Council dives into swimming pool proposals

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Two years of work, discussion and research have resulted in five proposals for the Wayne City Council to consider regarding a swimming pool in Wayne.

During Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council, Heather Claussen, head of the swimming pool committee, presented information to the council on the work that has taken place and the options the committee felt would best serve the needs of the community.

Claussen told the council that while the current swimming pool is in good shape, a number of improvements are needed, including ADA accessibility and a new bath house.

The committee, with assistance from Dave Henke, JEO Consulting Group, presented six options to the council for consideration.

They include renovating the current pool to include a zero depth access and constructing a new bath house; a new pool and bath house at the current location; a new indoor pool at the Community Activity Center and renovating the current outdoor pool; outdoor and indoor pools at the Community Activity Center; remodeling the bath house at the current pool location and adding splash pads instead of a baby pool, and constructing a new outdoor pool at the Community Activity Center.

Discussion centered on the costs of each of these options, funding for the project and costs to operate the pool in each of these options.

Claussen told the council "pools are expensive, and they don't make money. We have tried to look at options and determine what the community wants."

Considerable time was spent during Tuesday's meeting discussing the purchase of energy for the city of Wayne.

Todd Hegwer, an energy consultant, explained several options available to the city in regard to wind power. He told council members, "Now is the best time to buy wind," as costs to produce wind energy have dropped considerably as newer technology has made producing energy cheaper.

Hegwer also said that, should the city enter into a contract with Big River Energy Cooperative, the contract allows for the city to purchase up to 15 percent of its power as renewable energy.

Council took no action on accepting an offer to buy bulk power to be delivered from generating plants controlled by the Mid-Continent Independent System Operator (MISO). The item will again be discussed at the next council meeting.

Council members also voted to table an item which would allow the city to give notice to Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) on its intent to reduce contract power purchases. Additional information and clarification of NPPD's contract is being sought before a decision is reached.

Council members voted to make changes in a portion of the city's personnel manual regarding employees who are eligible for overtime and to allow for a portion of college tuition for those employees who are receiving job-related training.

Council members tabled action on changing the personnel manual in regard to spouses of city employees who are eligible to participate in group health insurance coverage where they are employed not being eligible to participate in the city of Wayne's group health insurance plan.

Considerable discussion on this item included the costs to the city to insure both its employees and their families and the rising costs of insurance.

"We need to try to find a way to be fiscally responsible and fair to our employees," Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain said. He said he felt this (not offering insurance to employee's spouses) "is coming and will be an industry standard."

Council member Matt Eischeid said, "We have great employees and need to offer them a reason to stay. We need to find some common ground, and this is not common ground."

Ordinance 2013-52 received approval and the three readings waived. The ordinance will allow a permitted use the building of unattached accessory buildings

No Shave November... Shave December?

The third grade students in Mrs. Joan Hansen's class took part in a No Shave November fundraiser with Wayne State instructor Jeff Meyer. The event is designed to raise awareness of men's prostate health and cancer. This week Brogan Foote (left) and Ashton Brandow, who is a cancer survivor, had their heads shaved and the opportunity to shave Meyer's head. With them is Sara Bailey of Bailey's Hair & Nails.

Less pain and a better life are the goals for Herman Chiropractic

By KATIE KASL
Of The Herald

In its briefest summarization, Herman Chiropractic came about as the result of a phone call.

It happened over a decade ago, while Joelle Herman and her husband were looking for a place to settle down. Both were raised in small communities – she in Kindred, N.D. and he in Clarks, Neb. – so their criteria were simple: someplace small and someplace where she could find work.

Ultimately, the Hermans' search led them to Wayne and an office in a home on East Seventh Street. Herman purchased the clinic there from its previous owner, a chiropractor who'd been in business for the past 40 years and was looking to retire; and when that space grew too small, she moved Herman Chiropractic to its current location along Providence Road.

Today, she's got a second set of hands to help her out – an addition she made a year ago when she hired Wayne State graduate Kiley Callaway – and a smiling, good-natured office staff to greet her in the mornings.

"They're usually really very positive," Herman said. "They work their tails off."

She added that her employees are very mindful of chiropractic care and will, occa-

County's elected officials receive pay raise for '15-'18

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Elected officials in Wayne County will get an annual pay raise of $1,500 per year for the next four calendar years after the Wayne County Commissioners approved a resolution at Tuesday's meeting.

The resolution bumps the annual salary for the Wayne County Assessor, Attorney, Clerk, Treasurer, Sheriff and Clerk of the District Court up to $53,000 for 2015, with annual increases of $1,500 per year through 2018. Each of those positions will also receive full family health insurance coverage at county expense, as long as those costs are feasible.

County Attorney Mike Pieper, who represented the county officials at Tuesday's meeting, said the salary increase falls in line with what other county officials are making in the area.

"We're not at the top when you look at surrounding counties, but we certainly believe . . . that we're catching up when it comes to elected officials' salaries," Pieper told the board.

County officials who were present at the meeting said they also appreciated the county picking up the health insurance.

"We have a lot of experienced employees working (in county offices), and we appreciate what the county does for us," Pieper said.

Board member Jim Rabe said the county used to base its salary increases on a percentage basis, which created a wider gap between the salaries county officials made versus what county employees were making.

"I think it's good the way this has been set up," he said. "It's worked well, and it doesn't let that gap get any further apart like the way it was when we had percentage

Dixon County wind farm on hold for now

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

A wind farm planned for construction in Dixon County is on hold for now, according to officials from a Kansas-based company that hopes to build the farm sometime in the near future.

TradeWind Energy Inc., of Lenexa, Kan., was set to begin construction of the Rattlesnake Creek Wind Project sometime this month, which would help the company qualify for federal tax benefits. That plan is on hold for now, as the company was not able to get a large power company to commit to the purchase of electricity that would be generated by the project.

TradeWind Energy would need to spend at least 5 percent of the project's projected $400 million cost by the end of this month, but company officials said they couldn't commit to that because they have not secured a commitment from a company to buy the electricity. Company officials said they would need to spend somewhere between $20 million and $25 million.

The 20,000-acre, 200-megawatt project is still planned to be built in an area of Dixon County between the towns of Allen, Emerson and Wakefield. Lease payments to local landowners of $10,000 to $15,000 per turbine are expected, and the wind farm would pay about $700,000 a year in local taxes. Construction of the project would create 200 new jobs, and somewhere around 15 permanent new jobs would come once the project is completed.

Company officials said they are cautiously optimistic that the federal tax credit deadline would be extended by Congress sometime next year and that construction could begin sometime in 2014.

Active pallbearers will be Scott Carhart, John Carhart, Jeff Grone, Kasey Otte, Chad Dorsey, Jared Koehler, Ty Grone, Bowdie Otte and Ryan Frehrichs.

Memorials may be directed to the family for a later designation.

Burial with military rites will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne. Hasemann Funeral Home of Wayne is in charge of arrangements.

Aletha Pflueger

Aletha Pflueger, 85, of Wayne, died Friday, Nov. 29, 2013 at Careage Campus of Care in Wayne.

Services were held Wednesday, Dec. 4 at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne. The Rev. Bob Oleson officiated.

Aletha Gloria Pflueger was born June 16, 1928, on a farm near Wayne to Frank and Louise (Biermann) Pflueger. She graduated from Wayne High School in 1946 and Midland Lutheran College in Fremont in 1950. She went on to earn her master's degree in education from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in 1955. Aletha was an elementary teacher with Lincoln Public Schools for over 40 years. She loved watching children progress and learn. After her retirement, she moved to Wayne. In 2002, she moved to Careage Campus of Care in Wayne. She enjoyed gardening and the outdoors. She was a member of Our Savior Lutheran Church and the Wayne Senior Center.

Survivors include two sisters, Leatrice Bennett of Wayne and Loueva Pflueger of Hamden, Conn.; and several cousins.

She was preceded in death by her parents; an infant sister; and a brother-in-law, Harry Bennett.

Pallbearers were Brad Pflueger, Ray Schutte, Paul Schutte, Brian Biermann, Aaron Biermann and Steven Biermann.

Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne.

Memorials may be directed to Mercy Meals with Orphan Grain Train of Norfolk.

Hasemann Funeral Home of Wayne was in charge of arrangements.

Locks of Love

For the fourth time, 15-year old Danica Schaefer of Wayne has had her hair cut and donated to Locks of Love. She recently had 13 inches of hair cut to donate and has enough hair left to pull her hair into a ponytail.

Special visitor

During the monthly assemblies at Wayne Elementary School those students who have received Bucket Fillers are recognized. This month Runza came to the assembly with Runza Rex and gave each Bucket Filler student a small toy or pencil. Runza Rex drew one name out to receive a t-shirt and kid's meal ticket. Cole Hobza was the winner and he is pictured with Rex. On Tuesday, Dec. 10 from 5 to 8 p.m. Runza will donate a percentage of their profits to the Wayne Education Boosters.

City Council Meetings
Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Rebuilding the Wayne Summer Sports Complex

Lots of commercial building is happening in the tornado zone on the east side of town. Owners there are working 14 hour days to get back into a building while still running their business.

Alex Koch and our city Recreation and Leisure Commission are working with the baseball and softball associations to get enough of the summer sports complex rebuilt by spring to be able to have games here next season.

The Commission is preparing a short term plan to be ready for spring play and a long term plan for replacing all the trees, better storage, safer play by spreading the fields a little farther apart better parking, and better use of the ground.

The proposal will get brought to the mayor and council for their review and approval. Most of the work there is volunteer but the council has to approve the plans and funding.

In four years we plan to have the lagoon, which is located next to this sports complex, decommissioned and ready to develop for parking, camping etc.

A lot of kids use this area and parents may have some thoughts about how to improve as we plan. Let Alex or the Commission members know what your thoughts are.

Edward Jones ranks No. 1 in National Survey of Financial Advisors for 19th time

For the 19th time, the financial services firm Edward Jones ranked No. 1 in WealthManagement.com/REP. magazine's annual survey of the nation's six largest financial services firms, according to Ken Marra & Ted Perry The magazine randomly selects financial advisors nationwide and asks them to rank their firms in various categories.

Edward Jones' overall score was 9.5 out of 10 possible points. The firm scored top marks across the board, earning near perfect scores in overall ethic (9.8) and public image (9.7), according to WealthManagement.com.

"This honor is a testament to the enduring strength of our firm values, our trade offs and our partnership," said Managing Partner Jim Weddle. "We are guided by a clear mission to serve the serious, long-term individual investor and to provide the best career-long opportunity for financial advisors who take pride in their work and appreciate the importance of the work we do."

Edward Jones financial advisors gave the firm some of the highest scores in the technology and training category, scoring high above the other five firms in every sub-category which includes the quality of technology, clarity and online access of client account statements and ongoing training.

According to WealthManagement.com, between Oct. 7 and Nov. 7, 2013, invitations were emailed to print subscribers and advisors from various firms in the Meridian-AIQ database requesting participation in an online survey. By Nov. 7, 2,333 completed responses were received. Financial Advisors rated their current employers on 33 items related to their satisfaction. Ratings are based on a 1-to-10 scale, with 10 representing the highest satisfaction level.

