91st Wayne County Fair is under way Stevens, Campbell headline Saturday's concert at fairgrounds

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

An artist's road to success can take some interesting twists and turns.

For Tate Stevens, singing and performing was something of a glorified hobby. As lead singer of the Outlaw Junkies, and later with his own Tate Stevens Band, he toured across the Midwest and released his own independent album in 2008.

Life changed for Stevens in 2012, though, when his family encouraged him to try out for the TV show "The X Factor." When he was declared the winner late last year, he was able to turn his weekend fun into a full-time gig that has him traveling all over the country. He will make a stop in Wayne to headline Saturday's concert with Craig Campbell at the Wayne County Fair.

Stevens said he was hesitant about trying out for the TV show.

"My wife and kids were the reason I got on," he said. "I reluctantly auditioned in March and made it all the way through. It was a lot of fun and pretty stressful with not knowing if you'd survive each week, but it was a great experience."

Born in Japan, Stevens' father came home to Missouri after serving in the armed forces and started up his own band. His son quickly developed an interest in music, and it wasn't long before Tate was making music of his own.

"I started playing drums when I was four years old and eventually moved to bass guitar and now guitar," he said. "It's something I've always been interested in, and I wanted to be like my dad."

The 38-year-old Belton, Mo., native made a name for himself on the TV show, earning the top spot among contestants with his rendition of two Bon Jovi songs, "Wanted Dead Or Alive" and "Livin' On A Prayer." He also scored high with songs like "From This Moment" by Shania Twain and "If Tomorrow Never Comes" by Garth Brooks, and his rendition of Chris Young's "Tomorrow" helped him win the contest and a $5 million recording contract.

"I was happy and greatly honored that the country music fans pushed me through a pop-driven teenage show. I haven't been a teenager for quite some time," he joked. "I've done this for a long time, and playing music was kind of a hobby, but now with the recognition I've gotten, I'm actually getting to do it for a living and live the dream, so it's awesome."

Stevens' debut album hit the No. 4 spot on the Billboard album charts during its first week, and his first single, "Power of a Love Song," has been a hit on country radio this summer. He's been out on the road promoting his new album and thanking the fans who helped him achieve this amazing dream.

"I'm out on the road thanking the people who put me here and let me do what I do," he said. "We're trying to keep the wheels rolling, and the challenge is that people have seen you on TV, but now they need to see you perform and do your thing. We're out there trying to see all the people that got us here, and hopefully, we can make friends and fans everywhere we go."

After performing in Salt Lake City, Utah last weekend, Stevens said he was ready to get back on the road this week and perform, with stops in Virginia and Tennessee before his visit to Wayne, America on the docket.

Antiques store serves as "steward" for vendors

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

The shop at 222 Main Street might be hers, but Marla Austin's business card doesn't just identify her as the owner of Acquaintances.

In fact, there's another word – "steward" – attached to that title, and she has a good reason for putting it there: her antiques store, though it houses the items Austin herself has for sale, is also home to a hodgepodge of items from other vendors and dealers in the area.

Austin sells a little bit of everything. If it can be placed on the floor, hung on the wall or strung from the ceiling, chances are, Acquaintances has it. If it's not from a previous decade, that's no problem either because the store also sells jewelry (some beaded and some made from pieces of silverware), plus scarves, candles, soaps and greeting cards, all of which have roots in the Cornhusker State.

"I like to have a representation of made-in-Nebraska items," Austin said.

The business owner even adds her own creations to that lineup. On a Tuesday in late July, Austin points out an ottoman that she made from an old metal washtub. There's also a row of hanging planters (glass light fixtures in a past life), a coat rack that's the product of attaching door knobs to a piece of found architectural wood and antique plates with words and

Emeritus at The Oaks working to help area seniors stay cool

With temperatures rising, many local seniors are finding it hard to stay cool. That's why Emeritus at The Oaks has launched the Shade Brigade to help area seniors who have immediate needs arising from the recent hot weather.

"Summer's heat can be more than simply unpleasant. It can be deadly. And seniors are more susceptible to heat stroke than younger people," Charlotte Easland, Executive Director for The Oaks, said. "Because dehydration is more common - and more dangerous - in hot weather, we're delivering coolers full of water, popsicles, juice, fruit and safety tips on how to stay healthy during hot weather. We're also ensuring seniors are safe in their homes and providing resources if they need help in staying cool."

The Shade Brigade is being launched in communities across the nation as part of Emeritus Senior Living's "Safely Somewhere" program, ensuring that no matter where a senior lives, they are safe and living a purposeful life. The company's goal is to reach out to more than 5,000 seniors during the summer months.

Anyone who knows of a senior in need is asked to contact Sarah Townsend, Community Relations Director, at (402) 375-1500 or e-mail TheOaks-CRD@emeritus.com.

Work continues on the interior of the home and on the exterior with shingling and siding to follow. A good portion of funds have been raised for the home, and the remaining funds needed stands at $18,500. Anyone who desires to help with the build can contact Buryanek at (402) 369-0546. ## Sidewalk construction in Laurel Workers have been putting in a new sidewalk on the south side of Third Street in Laurel. Money for the project came from a grant that the city of Laurel applied for a few years ago as the result of a city planning project. A committee worked with the City of Laurel and the engineering firm Kirkham Michael in writing a grant for this project. The project was incorporated to create a route for school children to have safe access across Highway 20 to the school and to the City Park and to encourage physical activity by walking and biking to school. The committee and engineering firm worked with the Department of Roads in determining the best choice for the route. The engineering firm Olssen and Associates was awarded the bid for implementing and constructing the Safe Routes project.

For Campbell, there's nothing like kicking back in the recliner and catching up with his two kids.

Campbell had just returned to his home south of Nashville, Tenn., Monday afternoon to spend a few days with his wife, Mindy, and daughters, Preslee and Kinni, before going back on the road this weekend for a series of shows, including the Wayne County Fair, where he'll open up for Tate Stevens Saturday at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

"They miss me when I'm gone, so it's nice to have them run up and hug my legs and welcome me home," he said during a phone interview Monday. "It's been a busy summer out touring, and I just opened for Alan Jackson out in Wyoming, so I'm keeping busy."

Campbell, 34, is out supporting his second album, "Never Regret," which was released in early May and has climbed into the top 30 on the Billboard Country Album charts. His first single, "Outta My Head," is also a top 40 hit with country music fans.

"I've been busy, and the song is doing well; and the higher it goes, the busier I get, and the more people want to see the show, so I'm just riding the wave and doing a lot of fairs and festivals," he said.

Music has been paying the bills for Campbell for some time now. He got his start playing piano in his home church in the small southeast Georgia town of Lyons, then started his own band after high school before making the move to Nashville.

After several years of writing and playing piano for such artists as Luke Bryan and Tracy Bird, Campbell recorded his self-titled debut album in the spring of 2011. The album did very well, peaking at No. 14 on the country album charts, and he had three singles crack the top 40 on the country charts, with "Family Man" reaching No. 14.

"I had a lot of fun making that first album, and it's always a challenge to write songs and define yourself as a singer and an artist," Campbell said. "Having 'Family Man' peak as high as it did was kind of a big deal for a guy who's never had a song on the radio before."

Campbell describes his sound as a more traditional country sound.

"I feel it's a more traditional sound, which is hard to find on the radio these days, and I take a lot of pride in that," he said. "I try to do more traditional country music, and it seems like it's working. I record the songs that I think are the best I can write and hope they mean something to somebody when they hear it."

Campbell said he loves the small-town life and is looking forward to coming to Wayne this weekend after a stop Thursday in Kansas City.

"I was born and raised in a small town in Georgia, and everybody knew everybody, and I wouldn't trade it for nothing," he said.

painted on in calligraphy, something Austin does herself.

Even with Acquaintances' varied inventory, its owner has managed to name one good that she has a particular fondness for.

"My favorite thing is furniture," Austin said.

It offers countless options when it comes to repurposing and, because it is so versatile, can be easily customized to fit a buyer's needs – which is perfect, given Austin's goal to appeal to a wide range of shoppers.

"Because everyone has different tastes, I try to cater to all their different personalities," she said.

If someone comes in and doesn't find what they're looking for, Austin will ask her dealers if they have it. If they do, they'll bring it in, Austin will contact that customer; and a match will be made.

A lot of her antique dealers hail from Wayne, though some come from as close as Laurel and others as far away as Columbus. They bring their goods in; Austin rents out a booth in the store to them; and, in the end, it's a win-win for both parties involved: Austin gets an inventory that attracts customers, and her dealers get a place to sell their stuff.

"And that's why I feel better calling myself a steward," she said. "It gives them a venue too."

