County sets $17.29M budget for fiscal year

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The county's budget for fiscal year 2013-14 was set Tuesday by the Wayne County Commissioners but without some discussion about major bridge work.

The board approved a $17.29 million budget that will require a levy that is almost 2 cents lower than last year, but not before coming to terms with plans for doing work on several major bridge projects that will require a $4 million bond and some reshuffling of money within each of the three districts in the county.

The county will make its final $72,000 payment in December on bonds issued in 2003 and 2005 that were used for courthouse improvement projects. That allowed the county to turn its attention to a number of bridge projects that the board hoped to complete in short order at a cost savings to the county.

How those construction projects would be funded, though, needed to be agreed to by the three-member board. Board members Jim Rabe of Winside and Randy Larson of Wakefield both favored an aggressive plan to pay off a bond of up to $4 million over 15 years, with each district kicking in $25,000 out of its road fund to help the county pay the bond off in 10 years; while board chairman and Carroll resident Dean Burbach preferred a $3.5 million bond that was paid off over 10 years with no further fund transfers from district road funds.

Both Rabe and Larson felt that by going with the $4 million bond issue, they would be able to take care of nine current major bridge projects that have estimated costs of $425,000 or higher in a shorter amount of time, and at a cheaper cost to the county, than doing them on a year-by-year basis.

"If everything comes in under (estimated costs), we can stay at $4 million, and if you do it at 15 years and set up a 10-year payment plan, and we each take part of our budget, we can take care of this in 10 years," Larson said.

Larson said that, by taking care of the major projects now, it would cost the county less in the long run than by doing one or two a year.

"If we don't fix some of these bridges now, in 10 years some of them might be closed," Rabe added.

The adjustment in the county's road and bridge construction budget still allows the county to ask for a slightly smaller levy in property taxes for the fiscal year. The $4.2 million proposed property tax request comes at a levy of 31.6224 cents per $100 of valuation, which is down 1.9 cents from the 2012-13 fiscal year levy of 33.55519 cents. The county's total valuation is just over $1.3 billion.

In other action, the board: – authorized emergency manager Nic Kemnitz to purchase a 20-kilowatt generator at a cost to the county of no more than $7,000. The generator is expected to cost between $10,000-12,000, with grant funding taking care of the rest of the cost.

Kemnitz also told the board that he and Sheriff LeRoy Janssen were assisting with equipment being used in Nebraska Fire Marshal training in Kearney, and in exchange, the Fire Marshal's office will allow Janssen

Keeping the shelves full of food items for those in the area who are in need is a constant challenge for those who run food pantries in the area.

Pantries help out area needy

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Food seems to be plentiful in America, and especially in the Midwest, where crops and livestock grow abundantly.

But not everyone has available to them the food necessary to feed themselves and their families.

In Wayne and the surrounding communities, a number of food pantries are available, and most have seen an increase in use in recent months and weeks.

The Wayne Food Pantry, located at the First Presbyterian Church in Wayne, has been in existence since the late 1980s when several members of the local Catholic and Presbyterian churches got together to form a food pantry for the Wayne community.

Food received for the pantry has always been stored in the basement of First Presbyterian Church in Wayne. Several community agencies work to keep the food pantry available and as efficient as possible.

Guidelines for using the food pantry include the fact that it can be used up to three times per year by Wayne County residents with proper identification (photo identification will be required). At each visit, several weeks' worth of food is handed out.

Generally, a family is given several weeks' worth of food and a voucher to purchase

City Council approves budget for FY '13-'14

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Money was a topic of several agenda items during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Council members unanimously approved agenda items relating to the 2013-2014 fiscal year budget for the city.

City finance director Nancy Braden told the council she had received final valuation numbers, and the valuation for property in the city of Wayne was higher than expected. These numbers resulted in a minor change in the tax asking for the city's upcoming budget.

According to final numbers, the tax asking for the city's portion of a homeowner's tax budget on a $100,000 home will be $457.52.

The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

The council also listened to a presentation from Phil Lorenzen, the city's bond agent, on the benefits of selling long-term municipal bonds to repay the short-term loans used to pay for a street improvement project, a sidewalk improvement project, a water extension project and a sanitary sewer extension project.

Lorenzen talked about the city's indebtedness and the fact that interest rates on bonds are at low levels.

"I commend the city staff on the work done with these projects. All in all, the city of Wayne is in great financial shape," Lorenzen said.

The bonds, not to exceed $1,165,000, will be paid off over a period of 15 years at an interest rate of approximately 3.5 percent.

Lorenzen noted that the bond market has been uncertain in recent weeks and is having an impact on market interest rates.

The council approved two ordinances and waived the three readings on each to allow for Lorenzen and his staff the opportunity to move forward in current favorable market opportunities.

Council members spent a considerable amount of time discussing what types of housing should be located in what parts of the city.

The discussion centered around Ordinance 2013-40 which would amend the city zoning code in regard to multi-family dwellings and came about with a recent increase in the number of apartment buildings being built in the city.

City Planner Joel Hansen told the council that the Architectural Review Committee had recommend a number of

Wayne's 'Diamond King' offers glitz – and more

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

Beyoncé might sing about putting a ring on it, but it takes a couple of people to actually make it happen: one to get down on one knee to pop the question and another, standing behind a glass counter, to hand the velvet box over to its new – and probably nervous – owner.

Randy Pedersen, who runs The Diamond Center and Flowers & Wine, is that other person; and it's his job to help customers commemorate important events with a little piece of glitz.

"It's a business where, when people come in, it's a very special occasion in their life," Pedersen said. "It's a very happy occasion."

During the years he's been serving as "The Diamond King," Pedersen has watched many people walk out of his store with something sparkly. The jeweler, who grew up in Wayne, attending both high school and college here, not only carries a wide variety of pieces but will also special order an item if it's not available in-store. If a customer has a more specific idea in mind, they can bring in a sketch of what they want, and Pedersen will do what he can to make their dream a reality.

Combined, all of this has made his business a staple in downtown Wayne.

"It's been outstanding," Pedersen said of the community's support of The Diamond Center and Flowers & Wine.

So good, in fact, that the business has been boxing up strands and bands of glitter and gold since 1978, when Pedersen first started it. Back then, the store's original building (a place that previously operated under the name Dale's Jewelry) was located down the street, where The Coffee Shoppe is today.

In 2002, he bought his current location. At the time, it was a florist's shop; and, instead of completely getting rid of it, he decided to add it, plus a gourmet wine and food store, to his jewelry business. The idea of a multi-purpose shop, he explained, came to him after he'd read an article about a place in Illinois that had done the same thing.

"It was pretty natural that I make the transition at the time," Pedersen said.

To celebrate The Diamond Center's 35th anniversary this year, the jeweler is bringing in an Israeli diamond cutter on October 4-5 to show customers how diamonds are really cut. Later that month, Pedersen will fly to Israel himself to purchase diamonds for people who want something special.

Until then, he and the rest of his staff at The Diamond Center and Flowers & Wine will continue to offer its slew of services, including engraving, jewelry and watch repair, floristry, wine-tastings and gift baskets with gourmet food and wine.

And, of course, they'll be there when it's time to put a ring on it. "The cool part is, I've sold to parents, and now their children are coming in to buy the engagement ring or something else," Pedersen said. "That's pretty special."

Free Apples

Remember the Wayne Q125 celebration in 2009 and the community apple orchard that was planted west of the Community Activity Center?

Retired WSC professor Tony Kochenash led a group that purchased and planted the trees to commemorate the event. This is a community orchard and the apples are free on a first-come, first-served basis, no permission needed. The trees started bearing this season.

All 25 trees made it through the catastrophic drought of 2012 and are bearing a few apples for the first time since they were planted in 2009. There are some medium sized red and yellow apples just ripening. There are only about two bushels total on all the trees. However, the trees are still small and all the apples can be reached from the ground.

The apples are in good shape but don't expect perfection. They are all sizes and no herbicides or insecticides have been used around these trees, so what they bear is what we get.

Swanson-Weseloh family reunion held in Wakefield

The annual Swanson-Weseloh family reunion was held Aug. 4 at the Wakefield Legion Hall.

Towns represented included Norfolk, Wakefield, Wayne, Winside, Grand Island, Omaha and Allen in Nebraska; Vermillion, S.D.; Glenwood and Sioux City in Iowa and Broomfield, Colo. There were 28 people in attendance.

A business meeting was held and it was reported that there was one wedding and four births in the past year. There was one confirmation, four high school graduations and two college graduations.

There was one retirement to report, that of Lamont Johnson of Norfolk who retired in June after 32 years of service with Veyance (Goodyear).

Some news to report included the fact that Marvin and Mae Reuter received the Pioneer Farm Family Award on July 28, 2013 at the Dixon County Fair. Marvin's parents, Louis and Anna Reuter, purchased the farm in March of 1911.

The oldest person at the reunion was Gerthy Johnson of Norfolk and the youngest was Layten Johnson, son of Larry and Shelly Johnson of Wakefield and great-grandson of Gerthy.

Coming the farthest distance were Phil and Maxine Farley of Broomfield, Colo. Gerthy Johnson had the most family members present.

A potluck dinner was held and the afternoon was spent visiting and taking family pictures.

A donation was collected and given to the Wakefield American Legion for the use of the facility.

The next reunion will be held Aug. 3, 2014 at the Wakefield Fire Hall with a potluck dinner at noon.

Family addition information should be sent to Lesa Johnson, 1003 Georgia Ave., Norfolk, Neb. 68701.

Sawyer Jager part of Cornhusker Marching Band

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln's 301-member Cornhusker Marching Band, the "Pride of All Nebraska," made its 2013 debut Aug. 31 at Memorial Stadium with pregame and halftime performances at Nebraska's football season opener against the University of Wyoming.

Among those who are a part of the band is Sawyer Jager of Wayne, who plays the trumpet and is a

This year's band includes representatives from nearly every region of the country, but 85 percent of the students are from Nebraska. Each band member passed two auditions to gain admittance to the group. One-fourth of the band members are music majors. The rest are studying in more than 70 other degree programs across campus.

Saving energy with – a cup of Joe

If you are not one, you surely know at least someone who is among the 54 percent of Americans who drink coffee on a daily basis.

In fact, the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers estimates about 4 in 5 American homes own at least one coffee maker. Greater than two-thirds of these homes make coffee at least once a day. In all, more than $40 billion is spent on coffee in the U.S. each year. What does each and every cup have in common? It took energy to brew them!

While you may not have contemplated coffee makers as an opportunity for energy savings, you should. On average, it only takes about a quarter-of-one-penny's worth of electricity to brew one 9-ounce cup, and most methods of brewing require about the same amount of energy to brew on a per-cup basis. Simple math may have you thinking a couple of cups every day is less than $20 per year. However, when you study the "convenience" we expect with coffee, you can begin to see opportunities.

First off, 60 percent of households with drip coffee makers report their units are plugged into the electrical outlet all of the time. Many units have a clock that allows coffee drinkers to preset a brewing time so a fresh, hot cup awaits them when they awake in the morning. Though the most efficient of these clocks are electronic and consume a miserly 1/2-watt per hour, some analog clocks use up to 9 watts per hour and cost nearly $8 to run annually.

