Info on keno, power options presented to city council

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

In a meeting that adjourned a little after 8:30 Tuesday night, members of the city council, as well as the attending public, were presented info on a couple of issues, while lot sizes were debated, and decisions were reached on a variety of topics concerning the city.

John Hassett of Advanced Gaming Technologies spoke first to members of the council about what the introduction of keno lotteries would mean to the city.

He explained that, in terms of size, Gretna is the closest community to Wayne with this particular gaming option and that there are 155 licenses for keno lotteries in the state of Nebraska.

"Most communities will take keno funds and appropriate them for specific funds," Hassett said.

Hassett also addressed the numbers of bringing keno into town.

"I thought one of the questions you'd want to know is, 'How much would the community of Wayne make?'" he said.

Hassett estimated that the town would rake in $10 per person. In Norfolk, this rate is slightly higher, at $12-$13 per head; while Plainview experiences a number that is higher still.

Operators - and not the cities - are responsible for pay-outs; and, Hassett explained, it isn't entirely unheard of for a keno lottery to open and have to award large wins early on in its existence.

"You can't buy that kind of publicity, but it does take a while to get that money back," he said.

Normally, an election is needed to bring keno lotteries into town. The city of Wayne, however, held this election in the early 1980s, meaning another will not be needed, but a public hearing will be necessary before the city can reach a decision.

Also discussed at Tuesday's council meeting was Wayne's upcoming contract renewal with Nebraska Public Power District and the city's desire to look at other options.

The original due date for renewal of the 25-year contract was December of this year but has since been pushed back until sometime in 2014. Wayne, with the help of Todd Hegwer on behalf of Northeast Nebraska Public Power District, has been looking at other electrical power options. The city, should it decide to leave NPPD, must give its notice three years in advance, a move that would also cut off the $650,000 Wayne receives each year for NPPD's use of its power plant.

Up until now, Northeast Nebraska Public Power District has been footing the bill for these solicitations, and council members voted Tuesday 7-0 to split the costs of evaluating the proposals that have been presented with other communities in the district.

Minimum area requirements for lots in A-2 sections were given consideration this week, as well.

Currently, lot sizes in the agricultural residential districts, which act as buffers between land in town and land outside of town, must be above 2.5 acres. A change would move this requirement up to three acres for homes with their own septic systems and down to 1.5 acres for homes that are connected to the city's sewer system.

Council member Jennifer Sievers made a motion to table the amendment; it was not seconded, and the council let it die.

Other happenings at Tuesday night's meeting include the following:

- The city voted to amend the zoning of new construction multi-family dwellings so that they blend in more with the structures surrounding them. In the past, residents expressed concern over parking issues and the exterior appearance of a new unit being built near them; and, at this week's meeting, they explained that they were worried about an increased amount of traffic, as well as the impact on property values that these new dwellings would create.
- Designated streets in Wayne will now have restricted parking hours between 3 and 5:30 a.m., a decision that reflects rules in the downtown portion of the community.
- Both water rates and the schedule of electrical rates were amended.
- A 7-0 vote was given in favor of accepting a bid from Milo Meyer Construction of Wayne to demolish the structures at 939 Main Street and 109 East 10th Street.
- Another bid, supplied by West Point's Schmader Electric, was accepted for the removal and installation of city sirens.

The next meeting of the Wayne city council will be on Tuesday, Sept. 3 at 5:30 p.m. in the council chambers of the city building.

Statewide assessment results released for Wayne Schools

By MARK LENIHAN

Wayne Community Schools Superintendent

The Nebraska Department of Education has released results of the Nebraska State Accountability assessments, otherwise known as NeSA.

The NeSA assessments were conducted in the spring of 2012 and encompass standardized assessments in the areas of Math for grades 3-8 and 11, Science for grades 5, 8, and 11, Reading for grades 3-8 and 11, and Writing for grades 4, 8, and 11.

These results are initial results and give us data on state and district averages on the NeSA assessments.

Our staff at Wayne Community Schools uses the information to help us make instructional decisions on our curriculum and to help improve instruction. NeSA assessments are a one-time, drop-in check of student performance on state standards. We use multiple measures to provide us information on the progress of our students including NeSA, our state assessment, NWEA-MAP, our national assessment, along with other specific instruments to assist our teachers evaluate how their students are learning and what adjustments need to be made to improve instruction.

While the family of each student participating in the assessments will receive a report on their student's performance, the classroom teacher will continue to be the best source of information on how well an individual student is learning. Our goal at school is to use these results to show improvement and to work toward being at or above state averages for the assessments.

While the data that has been published this week is initial, we are encouraged by our results, which show improvement over the results from prior years in most areas. After analyzing the initial results, we have been able to identify strengths in Math, Science, and Writing.

Improved Reading comprehension, which is our school improvement goal, is an area that we continue to focus our efforts in helping our students become great readers. The Wayne Board of Education and staff are committed to student achievement and will continue to monitor our results as part of the goals that have been established.

We appreciate the support given by our patrons of our district in helping us achieve our goals and keeping the best interests of all of our students as our highest priority. We also welcome your questions and concerns and encourage you to call school at any time. Thank you for your continued support of Wayne Community Schools!

Senior year turns into 11 months in Denmark for Finnegan

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Hannah Finnegan of Allen was looking for something to do during her senior year.

Her 'something' turned out to be spending 11 months in Denmark as an exchange student through the Rotary International Exchange Program.

Finnegan said that she became acquainted with Wayne Rotary Club member Barb Engebretsen through her father and in the fall of 2011, while she was a junior, she began the process that would lead her to Denmark.

"I first went to Lincoln for what is known as an Outbound Orientation, which involves parents and students. She noted that she filled out a very detailed, long term application, which includes medical information, a transcript of her grades, along with recommendations. She also had to be sponsored by a club in Nebraska, which in turn had to agree to host an exchange student from another country. Outbound students also list their top five country choices for being placed.

"I was officially notified in February of 2012 that I was going to Denmark. From then until I left on Aug. 6, there was a whirlwind of activities as I finished getting the classes I needed at Allen to graduate with the class of 2013, getting ready and working," Finnegan said.

She said that prior to leaving for Denmark, she attended an Outbound Camp where she did "lots of learning, including learning about the geography of the country and the language."

She spent the year in Randers, Denmark, a city of about 100,000 people and noted that this is the fifth largest city in Denmark.

"The schools in Denmark are a little different. The primary school goes from zero grade through ninth grade, with all the students in one building. There are both public and private schools, but most students attend private schools, which are better. Tenth grade, when students are approximately 15 years old, is optional. Some students do an exchange program at this time, some go to boarding schools for specific areas of interest and some work for a year," Finnegan said.

After that, students go to what is known as Gymnasium (high school) for three years.

Finnegan was in 2.G in her school in Denmark, the equivalent of a junior in the U.S. "Classes are divided by what you want to major in and some students take three years of certain subjects, some take two years, and some only one year. My focus was on music and language. I took English, History, Physical Geography, Music, which was instrumental and vocal, Religion, Physical Education, Physica and Drama," she said.

While in Denmark, Finnegan lived with four different families.

"My first family had kids in the same school I was in, the second family had a daughter in another school, the third family had grown children and the fourth family had a student in eighth grade and one in fifth grade," she said.

Finnegan said she did experience times of homesickness, but was able to skype with her parents and family in Nebraska approximately every two weeks. She noted that the Rotary Exchange program has guidelines for communicating with family members, as they want the students to experience as much of the country they are visiting as possible.

She said that language was an issue when she first arrived in Denmark, and it took several months for her to learn enough of the language to get to a conversational level.

While she was in Europe, Finnegan was able to be a part of the 18-day Rotary Euro-tour with other exchange students.

The group was able to visit Berlin, Hamburg, Prague, Vienna, Venice, Verona, Avignon, Paris, Brussels and Amsterdam, as well as a concentration camp.

Food was not much of a problem for Finnegan, as she noted many people in northeast Nebraska have a Danish background; and therefore, there were lots of similar foods.

"People in Denmark do not eat out often, because it is very expensive. My first host family ate a lot of potatoes, brown sauce (similar to gravy) pork, chicken and salads. The second family I stayed with served more rice and pasta," she said.