Edward Jones provides financial services for individual investors in the United States and, through its affiliate, in Canada. Every aspect of the firm's business, from the types of investment options offered to the location of branch offices, is designed to cater to individual investors in the communities in which they live and work. The firm's 12,000-plus financial advisors work directly with nearly 7 million clients to understand their personal goals — from college savings to retirement — and create long-term investment solutions that emphasize a well-balanced portfolio and a buy-and-hold strategy. Edward Jones embraces the importance of building long-term, face-to-face relationships with clients, helping them to understand and make sense of the investment options available today.

Wayne High marketing class to open annual Holiday Store

Need a gift for that Wayne High School Blue Devil fan in your life? The Introduction to Marketing class will be sponsoring "The Holiday School Store."

The store will be located at the Second and Main streets location, next to Jacob's Room. This is a new location for the store.

"Thanks to Amy Woerdemann, owner of Jacob's Room, for sharing her space with us," Annette Rasmussen, marketing class instructor, said.

Hours of operation will be Tuesday evenings (Dec. 10 and 17) and Thursday evenings (Dec. 5 and 12) from 5-8 p.m. and Saturday morning, Dec. 7 from 9-11:30 a.m.

The school store has apparel, mugs, hats, stadium seats, lan-yards, rubber bracelets, jewelry, scarves, gloves, book bags, etc. All apparel items will be at the downtown location until Dec. 19.

Students will gain real-life experience through their work on this project.

Students in the class include Jackson Belt, Merari Castaneda, Kaje Maly, Curtis Moeller, Alexis Owens, Aspen Pflanz, Varya Roberts and Tyler Wurdeman.

These students also open the school store at Wayne High School for a short time during study halls to sell snacks, drinks, school supplies and apparel.

The new school location of the store is in the former serving kitchen on the lower level of the high school.

The class plans to open the apparel portion of this store before indoor sporting events begin.

The students have ordered, tagged and displayed inventory in the Main Street location, as well as worked on a business and marketing plan for the holiday business. All students in the class will have the opportunity to work in the store, as well. This project is made possible through the assistance of Nana Peterson.

Please call the school at (402) 375-3150 and ask for Rocky Ruhl or Annette Rasmussen or leave a message if you are interested in items or have questions concerning the school store.

Santa and his elves using more energy during the holiday season

Reliable sources have just confirmed that this year, Santa Claus will be limiting his visits to children who are deemed "Extremely Nice" due to colossal energy costs incurred with transportation, production and employee accommodations.

According to Santa's accountant, Miss L. Toe, CPA, most of the Kringle Holdings, LLC assets have been frozen until Santa makes restitution of his outstanding energy bills.

In the last couple days, energy auditors from North Pole Public Power District (NP3D) released findings from a recent energy assessment of Claus' compound. The written report identified the following items and issues as primary contributors to the excessive energy use:

Traditional incandescent Christmas lights were strung and illuminated 24 hours-a-day for the entire past year costing Kringle more than $200 per string. New energy efficient LED lights would have cost less than $1 per string if St. Nick would have operated them for only 18 hours per day between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

Thermostats in the elves' dormitories were left set at 80 degrees Fahrenheit all winter, instead of the recommended 68 degrees when occupied and 60 degrees during unoccupied and nighttime periods. Such thermostat setbacks could have saved up to 20 percent in heating costs.

Mrs. Claus ran an old, energy-guzzling plasma TV for 16 hours each day while baking cookies. New LED-LCD televisions of comparable size only use about 20 percent of the electricity consumed by old plasma sets.

Jack Frost kept his Christmas spirits chilled in a 1940s refrigerator with dirty coils. That antique ice box sat next to the reindeer barn's furnace room. A new Energy Star refrigerator with clean coils would have used less than one third the energy. To make matters worse, the old fridge had cracked seals that allowed cold air to leak out, and against his parents' heartfelt pleas, Mr. Frost seldom closed the refrigerator door all the way due to his chronic irresponsibility.

Because of poor maintenance, fuel efficiency for the Big Red Man's sled has taken a huge nosedive. Compounding the problem, due to lack of exercise and over-indulgence, the nine reindeer that pull the sleigh have become fat on premium alfalfa. Those factors, combined with last year's rise in alfalfa costs, tripled Santa's feed bill. Had Santa considered a Plug-in Hybrid Electric Sled (PHES), he could have cut his transportation costs tenfold.

On his vacation to Jamaica during the entire month of August, Frosty the Snowman charged the utilities at his beachfront bungalow to Kringle Holdings. Unfortunately, the bungalow was not equipped with an Energy Star window air conditioner. Non-Energy Star air conditioners can use up to double the amount of energy to provide the same amount of cooling.

Water heaters at Claus' compound ran nearly continuously due to uninsulated hot water pipes, leaky faucets, nonuse of low flow shower heads and aerators and sugar plum fairies taking hour-long showers twice a day.

When asked to comment on his mismanagement of energy at the North Pole and by his often naughty subordinates, Santa told reporters, "I promise to do better with energy efficiency next year, and perhaps, I can expand deliveries again. But in the meantime, you better be good, for goodness sake!"

Your local utility and Nebraska Public Power District wish you and yours the very best during the holidays this year. Part of our commitment to providing you outstanding customer service includes helping you make the most of the energy you use throughout the year. For more ideas on how you can make your home or business EnergyWise, contact your local utility or visit www.nppd.com.

A 1988 Wayne State graduate will be the guest speaker during Wayne State College's commencement ceremonies next Friday, Dec. 13, at 1:30 p.m. in Rice Auditorium.

Dr. Steven Ramold, a 1988 graduate of Wayne State, will deliver the guest address to the graduating class during the college's commencement ceremony.

Ramold is an associate professor at Eastern Michigan University, teaching in the Department of History and Philosophy since 2005. He earned his master's degree from the University of Nebraska-Omaha in 1991 and his Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1999.

Ramold specializes in nineteenth century U.S. History, Military History and Cultural History. He teaches a range of courses including U.S. Military History, History of World War II, History of American Sports and the Civil War and Reconstruction. He also leads a Civil War Tour course that visits a number of Civil War battlefields and historical sites every summer.

Ramold's primary research area is the Civil War, on which he has written a number of articles, encyclopedia entries and book reviews. His first book, "Slaves, Sailors, Citizens: African Americans in the Union Navy," appeared in 2002. He has since written "Baring the Iron Hand: Discipline in the Union Army" and "Across the Divide: Union Soldiers View the Northern Home Front."

Ramold and his wife, Paula, live in Ypsilanti, Mich.

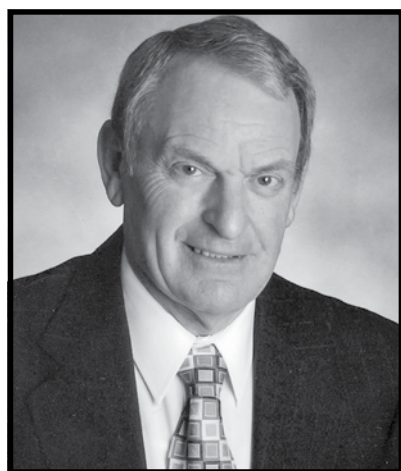

Osmond native Dr. David F. Johnson, Jr., will receive the Alumni Achievement Award during the commencement ceremony.

Dr. Johnson graduated from Wayne State in 1960 with a bachelor of arts degree and married Lelia Leggat the same year.

Johnson graduated from University of Nebraska Medical Center with a medical degree in family practice in 1965 and interned at Nebraska Methodist Hospital in Omaha in 1966. He served with the U.S. Army as commanding medical officer at the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Station in Minneapolis. He received the Army Commendation Medal for Meritorious Service at the end of his tour.

Wayne Elementary school students enjoy art program

"Line," "shape" and "form" are among the words being added to the vocabulary of Wayne Elementary School students through the newly implemented art program at the school.

Several parents, teachers and other interested persons worked together to find a way to offer art classes to all the students on a regular basis.

An art advisory board was put together by the Wayne Education Boosters (WEB) last spring to develop an art curriculum for Wayne Elementary School.

"We got this idea from another PTA that provides an art program in their school," Sonya Tompkins, who has been instrumental in the project, said.

The art advisory board members include: Amy Jackson, Judy Moeller, Mashayla Ruzicka, Teri Koenig, Liesel Powicki and Tompkins.

"We decided as a team that we wanted the art curriculum to cover seven key art elements: color, line, shape, space, texture, value and form. Lesson plans were formed around those key elements. The art curriculum also includes some art history," Tompkins said.

Each grade level receives art instruction every two weeks for 30 minutes. WEB has volunteer art teachers who teach the classes and parent volunteers help with the classes.

The art materials are being paid for by WEB and the school.

"In May, there will be an end of the year 'Family Art Night' that will showcase the students' works. It will also be an evening of fun art activities for the students and their parents," Tompkins added.

WEB and the art advisory board have extended a thank you to Wayne Elementary principal Jill Pickinpaugh for allowing them to bring this art curriculum to the elementary children.

increases. It should be a specific dollar amount so that gap doesn't get wider."

County Clerk Deb Finn pointed out that the county's $1,500 increase includes cost of living increases, which is different from what other counties do. She said other counties include a separate cost of living increase along with their annual increases for county officials.

Also included in the resolution were salaries for county commissioners in the amount of $41,000 for calendar year 2015 and $42,500 for calendar year 2016. The County Surveyor position's annual salary was set at $2,400 for calendar years 2015 through 2018.

The county also approved its one- and six-year road project list for 2014, and it will be a busy one for area contractors in Wayne County.

Finn said that the county board approved a list of 28 projects on the one-year road plan, not including nine bond-based projects that the county will undertake. An additional 32 projects were placed on the six-year road plan.

A public hearing on the one- and six-year road plans will be held Tuesday, Jan. 7, 2014, at 10:30 a.m. during the county board's first meeting of the new year.

The county board took no action on an offer from the City of Wayne to purchase a 1.51-acre tract of land adjacent to the county's yard on the south edge of town.

Finn said that the county's needs have changed since the Oct. 4 tornado destroyed the county's noxious weed building. Originally, there was talk of working with the city and continuing to allow the city to use part of that land for its impound yard. However, with the county wanting to store its noxious weed chemicals at that location, concerns were raised about having the vehicle impound lot in that same location. Board member Randy Larson was scheduled to talk with the Wayne City Council about the situation later that evening.

In other action, the board:

- heard a report from Melissa Rabbass on the county's Americans With Disabilities Act project update. Currently, seven of the 44 items on the county's first priority list have been completed.
- discussed a variety of issues relating to the Oct. 4 tornado with county emergency manager Nick Kemnitz, who talked about the after-action meeting that board members were going to attend later in the week.

– approved the signing of a contract with Tom Hansen to handle the county's tornado cost accounting paperwork that will need to be submitted to the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

– approved an audit agreement with Michael J. Pommer of Wakefield to audit the county's financial statements through 2016.

The county board's next meeting is Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

"The community has been very supportive," Herman said of her time in town. "We've been very blessed."

The chiropractor admitted she's always loved science but has never shared the same feelings for medicine. That, coupled with the realization she wanted a family but not a job where she was on-call evenings and weekends, helped narrow down her career options.