Austin, who learned the ropes of running an antiques business while working across the street at Antiques on Main, has been operating her own shop since its opening at the beginning of February.

Business owner and antiques steward Marla Austin stands behind the counter of her shop. The store offers a wide variety of items, and photos of some of the stuff it carries can be found on the Acquaintances Facebook page.

In her desire to keep the store's name short and its focus away from Austin herself, Acquaintances, underline and all, was born.

"I feel very blessed not only to do this but for the positive feedback I've been getting," she said.

The store is a vehicle for Austin's love of antiques, and its Tuesday to Saturday, 12-6 p.m. hours allow her and her husband to pursue their farming ventures when they're not at Acquaintances.

"I grew up with antiques," Austin said. "I like the quality, the craftsmanship, the longevity and the appreciation for the work involved in creating them."

Cheaters never win in baseball

Cheaters never win, and winners never cheat. My dad explained this truth to me as a young lad when he caught me cheating in a game of Monopoly. I was reminded of this as I read news earlier this week of the steps Major League Baseball is taking to flush the cheating performance-enhancing drug users out of the game. Earlier this week, former MVP and Milwaukee Brewers slugger Ryan Braun was given a sit-down for the rest of the season for violating the sport's drug prevention and treatment program. He had beaten the rap last year on a technicality, but with overwhelming evidence countering his lies to the sport's powers that be, he worked out a deal that will keep him out of the game until 2013.

As this column was being written, word had come out that MLB's leaders had even more info on New York Yankees third baseman – and previously-admitted steroid user – Alex Rodriguez than they had on Braun, and reportedly the cheater was working furiously to hammer out a similar deal to avoid a possible lifetime ban.

Professional baseball has had a problem with cheaters using PEDs for a long time now, and only in recent years has its doddering old fool of a commissioner, Bud Selig, made any kind of effort to bring these cockroaches out of the darkness.

We were all fooled into thinking Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa saved the game of baseball in the late 1990s with their epic, season-long version of Home Run Derby. MLB had yet to fully recover from the strike of 1994 that left us without a World Series for the first time in the sport's history, and I'm sure Selig and the fools governing the sport thought it was fine to ignore what was going on in the locker room as long as the two juiced-up hitters kept launching bombs.

A few years later, Barry Bonds and his drug-flooded body assaulted the legitimate all-time home run record of Hank Aaron, and by the time Selig and the clowns leading the sport decided to do something about all the juicing going on, two of the game's most revered all-time marks had been bettered by "athletes" who wouldn't have touched those marks without the drugs.

I have no sympathy for Braun, Rodriguez or any of the other player who cheat baseball fans with their statistics-in-a-bottle method of playing the game. I do, however, feel bad for the kids who try to emulate these superstar athletes. Hank Aaron was one of my favorite players as I was growing up, and I can't imagine the disappointment I would have felt if I'd found out "Hammerin' Hank" was on the juice when he hit 755 home runs (the REAL all-time record, in my opinion).

What kind of message do the actions of Braun, Rodriguez, etc., send to our youth? We teach our kids the fundamentals of the game and get them to understand that hard work and discipline are the keys to success at the highest levels – and then have to try to come up with some kind of explanation why some of these players think it's OK to get shot up with performance-enhancing substances that make them bigger, stronger and faster without having to do all the work.

And think about the future of people like Braun, Rodriguez and Co. Rodriguez has already had a cloud of suspicion over him for some time after he admitted using steroids a few years ago. If I were a fan of that particular team and saw they were signing a known cheater like Braun or Rodriguez to a contract, I would seriously question whether or not I would continue to follow that team.

Major League Baseball is finally getting serious about dealing with cheaters who use performance-enhancing substances, and hopefully this sends a message to our children about how to always do things the right way – which is the only way to win.

New coaches take reins at WSC

Dolan stays in NSIC, comes to Wayne State from Upper Iowa

Wayne State athletic director Mike Powicki announced that Brian Dolan is the new head men's basketball coach at Wayne State College.

"Brian is a talented individual who is also very familiar with the NSIC and what it takes to be successful in our league," Powicki said. "His experience recruiting in the Midwest and coaching style will be a huge asset to the Wayne State College men's basketball program moving forward."

Dolan comes to Wayne State after spending the last seven seasons at Upper Iowa University. Dolan went 3-25 in his first season with the Peacocks and helped build the program to a 20-12 record last season and a first-ever berth in the NCAA Div. II National Tournament.

Dolan previously served as an assistant coach at Texas-Pan American, College of Southern Idaho, Southern Utah and Southwest Missouri State while also serving as an administrative assistant at Oral Roberts (1998-99) under Bill Self. Dolan is a 1998 graduate of William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo.

"My family and I are very excited about becoming members of the Wayne community," Dolan said. "We want to thank President Frye and Mr. Powicki for giving us this opportunity. It's an honor to lead a basketball program with so much tradition, and I am looking forward to becoming a part of that tradition."

Dolan replaces Paul Combs, who resigned June 15 to become head coach at Carroll University in Wisconsin. Combs was 54-58 in his four seasons at Wayne State, including a 17-12 record in the 2012-13 season.

Cliff looking to build winner in Wildcat women's soccer

Wayne State athletic director Mike Powicki announced that Tom Cliff has been named head women's soccer coach at Wayne State College.

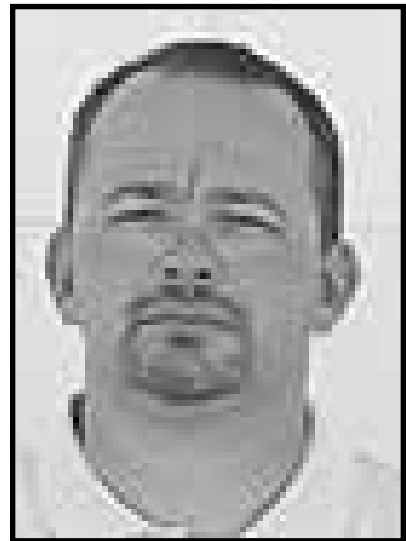

Cliff replaces Molly Grisham, who resigned June 6 after four seasons to take the head coaching position at the University of Illinois-Springfield.

"We are excited to have someone of Tom's experience and expertise taking the helm of our women's soccer program here at Wayne State College," Powicki said. "He has a clear vision on how to advance our soccer program and achieve sustained success. We look forward to Tom and his family becoming Wildcats and getting them to Wayne."

Cliff brings 18 years of coaching experience to the Wildcat program and has served most recently as the director of soccer and head soccer coach at Adams State in Colorado. He took a team from 1-19 and elevated the program to a school record seven wins in the 2011 season. He coached 12 RMAC All-Conference players and had 29 NSCAA All-Academic selections while also overseeing a men's soccer program at the school beginning in 2010.

Cliff also coached at Northwestern College in Orange City, Iowa from 2003-2007 and guided the Red Raiders to the NAIA Sweet 16 Playoffs in 2006 while leading the team to the most wins in school history and coaching four NAIA All-Americans.

"I am very excited about this opportunity extended by Wayne State College, athletic director Mike Powicki and the search committee," Cliff said. "I look forward to taking Wayne State College into this new era."

Wayne's Danny Melena gets a high five from Drew Carroll (3) after they came home to score runs during Class B, Area 5 tournament action in Aurora. Wayne fell to the host team 6-5 in the championship game on Tuesday.

Wayne battles to the end, finishes as B-5 runner-up

AURORA – The Wayne American Legion Seniors needed to come from behind if it wanted to go to state but didn't quite have enough to extend their season.

The Wayne Seniors battled back from a three-run deficit and tied the game with two runs in the top of the seventh, but Aurora rallied with a two-out single that scored the winning run in the bottom of the inning, giving the hosts a 6-5 win and the Class B, Area 5 title Tuesday at Mitchell Field.

"We showed a lot of character in coming back," coach Jeff Zeiss said. "When we walked the leadoff guy in the seventh, that's something that baseball coaches always worry about having to come back and haunt you, and it did."

Top-seeded Wayne put themselves in position for an exciting comeback after losing a 10-inning thriller to the same Aurora team two nights earlier.

Wayne scored in the top of the first when Danny Melena singled and scored on a Drew Carroll double, but Aurora came through with five hits off starter Corey Doorlag in a four-run third inning to take the lead at 4-1.

"When they scored those four runs, it wasn't anything we were doing wrong. They just had some timely hits and took advantage of a couple of walks," Zeiss said.

Wayne chipped away at the Aurora lead, however. They scored a run in the fifth when Jake Lutt singled and scored on a groundout, then traded runs with Aurora in the sixth, with Carroll scoring on a sacrifice by Jordan Backer.