An interesting coincidence Finnegan encountered while in Denmark was the fact that an exchange student who had stayed with Wayne Rotary Club member Kaki Ley

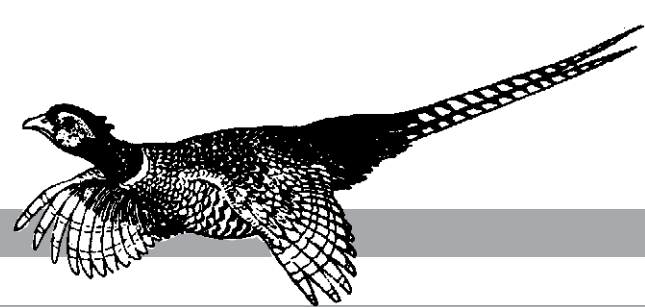

Hannah Finnegan holds a Danish flag near the sign marking the town in which she spent 11 months as an exchange student.

Commissioners discuss routine matters, budget

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

A number of relatively routine matters, several on-going agenda items and the budget for the coming fiscal year were among items on the agenda for the Wayne County Board of Commissioners when they met in regular session on Tuesday.

Commissioners listened to an update from the librarians in the county in regard to money the county had provided to them in the past and proposals for future needs.

Lauren Lofgren, Director of the Wayne Public Library, and Joann Field, Director of the Lied Public Library in Winside, both thanked the commissioners for the county's support and presented information on the public's use of the libraries.

The commissioners also thanked the librarians for their work and said, "we know the money gets used very well."

Lou Benscoter spoke to the commissioners on a request to close a portion of a county road just northeast of Wayne for several days to do utility work to hook up property he owns to city utilities. Benscoter intends to clean up the property located one mile east of Wayne on 21st Street and put a number of houses on it.

Commissioners discussed several options for installing the utility lines and will make a determination on the cost efficient way to complete the project at a future meeting.

Melissa Rabbass spoke to the commissioners on the need to make several changes at the Social Services building, located on Centennial Road. She told the board the building is being re-opened and will have to be ADA compliant. This includes a parking lot that is marked with a handicapped parking stall that is van accessible.

Also discussed was the need to assess whether the doors and rest rooms in the facility meet ADA requirements.

Eugene Carroll, representing

Viaero, spoke to the board on a request by his firm to put in a driveway on property they have purchased southeast of Wayne. The land will be used to construct a cell phone tower that will be monitored electronically.

Commissioner Jim Rabe indicated that the county generally pays to install culvert driveways, if the culvert is less than 40 feet in length, as would be the case for this driveway.

Nick Kemnitz, Emergency Operations Director, and Wayne County Sheriff LeRoy Janssen spoke to the commissioners on the status of purchasing a 20KW generator for the Emergency Operations Center.

Discussion centered on whether to purchase a used generator or a new one, the storage of the generator and the availability of grant funds to assist with the purchase.

Additional information will be presented at a future meeting.

Kemnitz also updated the commissioners on the upcoming events where the Emergency Operations trailer will be used.

Reports were given on work on the roof for the District 1 building, which will be completed by county employees and the work on the roof of the Social Services building, which has been delayed for six weeks.

Commissioners voiced their concerns on granting a permanent easement to a property owner who owns property adjacent to the county's District 1 shop.

Commissioner Randy Larsen said he would prefer a renewable easement and indicated he will contact Wayne City Planner Joel Hansen to determine if a solution can be reached on the issue.

Commissioners also spent time during Tuesday's regular meeting working on the budget for the coming year with final numbers to be presented at the commissioner's next meeting.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners will meet in regular session again on Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Wayne State graduate puts wrestling skills to use on movie set

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

When New York native Toby Rutner and his friends arrived in Wayne to start their college careers, they were a bunch of loud, assertive Empire State kids wearing hip clothes and suffering from culture shock.

The "Yorkies," as the locals called them, wrestled and played football, blending into the social environment and making friends in the process. As the years passed, some of them put down roots in the state, marrying Nebraska girls and swapping the east coast for the Midwest; and others, like Rutner, moved elsewhere.

"My time at Wayne State was one of the happiest times of my life," Rutner said. "The people were so friendly and trusting, very different from what we were used to in New York."

Now, nearly 50 years after leaving Wayne State, Rutner is a psychologist in Winnipeg, Canada. A wrestler during his high school years in New York (he continued his time on the mat as part of Wayne State's first wrestling team), he left Nebraska on a Research Fellowship to study under a professor at the University of Manitoba, where he earned his Ph.D. in psychology.

"I never planned to stay in Canada but just never left," Rutner said.

Another thing he never planned? Finding himself on a film set, using his wrestling knowledge to teach actors how to grapple – and look credible doing it.

Last year, Rutner was involved in "Less Than Kind," a TV series that can be seen on HBO. The comedy features a character who is recruited to join his high school wrestling team, and the show needed someone who could supply it with a mat and background grapplers, as well as training for the actor and staging for wrestling scenes.

Rutner was that person, and his help with "Less Than Kind" eventually led to his part in the movie "Heaven is for Real."

The film, based on the best-selling nonfiction book by Todd Burpo, is about a Nebraska pastor whose son Colton undergoes surgery and, after slipping into unconsciousness, arrives at the gates of heaven where he's greeted by angels and Jesus. The book recounts the circumstances leading up to Colton's hospitalization, as well as the time afterward, in which he tells his parents about his out-of-body experience and the time he spent with Christ.

"Heaven is for Real" was shot in Winnipeg, Manitoba and had Rutner brushing shoulders with some of Hollywood's elite. Greg Kinnear, who plays the role of Todd Burpo, was one of Rutner's pupils on set.

"He told me, 'Toby, this is Hollywood, so I am going to steal your knowledge and experience about wrestling so that I look like I know what I am doing,'" the psychologist said, calling Kinnear "a funny, down-to-earth guy who didn't take himself too seriously."

Members of the Provincial (or "State," as it'd be called in the U.S.) Wrestling Team were used to represent the Chase County, Nebraska high school grapplers.

"It was necessary to train several actors to appear credible as wrestlers since there were very few blonde Nebraska-looking kids on the team," Rutner explained. "We spent a couple of hours training one of the featured actors to do a few wrestling moves so that the big wrestling scene in which he competes against a very skilled opponent looked realistic. The scene looked great, very exciting and realistic."

In fact, Rutner joked that Wayne State wrestling coach Greg Vander Weil will probably want to ask the actor to join his team here in Nebraska after he sees the film.

In addition to Kinnear, Rutner also got to work alongside director Randall Wallace, who he described as "very warm and friendly and an all-around nice guy who seemed to have a great interest in wrestling."

Wallace, he added, "spoke about his friend who was a college wrestler and how much he respected the dedication and work ethic of the wrestler," something that became apparent to Rutner after he read "Heaven is for Real" and realized that there aren't any wrestling scenes in the book.

"The wrestling team, the practices and the featured wrestling match in the movie were his (Randall's) own creation and not in the book at all," Rutner said.

As much as the inclusion of grappling to "Heaven is for Real" led to Rutner's part in the movie, it's also responsible for the role of another person: the psychologist's son Caleb, a wrestler on the Canadian Jr. World team who plays the skilled opponent mentioned earlier.

"Last year, he (Caleb) represented Canada in Azerbaijan at the FILA Cadet World Championships," Rutner said. "He was the most highly recruited wrestler in the country after completing his high school career as a four-time Provincial Champion, undefeated for five years. He will be entering Western University in London, Ontario, Canada in September."

Overall, Rutner's happy to have had a hand in "Heaven is for Real," noting that he finds it rather ironic that a story set in Nebraska was filmed in Canada and that he has a connection to both places.

"I am gratified to learn of the interest in this movie and of the significant role that wrestling plays in it," Rutner said. "I hope that it will generate enough interest in the town of Wayne, Nebraska and in the administration of WSC to get wrestling reinstated as a varsity sport and get the cat back on the mat. I have been a supporter of the wrestling program and urge others to support it as well."

Finnegan said she plans to stay involved with the Rotary Exchange Student program, as those taking part in the program are encouraged to help with Outbound Programs, the selection process for exchange students and build good will for the program.

"As a Rotex (ex exchange student), we encourage those who have traveled to other countries to share what they have learned to help understand where people are coming from and to build goodwill between countries," said Barb Engrebretsen.

