BRAN visit to double Laurel's population

(Contributed graph)

The 34th annual Bike Ride Across Nebraska will make a stop in Laurel this June, one of eight communities that will be part of this year's 476-mile journey.

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The community of Laurel is on notice – their town is going to double in size this summer.

Laurel will be one of eight communities that will be part of the 34th annual Bike Ride Across Nebraska tour this summer, an event that will bring as many as 800 riders and support team members to the Cedar County community, a tour de force that will nearly double the town's population (964 according to the 2010 Census).

The 476-mile, eight-city journey begins in Rushville on Sunday, June 8 and will make its way to Laurel on Thursday, June 12, coming in from Verdigre. The tour will travel from Laurel to Lyons before making its final stop in Waterloo on Saturday, June 14.

News of the opportunity was welcome to Lucas Virgil, the city's economic development coordinator.

"We're beyond excited. This is a huge deal," he told The Wayne Herald on Wednesday. "It's going to double our town's population, so our tallest task is to figure out how to get everybody around town."

Hosting a group of people as big as the town will require some creative logistical work, but Virgil said the community is looking forward to the opportunity.

"Trying to figure out how to get everybody around town is going to be a challenge," he said. "We have some ideas for shuttles and hayrack rides, and we want to feature our downtown as well with our revitalization work being completed."

Laurel's inclusion in the BRAN schedule came after the community hosted a Nebraska United Methodist bike ride last summer, Virgil said.

"There were some people who were here on that bike ride and enjoyed their stay here, and word got out, and they were encouraged to select Laurel as one of the host cities for this tour," he said.

The bike tour begins in Rushville and treks along the northern part of the state on this year's route. The tour will make stops in Cody, Springview, Atkinson and Verdigre before reaching Laurel. From there, bikers will stop in Lyons before completing their journey in Waterloo.

One of the bigger challenges will be in finding a place for all those bikers and support teams to crash for the night. Virgil said the city is working with the school, which will provide space on

Resignations, building projects on board agenda

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

The resignation of long-time Wayne Elementary School Librarian Claudia Koeber and the acceptance of bids on two projects within the district were among the highlights of Monday's meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education.

The board accepted, with regrets, the resignation of Koeber, effective at the end of the 2013-2014 school year. She has been employed with the district for 27 1/2 years.

The board also approved the hiring of Alex Wieland for the position of 9-12 instrumental music teacher. Wieland is a graduate of Wayne High School and Wayne State College and has been employed with the Stuart school system for several years.

A considerable amount of Monday's meeting was spent discussing two projects to be undertaken this summer.

The first of those is a heating, air conditioning, ventilation (HVAC) project for the air conditioning of the gyms at both the high school and elementary school, a new ventilation system in the locker rooms at the high school and heating and air conditioning work in lecture hall/auditorium at the high school.

The bid for the work was awarded to Otte Construction of Wayne with the project expected to be completed prior to the start of the 2014-2015 school year.

Discussion was held on the benefits of completing both the work in the high school gym and the lecture hall at the same time to avoid additional costs in the future and the need to make sure the work is completed in a timely manner.

"After our last building experience, (the building addition at the elementary school and the construction of the junior high not being completed on time), I am concerned about getting this project done on time and doing what's best for our kids," board member Ken Jorgensen said.

Keith Moje, owner of Otte Construction, spoke with the board about the project and said his company has done projects similar to this in the past, and he (Moje) would work closely with others involved in the project and said "scheduling, coordinating and communication" are important in getting the project done on time.

The second project on Monday's agenda was the track at the school.

Bids for track re-surfacing, a new high jump pit, work on the shot put area and other parts of the track, as well as alternate bids for cement work around the track, a retaining wall and structural spray to seal the track, were received and reviewed.

The low bid for the project was received by Fisher Track. The base bid of $192,200 will be paid for by the Wayne Community Schools Foundation, in part with funds received from Dennis Kern, for whom the track has been named.

The remainder of the project costs, $70,507, will be paid for from the district's building fund.

Board members debated the idea of completing the three alternative portions of the project at the same time as the main project or waiting to complete them at a later date. It was noted that the structural surfacing portion would cost $39,719 if completed at the same time, as opposed to $60,000 if the company had to come back at a later date.

Paying for the project was debated, as it was noted that with the completion of all parts of the project would leave approximately $140,000 in the district's building

Three businesses part of recent USDA meat recall

Three area businesses were cited in a recent recall of meat and meat-related products that were recalled by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Approximately 8.7 million pounds of meat and meat products were recalled by Rancho Feeding Corporation of Petaluma, Calif. The meat and meat products were primarily recalled from convenience stores and filling stations, and no illnesses have been reported as the result of consumption of any of the products.

A total of 131 stores in Nebraska were among the 3,600 retailers in 36 states and Guam that were part of the recall. Among the Nebraska businesses were Sinclair and G's Quick Stop in Wayne and Allen's Countryside Gas.

Originally, about 40,000 pounds of beef were recalled in January, and that recall was expanded to the present total a month later on fears the meat in question came from "diseased and unsound" animals that were not inspected

WSC art professor earns prestigious award

The National Art Education Association has named Dr. Pearl Hansen of Wayne State College as the 2014 Nebraska Art Educator of the Year Award.

The award will be presented at the NAEA National Convention in San Diego, Calif., March 29-31.

Dr. Hansen has been a teacher at Wayne State College for 37 years.

This prestigious award, determined through a peer review of nominations, honors an outstanding member from each state or province association whose service and contribution to art education merits recognition and acclaim.

"This award is being given to recognize excellence in professional accomplishment and service by a dedicated art educator. Dr. Pearl Hansen exemplifies the highly qualified art educators active in education today: leaders, teachers, students, scholars and advocates who give their best to their students and the profession," NAEA President, Dennis Inhulsen said.

Earlier, Dr. Hansen was awarded the Nebraska Art Teacher Association (NATA) Higher Education Art Educator of the Year award and the highest award from the organization, the NATA Art Educator of the Year award in September of 2013. She was also awarded the 2001-2002 Higher Education Award from the Nebraska Art Teachers Association at the Iowa and Nebraska Art Educators conference in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Hansen was a 2011 recipient of the WSC School of Arts and Humanities Outstanding Alumni Award.

She was awarded the Nebraska State College System Board of Trustees Teaching Excellence Award for 1997 and the Outstanding Art Educator of the Year by the Nebraska Art Teachers Association in 1989. She also earned the Burlington Resources Foundation Faculty Achievement Award for the 1989-90 academic year for unusual effort devoted to quality classroom teaching, direct involvement with students and possession of high scholarly standards.

She was appointed to the position of Admiral in the Nebraska Navy, a state service award, for her services in the area of art hazards.

Hansen is a native of Wayne. She received her B.F.A.E. from Wayne State College in Art in 1971 and taught K-12 in Brisbane, Australia following graduation. Wanting to see the world, she spent a period of time backpacking through the outback of Australia, the East and Middle East and through Europe before returning to study at Kansas State University where she received her M.A. in Sculpture and Art History. She taught high school sculpture and pottery in Ralston, before returning to Wayne State College to teach in the art department and farm. She later furthered her studies at University of Nebraska in Lincoln, where she received her Ph.D. in Administration, Curriculum and Instruction with research interest in the area of art hazards. In addition to teaching at Wayne State College, she has also served as the Division Head of Fine Arts and Department Chair for the Department of Art and Design.

As a college professor, her strongest interest is that of teaching and providing integrated experiences for her students. Her teaching has consistently involved students in creating public art, which more recently has been with the support of Service Learning grants. Projects have involved art students, the community, K-12, art appreciation and elementary education students in collaborative experiences. Pearl has received numerous teaching awards at the state, regional and national levels. She is sponsor for the Student Chapter of the NA

LaVonne (Wintz) Warner

LaVonne M. Wintz Warner, 94, of Bend, Ore., died Saturday, March 1, 2014 at Partners-In-Care Hospice House of Bend.

There will be an inurnment service at Skyline Memorial Gardens in Portland this spring.

LaVonne M. Wintz Warner was born June 6, 1919 in Randolph to August and Sadie Wintz. After graduating from high school, she taught school in a one-room schoolhouse in rural Nebraska, kindergarten through eighth grade. She married Ferris W. "Jack" Warner in Cheyenne, Wyo. on July 8, 1941. After Jack's discharge from the Army, they resided in Wayne, where all four of their daughters were born. They moved to the Cedar Hills area in southwest Portland in 1957.

LaVonne was a fabulous homemaker and loving mother. She loved to dance. She made the best fried chicken in the world. She was an artist and did exquisite pastel paintings and also enjoyed china painting. She also liked refinishing antique furniture. She assisted with Jack's business in the apparel industry and loved modeling and always looking her best. She was well known in the Beaverton area for having semi-annual sample dress sales. After Jack's death in 1980, LaVonne and her youngest daughter, Jacqui, continued the family business for a few years and traveled throughout the Pacific Northwest, with LaVonne at the wheel of a 28' Cabana motorhome. After her retirement, she enjoyed traveling, spending time with her children and grandchildren, and going to Reno and Las Vegas with her companion. She loved Kauai and visited there numerous times where her daughter Suzanne lived.