In the top of the seventh, Lutt led off with a walk and was replaced by pinch-runner Jack Belt, who circled the bases on a Melena hit. Melena eventually came home on a sacrifice fly by Carroll to tie the game at 5-5.

Corey Doorlag pitched well in a complete-game win over Albion on Friday.

"The kids showed a lot of character in coming back," Zeiss said. "We were down two there in the seventh and were able to tie the game and get the go-ahead run in scoring position."

Aurora had the last shot at the plate, however, and turned a walk and an error into a two-out opportunity by Eli Bricker, who singled to left to bring home the winning run.

It was the second heart-stopping win for Aurora over Wayne in two days, as Wayne advanced to the finals with two wins over Albion in between their first matchup with the host team.

On Friday, Doorlag was dominating on the mound, tossing a two-hit shutout in a 10-0 whitewashing of Albion.

Albion threatened with two runners in scoring position in the third and fourth innings, but Doorlag and his defense got out of the jam and were never threatened in advancing in the double-elimination tournament. Doorlag finished with four strikeouts and four walks in posting the complete-game shutout.

Wayne scored a run in the first and two more in the fourth before breaking the game open with six runs in the fifth inning, highlighted by base hits from Melena, Carroll, Joey Lenihan and Doorlag. Carroll ended the game on the 10-run rule with a solo blast over the wall in left field.

On Sunday, Wayne and Aurora hooked up in a thriller that went 10 innings before the hosts broke a 6-6 tie with five runs to post an 11-7 victory.

After Aurora scored three in the top of the first, Wayne matched the output, thanks to an RBI single by Carroll and an RBI by Backer, along with an Aurora error. Wayne added three more in the second, taking advantage of two errors and a bases-loaded walk by Backer.

Aurora chipped away and tied the game in the sixth. Wayne had runners on base in the eighth and ninth but couldn't advance either opportunity. That opened the door for Aurora, who scored five in the top of the 10th to go on to the finals.

"We had so many opportunities on Sunday and just weren't able to get it done," Zeiss said. "We had runners on in the eighth and ninth and just didn't execute."

Wayne didn't go quietly in that

Wakefield Juniors go 1-2 as state host

The Wakefield-Ponca Juniors played host to the American Legion Class C state tournament at Eaton Field and went 1-2 in the eight-team, double-elimination tournament.

Wakefield-Ponca opened the tournament Saturday with a 4-1 loss to Palmer-Wolbach-Greeley-Spalding. It was an error-plagued game for both teams, but PWGS scored two in the fourth and two more in the fifth to come away with the victory. A two-run double by Nate Ibach got PWGS on the board in the fourth, and four consecutive two-out singles plated the other two runs for the winners.

Julio Perez and Zach Heaton each had hits for Wakefield-Ponca in the losing effort. Perez allowed six hits.

On Sunday, Wakefield-Ponca stayed alive with a 9-6 win over Wyomere, coming back from a 5-2 deficit with four runs in the third inning to take the lead for good.

On Friday, the Dirt Devils beat McCool Junction, 8-0. Sidney Biggerstaff had two hits in the game. Tori Kniesche, Elizabeth Fertig, Annie Kniesche and Grace Lindsay also had hits. Kniesche got the win, throwing a one-hitter with seven strikeouts and two walks.

The Dirt Devils also defeated Elkhorn Slammers Black on Friday, 4-2. Kniesche had two hits in the win, and Annie Kniesche and Marissa Lutt also added hits. Kniesche got the win, striking out eight, walking two and allowing three hits. Grace Lindsay and Abby Ankeny had stellar nights in the outfield for the Dirt Devil defense.

On Saturday, the Dirt Devils beat the Gretna Diamonds 3-0. The Dirt Devils scored three in the first inning and held Gretna scoreless for the remainder of the game. Six Dirt Devils had hits in the game. Tori Kniesche got the win, striking out seven, walking two and allowing four hits. Meghan Battles, Maysn Dorey and Biggerstaff led the defensive effort in support of Kniesche.

On Sunday, the Dirt Devils lost to the Fairbury Twisters 6-1. Fairbury scored three in the opening inning, and the Dirt Devils hit the ball well but couldn't find the holes in the defense. Kniesche took the loss, striking out five, walking three and giving up four hits.

Wakefield seniors make Class C, Area 2 final

The Wakefield-Ponca American Legion Seniors reached the finals of the Class C, Area 2 tournament at Battle Creek, earning a date with Hartington in the finals that were played Wednesday.

Wakefield-Ponca opened the tournament with a hot night of hitting in a 13-3 win over Laurel-Concord-Coleridge. Wakefield-Ponca bashed out three triples and a double in a six-run third inning that broke a scoreless tie. They added five runs in the fifth to end the game on the 10-run rule.

On Saturday, Wakefield-Ponca moved on to the winner's bracket final with an 8-3 win over Stanton. The game was tied 2-2 when Wakefield-Ponca broke the game open with two in the third, three in the fourth and one more in the fifth.

Wakefield-Ponca fell into the losers bracket on Monday with a 10-0 loss to Hartington. Wakefield-Ponca was limited to four hits in the game and were still in it until Hartington got to starter Adam Drieling and erupted for seven runs in the fifth inning to take control of the game.

Wakefield-Ponca bounced back on Tuesday with a 10-0 win over the host Battle Creek team. Zach Kvidera threw a three-hit shutout and helped his own cause with a 3-for-3 effort at the plate to move Wakefield-Ponca into the championship game.

Olson wins at nationals

Wayne native Randy Olson recently won national titles in the USATF Masters Outdoor Track and Field National Championships, held July 11-14 in Olathe, Kan.

Olson won the national title in the pentathlon, 100-meter high hurdles and as a member of the 3,200-meter and shuttle hurdle relays. He also finished as the runner-up in the 300-meter hurdles, javelin, 1,600-meter relay and 400-meter relay.

Olson's efforts qualified him for the world championships, scheduled to take place this October in Brazil. He is the son of Maxine Olson of Wayne.

The Wayne American Legion Seniors finished as the Class B, Area 5 runner-up with a 6-5 loss to Aurora on Tuesday.

game, however. Lenihan reached on a fielder's choice and eventually came around to score on an error. Wayne had the bases loaded before Aurora was able to get out of the jam and claim the win.

Wayne had to hold off an Albion comeback in the rematch in the losers bracket final. Wayne led 7-4 before Albion came back with three in the seventh. Wayne needed a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the seventh to come away with the 8-7 win.

Trailing 3-0, Wayne broke out with four runs in the third, thanks to an RBI single by Brady Soden, a sacrifice by Carroll and bases-loaded walks to Longe and Backer. They added three more in the sixth on a two-run single by Melena and a fielder's choice by Longe, but Albion came back to tie the game before Doorlag's bases-loaded walk brought Lenihan home with the winning run.

Zeiss said the team was hoping to come back and win two in a row on Tuesday against the host team, but it wasn't meant to be.

"It was all hands on deck for that first game, and we wanted to worry about that one and then worry about the second game afterward, but it didn't get to that point," he said. "They're a great group of kids, and I appreciate what they've given the program the last 4-5 years. It's a tough way to end it, but the kids have nothing to be ashamed of."

It was also the end of the road for Zeiss, who announced earlier this season that this would be his last game as a coach for the Wayne American Legion program.

"I told (wife) Jacki at the end of the game that I'm fine with it now," he said. "I'm going to go play some golf and get to know my wife a little bit again. It's been a lot of fun, and it doesn't seem like it's been that many years, but I'm going to move on."

Wakefield

Coleman Kneiff came on in relief and pitched well for Wakefield-Ponca. He scattered six hits and struck out two in six innings of relief. Offensively, he got help from Alex Conley, Hunter Schweers and Tim Hayes, who each had two hits to lead an eight-hit attack.

Wakefield-Ponca's tournament hopes were dashed Monday afternoon in a 7-5 loss to Tekamah-Herman. Wakefield scored four runs in the first inning, taking advantage of four walks, one hit and a crafty steal of home to take the early lead. Tekamah-Herman answered with four in the third, then added three more in the fifth and held off a late Wakefield-Ponca rally to survive and knock the hosts out of the tournament.

Frank Nuno's base hit fell just inside the first-base line to score two runs for Wakefield-Ponca in the first inning to highlight the hosts' opening frame. Wakefield-Ponca tried to come back in the seventh, but a base-running error killed the rally for Wakefield.

Wayne High Class of 2003 gathers for reunion

Wayne High School class of 2003 held a 10-year reunion the evening of July 13 after Chicken Days festivities.

Pac 'N Save catered supper and thanks were extended to Wayne High alum Brian Kemp for his work in preparing and serving the meal.