GEICO caveman stint, game show win on resume for former Wayne resident

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

It's been a couple years since he's been back, but Wayne-native Ben Wilson has fond memories of good teachers, a good movie theater and good birthday parties at the local pizza place in his hometown.

An actor who now lives in California, Wilson was raised here. He graduated from Wayne High, then took classes at Wayne State for a few years before making the jump to Ithaca College in New York, where he worked on fine-tuning his acting skills.

"I loved Wayne," Wilson said. "It was just about the best place to grow up."

When he left, it wasn't out of distaste but, rather, because his home state didn't offer him the one passion he really wanted to pursue.

Wilson eventually made it to Los Angeles. There, he found a bit of home in The Nebraska Coast Connection (NCC), a bunch of former Cornhuskers who meet on the second Monday of every month to network and bridge the gap between Nebraska and California. Along with other events and festivities, Wilson said the NCC buys 50-cent beers, raffles off bottles of Dorothy Lynch dressing and has Runza sandwiches flown in from the Midwest, all in an effort to recapture part of the group's home state.

Wilson, who's joined in L.A. by his wife Polly and their son Cyrus, said he's found ways to keep himself busy on the west coast. When he isn't finding work on camera ("It is literally feast or famine," he said of life in Hollywood), he splits his time between keeping up with his family and writing comedy sketches.

"That's been a lot of fun," Wilson said of his writing endeavors.

Ideally, he'd like to pen a TV show, explaining that sitcom work would let him know where he's going and what he's doing on a regular basis; but, until then, he's content to plug away on whatever projects pique his interest, even if they mean donning prosthetics, veneers and fake hair.

In fact, one particular claim-to-fame put Wilson on television screens across the nation – and left him almost entirely unrecognizable to those watching him.

Starting in 2004, auto insurance company GEICO released a string of commercials featuring its iconic cavemen. Wilson was cast as one of the hairy, thick-browed simpletons; and when his run was over, he'd cemented both a role in pop culture history, as well as a vital piece of his Neanderthal-esque costume.

"I still have my caveman teeth," Wilson said. "No one wants someone else's teeth."

They were custom-made for the actor, and when he was asked if he wanted to keep a reminder of his time with GEICO, he was more than willing to hold onto them.

In addition to commercials, Wilson's also done other film work. Last year, he and Polly tried to make it onto "Let's Make a Deal." When the producers of that show needed contestants for "Spell-Mageddon," an amped-up version of a spelling bee in which contestants are distracted in a variety of ways as words become increasingly difficult, they contacted Wilson.

Could he spell and, if so, how well, they wanted to know.

On a Thursday, Wilson found himself as an alternate on the second-to-last show of "Spell-Mageddon's" initial run. When he didn't get the chance to compete, he was sent home. When he got a call later that night asking him to return – again, as an alternate – he was game. Wilson said he "didn't have anything pressing going on in those two days" and showed up on set with one goal: to have the best time possible, even if he didn't win.

Except he did win; and, at the end of the hour-long show, he was $10,000 richer.

"I think it was just about the most fun you could have," Wilson said.

The check, however, is still on its way.

Dignitaries attend airport terminal dedication

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Governor Dave Heinemann was among the dignitaries from across the state who were on hand for the dedication and naming of the new airport terminal at the Wayne Municipal Airport on Sunday.

Gov. Heinemann spoke on the economic successes of Nebraska, northeast Nebraska and especially Wayne, and noted that an airport is especially vital to this success.

Following the governor's remarks, in a surprise unveiling, the terminal was named the Nancy Braden Terminal, in honor of Wayne City Finance Director Nancy Braden, who has been a part of the Wayne Municipal Airport Authority for 28 years.

Sunday's ceremony also included the Wayne Boy and Girl Scouts, Congressman Adrian Smith, Nebraska Senator Dave Bloomfield, the Wayne State College Band and a number of those involved with aeronautics for the state of Nebraska. Also recognized were those involved with the construction of the terminal.

A group of American Legion Riders from throughout provided colors for the program.

Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain served as master of ceremonies.

Caution advised as West Nile virus activity ramps up across state

Eleven human cases of West Nile Virus have been reported to the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services so far this summer. Three people were hospitalized. A map of human cases is available at <http://dhhs.ne.gov/publichealth/Documents/Human.pdf>.

"We're in the heart of West Nile Virus season and you'll want to take steps to protect yourself from mosquito bites," said Dr. Joseph Acierno, Chief Medical Officer and Director of Public Health for DHHS.

Use mosquito repellent containing DEET, picaridin, oil of lemon eucalyptus, or IR3535.

Dress in long-sleeved shirts, pants and socks when you're outside.

Dusk and dawn are times when mosquitoes are most active. Limit outdoor activities.

Drain standing water around your home. Standing water and warmth breed mosquitoes.

Seventy-five mosquito pools in 14 counties have also tested positive for the virus. Those counties include: Adams, Chase, Dawes, Dawson, Dixon, Garden, Garfield, Hall, Lincoln, Madison, Phelps, Scotts Bluff, Sheridan and Webster counties tested positive for the virus. No birds have tested positive so far season.

West Nile virus is transmitted to people through the bite of a mosquito that picked up the virus by feeding on an infected bird. Most people who are infected will have no symptoms or only mild flu-like symptoms. Some people will develop a fever with other symptoms like headache, body aches, vomiting, fatigue and weakness. Less than one percent of people will develop a serious illness like encephalitis or meningitis (inflammation of the brain and surrounding tissues).

People over 50 and those with weakened immune systems are especially vulnerable to the disease and are more likely to experience serious consequences.

Last year there were 193 human cases of West Nile virus in Nebraska and four deaths.

West Nile virus surveillance started in June. DHHS tests mosquitoes and birds to determine the level of virus in the state. With the assistance of local health departments, DHHS is collecting and testing dead birds.

To report dead birds, contact your local health department. To find your department, go to <http://www.dhhs.ne.gov/puh/oph/lhd.htm>.

More information about West Nile Virus can be found on the DHHS website at www.dhhs.ne.gov/wnv.

Rose, Baldwin capture club championships

By KEVIN PETERSON
Of The Herald

Stop me if you've heard this one before. Doug Rose and Kari Baldwin claimed championship honors of the annual Wayne Country Club Tournament last Sunday. It was the fourth title for each of them since the turn of the century.

Rose edged Joey Baldwin, a three-time champion in his own right, by one stroke with a 27-hole score of 119, one over par. Rose, also a winner in last year's event, claimed WCC's top honor in 2006 and 2003 for titles since 2000. He had a handful in the 90's as well. Baldwin netted her fourth title since 2005 and regained top honors after relinquishing the crown last year to Amber Gamble, this year's runner-up.

She also won in 2011 and 2009. She finished this year's event with an 85 over 18 holes with 9-hole scores of 40-45. Gamble was runner-up three strokes back with Molly Schroeder placing third.

Following Rose and Baldwin on the men's side was Preston Olson with a 115 and Matt Eischeid at 117. Ironically, the only two players in the entire field Sunday to birdie the first two holes of the day was Kari Baldwin and Doug Rose.

There were seven other flights of men's golfers including the first Senior flight in which Ron Willers took control of with an 86. This flight used a net score to determine the winner. John Dorman was runner-up with a 104 while Denny Lutt finished third at 93 and Dick Pflanz, fourth at 96.

The first flight was won by Chad Metzler with an 80 followed by Doug Christensen, 81 and Kelly Hansen, 82. Mike Bentjen finished fourth at 82. The second flight was captured by Chuck Parker with an 81. Duane Blomenkamp was second at 84 followed by Craig Tentinger, 85 and Jon Wren, 85. Kevin Peterson was the third flight champ with an 84, edging Dave Diediker by a stroke. Josh Hopkins fired an 86 for third and Randy Simonsen, also had an 86 and placed fourth.

Kyle Sperry was victorious in flight four with an 83 followed by Rich Rethwisch with an 86 and Todd Young, 88. Bob Keating was fourth with a 91. Craig Walling took top honors in flight five with a 92 with Rob Burrows placing second at 95 and Phil Gries, also a 95. Larry Lindsay was fourth with yet another 95. Dennis Murray claimed the sixth flight with a 94 while Adam Endicott placed second with a 98, edging Brad Jones by tie-breaker. Ken Loberg was fourth with a 100.