So, chiropractic care it was. The profession, she said, works well with her own personal beliefs; and in the 11 years she's been in practice, she's only been to the doctor once.

"As long as you have a spine," she said. "My youngest patient is a day old, and my oldest is 103."

She's helped fussy infants. She's worked with first-time grandparents until they're flexible enough to get on the floor and play with their grandchildren. And now that the year is progressing into winter,

The first of these is for the Giese Addition in the southeast portion of Wayne and the second is for the South Side Addition in the southwest portion of Wayne Council approval was also given for $193,000 in LB840 funds to be used by Sand Creek Post & Beam to be used as an emergency business loan to aid in tornado disaster recovery. The money is from the $500,000 allocated by the city for this purpose.

The council will hold its last meeting of 2013 on Tuesday, Dec. 17 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

From The Bleachers

Michael Carnes

When is it a rivalry?

There are certain words that get abused in the sports world, and no word seems to suffer more than the word "rivalry."

I must admit, I've caught myself using the word in stories where it was clear (at least, to me and others well versed in creative use of the English language) that I was padding a story in order to make it fit within the context of the space made available for the story.

Lately, though, it seems as if the word gets treated like a live chicken at an Alice Cooper concert - it gets thrown around, ripped to shreds and its carcass is left to rot in the footsteps of those who trampled on its once-innocent life.

Nebraska football, for example, has longed for a rival. For as long as we can remember, it has always been Oklahoma, the annual match-up being the supreme definition of what makes up a "rivalry" game.

For years in the old Big Eight Conference, Nebraska vs. Oklahoma meant so much. Most often, it decided the conference champion. It also gave the winner a shot at the mythical national championship. The game was always on TV as the national game of the day, and it was always tremendous theater, from the juke-and-jive punt return of Johnny Rodgers in the classic 1971 "Game of the Century" to the many times Oklahoma pulled victory from the jaws of defeat, denying then-coach Tom Osborne of that elusive win over their conference rivals.

Closer to home, Wayne State and Kearney State (now Nebraska-Kearney) helped determine state college bragging rights, no matter what sport you were talking about. The football matchup drew huge crowds to both teams' stadiums, and other sports generally saw some of their biggest attendance numbers pop up when the other team was in town.

These days, though, it seems more difficult to pinpoint a rival, and a lot of the "rivalry" games that are propped up in the mainstream media seem forced, like you're being left with no choice but to dance with the ugliest girl in school at homecoming.

Wayne State has found a rival since its move to the Northern Sun Conference. Although the snooty folk in Sioux Falls may think otherwise, Augustana has become the must-win game on Wayne State's schedule every year. You can't get a Wildcat fan to say the name without them turning up their nose as if somebody waved a dead fish in their face. It doesn't matter what sport we're talking about - even if it was tiddly winks or Texas Hold 'Em, coaches at Wayne State know that you can lose the rest of them if you have to - but you'd better beat Augustana.

Husker fans, however, are having a hard time identifying a true rival. The natural choice, since its move to the Big Ten, is Iowa. They're our eastern neighbors, share in a lot of the same things that make both states great, and they are competitive in a lot of the same sports Nebraska is.

Nebraska fans have a hard time grasping the idea of Iowa as a rival, much like when Colorado tried to force a rivalry. After all, Iowa has never won an AP or coaches national title (they won a football writers' title in 1958, which is like comparing a Scripps Howard Spelling Bee title with winning the Podunk County Spelling Bee). They don't have a history of consistent success, especially against Nebraska (where the Huskers own a 2-to-1 edge in head-to-head wins).

Of course, with Nebraska's decade-long fall from grace among the nation's best (capped by last week's 38-17 Iowa win in Lincoln), maybe it's time for Husker fans to embrace Iowa and look upon our feathered brethren to the east as its new - dare I say it - rival.

Iowa will never win five national titles and match Nebraska's history of success, but the border war between the two states could prove to give a new definition to the word "rivalry."

Wildcats take tourney title in Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska - Wayne State's trip to Alaska proved to be a good one, as the Wildcat women's basketball team ran the table and brought home the championship trophy from the North Star Invitational.

The Wildcats capped the three-game run to the title with a solid effort over the host Alaska squad, defeating the Nanooks 82-64 Saturday night to improve to 8-0 on the season.

Junior forward Jordan Spencer scored a game-high 26 points with sophomore guard Addy Roller adding a season-high 19 as the Wildcats pulled away in the second half for the win. Spencer was named the tournament MVP and was joined on the all-tournament team with teammates Ellen Hansen and Ashton Yossi.

The first half went back and forth between the two teams. Wayne State led 10-4 early, but the Nanooks went on an 11-2 run to take a 15-12 lead about eight minutes into the game.

Wayne State trailed 23-19 before going on a nine-point run. Alaska tied the game at 28-28, but Wayne State closed the first half by taking control and taking a 39-34 lead into the locker room.

Alaska got the opening basket of the second half, but Wayne State went on a 22-5 run to take control of the game with a 54-41 advantage. Another 15-0 run, which saw Alaska go more than six minutes without a point, gave Wayne State a 26-point lead, and the Wildcats cruised to the tournament championship.

Jordan Spencer had a game-high 26 points, going 9-of-11 from the floor. Addy Roller added a season-high 19 points, while Ellen Hansen and Millie Niggeling were both in double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

As a team, Wayne State shot 49 percent (25-of-51) from the floor and out-rebounded the Nanooks 43-33, led by Hansen's 12 boards and Niggeling's eight. Roller had five assists to lead the offense.

Wayne State opened the tournament with a dominating effort against Lees-McRate College North Carolina, blowing out their opponents with a 98-67 triumph.

Bauschek's hot hand leads WSC

Ty Bauschek had the hot hand for Wayne State on Saturday night, scoring a career-high 28 points to lead the Wildcats to an 86-68 victory over Peru State in non-conference action at Rice Auditorium in Wayne.

Bauschek had a big night from the field, going 9-for-13 overall and hitting five 3-pointers to lead the Wildcats to the win over their in-state foes.

The game was close early with two ties and seven lead changes. Peru State led 12-11 midway through the first half before Ben Galemme hit a trey, and Jamie Pearson tipped home a miss to put the Wildcats in front, 16-14.

Peru State tied the game at 16-16 with 7:53 to go, but the Wildcats outscored the Bobcats 22-13 to close the first half, using a pair of Bauschek 3-pointers and a Jared Bartling layup to take a 38-29 lead at intermission.

Peru State got as close as eight at 51-43 with 13:06 remaining, but Wayne State went on a 7-1 run to take a 14-point lead midway through the second half, and the Bobcats never got closer than nine points after that.

Senior guard Adol Aluong added 14 points, while Bartling and Pearson each scored 10 as four Wildcats finished in double figures.

As a team, Wayne State made 31 of 62 shots from the field for 50 percent, going 7-of-24 from the 3-point line and 17-of-20 at the charity stripe.

Bauschek grabbed six rebounds to lead Wayne State and shared assist honors with Galemme, each recording three. Wayne State had just six turnovers in the game.

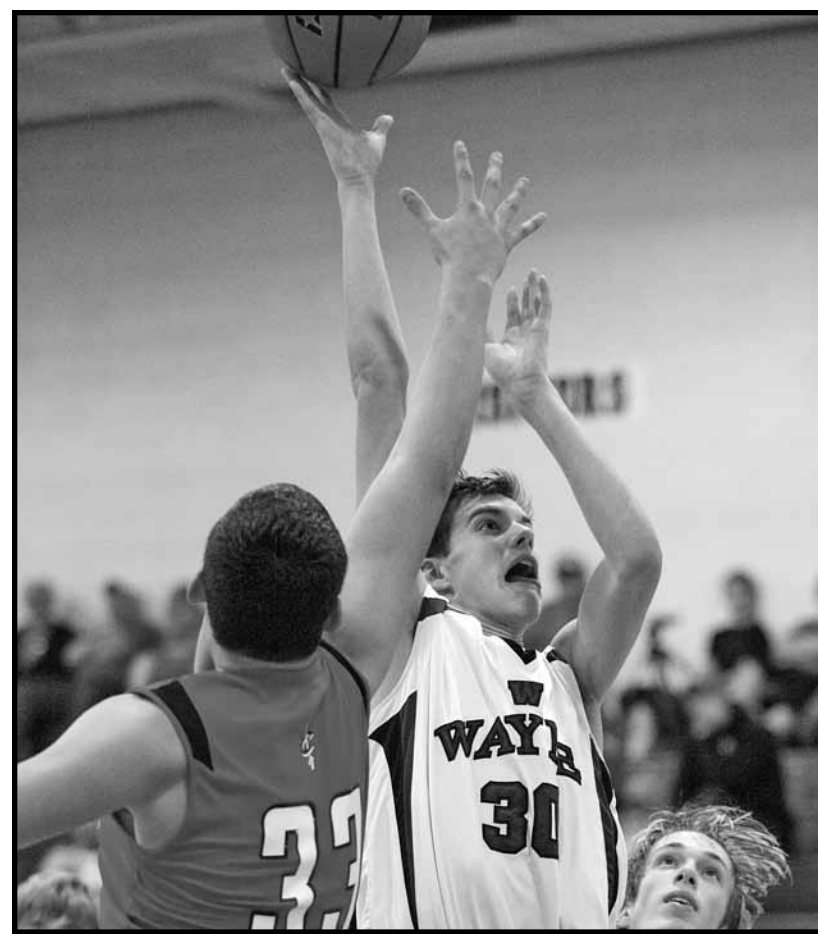

Wayne State, 3-2, travels to Sioux Falls Friday night at 8 p.m., followed by a 7 p.m. Saturday night tilt at Southwest Minnesota State.

New WHS coach has solid group returning

After 14 years as an assistant boys basketball coach, Rob Sweetland makes the move into the Wayne High head coach's chair this year with a solid nucleus back from a team that finished third in the state last year. Three starters and eight letter-winners are back from last year's 24-6 Class C-1 bronze medalists, and Sweetland is optimistic about what lies ahead for his first Blue Devils boys basketball team.

Area girls earn postseason honors

Two members of the Northeast Community College volleyball team have earned postseason honors.

Nazya Thies of Winside was named to the Iowa Community College Athletic Conference first team, ICCAA All-Region second team and Region XI All-Tournament 11B team.

Thies played 119 sets for the Hawks this season and recorded 525 kills, ranking her second in the conference in total kills and kills per set. She also recorded 30 ace serves, 457 digs and 15 solo blocks.

Brittany Sullivan of Allen was named to the ICCAC second team All-Region and ICCAC All-Conference honorable mention.

Sullivan also played 119 sets for Northeast this season. She recorded 266 kills, 60 ace serves and 496 digs, which puts her at 4.17 digs per set. That ranks her eighth in the conference.

Four seniors lead Blue Devil girls hoops

Like their male counterparts, the Wayne High girls basketball team has a good mix of returning talent and a new coach to lead them into the 2013-14 campaign.

Jeff Zeiss has four starters and 10 letterwinners back from a team that went 14-12 last season, and he's excited about the lineup he will be in charge of this season.