In 2009, LaVonne moved to the Tumalo area of Bend with her daughter, Jacqui, and son-in-law, Randy. She enjoyed spending time on the computer, checking her Facebook page, bird watching, and going on drives. Although she had numerous health problems, she rarely complained and always had a positive attitude and a beautiful smile.

Survivors include daughters Barbara Thomas of Bend, Ore.; Suzanne M.M. Warner of Phoenix, Ore.; Jane (Randy) Miller of Terrebonne, Ore.; and Jacquelyn (Randy) Robinson of Bend, Ore.; seven grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and two great-great grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband, F.W. Jack Warner in 1980; her parents; sisters, Bernadette Huwaldt and Dorothy Wattier; brother, Herbert "Bud" Wintz; grandson, Tyrel Miller, and great-great granddaughter, SaRenaty Bristow.

Donations may be made to the National Stroke Association or Partners in Care Hospice House of Bend. Condolences may be sent to 64141 Tumalo Rim Dr, Bend, Ore. 97701.

Memorials may be directed in care of the family for a later designation.

Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne. Hasemann Funeral Home in Wayne was in charge arrangements.

Northeast Community College to institute tobacco-free policy

In recent years, the number of higher education institutions adopting policies which prohibit smoking or tobacco use anywhere on their property has grown dramatically.

Effective Aug. 1, 2014, Northeast Community College will modify its smoke-free policy to a tobacco-free policy.

"Becoming a tobacco-free college is more than posting signs. In this learning environment, you will need to help people learn to conduct themselves in ways that will help them be successful," said Ty Patterson, executive director for the National Center for Tobacco Policy, during a visit to the Northeast campus in Norfolk. "We don't want people to be confused about whether or not they have to go along with a policy."

Patterson, who was in Norfolk to meet with Northeast faculty and staff, College partners and community members, said policies restricting smoking inside of buildings have been in effect for decades. Policies restricting smoking in open spaces began appearing when smokers began to congregate at building entrances and exits. He said such policies usually prohibited smoking within a specified distance from entrances and exits, or under building overhangs. Northeast's current smoke-free-policy allows smoking at a minimum of 10-feet away from the exterior of a building.

By 2007, approximately 300 higher education institutions reported they had smoke-free or tobacco-free campus policies in place. As of April, 2013, The Association of Non-Smoker's Rights reported over 1,100 colleges and universities had adopted such policies.

Patterson said the terms tobacco-free and smoke-free are often confused. "Here, tobacco-free means no use of tobacco or any product that stimulates tobacco; smoke-free means no smoking of tobacco or use of any product that stimulates smoking. The exceptions we advocate are the use of FDA (Federal Drug Administration) approved cessation devices and the supervised use of tobacco in authorized religious ceremonies."

Patterson said the question most often associated with tobacco-free policies is "How do you enforce such a policy?" He said, "As institutions get serious about implementing such policies, critical thinking must be employed to decide the best policy and how to make it work. Education about the policy is crucial. Moving quickly leads to non-compliance which saps the will to support the policy."

Patterson said there are significant reasons why anyone would object to this sort of policy if they had not given much thought to it. "The question is we really don't know how many people have thought about it. Critical thinking requires all of us to suspend our own judgments and revisit the issue objectively as much as we can. Many people who will object to this philosophically are people who already know that they could probably do more critical thinking about it."

Time and the proper attitude are everything to achieve compliance, Patterson said. "Education helps people understand why the policy is being adopted. Time is needed to educate employees, students, alumni, community members, visitors, vendors, etc. Time also creates a sense of inevitability. Some who disagree with the policy will come to accept it over time. Attitude is important too. It helps no one to demonize tobacco users. It accomplishes little to argue with those who disagree," he said. "An attitude of respect and thoughtfulness toward others not only reduces reaction formation, it teaches by example."

Dr. Michael Chipps, Northeast president, said he understands this is not an easy policy to implement, but it is necessary for the health benefits and respect of others. "From my past experiences of where similar policies have been instituted, it has worked! We don't plan to be disrespectful to tobacco users, but we will simply do what we can to provide gentle reminders of the policy. I believe after a few months, people will be accustomed to the fact that tobacco use is not allowed on any of our college properties, including the extended campuses."

Chipps said this is also an effort at better promoting health, wellness and a healthy environment at the College. "This is a practice that we can develop and implement that will help our college rise to a greater level of operation."

Northeast Community College is assisting its employees who use tobacco products with cessation classes this spring, according to Dr. Karen Severson, vice president of student services. "The seven-week 'Freedom from Tobacco' program emphasizes that quitting tobacco and maintaining abstinence is a learning process where individuals must learn to manage nicotine addiction, unlearn automatic behaviors of tobacco use and substitute healthy new alternatives. Fees for the class were waived for many of the first people to register for the program," she said. The program is sponsored by the American Lung Association and Faith Regional Health Services."

Pet of the Week

This week's Pet of the Week at Tenderheart Animal Rescue is Booker, a 4-5 year old male cat with an easy-going personality. His favorite thing to do is to curl up in the sun with his buddy, Otis. He will take a lap when it is available and purr you a song. A bit shy, he is probably best in a quieter household.

For more information or to adopt Booker, call (402) 369-6030.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By LOWELL JOHNSON
City Administrator

City Council Meetings

Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Town Hall Meetings in Southeast Wayne

The southeast quadrant of Wayne is eligible for separate federal grant funding for community improvement projects such as recreation improvements, tornado shelters, replacement of street, sidewalk, water and sewer lines, demolition and cleanup of problem structures.

A survey was completed during the last two weeks and a series of town hall meetings were held this week to find out if there is interest in submitting an application a grant and what the neighborhood would like to see.

Common topics mentioned were:

- Fixing low spots in streets where water stands;
- Clean-up of sub-standard buildings and code enforcement of building conditions;
- Tornado shelters in the recreation areas;
- Police enforcement of renters parking over sidewalks;
- Police enforcement of snow removal from sidewalks;
- Different architectural and parking requirements for multi-unit housing;
- More jobs available;
- Enforcement of the number of un-related renters in a house

Program at WSC allows for remote piano auditions

Yamaha has launched its Disklavier Education Network (www.YamahaDEN.com), an ambitious web initiative poised to change the way schools, educators and students collaborate with each other, conduct master classes over the Web and audition students, thanks to the company's Internet-connected reproducing piano.

Wayne State College is among those that will reap the benefits of this program.

The Yamaha piano was acquired for the Wayne State music department, thanks to the Wayne State Foundation.

The initial focus of the new website is on the world's first online college piano audition program that replicates an in-person performance. Working in partnership with 18 community colleges and universities along with 27 audition sites, Yamaha is now offering young pianists the opportunity to record video-synchronized auditions on Disklavier PRO reproducing pianos that are shared with college admissions and scholarship committees over the Internet.

At their convenience, audition committees will be able to access these time-shifted performances via the cloud, watching the students play on a large screen while their own piano reproduces these performances as though the student was in the room.

"Not only will the DEN audition process allow us to connect with a far greater pool of applicants, but it will also get the word out more on our program, which is a welcomed competitive advantage," Dr. Linda Christiansen of Wayne State College said. "Instead of a question about traveling distances, this enables a virtually global network and a connection between our program, students and the entire world of music like never before."

First introduced 25 years ago, the Disklavier has earned a formidable reputation at colleges and universities around the world both for its artistic qualities and its ability to reproduce accurate, note-for-note performances – ideal in the sharing of lesson and performance content.

Now in its fifth generation of refinements, the Disklavier has designed with powerful networking capability that enables two or more instruments to be connected over the Internet via Yamaha's proprietary RemoteLive technology, which makes the Disklavier Education Network (DEN) service possible.

This enables pianists to perform live in one location, while their exact keystrokes and pedal movements are transmitted in real time to other instruments located anywhere else in the world, along with synchronized video. The pianists' keystrokes are then faithfully reproduced, note for note, in real time (via MIDI data) on the remote instrument, as if they were there in person, while they can be seen and heard on an adjacent monitor in perfect sync with the remote piano performance.

Some of the premier music programs in the country are already participating in the Disklavier College Audition program, and leading educators are hailing its advantages both to work with students via remote instruction as well as to provide an unprecedented remote audition process for potential students that parallels an in-person performance.

In addition to the Audition Program, Yamaha DEN member institutions and individuals participate in long distance lessons, master classes, and concert broadcasts, contribute recorded materials—such as instrumental and vocal accompaniments—to a community archive, share technical tips and "best practices," and enjoy access to premium support services from Yamaha.

Wayne physicians, assistants join Faith Regional Physician Services

The physicians and physician assistants serving the Wayne area will soon be joining the Faith Regional Physician Services.

In an announcement from Faith Regional Health Services on March 6, it was noted that primary care physicians Melissa Dobbins, D.O., James Lindau, M.D., Ben Martin, M.D., Mark McCorkindale, M.D., and Sam Recob, M.D., will join Faith Regional Physician Services in May 2014.

Prior to joining Faith Regional Physician Services, these physicians have been employed by Mercy Health System of Sioux City, Iowa. Joining the physicians will also be physician assistants Anne Liska and Gary West who are also currently employed by Mercy Health System.