The seventh flight was also a net flight because of handicap differences and Jeryl Nelson took top honors with a 100. Jim Curtiss placed second with a 96 while Bob Foxhoven was third at 104 and Bill Kinney, fourth at 101. In the women's second flight Sue Denton was first with a 96 while Karen Kwapnioski was runner-up and in the nine-hole division Natalie Endicott claimed first place.

Clockwise from top: Doug Rose hits an approach shot on hole number six during the championship round of the men's club tournament last Sunday. Rose captured his second straight title. Joey Baldwin looks to roll in a putt on hole number seven. Baldwin finished runner-up in this year's tournament. Molly Schroeder looks to place her pitch shot close on hole 10. Amber Gamble pitches the ball toward the flag on hole number 11 during the women's championship on Sunday. Gamble finished runner-up after claiming the title last year. Brooks Blohm chips the ball on to the seventh green during final round action of the club tournament. Blohm was tied for first after the first 18 holes with a one-over-par 73. Matt Eischeid also chips on to the seventh green during final round action of the club tournament. Eischeid placed fourth overall with rounds of 78-39. Kari Baldwin takes aim on her second shot on hole 11 during the women's championship. Baldwin won the annual event with an 85. It was her fourth championship since 2005.

Christina Patefield was a part of two state championship girls golf teams during her high school days in Minden a decade ago, so when she received a call asking if she'd be interested in helping get the new Laurel-Concord/Coleridge girls golf team off the ground, she jumped at the chance.

"I had talked to the school when I moved here a few years ago about seeing if they'd need any help if they decided to start girls golf, and the superintendent (Randall Klooz) called me earlier this spring and asked if I'd be interested if they decided to start a team," she said.

The new Lady Bears golf coach, who works as a pharmacist in Laurel and is working with teacher Alex McKamy, is looking to add to the current roster, which consists of junior Gale Leapley, sophomore Emily Klooz and freshmen Lindsey McCoy and Matthea Barreلمان.

Of the girls who are out for the team so far, Klooz has the most experience. She is the younger sister of two-time state boys golf champion Mitchell Klooz, who will be a senior and has verbally committed to play golf at NCAA Div. I Liberty University.

Patefield said she is learning where the girls are at as far as skill level, and she's seeing improvement already in some of girls who have been on the course getting ready for the first season of girls golf at LCC.

"Emily has been playing the game for years, and Gail hasn't played since junior high but is picking things up and improving," Patefield said.

Patefield said she is hoping to add more girls to the roster, and knows that with a first-year program comes an opportunity to build a program for the future.

"Right now, our goal is to have fun and get the program up and running," Patefield said. "We're hoping to have fun and create some excitement for the girls golf program."

The Lady Bears play their first event at the Wayne Invitational on Friday, Aug. 30, beginning at 9 a.m.

New field, new coach may benefit Wayne State soccer ladies

To most of us in this area, soccer is a black-and-white sport. You either love it — or you hate it.

Soccer hasn't been much of a sport to draw a ton of fan interest at Wayne State College. Outside of family, friends and a variety of curiosity-seeking onlookers, I haven't seen much in the way of excitement by the general public when it comes to the Wildcat soccer program.

In all honesty, there really hasn't been a lot to get excited about when you talk about Wayne State's soccer program. For all the success that programs like women's basketball, softball, volleyball and football have had in recent years with NCAA playoff appearances, Elite Eight trips and competing among the best in the country, women's soccer has been something of a black hole in terms of wins and losses.

That's not to say that former coach Molly Grisham didn't make an effort to rebuild the program. The year before her arrival in 2009, Wayne State's defense gave up goals faster than the federal government wastes tax dollars. The 2008 team was a miserable 1-18-1 and allowed a mind-blowing 83 goals, scoring only 11 in 20 games.

The program made some positive steps forward during Grisham's tenure, although the win-loss record may not show it. The Wildcats had losing records all but one year, when the 2010 squad had an impressive goals-against average of 1.5, finishing 8-5-5 and earning Grisham Northern Sun Conference Coach of the Year honors.

Another consideration that the average sports fan may not think about is the size of field Wayne State has played on. The Wildcats' home field was a lot more narrow than most of the fields in use by other teams in the Northern Sun Conference. It is definitely something that Wayne State needed to adjust to, practicing on a field that was several feet smaller than an NCAA-regulation size field, and it changes your defensive philosophy as you transition from playing a smaller field, compared to a regulation-width facility.

That changes this year with the recent renovation projects that have taken place at Wayne State College. While a lot of the talk has been about the new field turf in Memorial Stadium (which soccer could also utilize if they chose), the soccer field went under its own surgical procedure, as the field was leveled out and widened to meet NCAA regulations. While Wayne State is still a long way from hosting an NCAA regional, it is now possible for the college to do so, and the Wildcats will get to practice and play home games on a field that is the same dimensions as those they will see on the road.

Defense hasn't been that big of a problem at Wayne State the last four years. In the final three years, Wayne State allowed 1.5 goals per game. For most programs, a defense like that gives your offense a chance to win a bunch of games.

Unfortunately, Wayne State's defense never seemed to be able to transition into a solid, aggressive offensive attack. The offense seemed to be a little too conservative (less than one goal per game in the 2011 and 2012 seasons) and Grisham told me several times that she really lacked some of the financial resources that she needed to bring the kind of scoring threats Wayne State needed to be successful on the offensive side. As a result, the Wildcats lost a lot of winnable games over the course of the past two seasons.

I get the feeling that the lack of an offense is not going to be much of a concern with the Wildcats' new coach Tom Cliff, who comes to Wayne State after helping to get Adams State's soccer program out of the RMAC gutter.

Last year, the Grizzlies posted a 5-11-2 record, but scored more goals (24) in the same number of games that Wayne State played.

Cliff wants his team to be the better-conditioned team on the field, and that means you can expect the Wildcats to do a lot more counter-attacking as they transition from defense to offense this season. Wayne State will be a lot more aggressive in attacking the opposing teams backfield and I expect we'll see a lot more shots on goal by the Wildcats in the 2013 season.

For a number of area sports fans, the fact that we're talking about Wayne State women's soccer may not be of interest to you now. However, I would encourage you to check out the Wildcats' home opener on Sept. 8 against Washburn. They're playing in an updated facility and will create a lot more excitement on the home pitch this season.

Who knows? You just might come to actually like the sport a little.

Blue Devils anticipate successful 2013 season

After a decade of success that has included nine state tournament trips, four championship games and two state titles, the Wayne High softball team is looking to keep that tradition going in 2013.

The Blue Devils lost several seniors off a team that went 26-6 and finished fifth in the state, but have plenty of quality players and a welcome influx of freshman talent that should make them a contender for the state title this fall.

Five starters and seven letter winners are back from last year's team, and with that nucleus to build around, coach Rob Sweetland is optimistic about his team's chances for success this year.

"This team has a ton of potential, but we'll need to mature quickly as a team," he said.

While the Blue Devils lost a senior pitcher to graduation last year, they won't be lacking for arms in the circle this year with a senior back from injury and a pair of promising freshman fireballers who should give Wayne a good staff to build around.

"We have three capable pitchers this year, which will allow us some flexibility at that position," Sweetland said.

Kendall Gamble, who missed last season with a leg injury, is back and looking good as a senior leader for the team. Incoming freshmen Ashten Gibson and Hannah Belt will be able to give Wayne some additional looks for opposing hitters and give the Blue Devils a good three-girl rotation this fall.

The Blue Devils will look to the leadership of three senior returning starters in Jalyn Zeiss, Victoria Kranz and Lauren Gilliland. Zeiss is a four-year starter at shortstop who will anchor the infield, Kranz has been an outstanding backstop that will handle a talented pitching staff behind the plate, and Gilliland will give Wayne some much needed senior leadership in the outfield.

Also back as a returning starter is sophomore Danica Schaefer, who filled in last year at third base and scored 20 runs for the Blue Devils as a freshman. She'll move to the outfield to make way for Abbie Hix, who missed last year to injury but had a fantastic summer as the leading home run hitter for the Dirt Devils 18-under team.

Sophomore infielder Nicole Craft also returns as a letter winner from last year. Freshman outfield Kiera Hochstein could see some action as well as one of the new players to watch.

"We had about a dozen girls work really hard in the offseason, and now it's time to transfer that to the diamond," Sweetland said.