Yearbook quotations provided humorous reading; beanbag toss exemplified the athletic prowess of the class.

Class members noted that their class is still the only class to earn District Championships in softball, volleyball, and boys' basketball in the same year. In addition, the class attained superior ratings in all marching band contests, along with Madison best Colorguard and Sweepstakes trophy. Nebraska newspapers also featured this class for top ACT scores, and they were fortunate to hold Commencement exercises at the Willow Bowl.

"We say, 'hello' to all of our classmates unable to attend, and hope to see everyone at our 15-year class reunion in 2018," said Tamara Schardt, a member of the class, who was among those organizing the event.

Thomas S. Martin, the O.K. Bouwsma Professor of Philosophy at UNK, will give the commencement address.

Among those earning degrees is Ian Miner of Wakefield, who will be awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Recreation Park Tourism Mgmt Comp.

For those unable to attend commencement in person, the event will be available as a webcast. The information for the webcast is located on the UNK homepage, or by visiting www.unk.edu/about/commencement/. In addition, individuals on campus can view ceremonies via Campus Cable TV, Channel 2.

Above normal temperatures needed for crops to mature

As abnormal dryness continues to expand eastward, according to the latest U.S. Drought Monitor (droughtmonitor.unl.edu), forecasts are not showing any indication of above or below normal precipitation through October, the state climatologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln said.

There is no signal of improving conditions, but there is nothing there that signals conditions will get worse either, said Al Dutcher, state climatologist in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

However, current patterns tend to be replicating some of the patterns the state saw last July and August. Temperatures are forecast to be above normal for the southwest two-thirds of the state and equal chances for the remainder of the state.

This may be good news for northeast Nebraska which needs to make up some crop maturation due to planting delays.

"I would be more concerned if I saw a cool bias, which I do not," Dutcher said.

Due to the cool, wet spring, crops are about 10-14 days behind normal across the state. The majority of the corn crop is coming into its pollination stage, making precipitation critical at this time and through the grain fill process.

Dutcher said recent stream flows also have dropped significantly even with some of the short-term moisture gains the state saw this spring.

"Although we've had short-term moisture gains, it did not fill that deep soil moisture profile below the rooting zone of a crop that moves toward the aquifer," he said. "This is a residual impact of last year's drought, which had a significant impact on aquifer levels. We didn't get the recovery we needed last year."

Irrigation is running around the clock across the state, but there is some concern in areas with lower flow rates, particularly in sandy soils.

In addition, areas with limited water deliveries make it difficult to apply enough water to carry average yields.

Dutcher said temperatures have been a saving grace so far this year. "Normal temperatures are 89 to 92 this time of year, so temperatures in the low 90s is no concern," he said. "It is those temperatures in the upper 90s to 100-plus range that are more problematic. However, winds are always a concern."

The last three to four weeks, water use by crops in the pollination stage is at .28 to .38 of an inch of water per day, so about an inch of water every three days.

That equates to about two inches of rain per week for the next month, so even with normal precipitation soil moisture profiles will continue to decrease going forward, Dutcher said.

Dutcher said although the crop is behind, nothing has been lost this year, and it wouldn't be unheard of to make up ground mid- to late-August if temperatures stay slightly above normal. Temperatures begin to drop off in mid-August, so if they are slightly above average, that would help crops make up ground.

So far, the majority of the state is not at substantial risk for freeze damage. There may be a higher risk in extreme northeastern Nebraska in areas where corn had to be replanted.

"So we'll take an usually warm September and temperatures in August that mirror those in July," he said.

One thing that may help precipitation across Nebraska is the monsoon season in the southwest part of the U.S.

"Nebraska starts to see some of those impacts in late July/early August. The good news is it appears we are going to have a very aggressive monsoon season," he said. "Areas of above normal moisture are developing in the dessert southwest this summer. The bad news is the question as to whether it arrives in time for it to be of benefit to both pastures and irrigators."

Dutcher said while the monsoon season may bring thunderstorms, those also mean lightning strikes. Like last year, wildfires will be another concern.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Abby and I checking out Ponca State Park after a day at the Wayne Chicken Show.

Getting to know second daughter

Last summer, as you may recall, I got to meet my "second" daughter for the first time.

Abby was born in 1998 from a relationship I had with a co-worker during my days at the Norfolk Daily News. Both of us were single parents at the time, and we determined that adoption was the better option for our child, rather than raising her jointly or separately.

Our daughter was adopted by the birth mother's cousin and his wife, and they kept me in the loop over the years with pictures and stories of Abby as she has grown up. She is a brilliant student, an incredibly gifted musician, is a committed Christian and has a beautiful soul.

Last July, my "first" daughter, Kylie, and I made the trip to Arkansas to meet Abby, and it was a wonderful weekend of getting to know each other. When the opportunity for her to come to Nebraska for a week presented itself, we jumped at the chance for her to meet my family and learn a little more about where she came from.

She had fun at the Wayne Chicken Show – although, after that afternoon of silliness in Bressler Park with the Cluck-Off and egg-related contests, I'm sure she thinks everybody in Wayne is just a little crazy. We also took in Ponca State Park and enjoyed some at-home time watching movies and playing board games (where my once-unbeatable Connect Four prowess was easily outdone by this young whipper-snapper).

Abby got to know the rest of my family, and there were a lot of tears when we headed back to meet her parents in Kansas City. For me, the highlight of the week was spending a day with both my daughters. Kylie had a day off from work, and we went to have lunch with my dad and stepmom.

We did some sightseeing at Joslyn Art Museum in Omaha, and I was somewhat surprised at the interest both of them had in some of the artwork that was on display. We marveled at a rather large piece made entirely out of colored blown glass, trying to figure out how they could have possibly put all of that glass together without anything breaking.

We also made the trip to the Holy Family Shrine, located just south of Gretna, and marveled at the construction of that facility. Abby is a deeply religious young lady, and Kylie and I both thought she would enjoy this stop. The three of us took in the peaceful scenery and noted the irony of sitting inside a glass-walled chapel where we could see the hustle and bustle of traffic along Interstate 80, yet could not make out the traffic's noise, which was drowned by the peaceful sound of flowing water beneath the floor of the chapel that flowed to a receiving point beneath the altar.

Later, as we were sitting in Kylie's apartment with her boyfriend playing guitar, Kylie saw Abby plucking away and went into her room, bringing out a beautiful acoustic model that she had rarely played to give to her younger sister.

I have to admit – I've always loved Abby from the moment she came into this world, but spent a lot of years trying not to think about her. For some time, I equated giving her up for adoption with failing as a father. I had always been told to take responsibility for myself and my actions, and by not accepting the challenging of raising her, I looked upon the adoption, at that time in my life, as a tremendous failure.

What I discovered in later years, however, is that under the circumstances, having her adopted by a wonderful, beautiful, loving family was the best decision her birth mother and I could have possibly made. We could have figured out a way to contribute to her life, but I'm willing to bet it would not have been the kind of life she has lived with her adopted parents, Chris and Sarah Thurstenson, and her older brother, David.

Sometimes, letting go of someone you love is the better decision, and if they come back to you, then you know you've done the right thing. I'm so happy that Abby and I have been able to reconnect, and I'm so excited to have the opportunity to watch her grow up, even if from a distance.

I'm looking forward to the next time we can get together so my family can spend more time with her – and I can try to reclaim my Connect Four family championship.

GOP ticket is filling up fast

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Nebraska Republican gubernatorial candidates are signing up for what promises to be a contentious race if the issues play out as expected.

Democrats are salivating as they anticipate a bruised GOP candidate emerging from the primary, something that could give them a shot at a statewide seat they haven't occupied since the two terms of Ben Nelson. Admittedly, a Centrist Democrat could rule the day.

State Sen. Charlie Janssen of Fremont has been the only announced Republican for months. His legislative colleague, Tom Carlson of Holdrege, recently joined the quest. He said he decided to run because former legislative Speaker Mike Flood of Norfolk, long seen as a favorite for the nomination, decided finally to not run. Flood briefly entered then dropped out of the race after his wife was diagnosed with cancer. He recently confirmed he was officially out of the race.

The 71-year-old Carlson was elected to the Legislature in 2006 and re-elected in 2010 and will be term-limited out at the end of next year's session. He is chairman of the Natural Resources Committee and formerly headed the Ag Committee. Janssen, 42, has been in the Legislature since 2008.

The two Republicans were on opposite sides of a controversial measure in 2012, which offered prenatal care to unborn children of low-income women. Carlson supported the bill saying that the unborn babies would become citizens when born and pre-natal care would be less costly in the long run. Janssen opposed the measure and has indicated he will make his fight against illegal immigration a campaign issue. Gov. Dave Heineman vetoed the bill, but lawmakers overrode the veto by one vote.

