is the third agreement

Northeast Community College officials have signed with an international higher education partner in the past eight months. Northeast signed Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) agreements with North Lindsey College in Scunthorpe, England and with Aarhus Business College in Denmark.

Northeast hosted six business students, an instructor and an administrator from North Lindsey in April as part of an exchange program. The same number of Northeast students, faculty and staff will attend classes in Scunthorpe this fall. Administrators continue to develop an academic cooperation and exchange between Northeast and Aarhus.

Global Educational Opportunities is one of eight institutional priorities at Northeast. The 8th priority calls for developing opportunities for students and faculty to engage in learning activities designed to enhance cultural awareness and increase workforce competitiveness.

Northeast Community College President Dr. Michael Chipps said these agreements give Northeast students, faculty and staff a greater appreciation and understanding of the world in which we live. "We are pleased Northeast can offer learning opportunities to our students and staff. Furthermore, face-to-face experiences like this simply enhance cultural awareness," he said.

The U.S. Department of Education has created four strategy areas to increase global educational opportunities. One of which is workplace skills. President Barack Obama is calling on community colleges to produce five million more graduates by 2020, three million by four year institutions.

Chipps said agreements and partnerships with institutions such as Middlesex University allow Northeast Community College students to be prepared to compete and work in a global economy. "Partnerships around the globe with universities like Middlesex establish the foundation for a better understanding of our international neighbors as well as a mutually shared global perspective. In sum, it prepares our 21st Century students for how their futures will be shaped."

Keen said students in the United States who come to the UK to study always come away changed from the experience. "(They) start to see the rest of the world. When you talk to them, it often changes their lives."

TYPE 2 DIABETES: 6 TIPS FOR NEWLY DIAGNOSED

Not me. Those may be the first words that come to mind if you're diagnosed with type 2 diabetes. It isn't news anyone wants to hear. It's true—you will need to make some changes, but your life sure isn't over. And, with so many diabetes resources online and in your community, you don't have to go it alone.

First, it may help to get a little clearer about what diabetes is. Your body needs insulin to break down sugar (glucose) into energy. If you have type 2 diabetes, your body either doesn't have enough insulin or doesn't use it well. So glucose stays in your blood, causing problems.¹

There isn't a cure for type 2 diabetes. But you can learn to manage it well. You can keep your blood glucose in a safe range by balancing the food you eat with exercise—and medicine, if your doctor prescribes it. Be sure to make all your doctor appointments. You may also need to learn how to check your blood glucose.²

Here are six tips to get you started taking better care of yourself.

1. Get clear about the roles of your diabetes care team: This may include your doctor, nurse, dietitian, diabetes educator, and me, of course—your pharmacist.¹
2. Learn about healthy eating. Diabetes diets aren't as restrictive as they once were. The key thing is to eat a variety of healthy foods—not too much and not too much of one type of food. Don't skip meals, and space your meals throughout the day.³
3. Try the "Plate Method" for planning your meals. Divide your plate in half, and then divide one side in half again. Fill the largest section with non-starchy vegetables. In one small section, put starchy foods such as whole-grain breads, rice, potatoes, or cereal. In the other small section, put meat or meat substitutes. Add eight ounces of nonfat or low-fat milk and a piece of fruit.⁴
4. Look for ways to be active throughout the day. Need to make phone calls? Get up and move around while talking. Park a little farther away from your destination to get in a few more steps. Ask your doctor how much aerobic activity you need daily. This can help your insulin work better. If you need to lose weight, try for more than 30 minutes a day of aerobic activity.⁵ Dropping just 10 or 15 pounds makes a big difference.⁶
5. Has your doctor prescribed medication to keep your blood glucose in a healthy range? If so, get clear about how many to take and how often. Also, learn how to prevent side effects and what to do if you have any.⁷
6. Learn how to check your blood glucose at home if your doctor asks you to. Your doctor or diabetes educator can help you select a meter that works well for you and is covered by your insurance.⁸

Remember: I'm part of your diabetes care team. You can think of me as your "go-to" person for answering any questions you have about your diabetes medications.

You can do this!

Nothing herein constitutes medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, or is a substitute for professional advice. You should always seek the advice of your physician or other medical professional if you have questions or concerns about a medical condition.