All of these providers will continue to provide family medicine services at clinics in Wayne, Laurel, Wakefield and Wisner. Faith Regional Physician Services and Mercy Medical Services are working toward a May 1 transition in which Faith Regional would begin operating these clinics.

"We see this as a good opportunity for us to continue to enhance the care we provide in the communities we serve," said Dr. Sam Recob, who serves patients in Laurel and Wayne. "This is a natural relationship for us that will ultimately benefit our patients," added Dr. Mark McCorkindale of Wayne.

Dermatologist to provide services here

Indy Chabra, M.D., Ph.D., a board certified dermatologist at Midlands Clinic in Dakota Dunes, S.D., will begin providing his expertise in the Wayne area.

Dr. Chabra will begin seeing patients on March 26 and is scheduled to be in Wayne the fourth Tuesday of every month thereafter. He will be joined by Crystal Oberle, P.A.-C. They will provide a number of services for adult and children including skin cancer surgery, acne, rosacea, moles, eczema, psoriasis and cosmetic services.

Dr. Chabra completed his medical internship and residency training in dermatology at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center in Pittsburgh, Penn. After receiving his medical degree with top honors at State University of New York, he completed his Ph.D. in Molecular Microbiology and Genetics followed by his residency at University of Pittsburgh Medical Center. He enjoys a special interest in the prevention, detection and treatment of skin cancer, and is committed to providing his patients with the latest advances in dermatology. Dr. Chabra is board certified in dermatology and is also a fellow of the American Academy of Dermatology and a member of the American Society for Mohs Surgery.

Anyone interested in making an appointment with Dr. Chabra, should contact his or her health care provider or call (402) 375-7953.

Officer of Faith Regional Physician Services said that Faith Regional and Mercy representatives will be working together to ensure a smooth transition for all patients served by these clinics. "We are excited to welcome all of these providers to the Physician Services team," Roche said, "and we are looking forward to building strong relationships with them and their patients."

Providence Medical Center in Wayne is also supportive of the new relationship. "This new connection of providers will help improve collaboration and continuity of care while keeping locally managed, high quality medicine close to residents of northeast Nebraska," said Tom Lee, Providence Medical Center's CEO.

"We are looking forward to continuing to build relationships that help residents in the region access specialty medicine while maintaining personal and compassionate care they currently have with their primary care providers," Roche said.

At the Nebraska Regional Braille Challenge Maura won her division against other students in grades seven through nine, making her potentially eligible for the National Braille Challenge. The top-scoring students from across the country will be invited to competition in Los Angeles, Calif. in June. Maura was recognized at the recent Honor Coffee by Special Education Director Misty Bear.

fund at the end of this fiscal year.

Preliminary data was presented, and discussion was held on developing a preschool for the district.

Board members felt the district needs to continue to move forward on the preschool but indicated a realistic goal would be to have the preschool in place by the 2015-2016 school year.

The board received a $2,000 check from Dan Wibben, manager of Shopko. The money, which came from the Shopko Foundation, will be used for technology within the district.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan updated the board on the district's accreditation status and noted that the accreditation team will be visiting the district and the community April 27-30. The documentation the district needs to provide will be submitted in the near future, and arrangements will be made to meet with specific groups during the visit.

Lenihan told the board, "I feel good about where we are in the process and, having just been a part of an accreditation team, have a better understanding of the process."

The board will hold a State of the Schools meeting on Monday, March 24 at 6 p.m. in the high school gym. All patrons of the district are encouraged to attend.

No new trial for Wayne native in prison

A request for a new trial by one of two Wayne natives serving life in a South Dakota prison for a 1985 murder was turned down despite new information regarding hair samples taken from the victim.

Lewis Ashker and Kurt Novaock, both of Wayne, were sentenced to life in prison for the 1985 slaying of Jerry Pilhal of Delmont, S.D. The two have been in prison since their sentencing in 1986.

Ashker asked for a new trial after successfully arguing that DNA testing on hairs from the crime scene showed he was not there. According to The Mitchell (S.D.) Republic, several hairs in evidence were tested in an Arizona laboratory, but all tests were either inconclusive or showed certain hairs were that of the victim.

The two killers were sentenced after killing Pilhal during a home invasion while attempting to steal his gun collection. Authorities say Pilhal was stabbed 21 times.

In filing his decision Monday,

Judge Bruce Anderson said that there was no compelling reason to grant a new trial for Ashker, despite the hair information.

"Nothing in the DNA testing that has been completed by the Arizona laboratory exonerates (Ashker)," Anderson stated in his written decision, adding that DNA evidence would need to be considered with all other evidence to determine whether or not a new trial would result in an acquittal of the murder charges.

Ashker filed a request last summer to test the hairs found on Pilhal's body using updated DNA technology. The results came back earlier this year that led to Ashker's filing for a request to overturn his conviction, which was denied by Judge Anderson.

Virgil said a number of committees are being set up to take on everything from entertainment to providing meals for the bikers and their teams. They also plan on sending a group of people up to Verdigre the day before to promote Laurel's offerings that they will see when they reach town the following day.

"We're working on everything from entertainment to RV storage and housing," Virgil said. "It's going to be a challenging task to take on such a large number of people, but we're excited that so many people are willing to take this on."

In addition to being a host site, Virgil hopes riders who visit Laurel for the BRAN tour take a little more away from their stop in Laurel.

"They always have a competition where riders select the best host community, so we're trying to do everything we can to make it a great experience for the riders and help them remember that Laurel is a nice place to come and stay," he said. "And we hope those people who visit will remember the community and come back and visit, even when they're not riding."

Blue Devils peaking at the right time heading into state

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Coaches talk a lot about wanting their teams to peak at the end of the season.

Looking at the field for the Class C-1 state boys basketball tournament, it's hard to find a team that is playing their best basketball of the season better than the Wayne High Blue Devils.

The 23-4 Blue Devils go into Thursday morning's 9 a.m. match-up with Cozad hot on the heels of what has been a dominating post-season to date. The Blue Devils' average margin of victory in the post-season is more than 31 points and includes impressive wins over West Point-Beemer and Norfolk Catholic that got the Blue Devils to state for the third time in the past four seasons.

"We feel good about the momentum we have, and part of it is the kids buying into the system and not looking at the scoreboard and just playing for the next play," coach Rob Sweetland said. "These guys have developed the skill of playing the next play and letting the score take care of itself, and they're playing with a lot of confidence, which is what you've got to have."

There is no doubt the team is riding a confident wave right now, coming into state on a six-game winning streak after losing in the Mid State Conference finals to Boone Central/Newman Grove, who made it to state as a wild card. The Blue Devils open play against the Haymakers, who are making their first state tournament appearance since 1979 after beating Valentine 66-57 in the district finals.

While the Haymakers lack the state tournament experience of the Blue Devils, they did experience a state title in football this past fall, which tells Sweetland that his team will face a tough first-round

Sweetland making most of great opportunity

Rob Sweetland was THAT guy.

You know him – he's the guy who was waaaaaay down on the end of the bench when the varsity boys basketball team took the floor. Good enough to be on the varsity roster but was the first one in line when they ran out of uniforms.

Technically speaking, Sweetland was part of a state tournament team during his high school days. And while he didn't get to suit up for the big game, to have an opportunity, many years later, to be on the bench as a head coach is something that defies description.

After being a longtime assistant to Rocky Ruhl, Sweetland got the keys to this souped-up sports car and has been outstanding in leading the Blue Devils back to Lincoln for another crack at ending a dry spell of almost six decades for the Wayne High basketball program.

You have to go all the way back to that March afternoon in 1956 when the Blue Devils beat Hebron 61-56 to win the Class B state title to find the last time a Wayne High basketball team even played for a state title, much less won one.

Sweetland was still a number of years away from playing ball at Wayne High at the time, but now here he is with a chance to do something he's always wanted to do – coach a boys basketball team to a state championship.

It's not something he's entirely new at . . . you may recall that he's got another little coaching gig during the fall here in Wayne. You might have heard of the Blue Devil softball team? Winners of two state titles and three runner-up trophies in the past 11 years? Eleven trips to state in the program's 12-year history?

Yeah, it might be his first time around the horn in THIS particular bull ring, but it certainly ain't his first rodeo.

Wildcats face Pittsburg State in D-II Central Region opener

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

This is where Chris Kielsmeier wants his team to finish every season.

For the fourth time in his six years as the Wayne State women's basketball coach, the Wildcats are a part of March Madness and playing in the NCAA Div. II Central regional, which begins Friday at Harding University in Searcy, Ark.

At 27-4, the Wildcats are the fourth seed in the eight-team tournament that, Kielsmeier says, should be the benchmark for every Wayne State women's basketball team.

"We want the NCAA tournament to be what our program is defined by," he said in his pre-tournament interview on the Wayne State Coaches Show on mywaynenews.com this week. "The conference tournament is important, but the NCAA tournament is the best of the best and you want to get there and go win games. We want our program to be defined by that, so it's exciting to see your name called."

Wayne State's last trip to regionals was a memorable one, as the Wildcats hosted and won the Central Region in 2012 to earn the school's first-ever Elite Eight appearance, capping a 32-3 season with a loss in the quarterfinals to Bentley University.

