Tornado damage surpasses $50 million mark

Governor sends request for federal disaster declaration to President

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

While the final figures are still being counted, the cost of the Oct. 4 tornado that hit Wayne County and spread into Dixon County is proving to be a big num-

Friday afternoon, Gov. Dave Heinemann submitted a 16-page letter to President Barack Obama that detailed a series of weather-related disasters that hit Nebraska in early October, including the tornado that struck Wayne six weeks ago.

That number doesn't surprise Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain, who said that number is probably a lowend figure with more damage yet to be included in the number submitted by the governor.

"I haven't put my own eyes on the governor's letter yet, but I think that number is pretty low compared to what the actual damage is," he said. "That number is what's trackable right now, but we're months away Counting damage done to businesses and public from knowing things like crop damage losses and some

Chamberlain said that crop damage estimates will more than $50 million, according to data that was in- almost certainly drive that number higher, as a number of farmers in the storm's path have lost their crops or are having difficulty harvesting them due to debris left behind from the storm.

"A lot of farmers lost a lot of money out there, and that doesn't get talked about much," he said. "When the corn and beans lie flat on the ground, that's money they're out of. So when you talk about the governor's number, I wasn't shocked by the size of that number by any means."

Numerous farmsteads in the county were also damaged or destroyed by the tornado.

"The Wayne tornado (struck) the industrial park area of the city and damaged or destroyed in excess of 20 businesses," Heineman said in his letter. "At least one of the businesses is considering not rebuilding in the Wayne area. The economic impact of the community

50 YEARS LATER - REMEMBERING JFK ASSASSINATION

Local veteran recalls where he was Nov. 22, 1963

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

As the nation remembers an event that took place in Dallas, Texas 50 years ago this week, one Wayne resident, Dr. Jay O'Leary, recalls the event and his contribution to honoring a fallen president.

On Friday, Nov. 22, 1963, President John F. Kennedy was assassinated by Lee Harvey Oswald during a motorcade in Dallas.

Jay O'Leary was a relatively new member of the U.S. Army, serving as part of the Army's Field Band, stationed in Fort George Mead,

"I remember that afternoon walking toward the commissary. A sergeant came toward me with the most horrible look on his face. He looked at me and said, 'He's dead.' I had no idea what he was talking about," O'Leary said.

Once inside the store, he heard the loud speaker announce, "Ladies and gentlemen, the president is dead."

Shortly after that announcement, members of the band received a message that everyone was to report to a specific location on Saturday "in our dress blues and we would get more information at that time."

O'Leary, a native of Pueblo, Colo., had attended graduate school in Boston, Mass., and then auditioned for and was accepted into the Army Band in the spring of 1963.

"We attended boot camp like everyone else and were first and foremost, regular army. Our main function was to travel throughout the country, giving concerts.

O'Leary said that after President Kennedy's body arrived in Washington, D.C., it was taken to the White House and then the body was transported to the Capitol.

Owner of The Max proves that you can go home again

By KATIE KASL Of The Herald

For Ken Jorgensen, the adage "you can't go home again" just isn't true.

The business owner, who grew up in Wayne, returned home for the first time in 1977 after spending the previous four years 9,191r79ng for Delta Airlines in Chicago. 53% back, he bought The 4th Jug, a bar at the corner of First and Main streets. Business there was really good, and when the place opposite his came up for sale in 1992, he bought that one, too. A spacious building he'd been eyeing from across the street, Jorgensen purchased it from a family friend who was in ill health and whom he decided to name the new place after.

Thus, The Max was born.

Jorgensen continued to run The 4th Jug (he hired someone to do the same at The Max) until May 1994, when he sold it, and it's new owner turned it into The White Dog Pub. With one bar to focus on, Jorgensen decided it was time to bring in food for his nighttime patrons. Their selections were limited to the very basics - burgers and fries - at first, but the menu eventually grew and now includes chili soup and chicken wings.

"I put a small kitchen in, and we haven't looked back," Jorgensen said.

When two restaurants in town burned down in the mid-90s, reducing the number of lunchtime options, he opened up

Electric purchases on agenda

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Two presentations related to the Oct. 4 tornado took place to begin Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

The council presented a framed picture to members of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. The photo is of an unidentified member of the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department going through the rubble at Grossenburg Implement following the tornado.

A second presentation involved a photo taken by Jennifer Parker at the Wayne Fire Hall. It shows an American flag being held up by three cement dogs. It contains the caption, "Together we will carry the load."