Opinion

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Parents looking at technology different

Summer officially starts on Friday. To give the 2 1/2 weeks of spring that we had the proper sendoff, here are some items from the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- I still vividly remember the day my dad caught me playing video games at the local arcade.

He instructed me not to go into the building because he didn't want to see me waste my quarters on Space Invaders, Pac Man and pinball machines. These games were of no use or value to me, he reasoned, and I shouldn't be wasting my money on such silliness.

Today's parents, evidently, could care less about all the video games and technology their kids are playing with, according to a recent study by Northwestern University.

Almost 4 in 5 parents say their children's use of technology such as game players, smart phones and tablets is not a source of family conflict, and almost 3 in 5 aren't worried that their children will become addicted to these devices.

Today's parents have grown up with technology as a key component in their lives, so they look at these items a lot differently than us old folk (did I just call myself OLD???)

Technology use is now more than a family affair - but I still can't get Dad to give me a quarter to play Galaga at Pizza Hut.

- You may remember the old Rick Moranis movie, "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids."

Here's a rather unique sequel - "Honey, I Sold Your Wedding Ring At a Garage Sale."

Professional poker player Eric Cloutier was selling some items at a neighborhood garage sale, and one of the items was a small box that he sold for $10.

Inside the box - his wife's wedding ring.

The discovery wasn't made until his wife went looking for the ring, which she kept in a box. When she asked of the box's whereabouts, he told her that he had sold the box to a lady for 10 bucks.

According to a story on CardPlayer.com, Cloutier posted on Twitter that he was thinking about playing in this year's World Series of Poker. I wonder what his first purchase will be when he cashes out in a tournament - and whether or not his wife will have sold all of his belongings when he returns from Las Vegas.

- From the "Athletes just don't understand us mortal humans" department: former NFL wide receiver Chad "Ocho Cinco" Johnson recently was in court after being charged with domestic battery and got a 30-day jail sentence for committing an act of violence in front of a Broward County, Fla., judge.

The act of violence? He slapped his attorney on the backside.

It was the kind of pat on the butt athletes give one another for a job well done, but that's not how the judge saw it. She felt Johnson wasn't taking the case seriously enough and ordered him to spend 30 days in the pokey for his unseemingly playful behavior.

Talk about your tough judges - I wonder if a high five would have gotten him 5-10 years of hard time?

- Things are so bad in Chicago now . . . boys are getting pregnant.

You may laugh, but there are billboards in the Windy City right now that picture boys who look pregnant, with the ad heading saying "Unexpected?"

Uh, YEAH . . .

The billboards are actually a conversation-starting effort to get kids to understand the impact unplanned pregnancies have on their lives. Children having children is a nationwide problem and is more of an issue in big cities like Chicago.

The shock-inducing advertising effort also encourages kids to visit BeYouBeHealthy.org, a website that provides information about sex, relationships and contraception.

- Today's proof that some serious, important research is being done in our nation's colleges and universities: scientists at Cornell University have invented a robot that every guy should have in his house or man-cave.

What makes this robot so important is that it has a database of 3-D videos outlining basic human activities that allows it to learn the appropriate responses to various actions - like opening a refrigerator and pouring its master a beer without being prompted.

Now if I can just get another robot who can organize my paperwork, a third to clean the house and one more to do the laundry, I can spend more time doing the REALLY important stuff - playing poker online.

- Annnnnnd finally, because some people have too much time and imagination on their hands, we offer this nugget: JCPenney was forced to take down a billboard in California advertising a tea kettle.

What was wrong with the kettle, you ask? Simple, really - it looked like Adolf Hitler.

The way the kettle was posted, with its round handle, it actually does look like a South Park-styled rendition of the late World War II dictator. In fact, the store pulled the kettle from its website, and those who bought the kettle before it was removed were selling it on eBay for 10 times its original value.

Quite honestly, this tea kettle would go perfect with my Barack Obama coffee mug - which looks and smells like a pile of doggie doo.