This year, the Wildcats will face another team that was part of that 2012 Elite Eight in Pittsburg (Kan.) State. It is a matchup of former CISC foes and a No. 4 vs. No. 5 battle that will potentially put the winner of Friday's 2:30 p.m. match-up in a Saturday semifinal against top-seeded Emporia (Kan.) State.

Kielsmeier said that, at this point in the season, it doesn't matter where in the eight-team bracket his team is seeded, because he knows they're facing tough competition no matter who the opponent is.

"Really, if you're not the host team it doesn't matter," he said. "All these teams are really good." See WILDCATS, Page 3B

Wildcat trio looking for All-American efforts

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

When does 3 = 5? It's something of a math riddle, but the equation makes sense when you look at what the Wayne State indoor track and field team is taking to the NCAA Div. II Indoor Nationals in Winston-Salem, N.C.

The Wildcats will have five entries among three athletes during the two-day national meet, and all five have legitimate chances at earning All-American honors and being in the hunt for a possible national championship.

ers like Luke Rethwisch and Brook Bowers who come off the bench and give an added lift to the team.
There wasn't a lot of tweaking that needed to be done with this year's team to try and improve on last year's third-place finish, but Sweetland has certainly left his imprint on this year's team and allowed them a little more freedom to create on the fly. The result has been an impressive 23-4 campaign and the No. 2 seed in this week's state tournament.

Not bad for that guy who was sitting in street clothes on the other end of the bench all those years ago. "It's been a blast, and it's everything I thought it would be," he said. "Obviously, when you earn a trip to state, it makes it that much more fulfilling, but the reason I got into coaching in the first place was to be a boys basketball coach, so (making it to state) is a dream come true."

Wayne State splits twinbill with Wayne State in Florida

After a slow start on the road, the Wayne State baseball team posted an exciting extra-inning win and split a doubleheader with their namesake to improve to 4-5.

Playing in the Dunn Hospitality Classic in Evansville, Ind., the Wildcats opened the weekend tournament with a disappointing 13-6 loss to McKendree University of Illinois.

Wayne State's defense was quite generous to its opponents, as seven Wildcat errors resulted in eight unearned runs that were more than enough to give McKendree the easy win.

Wayne State took a 4-0 lead early with two runs in the second and third inning. Jake Perez doubled home Brandon Lalk and scored on a McKendree error in the second, while Curtis Bussard doubled home Mike Servais and scored on a single by Lalk in the third.

McKendree came back with six runs in the fourth inning to take control of the game. Wayne State got the lead down to 6-5 in the fourth when Zak Leighton singled home Kevin Andersen, but McKendree scored once in the sixth and twice in the seventh to take the lead for good. Lalk hit a solo homer in the seventh to close out the Wildcats' scoring.

McKendree outhit Wayne State 15-12 in the game. Lalk was 3-for-4 with two RBIs while Leighton was 2-for-5 with an RBI to lead the Wayne State attack. Eric Browning took the loss on the hill, allowing six runs, only two earned, in four innings of work.

Later on Saturday, Wayne State dropped its second game of the tournament, as Southern Indiana dominated the Wildcats in a 12-3 decision.

Southern Indiana outhit the Wildcats 16-11 in the contest. Wayne State got as close as 4-2 in the fourth inning, highlighted by a Nick McIntee RBI single and a sacrifice fly by Michael Herman, before Southern Indiana scored four in the bottom of the inning to take control of the game.

Bussard was 2-for-3 and Perez went 2-for-4 to lead the Wayne State attack. John Roberts took the loss on the mound, allowing eight runs and 11 hits with three strikeouts over four innings of work.

Wayne State avenged its earlier loss to McKendree to close out the tournament on Sunday, winning a 1-0, 11-inning thriller.

The game was scoreless until the 11th inning when Wayne State finally broke the deadlock. Bussard doubled to right-center field to open the inning, moved to third on a bunt single by C.J. Nolen and scored on a fielder's choice by Perez.

Aaron Molinaro was 2-for-4 to lead a five-hit attack for the Wildcats. Dylan McGill worked 6 2/3 innings in a solid start and was eventually relieved by Ryan Zweck, who was credited with the win. Bussard worked a scoreless 11th inning to get the save.

On Tuesday, Wayne State opened up its spring break trip in Florida with a doubleheader split against its Michigan namesake, Wayne State University, at the Chain of Lakes Complex in Winter Haven, Fla. The Warriors won the first game 7-4 before the Wildcats came back to take the finale in eight innings, 3-2.

Wayne State of Michigan limited their Nebraska foes to four hits in the opener. The game was tied 2-2 after three innings before the Warriors took the lead for good with two runs in the fourth and three in the fifth.

Bussard took care of most of the offense for the Wildcats, going 3-for-3 with two runs scored. Nolen was 1-for-2 with two RBIs. Nick Ragan took the loss on the mound, allowing four runs on five hits in four innings of work.

In the nightcap, the Wildcats let a 2-0 lead get away before winning it in extra innings. They got two runs in the second on a two-run double by Alex Kreft, scoring Molinaro and Perez, but the Warriors got single runs in the fourth and sixth innings to tie the game at 2-2.

In the eighth, Jake Runer doubled and Chris May hit a bunt single to put runners on the corners. Herman was intentionally walked and Perez followed with a sacrifice fly to break the 2-2 tie and help the Wildcats to the win.

Perez was 2-for-3 with an RBI to lead a seven-hit attack for the Wildcats. Bussard got the win in relief of Matt Russell, who worked five innings; and Matt Schultz, who relieved Russell in the sixth.

Wayne State continues play in Florida this week and plays their first home game of the year next Saturday and Sunday, March 22-23, hosting Minnesota Duluth in a pair of NSIC doubleheaders at the Chapman Complex.

Peaking

matchup.

"They're really athletic, quick and strong kids, and you don't win a state football title without that," he said. "They play a tough man-to-man defense and get after you, and they've hit pretty well from 3-point range, so they're capable shooters and we need to put a complete game together."

Cozad will rely on 6-foot-2 junior guard Conor Young (14.6 points, 5.1 rebounds) and 6-foot senior guard Jake Paulsen (11.9 points) to do a lot of their damage on the outside. They have a solid 1-2 punch underneath as well with 6-foot-5 senior Jacob Stallbaumer and 6-foot-3 junior Jason Finnegan, both of whom average 5.4 points and 3.7 rebounds.

Cozad will have to figure out a way to contain the three-headed monster in Wayne's offense. Junior Ben Hoskins (17.6 points, 9.2 rebounds) and senior Jalen Barry (17.1 points, 4.9 assists), along with senior Jared Anderson (7.7 points, 3.5 rebounds), are all capable of coming up big on the offensive end, and seniors Kaje Maly, Trevor Pecena and Luke Rethwisch have all made significant contributions at different times during the season, making it difficult for opposing defenses to key on Wayne's three main offensive threats.

Sweetland said he hopes his team will be able to spread the ball out and create some opportunities to show their basketball skills, something the Wayne High coach feels his team brings to the table better than anybody else in the eight-team field.

"All eight teams are tough, but as far as basketball skill level, I think we may have a little bit more, and if we can turn it into a basketball game, we've played physical teams and we can execute our basketball skills and utilize those."

And while Sweetland and his team are keeping their focus on a game-by-game basis, there are high hopes that this team can end a 58-year dry spell of state championships for the boys basketball program, which is seeking its first title since the 1956 team beat Hebron 61-56 to win the Class B state title.

"I think it would mean the world to the kids and some of the people around the program if we were to win it," Sweetland said. "It hasn't happened in a lot of peoples' lifetimes, so it would be something the community would be proud of. It's one of our goals, and if we're playing for it on Saturday and it goes our way, it's going to be one of the more talked-about things that has happened around here in a while."

Softball team wins first four in Florida

The Wayne State softball team got their Florida spring break trip off on the right foot, winning their first four games in the four-day, eight-game journey to improve to 7-3 on the season.

On Sunday, Wayne State opened play in the National Training Center Spring Games in Clermont, Fla. with a come-from-behind 4-3 win over West Liberty (W. Va.) University, scoring all of their runs in the seventh inning to gain the win.

West Liberty scored three runs in the first inning and made that lead stand up until the seventh when the Wildcats came from behind to earn the win.

Lexie Loos and Kelcie Bormann both walked to start the seventh and advanced on a Kaiti Williams single to load the bases. Melanie Alyea and Sam O'Brien both had RBI singles to bring home Loos and Bormann, and Megan Hagemann came through with a two-run single to help Wayne State rally for the win.

Wayne State outthit West Liberty 10-6, with Williams, Alyea and Jordan King each notching two hits. Sara Scheffert got the win in the circle with a complete-game six-hitter, striking out three and walking five.

Later on Sunday, Bormann threw a two-hitter and struck out 12 while helping her cause with a two-run homer to help Wayne State beat St. Thomas Aquinas College of New York 7-1.