"We've got a great nucleus of returning players with a lot of experience and a large freshman class, so I'm excited for the potential," he said. "It's going to take some time, but as we get more comfortable with the system, we'll be fun to watch."

Back from last year as returning starters are seniors Jalyne Zeiss, Meagan Backer, Victoria Kranz and Angie Nelson. Zeiss, Backer and Nelson are all potential long-range threats on the perimeter and are solid defensive players, while Kranz is a tough inside player who will give Wayne some strength on the inside.

The Blue Devils have some solid returning letterwinners to go with those returning starters. Abbie Hix and Danica Schaefer should see time in the paint and should contribute right away, as will senior Ashton Schweers, who missed all of last season with a knee injury. On the outside, players like Rachel Rauner, Tarah Stegemann and Peyton Roach will be expected to step up for the Blue Devils this season.

Zeiss is excited about a big freshman class that has the potential to develop into contributors as the season goes along, and he's anxious to see how the team adapts to a new system.

"The girls have worked very hard, and I'm pleased with what they've done so far in the preseason," Zeiss said. "They're a joy to coach, and we'll be ready to play."

After Thursday's debut on the road, Wayne High's home opener is Friday against Battle Creek. They host their annual holiday tournament Dec. 27-30 at Wayne State College.

(Herald file photo) Angie Nelson is among a group of four returning starters for the Wayne High girls basketball team this season.

Trojans have solid talent base this season

The Wakefield girls basketball team played well last season and have a good mix of returning talent back that has coach Chad Metzler excited for the season ahead.

"We're excited for the upcoming season," he said. "We had a really good summer in the weight room and in the gym, followed by a great volleyball season, and we're hoping that carries over into this season. We have a good mix of very skilled basketball players, role players and an interesting crop of freshmen."

Four letterwinners are back from last year's 9-14 season, led by seniors Whitney Echtenkamp and Lauren Lehmkuhl. Lehmkuhl has been a consistent scoring threat during her high school career, and Echtenkamp has developed into a solid guard who can run the Trojan offense well.

Juniors Emily Puls and McKenzie Rusk give Wakefield some experience in the post position, and with those four leading the way, it gives the Trojans a good nucleus to build around.

"Our strengths should be leadership and chemistry and an improved understanding of the game," Metzler said. "Our weaknesses will be depth and varsity game experience, but it should be an entertaining and exciting season."

The Trojans kick off the 2013-14 season at home on Thursday, matching up with perennial area power Pender.

Wayne State got out to an early 18-2 advantage and put the game out of reach early. Wayne State led 26-5 with 12:32 to go in the half, which helped them withstand Lees-McRae's only significant run of the game, a 13-2 run that still left the Wildcats with a nine-point edge that ballooned to 50-36 at intermission.

Wayne State put the game on ice early in the second half with a 18-5 run to open the period, helping them take a 68-41 advantage. Wayne State shot 59.3 percent from the field to pull away for the easy win.

Spencer had a double-double for the Wildcats, finishing with 23 points and 13 rebounds. Yossi was hot from the outside, going 4-for-5 from 3-point range to finish with 21 points. Hansen also hit double figures, finishing with 11 points. Roller finished with seven assists, and Michaela Barry added four. Kara Powell blocked a career-high four shots in the win.

On Friday, Wayne State's defense limited Dominican (Calif.) University to a dismal 25 percent shooting from the floor, and all 12 Wildcats found their way into the scoring column as the Wildcats bombed the Penguins, 84-44.

Wayne State led 13-2 just 4 1/2 minutes into the game, and Dominican never got closer than nine points after that. Wayne State led 41-16 at intermission, and the bench got to see a lot of floor time in Wayne State's semifinal victory.

Hansen led a balanced attack in the win with 13 points, while Whitney Olson added 12, and Spencer put in 10. The Wildcats hit 27-of-57 (47.4 percent) from the floor and made good on 10-of-25 3-point attempts. Powell led the rebounding effort with six, while Roller and Barry each had four assists and Yossi had four steals.

The Wildcats return to Northern Sun Conference play next weekend, visiting Sioux Falls Friday night at 6 p.m. and Southwest Minnesota State Saturday at 5 p.m.

Barry, who averaged 12 points and four assists per game and will lead the Blue Devil offense. He is joined by fellow senior Jared Anderson, a 6-foot-1 guard who can light it up from outside; and 6-foot-5 junior forward Ben Hoskins, who is versatile and can play inside as well as hit the open jumper on the perimeter.

Also returning from last year as letterwinners are seniors Kaje Maly, Luke Rethwisch and Trevor Pecena; and juniors Zach Keating and Jack Belt. Maly and Rethwisch both developed into key players off the bench last year for the Blue Devils, and Pecena, Keating and Belt all saw varsity time last year and will look to be solid contributors for the Blue Devils this season.

Other players to watch this year include 6-foot-6 senior Austin Keiser, who joins the team after wrestling last year; and junior Brook Bowers, who gives the Blue Devils added quickness on the outside.

The Blue Devils have a tough season opener on Thursday, taking on defending Class B champion South Sioux City on the road. They'll open the home part of their schedule the following night, facing Battle Creek.

Wayne High will once again host their annual holiday tournament Dec. 27-30 and will face some tough competition, with teams that include Boone Central/Newman Grove, Hartington Cedar Catholic, Adams Central and Grand Island Northwest. The tournament will be held at Wayne State College.

Allen girls hope to build on success

Building off of this fall's success in volleyball, the Allen Lady Eagles basketball team are looking for some good things in the 2013-14 season.

Third-year head coach Zach Wemhoff has two starters and seven letterwinners back from last year's 5-14 season, and he is hopeful the team can have more success this season.

"If we can stay healthy and have some younger girls step up, I believe that we will have a very successful season with a difficult schedule," he said.

Returning from last year's team are two starters, including 5-foot-10 senior forward Lindsey Jones and 5-foot-5 junior guard Lindsey Sullivan.

Five other players with returning experience as letter winners include juniors Brooke Hingst and Alexis Johnson and sophomores Gabby

Lindsey Jones is among seven returning letterwinners for the Allen Lady Eagles this season.

Sullivan, Lexi Oswald and Kaylen Smith. At 5-foot-11, Sullivan is the tallest of the returning letter winners for the Lady Eagles.

Allen does have a player to watch this season, according to Wemhoff, as 5-foot-9 senior forward Keri Goodman is expected to step up and play a key role in Allen's success.

The Lady Eagles open the 2013-14 campaign at home Friday against Wakefield.

Five seniors to lead Wakefield boys

The Wakefield boys basketball team has a good wealth of talent returning from last year, and coach Mike Clay is looking for his team to develop by season's end.

"We're going to need to improve our fundamental skills to be competitive in subdistricts," he said.

The Trojans went 14-10 last year, and have nine returning letterwinners, five of them seniors – guards Evan Nicholson, Josh Dolph, Heath Greve and Luis Brambilla, along with 6-foot-3 post player Anthony Gustafson, who will move inside after playing forward last year.

Junior guard Alex Conley will give the Trojans added depth on the outside, and Wakefield will have height on the inside with 6-foot-1 Tim Anderson, 6-foot-4 Brodie Mackling and 6-foot-2 Anthony Victor, all juniors.

The Trojans open the 2013-14 season at home Thursday against Pender.

Bears look to rebuild

The Laurel-Concord/Coleridge boys basketball team will be looking to rebuild after improving to a 10-13 mark last season.

Second-year coach T.J. Shiers has two returning starters back from last year, and while the team is young, he sees a lot of talent that can develop as the season progresses.

"We lost several key seniors from last year who did a great job rebuilding the program," he said. "We will be very young this year, but we have a lot of young talent that we must develop over the course of the season."

Back from last year are senior Mitch Klooz and sophomore Dillan Wolfgram.

Klooz, a 6-foot-3 senior who recently signed a golf scholarship to play at Div. I Liberty University, averaged eight points and four rebounds a game last year.

Wolfgram, a 6-foot-1 sophomore, showed his competitive fire and developed quickly, averaging 12 points and five rebounds a game during his freshman year.

Other returning letterwinners include senior Cory Peterson, a solid 3-point threat; juniors Jackson Metheny, Colton Jansen and Brad Steffen; and sophomores Brant Eddie, Jordan Jansen and Dominic Anderson.

Players to watch this year include seniors Calvin Casey and Adam Haahr and freshmen Cody Wilson and Jayden Reifenrath.

The Bears open the 2013-14 season with a pair of home matchups, facing Crofton on Friday and Homer on Tuesday.

Sophomore Dillan Wolfgram leads a rebuilding LCC boys basketball team this season.

Wayne High wrestlers improved

Wayne High's wrestling team should be solid this season, as the Blue Devils have a good group of returning talent back from last season.

Nine of Wayne's 10 returning letterwinners were starters last year, and second-year coach David Wragge is looking for continued growth and development in the Blue Devil wrestling room this season.

"With what I have been seeing the last week of practice, I am confident that we will be a much improved team from last year," he said. "We have set some pretty lofty goals as a team and are working hard to make sure we accomplish them this season."

Senior Kody Frahm was the only state qualifier from last season for the Blue Devils and returns to the lineup this year at 220 pounds. Frahm is recovering from a hand injury but should be a solid competitor after being co-leader in escapes last season.

Senior Demetrius Alexander was the team's MVP last year after a 25-win campaign that came up a match short of state.

Also back is sophomore Schuyler

Schweers, who developed into a solid wrestler last season and placed at the conference meet.

Jorge Vergara is also back this year after leading the team, along with Frahm, in escapes last year. Wragge said Vergara could find his way into one of three weight classes, wrestling at either 138, 145 or 152 pounds.

Other letterwinners back in the lineup this year include Austin Hammer (132), Austin Weaver (160), Logan Reinke (152), Cole Koenig (170) and Seth Trenhaile (195-220).

Wrestlers to watch this year include senior 138-pounder Mike Cliff, who had a lot of success in Colorado before moving to Nebraska this summer. Also on the lookout are 126-pounder Cornelio Espino and heavyweight Thorin McBride.

The Blue Devils open the season with a home dual against Wisner-Pilger on Thursday and compete in the Columbus Lakeview Invitational on Friday. They have home duals this season against Creighton on Dec. 19 and Wakefield on Jan. 21.

Winside girls should be improved

Senior Jayd Roberts leads an improved Winside girls basketball team into action this season.

The Winside girls basketball team should see some improvement this season under second-year coach Brooke Tunink.

The Wildcats were a young team last year and finished with a 3-21 record, but with three starters and six returning letterwinners back, the Wildcats should be an improved team this coming season.

Back from last year are Jayd Roberts, Morgan Jensen and Carly Thies. All three were starters last year and developed into solid leaders that should help the Winside team this season.

Also back from last year as returning letterwinners are Mallory Stubbs, Carly Schwager and Kelly Tweedy. All three showed improvement throughout the season last year and will be called on to be key contributors this season.

Two girls are players to watch for the Wildcats this season, as Tunink expects Ellie Jaeger and Alyssa Thies to both step up and play well this season.

The Wildcats will travel to Plainview Thursday for their season opener.