The Blue Devils will likely be the favorites to repeat as Mid State Conference champions, and appear to be the team to beat in districts. If they can follow through on those expectations, they have a chance once again to win it all in Class C this October in Hastings.

"We intend to compete for a conference, district and state championship again this year," Sweetland said.

Wayne begins the season Thursday at Blair and hosts their own eight-team tournament Saturday, Aug. 24 at the Wayne Softball Complex.

'The sky is the limit' for members of the Wayne High girls golf team

To hear Wayne girls golf coach Josh Johnson talk about his 2013 squad, you'd think they were on their way to outer space. The Blue Devil linksters have a lot of upside to the coming season, with four starters and one individual state qualifier back from a young team that improved tremendously over the course of the previous season. "I have a great bunch of girls who have put in a lot of work this past summer," Johnson said of this year's squad. "If we keep working hard, the sky is the limit for this group." Senior Cassidy Wiese and her twin sister, Marissa, lead a group of four players who just missed out on a trip to state last year, finishing fourth in districts. Marissa Wiese did qualify for state as an individual, while her twin sister just missed making the field. "We have four girls off the district team from last year who got in a lot of playing time this summer and should be good leaders for us," Johnson said. "They did a lot of work this summer and I'm expecting a lot out of them." Juniors Holly Grosz and Emma Loberg were also a part of the varsity roster last year, and the experience of playing varsity last year and continuing their development as golfers will give the Wayne High linksters some welcome depth in the varsity lineup. The fifth spot in the varsity lineup is going to be hotly contested by several girls on the team this year. Letterwinners Varya Roberts and Kaitlyn McCalister both have a chance to make the lineup, and they'll also be pushed by some new additions to the lineup, including seniors Bailey Bentjen, Emma Osnes and Cienna Stegemann, as well as sophomores Abby Cudaback, Anna Loberg and Ashlyn Pecena. An added bonus for the Wayne High girls this season will come at the end of the year. The Blue Devils will host their district tournament Oct. 8 at the Wayne Country Club, and will have plenty of chances to see the course before district play, where they should be in the hunt for one of the trips to state that will be awarded to the top three teams in the district tournament.

"It's definitely nice (having districts at home)," Johnson said. "We get to play four times during the regular season here, so it's always nice to have the home-course advantage and be able to practice and play on the (district) course every day. Still, we need to go out and execute, and I'm hopeful we can do that this season." The girls golf team opens play on Thursday, Aug. 29 at the Best Point Beemer Triangular with a 3 p.m. start time.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Internet postings follow you forever

Several years ago, I had gotten out of the newspaper business and tried my hand at the 9-to-5 world of employment, and nearly lost out on an opportunity to work for an Omaha-based ticket broker.

I had all the right qualifications for the job. I interviewed well, had developed a positive relationship with my would-be employer and everything appeared to be in place for me to take the job.

And then came the phone call that shocked me.

This employer had done a little research on me through the Internet, and came across a column I had written on a website I once published. That column, written in 2004, which focused on my battle with a drinking problem, served as a red flag that resulted in a surprise phone call to ask about that issue.

Ultimately, I was able to convince him that I had worked things out and everything was fine, and I enjoyed a year-long working relationship with his company before returning to the newspaper business in the fall of 2008.

I relate this experience to those of you who have this crazy notion that what you post on Facebook, Twitter or anywhere else on the Internet won't follow you around the rest of your life. In fact, go to Google.com right now and type in the words "Michael Carnes alcohol" and see what you find.

Yep – that's the column I wrote almost 10 years ago . . . still floating around somewhere in cyberspace on one of Google's servers.

Kids today have a tremendous advantage in the way of instant communication. They are hip to the new technology and will bounce around between Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, Pinterest and whatever new social media site pops up tomorrow or the day after.

They are also sending messages, photos and videos via their smart phones, and there's no limit to what is being passed around. Pictures of goofy smiles, videos of backyard hijinks – and naked photos and videos.

Our youth are still naive enough to think that they can slip all of this under the noses of their parents and nobody will be the wiser.

And they are wrong – ANYTHING that you put out on the Internet, from your Facebook posts to that text message you sent to your best friend, is a digital footprint that never goes away. It is captured by your digital services provider (phone companies like Verizon and Vieraero have varying policies on how long their data is stored) or by search engines like Google, Yahoo and Bing. Anything you write, post or publish on the web is captured by those search engines and stored away, where anyone can access them with the correct search request.

And this information can be accessed by ANYBODY at ANYTIME. I've heard recent reports of kids in the area who were contacted by registered sex offenders who were posing as teenagers on one of the social media sites. These scumbags are looking for anything and everything they can get their hands on, from photos and videos of kids in various stages of undress to personal information that they can use to physically contact our children for – well, let's just say that their intentions are not pure . . . sick and disgusting would be a better description.

It is up to we, as parents, to provide our children with information that will help keep them safe on the Internet. Some great information will be provided at a forum sponsored by the Community Partnership for Youth at the Majestic Theater on Wednesday, Sept. 4, with former Nebraska State Patrol investigator Jason Sears providing information on social media websites that are popular with our youth and what is being done – both by our children and those who would intend to harm them – within those forums that have long-term implications that our kids are not thinking about when they try to bully other students on the web, post pictures in various states of undress, or otherwise make a fool of themselves in a way that will follow them around the rest of their lives.

The Internet is a fascinating world where the amount of information is seemingly endless. It is also a cauldron of trouble that can negatively impact our young children's lives. As adults, we must be vigilant in protecting our children as they find their way through this world and make sure they are safe in both the real and virtual worlds.

Letters Welcome

Letters from readers are welcome. They should be timely, brief (no longer than one type-written page, double spaced) and must contain no libelous statements. We reserve the right to edit or reject any letter.

Letters published must have the author's name, address and telephone number. The author's name will be printed with the letter; the address and the telephone number will be necessary to confirm the author's signature.

Capitol View

Politics 2014 – Who's In, Who's Out – Make A List

Time was when the State Fair and/or Labor Day was the traditional time for announcing candidacy for statewide office in Nebraska. Said announcements were often "events" designed to get the most spin out of the announcement. With the popularity of social media, such news is now often spread in tweets whenever.

So, if you want to keep up with who's in and who's out in the 2014 races, I suggest you get a large sheet of paper and divide it into grids with a wide column for Governor and one for U.S. Senate. Beside each wide column you should have two narrow columns indicating In and Out. Post the paper in an appropriate place: your garage, your basement, the back of the bathroom door.

Write in the names of the usual suspects, but do it in pencil. These things change quicker than a columnist can keep track. Under Governor you can list Democrats or Republicans in whatever order suits your voter registration card. Hint: leave more space for Republicans since there are more of them in Nebraska. It's too early to tell you how to prioritize things in the Senate race, which might take a few more months.