As Carlson was announcing his candidacy, another Republican gubernatorial candidate was taking steps closer to announcing. Nebraska's Director of Administrative Services, Carlos Castillo, stepped down from his job to manage the campaign of Falls City millionaire cattleman Charles Herbst. Castillo managed Heineman's 2005 election campaign and a massive statewide get-out-the-vote effort. He had also managed all or part of political campaigns for U.S. Representative Lee Terry of Omaha and unsuccessful U.S. Senate candidate Scott Moore. Former University of Nebraska

Regent Chuck Hassebrook of Lyons, longtime director of the Center for Rural Affairs, remains as the lone announced Democrat in the race. State Senator Steve Lathrop of Omaha has been conducting a statewide listening tour, where candidates make themselves visible and listen for the sounds of opening billfolds, purses and checkbooks, before announcing whether or not he will be in the race.

CRP program and Second Amendment

As I travel District 17, the crops for the most part look lush and green. I am sure all of you see pretty much the same thing. It is tempting to think that the drought that devastated the region in 2012 is totally behind us. It is not! The timely rains that we were blessed with this spring got everything off to a good start, but the sub-soil moisture was never fully recharged.

On Wednesday, July 17, U.S. Farm Service Agency announced that 54 of Nebraska's 93 counties could now use Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acres for emergency grazing and haying as a result of drought conditions. The only District 17 county included in the 54 is Dakota County. If you are in Dakota County and are interested in using your CRP ground for grazing or haying purposes you must first seek approval from your local FSA office. You can find more information at www.fsa.usda.gov/ne. Without significant rain soon, Thurston and Wayne Counties will no doubt receive the same drought designation. Pray for rain.

This past weekend (July 13) a Florida jury came back with a not guilty verdict in the trial of George Zimmerman. Zimmerman was charged with second-degree murder for shooting and killing Trayvon Martin last year. While this tragic and unfortunate event has undoubtedly shook these two families, and the nation to the core, the court has spoken. Zimmerman has been tried, and a jury has reached a decision.

An unfortunate travesty of this case and resulting verdict is what we are now seeing: race relations are being exploited and gun rights are being called into question. People make choices, sometimes tragic events will result. The media has and will sensationalize events for ratings. Unfortunately, the Justice Department is attempting to use this case as a way to attack our Second Amendment rights. The most fundamental use of a fire arm is to protect yourself and your family.

Individuals are now calling for states to do away with "Stand Your Ground" laws. "Stand Your Ground" laws generally state that if you feel threatened, you may defend yourself with deadly force, if necessary, without first retreating. While the defense did not use this argument, it is being claimed as an issue by some, particularly those within the entertainment industry and anti-gun rights politicians. I do not think that the Justice Department will be able to accomplish changes regarding these laws. The laws are, after all, state laws. I find it unfortunate that they are not accepting the verdict reached by the jury that heard the case. They are instead attempting to use the case as a way to bring more restrictive gun laws through the back door.

We as a nation may have our problems. Having more restrictive laws imposed by government on all of us will not solve them. Most (if not all) of our problems would be solved if we would simply follow what we use to know as the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Thank you very much to the Mike Lutt family for hosting the reunion of the progeny of John and Johanna Lutt on Sunday, July 14 at their residence northeast of Wayne.

A great time was had by the approximately 200 young – and more mature – attendees. The weather, the setting, the activities and the food were just outstanding. Thanks again to Toots (Norma, from Florida), who had a good idea; and Mrs. Denny (Jeannie) Lutt for the organization.

Family bonding?

Wayne County 4-H'ers, their families and other volunteers gathered at the Wayne County Fairgrounds on Monday for the annual Pre-Fair Clean-up. Each year hundreds of hours of volunteer time goes into getting the buildings and grounds ready for the thousands of fair-goers. Above, Brianna Vovos (left) and her cousin, Alyssa Schmale, scoop shovels of saw dust into the pens in the swine barn, while two unidentified 4-H'ers sweep the alley ways. The fair runs through Sunday, July 28, with the 4-H Swine Show scheduled for Friday, July 26.

Farm Safety exhibit to be on display at Dixon County Fair

Attendees of the Dixon County Fair will learn about farm safety starting at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, July 30.

Emilia Woeppel, Farm Credit Services of America (FCSAmerica) outreach coordinator, will be on hand to discuss farm safety.

According to the National Safety

Council, agriculture is the nation's most dangerous industry. Between 1995 and 2000, nearly 700 youth died on farms and ranches in the United States, according to the 2004 Journal of Safety Research.

"The farm is a great place to live," said Schafbuch. "People just need to be mindful of the dangers. Nearly every job on the farm can be dangerous."

Woeppel partners with Farm Safety For Just Kids to offer safety education for youth. Farm Safety For Just Kids was founded 25 years ago by an Iowa farm wife after the death of her son in a gravity flow grain wagon accident. The organization promotes a safe farm environment to prevent injuries and death by educating our youth.

FCSAmerica sponsors Woeppel's position, in addition to outreach coordinators in Iowa and South Dakota.

"Raising awareness for farm safety is important in our rural communities," said Neil Connot, FCSAmerica vice president in the Sioux City and Yankton area. "Our goal is to help ensure continued focus for our kids and promote education of safe environments through resources and programs provided by Farm Safety For Just Kids."

Nebraska 4-H involves a lot of people

In Nebraska 4-H, one in three age-eligible youth across all 93 counties were enrolled in the 4-H program in 2012. Nearly 70,000 of those youth participate in a school enrichment experience, nearly 20,000 youth and adults participated in 4-H camping programs, and approximately 11,000 volunteers share their time and resources with Nebraska 4-H. Over 42,000 Nebraska youth were 4-H Club members in 2012. The 4-H program works to help youth turn ideas into action, becoming everyday heroes who persevere through challenges to leave lasting, positive impacts on their communities. Through the work of caring mentors, 4-H is cultivating youth to lead.

For over one hundred years 4-H has been teaching qualities known as "life skills." Examples of some of these skills include responsibility, respect, a positive work ethic, manners, and good decision making skills. These are skills that all generations benefit from as individuals work together either on a volunteer project or in their workplace. These are skills that can carry youth and our communities optimistically into future generations.

This weekend our 4-H youth in Wayne County have the opportunity to showcase their projects, talents, and skills at the Wayne County Fair. The life skills on exhibit may be in the form of someone offering to help carry an exhibit into the 4-H building, or a 4-H member saying thank you as they help a customer at the food stand. These skills are things that do not always come easy for youth or adults, but they are ones that can continually be modeled and practiced by all generations.

We hope that if you have the opportunity to enjoy the Wayne County Fair you will see some of these life skills in practice by our youth and adult volunteers who are working together "to make the best better." We live in a very supportive community that we can be proud of. Thank you for supporting the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension 4-H Program.

Dealing with picky eaters can be stressful

For some parents, nothing can be more stressful than meal time, especially with picky eaters.

"Parents get really stressed at meal times and one of the best things they can do is just relax," said Cami Wells, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension educator and author of the guide "Feeding Without the Fuss."

Many children experience neophobia, or aversion to new foods.

Twin studies have shown that 78 percent of neophobia may be genetic and 22 percent may be from environmental factors such as the media and the influences of other children.

Other studies have shown that babies who are breastfed are more likely to try new foods because they have been exposed to a variety of flavors.

Parents with children who are picky eaters should offer a variety of healthy foods, Wells said.

"Be the role model," Wells said. "Enjoy healthy foods yourself."

Wells advises parents to encourage children to eat healthy foods by making mealtimes fun. Cut food into fun shapes and choose colorful meals. Add chopped broccoli and other vegetables.

A child's portions should be smaller and they should use child-size utensils.

Some children have an aversion to vegetables because they taste bitter. Offering a low-fat vegetable dip can encourage kids to eat vegetables, Wells said.

Letting children help prepare meals is one way to encourage them to eat a variety of new foods. Children like to eat food they've helped prepare, Wells said.

The guide offered tips on how to talk to children when eating. The tips include:

- Do not force a child to finish his or her meal.
- Avoid praising a clean plate
- Instead of saying "you're such a big boy, you finished all your broccoli," or "you have to take two more bites before you leave the table," try saying "is your stomach telling you that you're full?"
- Instead of saying "eat that for me" or "if you don't eat that I will be sad," try saying "this is a mango; it's sweet like a strawberry," or "this celery is very crunchy!"
- Instead of saying "no dessert until you eat your veggies," or "stop crying and I will give you some candy," try saying "we can try these veggies again another time," or "I am sorry you are sad. Come here and let me give you a hug."