Wildcats returning six to mats

Winside's wrestling team has six starters back from last year, including a returning state finalist who will be one of the favorites to take home the gold this season.

Longtime Wildcat coach Paul Sok said the Wildcats should be a contender, both in the new Lewis and Clark Conference tournament and in the D-2 district this season.

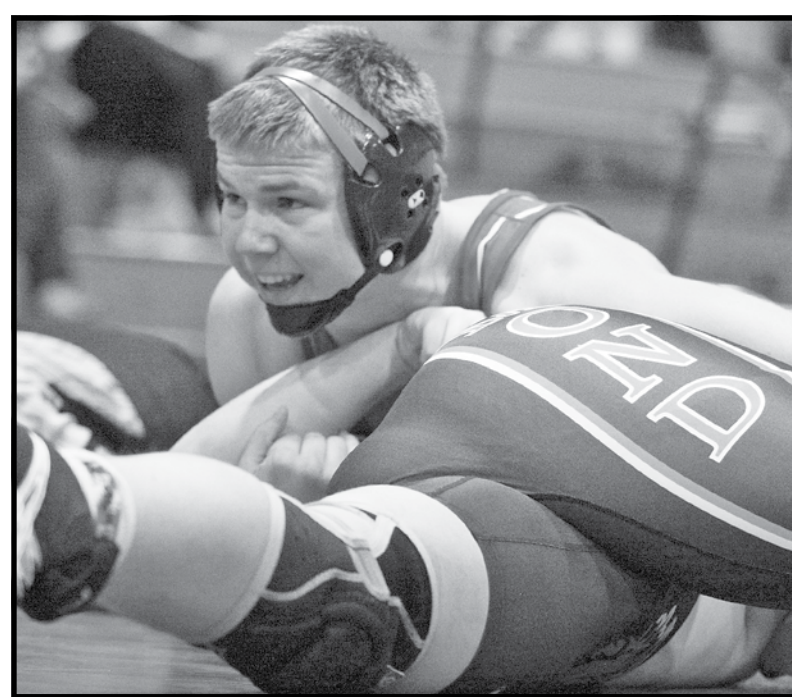

"We will contend with Plainview, Creighton and Wakefield in the conference this year, and we should compete with Plainview and Pender in districts," he said. "We should have a much more balanced team this year, and hopefully we'll be able to fill 10 weights."

Coming back from last year are two state qualifiers, led by returning runner-up Caleb Lienemann. Lienemann was a silver medalist last year at 195 pounds and should be a contender for the title this year at that weight class in 2013-14.

Also back from last year is sophomore Marcos Escalera, who qualified for state last year at 126 pounds and will try to move up a weight class and compete for a state bid at 132.

Other returning starters back from last year include three juniors - Zach Jones (160), Sam Wolfe (182) and Zane Jensen (220) - and sophomore Colby Erickson, who is expected to wrestle at 120 pounds.

Junior transfer Kevin Ross will give the Wildcats some solid competition in the middle weights, as he is expected to compete at 145 pounds. Freshmen Sean Mann (106) and Zach Morris (138) will fill in some holes in the Wildcat lineup this season.

Winside opens the season Saturday at the Creighton Invitational.

Allen's Austin Connot will help key the Eagles on defense this season.

Four back for Eagles

New Allen boys basketball coach Robin Mohr said his team will need to get it done on the defensive end of the floor to have success in the 2013-14 season.

The Eagles return two starters and four letterwinners from last year's 6-14 team, and he hopes the team will be able to play well defensively this season.

"Defense will be the key to limiting opponents' shots," he said. "We need to be able to handle pressure and get the ball where we want if we're going to have some success."

Back from last year's team is 6-foot-1 senior forward Austin Connot and 6-foot-1 junior guard Brian Boese. Other letterwinners back from last year include 6-foot-2 senior forward Myles Flores and 5-foot-10 junior guard Coleman Kniff.

Players to watch this year for the Eagles include junior Wade Connot and freshman Tayler Kumm.

The Eagles open the season Friday at home against Wakefield.

Lady Bears return nine to roster

Coach Nate Sims is anxious to see how far the Laurel-Concord/Coleridge girls basketball team can go this year after reaching the sub-district finals last year.

Two starters and nine letterwinners are back from last year's 16-8 squad, and Sims is hoping his team can continue to improve and battle for a trip to state this March.

"We are anxious for the season and look forward to the challenges of a very difficult schedule," he said.

Back from last year are returning starters Cameron Eddie and Audra Corbit.

Eddie, a 5-foot-9 senior guard, averaged 13.2 points per game last year for the Lady Bears. Corbit, a 6-foot-2 junior center, was a solid presence inside, averaging 8.3 points and 6.8 rebounds per contest.

Seven other letterwinners are back from last year. Returning are seniors Erin Gubbels, Taylor Pigg, Brittany Wolfram, Kelsey Kardell and Hannah Swanson, along with juniors Ellie Arduser and Sydney Cunningham.

Also expected to contribute to the team's success is Candice Rastede, a 5-foot-4 junior guard.

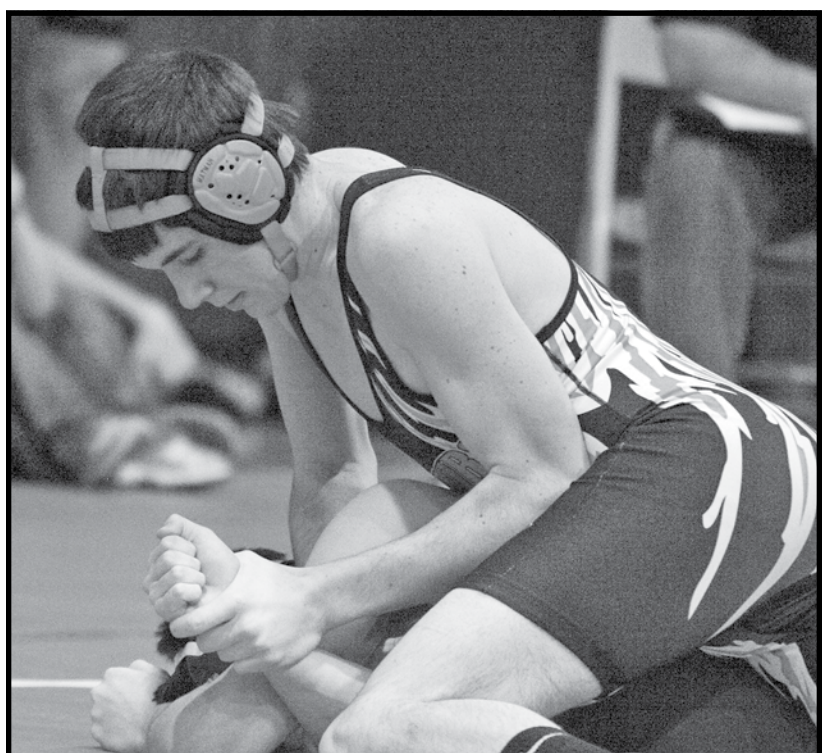

The Lady Bears open at home Friday against Crofton.

Two qualifiers return for Bears

Chris Heydon is one of two state qualifiers back for the LCC wrestling team this season.

With two state qualifiers back from last year and a solid group of returning wrestlers, things are looking up in the wrestling room at Laurel-Concord/Coleridge this season.

Coach Don Maxwell has returning state qualifiers in Chris Heydon (160) and Ethan Hirschman (285) this season, and having that experience back in the room is going to pay off for the Bears this season.

"With experienced seniors and two state qualifiers back and some good underclassmen, we should do well," he said. "The big key is how well everyone matures through the season and improves as time goes by."

Heydon and Hirschman are both seniors and lead a solid group of nine returning wrestlers into action this season. They are joined by fellow seniors Drew Lunz (138), Lathan Ohlrich (160), Brett Haisch (182) and Ben Barelman (195). Also back are sophomores Billy Barelman (170) and Casey Nolan (182), as well as junior Blake Reimers (126).

The Bears have a good deal of potential coming in with their newcomers, which include freshman Ben Lammers (182), sophomores Lucas Heydon (152) and Chayce Hirschman (220), juniors Dakota Heitman (113), Katie Pallas (120) and Collin Dirks (145) and senior Mitchell Hangman (220).

The Bears will begin the season on Thursday with a home dual against Lutheran High Northeast and compete in their first tournament Saturday at Creighton.

Returning finalist leads Trojan wrestlers

Two returning qualifiers, including a state finalist, are back for the Wakefield wrestling team as they get ready to hit the mats for 2013-14.

Second-year coach Eric Burenheide has two wrestlers back from last year with state tournament experience, and with that experience and good senior leadership, this year could be a very good season for the Trojan program.

"This season has the potential to be a great one if we can avoid injuries and have a few of our wrestlers step up in their senior season," he said.

Back from last year is junior Caleb Thomas, who was a state finalist in Class C last year at 160 pounds and will be looking to return to the finals again this season.

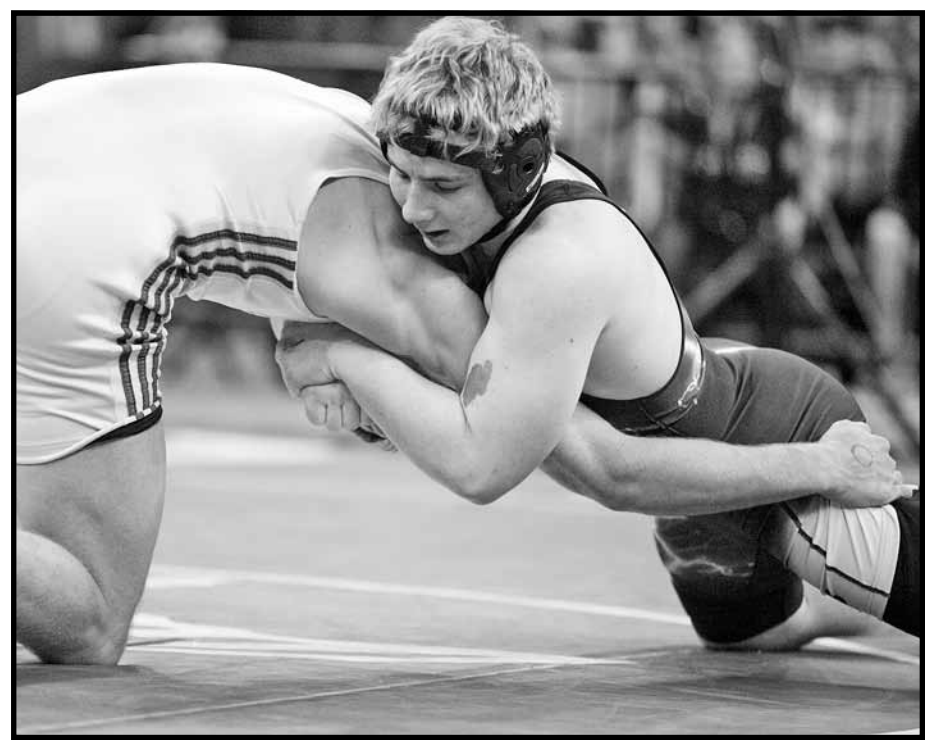

Also back is junior Levi Nelson, who was a state qualifier at 138 pounds. Both he and Thomas will be called upon to lead the team this season.