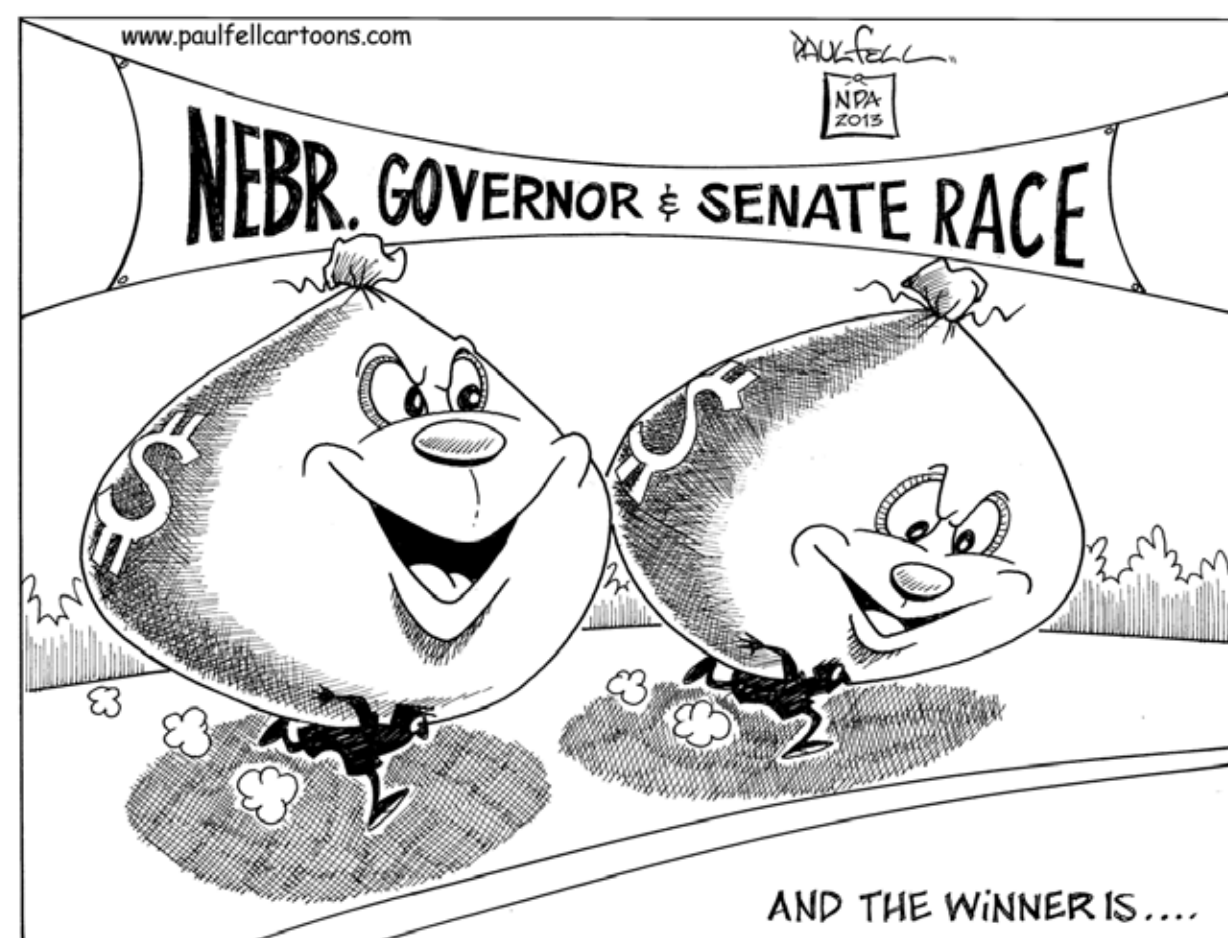

Ready? Let's go to Governor/Republicans. Put these names in chronological or alphabetical order, no matter. State Senator Charlie Janssen of Fremont has been in the race for what already seems to be a long time since he has been issuing news releases on what he perceives to be nearly every topic of dinner table conversation that might occur. You can also add Senator Tom Carlson of Holdrege and Falls City businessman Charles Herbster who owns a large cattle feeding operation and a multi-level marketing business that has apparently made him financially successful. While you're at it, add Omaha businessman Pete Ricketts who is said to be ready to throw a baseball cap into the race.

The unsuccessful 2006 GOP U.S. Senate nominee is currently co-own-

Legislative Update

Debate continues over death penalty

As an elected official, I know that I will not always be in agreement with my colleagues or those I represent. You, the people of Legislative District 17, elected me, in part I think, because you felt I had been up front with you about where I stand on the issues, and not necessarily because you agreed with me on each and every one of them. There always have been and always will be issues that divide individuals and the death penalty is one of them. I remember my mother telling me, "The state should not take a er of the Chicago Cubs. Nebraska Attorney General Jon Bruning has sent an e-mail to supporters to tell them he'll be running for re-election as Attorney General, not Governor. So don't add him to the list.

Now go to Governor/Democrats. Former University of Nebraska Regent Chuck Hassebrook should be first on your list. He was brave enough to step out a while ago as the first Democrat in the race. The Lyons resident is also the director of the Center for Rural Affairs. Add the name of State Senator Annette Dubas of Fullerton to the list. She said she'll announce next month, but she's in and hopes to make a race out of the primary and put some of her rural ideas on the line. DO NOT add Omaha State Senator Steve Lathrop to the list. He sent a tweet recently indicating he won't be a candidate, this time, and has opted to finish his lawmaking obligations and take a look at a possible future race.

The hard part is done. Now go to the U.S. Senate column, under Republicans. Former State Treasurer and decorated Navy veteran Shane Osborn was the first to put his oar in the water and remains the only one in the race. Get ready to add Midland University President Ben Sasse. The former U.S. Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services during the last two years of the George W. Bush administration says he'll announce around Labor Day. There is nothing to write in the Democrat column, yet.

The Dubas – Hassebrook contest could pivot on each candidate's stand on abortion. Nebraska Right to Life endorsed Dubas during her last legislative race. Hassebrook was endorsed by Planned Parenthood Voters of Nebraska during his 2006 Regent's race and refused to join other NU regents who tried to restrict stem cell research. He said he supports current law on abortion in Nebraska, the majority of which was offered by pro-life Democrats in the officially non-partisan Unicameral and signed into law by then Governor Ben Nelson, also a pro-life Democrat.

Some observers say that Ricketts' entry in the Republican gubernatorial race could make the whole game expensive again. In 2006, he spent about $12 million of his own cash in a failed attempt to defeat Nelson. You might want to add another column to your chart to track campaign finance reports if such things interest you.

OK, pencils down now. We'll update your lists again during the nine months remaining before the 2014 primary.

Legislative Update

By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

who voted against repealing the death penalty. The most recent post card I received targeted one of my colleagues (not me this time). Whoever is doing this does not have the fortitude to sign their cards or say who they represent. This "update" is a way to let them and you know that my position will not be changed by a campaign of insults, name calling and race baiting by some gutless wonders who won't step up and identify themselves. I know that it also will not change the mind of this week's target, Senator Bill Kintner of Papillion.

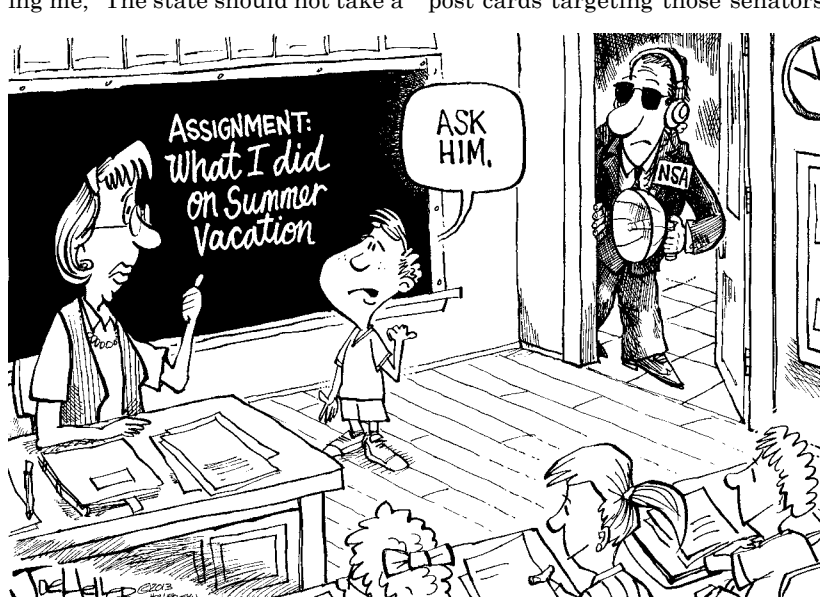

In other news, a few weeks ago I shared with you that the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) would be taking a vote on a policy regarding transgender athletes at their meeting that will be taking place in Lincoln on Aug. 21. Since that newsletter, it has been in the news that California Governor Jerry Brown has signed into law a policy regarding transgender students. According to the new California law it will allow "students in California schools to compete on sports teams and use facilities, including restrooms, based on their gender identity, regardless of whether they are listed as male or female in official campus records." This is something that I do not want to see happen in Nebraska and I do not think it will but the NSAA policy is a first step in that direction.

I am again bringing this to your attention because I feel it is imperative that you know and realize that the smallest of decisions can have huge long term impacts. What you choose to do with that information is up to you but I would encourage you to let the NSAA know what you think. You can contact the NSAA 402.489.0386 or at nsahome.org.

Finally, I would like to remind all of you that the Tax Modernization Committee will be holding hearings at various locations throughout the state, the closest location to District 17 will be when they come to Norfolk from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sept. 26. It is my intention to attend this meeting. I hope to see a many of you there as well. This tax study will affect each and every citizen of Nebraska for years to come. As more information becomes available I will pass it along to you.