Area 4-H clubs honored

The Governor's Agricultural Excellence Awards, created in 1996 and sponsored by the Nebraska Investment Finance Authority, were presented to 25 4-H clubs during the PASE/Life Challenge Event at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln July 1.

The award is designed to recognize accomplishments of the members of a 4-H Club based on community service projects, service learning and collective individual accomplishments in agriculture-related project areas. After a review of their proposal, the successful clubs each received a $500 stipend to fund their projects. No state tax dollars were used in the program.

"NIFA is proud to continue this tradition of supporting 4-H in building youth leadership for communities and agriculture," said Tim Kenney, NIFA's executive director.

Area 4-H Club award winners were:

— Cedar County Junior Leaders: They would like to plan a CPR and First Aid certification class so that when they are assisting with 4-H activities or going about their daily lives, they have the necessary skills to help people in distress.

— Hadar Handy Helpers from Pierce County: The club would like to improve the Pierce County 4-H building by cleaning the lattice shelves and display cases, and by painting them.

— Pleasant Dale 4-H Club, Cedar County: The club wants to paint and number the stalls at the beef/dairy barn at the county fairgrounds. They will purchase paint and other supplies to spruce up the building as well as two new wheelbarrows and shovels to add to the supplies used during the fair to keep the barn clean.

— Stanton County's Purple Ribbon Club: The club plans on putting together first aid kits for the Stanton County Fairgrounds. The kits will include about ten kits that will be weather proof, and some will be mobile.

— Wayne County Teen Supremes: The club would like to develop informational animal agricultural displays for the fairgrounds. These displays would contain facts about the species exhibited at fair and pictures of animals and possible career choices related to them.

— Wildcats from Stanton County: The club plans to help the Stanton Garden Club with a Downtown Beautification Project. They will plan flowers with the Garden Club in existing pots that are located in the downtown area.

First Trinity Lutheran Women's Missionary League of Altona met July 18 at the Wisner Care Center.

The Rev. Tim Booth gave the lesson, "Faces of the Savior," taken from the LWML Quarterly.

"Lutheran Women, One and All," was sung as the mite box offering was taken.

Darlene Bowers presided at the business meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report was accepted as read.

A donation of $20 will be sent to the Zone treasurer to help with Convention expenses.

The tentative date of Sunday, Aug. 11 at 3 p.m. has been set for the installation of Rev. Makelin.

The service will take place at St. John's Lutheran Church in Pilger.

Pork loin and scalloped potatoes will be served at the potluck following the joint service. All those attending from First Trinity and St. John's are asked to bring a salad and/or dessert. A grocery shower will be held from Rev. and Mrs. Makelin.

The District Convention will be held June 20-21, 2014 at Lutheran High Northeast in Norfolk with the Wayne Zone hosting. An update was given on plans.

Clara Heinemann was hostess for the meeting.

"Feed Thy Children, God Most Holy" was sung by all. The meeting closed with all praying The Lord's Prayer.

The next meeting will be held at Careage Campus of Care in Wayne with the date to be announced later.

Features speakers included nationally known Jeff Joiner, Dr. John Skretta of Norris Public Schools and representatives of the Nebraska Department of Education.

New breakfast meal patterns were revealed for the beginning of the 2013-14 school year.

The 2014 annual NSNA Conference will be held in Grand Island June 22-25, 2014.

Stenberg announces Unclaimed Property outreach events

Unclaimed property specialists with the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office will take part in outreach events in the coming months to help Nebraskans search for money they didn't know they had. State Treasurer Don Stenberg said today.

So far in 2013, the State Treasurer's Office has returned $6,035,888 in unclaimed property to rightful owners. That figure represents 10,851 claims.

Unclaimed Property specialists will be at the following locations to help Nebraskans search and file claims:

Buffalo County Fair, Kearney, July 25-27;

Scotts Bluff County Fair, Mitchell, Aug. 7-10;

Nebraska State Fair, Grand Island, Aug. 23-Sept. 2;

Husker Harvest Days, Grand Island, Sept. 10-12;

World Day on the Mall, Pershing Center, Lincoln, Sept. 19;

Applejack Festival, Nebraska City, Sept. 21-22;

Fall Home and Garden Expo, Omaha, Oct. 25-27;

Kearney Gateway Ag Show, Kearney, Nov. 20-21;

Northeast Nebraska Farm Show, Norfolk, Jan. 16-17

"An important part of the work of our Unclaimed Property Division is outreach, making sure Nebraskans know about the state's unclaimed property program and how to search for property for themselves, their friends and relatives, and their businesses and organizations," Stenberg said.

"Events like these are ideal opportunities for my staff to make contact with Nebraskans and to answer their questions about unclaimed property and to provide information about how to file claims," Stenberg said. "We are holding more than $125 million of property for more than 350,000 Nebraskans or former Nebraskans or heirs. Given those statistics, Nebraskans have a one in five chance of finding property that belongs to them."

Unclaimed property consists of cash and other personal assets that are considered lost or abandoned after an owner cannot be located for a specified period of time. The property is turned over to the state by banks, insurance companies, merchants, and other businesses.

Other ways to search for unclaimed property include:

Check the Nebraska State Treasurer's website at www.treasurer.org. Type a name in the box on the home page, or click on the Search for Unclaimed Property tab in the left navigation pane. For amounts under $300, owners may be able to file their claims online through the website. Claims take three to four weeks to process.

Call the Unclaimed Property Division at (877) 572-9688 toll free or (402) 471-8497 in Lincoln between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays

Visit the Unclaimed Property office at 809 P Street in Lincoln or in the Treasurer's Office in Suite 2005 of the State Capitol. Hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Bring your driver's license and Social Security card as well as documentation if filing on behalf of a business or a deceased family member.

Facts about unclaimed property:

Most common forms of unclaimed property are dividends, dormant accounts, gift certificates, insurance payments, matured CDs, lost IRAs, wages, rebates, stock and mutual funds, utility deposits, and abandoned safe deposit boxes.

Unclaimed property does not include land, real estate, vehicles, or tax refunds.

Unclaimed property is held by the state until an owner or heir can be documented; an owner or heir never loses the right to file a claim.

There is no charge to search or file a claim.

To maximize efforts, searchers should use various forms of a name - with and without initials, with and without middle name, using a previous married name or a maiden name, reversing the order of the first and last names.

New properties are continually added to the Treasurer's website at www.treasurer.org.

Rhubarb lovers enjoying sweet season

Well, thank goodness that's over! The new royal baby is finally here. There was one old fellow, dressed completely in Union Jack, who claimed he was so excited, he could not sleep! Good grief!

Since Sue was two weeks past due date, and I was working full time at the hospital, there was a bit of fan fare when she finally did arrive, but I don't think I could take what has been going on outside St. Mary's hospital in London!!

I've come to believe that rhubarb lovers are a little like a cult. You know, rhubarb grows like a weed, once you get the plants started. And I don't remember my mother doing anything special with it, except making wine.

My mother in law used to can it with something sweet, like gooseberries, in kind of a sauce. I ate it, but did not especially enjoy it.

Then, one of my very favorite aides at the hospital brought a cobbler that was especially delicious, and we all clamored for the recipe. It's even in the first Lutheran Hospital cook book, and we love it. It can be made with any fruit, but it works best with rhubarb.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

Every spring, I get a hankering for rhubarb cobbler. But I refuse to buy rhubarb. Surely, I thought, someone will bring me some. And someone did, a couple of weeks ago. Knowing that Marlyce and Jerry would be here from Orlando, I put it in the freezer. And I made that great cobbler for lunch last Wednesday.

Only they weren't here for lunch, so they each ate a little bit of it when they got back from touring SAC. That evening, we entertained two more high school classmates and a former teacher/principal with Valentino's pizza. We were all sitting around the dining room table, reminiscing, when Marlyce got up to come out to the kitchen for more pizza. She asked Mr. Maurer if he wanted some, too.

Actually, he told her, he had seen a pan on the stove with what looked like a rhubarb dish and he would love to have some of that. So, I caught her putting it on his plate. We both had to laugh at his powers of observation. And I have to tell you that it was baked in my oldest, ugliest 8 by 8 pan. But, I decided that if he was that anxious for it, maybe they all would enjoy it. And we took it to the table and passed it around. Kind of a strange dessert after pizza, but it disappeared.

This isn't a recipe column, you know that, but I've decided to share this one. It calls for four cups of chopped rhubarb in an 8-by-8 pan, greased, of course. Then, you make a batter of 3/4 cup sugar and 3 T butter, creamed. Add 1/2 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, and a dash of salt.