Next, to provide a full pot of coffee in less than five minutes, many automatic drip coffee makers utilize a heating reservoir that holds a pot's worth of water at around 200 degrees Fahrenheit. Though the reservoir heater only operates about 15 percent of the time, many units of this type will consume more than 200 kilowatt-hours annually and cost more than $20 for the convenience.

Another consideration is how long coffee is left on the warming plate before the unit is switched off. The California Energy Commission found that an average multi-cup coffee maker uses about 60 watt-hours to maintain brewed coffee at serving temperature. Even though coffee connoisseurs advise against any additional warming to preserve coffee's best flavor, many leave their pots on the warming plate for two hours or more. The built-in warmer might not use as much power as the brewing process, but it could often be avoided if instead you hold hot coffee in an insulated carafe before serving.

Finally, notice if you are dumping any coffee down the drain. Often, people opt to throw out cold or stale coffee as opposed to microwaving a cup to revive it. It is much more energy efficient to make smaller amounts as needed than to make a larger amount and keep it hot. Ask yourself how much will realistically be drunk in the next hour or two and brew accordingly.

Your local utility and Nebraska Public Power District want to help you make the most of the energy they provide you. That includes saving the most while brewing your next cup of coffee.

For ideas on how you can be EnergyWise, contact your local utility or visit www.nppd.com.

'Beyond Boundaries' is focus of second Rural Futures Conference

When Ronnie Green was growing up on his family's farm in southwestern Virginia in the 1960s and '70s, traveling to Roanoke, Va., the regional center 15 miles away, was an adventure.

But his kids "grew up thinking it was not a big deal for them to live in Sutton, Neb., and go to a movie in Lincoln 90 miles away, which to me when I was growing up, it would be, 'are you kidding?' To them, it's no big deal." Green, NU vice president and Harlan vice chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said.

To people who live in rural areas, just what constitutes a community or regional center is all a matter of perspective. And Green points to differences between his perspective and those of his children to illustrate the kinds of questions the Rural Futures Institute should explore.

The Institute will host its second Rural Futures Conference Nov. 3-5 in Lincoln to explore those and other questions. The conference theme is "Beyond Boundaries," and registration is available at www.ruralfutures.nebraska.edu/conference.

If a 15-mile trip in the '60s was a big deal, and 50 years later, 90 miles for a movie seems ordinary, how will people define their regional center 50 to 75 years from now as they increasingly communicate instantaneously around the world and need not always rely on place-based occupations?

"Envisioning the future has to be at this big level of saying, 'how do we get out of the mud where we've been for a long time in thinking about rural issues and really be thinking up, instead of being bogged down in the mud of hanging on,'" he said. "We haven't really been thinking about the long-term future; we can't get past the near term."

Green knows it's a tall order. People are products of their own times and places, and it's always difficult "to fully view the world through a forward lens," he said.

Green noted that, up until about the 1950s, rural development efforts were largely focused on providing rural communities that initially sprouted where water and railroads were with the same kinds of infrastructure that city dwellers enjoyed. Thus, rural electrification and road-building efforts took priority. Since then, however, innovations in agriculture that have dramatically increased productivity also have contributed to outmigration from rural areas because it no longer takes as many people to operate farms and ranches.

And at another level, people need to deal with rural communities as they exist today.

"How do you actually take the landscape as it exists today and identify the ways that communities and places are going to be more successful in the long term?" Green asked. "Not every rural community is going to be successful, as hard as it is to say."

Last year's first Rural Futures Conference drew 475 participants, and registration was closed two weeks prior to the event because the venue capacity had been reached.

It is anticipated that this year's conference will again draw a large crowd, and registration will only be open until all the seats are filled. The university is currently interviewing finalists, and it is expected the Institute will have an executive director identified by November.

To learn more about opportunities to engage at the conference or to register, visit the website. You can also follow Rural Futures on Twitter at twitter.com/rural_futures or Facebook at facebook.com/ruralfutures.

Black Hills Energy is offering customers the chance to lock in the price of the natural gas portion of their bill every month for a year with the its Annual Price Option program.

This year, enrollment began online on Aug. 29 at www.annualpriceoption.com and will begin by phone on Sept. 10 at (800) 753-7509 from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The program, for residential customers only, works on a first-come, first-served basis until Oct. 10 or when 12,000 participants have enrolled, whichever occurs first. The program will be in effect from Nov. 1, 2013, through Oct. 31, 2014.

"APO provides price certainty for customers who select this year's APO price and like knowing that, regardless of what the future market price is for natural gas, the gas price they'll pay for one year will not change," Don Nordell, Black Hills Energy business operations director, said.

Enrollment in the APO guarantees that the natural gas portion of a customer's bill will stay the same each month for a year. Monthly bills will still increase or decrease based on how much natural gas a customer uses.

Participation in the APO program is voluntary. Residential customers who don't want to participate in the APO program don't need to do anything and will be charged the "traditional billing" per-therm price for natural gas.

Black Hills Energy also offers a Budget Billing option that takes the seasonal peaks out of natural gas bills for a more even monthly payment.

Black Hills Energy's Nebraska service territory is divided into three rate areas. Natural gas prices vary slightly between rate areas because of differences in interstate pipeline carrier costs to transport natural gas to the rate areas.

State outdoor rec grants are available

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission is offering $100,000 in marketing grants to promote outdoor recreation.

The grants are for communities, groups, organizations, public-private partnerships, non-government agencies or political subdivisions looking for help in promoting outdoor recreation.

While all projects, events and campaigns must promote outdoor recreation, preference is given to marketing campaigns promoting Game and Parks' public areas (wildlife management areas, state parks, state recreation areas, and Open Fields and Waters sites). These areas are where the public may participate in outdoor recreational activities, conservation efforts, stewardship of natural resources or similar initiatives supporting Game and Parks' outreach, education and marketing goals.

Grants are available in event promotion, regional promotion and outdoor destination promotion. The individual grant amounts will range from $2,000 to $25,000, and grants will be awarded on a reimbursement basis. The application deadline is Oct. 31, and grants will be awarded Nov. 22.

Keith Hansen, Chair of State Emergency Response Commission, presents an award to John Grimes, Chair of Elkhorn Valley Local Emergency Planning Committee, at an Emergency Planning and Preparedness Conference.

Local, industrial emergency planners honored for chemical emergency planning

Awards were presented to local emergency planning committees and industries for their outstanding achievements in planning for chemical emergencies at an Emergency Planning and Preparedness Conference July 25-27, in Overland Park, Kan.

The conference was hosted by EPA Region 7, FEMA Region 7 and the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

The purpose of the conference was to help prevent accidental chemical releases and minimize community risks when they occur. Representatives from fire departments, law enforcement, emergency medical service agencies, private industry, city and county emergency management groups, tribal nations and state and federal agencies attended.

"EPA Region 7 is proud to recognize local emergency planning committees and industry for protecting the public from chemical risks," Karl Brooks, regional administrator, said. "Our obligation to our children, families and communities is to handle, store and transport chemicals responsibly."

Awards recognizing achievements in chemical emergency planning were presented to: Antelope County, Burt County, Dodge County, Douglas County, Hamilton County, Madison County, Pierce County, Stanton County, Washington County, Wayne County and Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska in Nebraska, as well as several counties in Iowa and Kansas.

Nic Kemnitz and LeRoy Janssen of Wayne are a part of the Elkhorn Valley Local Emergency Planning Committee, which was among those receiving recognition.

Karl Brooks, EPA regional administrator; Beth Freeman, FEMA regional administrator; and Timothy Butters, deputy administrator, U.S. Dept. of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration, delivered remarks at the conference.

Steve Taylor, executive director of the Missouri Agribusiness Association served on a panel about fertilizer safety with EPA Region 7 staff. His main focus was the role of agricultural retailers and local emergency responders in preventing and reducing the risk from chemical accidents such as anhydrous ammonia releases.

changes for dwellings being built in R-3 zoned areas, including landscaping, covered doors and requirements for doors facing property lines.

Council member Kaki Ley said the goal is "to preserve neighborhoods; we can't put apartments in areas zoned R-1 and R-2."

B.J. Woehler said that eliminating apartments from areas zoned R-1 and R-2, "you put more stress on R-3 and R-4 areas, which are very limited. I suggest a use-by-exception in R-2 so the council is able to look at the plans and make a decision."

Council member Nick Muir said, "I don't know what the balance is between the neighbors and builders."

Hansen told the council that he believes many people do not realize what areas are zoned with each designation and that most of the development currently taking place is within the R-3 (higher population density) zoned areas.

Council members also discussed the possibility of re-zoning some areas of the city from R-1 to R-3 to allow for additional multi-family dwellings to be built.

The possibility of having an electric charging station in the city of Wayne received approval from the council.

The University of Nebraska, the Nebraska Energy Office and several Nebraska cities are putting together a system of high voltage charging stations for electric plug-in cars and are offering to cover the costs above $3,5000 for Wayne to install such a station.

The location of the charging station has not yet been determined.

Council members also approved Mayor Ken Chamberlain's appointment of Lois Shelton to the Civil Service Commission to replace Darrel Heier and the re-appointment of Dave Hix and Don Buryanek to the Board of Appeals. Mayor Chamberlain thanked Heier for his years of service on the Civil Service Commission.

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

There are a variety of reasons why area residents need the services of one of the local food pantries, from job cuts to other economic conditions. Food pantries in Wayne, Wakefield and at Wayne State College can help out those in need. The Wayne food pantry pictured here is located at the First Presbyterian Church at Third and Lincoln streets.

Pantries

meat, fresh fruit, milk and eggs.

"We are on track for a record-breaking year at the Food Pantry. As of the end of August, we have served 90 families and 353 people," Jenny Hammer, who is currently serving as the Food Pantry facilitator, said. Records indicate that by the same time in 2012, a total of 64 families had been served and 264 individuals.

"Our fruit shelf is completely empty at the present time, and the soup shelf is nearly empty. We are also in need of items such as SpaghettiOs and macaroni and cheese," she added.

Hammer said she is not sure of the reason for the recent increase in usage but notes that the economic conditions and the fact that, for some workers, hours and benefits may have been cut are possible causes.

"Many people feel that things like this (the need for food), don't happen in Wayne, but they do," she said.

Donations for the Wayne Food Pantry can be dropped off at the First Presbyterian Church, Third and Lincoln Streets, Tuesday through Friday from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monetary donations are also accepted, and checks may be made out to the Wayne Food Pantry.

A recent addition to the Food Pantry is being conducted in cooperation with the Wayne Community Schools.

The Backpack Program began late last spring and provides food for students in need for the weekend. Currently, 109 students are taking advantage of the program which includes a number of individually packaged items "which we try to make as healthy as possible," Pastor Ray McCalla of the First Presbyterian Church said.

"Again, many people are amazed that there is so much need, but there really is," Hammer said.

At Wayne State College, a food pantry is available to those students who have a valid Wayne State college ID.

The pantry is open from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Friday and is funded by donations from campus organizations, the community and the WSC Student Senate.

"Students can use the pantry as much as they need to, as long as they are enrolled at Wayne State College, and can take as much food as they need, as long as it lasts," Karen Granberg, who coordinates the pantry, said.

The pantry provides non-perishable food items only and many of the items in the pantry come through the athletic department's annual fall food drive.

"We let those using the Wayne State Food Pantry know about the other sources of food in the community, including the Wayne Food Pantry and the Mobile Food Pantry. We want to work with the other agencies, not compete with them."