Agreement on accomplishments

The Nebraska Press Association

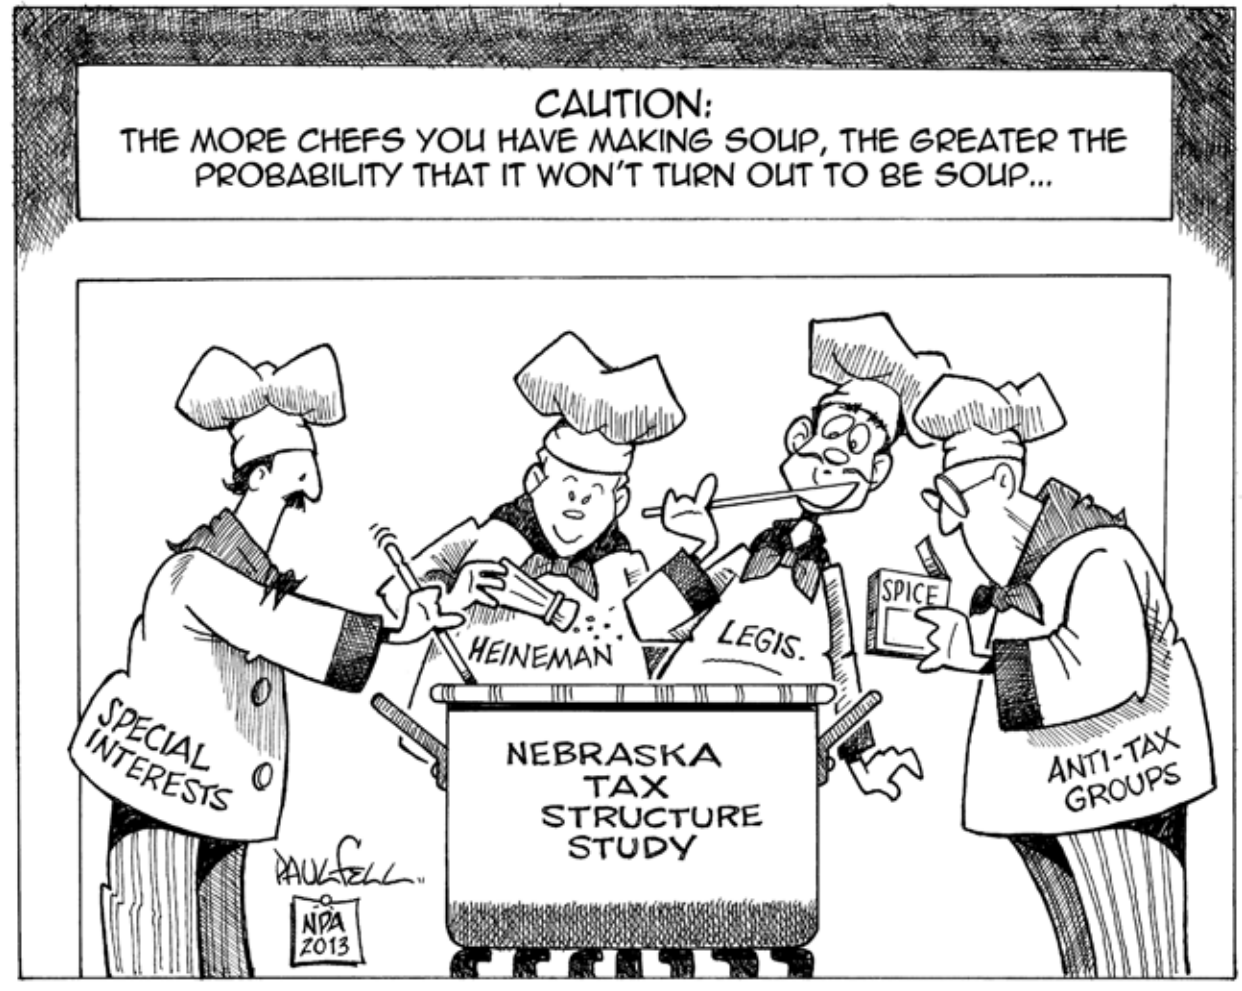

The 103rd Legislature, first session, by the numbers. Lawmakers introduced 655 bills. Of those, 214 were passed by senators and approved by the governor. Five more were passed notwithstanding the governor's veto. Another 52 were killed. The balance was left in committee with Judiciary holding 68, Revenue 60, Appropriations 30, Health 29 and a scattering of smaller numbers in the rest of the standing committees.

Governor Dave Heineman spoke to lawmakers on their last day and thanked them for passing bills involving education, juvenile justice and taxation. The Governor did not speak on the final day of the 102nd Legislature in May 2012 following a short session (60 days) and short tempers involving the overrides of several controversial bills. But the mutual respect prevailed this year as he spoke about several of his favorite proposals, which were passed.