Framed photos were presented to both the city of Wayne and the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department. The project was an effort of Parker, Natalie Endicott of Moments Portrait Boutique, Curt Jeffries of Copy Write and Carolyn Vakoc and the staff at The Final Touch.

In making the presentation, Duane Schroeder, spokesman for the group, said that the photo was also used to create Tshirts which were sold by Ameritas. Approximately $37,000 in tornado relief has been generated by the sale of these shirts.

Schroeder also commented on the fact that the tornado served as a lesson in civics for the community, noting that what has taken place in the community since Oct. 4 "shows what happens when civic-minded people come together, whether to help with clean up, provide cookies or organize work-

A considerable amount of time was spent during the meeting discussing the city's future purchases of electrical power.

Lindsay Barron, vice president of Big Rivers Energy Corporation in Kentucky, presented a proposal to the council for the purchase of electricity at 90 percent of the rate charged by Nebraska Public Power

Barron cited three advantages of making the switch, including the discounted purchase rate, a favorable contract term (10 years rather than the proposed 20 year contract being offered by NPPD) and optionality to make changes throughout the contract, including making use of renew-

NPPD has asked all of its 160 wholesale power customers to sign a new 20-year contact by Dec. 31, 2013, even though the city's current contract with NPPD runs through

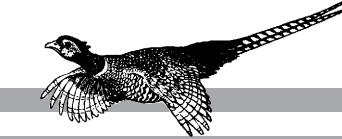

Todd Hegwer, a rate consultant hired by the city to determine options available for the purchase of electricity, told the council that the last six months have been spent going through the due diligence process. The goal was to determine what Wayne can do to achieve a saving in electric costs, while maintaining the use of the generators the city currently has.

Hegwer said the situation is somewhat complicated because language in the current contract is conflicting and NPPD has not been able to clarify their interpretation

No action was taken on accepting an offer to purchase power from sources other than NPPD, or giving notice to NPPD on an intent to reduce the amount of power being purchased. Additional discussion will take place during the Council's Dec. 3 meeting and if a consensus is reached, the city will submit a notice to NPPD by Dec. 31, 2013

"We sold homecoming T-shirts and decided that 25 percent of the profits should be donated to the Providence hospital," Peterson said. "In my position at the foundation I witness the heartwarming generosity of people on a regular basis," Bartling said. "I am especially touched when a student like Tyler comes to my door, introduces himself, and so thoughtfully hands me a check for the hospital. I am proud of the relationship that exists between our hospital and the people we serve, and I am especially proud of the relationship we enjoy with Wayne State College and its student body."

District 3 Legion family busy with variety of recent efforts of District 3 officers and members have been very busy with local Veterans Day programs, county conventions and celebrations at the Norfolk Veterans Home.

The District was host to the 2013 High School Scholarship Contest "Oratorical Speech" on Nov. 3 at the South Sioux City Post 307. Volunteer student judges from Wayne State College were ready and willing to assist with the program. The only downfall of the day was that there were no students from public, parochial and/or home schools in attendance to participate.

The scholarship funds available to students is quite impressive, but we need the students to get involved. The District will make every attempt to locate a liaison educator at our schools to work with in having this program made known to the students. There is no reason why District 3 cannot have student involvement. Fans gave Wayne High volleyball players a nice little sendoff at the site where coach Traci Krusemark and her family lived before the Oct. 4 tornado destroyed their home. County board making fast work of coming road projects By MICHAEL CARNES

Wayne County's road superintendent is excited about what he's seeing from the Wayne County Commissioners.

At Tuesday's meeting, Mark Mainelli discussed the county's oneand six-year road plans and bond projects for the 2014 construction season, and said he was happy to see the progress the county is showing in updating its road projects.

Mainelli said this was the first time since he began working with the county that road projects were identified so early. By doing this, ting the environmental permit processed.

The county board is requesting proposals for highway allocation bonds, rather than using a combination of allocation and rural road improvement. This will help the county attack the numerous projects on its list, which include nine bond projects to repair bridges in the county and 22 more in the oneand six-year road plans.

Veteran's Day: Freedom Remembered

By CARLY SCHWAGER Special to the Herald

On Nov. 11, Winside Public School held a Veteran's Day Program honoring people who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces. Starting at 8:30 a.m., the American Legion, Sons of the American Legion, and Boys and Girl Scouts presented the flags while the high school band performed the Star Spangled Banner directed by Kathy Hansen. Followed by this was the Pledge of Allegiance and a moment of silence honoring Veterans both past and present. After the silence, seniors; Selena Finn, David Greunke, and Garrett Watters presented a speech about their experience at Boys and Girls State. He was posthumously awarded the Bronze Star with Valor, the

The program was finished up by the high school choir, directed by LeNell Quinn, singing "I'll See You Again" by Carrie Underwood. With the help of the fifth, sixth, and junior high choirs, the groups sang "American Tears" by Teresa Jennings for their last song. Once again, attention from the audience was brought to the flags as they were carried out.