"So far, the need hasn't been extensive, but we did see an increase from 48 students in the 2011-2012 school year to 61 students in the 2012-2013 school year," Granberg said.

For more information on the Wayne State College Food Pantry, contact Granberg at (402) 375-7321.

Another option for food for those in need is the Mobile Food Pantry that visits First United Methodist Church at the corner of Sixth and Main Streets in Wayne the last Saturday of each month.

Pete Phillips, pastor of the church, said that a truck from the FoodBank of the Heartland arrives in Wayne at approximately 9 a.m. on the last Saturday of each month and brings in an average of 7,000 pounds of food.

"We have been helping approximately 100 families each month and see a diverse group of people that is not always the same each month,"

Pastor Pete said.

Food is available free of charge, with no strings attached, to anyone who needs it. There are no residency restrictions and only a few questions are asked of those using the food pantry, including the number of family members in a household.

The truck brings a variety of food each month, including fresh produce, baked goods and canned and packaged food.

The church pays for the food with a grant they received and through anonymous donations.

"We do not accept money from those getting the food. We want the Mobile Food Pantry to be a supplemental source for their food. We have a group of volunteers from the church, the community and Wayne State College who help with the food pantry and are available to deliver the food into homes if necessary," Pastor Pete said.

Pastor Pete noted that those receiving the food are thankful and that he has heard several comments from those who have said "now I don't have to choose between food or my medications."

For more information on the Mobile Pantry, contact the church office at (402) 375-2231.

In addition to the food pantries located in Wayne, a food pantry is available at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Laurel for residents of the community and more information may be obtained by contacting Pastor Engebretsen or Monica Ebmeier at the church at (402) 256-3314.

In Wakefield, a food pantry is located at Salem Lutheran Church and is supported by the Ministerium of Wakefield. It is available to residents in the Wakefield area who are in need of food.

For more information on the Wakefield Food Pantry, contact the church at (402) 287-2681.

Devils break in new turf with 51-13 win

Barry throws three TD's in season-opening victory

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

After beating each other up for a couple of weeks at the old practice field, the Blue Devils turned their attack on the visiting Madison Dragons on the new turf at Wayne State College.

The Blue Devils gave up an early interception return for a touchdown but were able to crank out 42 unanswered points after that, using a stingy defense of their own to slay the Dragons 51-13 in the 2013 season opener Friday at Memorial Stadium.

The new turf of Cunningham Field made its debut with the high school matchup between the Blue Devils and Dragons, and after a shaky start early, the Blue Devil offense got going and ran over, around and through the Madison defense.

"When you go against yourselves (in the preseason), you can't really run a game situation, so it was good to get this one out of the way," second-year coach Terry Bear said after the game. "We have to get a lot better and clean up some things, but after tonight, I believe we can have a good year."

Things got off to a shaky start on the new surface, as a tipped Jalen Barry pass turned into a 28-yard interception return by Noe Hava five minutes into the game.

It was all Wayne after that. On their ensuing drive, Wayne needed just four plays to travel 80 yards and tie the game. Jalen Barry opened the drive with a 32-yard pass to Jared Anderson, and three plays later the senior classmate connected again, this time on a 44-yard strike to tie the game.

"We had to knock the rust off a little bit, but they've been playing together for some time, and it's good to have a go-to guy like Jared," Bear said.

The duo connected again on Wayne's next possession, capping a three-play, 66-yard drive that was set up by runs of 13 and 17 yards by Demetrius Alexander. The Barry-to-Anders connection was good for 36 yards and a score to make it 14-7, and Wayne would never trail again.

Barry threw his third score of the half late in the second period, finding Payton Janke on a 16-yard score off the right side, and Alexander scored the first of his two touchdowns after a Madison fumble, galloping in from a yard out to make it 28-7 at the half.

The excitement of playing on the new surface took a little time to adjust, but Bear said the team warmed up to the new field quickly.

"We're very fortunate to be able to play here at Wayne State, and I was happy the kids got to experience this," he said. "I think it brought a little more excitement, and we'll get to play on this a few more times so it's nice to get one under our belt."

While Wayne's offense warmed up to the new field, the defense did its job quite well in making Madison feel the heat. They rushed the Dragons quarterback relentlessly and limited Madison to a single first down in the first half and three for the game.

Madison's ground attack was non-existent, as the Wayne defense held the Dragons to a minus-3 yards in 28 rushing attempts and 44 total yards for the game.

"Our defensive staff does an outstanding job, and we're not going to fool anybody," Bear said. "We're just going to come out and play fun-

Softball slams out of slump

After going on a rare losing skid this past week, the Wayne High softball team needed to right the ship.

The Blue Devils did just that on Tuesday, bombing Lutheran High Northeast's pitching early and often on their way to a 15-1 blowout of the Eagles Tuesday at Norfolk's Liberty Bell Park.

A rare streak that saw the 5-3 Blue Devils lose three times in four games was something coach Rob Sweetland felt he needed to address right away.

"We talked about it in practice on Monday that I don't remember starting a season this slow, so it was time to get back to basics," he said. "Now we have another week until we play again after tonight, so it will be a good chance for us to work on some things."

After Saturday's 1-2 effort at the Lincoln Public Schools Classic, Wayne took out its frustrations on the outmanned Eagles, touching them for three runs in the first inning before consecutive six-run innings ended the game on the run rule after three innings.

Just about everybody who went to the plate came away with at least one hit. Danica Schaefer had the big blast, hitting a two-run homer in the third to highlight her two-hit effort. Jalyn Zeiss, Kiara Hochstein and Nicole Craft also had two hits apiece.

Kendall Gamble worked two scoreless innings before Ashten Gibson mopped things up in the third to give Wayne the shutout win.

"We were ready to get on the field tonight after Saturday," Sweetland said. "We didn't play very well on Saturday, and if you do that against good competition, you're not going to win. It was good to get out here tonight and get back in the win column."

On Saturday the Wayne High girls saw some bigger competition in the Lincoln Public Schools Classic at Doris Bair Park and went 1-2 on the day, beating Class B Omaha Gross (10-0) while losing to Class A Lincoln North Star (10-0) and Class

Wayne (1-0) vs. O'Neill (1-0)
Friday, 7 p.m. at O'Neill

Wayne got their season opener out of the way on the new turf at Wayne State College and will visit one of the nicer high school stadiums in the area in O'Neill. Wayne looks to add to their early-season momentum against a talented Eagles squad that won at St. Paul - this is the area's Game of the Week.

Friday, 7 p.m. at Laurel

Braves are going to be a tough first test for a young and hungry Bears squad. Battle Creek isn't the juggernaut they were a generation ago, but they're going to be a tough opener for LCC after opening with a convincing 35-0 shutout of Ponca.

Howells-Dodge (0-0) vs. Allen (0-0)

Friday, 7 p.m. at Allen

Eagles are a year older and a year wiser but draw the area's toughest matchup this week with perennial D-1 power Howells-Dodge coming to town. Eagles need to stay focused on the long-term goal of reaching the playoffs, and this will be a learning experience at home.

Banc.-Rosa. (1-0) vs. Winside (0-1)

Friday, 7 p.m. at Winside

Wildcats home opener comes a week after a tough road loss at Scribner-Snyder, and the visiting Panthers are always tough and come into the game pre-season ranked with a 38-point win to open the season. Winside just doesn't have the manpower to hang with a team like this.

Wayne St. (0-0) vs. Northern St. (0-0)

Saturday, 6 p.m. at Aberdeen, S.D.

Two teams that went 6-5 last year meet in the Northern Sun Conference season opener Saturday in Aberdeen, S.D. The Wolves are 12-9 all time against the Wildcats, but are 1-4 in the Dan McLaughlin era and haven't beaten the Wildcats since McLaughlin's first season in 2005. Wolves quarterback Jared Jacobson threw for more than 2,500 yards last year but will be tested against a solid Wayne State defense. Winning is tough on the road in the NSIC, but the Wildcats were 4-2 away from home last year.

Blue Devil golfers beat heat, field at home invite Friday

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

When the temperatures rise, it's tough to keep your focus on the golf course.

The Wayne High girls found a way, however, to battle through 90-degree temperatures on Friday and easily win their first tournament of the year, claiming the Wayne Invitational by 39 shots at the Wayne Country Club.

The Blue Devils' win on the home course came less than 24 hours after battling through similar conditions in a triangular at South Sioux City, and coach Josh Johnson was proud of the girls' effort on back-to-back scorching-hot days.

"We played nine holes yesterday in that heat, and it was brutal, and it was even hotter today, and the girls battled hard today and kept playing," he said.

Cassidy Wiese had an exciting chip-in for birdie to close out the front nine on her way to a team-leading score of 104, which was good for second place overall as part of a three-player scorecard playoff. Emma Loberg also shot a 104 to finish fourth, and Marissa Wiese was a stroke back in fifth place as three of Wayne's varsity fivesome finished in the top five.

"Marissa and Cassy and Emma all played very well in this heat for us," Johnson said. "Everybody improved in some way, so it was a great job by all the girls out there."

Holly Grosz and Cienna Stegemann both earned medals for the Wayne varsity, finishing with identical rounds of 120 to place 18th and 20th, respectively.

The Wayne High JV team was fifth out of eight full teams in the 11-team tournament and had two golfers finish in the top 20. Kaitlyn McAllister led the Blue Devil JV with a 117 to finish 15, while Varya Roberts was 17th with a 119. Ashlyn Pecena was one shot out of the top 20 with a 121.

On Thursday, the Wayne High girls golf team shot a 220 and finished three shots behind West Point-Beemer in their season-opening triangular at South Sioux City.

Wayne continued its momentum in the third quarter to put the game out of reach. Alexander and Curtis Moeller both found the end zone to make it 42-7, and after Madison marched down the field to score its only offensive touchdown of the night, Wayne came right back on the very next play to get that score back, courtesy of a 57-yard run by Malik Knox. A bad snap led to a fourth-quarter safety for Wayne to close out the scoring.

While the Barry-to-Anderson connection worked quite well - Anderson finished with 148 yards on just five catches - Bear said he was happy to see the Blue Devils spread things around in racking up 391 yards in total offense. "We told Jalen to spread the wealth around a little bit, and when he mixed it up, it really opened up the offense," Bear said.

Moeller was the team's leading rusher with 74 yards on six carries, while Knox had 59 in six tries, and Alexander added 54 in 13 carries. Barry was 7-of-11 for 167 yards and three touchdowns on the night.

The 1-0 Blue Devils will face their first road test of the year this Friday against an always-solid O'Neill squad.

Craft and Hix each added two hits, while Gibson scored twice. Hannah Belt threw a complete-game two-hitter, striking out six and walking one in five innings.

The Blue Devils managed just three hits in the loss to North Star. Kranz, Hix and Lauren Gilliland each had singles in the game. North Star touched Gamble for four runs in the first and six more in the third as the senior took the loss in the game.

Wayne struck first in the Waverly game, as Hochstein reached on an error and scored on a single by Hix. It would stay that way until Waverly tied the game in the bottom of the inning when an error brought home an unearned run.

Waverly scored two runs in the third to take the lead for good. Wayne's bats were held silent the final four innings of the game, with a leadoff single by Hix in the sixth the only safety Wayne could muster.