Bormann took a no-hitter into the seventh before St. Thomas recorded two hits and their only run of the game. Bormann hit her two-run homer over the wall in center field in the third to give Wayne State a 4-0 lead, with the first two runs scored on a Vicki Nielsen double in the second inning. King and Bormann both had RBI hits in the fourth inning to close out the scoring.

Wayne State had 11 hits in the win, with Bormann, Alyea and King each getting two hits. Bormann had three RBIs for the Wildcats.

On Monday, Wayne State held off a late rally to beat Queens College of New York 4-3 for their third win of the Florida trip.

Wayne State scored all of their runs in the third inning, highlighted by a two-run double from Alyea and an RBI triple by O'Brien, who later scored on an illegal pitch.

Queens made a game of it, scoring three runs in the bottom of the seventh. They had the tying run at third base before Bormann was able to get out of the jam and give Wayne State the win.

Wayne State had five hits in the win, highlighted by Alyea's two-RBI double and O'Brien's RBI triple. Bormann also had a double and Loos and Williams had singles in the win.

Later on Monday, Alyea, Kylee Simpson and Alex Schmidt made the bottom of the lineup look good, going a combined 7-for-8 at the plate to help Wayne State to a 5-2 win over Tiffin of Ohio.

Wayne State got three runs in the second to take the lead for good, highlighted by RBI singles from Simpson and King. Alyea had an RBI double and Williams recorded an RBI single in the third to make it 5-0, and the Wildcats cruised to the win from there.

Schmidt was 3-for-3, and Alyea and Simpson each added two hits to a 10-hit attack. Sara Scheffert got the win in the circle with a complete-game six-hitter, striking out four and allowing one walk.

The Wildcats were to return to action Wednesday and continue their spring break trip through the end of the week. They play their first home games of the season Tuesday with a 2 p.m. doubleheader against Washburn University at the Chapman Complex.

and the majority of the teams in our region have been nationally ranked all year. We know that whoever we're playing is going to be a really good basketball team and we're going to have to play well to beat them."

Indeed, five of the eight teams in the Central Regional were ranked in the last coaches poll, including No. 7 Emporia State, No. 8 Central Missouri, No. 11 Wayne State, No. 19 Northern State and No. 22 Pittsburg State. Concordia-St. Paul, which is seeded seventh in the regional tournament, was ranked at one point in the season, and Minnesota State, which did not make the regional, was ranked 20th.

"It's unfortunate for Minnesota State that they didn't get in, but that's the nature of playing in this region, and you know that going in," Kielsmeier said. "We're lucky to be one of the 64 teams to be in the tournament."

The same can be said for Pittsburg State, who had to wait for the announcement Sunday night and will match up with the Wildcats in a 2:30 p.m. game on Friday, a game that appears, on paper, to be a pretty even battle.

Kielsmeier said the Gorillas are a deep team that will play 10 players a significant number of minutes. In fact, no player averages more than 29 minutes a game, and 10 play at least 12 minutes per contest.

"They're a really deep team and play so many players a number of minutes, and they're a very similar team to us," Kielsmeier said.

Pittsburg State is led by All-American candidate Lizzy Jeronimus, a 5-foot-11 junior who averages 18.6 points and 6.6 rebounds a game to lead the Gorillas.

"She's a great player and is explosive to the basket, and she's a difficult matchup for us, and we'll have to make sure we do a good job on her," Kielsmeier said.

Cathy Brugman (9.4 points, 4.1 rebounds) and Antqunita Reed (8.6/3.6) are also capable of adding scoring punch, and Brugman, Alexa Bordewick and Morgan Westhoff are all dangerous shooters from the perimeter, each of them recording more than 30 3-point shots this season.

"For us, it's about our team defense, and we don't want to try and focus on stopping just one thing. We want to be solid all around and make it difficult for them to get the shots they want," Kilsmeier said in assessing Wayne State's plan to defend the Gorillas.

Although they shoot just 43 percent from the field, Pittsburg State commits less than 13 turnovers per contest and averages about 38 rebounds per game - numbers that indicate to Kielsmeier a team that doesn't shoot itself in the foot very often.

"They're smart and don't beat themselves, and they don't waste possessions," he said. "They make it difficult for you to get easy shots, and they want to force you into a half-court game, so it's two similar styles, and it's going to come down to who minimizes mistakes."

Minimizing mistakes is something Kielsmeier said his team failed to do in its 75-69 overtime loss to Sioux Falls in the quarterfinals of the Northern Sun Conference tournament two weeks ago and is something they'll need to do if they expect to go deep in this tournament.

"You have to play smart and play at a really high level this time of year, and I like our team's ability to beat anybody if we play smart and limit our mistakes," he said.

Wayne State's balance on offense is going to be important to the Wildcats' regional title hopes. The Wildcats' top three players - Jordan Spencer (15.0), Millie Niggeling (11.6) and Ashton Yossi (11.1) - all average in double figures, and they have four other players who have shown they are capable of putting up some solid offensive numbers when called upon.

"Our offensive balance is something we've enjoyed all year," he said, noting the Wildcats' 72-point per game average this season. "Our depth is one of our biggest strengths and we have a number of players we have confidence in who can go off at any time. It's very exciting to know that anybody can step up and be your leading scorer."

Kielsmeier said the Central Region is arguably the toughest of the

Trio

Senior Carly Fehringer and junior Sara Wells will both compete in the weight throw and shot put during the national meet, while Wells' older sister – senior Emily Wells – has a chance to give Wayne State a trio of All-Americans in the weight throw.

“With Carly and Sara both going in two events, they are both returning All-Americans and have their goals set very high, and Sara has been throwing great as well so it's good to have that experience going in,” coach Marlon Brink said.

All three Wildcats will be busy on Friday, as they compete in the women's weight throw beginning at 4 p.m. CDT – an event that all three have proven to be able to compete among the nation's best.

Fehringer is competing in the national meet in this event for the third time and is hoping to improve on last year's fourth-place All-American finish. The Wayne native has a best mark this season of 63 feet, 8 3/4 and comes into the national meet with the fourth-longest heave of the season in all of Div. II.

Brink said Fehringer has been battling through some late-season injuries, but he feels she is ready to let a big one fly with a national title on the line.

“Coach (Brett) Suckstorf has worked with her and backed her off on lifting a little bit to help her peak at nationals, and I think she's coming around,” Brink said. “We're expecting some great things from her in both throwing events.”

The Wells sisters are also entering the event on a wave of momentum. Emily Wells won the NSIC indoor title last week with a season-best effort of 59 feet, 1 1/2 inches, and Sara Wells earned the last spot in the national competition after posting a season-best effort of 57 feet, 8 1/4 inches at the conference meet – numbers that Brink feels could put them in the mix for a top-eight finish and All-American honors.

“Usually, if you do what you did to qualify (for nationals), you stand a good chance at making All-American and finishing in the top eight,” Brink said. “Carly has thrown at a super-high level for much of the year, and if both Emily and Sara do what they did at conference, they could make All-American as well.”

Saturday at 3:40 p.m. CDT, Fehringer and Sara Wells will compete in the women's shot put, an event where both have chances at finishing in the All-American race as well.

Sara Wells is ranked fifth in the nation with her best throw of 50 feet, 2 1/2 inches at the USD Twilight Meet on Feb. 21, which was an automatic qualifying mark for nationals. Fehringer's best throw came at the Concordia Invitational a week earlier at 48 feet, 7 1/2 inches.

“Sara has been throwing great and got that huge breakthrough going over the 50-foot plateau, and Carly has improved more than two feet from last year, which is a big jump. They're both throwing very well, so they both have realistic shots at making All-American as well,” Brink said.

Youth track meet

More than 140 young athletes participated on March 7 during the second Annual Wayne State College Youth Track Meet. Wayne State College coach Marlon Brink directed a number of student and community volunteers to accomplish the event at the WSC Recreation Center indoor track on campus. Children ages 6-14 from Wayne and a number of surrounding communities including Laurel, Winside and Wakefield competed in up to three events. Events that were part of the meet included the 50-meter dash, 200-meter dash, 400-meter dash, 800-meter run, 55-meter hurdles, long jump, shot put and high jump. The Wayne Optimist Club helped support the events.

Suckstorf named coach of the year

Wayne State assistant track and field coach Brett Suckstorf has been named the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association Central Region Women's Assistant Coach of the Year.

Suckstorf, a native of Pierce and in his fourth year as an assistant throws coach with the Wildcat track and field program, coached five qualifiers for this weekend's NCAA Div. II Indoor National Track and Field Championships in Winston-Salem, N.C. Six of his throwers achieved NCAA provisional marks in the weight throw this year, and three achieved NCAA provisional marks in the shot put.

At the NSIC Indoor Championships, Suckstorf's throwers placed 1-2-3 in the shot put and 1-2-5-8 in the weight throw to account for a total of 47 points for the team.

The Wayne State women's indoor track and field team is ranked 17th in the latest USTFCCA national team computer rankings.

ence honors, while boys honorable mention nods went to Austin Connot and Brian Boese of Allen and Bryce Meis of Winside.

Wayne High spring sports kickoff is set

Wayne High School's spring sports kickoff and winter sports award night will be held Friday, March 21.

The kickoff will start at 7 p.m., and the awards will be at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym. Students in boys and girls basketball, wrestling, the She Devils dance squad and cheerleading will be recognized.