The tornado also caused significant damage to public power infrastructure in the area. The report did not include damage estimates to two county-owned buildings that were destroyed.

Jorgensen was driving a truck to Missouri one day when he asked himself, "When was the last time you were happy?" and found that the answer was an easy one: back when he owned The Max.

The stars kind of aligned for him after that. Jorgensen knew his successor was itching to get out of the bar, so he got a hold of him, thinking maybe there was a possibility he could get the place back.

"Do you want to go home as bad as I want to come home?" Jorgensen

Four weeks later, The Max was his, and that adage about not being able to go home again was moot.

"This is the last job I'll ever have," Jorgensen said.

Today, the bar tends to speak for itself, and its owner said he doesn't go out of his way to bring customers in because, if they're there once, they're often there again.

"You don't have to go hunting for business if you keep people coming in," Jorgensen said. "If you give them a good product at a good price, they'll find you."

The voices give kudos to WHS kids

I'm going to let you in on a little secret here.

You see, there are a number of voices inside my head that talk to me all the time. Sometimes, they say positive things. Occasionally, they say negative things. And every once in a while, they come up with some really funny stuff (at least, it's funny to me . . . I'm sure some of you think I have a really goofy sense of humor, and you're right).

Every year, around the end of October and the first part of February, the negative voice seems to be a little louder than usual. More often than not, that voice is complaining about the sports season that doesn't

During my time here, November has been rather quiet. A couple of football teams get a first-round playoff defeat, there is the occasional trip to state softball, but the voice usually stays active for a day or two and tries really hard to override the upbeat voice that likes to see seasons move (or, in the negative voice's view, drag) deep into the

During the past couple of weeks, the athletes at Wayne High School have really annoyed that negative

I mean . . . REALLY ticked it off. First, there was girls golf, who had the audacity to qualify for a state tournament that was played in weather more conducive to ice hockey than golf. The positive voice empathized with all the girls who braved horrible conditions to get a round in - the negative voice wondered why we couldn't have a chosen a less time-consuming job in the journalism field – like sales.

Then along came softball, a team that had to deal with their home field being ravaged by a tornado and turned around and played their way to a state title. After three extra-inning games and all the heartstopping comebacks, the negative voice was not at all happy, while the positive voice marveled at the way the team battled through adversity on their way to a runner-up finish.

Then it was cross country that rattled the ire of that negative voice. The girls took third, two runners placed in the top 10, and they watched Ben Hoskins, the lone boys runner, battle injury to finish the race. It was a nice effort and was a pleasure for the positive voice to experience – but the negative voice was really getting miffed at this

Then it was football, who traveled to the far corner of the state to put on a great show in a losing effort at Falls City. Now the negative voice was really cranked up – not only did we have to play on the road, but in a location that was closer to Kansas City than Wayne, America. A fun road trip for the positive voice – the negative voice, not so much.

And then it was volleyball, whose coach lost her home in the October tornado, that rose to the occasion and earned a trip to state. And now, the negative voice is LIVID that we have to make yet another long road trip – in a school bus (which the positive voice actually enjoyed, as it brought back old high school memories of long bus rides to playoff games) – to watch the state volleyball tournament.

Fortunately, for all of us, the negative voice in my head doesn't get to call the shots when it comes to covering the area sports scene. Watching young people work hard, battle adversity and give their best effort while representing their school and community has always been a positive experience for me.

The travel may be long, the hours away from home and family can be frustrating, and the time spent late at night at the office can be challenging, but it is all worth it, especially when you experience a fall like the one given to us by the Wayne High student-athletes this season.

So never mind the negative talk in my mind - the positive voice gives kudos to the Blue Devils on a fantastic fall sports season.

Wayne plays well, ends season 25-7

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

GRAND ISLAND - Wayne High volleyball coach Traci Krusemark and her team have been through quite a lot during their breakout season this fall.

From a season-ending injury to a key player to a tornado that blew away the head coach's home, the Blue Devils have experienced a lot, both on and off the court, during the 2013 season.