In other action, the Blue Devils team took a 3-0 lead into the bottom of the seventh before O'Neill rallied with four runs in their final at bat to steal a 4-3 win and hand Wayne its first loss of the season Tuesday, Aug. 27 in O'Neill.

Gamble and Belt had limited O'Neill to one hit through six innings, but O'Neill strung five consecutive hits together to come back and get the win, handing Wayne its first loss of the year.

Gamble had a two-run double in the sixth, and Kranz added an RBI single in the fourth to account for the scoring for 3-1 Wayne. Wayne won the JV game, 15-8, with Gibson getting the win in the pitcher's circle.

Wayne is home on Tuesday to face Columbus Lakeview at 5 p.m. at the Wayne Softball Complex.

Slow start for Wakefield in 45-14 setback

WAKEFIELD - Wakefield proved to be their own worst enemy in their season opener Friday night. The Trojan gridders scored the game's opening touchdown, but turnovers proved to be their undoing as visiting Tekamah-Herman converted three Wakefield miscues into touchdowns on their way to a 45-14 win Friday at Eaton Field. "We made Tekamah look better than they were," coach Mike Hassler said. "We had four fumbles in the first half that led to 24 second-quarter points. Outside of that, we played toe-to-toe with them." The Trojans got on the board first when Wakefield drove down the field and scored on Levi Nelson's one-yard dive into the end zone. Tekamah-Herman went to the air twice in the period to take the lead for good, as Dash Cameron threw scoring passes of 26 and 75 yards to Jason Hansen to make it 14-6. Wakefield's turnover woes in the second period proved fatal to their hopes for a second straight season-opening win over the Tigers. Tekamah-Herman took advantage of the host team's mistakes, scoring three touchdowns to make it 38-6 at intermission. "Going in, there were two areas that really concerned me," Hassler said. "Our depth and inexperience at some key positions were areas that concerned me, and before the night was over, those two areas really played a factor in the outcome of the game." Hassler said the Trojans held their own for a good chunk of the first half, but the turnovers proved to be too much for them to overcome. "Those turnovers, a couple of key injuries and the heat really took its toll right before the half, so it was kind of a perfect storm of things," he said. Hassler said he was proud of the way the kids responded to the adversity but said the team needs to work on its execution. "We need to execute," he said. "We didn't adjust to their defense and blocked some plays wrong. It was your typical first game, and we weren't very sharp and just never found our rhythm." Wakefield scored a fourth-quarter touchdown on defense, as Evan Nicholson picked off a pass and raced 80 yards for a touchdown. He also threw the two-point conversion pass to Nelson to close out the scoring for the 0-1 Trojans. Wakefield has a week off this week to prepare for their first road game next Friday at Stanton. "Physical, hard-nosed football is what Stanton will play," Hassler said. "We need to come with our hard hats on and be ready to do some dirty work, and I think we're up to the challenge. This football team will get better; there is no doubt in my mind." Tekamah-Herman 45, Wakefield 14

Winside struggles in opener, drops 40-14 result at Scribner

SCRIBNER - Turnovers and injuries both hurt Winside early in their football season opener here Friday, and the host Scribner-Snyder Trojans took advantage early to post a 40-16 win. Coach Mark Tonniges said the Wildcats showed some good things at times but had trouble developing any consistency on offense. "At times we looked good, but we were very inconsistent," he said. "Our young team showed its youth, and we need to grow every game." The Trojans scored a pair of touchdowns and added a safety on defense to take an 18-0 lead after one period, stretching that advantage to 40-0 at intermission. Winside's offense found the end zone twice in the fourth quarter.

Isaiah Muhs cashed one in from 21 yards out, while senior Caleb Lieneman hit paydirt on a 41-yard burst, part of a team-best 67 yards in 12 carries on the night despite hurting his knee. "We lost one player to concussion, and Caleb had a knee sprain, so our new people need to step up," Tonniges said. "Caleb, Marcus Escalera and Gage Main all played extremely well for us tonight, and our new transfer, Kevin Ross, did some good things on defense late in the game." The Wildcats finished with 155 yards on 39 carries for the night, while the Trojans racked up 226 yards in total offense, all on the ground. Four turnovers hurt the Winside effort offensively. Lieneman led the team with 10.5

tackles, while Escalera had 8.5, Main recorded 6.5, and Colby Erickson had five total tackles for the 0-1 Wildcats. Winside's home opener is this Friday against top 10-ranked Bancroft-Rosalie at 7 p.m. at Jim Winch Memorial Field. Scribner-Snyder 40, Winside 16

Wayne State rugby begins 2013 campaign

It was a busy weekend for the Wayne State rugby teams as they kicked off the 2013-14 season. In women's action, the defending national champions started the season with a pair of wins, edging Nebraska 22-17 Saturday in Lincoln and dominating South Dakota in a 71-20 thrashing Monday in Newcastle. The Wayne State men have a young squad this year and played well despite losing two of three. They dropped a close 12-7 decision to Iowa State, edged Lincoln 3-0 on Saturday and came up a point short Monday in Newcastle, losing to Sioux City 32-31. Both teams are on the road this week, with the women playing Central Missouri in Kansas City on Saturday while the men take on Northwest Missouri on Friday and Topeka, Kan., on Saturday. The Wayne State rugby teams will host a 14-team Rookie Rumble the weekend of Sept. 14, with teams playing 3-4 short games during the day-long tournament at the Wayne Rugby Club.

WSC Family Day is set for Sept. 14

Wayne State College will host Family Day on Sept. 14. The Office of Residence Life invites younger siblings to spend the night or the weekend on campus with their older brother or sister.

Wayne State College students and their younger siblings will have the opportunity to enjoy a variety of age-appropriate activities throughout the weekend including the WSC recreation facilities, games, crafts and a showing of the movie "Monsters University" on Friday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. The Rec Center will be open until 8 p.m. on Friday. Younger sibling guests may stay overnight Sept. 13 and 14 in their older brother's or sister's residence hall room. Students will be responsible for hosting and supervising their sibling(s). Wayne State students should see their Resident Assistant (RA) for more information and to sign up for Little Siblings Weekend.

On Saturday, guests are welcome to take advantage of hospitality service including coffee, juice and muffins in the Student Center Atrium from 9-11:15 a.m. Families may pick up a campus map and information about the day's activities.

Activities on Saturday include Balloon and Henna Tattoo Artists, an academic open house, planetarium shows, pop art projects, brunch, and a Kids Zone at the football stadium. WSC football will challenge University of Mary at 1 p.m.

An open house will be hosted in academic buildings and residence halls from 9 a.m.-12 p.m.

The Wayne State College Bookstore will be open in the atrium of the Student Center from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

The Special tour of the Planetarium and an astronomy showing will be given at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. in the Carhart Science Building.

Family Day Brunch will be served in the student dining area of the Student Center from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. The brunch menu will include omelets, scrambled eggs, French toast, roast beef, spaghetti with marinara or meat sauce, chicken breast with wild rice, mashed potatoes, broccoli, corn, soup, salad bar, dessert bar and a display cooking oriental bar. Meal prices are $7 per person and for children 90¢ per year (up to 7 yrs. old).

Wildcat fans will gather for a tailgate party at the south end zone of the football field from 12-1 p.m. (Recreation Center if weather is inclement). Adults will be charged $8 per person and under 12 years old fans will be charged $5.

Wayne State College will challenge the University of Mary at 1 p.m. for football with entertainment by the Wildcat Marching Band, flag corps and yell squad. Tickets are available at the stadium for a price of $10 for adult general admission and $5 for children in K-12th grade.

Many ways to save on in-home water usage

Every day people use water not only for drinking and cooking, but for bathing, cleaning and many other purposes. However, the amount used by families in their homes can vary because people have different water use habits and a variety of fixtures and appliances installed in their homes.

Water-using fixtures and appliances (such as faucets, toilets, showers, clothes washers, dishwashers) designed in the past two decades typically use less water than older devices, and water-using devices labeled as "Energy Star" or "Water Sense" are the most water efficient.

The ages, gender and number of occupants in the home also plays a role in how much water is used. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the American Water Works Association collected water use data from over 1,000 homes in different North American cities. They found a wide range of water use rates, depending on whether or not families addressed leaks, how efficient the fixtures and appliances were in the home, and whether or not families applied conservation practices.

Families that used the most water did not fix leaks; used older and less-efficient fixtures and appliances, and did not use water-saving practices. A family of four used about 499 gallons of water per day under these conditions. The largest amount of water use was from bathing, followed by the kitchen faucet and toilet. These were followed by the clothes washing machine, leaks, and other uses. The fixtures in this scenario were over 20 years old and had higher flow rates than newer more efficient fixtures. Leaks were most commonly due to the toilet, followed by faucets.

What can you do to be more water-efficient in your home?

- Identify and repair water leaks.
- Change water use practices. Take shorter showers, flush the toilet less often, do fewer and fuller loads of laundry or dishes.
- Add aerators to faucets to reduce water flow while maintaining wetting ability.
- Replace older fixtures and appliances (especially toilets and washing machines) with more efficient, up-to-date versions.

Saving water in your home is important. Changing water use practices will cost nothing and may even save money as less water might be heated and used. Other conservation methods like taking care of leaks or adding an aerator to your faucet are fairly inexpensive. Water is a finite resource, and it is important that we work to conserve it, so it will be available for future use.

Pets of the Week

Oscar & Ray are long-time residents at Tender Heart Animal Rescue. Having come from a gentleman who entered a nursing home, these boys are now 10 and 12 years old. Small-town life beats the big city

Us small-town folk just don't know what we're missing in the big city. Oh, really? As somebody who has endured life in towns of less than 2,000 and metropolitan areas of several hundred thousand, I can tell you that those living in the big city are a wee bit myopic if they think that big-city life is better than what we've got in a small town. With all of that experience living on either side of the fence, I can break it down for you, tale of the tape style, as to which way of life is better. Bright lights of the big city? Or the easy-going life in the small town? Here's how it all pans out:

Local media's lead story

Big City - Multiple shootings, murders and other forms of mayhem.
Small Town - Free donuts at Friday's Chamber Coffee meeting.
Advantage: Small town. Come on, seriously . . . is there really a choice between a double homicide at your neighbor's house and free donuts at the local bank?

Number of vehicles in typical rush-hour traffic

Big City - Thousands, with more coming up in your rear-view mirror.
Small Town - Five, two of which are some form of farm implement vehicle.

Advantage: Small town, unless you don't have enough patience to follow Farmer Jones in his John Deere for a couple of blocks.

Typical on-the-street greeting

Big City - What the (expletive) are you lookin' at?
Small Town - Good morning. It's a beautiful day, isn't it?
Advantage: Small town, because nobody likes being called an (expletive) . . . even if they are one.

Those using guns are shooting at . . .

Big City - Anything, or anybody, that moves.
Small Town - Deer, turkey, geese or whatever is "in season."
Advantage: Small town, because those shooters know how to operate a firearm safely.

Your home security system is . . .

Big City - Five deadbolt locks, an online security system and at least two loaded weapons under your pillow.
Small Town - Asking the neighbors to watch the house while you go out of town for the weekend.

Advantage: It's a push, but only because the neighbors might just be going to the same party you're heading to.

Time to drive across town

Big City - 20-30 minutes, depending on traffic.
Small Town - 20-30 seconds, unless you catch one of those farmers in their John Deere equipment or a little old lady, who can barely see over the steering wheel and has the right turn signal on, driving 10 miles under the speed limit to get to her monthly Ladies Aid meeting.