Speaker of the Legislature, Senator Greg Adams of York, thanked his colleagues and their staff for their hard work during what he called a "difficult session." He lauded them for tackling difficult issues, even though two of the most contentious ones never saw a final vote.

A measure (LB577) to expand Medicaid coverage and a bill (LB543) to abolish the death penalty were the object of filibusters and the inability of their respective sponsors to muster the 33 votes necessary to cease debate and force a vote. Adams exercised the Speaker's prerogative and removed them from the agenda.

Heineman and Adams both noted the importance of passing the two-year, $7.8 billion budget and approving a resolution to create a committee to review Nebraska's tax structure for the first time in decades. Adams, a retired teacher, said the budget reflected the right priorities by focusing on early childhood, K-12 and higher education. The University of Nebraska and state colleges will benefit from a tuition freeze, and the University Medical Center will benefit from construction of a new nursing facility in Lincoln. Increased funds were also included for early childhood and special education.

Heineman, who failed to get traction with two proposals to eliminate the state income tax and replace it with increased sales tax fees, seemed pleased with a proposal (LR155) to create the Tax Modernization Committee. In his address to lawmakers, he echoed the importance of tax reform, saying the state needs a tax code that is simpler and fairer.

Adams said the Legislature "did the right thing" by approving the committee, which is tasked with reviewing and recommending updates to the state's property, income and sales tax codes. He and his colleagues will analyze the committee's recommendations next year.

"Making tax policy is the jurisdiction of this body and that is what we will do," he said.

The Governor also thanked senators for their work on a bill (LB561), which proposes juvenile justice reform. He said he likes that bill's broad change in the system with a focus on treatment rather than punishment, calling it an "innovative" approach to dealing with youth who break the law.

"This reform will reduce reliance on detention and focus on rehabilitation for youth while keeping families involved," Heineman said.

Critics say they aren't sure that the change will work, but many breathed a sigh of relief that the rumored closure of the youth development centers at Kearney (boys) and Geneva (girls) wasn't part of the proposal. The change will force a shift of the supervision of all juvenile offenders in the community to the state's probation system, which will reduce reliance on detention and focus on rehabilitation for youth while keeping families involved.

The Governor called it a forward-looking and innovative approach to dealing with youth who break the law. It represents an important step forward as we continue to find ways for the state to deal with youth in the justice system. The focus at Health and Human Services will be on helping children in the system who are victims of abuse and neglect.

The heavy lifting has only just begun in terms of the tax changes and re-focusing of the juvenile justice system. This Legislature seems to be up to the task under the direction of a Governor and a Speaker, each of who have only one year left in office because of term limits. In addition to Adams, 15 more state senators face their last year because of term limits.

Will they do the right thing and leave behind a legacy? Only time will tell.

Legislative Update

No tax increases, but no tax cuts, either

The first session of the 103rd Nebraska Legislature is over. We as a body adjourned Wednesday, June 5.

There were no tax increases; there were also no major tax cuts. We did manage to eliminate the Alternative Minimum Tax, which was originally designed to tax those who had enough deductions to offset their tax burden. The plan was complicated and never worked very well. With inflation, over the years this tax was being forced on what is now considered the middle-income earner.

I think we will see a real change

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

in tax policy next year. There is a "study" during this interim to look at the total tax policy of the State of Nebraska. This group will report to the Governor and the full Legislature before next session with ideas on how to be more fair in our tax system.

The interim is now in full swing and I am spending the majority of my time in District 17. I will be using the upcoming months to work on some of the bills that I introduced this year, as well as looking into worthwhile bills to introduce next year. Every year, constituents contact my office with ideas on legislation to be introduced. I will gladly look into any suggestion that is brought to me. The sooner the idea is brought to us, the more time we have to thoroughly look into and research it.

Here is a little something to be aware of: the Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance (NDBF) has issued a warning to consumers regarding an Internet-based escrow company. Lincoln Closing and Escrow Services (LCE) claims to be located on "O" Street in Lincoln. But, after some complaints, the Department looked into the company and discovered that there is no such company at the location. LCE had provided a consumer with a Sale of Checks and Funds Transmission license from the NDBF. This license claimed that LCE was the trade name for USA, Inc. Skrill USA, Inc. is a licensed money transmitter, but they have no affiliation with LCE.