So when second-seeded Ogallala was able to erase a seven-point deficit and score the final eight points to finish off a 25-21, 25-22, 25-21 sweep of the Blue Devils in the first round of the Class C-1 State Volleyball Championships, there were some tears to shed by the players and the coach - but there was also a sense of comfort in knowing they accomplished a goal and gave a good showing in the team's first trip to state since 2003.

"We had a lot of adversity and they came through it all and made it to state," Krusemark said after the match at Grand Island Senior High. "The first couple of weeks after the tornado there were some distractions, but I was proud of the way they kept their focus. The girls stayed the course and won districts and got down to state, and they have nothing to be ashamed of."

Wayne High gave a more experienced and battle-tested Ogallala team fits in each of the three games, but couldn't quite get where they needed to be to close out a set as the 32-6 Indians swept the 25-7 Blue Devils to move on to the semifinals.

"We didn't play bad," Krusemark said of her team's effort. "We made a few too many errors at critical times, and Ogallala looked more like the veteran team, but I'm proud of these girls and the way they

The Blue Devils went back and forth with Ogallala in the early going, taking advantage of three Indian errors to take a 5-4 advantage, and got a great termination kill from Paige Wacker off an assist by Emma Evetovich to help Wayne forge a 10-10 tie.

Jaci Jenkins got a kill to tie the first set at 11-11, and Madison Frevert made one of her match-high seven blocks midway through the set to give Wayne its last tie of the set at 15-15.

"She got a lot of blocks for us and some crucial kills," Krusemark said of the junior middle hitter. "I wanted to get her the ball more, but our passing started to break down; and when that happens, the only option you have is to go outside."

Wayne made a final run late in the first set. Trailing 21-16, Wayne High ran off three straight points with a Frevert block and a kill by Alyssa Schmale before Ogallala righted the ship and closed out the opening set.

Ogallala got out to an early 7-4 lead in the third set, but Wayne began to seize the momentum. Seven Wayne State turnovers turned into 21 points as visiting University of Sioux Falls spoiled the season finale for the Wildcats in a 35-10 win in the 25th annual Egg Bowl Game Saturday at Cunningham Field in Wayne.

Watch out for squirrels in Iowa

Here are some turkeys who could use something more than stuffing more news items and other bits of head-scratching news from the "Bits

- If you happen to be riding your bike in Estherville, Iowa, you might want to keep a close watch on it if you make a stop in town.

Evidently, the squirrels in Estherville are none too happy with the twowheeled vehicles they're seeing in town. One critter in particular was caught vandalizing the bike of a math professor at Iowa Lakes Community College recently.

An instructor at the college caught the squirrel in the act and took a picture of the rodent chewing on the professor's tire. Damage had also been Life." done to the seat, a headlight and a tail light.

aging the roofing and wiring of peoples' homes. This sounds like a part of the state squirrel hunters don't want to go messing around in. - From the "Why does such nonsense continue to exist in this day and age?" department: A man in Mexico was arrested after it was discovered he had padlocked his girlfriend's pants, making it impossible for her to take them off.

The man reportedly was obsessed with his significant other to the point where he didn't want to be worried about the possibility she might be unfaithful to him. However, the padlocked pants put the woman in excruciating pain, making it impossible for her to go to the bathroom.

Amazingly (or maybe not, since it's Mexico), the man was not charged with anything more than a misdemeanor and signed a statement promising to never use a padlock against his girlfriend or abuse her in any other force isn't educated and innovative.

Sounds to me like somebody needs to gently tap this moron on the head with a cinder block dropped from a tall building.

- From the "No good fashion decisions are ever made after an all-night drinking binge" department: A Georgia couple was recently found in what could be called a romantic interlude in a parking lot at a Waffle House

That's not an unusual occurrence, you say? You may be correct – but what happened when the authorities caught up to the couple locked in a passionate embrace was rather odd.

The pair was cited for public drunkenness and loitering, and when authorities asked the couple to put their clothes back on, they claim the woman attempted to put a cheeseburger on her foot as if it were a sandal.

The woman had a blood-alcohol content of .216 at the time of the arrest. She and her beau both face a Jan. 16 court date – no word yet as to whether she'll go with the cheeseburger sandal or maybe a Whopper tennis shoe.

- From the "Guaranteed to make the honor roll, or your money back" department: A student at Lehigh University in Pennsylvania is suing the ing of why the best and the bright-college. But there are not enough ington and New Mexico that draw experience to know what is really school for the unthinkable crime of giving her a C-plus in a graduate-level

The student reportedly scored a zero in class participation, which knocked her grade down below the B level she needed to move on to the next academic level. She allegedly had outbursts in class and called a professor a derogatory name, which resulted in the grade she received.