Three area alum earn academic nods

Three area members of the Northeast Community College volleyball team were honored for their academic efforts as members of the National Junior College Athletic Association Region XI academic all-region team.

First-team selections included Sarah Maxson of Wayne and Britany Sullivan of Allen. Second-team selections included Nazya Thies of Winside.

WSC tracksters earn regional nods

Three Wayne State women have earned All-Region honors announced Wednesday afternoon by the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association for the 2014 indoor track and field season.

Wildcat seniors Carly Fehringer and Emily Wells, along with junior Sara Wells, received the honors after finishing in the top five of their respective individual event.

Fehringer, a senior thrower from Wayne, earned All-Region honors in the shot put and weight throw, and Emily Wells was an All-Region honoree in the weight throw while Sara Wells collected All-Region honors in the shot put.

All three athletes have qualified for this weekend's NCAA Division II Indoor National Championships that will be held in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Area players on All-L&C teams

Several area athletes were named to the All-Lewis and Clark Conference basketball teams that were announced by conference coaches.

In the East Division, Dillan Wolfgram of Laurel-Concord/Coleridge and Evan Nicholson of Wakefield were named to the boys all-conference team, while LCC players Mitch Klooz and Jordan Jansen received honorable mention. On the girls side, Lauren Lehmkuhl and McKenzie Rusk of Wakefield and Cameron Eddie and Audra Corbit of LCC were all-conference selections, while Ellie Arduser of LCC received honorable mention.

In the Central Division, Lindsey Sullivan, Lindsey Jones and Gabby Sullivan of Allen earned all-confer-

LEDs Help You See 'Green'

Nebraska customers can save money, energy with new light incentive

Columbus, NE – On Jan. 1, 2014, Nebraska Public Power District and its wholesale customer utilities began offering incentives to residential electric customers for the purchase and installation of light-emitting diode (LED) bulbs.

At the start of this new 2014 year, final provisions of the 2007 Energy Policy Act began phasing out the standard, 60-watt, incandescent light bulb. Production and importation of the 100-watt and 75-watt standard incandescent lamps have already been closed out over the past two years under the same policy.

Fortunately, customers have an excellent alternative. City of Wayne Electric utilities will provide customers with a $5 account credit for each 60, 75, or 100-watt LED equivalent to the standard bulb they buy, with up to 10 credits available per residential account this year. Customers can purchase these LED lamps wherever they desire, but the package must be identified as ENERGY STAR® qualified.

The Environmental Protection Agency's ENERGY STAR program encourages installation of LED lamps that use 75 to 80 percent less energy than equivalent incandescent light bulbs and have a rated life that is 25 to 50 times longer. LEDs do not contain mercury, which eliminates some disposal concerns.

LED lamps offer additional advantages over compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs), which have long been touted as energy-efficient alternatives to standard light bulbs. LEDs illuminate instantly when their power switch is turned on. Their light output is not diminished in cold weather. In fact, LEDs last longer in cold areas. LEDs offer a variety of color temperatures that allow customers to match the appearance of standard incandescent bulbs or the bright white of most office environments. Many LED lamps are dimmable, but customers should confirm this prior to purchase, as manufacturers are required to indicate whether they are or not on the packaging.

NPPD and its wholesale customer utilities are contributing approximately $100,000 toward this campaign which will run through the end of December 2014. To receive the incentive, customers submit a completed program application along with a copy of their sales receipt to their local electric utility. A brochure containing the program's application form is available on NPPD's website, www.nppd.com, under "Saving Energy" and "For Your Home."

Always there when you need us, NPPD's mission is to safely generate and deliver reliable, low-cost, sustainable energy and provide outstanding customer service. Working in partnership with the state's rural public power districts, cooperatives and municipalities, NPPD helps serve an estimated 600,000 Nebraskans in 86 of the state's 93 counties with retail or wholesale electric power and energy-related products and services. For more information about NPPD visit www.nppd.com.

Witness to legend with Wayne ties

I remember, in my younger days, watching two college basketball legends battle it out for a national championship.

Not knowing much about college basketball or how the two teams got there, it was entertaining to watch Indiana State battle Michigan State for the 1979 NCAA championship. The Sycamores had a hometown hero from French Lick, Ind., by the name of Larry Bird, while the Spartans had a hometown boy of their own leading the way, a kid with the nickname of "Magic" — Earvin Johnson.

Fast forward 35 years to this past Saturday night, and I got to see a legendary basketball player perform some special magic — in person.

Doug McDermott played his final game in a Creighton uniform on Saturday in the Century Link Center in Omaha, and Kevan Weldon and I were part of the biggest-ever crowd to see ANY event in the 10-year old Omaha arena, as a standing-room-only crowd of just under 18,900 people watched one of the most prolific scorers of all time work his magic.

"Doggie McBuckets" — as Kevan called him — put on a clinic and took Providence to school Saturday night, slashing and driving and bombing and floating his way to a record-setting performance that left this longtime college sports fan shaking his head in amazement.

About the only hiccup in McDermott's game came early. He made his first bucket but then seemed to want to rush things a little too much and missed 3-4 makeable — probably the only thing that kept him from cracking the 50-point barrier.

By halftime, if you took away the 23 points that his teammates scored in the first half, McDermott and Providence would have played to a 22-22 tie. By early in the second half, it was McDermott 28, Providence 26. Providence took advantage of a 2-3 minute stretch when McDermott came off the court to build their insurmountable lead over the Creighton star.

Unfortunately for the Friars, it was too much Creighton and too much of a night for a legend for them to be much more than observers of their own demise.

When McDermott dribbled out to the top of the key, stepped back and calmly drained a 25-footer in the face of a Providence defender, he joined some very elite company as the eighth player to score 3,000 points in a career. Before the night was over, he'd pass one of basketball's all-time greats — Oscar Robertson — and another former Missouri Valley standout — Hersey Hawkins — to move into seventh place on the all-time scoring list. Depending on how far the Bluejays go in the postseason, he could be among the top five and cement his status as one of college basketball's legends.

And to think — this kid spent some of his younger days here in Wayne, America.

There was a wonderful story about McDermott and his family's younger days, which included several mentions and photos from when his dad, Greg, coached at Wayne State College. There was a picture of the McDermott boys and a young man we'll get to see play in Lincoln this week — Wayne High senior Jalen Barry — hanging out in front of one of the family's houses.

My memories of Doug's dad are not anywhere near that of those of you who lived in Wayne back in the day — I did a few interviews with the elder McDermott after some Wayne State games in the late 90s and was always impressed with the way he conducted himself and ran the Wildcats program. And yet, when I called to do an interview with Greg last year, he was as warm and friendly to talk with and fondly remembered his time in Wayne.

What has been most impressive about seeing this living legend as close as we've been able to see him, though, is that all the fame and face time and accolades haven't, for one second, changed the McDermotts. Doug is always humble and quick to share the spotlight with his team. During his speech on senior night after the win over Providence, he noted how it would not have been possible to get to 3,000 points without his teammates. The work they did together as a team not only made his historical achievements a reality, but helped make a lot of their hopes and dreams possible as well.

Kevan and I were able to make our way down to the floor after the game, hoping to shake hands with the McDermotts and briefly say hello. We caught Greg's attention very briefly, and Kevan reached out to get a fist-bump from Doug while his mom, Teresa, said hello to Kevan. Autographs and pictures with the family weren't going to be possible, as it was Senior Night and a special party was being held right after the program for the seniors and their families.

Still, while we weren't able to get a T-shirt or a cap signed, it was still a wonderful experience being able to witness, in person, one of the crowning moments of what has been a legendary career for a young man by the name of Doug McDermott.

Status quo. With only weeks remaining in the Second Session of the 103rd Nebraska Legislature, the Latin term meaning the existing state of affairs takes on an all-too-familiar presence. Filibustering and political posing have taken a toll on progress in the officially non-partisan body. It appears that a number of key issues could be left unresolved.

Weighty topics such as prison reform, fueled by the alleged four-victim murder spree of an Omaha man who many said should never have been let out of prison, has yet to be debated by the full Legislature. The last-term governor wants to replace good time with earned time. Prison officials say good time is their best incentive to control the behavior of inmates in a critically overcrowded system.

Medicaid expansion has yet to progress. Proponents see it as a way to provide insurance for all Nebraskans and take advantage of available federal dollars. Opponents link it to Obamacare and have vowed to fight it no matter the cost. At least one gubernatorial hopeful (remember, there are six Republicans and one Democrat seeking the office) has made stopping Obamacare a key platform point.

Highway bonds have been discussed but not finalized. Proponents note the declining infrastructure and the improving fiscal climate for the state as a great reason to get Nebraska's roads up to par again. But, an administration bent on tax cuts doesn't favor the highway bonds idea. The administration does favor tax reform.

But tax reform ideas have been slow to come from committee, let alone come in a recommended package of bills that would pass muster with what the governor wants and what lawmakers — a number of whom are term-limited and running for other offices — could stomach. This isn't the "House of Cards" (a popular television series about political intrigue in Washington, D.C.) and there is no power-hungry Frank Underwood (played by actor Kevin Spacey) to make such a measure magically appear with bi-partisan support and the votes to pass. Given that a specially appointed tax study committee recommended the status quo before the session started, the impetus for such reform clearly still resides in the Executive Branch.