Advantage: Small town, because it cuts down on potential road rage (unless you're late for an appointment and the little old lady unexplicably stops at a green light).

Shopping late at night

Big City - No problem. Wal Mart and most big grocery stores are open 24 hours, so the late-night munchies can be taken care of at 3 a.m.
Small Town - If you get a craving for ice cream at 10:01 p.m., you're gonna go hungry.

Advantage: Big city, especially for us reporter types whose jobs rarely end at 5 p.m.

So you see, when you break it down, the small-town way of life beats big-city living eight days a week. You just can't do better than living the small-town way of life.

Unless you get hungry at 1 a.m., of course . . .

New and shiny is winning

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

My new and shiny trumps your steeped-in-tradition.

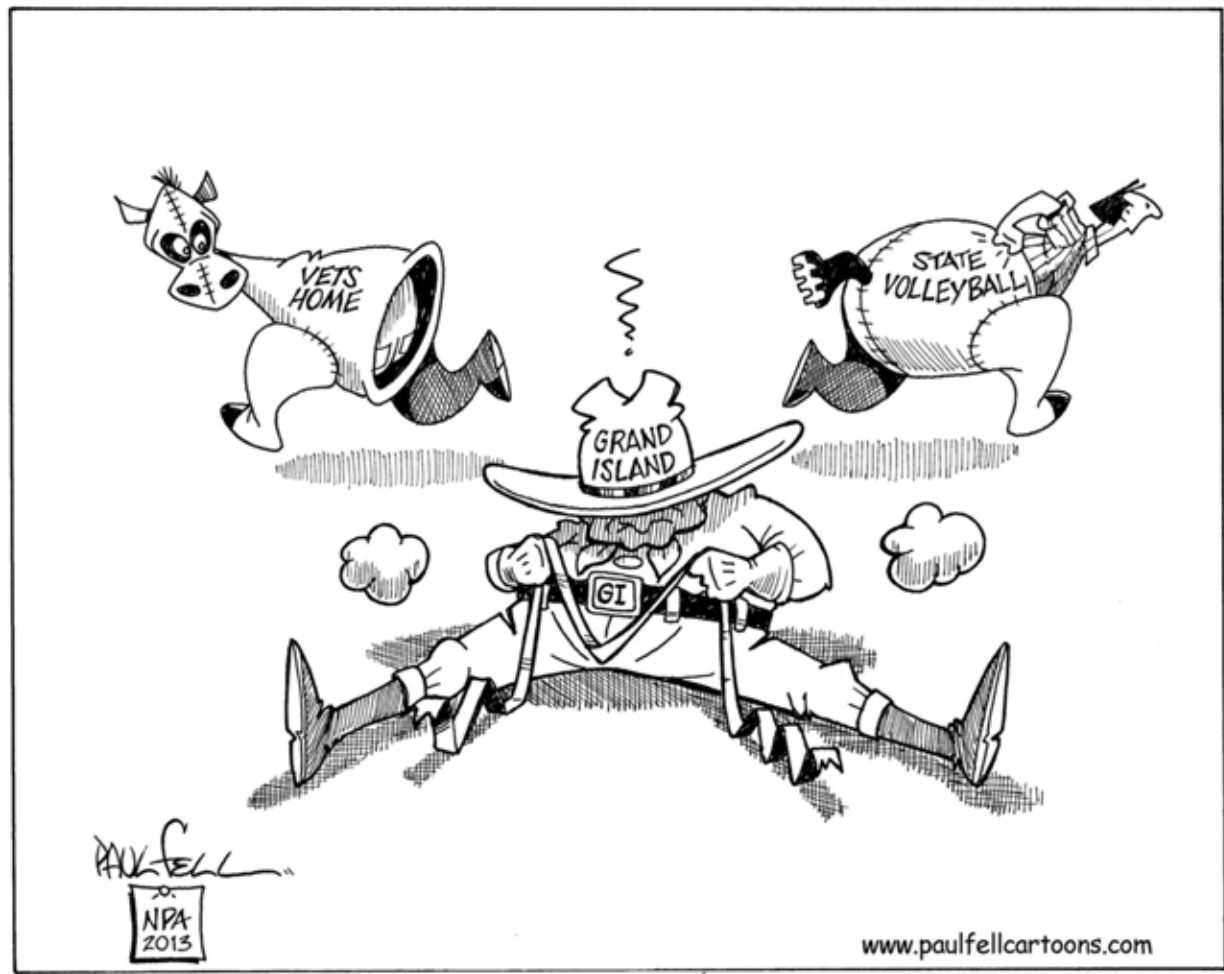

The first Nebraska territorial fair was held in September 1859 in Nebraska City. The first state fair was also held in Nebraska City in 1868. Next came Brownville and then alternately Lincoln and Omaha until the 1901 Nebraska Legislature gave it to Lincoln, permanently — or so everyone thought.

The first veterans' home in Nebraska was the Soldiers and Sailors Home in Grand Island in 1887. Based on a number of promises, everyone thought the Grand Island home would be the flagship forever.

The Nebraska School Activities Association moved the state high school volleyball tournament to Grand Island in 2010, based mostly on the fact that Grand Island offered the newer and larger Heartland Events Center for the games. That site trumped Lincoln's Pershing Center (auditorium).

In 2008, the University of Nebraska revealed plans to build the Nebraska Innovation Campus on land next to the Bob Devaney Sports Center. The only problem, the Nebraska State Fair and a handful of historically significant buildings were in the way. The University helped convince lawmakers that a new and shiny set of buildings would attract entrepreneurs to the campus and allow the university to make great strides in research. The Legislature voted to move the fair to Grand Island. Several citizens filed a legal challenge that was ultimately rejected by a lower court and then the Nebraska Supreme Court. A petition drive for a referendum to reverse the action also failed.

Score two for Grand Island. The State Fair AND the state volleyball tournament. The state allocated $42 million to construct new facilities in Grand Island at the legendary Foner Park, and 109 years of Lincoln tradition was little more than a memory. Construction of seven new buildings was completed, and the 2010 Nebraska State Fair opened to rave reviews in the new venue. By all accounts, the first state volleyball event outside of Lincoln in 18 years was also a success. Meanwhile, back in Lincoln, neither the NSAA Board nor the Lincoln City Council donned orange t-shirts and whined about Grand Island's victories. They didn't show up at the opening of either new event in Grand Island wearing said shirts to let the public see they were eating sour grapes. Grand Island had won fair-and-square and life went on for the citizens of Nebraska.

The edge came off the euphoria in Hall County a couple years ago when a long-running feud among Nebraska veterans' leaders came to a boil and likely caused the state to look at alternative locations for a new veterans' home to replace the aging facility in Grand Island. The lid blew off in July when Gov. Dave Heineman announced that he had reviewed reports from a special study team and picked Kearney as the new location of the state's flagship veterans' home. As if that wasn't enough, Grand Island's other tri-city rival, Hastings, came in second place behind Kearney.

Grand Island was third.

Pointing to the home's 126-year history in Grand Island, only 17 years longer than the state fair had been in Lincoln, State Senator Mike Gloor of Grand Island said, "You're basically taking part of the culture of the community and yanking it out."

So it was that Grand Island city leaders and about 100 others donned orange shirts and heckled the governor during opening remarks of this year's State Fair in their city. Some charged that there were secret meetings with Kearney. Kearney Mayor Stan Clouse said he didn't know that the Grand Island home was slated to be replaced until he heard from the disgruntled veterans groups. He said the city then inquired as to whether the state would even consider other locations and was told that state officials hadn't thought much about seeking proposals for the 225-bed home and 350 jobs. Spokesmen for both Heineman's office and the state Department of Health and Human Services said that's when they made a decision to open the process to other central Nebraska communities. Grand Island, Kearney, Hastings and North Platte submitted proposals in June.

In July, a motion to move the state volleyball tournament was settled in two sets. A motion to keep it in Grand Island for three more years failed. A motion to move it back to Lincoln for three years passed unanimously.

Lincoln's bid included the new and shiny Pinnacle Bank Arena and the renovated Bob Devaney Sports Center, which is now the home of the Nebraska volleyball team. Grand Island made a similar offer for free venues. In the end, it came down to the venue, and it appears that Lincoln's new and shiny won the day.

It's hard to say what will happen when the new wears off the State Fair in Grand Island. But it might be a good time to be an orange t-shirt vendor.

Legislative Update

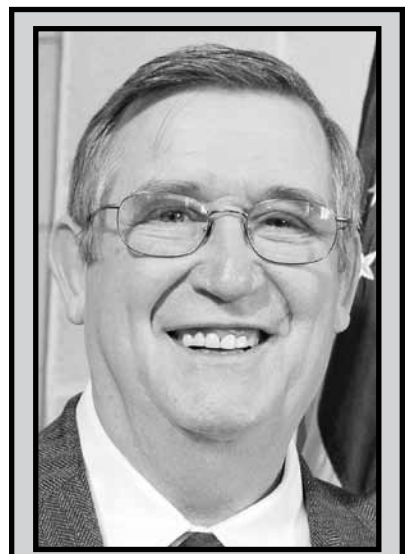

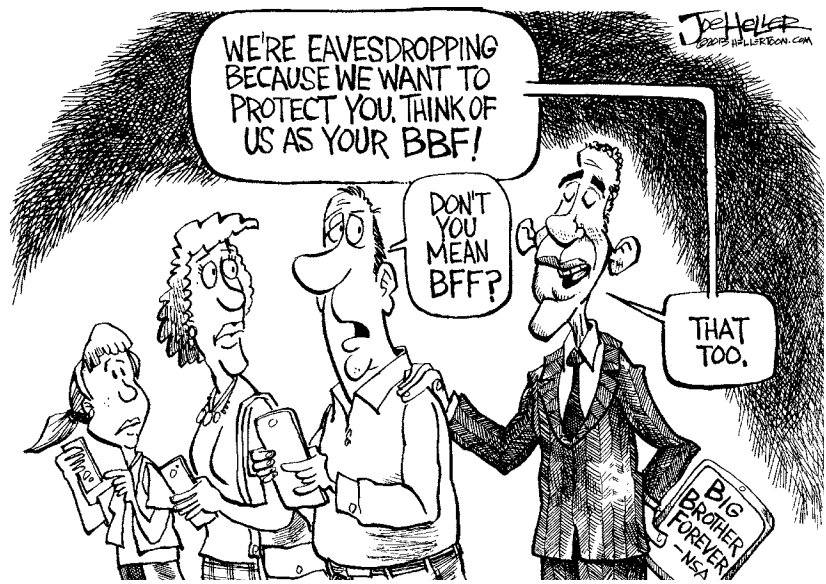

One of few senators not in governor race

I begin my newsletter by letting all of you know that I am not running for governor in 2014.

Thus far, four of my colleagues have announced that they are seeking that office. I know that other state senators are still considering a run for higher offices. Once again, I am not.

Election years lead to interesting legislative sessions, and with at least four members running for the same office, I'm sure upcoming session will be anything but boring.

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

Just in case any of you might be thinking of running, the deadline to file is March 1, 2014 for non-incumbents and the primary election is May 13, 2014.