Her father, a finance professor at the school, attempted to intervene on her behalf, but was not successful. An appeal to the school's internal grievance system also failed, so - naturally - she's taking the whole thing to court and suing the school for $1.3 million.

- Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain doesn't give us a lot of entertaining fodder to talk about here, and that's a good thing – because he could be going out of his way to top what the mayor of the Canadian city of Toronto is doing to represent his fine city.

You see, Toronto Mayor Rob Ford has a problem - he's addicted to crack cocaine and recently was found doing drugs while representing the city of 2.7 million people.

The mayor has also had problems with public intoxication and sexually harassing female staff members, and even uttered an obscenity on live television while denying that he pressured a female staff member into

Thankfully, our mayor doesn't go to these great lengths to call attention to his office . . . but would it kill him to maybe run around town in a Santa outfit, walk into every business downtown and say "Ho ho ho" to everybody

this holiday season? - Annnnnd finally, for those of you who think you've had the worst day ever: here's today's evidence that your day wasn't anywhere near as bad as it could have been. A chapter of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina went on a little recruiting trip recently and headed down to Florida to help out their racist, rednecked brethren down in that neck of the woods. They headed to the community of New Smyrna Beach and began spreading their leaflets of hatred around – only to find out that they had driven right into the heart of a predominantly black neighborhood.

In true, ignorant race-hating fashion, the leader of the North Carolina group said the community was chosen at random, and they had no idea who was living in the area. Giving them credit for the small amount of common sense they possess, the group did place leaflets in the community at night, eliminating the chance of receiving the unholy butt-kicking they obviously deserve.

Retention of state's best needed

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent Nebraska Press Association

A few weeks ago, I shared some ideas from the former director of one of the state's most philanthropic private foundations who urged Nebraska lawmakers to dip into the state's $679 million cash reserve fund to invest in community development to make the state even more attractive to outsiders.

Lyn Wallin Ziegenbein, longtime executive director of the Peter Kiewit Foundation, told members of the Legislature's long-range planning committee to use some of the money as a catalyst for communities to build libraries and parks. public art and plantings, health facilities, large recreation areas and supported law enforcement to bring them up to par as part of the "Good

"Putting lipstick on a pig," one person said. I spent enough time doing community development and historic preservation work in a previous life to know that physical improvements on a building mean nothing if the structure isn't sound and occupied with a viable business. Neither is the quality of life any better with nice infrastructure and available amenities if the work-

> It was suggested that the better way to attract those sought after "outside parties" to want to invest in and become a part of Nebraska is to focus on a better educated workforce in areas of technology, science and math along with a change in attitude toward strengthening what is already there. There needs to be creative thinking by better educated students and teachers to go along with the money infusion that was suggested to the legislative committee.

The "woe are we" mentality of small towns has to be broken. There needs to be an understand-

Big cities are full of people who once lived in smaller places and would love to return to a simpler lifestyle someday, but only if they could take their challenging careers and best and brightest colleagues with them. The number of people who can work remotely at these tech type jobs grows

So why can't they go back home? My previous life experience revealed several factors that need to be addressed. One is housing. I look at communities like Sidney or Chadron that have a lot going for them - Sidney with a worldwide headquarters for popular retailer Cabe-

I heard from a Cabela's employee in Lincoln who was offered a better job at the same company in Sidney but turned them down because there's no place to live.

We don't need more public art, but we need better-planned and implemented festival type activities (music, food, art) in smaller communities that attract the type of people that towns really need to be attracting. For the "best and brightest" that communities want to attract, such activity is as appealing paying attention as it looks at longan amenity as parks and libraries. The last thing we need are more parks. but we need to put money into taking care of the parks we have. Everyone wants shiny and new, but that's not going to fix the problem, and it will only create new problems. Preservation saves money and pays dividends.

Not much time lately for sitting around

First, let me apologize for the fact that I did not do an "update" last week. As I have said before, this will happen from time to time, not that there was nothing to write about; I just ran out of time. I am for this letter just going to list some of the things that have been going on since Nov. 1.

On Friday, Nov. 1, we had hearand Veterans Affairs committees on Sunday, Nov. 3 through Tuesday, Nov. 5, The Rural Futures Conference, sponsored by the University of Nebraska, was held. I attended but I don't like it when it does. It is only part of this conference but met briefly on Tuesday with Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack and Congressman Jeff Fortenberry. Both of these gentlemen are working on the long delayed "Farm Bill." They are working from different sides on maings in Lincoln of the Government ny issues but did seem to think that some sort of compromise bill would be agreed on. This, like most of the federal government, appears to be a mess. I wish them well, but I am not really optimistic that the best ideas will prevail.