I would encourage all of you to be careful when dealing with Internet-based companies; do your homework and check the company out. Often these companies will have you provide your name, social security number and bank account information, which places you at a high risk of being a victim of identity theft. You can report money transmitter scams to the Nebraska Department of Banking and Finance (NDBF) by calling the Consumer Hotline toll free at (877) 471-3445 in Nebraska, or you can complete a Financial Institutions complaint form on the Department's website at ndbf.ne.gov.

I was able to be in the parades for the Emerson Q125 and also Cottonwood Days in Dakota City. It is my intent to be in parades in South Sioux City on June 22, Pender on June 30 and Hoskins and Jackson on July 4. I hope to see you "out in the District."

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or e-mail dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

Service learning important for youth

Most of us have done some type of a community service project. Maybe picking up trash along a roadway, donating resources for a food drive, or visiting residents at a nursing home.

This is one step to be more community focused for youth audiences.

A core activity of positive youth development programs should deal with service learning opportunities for youth. What does this mean? Youth are able to examine the issues in the community and develop a plan to achieve the project. They are able to apply knowledge, skills, and critical thinking to the problem.

There are three components to a service learning project: youth involvement; meaningful service; and reflection. Youth will be able to learn valuable skills as they plan, organize, and implement the project. They may see a need in a community that adults have not addressed before, and adults play a critical role in helping youth prioritize the community needs.

A key component of service learning is reflection which occurs before, during, and following the project. They are able to reflect on the experience to discuss the "What", "So What", and "Now What". Youth are able to make the connections of the service project and how it will influence lifelong learning.

Here are the five steps to implement a service learning project:

- Assess and identify the need;
- Plan and prepare;
- Experience meaningful service;

Angela Abts
Dakota County

- Analysis and evaluation;
- Celebration.

Service learning ties in well with citizenship and leadership development for youth audiences. What does citizenship mean to you? The definition of citizenship is the character of an individual viewed as a member of society. This definition happens to follow the mission of the National 4-H program to empower young people to be well-informed citizens who are actively engaged in their communities and the world. 4-H is a valuable program to teach all youth about using positive character traits to help within the community. The service learning projects that youth are able to address can fall into the 150 different 4-H projects offered in Nebraska 4-H. 4-H youth can challenge themselves to try new service activities within their projects to develop sense of volunteerism for their community.

Learning about service learning, citizenship and leadership happens all the time within 4-H activities. Youth might serve as an officer of a club to learn about parliamentary procedure, join a committee to plan out an event for the club, or be a part of the service learning project. One of the capstone events familiar to many is the 4-H CWF (Citizenship Washington Focus) trip that youth attend during their high school career.

The 4-H teens learn about citizenship and how they are a contributing member of society; travel to Washington, D.C., to see the United States government in action and learn about the past through historical sites, and plan a service learning project that they could complete after the project.

There are many opportunities for youth to serve our local communities. For more information about the 4-H and Youth Development, please contact the University of Nebraska Lincoln Extension Office in your local county or visit the website at www.4h.unl.edu.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as read. Pres. Rhonda thanked the Guest Day hostesses for a very delicious lunch.

Correspondence read included thank you notes from Pastor Feldmann, Rhonda Sebade, the Dale Stoltenberg family, Emily Matthes, Allison Echtenkamp, Jesus Our Savior Lutheran School of Winnebago, the Norfolk Mission, Camp Luther of Nebraska and Ryan and Dani Janke, our seminary student.

The treasurer's report was given by LaVonn

Bierman, pro tem, and filed for financial review.

The June devotion was read responsively as mites were collected.

Committee reports included:

Mission Service: Mary Janke volunteered to continue with this committee. There will be six students, so far, next year.

President Sebade stated the Zone Executive Board meeting will be July 8 at 1:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall. Everyone is welcome.

Pastor Feldmann gave the Bible study on Psalm 139, reminding us that God knows everything we do and think.

The meeting closed with The Lord's Prayer and the Table Prayer.

The birthday song was sung for Mary Janke and Verdelle Reeg.

Ruth Victor and Verdelle Reeg were hostesses. Ellen Heinemann will host the July 10 meeting at The Oaks.

Diabetics are encouraged to 'set a goal to take control'

Managing diabetes can seem overwhelming at times. There are numerous tasks required to keep it under control which can vary depending on your overall health and personal circumstances.