Also back this year and expected to contribute are seniors Franky Nuno (132), Jacob Newton (132), Irvin Ramirez (113), Christian Chinchilla (170) and Julio Perez (182).

Juniors in the lineup this year include Jon Romero (145), Levi Nelson (138), Juan Gonzalez (120), Nick Gonzalez (126) and Caleb Thomas (160). Sophomores include David Olvera (285), Carlos Chavez (195) and Efrén Godínez (152).

Freshmen who can step in and contribute include Daniel Nuno (138), Luke Walsh (126), Moises Barboza (220), Cody Thomas (170) and Garrett Brentlinger (106).

Wakefield opens the season with a home dual Thursday against Pender and wrestles Saturday at the Howells-Dodge Invitational.

(Herald file photo) Caleb Thomas was a state finalist last year for Wakefield and will lead the Trojans into action again this season.

Wildcats crack WBCA coaches top 25

The Wayne State women's basketball team made their way into the top 25 of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association Div. II poll for the first time this season, coming in this week at No. 22.

The Wildcats are 8-0 on the year after sweeping their way to top honors at the North Star Invitational in Fairbanks, Alaska. They are one of four Northern Sun Conference Schools in the top 25, joined by Augustana (10), Minnesota State (13) and Concordia-St. Paul (21).

Spencer earns NSIC top player honors

Junior Jordan Spencer was tabbed as the Northern Sun Conference women's basketball Player of the Week by the conference.

The 5-foot-11 forward averaged 22.3 points and nine rebounds in helping Wayne State to four wins, including an upset of then-No. 11 Augustana and a sweep of the North Star Invitational tournament in Alaska.

Spencer had a career-high 30 points and 11 rebounds in a 70-65 win over Augustana. She had a 23-point and 26-point effort in two of the three games on the Alaska trip and shot 66.7 percent from the floor this past week.

Wildcats 7th, 9th in NSIC coaches poll

Wayne State's women were picked seventh and the men were tabbed ninth among NSIC coaches in the conference's preseason picks for men's and women's track and field.

Athletes to watch on the women's side for Wayne State were Wayne native Carly Fehringer, a senior who was an All-American in the weight throw last year; and senior Lexi Guhl, who will compete in hurdles.

On the men's side, Wayne native and junior middle distance runner Zach Thomsen was one of the athletes to watch, along with sophomore thrower Bryan Dunn.

The Wildcats open the season next weekend at the UNK Open in Kearney.

Softball camp set for Dec. 8

The Wayne State women's softball team will host a skills camp on Sunday, Dec. 8, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The camp starts with registration, with activities running from 9 a.m.-12 p.m. The camp is open to players in grades 7-12, with instruction given by coach Krista Wood and members of the Wayne State softball team.

WHS students take part in competition

During Money Smart Week, Nov. 4-8, Wayne High students in Mrs. Annette Rasmussen's Personal Finance/Econ class contended with high school students across the state of Nebraska in an online competition.

The students were placed in teams and took an online test on the topic of financial literacy. Some of the topics included banking, credit, and investing.

The competition was administered by the Nebraska Council on Economic Education whose mission, along with their partner the Calvin K. Kazanjian Foundation is to eliminate economic illiteracy. The Finance Challenge supports this mission by creating a fun incentive for students to take ownership of their education, their choices and their future.

The Wayne High School team of Bailey Bentjen, Jake Lutt and Lauren Mecsji placed 10th out of the 276 teams involved in the competition.

Baily Bentjen, Jake Lutt and Lauren Mecsji too part in a Finance Challenge to test their financial literacy.

Hunger in Wayne and America

We are in the midst of the holiday season; we show our appreciation of family and friends with gifts of food, material items and good cheer. It is also a time to remember that not all of us have been so fortunate.

Last Sunday the movie, "A Place at the Table" played at the Majestic Theatre. The movie focused on hunger in the United States through telling the story of three families who sometimes did not have the resources to provide adequate food throughout the month. The movie showed that for many families in cities and rural areas, finding fresh fruits and vegetables is neither easy nor affordable.

We, who have adequate food, may think this is just a problem of the poor, but hunger and poor nutrition has a multiplier effect for our society. Pregnant mothers who do not get the right foods may have children susceptible to more health problems, not only at birth, but also throughout their lives. These health issues affect their ability to learn and strain health care resources.

The working poor are particularly vulnerable because the minimal safety net that does exist is not structured to give incentives to work, since once income maximums are met, families become ineligible for programs that they still might need.

The movie did not address what we can do to end hunger in the long term. In the near term, we can make sure school lunch funding is adequate to provide healthy, balanced meals and that our social safety net is funded and administered to help families in immediate need. This is not a problem only for urban inner cities.

The discussion after the movie featured people who manage the various food pantries in our city and at Wayne State College. It was clear from their discussion that we have many families in Wayne who need food assistance on a regular basis.

It was pointed out in the movie and by representatives of the Center for Rural Affairs, that in rural areas in Nebraska poor people have the same problems finding affordable fresh fruits and vegetables as those in inner cities. So as we approach winter and the holiday season, we urge everybody to consider taking some action, appropriate for individual interests, to help those in need and to find a way to solve the problem of hunger in our country.

Thanksgiving service a success

I would like to offer my public thanks to everyone who pitched in to make our community Thanksgiving service a success.

Thank you to Pastor James Seal and the Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church congregation for hosting the service and for your generous hospitality in sponsoring the supper. Thank you to the musicians and pastors who participated in the worship service. Thank you to everyone who contributed soup and pie for the dinner. And thank you to our community for attending the service and contributing to the Wayne Association of Congregations and Ministers' emergency fund.

There was a spirit of harmony and cooperation in the gathered body, and I am truly grateful that we can come together and transcend labels to worship our Lord together.

Thanks to families who shared homes

There were five Wayne families who graciously shared their lovely homes for this year's "Tour of Homes." This tour is a fundraiser for our fine Wayne County Museum.

A sincere "thank you" to all who labored time and talent in decorating that gave the holiday spirit to the homes. This event was truly enjoyed by all who were able to visit the festive homes.

Downtown advocates look at issues

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

It's a matter of semantics and at least one state senator thinks it has been a deterrent to community redevelopment projects. Sen. Greg Adams of York wants to give voters a chance to remove the words "blighted and substandard" from the state Constitution because it often causes property owners concerns when developers look to finance projects using Tax Increment Financing.

Adams said TIF projects sometimes are hindered when owners of neighboring properties believe that the designation will reflect poorly on their own property. "It's just a label," he said. "I think that if we remove that label, we remove some of the mystery and the angst that goes along with TIF." Proposed language would refer to the property as "being in need of rehabilitation or redevelopment." An Omaha planning official told the Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee at a February hearing that the city has "run into the buzz saw of community outcry" when attempting to designate areas as substandard and blighted in order to qualify for TIF.

Members of the Nebraska Main Street Network, meeting recently in Kearney, discussed the measure, and some said they were ready to voice support for the measure when it comes up for consideration during the Legislature's second session, which convenes next month (January 2014). Blight is a hard sell, one said. Nobody wants to have anything in their community considered substandard, added another.

Adams had also sought to extend the payback time for TIF bonds from 15-20 years. During an Urban Affairs hearing in February, Lynn Rex of the League of Nebraska Municipalities testified in favor of the proposal, saying most states already authorize longer bond terms than are allowed under Nebraska's current TIF program. "Only three states still have 15 years as a payback period," she said.

Coby Mach of the Lincoln Independent Business Association testified in opposition. TIF is an effective redevelopment tool, he said, but lawmakers should keep in mind that funds are diverted from schools during the time it takes to pay back a bond. Mack cautioned that TIF also requires a balance between development and the needs of the entire community. The Committee has offered an amendment to keep the payback at 15 years.

Speaking of semantics, the main streeters also discussed a pending bill, LB191 from Sen. Jeremy Nordquist that is called the "Nebraska Job Creation and Main Street Revitalization Act." The measure actually proposes a 20 percent state tax credit for developers who rehabilitate historically significant, income-producing properties and spend up to $10 million with a 10 percent credit beyond that threshold. Such properties currently qualify for a federal tax credit, but only 38 states have a state tax credit like the one Nordquist seeks.

The Omaha lawmaker says the measure would create jobs and promote economic development. He said it would spur private investment in revitalizing main streets, creating jobs and significant economic development while preserving valuable pieces of Nebraska history.

In his blog, Nordquist says all of Nebraska's neighboring states with an income tax have implemented very successful state historic tax credits. Iowa officials say that every $1 in state tax credit leverages $3.77 in federal and private money. Missouri's historic tax credit leveraged $2.9 billion in private investment and generated $669 million in local and state tax revenues in a little over 10 years, while the credit in Kansas has created over 4,000 jobs, generated $271 million in investment in historic preservation and generated nearly $15 million in state and local tax revenues.

If the measure passes next year, let's hope Nebraska's Main Streets can reap similar benefits.

NRD's up the creek without a paddle?

By SCOTT JAPP
Papio Missouri NRD Director
Arlington, Neb.

Benjamin Franklin once said that there are only two certainties in this world - death and taxes. And, nowadays, we seem to be getting an inexplicable dose of the latter, not thanks to some of the Natural Resource District's fiscally imprudent decisions.

Whereas Benjamin Franklin argued for financial restraint (recall his other phrase "a penny saved is a penny earned"), the NRD and Department of Natural Resources have embraced a philosophy of special-interest cronyism that is anathema to the "good life."

You may be familiar with the old cliché that water flows toward money. Well, in the case of the NRD and DNR, we might say that money flows toward water.

Let me elaborate. This year, in conjunction with the Water Task Force, Nebraska legislators are holding hearings to gauge the merits of different types of water issues across the state. From my perspective, this task force's construction is nothing more than clever subterfuge. It is a reprehensible attempt to justify the funding of impractical recreational projects in the Omaha area - projects that provide little flood control and ignore the plight of rural residents, while simultaneously tapping into rural revenue streams in an effort to grease the palms of local land developers.

The fact of the matter is that this so-called task force has been orchestrated by Mike Sotak and Olsson and Associates. Like HDR and FYRA, Olsson and Associates handles large-scale, expensive projects. And, in all likelihood, one or more of these firms would benefit from any contracts that are awarded pursuant to the task force's "expert" recommendations. As disclosed in previous editorials, HDR has already been on the receiving end of numerous multimillion-dollar NRD contracts in the past, so this conclusion is not much of a stretch.

Rural Nebraska does not need to pay for Omaha's recreational projects. Moreover, when an acre-foot of water generates approximately $400 in agricultural produce, why would the state's DNR even want to divert this resource for recreational purposes, especially when the existing recreational facilities are not fully utilized? The Nebraska Constitution states, "The right to use water for a beneficial purpose is a property right, subject to the constitutional provisions regulating the taking of private property for public use." Therefore, the state needs to sufficiently compensate the land owner for the right to use his water when they deprive him of it. In a recent court decision concerning the Republican River Compact, Nebraska won a victory. So, why have four NRDs committed more than $100 million of public funds to what now looks like an unnecessary project? Does removing land from the tax rolls and depriving businesses of economic opportunity constitute responsible governance?