Thursday, Nov. 7, in the morning, I attended a hearing in Norfolk. This is part of the water study being carried out by the Natural Resources Committee. Later Thursday, I met with the Nebraska Ethanol Producers in Lincoln.

Friday, Nov. 8, there were more hearings in Lincoln with the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee. We elected a new Vice Chairman of the committee to replace Sen. Scott Price, who resigned from the Legislature on Nov. Murante, will officially take over the position on Jan. 8, the first day of session in 2014. Senator Price and his family are moving to Alamilitary and a good conservative. Governor Heineman will appoint someone to take his place soon. Saturday, Nov. 9, I served as part of a Senatorial panel at O'Neill, sponsored by the Independent Cattlemen of Nebraska. There was a wide array of questions from prolivestock branding and even the ne.gov.

Keystone Pipeline, which is still being held up by President Obama.

Monday, Nov. 11, I was honored to speak at the Veterans Day program at Wayne Public Schools. At one point in my delivery, I asked that anyone with family ties to a veteran please stand. A full 90 percent of the crowd (mostly students) quietly and with dignity, rose to their feet. This shows that not only does northeast Nebraska understand the importance of service to our nation; we deliver on that understanding and fill that obligation. Thank you again, Nebraska!

Thursday, Nov. 14, we had a joint hearing in Lincoln with the Health and Human Services Committee and the State Tribal Relations Committee on which I serve. This was in part to discuss the unusually high number of Indian children that historically have been removed from their homes and placed in non-Indian homes. This has been an issue nationwide for many years. Saturday, Nov. 16, I started writing this update about 5:30 a.m. We have a political meeting in Wayne at 9 a.m. this morning. I hope to attend the American Legion event in Homer on Sunday, the 17th. I am scheduled to meet with the fourthgrade students in Winnebago on Monday at 9:00 a.m., followed by a meeting in Dakota City and a visit to South Sioux City.

I have put this out so you don't think that we spend all of our time just sitting around trying to think up stupid laws to pass. We have plenty of help with that. It is my in-1. The new Vice Chairman, John tention, before I leave office in three years, to have removed as many or more laws from the books than I will have added. The scholarships will be awarded to the grandparent and deposited into an account owned by the Nebraska Educational Savings Trust, held on behalf of a designated grandchild. A winner may split the scholarship among up to five grandchildren if desired.

A healthy mouth is essential for healthy living. The mouth is where digestion begins when chewing mixes food with saliva. A healthy mouth is also important for communication and social interaction. Overall personal appearance is dramatically affected by one's smile. Everyone needs to pay attention to oral health. A person is not truly healthy unless he also has oral health. This is particularly true for people living with diabetes.

A number of oral disorders is associated with diabetes. It is important for people with diabetes that their health care providers and any caregivers understand the importance of oral health and if problems occur, arrange for appropriate care. Especially important is preventative oral health care, which involves personal oral hygiene practices and regular visits to the dentist.

The Dec. 4 session of Control Diabetes for Life will help participants take a serious look at how to incorporate dental health into their diabetes self-management plans.

Deborah Willcox, R.D., L.M.N.T., will discuss the importance of oral dental care for those diagnosed with diabetes. Birthday

Harder to celebrate 95 years

Opal Harder of Wakefield, formerly of Wayne, will observe her 95th birthday on Monday, Dec. 2. Her family has requested a card shower in honor of this occasion.

She was born on Dec. 2, 1918 to Nelse and Elvina Granquist and raised southwest of Wayne. In September of 1941 she married Lavern Harden and they spent the next nearly 70 years north of Wayne on the farm. The couple were the parents of 5 children - Jeanne and Harley Daum, Russell and Rita (Rotherham) Harder, Virginia and Verdel Backstrom, Ronald and Marilyn (Sedivy) and Lorna and Stephen Brennan. There are 14 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren.

Cards may be sent to the honoree at Wakefield Care Center, 306 Ash Street, Room 304, Wakefield, Neb. 68784.

Acme Club recalls old phrases at Nov. 4 event

Nov. 4 at Tacos & More with seven Day and deliver them to the hospimembers present.

Verdelle Reeg was the hostess for the dessert and coffee meeting.

President Joann Temme called the meeting to order. Ruth Victor gave the Thought for the Day, "The Art of Living," written by Grace E. Easley.