Lawmakers traditionally spend long days (full-day floor debate began March 4) and work into the night as the session wanes. It's hard to say if a tax reform measure could muster that passionate dedication since some say it's merely an attempt by the lame-duck governor to leave a legacy. Given the choice of public safety issues such as roads funding and prison reform and some urgent agriculture-related issues such as water policy and projects, lengthy discussion on taxes could seem less than palatable. Especially to those term-limited lawmakers who are eager to get home to campaign before the May 13 primary election.

If he's left holding the bag on his favorite issue, the governor can always opt to call lawmakers back for a special session. But a special session, sandwiched between a primary and a general election, wouldn't have much more of a favorable political climate than the current regular session. Granted, fewer senators will be left in the hunt for higher office, but partisan politics will be in full sway.

As a reminder, state Sens. Beau McCoy and Tom Carlson are in the primary hunt for Governor (along with Attorney General Jon Bruning and Auditor Mike Foley), and state Sens. Charlie Janssen and Amanda McGill are seeking the Auditor's office, and Sen. Pete Pirsch is seeking the Attorney General's post.

To make something meaningful happen before the scheduled April 17 adjournment, something's gotta give.

Water-related bills in Legislature supported

By JOEL J. HANSEN
Chairman, Lower Elkhorn
Natural Resources District

Imagine waking up in the morning and turning on the faucet to brush your teeth or take a shower, only to find nothing comes out of the tap.

Imagine not even being able to flush the toilet in your own home or fill your glass with a drink of water.

This was the situation many families faced in the Lower Elkhorn NRD back in the summer of 2012. That summer, several of our farmers found their wells unable to supply water to thirsty crops as water levels dropped. While this was a time of historic drought, it opened eyes to the need to ensure a sustainable supply of our state's greatest natural resource, even in the most dire of times.

Since that time, our Board and staff have worked to limit the use of water in various areas of our NRD through management controls. Last summer, we completed a pilot project in conjunction with other NRDs to help map the aquifer in a small area around Clarkson, using new technology.

While expensive, it allowed us to better understand the amount of water available and where it was located within that area. If that information were available for our entire district, it would assist us in management decisions on where we can continue to develop the resource and where it needs to be limited.

This is just one example of the need for funding water projects. Across the state, there is a need to store or divert water during times of flooding. This allows us to protect public infrastructure, as well as private property, and provide flows in streams during times of drought later when the water is needed. It can also assist in recharging our aquifers.

Many smaller communities are finding that the structures built years ago to protect their citizens no longer meet federal standards, and they are faced with enormous costs to upgrade those aging levees. If the work is not completed, then businesses and home owners face staggering costs for flood insurance. And several communities not only face a limited supply of water, but are finding the quality of their water is in jeopardy as well.

Based upon these needs, it is imperative we find ways to fund water projects. We must ensure we continue to develop our natural resource to the benefit of all who live in our state. There is no doubt that agriculture is the driving force behind our economy. In order to expand that industry, we need to wisely determine where we can expand our irrigated acres to grow more food and yet sustain the resource for future generations. The Legislature has tasked the NRDs with that responsibility, as well as providing for flood control and protection as mandated under that statute that created the NRDs.

However, the funding source for the NRDs is strictly a property tax levy. If we must find ways to fund our state's needs through local sources, we will greatly increase the burden on property owners. State law says that water is a shared resource, with domestic use having preference over other uses. Many residents of the state who benefit from flood protection and having clean water run out of their tap pay little or no property tax in comparison with others. The ag industry provides much of that tax base while providing jobs in other industries that don't feel the same burden. And if that burden is escalated, we risk a situation like the 1980s that could cripple our state's economy.

Therefore, our Board supports LB940, LB1045 and LB1098 that address water funding issues this year and into the future. As the Governor has stated publicly many times, water is the issue of the decade. It is time for the state of Nebraska to step up with funding for it. According to the law, water is to be shared and shared alike. It is time that the cost to conserve and protect it be shared as well.

"FIRST COMES FAT TUESDAY, THEN ASH WEDNESDAY, FOLLOWED BY TEMPTATION THURSDAY."

Orphan Train Presentation

Security Bank is sponsoring a presentation of "The Grain of the Orphan Train" on Friday, March 21 at 8:30 a.m. at the Allen Fire Hall.

It's a presentation of people, events, and reasons why the Orphan Train existed and what it was used for. Charlotte Endorf traveled more than 15,000 miles seeking the last surviving riders and descendants to document the real-life stories of the children who rode the Orphan Trains between the years 1854 and 1929. Dressed in period attire, Endorf entertains and educates audiences of all ages about this little known Nebraska history. She discovered she's related to an orphan train rider. Could you be as well?

Endorf's library of books are available by Instagram, Amazon and her website, www.unsung-

Create strategies to build rural communities Engagement

Many rural communities in Nebraska continue to face depopulation. Though communities may continue to get smaller as years pass by, they can develop solutions to attract new residents and thrive. The first step in the process is to find out why people move to or leave a community.

Communities can conduct their own research. Simple surveys distributed to new residents can provide a wealth of information. Another tactic is to bring small groups of new residents together and ask questions about their relocation process, such as "How did you find this community? Was it what you expected? What one thing helped make your move easier?" Answers to these basic questions can help the communities better market themselves to potential new residents

When people are looking to relocate, they often get the first impression of the community through a local website. Families often look at different community sites to try and find one that fits their wants and needs. By doing a quick search online, families wanting to relocate can see which communities look like a good match and which ones don't. Unfortunately, many community sites don't give enough information or the right kind of information to

Kim Bearnes

and not bypassed in this initial screening process. The way to avoid being overlooked is to find out what information potential new residents want and by having a marketing strategy that incorporates these wants. If people do find relevant location information and they like what they see, they will be more likely to search further to find out more about the community.

There is potential for rural communities in Nebraska to become more involved as they work together on marketing not only their individual community, but their region. Families looking to relocate value good schools, a nice downtown or Main Street feel, good community infrastructure and an agricultural base. The challenge for Nebraskans may be to do a better job of letting potential residents know the good communities are in rural Nebraska.

It is very important for rural communities across the country, and especially in Nebraska, to get noticed

'A Bit of Light'

Praise Assembly of God Church in Wayne celebrated the "Boys and Girls Missionary Crusade" on March 9.

The "BGMC" fund is a way for children to raise money for the cause of "World Missions" as the kids collect change in small banks that they take home each week. On the day designated as "BGMC Sunday," the children walk up and down the aisles collecting additional money from members of the congregation. The money is then collected in buckets that are hanging on a large, mechanical "Buddy Barrel" (who is the mascot of the event). One bucket is for the girls and the other is for the boys. A playful competition ensues while waiting for the moment when the congregation discovers "who won." And the bottom line is: no matter who wins, money is raised to help missionaries and their projects around the world.

On Wednesday evenings at 6:30 p.m., the church hosts an activity called "High Point" for children up to sixth grade. The Adult Bible Study (which runs concurrent with the children's gathering) has been viewing a series of DVD's from the ministry of Tim LaHaye and others on the subject of "The End Times". Saturday evening, March 15 from 5-7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall, the church will honor those who are "First Responders" in the community. This is a time to "say thanks" to these gracious people for their service to all of the communities in this part of northeast Nebraska.

Church on Sunday starts at 9:30 a.m. with classes for all ages. The morning worship service begins at 10:30 a.m.

Winside St. Paul Ladies Aid planning upcoming events

Winside St. Paul's Ladies Aid and LWML met March 5 with 14 members and Pastor Goodman present.

President Daisy Janke called the meeting to order and everyone recited the LWML Pledge.

President Janke read a Lenten devotion entitled "The Lenten Cross," lighting six candles during the reading. After the reading, the hymn "Go To Dark Gethsemane" was sung.

Pastor Goodman had a Bible Study from the Small Catechism on "The Apostles Creed."

Erna Hoffman read the secretary's report in place of Janice Mundil. The report was accepted by those in attendance.

Lorraine Prince gave the treasurer's report, which was all accepted.

President Janke read thank you cards from Janice Jaeger and family and from Paul Dangberg.

LaJean Marotz reported on visiting the shut-ins in February. Lorraine Prince will visit the shut-ins in March.

President Janke said the LWML District Convention will be held June 20-21 at Lutheran High Northeast High School in Norfolk. President Janke also stated that the Spring Workshop at South Sioux City will be held Tuesday, April 29 from 9 a.m. to noon. The theme for the workshop will be "Spring Cleaning: Heart & Home," and will be based on Psalm 139:23.

A get-well card was sent to LeLana Marotz and birthday cards were sent to Evelyn Hoeman and Doris Marotz.

A thank you card was also sent to the family who donated a refrigerator to the church.

The meeting closed with all praying The Lord's Prayer and table prayer.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, April 2 with Bev Voss and Faye Mann as hostesses.

Panama Canal information shared at Acme Club meeting

The March 3 meeting of the Acme Club was hosted by Joann Temme in her home. After serving a salad, Joann called the meeting to order.