When will government realize the difference between a "want" and a "need?" Instead of myopically focusing on urban recreational projects that reward special interests, we should be examining more appropriate rural water issues. Examples may include:

- Compensating farmers for the conversion of irrigated land to dry land and for the water rights they may relinquish;
- Exploring programs that improve irrigation efficiency;
- Devising a long-term legal remedy with Kansas over the Republican River Compact; or even
- Employing a sustainable approach to agriculture by using biologicals and/or micronutrients to increase nutrient recovery and use efficiencies. These agents are known to enhance movement of "N" ("P"), and/or other potential pollutants out of the soil profile and into the plant, while others can reduce leaching. After all, is it not the goal to eliminate excesses from the system? What better way than to remove potential problems in the form of yield?

Promoting conservation practices such as these would undoubtedly enhance the water table, reduce non-point pollution and deliver a greater bang for the buck. Instead of investing a large amount of capital in a facility that ultimately has limited capacity, we need to incentivize adoption of best management practices that are easily incorporated into today's production agriculture. But, as the saying goes, until the NRD and DNR extricate themselves from the sticky hands of special interests and start taking these issues seriously, rural taxpayers will continue to be sold down the river.

Laughs from Facebook

I must admit - I have some sick and twisted Facebook friends. Want proof? Here are a few funny observations taken from some of my friends' recent Facebook posts:

- An Englishman has started his own business in Afghanistan. He is making land mines that look like prayer mats. It's doing well - prophets are going through the roof.
- Inside me there's a thin person struggling to get out, but I can usually sedate him with four or five cupcakes.
- When I learned what calculators did, I immediately cleared the "math" part of my brain to make room for more movie quotes, 70's song lyrics and useless trivia.
- Things that don't kill bees: 1: furniture polish, 2: Febreze, 3: butter, 4: screaming.
- I am so glad I was young, wild and crazy before there were cell phones and evidence.
- Hey, buddy . . . No matter how loud you crank the bass, it's still a minivan.
- The worst thing about parallel parking is witnesses.
- Definition of the word "rubberneck" - What you do to relax your wife.
- Law of Probability: the probability of being watched is directly proportional to the stupidity of your act.
- I have enough money to last me the rest of my life . . . unless I buy something.
- Yes, folks . . . these are my friends.

Anderson named to '40 Under 40'

Angie Anderson, a graduate of Wayne High School and Wayne State College, has been named one of the Midlands Business Journal's "40 Under 40" for 2013.

Anderson, the daughter of Debby and Steve Gross of Wayne, was honored as one of the 40 greater Omaha, Sarpy County and Council Bluffs entrepreneurs, executives and professional men and women under 40 years of age.

Anderson, PayPal director of customer solutions, recently led her team of approximately 600 customer service representatives to reach their highest customer satisfaction scores.

According to information submitted in her nomination letter, "Anderson emphasis on having a personal development plan encourages her managers and supervisors to meet regularly with each teammate within her organization to ensure they are taking the necessary steps to reach their career and personal goals or advancement in education."

With more than 14 years of leadership experience, Anderson began her career at PayPal 10 years ago within the Global Operations organization.

Another graduate of Wayne State

Angie Anderson

College, Tim Rexius originally from Norfolk, was named the Midlands Business Journal's Young Entrepreneur of the Year for 2013.

Rexius is the owner of the four Rexius Nutrition, Inc. stores, located in both Omaha and Norfolk. The business carries nutritional products for wellness and competitive sports.

The Wayne Herald

Take time to exercise during holidays

During the holiday-preparation season, many families seem more strained, because they are suffering from overload. No doubt this pressure comes from wanting to give their families the best holiday ever. Isn't it ironic that what families most need is relaxation to enjoy the festivities together. Stress is the rate of wear and tear on your body caused by living. It is the physical, mental and chemical adjustments the body makes when dealing with life's circumstances. In other words, stress is a response to what is happening around you. It is the process the body uses to keep balance and sustain life when various demands are made on you.

Stress can be good, as well as bad. When stress becomes prolonged or particularly frustrating, however, it's harmful. Some stress motivates us and adds spice to our lives, but when the demands of your life exceed your resources, you experience too much stress and can experience damaging effects.

If the holiday tension is mounting

Angela Abts
Dakota County

treats for your family and friends, try some exercises while you wait for them finish baking in the oven (walking or jogging in place, stretching, lifting some weights, etc.).

While you are out shopping, try to park your car the farthest away from the door. This will help you add more steps during the day and achieve your step goals. You might even save your car from damage with shopping carts and car doors.

Enjoy a classic holiday movie or new release with family and friends. Instead of sitting in the recliner, try exercising (jogging in place, lifting weights, etc.) while you enjoy the movie.

Exercising during the holiday season will help you establish a new habit to achieve your New Year resolutions. Be sure to check out the Walk Nebraska site for helpful monthly newsletters at food.unl.edu/web/fnh/walknewsletters.

Minerva Club learns about 'Roaring 20s'

Thirteen members of the Minerva Club gathered for a noon meeting on Nov. 25. The meeting was hosted by Joyce Mitchell at the Wayne Senior Center. Roll call topic was commonly used slang terms of the 1920's.

Historian Hollis Frese read from the Dec. 2, 1946 Minerva Club minutes that the program was a review of 'The Strawberry Girl,' a Newberry medal winning book. Some children attended. At the following meeting on Dec. 16, the group held their Christmas Party and gift exchange. Several Christmas stories were shared.

The birthday song was sung in honor of Hollis Frese.

Joyce Mitchell gave the program on the "Roaring Twenties" a Decade of Change, starting with prohibition and granting women the right to vote. The Lincoln Memorial was dedicated; construction began on Mt. Rushmore; Charles Lindbergh flew non-stop across the ocean; Floyd Bennett was first to fly to the North Pole and back. Jazz was very popular as were dance competitions. Emily Post wrote a book on manners. Television, 7-Up, Kool-Aid, bubble gum, Hallmark cards, and crossword puzzles were new on the market. Clothing styles changed to fit fast paced and active lifestyles of the decade.

The next meeting will be a pot luck meal and Christmas party at noon on Monday, Dec. 9 at Faunell Bennett's home.

Congratulations Megan Stalling ~ Employee of the Month ~

"Megan has been superb in the dining staff. Her calm nature helps keep other staff calm and ready to meet the constant & high demands of the dining department. Megan has been a vital trainer to all wait-staff; she has taught them the in's & out's of dining services."

"Megan has a proven track record of patience and willingness to work as a team. I appreciate seeing Megan working each night I am Manager on Duty, as I know that Megan is looking to make each resident's dining experience one that is enjoyable. Megan treats all staff and residents with respect and is always willing to answer questions. Thank you for being our "rock" for the dining staff! You have truly proven to have excellent work ethic and a commitment to our residents."

Wakefield church helps tornado relief efforts

Charity Potter (second from right), pastor of United Presbyterian Church of Wakefield, and Steve Sievers present a $5,000 check to Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain (far left) and Mike Varley of the Wayne United Way. The church's outreach program donated the money to assist in Wayne's tornado relief efforts.

Journey to present 'Christmas Shoe Tree'

Journey Christian Church on east Highway 35 in Wayne invites community members to a performance of the children's musical, "The Christmas Shoe Tree" on Saturday, Dec. 14 at 7 p.m.

New songs, as well as traditional favorites, will be performed as the children share the good news of Christmas through a heartwarming story.

As part of the musical, the chilchildren set a goal of receiving 150 pairs of shoes for the charity, Soles 4 Souls. Because God is good, they have reached that goal. However, they will still be taking shoe donations for those in need all over the world. Soles 4 Souls distributes shoes worldwide and helps connect idle shoes in American closets with more than 300 million children and adults around the world without shoes.

"This program has taught our kids that they can make a real life-impact by doing something so simple and that it is better to give than to receive. It was fun to watch the kids go home and clean out their closets, eager to share some of their own shoes with others," said Brook Jech, one of the organizers of the program.

Everyone in the community is invited to "grab a pair of shoes and come support the children in the Wayne community on their journey."

Refreshments will follow in the fellowship hall. For more information, call (402) 375-4743.

Retired School Personnel meet Nov. 4 in Wayne

The Wayne Area Association of Retired School Personnel met Nov. 4 at The Oaks with 14 members and one guest present.

The Thought for the Day centered around three truths as expressed by V.J. Smith, motivational speaker in his writings:

- Relationships matter most in life.
- We each need to try to do a little more.
- Only you can make yourself happy.

Certainly the people of the Wayne Community responded to the devastating tornado of Oct. 4 with these truths in their minds and hearts. Wayne Area Association of Retired School Personnel members brought items to be donated to the Food Pantry as their Day of Service.

Garry Poutre, Public Works and Utilities Superintendent, representing the City of Wayne, spoke of the response of the city to the tornado.

An informative discussion was held concerning the weather alerts. Everyone in attendance commended the City of Wayne, its personnel and the efforts of each individual involved in the post clean-up and the pride we all feel to be a part of local communities who respond to each other in their hour of need.

Lunch was served by The Oaks and an announcement was made of the Jan. 6 meeting to be held at Tacos & More with the officers in charge of the program.

Reinke recognizes Grossenburg Implement with Gold Pride Award at annual convention

Reinke Manufacturing Company, Inc., a leading manufacturer of mechanized irrigation systems, has announced that Grossenburg Implement, Inc. in Wayne, has received a Gold Reinke Pride award in recognition of the company's 2012-2013 marketing year success. The Reinke dealership was honored during Reinke's recent annual convention held Oct. 20-22 in Omaha.

"Congratulations to Grossenburg Implement on this recognition of their ongoing hard work and success," said Reinke Vice President of Marketing Tim Goldhammer. "We appreciate their ongoing commitment to Reinke and to their community. We are proud to have them as a dealer."

Reinke dealerships from across the United States and Canada gather each year to attend the company's convention. The convention awards ceremony recognizes select Reinke dealerships for their hard work and dedication to sales and marketing throughout the past year.

Reinke recognized record attendance during this year's convention. Gold, silver and bronze Reinke Pride awards were given to a total of 118 dealerships. The Reinke Pride awards are determined as part of an incentive program that distinguishes superior achievement levels according to an evaluation based on a dealership's exterior and interior housekeeping and maintenance, indoor and outdoor displays, safety, retail environment, merchandising, professionalism, promotions and event participation, and market share.

"It's great to be able to come together each year to applaud the efforts of our dealers and recognize them among their peers," said

Northeast Community College to look at new student housing options

The Northeast Community College Board of Governors has authorized college administration to look at options to address possible new student housing on campus.

Over 350 students currently live on-campus in the College's residence halls and apartments, but each year, hundreds of students who would like to live on-campus, put their names on a waiting list, just hoping for a vacancy.

The Board approved a motion granting Dr. Michael Chipps, president of the college, the authority to negotiate a public/private partnership agreement for a new student housing complex that would be located on Northeast Community College's Norfolk campus.