"There's a special art to living And you need a frame of mind That can overlook the showers, Til the sun begins to shine

To develop to the fullest You have got to understand, That things don't always function In the way that they were planned

There's a special art to living, And the challenges must be met, But the longer that you try it,

Why the better you will get. Don't waste your time in waiting For the world to come to you, You have to climb the mountain,

To appreciate the view." For roll call members told of their Thanksgiving plans. The birthday song was sung for Bonnadell Koch. Joann Temme and Bonnadell Koch

Members of the Acme Club met will make the favors for Veterans

Verdelle Reeg had the entertainment. The title of the reading she gave was "A Lick and a Promise." It was just one of the many old phrases that our mothers, grandmothers and others used that were probably heard from generations before them. With the passing of time, many old phrases became obsolete or even disappeared

Some of the old memorable phrases were - A bone to pick (someone who wants to discuss a disagreement); one bad apple spoils the whole barrel (one corrupt person can cause all the others to go bad it you don't remove the bad one); bad egg (someone who was not a good person); been through the mill (had a rough time of it); hold your horses (be patient); kit and caboodle (the whole thing); madder than a wet hen (really angry); no spring chicken (not young anymore); scarce as hen's teeth(something difficult to obtain) Verdelle Reeg spoke of the Neth-North Sea Protection erlands

Because much of the Netherlands lies below sea level, Netherlands have been subject to much flooding over the centuries. Despite being a coastal nation, the Netherlands has created new land from the North Sea through the use of a vast and complex system of floodgates, storm surge barriers to the ocean.

Being the most complex and highly sophisticated civil engineering wonders of all times, together with the Delta Works, the American Society of Civil Engineers declared the works to be one of the Seven Wonders of the Modern World.

The next meeting of the Acme Club will be Nov. 18 with Bonnadell Koch as hostess.

Minerva Club meets at Senior Center

Club at noon at the Wayne Senior Center. Roll call was discussion whether or not the 20th Century began in 1900 or in 1901 as many had argued. Twelve members were present.

Historian Hollis Frese read excerpts from the Nov. 4 and Nov. 18, 1946 meetings. Program topics were History of Wayne State College and a review of the club constitution.

Final plans were made for the Monday, Dec. 9 dinner and meeting. A recipient of the holiday donation was chosen and President Webber will make the appropriate arrangements. The birthday song was sung for Mary Ann Denaeyer.

In 1884 Donna Hansen's grandfather Lage's family settled on a farm in Brenna Precinct. Her father was born there in 1897 and grew Donna Hansen hosted Minerva up there, as did Donna. She shared some family history and pictures. As part of land ownership, a six acre plot of native grass was left unbroken. Children loved to play hide and seek in the tall grass. In the decade beginning in 1910 many home improvements were made. In 1915 or 1916 a 40-foot screened in porch was added on to the house. The roof was also raised. The carpenter crew staved on site all week and were fed meals. The family butchered a hog every week. Beds were made in the hay mow for the crew. An orchard was established. She also mentioned the Hansen family lived in the area and the two families had a lot in common.

> Joyce Mitchell will host the next meeting on Monday, Nov. 25 at the Senior Center.

Bring in two cans of food and $10, and we'll give you a dozen roses.

Plus, $5 of each sale will be donated to the Tornado Relief Fund.

Each year in Assemblies of God that have sensed a call from God to serve in missionary endeavors locally or on foreign soil.

> The Rev. Brad Novosad, the Nebraska director of a campus ministry called "Chi Alpha," was the guest on Sunday morning, Nov. 17 at Praise Assembly of God Church in Wayne. He spoke in the 9:30 a.m. ■ Sunday School class where he fielded many questions about working with college students, about his own background, and about what he saw as key areas of needs for college-age young adults. In the morning service, his theme (from Romans 10) was "Missionary God".

From several portions of scripture, Rev. Novosad spoke of "Mandates" from the Lord. Here are a

- from Matthew 28:18-20: called the "Great Commission". Believers are called to make disciples "wherever you go" - to all nations, and here at "home". Since these were part of Jesus' final words on earth, they are important.

- To send people out -- 2 Corinthians 5:20 says that Christ is interceding through us; this means that the mandate of God includes sending people out - just like the church at Antioch did in Acts 13 when Paul and Barnabas were sent out with the message of the Gospel to the Gentiles. The "sending out" of the gospel message includes "prayerfully sending" as well as "financially sending."

The tool in Assembly of God Churches that is used in Missions giving is called the "Faith Promise." This is a financial gift that is given during the course of a year that is in addition to regular giving of "Tithes" and "offerings". The amount that people "pledge" is something that the Lord prompts in the minds and hearts of individuals. It is an exciting time to see God work His plan for evangelism in a local church.