But here is one thing everyone with diabetes needs to focus on: controlling blood glucose. When you improve your diabetes control, you win both now and in the future. With tighter control of blood sugar levels, you are likely to feel better and more energetic. But the long-term effects are even more striking. Major clinical trials have proven that good blood glucose control is the best way to prevent or delay diabetes complications. Even small reductions in blood glucose levels can improve your health.

Good control requires diligence, motivation, and willingness to try new strategies. Those interested are encouraged to learn new strategies by attending Control Diabetes for Life where the Wednesday, June 26 session will focus on "Avoiding Complications from Diabetes."

When you have diabetes, committing to healthier habits is a big deal. There is much more at stake than vanity. It is about reducing the risks of some pretty serious health complications. But with so much at stake, why is it still so hard to find the motivation to do the things you know you should?

Motivation is a great mind tool. But because we misunderstand how it works, we too often sit around and wait for it to appear, and when it doesn't, we wonder why we've been unable to find it. Motivation is something that you must initiate yourself and create by an act of will. Then, once the pump is primed, so to speak, the motivation you seek will begin to flow.

Set a goal to take control of your diabetes. Aim for lower blood glucose levels to feel better now and stay healthy for years to come.

Foot Care and Controlling Neuropathic Pain; Heart Health, Cholesterol, and Diabetes; and Diabetes on the Job are the topics that will be covered during the June 26 session of Control Diabetes for Life.

Participants will receive recipes for diabetic appropriate foods. Team-teaching the program will be Stacie Petersen, B.S.R.N. & Certified Diabetes Educator; Deborah, R.D., L.M.N.T., of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra E. Schroeder, UNL Extension Educator in Cuming County.

The program will be offered on Wednesday, June 26, from 1:30-4 p.m. at Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department in Wayne.

Control Diabetes for Life is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered free-of-charge. Control Diabetes for Life will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease.

Participants are asked to pre-register by calling the Wayne County Extension office at (402) 375-3310. Please register by Monday, June 24, so the proper number of handouts may be prepared. Nebraska School Food Service Association has approved this session for two hours of continuing education credits for food service staff for attending.

Midsummer Crop Management Diagnostic Clinic set for July 17-18

Agribusiness professionals and crop producers will take a close-up look at field conditions, research and techniques at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's midsummer Crop Management Diagnostic Clinics July 17-18.

The UNL Extension clinics begin each day with 7:30 a.m. registration at the Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead and start at 8 a.m. Participants will meet at the August N. Christenson Research and Education Building. Participants can attend one or both of the clinics as subject matter will be different each day.

Keith Glewen, UNL extension educator said, "Benefits of the crop management and diagnostic clinics include one-on-one attention, on-site plot demonstrations, interaction with other participants, discussions about cutting edge research and an opportunity to earn continuing education credits through Certified Crop Adviser (CCA) program."

The July clinics feature national corn specialist from Purdue University who also happens to be a native Nebraskan, Bob Nielsen. Glewen said, having the opportunity to have Nielsen share his experience and knowledge of corn production live in a cornfield, for many participants will be a once in lifetime educational experience.

Topics on July 17 include: Corn Crop Canopy, Light Interception, and Grain Yield; Corn Silage, An Efficient and Economical Use of Corn Residue; Update on Nematodes of Corn and Soybean; Crop Water Use; Making the Most of a Herbicide Application and Feeding a Growing Population in a Shrinking World: A Plant Biosecurity-Food Security Challenge.

Six Certified Crop Adviser credits (crop management - 1.5, pest management - 3.0, soil and water management - 1.0, and nutrient management - .5) have been applied for and are pending approval for this clinic.

July 18 clinic topics include: Sex in the Corn Field: What Really Goes On Out There?; Evaluating Efficacy of Tank Mixing Herbicides for Hard-to-Control Weeds in Corn; Feedlot Manure and Holding Pond Effluent: N Availability and Environmental Issues; Understanding the Benefits and Limitations of Current Pesticide Application Field Equipment; Crop Scene Investigation (CSI); and Atrazine in Surface/Groundwater.

Six Certified Crop Adviser credits (crop management - 1.5, pest management - 3.5, and nutrient management - 1.0) have been applied for and are pending approval for this clinic.