"This is a good investment on behalf of our future students and for our service area," Chipps said. "Ideally, we want a 'turnkey' facility, where the land is provided and a private developer within our 20 county service area would secure the financing, architect, and contractor to work with the college to design and build a 21st Century student friendly facility. We have identified potential partners to help us address additional housing on-campus. It is a matter the public has asked us to look into for nearly a decade and now is the right time for us to make this concept a reality."

Chipps said the entire college community and the communities at large understand the importance of student housing.

"Campus housing is part of the college cultural experience and integral to educating our students. That is why our residence halls have been at maximum capacity for a number of years. The fact we also have waiting lists with the names of hundreds of students every year tells us there is a serious need for additional space."

This fall alone, the waiting list had the names of over 700 students. The figure reflects the number of students who filled out an application for housing and placed an application fee.

It isn't just traditional undergraduate students seeking on-campus housing. Northeast Community College has seen its international student population increase over the past several years. Chipps said these students desire the opportunity to live on-campus, as well. International students often have major hurdles to overcome when coming to America and especially in the area of transportation to and from the college.

Additional student housing should have a positive impact on enrollments at the college. "Enrollment management is the first of our eight institutional priorities at Northeast," Chipps said. "If we are to meet our goal of growing our enrollments, increased campus student housing is essential. Additional housing opportunities will bring new students to campus; and national studies also suggest that on-campus students are retained at a higher level," he said.

Northeast presently operates two on-campus residence halls, Simon and Burkhardt Halls, and two student apartment complexes.

Shopko stores launch 'Help Us Give Back'

This holiday season, as shoppers seek the ideal gift for their loved ones, Shopko Hometown Foundation is giving back to the Hometown communities it is privileged to serve.

For every signature Shopko Hometown in Wayne receives between Dec. 1 and Dec. 24, the Shopko Hometown Foundation will make a $1 donation to Wayne Community School District (up to $2,000 per store) as part of its Help Us Give Back initiative, a program that is being run in all 181 store locations across the country. Customers can sign their name once a day, every day to show their support; no donation or purchase is required.

"At Shopko Hometown, we understand that schools are the center of our community, so it is crucial that they receive assistance to maintain the standard of excellence our community members have come to expect," said Daniel Wibben, Shopko Hometown store manager. "The Help Us Give Back campaign is an easy and free way for local residents to raise money for their schools. Given our community's strong commitment to its children, I fully expect we will quickly reach 2,000 signatures in our store well before the Dec. 24 deadline."

Area dairy farmers elect district officers

Area dairy farmer-owners of Associated Milk Producers Inc., (AMPI) elected the officers who will represent them in cooperative business activities during 2014.

AMPI member-owners heard reports on the status of their milk marketing business and elected officers during the District 87 meeting held Nov. 8 at Northeast Community college in Norfolk.

The district includes AMPI members living in the northeast part of Nebraska.

Leaders elected to represent the district in 2014 are: Dwight Anderson of Wayne, president;

John Steffen of Hartington, vice president; Terry Gilliland of Wayne, secretary; Pat Buderus of Wisner, resolutions committee person; Kevin Marotz of Hoskins and Richard Wortmann of Crofton, delegates and Director Doug Temme of Wayne.

"Serving in an elected position is one way AMPI member-owners take an active roll in overseeing the farm-to-market business in which we share ownership," said 2013 District President Dwight Anderson of Wayne.

Among their duties, district officers review co-op business operations.

Thoughts shared on winter bird feeding, mulching

If you're like me you enjoy feeding birds during the winter. When feeding birds during winter, bird watching can be done from the warmth of the home. Hopefully this will increase interest and encourage outdoor bird watching during the warmer months.

Common winter birds likely to visit feeders in Nebraska include chickadees, blue jays, cardinals, goldfinches, dark eyed juncos, tree sparrows, mourning doves and several kinds of woodpeckers. Place bird feeding stations where they are protected from strong winter winds. Locations where trees and shrubs are growing nearby are good, especially if the plants are evergreens. Plants provide protective cover and perching sites.

Use different types of feeders to increase the chance of attracting a variety of birds. Each type of feeder attracts certain birds. For instance, goldfinches are easier to attract if fed niger thistle seed in a plexiglass tube feeder. Suet feeders, usually made from plastic-coated wire, are used to hold chunks of suet. Woodpeckers and nuthatches are fond of suet. I have two plexiglass feeders, a suet feeder, and a large open feeder.

There are many kinds of bird seed, but some are much better than others for attracting birds. For general purposes, a mixture of equal parts

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension
Educator

sunflower seed, millet and cracked corn is an excellent seed mix. Local hardware stores have good birdseed mixes available to buy by the bag. Almost all birds will utilize sunflower seeds, even small birds like chickadees, and sunflower seeds pack plenty of energy so I tend to add more sunflowers to my mix. I buy a bag of sunflower seeds and add some to my bird mix to bring the level of sunflowers to about 75 to 85 percent.

Some seeds are common in bird feed mixes, but are not especially good for attracting birds. Avoid seed mixes with high proportions of milo, wheat, oats, rice and rapeseed. Birds won't eat most of these undesirable seeds, making the bargain price not such a great deal.

Erratic winter temperatures can cause soil to freeze and thaw. As soil alternates between freezing and thawing, the ground contracts and expands. This is referred to as soil heaving and it can create problems for plant roots; especially newly planted trees, shrubs and perennials that do not have well-established roots.

Contraction and expansion of soil shifts plant roots, tearing or leaving them without good soil contact so they can dry out and die. Some plants have even been heaved up out of the soil so roots, which are not very hardy, are exposed to cold temperatures and plants are killed.

To prevent this, winter mulching is recommended for fall planted or recently divided perennial flowers. A 6-12 inch layer of mulch, such as coarse leaves or wood chips, placed over plants after the soil freezes, will help prevent alternate freezing and thawing of soil, and damage to newly planted or divided plants. Now is the time to put on your mulch, if you haven't already.

Ag Progress Show to address mineral supplementation, nitrogen management

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln is hosting an Ag Progress Show Dec. 11 at the Atkinson Community Center in Atkinson, Neb.

The show will feature speakers who will present timely, research-based information on a range of crop and beef production systems.

The event is from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.

Speakers and topics include:

- Tamra Jackson-Ziems, "Fighting Corn Diseases in Bins and Bags."

- Jerry Volesky, "Annual Forages to Complement Grazing Programs."

- Tim Shaver, "Sensors for Variable Rate Nitrogen Management."

- Cody Wright, "Mineral Supplementation for the Cowherd."

- Al Dutcher, "Have We Turned the Corner on our Extended Drought Period?"

- Kate Brooks, "Nebraska Beef Cattle Industry Outlook."

The show will feature commercial exhibits and a complementary lunch will be provided. There will also be a door prize drawing for two tickets to the Nebraska-Florida Atlantic football game on Aug. 30, 2014.

For more information, contact the Holt County Extension Office at (402) 336-2760.

UNL part of biodiversity research

If only one species of tree existed in a particular location, a single disease could wipe out all of the trees in that ecosystem.

How can biodiversity be more efficiently mapped and identified to avoid such ecological collapse? That's the question motivating Art Zyguelbaum and a multi-institutional team of researchers who have been awarded a grant from Dimensions of Biodiversity, an initiative jointly funded by the National Science Foundation and NASA.

"The 'Optical Diversity' hypothesis predicts that variations in the spectrum of light reflected from vegetation are influenced by a com-ination of things including the structure of plants, the optical characteristics of the leaves and where the plants are in their life cycle," said Zyguelbaum, research associate professor. "Each species presents a unique set of spectral signatures in the light reflected from them. These signatures provide valuable clues to the underlying functional properties of plants."

The work proposed by the grant-funded study will aim to identify ways of measuring and analyzing the combined spectra at several scales to determine the distinguishing spectral characteristics that indicate a diversity of species, and to relate these features to underlying functional properties.

Zyguelbaum is part of a team led by the University of Minnesota with researchers at Appalachian State University, the University of Wisconsin and UNL. The group's Dimensions of Biodiversity funding totals nearly $2 million. UNL's research funding could total more than $716,000 for the four-year project.

UNL's part of the study includes comparison and calibration of instruments, development of data systems and use of the remote sensing aircraft housed at the Center for Advanced Land Management Information Technologies.

"This grant award demonstrates the importance of CALMIT and remote sensing to the understanding of earth processes," said John Carroll, director of the School of Natural Resources. "A strong remote sensing program is something that benefits SNR, but also the university as a whole."

For several years, Zyguelbaum and others at UNL have used products from CALMIT's remote sensing aircraft and the airborne image spectroscopy program. These technologies will be used to collect and process information from across the optical spectrum throughout the course of the study, the bulk of which will take place at Cedar Creek Reserve in Minnesota.

Experiments and measurements will also be conducted at the Agricultural Research and Development Center in Mead, in addition to other natural and managed ecosystems in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

With the grant funding in place, Zyguelbaum said that he's ready for the work ahead and for the opportunity to contribute to a broader biodiversity knowledge base.

"We have the potential to make a real difference in understanding biodiversity," he said. "This is good for science and for our environment."

Ushering in the advent season

Well, it's officially December! Can't tell by the weather, but I'm not complaining. Jon got the tree up after the turkey on Thursday; but I don't have it decorated yet. Guess it's called procrastination. Maybe tomorrow.

I had not been to the Loft Theater all year and I was missing it. The musical they did this summer was The Producers, and that's not my favorite. In fact, they got some static about it, because it's not their typical fare. BUT, they got four nominations for "best of" from the Metro Theater Arts Guild, so it's neat they are getting some notice.

They are currently doing The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, one of my favorite Christmas stories. In fact, I had just reread it a week ago, when a friend from Waco was here. I have an extra copy and sent it home with her. Anyone, and that's probably a bunch of you, who has ever worked with the annual Christmas pageant at the local church would enjoy this story. I've given away numbers of the little book.

So, I signed up for two tickets for the Sunday matinee. And I mean "signed up". I went online and some outfit in Texas took my name and credit card number. Then I had to print the tickets and they have a bar code on them. So, I did all that, and

Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

then realized I was scheduled at the Aldrich House on December first.

I called the 800 number and they basically said I would need to try to resell the tickets. I changed my schedule at the Aldrich house instead. Then, the Big Farmer decided he really did not want to go along.

I don't mind going by myself, but it's more fun with someone to talk to during the drive. A couple summers ago, a switchboard operator at Tabitha rode with me and we had a grand afternoon.

Today, I called a friend from church who sits by me at Thursday morning Bible study. Jan usually goes to church on Saturday evening when we do, so I figured she would be home. She said she had just finished the three things on her list for today, and she would love to go.

It was a sunny, pleasant drive to Manley; she had never heard of the Loft, so I had to fill her in. And she was duly impressed by the new barn. And she loved the show! I counted a baker's dozen of the angel choir and another thirteen baby angels, plus seven shepherds. When they all came on stage, I literally got the shivers! They all performed like old hands, even though it was the first time for many of them. And the kids who played the Herdmans, the "worst kids in the whole world", did an awesome job.

It was a wonderful way to usher in the Advent season; telling the familiar story to a family who had never heard it before. Somehow, that story never gets old. I wish for you a wonderful time of preparation; never losing sight of the "reason for the season."