Don't forget: Wednesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. is "Family Night" at the church with activities for children and an Adult Bible Study. Sundays include Sunday School classes at 9:30 a.m. for all ages and Morning Worship at 10:30 a.m.

Everyone in the community is invited to the Community Thanksgiving Service on Sunday evening, Nov. 24 at 5 p.m. at Calvary Bible Church in Wayne. A Soup and Pie meal follows the service.

Jeffrey R. Meyer, instructor of the sport management class at Wayne State College, and his 17-member S.P.O.R.T.S. No Shave November is an annual tradition in which men don't shave for the entire month of November, growing facial hair in the name of raising awareness of men's prostate health. The tradition of No Shave November is viewed by some as a response to wearing pink ribbons for breast cancer awareness during the month of October. "This donation from the S.P.O.R.T.S. Information shared on farm leasing with relatives, landlord/tenant meetings

With our Landowner/Tenant meetings coming up in Ponca and Laurel on Thursday, Dec. 5, here is another article courtesy of Al Vyhnalek, Extension Educator from Platte Co. and one of the presenters for our series of Landlord/Tenant meetings. It's about a tricky subject, dealing with Clearly dealing with relatives can be one of the hardest issues to address as it relates to farm leases. However, with good communications and a written lease agreement, you can set up relationships that are not hard on the family.

First, have all leases in writing. This cannot be stressed enough. There are situations where the handshake lease was made by grandparents and great uncles and aunts. When that generation passes on, no one knows exactly what the agreement was, and suspicion arises need-that the tenant is probably provid-

like: mowing road ditches, spraying discussion. What one family does will will help landlords and tenants put by the Nebraska Soybean Board and weeds, controlling volunteer trees, maintaining terraces, maintaining buildings, grading and rocking driveways, and keeping fences up are just a few of the landowner costs that in many cases are just taken care of by the tenant. In some cases landlords think that they don't receive enough cash rent from a relative. When we discuss the land ownership costs and how they are taken care of, the landlord quickly realizes that the tenant is providing the labor and cash investment in those items.

If the rent isn't the going "coffee shop" rate, the landowner is simply recognizing that the tenant is receiving a discounted rent as compensation for their efforts to keep the land and property in good order.

While the rent to a relative doesn't have to be at the "top" of the range, it are ownership costs for that land needs to be fair. We are not qualified Next, understand that there ing without compensation. Items know what "fair" is, that is a family (Cedar County) on Thursday, Dec. 5 family does. Tenants need to communicate clearly by sharing information about the farm. Information like actual yields and prices received will go a long way to building good trust for the family to continue the leasing arrangement for another generation.

But the most compelling reason to have a lower rent for relatives is that they are relatives. Especially if we have younger folks coming to replace our older generation, this provides an opportunity to help that generation establish themselves. Utilizing the land resource properly is a business, and the lease should be fair to both parties. With clear communication and having the lease in writing, most problems with lease terms can be minimized.

The session will begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. and end at about 4 p.m. at UNL's Agricultural Research and Development Center near Mead.

It will draw on the expertise of Rick Rasby, UNL Extension beef specialist; Richard Randle, UNL Extension beef veterinarian; Keith Glewen, UNL Extension crops educator; Humberto Blanco, UNL professor of agronomy and horticulture; and Jim MacDonald, UNL professor of ruminant nutrition.

The program is designed for producers, veterinarians, students or others involved in the beef industry. This special session will include cover crops and how they may fit into a beef grazing system, testing forag-

Mr. Lenihan stated there will be a presentation available for our staff at Wayne State College on Thursday, January 16, 2014. Manny Scott will be presenting. He is a motivational speaker. Mr. Lenihan believes this is an excellent opportunity for our staff to attend, although it presents some changes for our school calendar if we attend. Taking into consideration time off of school and keeping to a routine as much as possible, I propose the following adjustments:

1) Wednesday, January 15, 2014 will be a full day of school, originally scheduled a 10:00

2) Thursday, January 16, 2014 will be NO SCHOOL, with a full-day teacher in-service. The afternoon portion of the in-service will be at WSC for the presentation. 3) Friday, January 17, 2014 will be NO

SCHOOL for teacher in-service. This will replace the in-service day originally scheduled for Monday, January 20, 2014.

4) Monday, January 20, 2014, will be a full day of school.

We will make accommodations for students whose families made plans based on our previous calendar, however, we also feel this adjustment is being made well ahead of time for planning purposes