Early registration is recommended to reserve a seat and resource materials. Cost for one clinic is $160 for those registering one week in advance and $210 after. Cost for both clinics is $280 one week in advance and $320 after.

For more information or to register, contact the ARDC CMDC Programs, 1071 County Road G, Ithaca, Neb., 68033, call (800) 529-8030, fax (402) 624-8010, e-mail cdunbar2@unl.edu or visit the Web at www.ardc.unl.edu/training.shtml.

Cooling assistance available

Nebraskans with little cooling this summer can be helped with their bills or the availability of fans if they meet the qualifications for two Department of Health and Human Services programs, according to Thomas Pristow, director of Children and Family Services.

DHHS has partnered with 63 organizations in 38 Nebraska communities to distribute fans to citizens. The recipients of the fans are determined by the organizations that distribute them, Pristow said.

Anyone seeking a fan should call the telephone number of the organization nearest them for more information.

The fans were purchased with funds from the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Administration for Children and Families, and the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services administers the funds, he said.

Applications can be requested online at www.accessnebraska.ne.gov or by calling (800) 383-4278 or any local DHHS office.

Tyler Beauchamp of Grossenburg Implement in Wayne was recently recognized as a Platinum PLUS Certified Technician by Reinke Manufacturing Company.

Grossenburg technician earns elite service award

Reinke Manufacturing Company, Inc., a leading manufacturer of mechanized irrigation systems, is pleased to announce that Tyler Beauchamp with Grossenburg Implement in Wayne has earned the Platinum Proven Leaders in Unmatched Service (PLUS) Certified Technician Award.

The prestigious award is the most elite technical service designation awarded by Reinke.

"Being recognized as a Platinum PLUS Certified Technician is quite a remarkable accomplishment," said Tim Goldhammer, vice president of marketing, Reinke Manufacturing. "Tyler has completed the most extensive technical service training available to Reinke dealers and is to be commended for his hard work."

Beauchamp qualified for the honor during a recent Reinke service training session held at the company's headquarters in Deshler.

The Platinum PLUS Certified Technician Program consists of a series of six technical service training classes and tests. Beauchamp received the Platinum PLUS award by scoring more than 90 percent on all six tests.

"We understand how important qualified service technicians are to producers when they make their buying decisions," added Goldhammer. "That's the focus of our technical service programs, to consistently build upon the level of service capabilities of Reinke dealers across the country and further our commitment to the industry."

Local 4-Hers and leaders honored for horticulture knowledge

(Contributed photo) Don Liedman, center, visits with those taking part in the recent horticulture identification event. Both 4-H'ers and adults were able to compete and test their knowledge of various plants during the evenings activities. Information on various tree issues was also shared with those in attendance.

On a chilly and windy evening, June 12 a competition was held for 4-H youth, their parents, and Master Gardeners to test their horticultural identification knowledge at Jane and Ron Rhebb's acreage northeast of Norfolk.

A total of eight youth participated with Stanton and Wayne Counties represented. Placing first was Grace Heithold and second was Laura Greunke, both from Wayne County. Other qualifiers were: third, Alysian Wurdinger; fourth, Anton Wurdinger; fifth, Aryana Wurdinger; and sixth, Rachael Thomas all from Stanton County.

In the Adult division, Carolyn Lingenfelter of Norfolk placed first with a second place tie going to Teresa Roche of Norfolk and Karen Zierke of Pierce. Nebraska Forester, Steve Rasmussen, presented to the group on various tree issues.

A thank you was extended to Jane and Ron for hosting this event; to Don Liedman and Jim Laycock for taking the participants around and explaining the various plants and to Steve Rasmussen for sharing his knowledge of trees.

Principles of design

Sixteen 4-Hers also learned about basic design principles and elements and the Stars and Stripes workshop. Individuals were asked to bring an item to paint and or decorate with a patriotic theme. 4-Hers could bring a new item or a reused or repurposed item to use as part of their project.

Learning about electricity

Three 4-Hers participated in an electricity workshop on Thursday at the Wayne County fairgrounds. The workshop was taught by Ted Kempf of Carroll. 4-Hers learned about basic electrical terms and skills in making their own extension cord. One of the 4-H outcome areas is science, learning about electricity and the importance of it. Taking part in the workshop were (left) Austin Kempf, Reid Korth and Cade Janke.