Last weekend (Aug. 24), I was able to attend the Omaha Tribe

Pow Wow held at Macy. This was the 209th annual Pow Wow for the Tribe. Beyond the colorful celebration of their heritage, there was good food and a lot of fellowship. The temperature might have been a little hot, but the reception Dee and I received was even warmer. Thanks to everyone involved.

I would again like to remind all of you that the Tax Modernization Committee will be holding hearings at various locations throughout the state; the closest location to District 17 will be when they come to Norfolk from 1-4 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 26. This meeting will be held at the Lifelong Learning Center at Northeast Community College. Please put this hearing on your calendar; your elected officials need to hear your thoughts on these issues. It is my intention to attend this meeting. This tax study will affect each and every citizen of Nebraska for years to come. As more information becomes available, I will continue to pass it along to you.

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or e-mail dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

Help Clinic at Wayne State College available to all

The Help Clinic at Wayne State College is offering counseling services for community members at no cost in Wayne, Norfolk and a few schools in northeast Nebraska and Sioux City, Iowa.

The graduate students involved in the program are nearing completion of the Master's Degree in Counseling. They are supervised by faculty members Dr. Keith Willis, Dr. Branis Knezevic and Alicia Dorcey-McIntosh.

Anyone with questions about the counseling services can call Dr. Willis at (402) 375-7210 for more information.

Briefly biographies of those offering counseling services at the Help Clinic are provided below:

Melissa Jenkins is currently pursuing her Master's Degree at Wayne State College for Counseling, specifically clinical mental health. She received her undergraduate degree from Briar Cliff University in 2002 in Social Work. During her undergraduate program, she interned at the St. Luke's Outpatient Behavioral Health Unit while working for the Inpatient Behavioral Health Unit.

After graduation and receiving her licensure as a drug and alcohol counselor, she worked as a Drug and Alcohol Therapist for Jackson Recovery Centers in Sioux City, Iowa for both adults and adolescents. Melissa also has experience as a Behavioral Health Intervention Specialist for Lutheran Social Services of Iowa.

Keven Aase is currently a graduate student majoring in Clinical Mental Health Counseling. Some of the human service work he has been involved with includes working for the League of Human Dignity as a live-in provider for a quadriplegic, working with the Behavioral Health Specialists, and speaking to adolescents at the Madison County Juvenile Detention Center on the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

Keven has been involved with service learning projects at the Wayne Senior Center and for the Anchor House in Norfolk. He has also completed his undergraduate internship at RWay: The Job Site, in Wayne. He plans to pursue licensure in both Mental Health Counseling (LMHP) and Drug and Alcohol Counseling (LADC).

Jessica Henery received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Spanish from Wayne State College in 2011. She is currently working towards her Master's degree in Clinical Mental Health Counseling at Wayne State College.

Jessica has previously worked as a family support worker for Good Life Counseling in Norfolk for two years.

Paula Peterson is pursuing a Masters Degree in Clinical Counseling through Wayne State College. She has worked with Northeast Nebraska Community Action Partnership as a Health Educator and Home Visitor for the last four years. Through this opportunity, Paula has coordinated and provided parenting education to about 180 families annually as well as supported and provided education for the teen parent program in the Norfolk Public Schools.

She has received certification as a Family Development Specialist, Child Passenger Safety Technician as well as a trainer and facilitator for PIWI (Parents Interacting with Infants) support groups. She is also a member of the Early Childhood Coalition in Fremont and The Caring Connections Coalition through Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department.

Melissa Brokaw graduated from Peru State College in 2003 with a kindergarten through ninth grade special education degree. After college she taught at Bennet Elementary for fourth through sixth grades. She then taught in Scribner-Snyder for grades kindergarten through four. She has been employed at Lyons-Decatur Northeast School teaching fourth through eighth grade special education for the past six years.

Melissa plans to receive her masters in school counseling for kindergarten through 12th grade.

Brandy Boschult is currently a graduate student at Wayne State College (WSC) majoring in Clinical Mental Health Counseling and plans to graduate in August of 2014. She completed her undergraduate degree at WSC in 2005 in Human Services Counseling.

Currently, she is employed at the Norfolk Regional Center working with the adult sex offender population. She has been employed there for 2 1/2 years. Brandy's past work experience has included working as a Probation Officer for the State of Nebraska, Community Support-Substance Abuse Worker for Behavioral Health Specialists, and Substance Abuse Prevention Director for Elkhorn Logan Valley Public Health Department.

Aubrey Loera has an undergraduate degree in education from UNL with an ESL Endorsement. She has been working as a substitute teacher in South Sioux City, for 3 1/2 years. She plans to complete the MSE in Clinical Mental Health Counseling and seek licensure as an LMHP and LADC.

Melissa Brokaw

She also hopes to complete requirements for a school counseling degree. Future plans include working as a therapist in marriage and family counseling.

Gina Kroon graduated from Dana College in Blair in January of 2008 with a bachelor's degree in Elementary (K-6) and Special Education (K-12). Directly out of college, Gina was an elementary special education teacher for 5 1/2 years at West Point Elementary School in West Point. She is currently pursuing a master's degree from Wayne State College in School Counseling and is working as a high school guidance counselor at West Point-Beemer High School.

Katie Bartels received her Bachelor's of Science in Criminal Justice-law enforcement in May 2010. After graduating, she joined the National Guard and is currently a part of the 189th Transportation Unit in Wayne.

Katie also works at NorthStar Services where she has been a direct support staff for the past 6 1/2 years. After graduating, she hopes to obtain her LMHP as well as her LADC.

Empowering youth develops skills

Empowerment can be one of the most effective ways for providing young people with opportunities to develop life skills.

According to Webster (1998), empower means "(1) to give official authority or legal power to; (2) enable to; (3) to promote the self-actualization or influence." The strategy in the first definition can be quite effective, provided that the young person has the need and skills to achieve the desired outcome. For many youth, the third definition is more suitable. Adults need to assist or promote building of life skills.

Adults often assume that "empowering youth" is a synonym for giving up all guidance, control, and responsibility to the young people. This approach is often met with failure on the part of the youth, frustration on the part of the adults, and disappointment for all involved.

Here are some simple ways adults can empower teens in your community:

- Make a long-term commitment ple to work in partnership with adults. Youth are naturally intimidated by adults --having a peer nearby can help boost their confidence.

- Provide youth the opportunity to work on their own, yet provide support when needed.

Empowering teens is a process through which adults begin to share responsibility and power with young people. Because it is a process, empowerment is something that is achieved over time, not overnight. Each young person, like adults, has different skills.

Working with youth to assist in building their life skills fosters competent empowered youth. UNL Extension hopes that 4-H Leaders and parents help empower our youth to take their knowledge and put it to work by creating exhibits that demonstrate what they have learned. 4-H provides an excellent chance for our youth to learn and utilize this amazing life skill.

For more information on what 4-H has to offer our young people, contact the UNL Extension Office in Thurston County at (402) 385-6041 or e-mail jhansen@unl.edu.

'47 WHS classmates visit

Three members of the class of 1947, Hollis Frese, Dottie Tiede and Pat Straight, traveled to York on Aug. 16 to visit classmate Lorraine Meyer Stransberry, who has lived for several years in the Willow Brook Assisted Living Home.

The visit coincided with the Wayne High School Class of 1947 reunion in Wayne.

The women were attired in bright blue and white Wayne Blue Devil T-shirts and brought one for Lorraine to wear also.

Lorraine's daughter, Konda, had decorated a table in the facility in the school colors. The classmates were able to have lunch with Lorraine and her husband, Jim.

The group sent five hours that afternoon reminiscing about classmates and sharing information with Lorraine that they had gathered the previous day at the reunion in Wayne.

Volleyball Classic

This week, the Allen volleyball team will travel to the Northeast Nebraska Volleyball Classic, with games starting on Thursday, Sept. 5 at Wisner. Allen plays Wisner-Pilger at 5:30 p.m., followed by Allen versus Fremont-Bergan at 6:30 p.m.

The tournament will conclude on Saturday, Sept. 7 with games starting at 8:30 a.m.

Teams in the tournament are Allen, Wisner-Pilger, Fremont-Bergan, Pender, Bancroft-Rosalie, Lincoln High Northeast, West Point CC, Scribner-Snyder, Wakefield, North Bend Central, Oakland-Craig and Wayne.

Football Season Begins

The Allen football team will host Howells-Dodge on Friday, Sept. 6 for their first game of the season.

The Eagles are led by six seniors: Takota Burnham, Austin Connot, Myles Flores, Levi Madsen, Trevor Stapleton, and Cole Stewart. There will be a tailgate beginning at 5:30 p.m. before the game at the football field hosted by the Allen Youth Football team.

Allen Sports Season Passes

Allen Consolidated School has available a "Season Pass" for all home volleyball, football, and basketball games in the 2012-13 school year. The price is $50 for a single pass and $100 for a family pass.

The "Golden Pass" is again available to for those Allen fans 65 years of age and older. The cost of this pass is $20. Please contact Melissa at the school for more information and to purchase a pass.

Swap Meet

The 24th Annual Swap Meet will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 14-15 at the Mike and Val Isom's Love-A-Lop Farm in Allen.

The swap meet starts at 8 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday. There will be a Saturday night Barbecue - everyone is invited. Bring your own meat and side dish. There will be a Rooster Crowing contest on Saturday, and on Sunday will be the Squeal like a pig contest.

Many vendors will be there with all kinds of stuff - ranging from animals, crafts, antiques, garden produce, tools, fishing tack and a flea market vendor.

Everyone is invited to stop in and enjoy the Swap Meet as there is "Lots and lots of stuff to see and do."

First Lutheran Church

Allen's First Lutheran Church will be having a Huge Rummage & Bake Sale on the Saturday, Sept. 14. It will go from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Everything will be available for a free will donation.

Mission Project

Allen's United Methodist Church is collecting aluminum cans for a mission project. Residents must drop off your uncrushed cans at the church. There is a container outside near the doors.

Hunter Education Class

There will be Hunter Education Class held on Mondays in September at the Martinsburg Community Hall "old school house".

The dates are Sept. 9, 16, 23 and 30, with classes from 7-10 p.m.

Students, age 12 years or older, must register online at www.Hunt-SafeNebraska.Org. Students must also have parental release form filled out and are asked to bring to the first session. Students must attend all four sessions.

For more information, contact Monte Roerber (402) 635-2334; Doug Smith office (402) 635-2129 or home (402) 945-2833; Charlie Mahler (402) 945-2951; or Bob Kumm cell (402) 253-9807.

Craig Pfeifer

Craig Pfeifer ranks in top 10 field agents

Craig Pfeifer, a field agent with the Knights of Columbus, currently ranks in the top 10 field agents in the company. He also ranks ninth in Long-Term Care Insurance Sales and second in Disability Income Insurance Sales. There are over 1,200 agents servings as field agents in the Knights of Columbus.

Pfeifer also attended the MDRT annual convention in Philadelphia, Penn. Only the top 2 percent of insurance agents worldwide are invited. There he learned how to better serve his members in the way of wealth preservation and estate planning among other disciplines.

He also recently earned the Fraternal Insurance Counselor (FIC) designation. The FIC title is an educational designation that can be earned by career life insurance representatives associated with fraternal insurance societies. Representatives devote more than one year to meet the examination and career development criteria set by the Fraternal Field Managers Association to the earn the Fraternal Insurance Counselor designation.