You pour the batter over the fruit and mix 1 cup sugar, 1 heaping Tbsp. cornstarch and 1/2 tsp. salt. Sprinkle this over the batter and pour 1 cup boiling water over the whole thing. Bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Scrumptious!!

Heat hard on fair animals

A mild, rainy spring has yielded to heat, humidity and lack of moisture, and the state's livestock have begun to suffer the consequences.

Heat stress is hard on cattle and other livestock, especially when combined with high humidity and low wind speeds; those are precisely the conditions occurring in many areas now. Heat stress can reduce feed intake, weight gain, reproductive efficiency and milk production, while increasing susceptibility to diseases.

Signs of heat stress can include animals bunched, seeking shade, and panting, slobbering or excessive salivation, foaming around the mouth, open mouth breathing, lack of coordination and trembling, said Lindsay Chichester of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension.

If such symptoms are observed, handlers should assume the animal is suffering from too much heat and immediately try to minimize the stress to the animal, especially by reducing handling or movement of the animal. Previous health of individual animals is an important risk factor, as animals with past health problems will be more affected by heat stress than animals with no prior health problems. These animals will generally be the first to exhibit signs of heat stress and be the most severely affected.

As county fair season gets underway, Chichester said, there are several things people showing animals should keep in mind, beginning with the heat index commonly reported by media outlets.

If the heat index is above 100 degrees, animals can tolerate it if shade is available and/or wind speed is at least 10 miles per hour, so show animals should be provided shade and/or moving air via fans.

If the index gets above 110 degrees, animals will be stressed regardless of wind speed. Show animals should be in the shade with fans, especially market ready animals, and have plenty of access to water. If a heat index above 110 is predicted, livestock shows should be completed by noon. In addition, livestock that need to be moved or transported should be out of the facilities by early morning but certainly by noon, if possible.

If the heat index is above 115 degrees, avoid moving or handling market ready animals. Livestock show rings should be shaded with fans and misters; the show staff should consider postponing the show due to excessive heat.

If the heat index is above 120 degrees, no activity should occur for animals or humans.

During the heat of summer, livestock management musts include providing shade, ventilation and air flow, clean and cool water, wetting, cool water drench and sprinklers or hoses. Shade can be provided by trees, buildings or other sunshades. In addition, the temperature can be lowered by spraying cool water on the roof and walls of buildings where the animals are being housed. Improved ventilation can be provided by fans or opening windows on a breezy day. Sunshades should be high enough off the ground (10 feet or more) to allow for adequate air movement.

Chichester stressed that if one is wetting cattle, the droplet size should be large enough to wet the skin, not just the air. "A small droplet size will usually just wet the hair creating more humidity for the animal, thus not helping at all."

During times of heat stress, animals should not be subjected to too much activity, including movement or transportation.

More information is available at www.beef.unl.edu and in this month's newsletter at newsroom.unl.edu/announce/beef/2410/13764.

Emergency haying and grazing authorized

Farm Service Agency (FSA) County Executive Director, Kristi Hanau today announced that Wayne County is authorized for emergency haying and grazing of Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acres for 2013 due to drought conditions.

The authorization for 2013 begins July 16 for both emergency haying and emergency grazing, which coincides with the end of the primary nesting and brood rearing season in Nebraska.

Provisions of a CRP contract prohibit harvesting of the conservation cover for the life of the contract except in certain emergency situations when the Secretary of Agriculture authorizes emergency haying and grazing. Emergency haying and grazing of CRP acres is intended to provide assistance to livestock producers who are suffering forage losses due to severe drought.

"Drought has been ongoing in Wayne County for more than a year and forage losses have impacted livestock producer to the extent of drastic herd reductions," said Hanau. "In 2012 USDA opened CRP acres for emergency haying and grazing and Wayne County producers utilized CRP acres under the program to provide forage to livestock."

"Eligible producers who are interested in emergency haying or grazing of CRP must request approval before haying or grazing eligible acreage," said Hanau. "Producers must also obtain a modified conservation plan from the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) that outlines permitted practices."

Many of the limitations and requirements of CRP emergency haying and grazing were waived in 2012; however for 2013 there will be a 25 percent reduction in the annual rental payments and no haying or grazing will be allowed on practice CP25 (Rare and Declining Habitat).

Along with other restrictions, CRP participants are not allowed to sell the hay; however, if the participant is not a livestock producer he or she may rent or lease the haying or grazing privilege to an eligible livestock producer.

Hanau noted, "FSA is continuing to utilize our available program options to assist farmers and ranchers whose livestock are impacted by the drought."

Producers are encouraged to contact their local FSA office for more information on CRP emergency haying and grazing. Additional information is also available on the web at www.fsa.usda.gov/ne.

Be on the lookout for soybean aphids during summer months

We are beginning to get reports of soybean aphids in southwest Minnesota and South Dakota. The numbers are low, but relatively widespread.

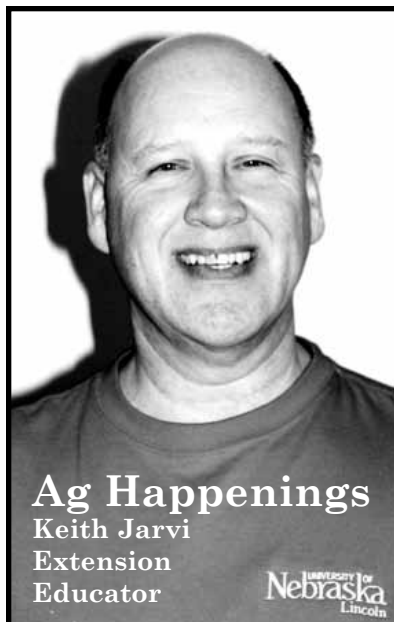

We have only had a couple reports of soybean aphids in Nebraska, again at very low numbers, but now is the time of year we generally start to find them. Start scouting now, as populations can start late and build fast. In 2011 we monitored a soybean field in Dixon County that was almost devoid of aphids on July 22, but by Aug. 18 was over 2000 aphids per plant in areas of the field that were left untreated.

The soybean aphid is soft bodied, light green to pale yellow, less than 1/16th inch long, and has two black-tipped cornicles (cornicles look like tailpipes) on the rear of the abdomen. It has piercing-sucking mouthparts and typically feeds on new tissue on the undersides of leaves near the top of recently colonized soybean plants. Later in the season the aphids can be found on all parts of the plant, feeding primarily on the undersides of leaves, but also on the stems and pods.

Soybean aphid populations can grow to extremely high levels under favorable environmental conditions. Reproduction and development is fastest when temperatures are between 70 through the mid 80's. Aphid numbers can change rapidly (populations can double in 2-3 days).

The aphids do not do well when temperatures are in the 90's, and are reported to begin to die when temperatures reach 95 degrees. When temperatures drop below 48 degrees, development stops.

When populations reach high levels during the summer, winged females are produced that migrate to other soybean fields. Like a number of other insect species (e.g. potato

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension
Educator

leafhoppers), these migrants can be caught up in weather patterns, moved great distances, and end up infesting fields far from their origin. These summer migrants are likely the major source of infestations in Nebraska during several of the past years.

Soybean aphids injure soybeans by removing plant sap with their needle-like mouthparts. Symptoms of soybeans infested by soybean aphid may include yellowed, distorted leaves and stunted plants. A charcoal-colored residue also may be present on the plants. This is sooty mold that grows on the honeydew that aphids excrete. Honeydew by itself makes leaves appear shiny. Soybean plants appear to be most vulnerable to aphid injury during the early reproductive stages. Heavy aphid infestations during these stages can cause reduced pod and seed counts.

We usually find a few in late June to early July, but it is usually mid-late July before we begin to regularly find aphids, while soybeans are entering or in R3 (beginning pod stage). Nebraska aphid populations can reach economically damaging populations in late July, but most reach economically damaging populations in August, while soybeans are in the mid-reproductive stages (R4-R5). In some years there are many fields where the aphid populations peak in late R5 (beginning seed) to early R6 (full seed). Most economically damaging populations occur in the northeast part of the state.

The current recommended economic threshold for late vegetative through R5 stage soybeans is 250 aphids per plant with 80 percent of the plants infested and populations increasing. Depending on economic conditions, this generally gives you about five to seven days to schedule treatment before populations reach economically damaging levels. If populations do not increase during these five to seven days, you may be able to eliminate or delay treatment. Determining if the aphid population is actively increasing requires several visits to the field. Factors favorable for aphid increase are relatively cool temperatures, plant stress (particularly drought), and lack of natural enemies.