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

MEDICATION STORAGE

What's the worst thing that can happen if you take a medication that is past its expiration date? The medicine will just be a little bit weak, right? Wrong. Although that's true in most cases, some outdated medications can become toxic and actually make you sick.

Knowing how to store medications, as well as when and where to dispose of them safely, is just as important as knowing how and when to take your medications. Follow these tips and you'll be on the right track.

When your pharmacist sends you home with a new medication, keep it in its original container, which has your name and dosing information on it. Be sure to re-lock bottles with child-resistant packaging. Many medications—especially those harmful to children—are put in foil packaging. If you find these difficult to open, talk with your pharmacist. For each medication, the law provides for one type of package without child-resistant features. If you don't have children in your home, these might work best for you (although consider whether young children ever visit your home). But whatever you do, don't transfer your medications into an empty bottle. Someone else may take them, not knowing they belong to you. It's been known to happen.

If you're unsure, ask your pharmacist about the best place to store your medications. To keep children and pets safe, store medications in a high, locked cabinet. If that's not possible, find a place that's difficult for children to see and reach. Remember: A young child has no idea that these colorful objects are not candy. And even over-the-counter medications and vitamins—particularly those containing iron—can be dangerous, especially if taken in large amounts by children.

To keep a medication safe and potent, keep it out of direct sunlight in a cool, dry place. Some medications are affected by humidity, so the bathroom medicine cabinet isn't always best. Other medications require refrigeration, but don't keep medications there unless instructed to do so by your doctor or pharmacist.

It may be wise to keep a reserve supply of medications, in the event of an emergency. For example, if you need medications for a chronic condition, such as diabetes, asthma, HIV, or a psychiatric condition, carry at least a three to five day supply with you in a purse or briefcase in labeled containers. Make sure these are in child-resistant containers and that your purse or briefcase is kept out of the reach of children.

As for medication disposal, make it a part of your spring (and fall) cleaning ritual. Check expiration dates, but even if the medication is not dated, think of it as expired at six months after purchase. Also, dispose of a medication if it has changed colors or developed an unusual order—even if it's not past its expiration date. Don't put medications or vitamins into open trash containers or down the toilet. Instead, take all expired medications to your pharmacist for proper disposal. This is the best way to protect family pets, children, people who might scrounge through your trash—and the environment.

Medications are expensive, so it may be tempting to use them, even when they've expired. If this is your thinking, just remember the greater potential cost to you: your health and safety.

Families can work together to relieve back-to-school stress

August can be an exciting time as families buy new notebooks and enjoy the last days of summer before children go back to school. However, families often have too much to do and end up stressed out as they head into the school year. By working together and staying organized, families can avoid this back-to-school stress and enjoy their last few days of summer together.

Stress is a family affair. When parents are stressed, their children are more likely to be stressed, too. The first step to avoid back-to-school stress is for parents to evaluate how they handle stress. Instead of saying they have too much to do and cannot handle it, parents need to stay calm and organized so they can set a good example of how to handle stress for their children.

Families should sit down in the morning or the night before and make a list of what they need to accomplish for the day. Don't make the list too long so that it is impossible to accomplish everything. At the end of the day when everyone has reached their goals, the family will have a sense of accomplishment that helps relieve stress.

Parents should be realistic about what really needs to be done before school. Instead of cramming everything into the last few weeks of summer, maybe some clothes shopping and the dentist's appointments can wait until a few weeks into school. If children are stressed about going back to school, parents should sit down with them and discuss how they can solve the problems. Instead of trying to find three new outfits for school, maybe they can get one outfit now and find the rest later.

Children already worry out about fitting in and doing well in school, so parents need to be careful not to stress out children even more. It is good to encourage children to succeed academically, but avoid putting too many expectations on children. Stressed children are more likely to perform poorly, which will then just lead to even more stress.

Parents should be supportive of children and help them work towards attainable goals. When they reach these goals or overcome a stressful situation, parents should let their children know they are proud of them. Celebrate students' successes and let them know they have done well.

Parents can also sit down with their children and map out their weekly schedule. Sometimes students do not realize that playing football and soccer while working a small job and being in 4-H is going to stress them out. Instead of telling children they cannot do something and making them angry, sit down and show them how busy they will be. Do they want to have time to relax, watch TV and hang out with friends? And don't forget all those chores they have to do. It is much easier and productive to guide children through the decision-making process instead of immediately telling them no.

Finally, just don't schedule as much to do at the end of the summer. Get the important tasks done early and leave the others until after school starts. Stress creates a feeling of loneliness, but family members can work together to help each other through hectic times. Spend the last weeks of summer relaxing and having fun together and going back to school will be much less stressful for everyone.

Wayne-Carroll First United Methodist Church youth travel to Kansas City for mission trip

Youth from the First United Methodist Church in Wayne and Carroll traveled to Kansas City, Mo. recently for a five day mission trip.

They joined a Youth Works team of about 80 people to provide service to those in need there.

One of the ministry sites served was at one of 23 summer literacy program locations for elementary school children, where the Wayne youth helped several students with reading skills.

Kansas City has a remarkably low high school graduation rate of only 40 percent. This is due to lack of accredited schools.

Other sites included organizing donations at a large warehouse, assembling backpacks and supplies for needy children who are going back to school, and helping in a community garden.

Youth Works exists to connect teenagers to God, each other and communities through life-changing Christ-centered mission trips.

In addition to the ministry sites, each day consisted of devotion time, worship time, and individual church group time. Activities included a free community neighborhood cookout, learning Scandinavian dancing, touring the Negro Baseball League Museum and the Kansas City Jazz museum.

Youth Works has over 80 sites to choose from within the US, Canada and Puerto Rico. Over 30,000 youth and adult leaders provide service to these sites each summer.

Allan and Betty Wittig of Wayen will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on Friday, Aug. 30.

They were married on a sweltering hot day by Allan's father, the Rev. Otto H. Wittig, in Sidney and moved to Wayne in the early 1960's.

Their union produced three children, Timothy (deceased) and his wife, Deborah, Pamela (Bob) Dickinson of Paragould, Ark. and Brenda (Gary) Bolte, of Logan, Iowa. They greatly enjoy spoiling their two grandsons, Parker and Cade Bolte and offer these words of advice to getting this far, "commitment and communication."

Friends and relatives are invited to help the couple celebrate their special day by sending cards, notes or fond memories to them at 805 Lincoln, Street, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

Alexander is a Swoose
When Kathy Boswell brought her irregular-shaped tomato to the Allen Senior Center, it didn't take Densel Moseman long to give it a name – Alexander. Densel, a retired mail carrier who lives in the country between Allen and Emerson, is a regular at the Center. A huge fan of music from the Big Band Era, Densel recalls Kay Keiser and his Orchestra playing the song "Alexander the Swoose" with the lyrics: "Here comes little Alexander / What a funny lookin' gander / He's half swan, and he's half goose / Ha, ha, ha, he's just a swoose." – By Kathy Boswell

FFA Open House
Allen's FFA will host an Open House on Tuesday, Aug. 27 at the Ag Room at the school. Contact the school for more information

Allen's Rodeo Team
Nate Bausch competed in the high school rodeo at Bassett, Neb. on Saturday, Aug. 10. He placed second. That qualified ride sends him to the finals next June. Congrats!

On Aug. 11, at one of Nebraska's largest Jr. Rodeos at Burwell, Neb., Kyle Smith placed third in bull riding. Also in Burwell, a new and upcoming Allen Rodeo team member Breanna Millard, 6-year-old daughter of Cory and Mindy Millard, participated. She did great on all of her times.

On Aug. 17, Kaylen Smith got second in barrel racing at the Riverboat Days in Yankton. Good job, kids! (submitted by Kathy Smith)

Next weekend's High School Rodeo is in Bloomfield; Nate Bausch and Kyle Smith are riding in the Vermillion Bull-a-rama, and Sunday's rodeo is in O'Neill. These are the closest high school rodeos the team has, so if you've wanted to come and watch, this will be a great opportunity; plus, the kids would love your support.

Saturday Night Museum
Saturday night at the Museum will be held on Saturday, Aug. 24 at 7 p.m. at the Dixon County Museum in Allen. Tim Schram from Ponca will be playing Player Piano outside the museum. You are invited to bring a lawn chair to sit outside and enjoy.