Pfeifer is the field agent serving Wayne, Pender, Emerson, South Sioux City, Ponca, Randolph, Hartington and Crofton.

Congratulations Dulce Torres

~ Employee of the Month ~

"I would like to nominate Dulce Torres for Employee of the Month. Dulce's dedication to The Oaks reflects in the kindness and attention she gives to each resident. She works diligently to provide the residents with the best possible experience they can have at meal time. Dulce is not only a great worker, but she is able to enrich the lives of our residents by simply expressing her interest in who they are. It is refreshing to be around her and the positive energy she radiates! Dulce shows dedication and commitment to The Oaks team by working any shift that her schedule allows. She has worked double shifts and covered for other employees who are not able to work on several occasions. I am a proud co-worker of Dulce's and am pleased to nominate her for Employee of the Month!"

Research finds health benefits in sorghum

Grain sorghum lipids lower cholesterol levels and intestinal bowel inflammation in lab animals, University of Nebraska-Lincoln research has found, and scientists are working to figure out exactly how in an attempt to create food products that could manage both conditions in humans.

The research is part of UNL's emphasis on "functional foods," which are dietary systems containing natural agents designed to impart certain health benefits, including prevention of a variety of diseases. The work involves scientists from several disciplines.

Reducing LDL cholesterol is a key strategy to reducing coronary heart disease, which is a major cause of death in the United States and other countries. Statin drugs are effective and widely prescribed, but they are expensive and can have serious side effects. Moreover, inflammation of the bowel has been linked to many intestinal disorders, including colon cancer. Scientists from UNL and elsewhere are trying to find nondrug strategies, such as functional foods, to replace drugs.

That's where grain sorghum comes in, said Vicki Schlegel, UNL food scientist and part of the research team. It is a rich source of several chemicals that can decrease cholesterol in addition to preventing inflammation but has been largely overlooked for human consumption in the U.S. Although the U.S. is the world's leading producer and exporter of grain sorghum, most of the crop in this country is used for animal feed and ethanol production.

The UNL research focused on the extractable lipid fraction of grain sorghum whole kernels and their effect on cholesterol metabolism in hamsters, which have similar lipid cholesterol metabolism as humans.

Scientists found that hamsters fed a diet supplemented with grain sorghum lipids had significantly lower cholesterol and liver cholesterol levels, Schlegel said.

"These concentrations were in the metabolic ranges known to reduce the risk of coronary heart disease in humans," the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources scientist added. "They probably prevented cholesterol from absorbing through the large intestine. It just passed through."

"We also recently determined that the fatty diet fed to the animals not only increased cholesterol but also intestinal inflammation. However, sorghum supplementation was able to remediate many markers of this cellular stress. How it does this, well, that is the next step in our research," Schlegel added.

Ongoing research includes determining the specific components responsible for both responses. Then, scientists hope to incorporate those into a food ingredient for humans.

In addition to its human-health implications, such ingredients also could raise the value of sorghum for producers, Schlegel noted. Although the UNL research focused on whole kernel sorghum, the components responsible for these health benefits also can be extracted from sorghum-ethanol byproducts, which would improve the economics of that ethanol production since those byproducts now are used, if at all, as animal feed.

This research is funded by the Nebraska Grain Sorghum Board, United Sorghum Checkoff Program, and UNL's Agricultural Research Division.

Early frost could be problem for late corn plantings

Late corn planting in some areas because of wet field conditions last spring could lead to reduced yields if an early frost hits this fall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension experts say.

Overall, Nebraska's corn crop is looking strong, and for farmers who planted around the average time, in mid-May, yields in irrigated fields are projected to be up 5 to 10 percent over the 30-year average, said Jenny Rees, UNL Extension educator.

But some farmers didn't get into the fields until after Memorial Day because of wet conditions. Expected yields in those fields could be down as much as 13 percent from the 30-year averages, thanks to late-season lower temperatures and a dramatic increase in the probability of frost damage before the crop matures.

The projections were made using UNL's Hybrid-Maize model, a computer program that simulates the growth of a corn crop, and weather data from the High Plains Regional.

Yields for rainfed fields are harder to project, but the model simulated yields where corn was planted on the average planting date to be lower than an average year for most areas, but close to or higher than a normal yield in the northeast, thanks to above-average growing season rains. For fields planted around June 1, simulated yields are also lower than an average year for most locations.

Info shared on improving lawns in the fall

Here's a follow-up to last week's information on improving lawns in the fall.

It's September and we don't normally think of doing too much with lawns in the fall other than mowing them when we have to. However, now is actually the best time to improve your cool season fescue/bluegrass lawn, which 99 percent of us have. The information in this article comes from a recent on-line publication from UNL with the web address LawnImprovementPrograms2010A.pdf available at the extensionhorticulture.unl.edu website.

Almost all cool-season lawns require fall fertilization as well as broadleaf weed control, and many slightly thinned lawns can be improved during this time. September is the most important time to encourage rooting for next year and increasing density this fall. In our area fertilizing can take place at any time at a rate of 1.0 lb nitrogen per 1000 square ft of lawn. Most fertilizers are found in bags with a ration similar to 24-6-12 (N,P,K) or 20-0-10 and this will be fine. Follow the directions on the label. A second application at or just after the last mowing, while the turf is still green will really help. You can even apply a third application in October

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension Educator

if your lawn was especially thin. However, this last application can increase the chance of snow mold if we have a high snowfall year.

An application from mid-September to mid-October of a broadleaf herbicide with two or more active ingredients (such as 2,4 D and dicamba) will control most common weeds like dandelions, plantain, and black medic, among others. Apply the herbicide preferably on a sunny day when no rain is forecast

UNL campus to be represented at Husker Harvest Days

Those attending Husker Harvest Days Sept. 10-12 can immerse themselves in all things water with University of Nebraska research and extension experts.

"Raising Our H2O IQ" is the theme for University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources exhibits at this year's show near Grand Island, where UNL's commitment to annually changing exhibit themes keyed toward bringing the public the latest relevant IANR research and extension programming continues.

"We are focusing on groundbreaking research and initiatives that are rapidly earning IANR a national and global reputation as a leader in critically important water research," said Ronnie Green, NU vice president and IANR Harlan vice chancellor.

The University of Nebraska and IANR are focused on many areas of research and programming that have water use, quantity and quality at their core. No single issue is more important to Nebraskans and globally than water.

"Our commitment in this field is evidenced most strongly by establishing the Robert B. Daugherty Water for Food Institute at the University of Nebraska a few years ago," Green said.

"In a state where the vast majority of our annual water use supports our agricultural economy and which is the number one state for irrigated agriculture in the nation, IANR's focus will continue to be on helping Nebraska, the nation and the world understand more about how to improve efficiency, quality and availability of this precious resource," Green said.

This is the sixth year IANR's teaching, research and extension exhibits are focused on a specific area of importance that is relevant to all Nebraskans and visitors to the red Husker exhibit building on the south side of the showground at Lot 321. There, and in the next-door white tent, show goers will see many ways IANR and UNL Extension are working to raise our H2O IQ.

Key exhibit areas focus on hydrology; how tillage and residue removal affect water balance in crop fields; variable rate irrigation as the next evolution in precision agriculture technology for center pivot irrigation systems; transpiration as the key to maximizing yield per gallon on water applied to crops; water efficient residential landscapes; the Nebraska Agricultural Water Management Network that works hand-in-hand with hundreds of Nebraska irrigators; UNL's respected and often-referenced drought planning experts from the National Drought Mitigation Center; and helping to meet global food security needs via the Robert B. Daugherty Water for Food Institute.

Outreach education also will be prominent within each of the individual exhibits.

UNL staff at a central information booth will provide assistance in answering questions on a variety of extension and research-related topics, provide copies of helpful NebGuides, and direct those needing further help to extension experts in their local area.

The red Husker building is also the place to learn about the latest opportunities for students at UNL's College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, and the Nebraska College of Technical Agriculture at Curtis. College representatives will be available throughout the show to answer questions from potential students. Those interested in the Nebraska LEAD (Leadership Education Action Development) program can also visit with a LEAD representative.

The large white tent just east of the red Husker building will feature the Market Journal team and also be filled with information and activities on water and agriculture-related careers.

IANR has been part of Husker Harvest Days since the first show in 1978.

"We like bringing the campus to Husker Harvest Days and seeing all the people that stop in to see us each year," Green said. "People stop to see what's new, ask us questions and share what they see as Nebraska's main challenges and opportunities. We are the people's land-grant university."

and temperatures and above 50 degrees. For more recommendations on specific weeds, refer to the herbicide ratings on the web page at turf.unl.edu.

You can also oversee a lawn if it is significantly thin but it requires core aeration with a special machine that you can rent. Or, you can hire a lawn care firm to do it. Much more information is available on the publication and I encourage you to download it, or come to the extension office where it can be printed out. Here's to a thicker lawn.

Husker fans continue to be loyal to team

Oh, my! It's Labor Day! Last evening, the temperature was twenty degrees cooler than the evening before. I sat on the deck as long as I could, and we slept with doors and windows open; a treat after the last week.

What was not a treat was the football game! We actually lucked out by winning. That Brett Smith is someone we will see on Sundays very soon. Jon was at the game and announced he was embarrassed. It was hard to watch. But all Husker fans remain optimistic, right?

I'm always amazed at how faithful Husker fans are. I had a note from Tacoma, Wash., saying she had her T shirt on. I had sent the YouTube of the coach's prank regarding cell phones during team meetings; she had already seen it on Huskers.com.

Last spring, after sending Jack Hoffman's touchdown run on Sunday eve, I heard from Orlando and Arizona that they had already seen it!

Some of the guys on the team did some visits last week; one was to a very young man with leukemia; the other, to one of our hospice patients with MS. Those things make me respect them more than all the plays on the field.

On the news this evening, we saw a high school senior in Montana who had to have a leg amputated above the knee last year. He wrestled, ran track, and is now playing football; with an invitation to walk on at Montana State. Determination like that deserves to be rewarded.

Then, there was the 64-year-old woman who swam from Cuba to Miami without a shark cage! I remember her trying before. This time, she made it, saying we should never give up. She's inspiring, and makes me wonder what I do all day! Actually, today, I baked cinnamon rolls. In Grief Share two weeks ago, I said that I can now make those as good as my Mom's, but I would probably never be able to make apple pie like hers. Well, it was strongly suggested that I bring some to be tested.

Our pastor is from Texas and is

THANK YOU

Thank you for all the cards, phone calls and prayers while I was in the hospital and since returning home. Thank you to Pastor Bertrand for all his visits and prayers. Also, thank you for all the cards, calls and visits for my birthday. It was all greatly appreciated. A special thank-you to my kids for all the personal care they have been giving me.
-Carolyn Kraemer

Alvin & Linda Gehner would like to thank all friends & family for the cards and gifts we received for our 50th Anniversary. Thanks to everyone who came to our party at the Eagles Club. Thanks to our daughters and family for organizing our party.
We really enjoyed it.

THANK YOU!

All of your cards were so deeply appreciated. Especially the humorous one that was addressed TO: Larry (older than dirt) Koester!

There were so many that arrived from people from my "Way Back When" days.