There are many insect predators and parasitoids of soybean aphids that can significantly slow or stop soybean aphid population growth, particularly during our hot July weather, like multicolored Asian lady beetles, insidious flower bug, damsel bugs, and lacewings, among others.

Aphid populations below or even at the economic threshold do not cause yield loss, so treating before populations reach 250 aphids/plant only increases the probability of aphid resurgence. In addition, we have observed that many fields support a non-increasing, low population of aphids (e.g. less than 100 aphids/plant) through August. Treating these fields would be a waste of time and money.

Tank-mixing insecticides with glyphosate or other herbicides can be problematic because application methods for herbicides (e.g. lower pressures, large droplet producing nozzles) are not optimal for good insecticide efficacy, and may remove natural enemies. Tank-mixing with fungicides can be effective because application methods for fungicides and insecticides require high water pressure for adequate penetration and coverage, however, only conduct this practice if soybean aphid thresholds are met.

Several insecticides are labeled for the soybean aphid. A list of registered insecticides, rates, preharvest intervals, etc. can be found at entomology.unl.edu/instabs/soyaphid.shtml.

Pyrethroids have a relatively long residual, and work best at temperatures below 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Organophosphates have a fuming action, and may work well in heavy canopies or high temperatures.

Spraying flowering soybean poses a threat to honey bees. Communicate treatment plans to nearby beekeepers and follow label precautions to minimize honey bee kills. When there is concern about honey bees, pyrethroids are the better insecticide choice and spraying late in the day is preferred.

Additional sources of information can be accessed through the UNL Entomology Website at www.entomology.unl.edu and the CropWatch newsletter at cropwatch.unl.edu.

NORFOLK NEBRASKA

Nebraska NRCS announces availability of funds for windbreak renovations

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has funding available for landowners and operators to restore windbreaks. Funds and technical assistance is currently available from NRCS through their Cooperative Conservation Partnership Incentive program.

Windbreaks are one or more rows of trees or shrubs planted to provide shelter from the wind and to protect soil from erosion. They are commonly planted around the edges of fields on farms. If designed properly, windbreaks around a home can reduce the cost of heating and cooling and save energy. Other benefits include providing habitat for wildlife.

According to Nebraska NRCS Forester Constance Miller, several windbreaks in the state have suffered heavy tree loss, and are in need of renovation.

“Windbreaks that were planted to help protect cropland, farmsteads and livestock have suffered heavy tree losses due to dry conditions, disease and age. This program can help landowners reestablish trees and get these windbreaks back to providing protection from the wind and heat in the summer and capturing snow and blocking the cold in the winter,” Miller said.

Interested individuals may file an application at any time, but the ranking of applications on hand to receive funding will begin Aug. 14, 2013. The first step is to visit your local NRCS field office and complete an application.

For more than 75 years, the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service has helped agricultural producers with conservation plans. NRCS Conservationists will work with landowners on their farm or ranch to develop a conservation plan based on resource goals. Conservation planning assistance is free and does not require participation in financial programs.

For more information about this and the other conservation programs available through NRCS, visit your local USDA Service Center or www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov

THANK YOU

We want to thank everyone that made our 50th Anniversary so special. The many cards, gifts and floral arrangements are a joy. Scott, Mary Kay, family and staff, thank you for the 50 beautiful red roses, and all the other nice things you did for us. Thank you to our family and friends that came from near and so far away to be with us. It was wonderful! Ken, Katie Bartels, and staff at the Max Again, you did a great job. Most of all thank you to our children Mark and Brenda, Dan and Deborah and our granddaughters, Breanna, Anika, Abby and Greta for a celebration we will always remember. Rich & Diane Wurdinger

Thank you to PMC staff and nurses, Dr. Martin and Gary West for your great care. Melvin (Lefty) Lamb and Family

The family of Amber Ernesti would like to thank everyone for their overflowing support during this difficult time. As many know Amber was taken from us in a fatal car accident, with this tragedy there are many people we would like to thank. A heartfelt thank you to the individual who found and stayed with our dearest Amber until rescue personnel arrived. We greatly appreciate all the physicians and nurses who helped Amber. We would also like to express our gratitude for all of the warm condolences from family, friends, and the community. There are not enough ways to say, thank you. All of the flowers, plants, and statues that were sent for the funeral were beautiful, and will forever be kept close to our hearts. Also, to all of the individuals who brought food, drinks, supplies and to the farmers who help put the hay up are greatly appreciated. To all of our family and friends who donated money in Amber's name to put towards The Amber Ernesti Scholarship Fund are greatly appreciated. Finally thank you to Stokely Funeral Home for making the beautiful funeral arrangements and Father Frank Lordemann for the lovely funeral mass. These past few weeks have been a whirlwind for our family, and the outflowing support from family and friends will never be forgotten. THANK YOU!

WAYNE COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

Wayne, Nebraska

July 16, 2013

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners met in regular session at 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday, July 16, 2013 in the upstairs conference room of the courthouse. Those in attendance included Chairman Burbach, Members Larson and Rabe, and Clerk Finn. Advance notice was published in the Wayne Herald, a legal newspaper, on July 11, 2013.

A current copy of the Open Meetings Act was posted in the meeting room and accessible to the public.

Motion by Rabe, second by Larson to approve the agenda, and to approve the minutes of the July 2, 2013 meeting. Roll call vote: Rabe-aye, Larson-aye, Burbach-aye; motion carried.

As Wayne County's Responsible Charge, Joel Hansen discussed how easement acquisition is impacted by the use of federal funds for a road/bridge project. The project plans include temporary easements for the construction phase, and permanent easements for future maintenance. The property owner can donate property for the easement, or they can accept negotiated compensation based on an appraisal.

Easements have been negotiated for Federal Aid Project BR-3100(1), Winside East, C009002618, C-90(324), Mile 570 of 852nd Rd: Tract 1 - Jerry D. & Lynne I. Allemann, Trustees of the Jerry & Lynne Allemann Trust U/T/A $280 for a temporary easement on .32 acres, and $4,440 for a permanent easement on .58 acres in the SW 1/4 of Sec 31-T26N-R3E; and Tract 2 - Mann Centennial Farm, LLC $6,970 for a permanent easement on .91 acres and $1,560 for fencing in the SW 1/4 of Sec 31-T26N-R3E, and Craig Evans $100 for leasehold interest in the SW 1/4 of Sec 31-T26N-R3E. Easement Deeds will be filed upon receipt of payment.

Hansen stated the only way for this project to continue is for the county to approve payment for the temporary and permanent easements. Motion by Rabe, second by Larson to approve the payment for temporary and permanent easements as negotiated for Project BR-3100(1). Roll call vote: Rabe-aye, Larson-aye, Burbach-aye; motion carried.

Steve Muir of First National Agency, and United Healthcare account representative Stacey Riley, presented a renewal rate increase of 5% for the county's health insurance policy. The trend is around 12%, but once the duration of policy and claim experience were factored in, the increase for Wayne County was only 1% higher than that needed for health care reform fees.

The impact of Health Care Reform was discussed. Essential health benefits will be federally mandated and built into policies. Many benefits will be advantageous for employees, but expensive for insurance carriers. Information continues to change, but the county's current policy will not be available for renewal next year.

Motion by Rabe, second by Larson to accept the renewal rates quoted for Choice Plus insurance coverage provided by United Healthcare. Roll call vote: Rabe-aye, Larson-aye, Burbach-aye; motion carried.

Erosion concerns with Project C-90(546), Wayne South, Structure No. C009003910, Mile 848 of 577 Avenue were discussed. Herb Albers is concerned that upon completion the project will erode the east bank. Temporary and permanent easements are signed, but Albers hesitates to sign an Easement Deed without assurances.

Larson motioned that as per right-of-way negotiations on July 12, 2013 between Herb Albers, landowner, and Randy Larson, District One Commissioner, and based on advice from Mark Mainelli, Wayne County is willing to take corrective action to rectify any erosion issues or problems created immediately downstream, not to exceed 50 feet past ROW, by the use of rip rap or any means deemed necessary by the commissioners, as a result of Project C-90(546), Wayne South, Structure No. C009003910, Mile 848 of 577 Avenue. Rabe seconded the motion; roll call vote: Larson-aye, Rabe-aye, Burbach-aye; motion carried.

The 2013-14 District 7 Probation budget request was received. The budget increased 13% to cover the costs resulting from the passage of LB561, which expands the Nebraska Juvenile Services Delivery Project statewide.

An estimate dated May 17th for the replacement of the District 1 Shop Roof is no longer valid but will be placed on file.

Quotes from Soden's Striping Business to paint the courthouse parking lot and the terrace parking areas were reviewed. Reversing the traffic flow was approved pending layout.