At 7:30 p.m. inside the museum, you are invited to hear "The History of the Saw Mill" in Ponca that started in 1947. Come join them for a story of Dixon County History. Event is funded in part by a grant from the Dixon County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The Dixon County Museum in Allen is open for the summer season – starting June 2 throughout August. They will be open on Sunday from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Everyone is welcome, so please come and visit.

Bits and pieces of lots of things School Lunches

It seems that every once in a while, columnists sort of clear out their files and call it something like "Bits and Pieces." I have a list of things like that this week.

I actually bought two pies made by the Village Pie Maker in Eustis, NE, after hearing folks rave about them. They are good, though not as good as my Mom's. They were on sale last week, so I took an apple and a strawberry-rhubarb. The fellow who carried my groceries out said that they are not mass produced, several ladies of various ages gather every weekday morning to make them, and then play bingo when they are finished! I do know it's the only thing going on in Eustis!

My bank handed out fresh chocolate chip cookies last Friday; I like that!

I met an ex Penn State quarterback in a doctor's office last week; he's from Nebraska, but got the scholarship from Coach Paterno. Coach Osborne wanted him to walk on. He has had knee surgery already, and is now scheduled for "rotor rooter" work for spinal stenosis, a narrowing of the spinal column. Football is hard on the body!

How do you make a purse that is worth $38,000?

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

That makes me kind of sick, as does the article about the traveling vets who accompany pampered pets on private jets when the pets are ailing. What do you think that costs?

Kathy Lee turned 60 the other day, and was briefly on the Today Show. She says the reason sixty and sexy sound alike is that the hearing is going, also!

Back to the subject of expensive stuff, what about a cashmere jumper for babies?? Supposedly, they expect the new Prince George to have one.

I was amazed and thrilled to see the amputee golf tournament going on here in Lincoln last week; they came from all over, and did not let the loss of limbs get in their way. It was very inspiring. Plus, it made me get out and walk more!

In discussing our memory losses at the association women's lunch last week, my neighbor confessed to pouring apple juice on her cereal that morning!

Last, but not least, I see the upcoming Chevy auction made the NBC nightly news last week. Harry Smith was actually in Pierce, Nebraska, looking over the collections, both the trade ins on the farm, and the new ones that are now fifty years old in the warehouse. The whole thing is just unbelievable. It will be interesting to see how many people actually show up, and how much money some of the cars will bring. (Another example of spending that I can't quite wrap my head around, probably because I have never had that kind of money.) And that's all for this week, folks; try to survive the heat!

Thoughts on State Fair, corn crop conditions

I have attended the state fair in Grand Island the last few years and it has been a great experience.

This year I will be helping with the Entomology identification contest and the swine show. I hope you will be able to attend sometime this week, as the fair runs through Labor Day. The fairgrounds are brand new with large livestock buildings close to each other and with an air conditioned main arena.

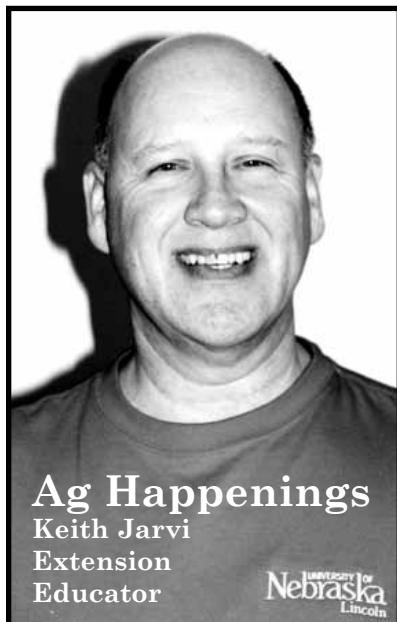

The 4-H/FFA exhibit building is on the north end of the grounds; it is large and is air conditioned. There are many more exhibits in the 4-H/FFA building every year, including commercial exhibits.

Lots of food stands are available, and a large midway with plenty of rides means there really is something for everyone. I recommend the birthing area to people who don't understand where animals come from; kids will love seeing the new born animals there.

There is a really good lineup of shows available and, of course, all the 4-H exhibits will be there for everyone to see.

Across Nebraska, the 2013 corn season has been marked by considerable late planting (due to rain and a low temperatures in spring) and a cooler than average summer so far.

This has led many to wonder

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension
Educator

about the corn yield at harvest and the possibilities and consequences of frost damage before the crop reaches maturity. To look at this issue in more detail, agronomists used Hybrid-Maize (<http://hybrid-maize.unl.edu>), a corn simulation model developed by UNL scientists, to evaluate possible corn yield outcomes as well as the probabilities and consequences of frost damage. The evaluation is based on this year's average and late planting dates as reported by UNL extension specialists and educators for different areas of the state, up-to-date weather data at selected locations, and long-term historical weather data (26 years on average) at those locations.

In summary, irrigated corn yields across Nebraska could be 5-10 percent higher than an average year that are planted before or around mid-May, due primarily to the relatively cooler summer temperatures so far this year. For irrigated corn planted as late as June 1, yields could be 0-13 percent lower than an average year with the same hybrid maturity and late planting dates. For late planted corn, increased probability of frost damage is also a concern.

For rainfed corn, expected yield potential could vary widely across the state. Many locations could see considerably lower rainfed yields than in an average year for both average and late planting dates because of insufficient water recharge in subsoil at planting. For rainfed fields in northeast Nebraska, however, rainfed corn yield could be close to or better than normal due to this year's higher than average precipitation. UNL scientists plan to update the corn yield evaluation regularly until end of the growing season.

For more detailed information, go the hybrid maize site above or start at cropwatch.unl.edu.

Maintain beehives on CRP acreage to protect pollinator habitats

Farm Service Agency (FSA) Director, Dan Steinkruger reminds Nebraska producers and landowners about the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) pollinator habitats and how this may benefit beehive locations and their ability to be placed on CRP acres.

Pollinators are essential to the production of an estimated one-third of the human diet and to the reproduction of at least 80 percent of flowering plants. Insect-pollinated agricultural commodities result in significant income for agricultural producers and account for over $20 billion in annual U.S. agricultural production. Honeybees, the predominant animal pollinator for United States agriculture, require an ample and diverse supply of pollen and nectar to thrive.

CRP provides millions of acres of vital habitat for honeybees, and has since 1986. CRP is viewed by numerous stakeholders in the pollinator community as providing essential habitat in a landscape that has been rapidly changing, often in ways that have depleted habitat well suited for honeybees.

The Food, Conservation and Energy Act of 2008 encourages the inclusion of pollinator habitat in all USDA administered conservation programs. The CRP practice of "Pollinator Habitat" was developed with pollinator partners to meet this goal.

The beehives may be stored on CRP acreage to maintain benefits similar to other benefits brought forth for soil, water and wildlife goals of CRP.

Ensuring the long-term viability of honey beekeeping requires the development of both suitable habitat for foraging bees, and access to this habitat for beekeepers.

"We want to encourage landowners enrolled in the CRP program to provide, as might be negotiated in the conservation planning process, access and space for beekeepers to place their hives," said Steinkruger.

Producers are encouraged to contact their local FSA office for more information on CRP pollinator habitat. Additional information is also available on the web at www.fsa.usda.gov/ne.

Thank You...

We can't tell you how much we appreciate the more than 85 volunteers we had this year for 11th Annual Sweet Corn and Hamburger Feed held in Pilger, NE.

Volunteers, your time and energy spent picking the sweet corn on Saturday, husking and cleaning it on Wednesday morning and serving the sweet corn and grilled hamburgers on Wednesday evening was no easy task and we can't thank you enough. We know that without your help this would never be possible. Approximately 1,075 people were served hamburgers and 2,600 ears of sweet corn were cooked and buttered. We also wish to thank all the people from Pilger and the surrounding communities for their continued support and generosity of this event. Thanks again to all that were involved and donated in anyway.

Sincerely, Ron & Barb Wolverton

The family of Gene Topp would like to thank everyone for their prayers, cards, flowers, memorials and gifts of food during the recent loss of our father, son and brother. We would also like to thank the ladies of Trinity Lutheran Church for the wonderful meal and for the beautiful service provided by Pastor Glenn Kietzmann. Your thoughtfulness is deeply appreciated.