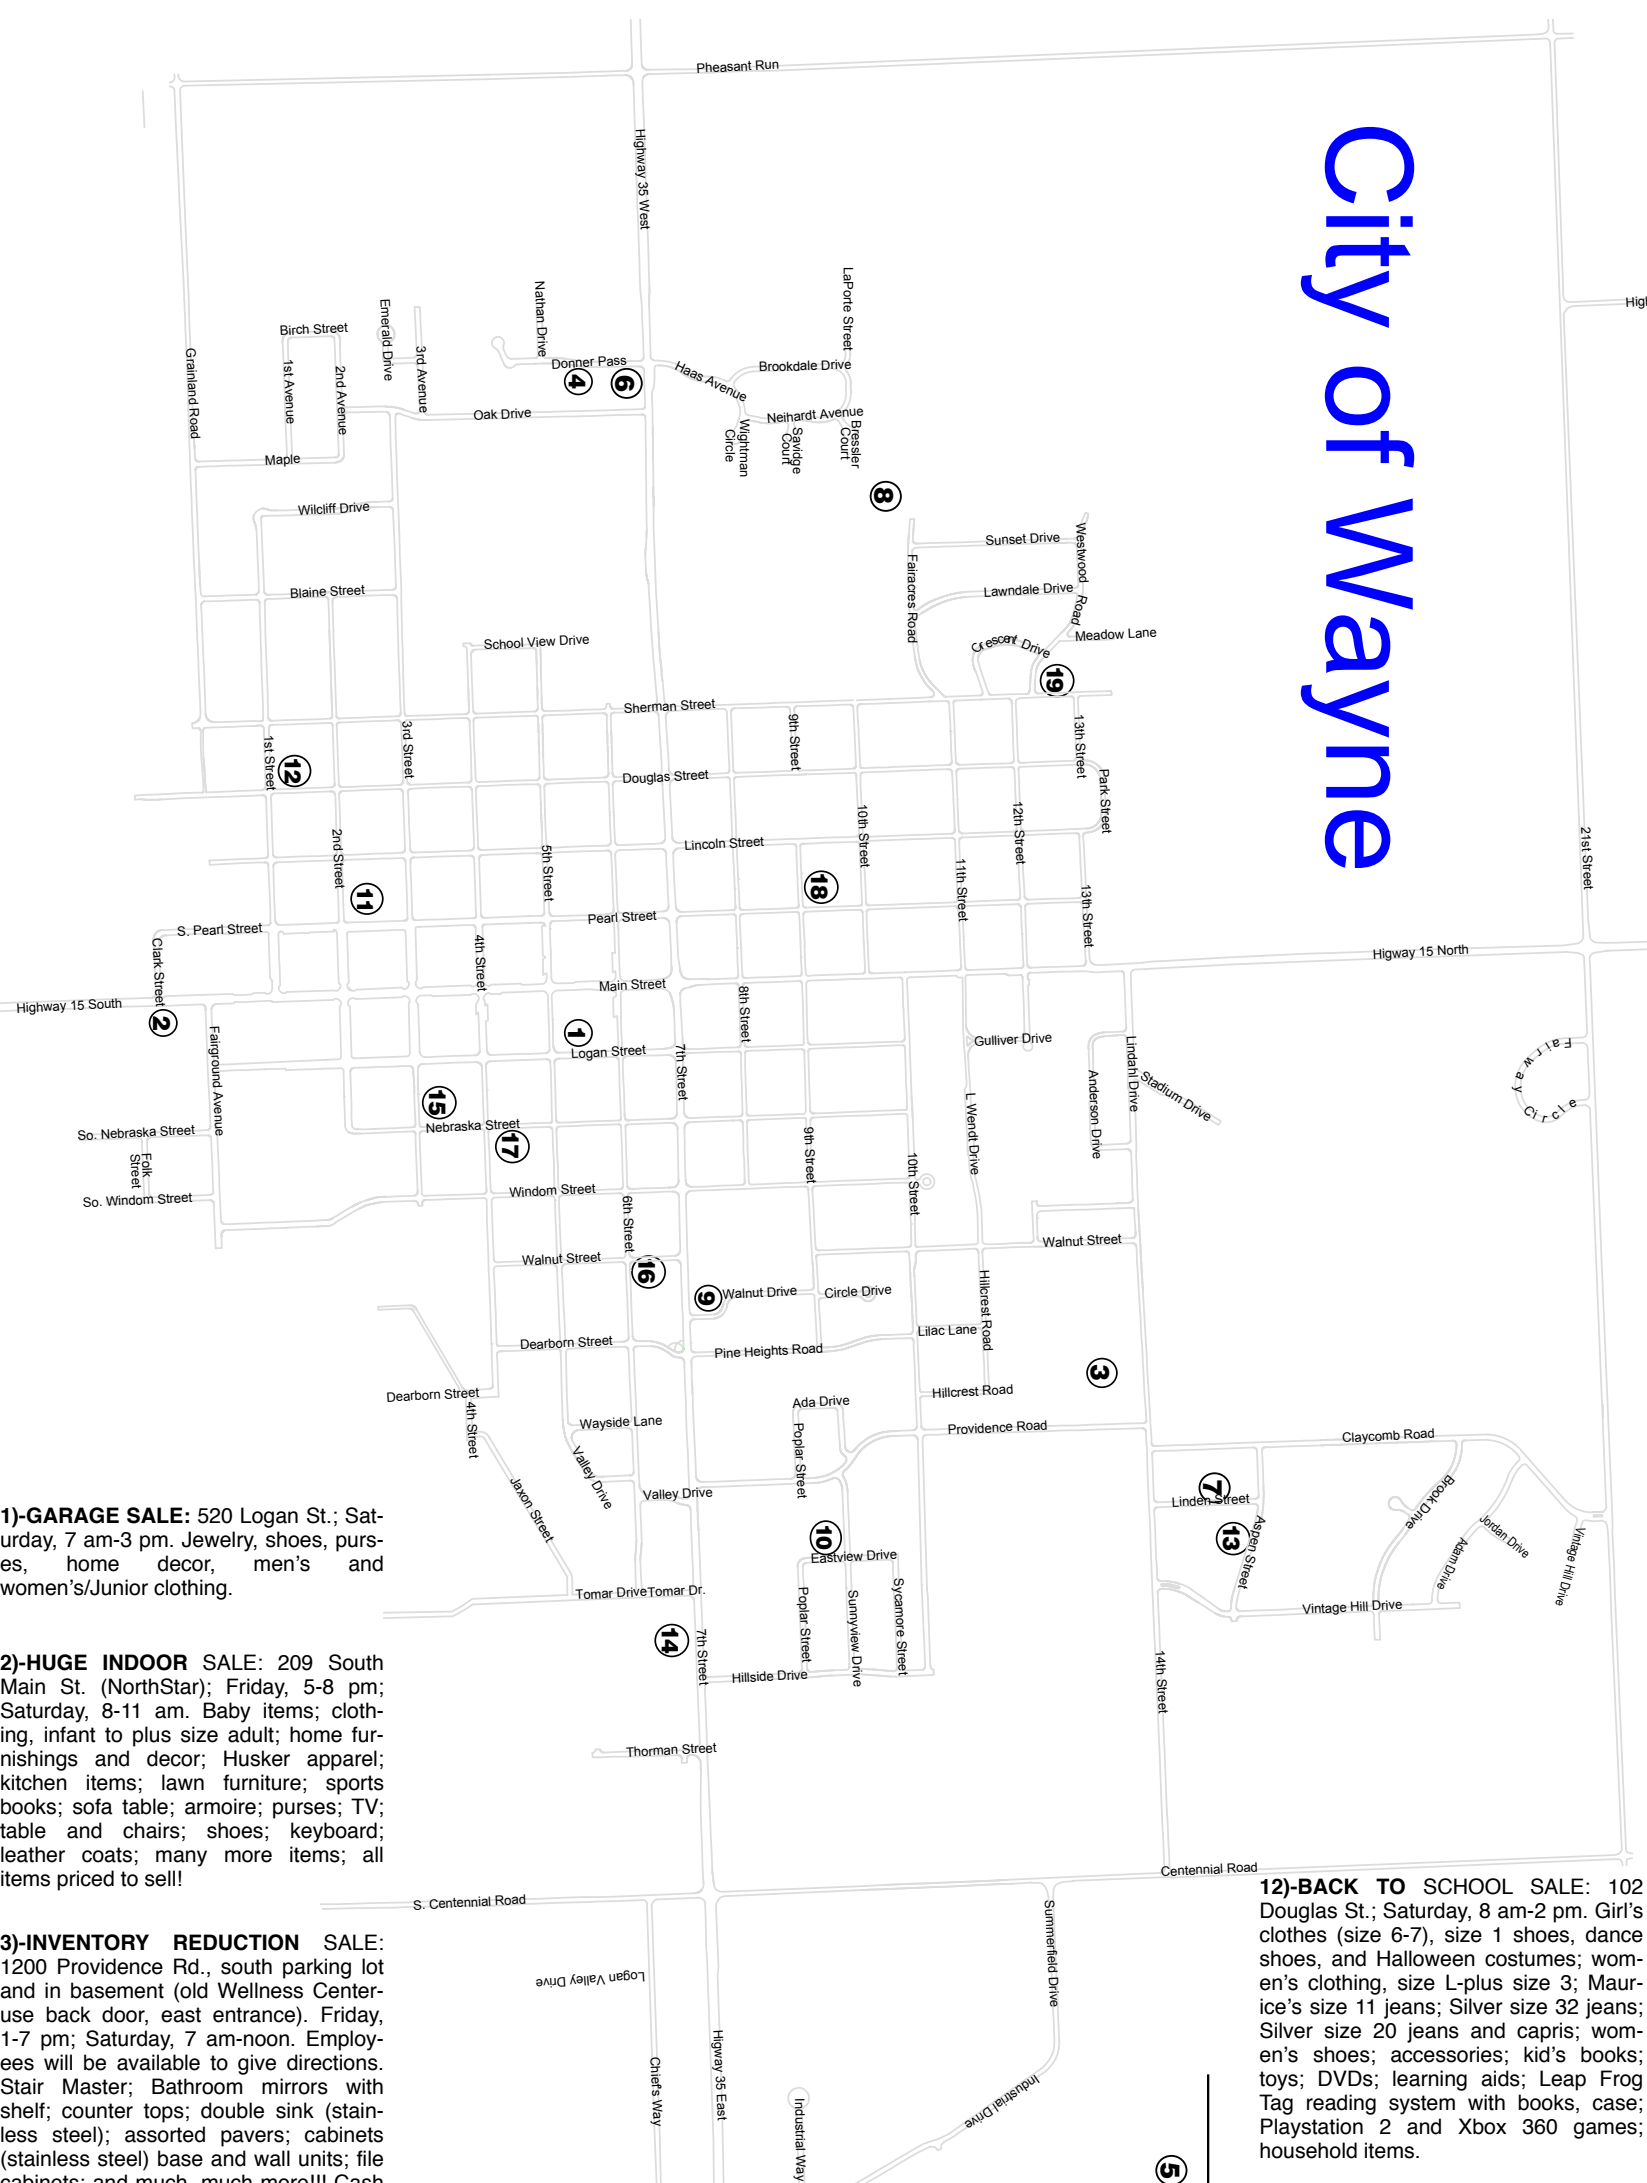

So great to hear from ALL of you! YOU MADE MY BIRTHDAY SO SPECIAL.

Thank You and God Bless You All!