Ruth Victor gave the Thought for the Day, "Count these blessings." Feeling down? There's nothing like counting your blessings to perk you up. Think on these blessings:

Finding a $10 bill in the pocket of a coat you haven't worn since last winter;

A child's peanut butter kisses;

Hearing someone defend you good name;

Light flooding through stained glass windows to fill a quiet sanctuary with an abundance of color;

Seeing the first crocuses of spring; Looking back and feeling no regret;

Thinking of the word that had eluded you;

Balloons and having enough air to blow them up;

A smile between friends.

The program was given by Joann Temme. It was about the Panama Canal. Her husband, Fritz, was stationed there in 1952-53. Fritz always wanted to see the canal again and have his wife see it also, so in 2005 the couple went on a cruise that took them there.

Mrs. Temme showed a film which they purchased on the cruise.

The Panama Canal is a 48-mile ship canal in Panama that connects the Atlantic Ocean (via the Caribbean Sea) to the Pacific Ocean. The canal cuts across the Isthmus of Panama and is a key conduit from international maritime trade. There are locks at each end to life ships up to Gatun Lake, 85 feet above sea level. Gatun Lake was created to reduce the amount of work required for the canal.

France began work on the canal in 1881, but had to stop because of engineering problems and high mortality due to disease. The United States later took over the project and took a decade to complete the canal in 1914, enabling ships to avoid the lengthy, hazardous Cape Horn route around the southern most tip of South America or to navigate the Strait of Magellan. One of the largest and most difficult engineering projects ever undertaken, the Panama Canal shortcut made it possible for ships to travel between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans in half the time previously required.

The Panama Canal cost the United States around $375 million, including the $10 million paid to Panama and the $40 million paid to the French company. It was the single most expensive construction project in United States history, to that time; however, it was some $23 million below the 1907 estimate, in spite of landslides and an increase in the canal's width. An additional $12 million was spent on fortifications.

More than 75,000 men and women worked on the project in total. At the height of construction, there were 40,000 working on it. According to hospital records, 5,609 workers died from illness and accidents during the American construction era.

As the situation in Europe deteriorated in the late 1930s the USA began to be concerned once more about its ability to move warships between the oceans. The largest US battleships were already so large they were having problems with the canal locks, and there were concerns about the locks being put out by enemy bombing.

The plan was to build three new locks, at Gatun, Pedro Miguel and Miraflores, in parallel with the existing locks and several by new approach channels. The new locks would add a single traffic lane to the canal.

The first excavations for the new approach channels at Miraflores began July 1, 1940, following the passage by Congress of the Appropriation Act on June 24, 1940. Excavation at Gatun began Feb. 19, 1941. A considerable amount of material was excavated before the project was finally abandoned; the new approach channels can still be seen in parallel to the original channels at Gatun and Miraflores.

In 2005 the ACP proposed a new plan to create a third lane of locks, using part of the abandoned approach canals from the 1940s after a confirming referendum, the work started in 2007. The wider lanes of locks is due to open in 2015.

The American Society of Civil Engineers has named the Panama Canal one of the seven wonders of the world. To visit the Panama Canal is one of life's greatest travel adventures.

The next meeting of the Acme Club will be Monday, March 17 at the Wayne Senior Center.

Diabetes program March 26

The first of three programs in the 2014 Control Diabetes for Life series will be held Wednesday, March 26.

Yes, we have come a long way since we first began working in the field of diabetes education. We now know that the complications associated with diabetes can be prevented or delayed. Our growing knowledge of various foods and their effect on blood sugar levels enables people with diabetes to eat food they like, choose when and how much to eat, and still control blood-sugar levels.

It is the best time in history to have diabetes, especially in light of the difficulties our parents and grandparents would encounter had they been diagnosed decades ago. Today people with diabetes can choose from a wide variety of non-nutritive sweeteners and can even figure out how to fit sugar-containing foods into their meal plan. With carbohydrate information now readily available for most foods, diabetics can easily learn to count carbohydrates at each meal. This allows diabetics to fit virtually any food into their meal plan.

Topics that will be addressed during the two-hour program on March 26 are: Kidney Disease - Action Steps to Take to Protect Your Health; Ways to Cut Food Costs; and What's New in Diabetes Self-Management, along with other helpful hints.

Stacie Petersen, B.S.N., a Certified Diabetes Educator, will review the latest products on the market to help hold your diabetes in tight control by selecting the products that will work best for you. Included in her review will be blood glucose meters, insulin pens and even apps available to help track what you eat and record blood sugar readings without using pen and paper.

Participants will receive recipes for diabetic appropriate foods. Team-teaching the program will be Deborah Willcox, R.D. and L.M.N.T., and Stacie Petersen, B.S.N., a Certified Diabetes Educator, both of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra Schroeder, UNL Extension Educator in Cuming County.

The Control Diabetes for Life program on March 26 will be offered from 1:30-4 p.m. at Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, 215 N. Pearl Street in Wayne.

Control Diabetes for Life is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered free-of-charge. Control Diabetes for Life will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease. These sessions are designed to supplement the education that you receive from your local diabetes education team and are not a substitute for diabetes classes through your local health care providers.

Participants are asked to pre-register for Control Your Diabetes for Life by calling UNL Extension-Wayne County at (402) 375-3310 by Monday, March 24.

Congratulations Tate Woodard ~ Employee of the Month ~

"Tate is such a pleasant co-worker. It's always comforting to know when you come in to work that things will run smoothly with her working. She is always upbeat with a smile on her face, and anytime you ask her for assistance, it is followed with her "you bet I can do that". The residents enjoy her, and she is always there to help them out whatever it may be. She is a problem solver and someone we are all glad to have as a co-worker. Everything on her "To do" list is always done & done right. Tate is a shining example of the Emeritus Family Values and a true asset to this facility. She definitely makes a difference any time she is at work!"

Online magazine serves as resource for growers

An interactive, online magazine now provides comprehensive information for those considering on-farm research. The "Grower's Guide to On-Farm Research" at go.unl.edu/2014onfarmmag was developed as a tool to be used in conjunction with the Nebraska On-Farm Research Network.

NOFRN is sponsored by University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension in partnership with the Nebraska Corn Growers Association and the Nebraska Corn Board. The goal of the network is to put into effect a statewide, on-farm research program addressing critical farmer production, profitability and natural resources questions.

The guide provides a comprehensive overview of what growers can expect by participating in on-farm research.

Some of the current research includes irrigation, nitrogen management in corn production, corn population and cover crops.

Jenny Rees, UNL Extension educator, said the on-farm research grower's guide is interactive on computers, tablets and mobile phones whether Apple or Android.

The Nebraska Livestock Market conducted a fat cattle sale on Friday. Prices were $2 to $3 lower on fat cattle and higher on cows. There were 510 fat cattle sold. Strictly choice fed steers, $142

"The online magazine isn't your typical online publication, Rees said. "This was designed for three different learning styles: audio, reading and visual via YouTube videos. We hope this will be an excellent resource for our growers and anyone interested in partnering with us to conduct on-farm research."

For more information on the project or how to participate, contact Keith Glewen, UNL Extension, at (402) 624-8030 or e-mail kglewen1@unl.edu, a local UNL Extension office, the Nebraska Corn Board at (402) 471-2676 or Nebraska Corn Growers Association at (402) 438-6459.

For more information about the NOFRN, visit cropwatch.unl.edu/web/farmresearch.

Phone and Internet Discounts Available to CenturyLink Customers

The Nebraska Public Service Commission designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink's basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $19.15 per month and business services are $31.00 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in a government benefit program (Lifeline) to make residential telephone service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers are those that meet eligibility standards as defined by the FCC and state commissions. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless telephone. A household is defined for the purposes of the Lifeline program as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline service is not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in the program. Consumers who willfully make false statements in order to obtain Lifeline telephone service can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from the program.

Lifeline eligible subscribers may also qualify for reliable home High-Speed Internet service up to 1.5 Mbps for $9.95* per month for the first 12 months of service. Further details are available at centurylink.com/internetbasics.

If you live in a CenturyLink service area, please call 1-888-833-9522 or visit centurylink.com/lifeline with questions or to request an application for the Lifeline program.

Horse Welfare Coalition to host workshop in April

The Nebraska Horse Welfare Coalition is hosting a Law Enforcement Training Workshop on Wednesday, April 23 from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Animal Science Complex, Room A211.

The workshop will feature many lectures and hands-on training opportunities for anyone who may want to learn more about dealing with horse abuse or neglect situations.

Participants will be some of the first to get training on the new Horse BCS app that has been developed by eXtension Horses and UNL Extension. This will be an invaluable resource to document the body condition of horses. Also there will be an opportunity to learn some basic "hands-on" horse handling practices and pick up tips on horse behavior.

Topics include:

- Documenting the condition of horses - Participants can learn how to use the new Horse Body Condition Score App.
- Staying safe while handling horses - Participants will learn how to read a horse's body language and avoid injury.
- Are they healthy? - Participants will learn how to determine a horse's health by checking the severity of the situation, age and general health.
- Is the available feed acceptable or not? - Participants will determine if hay and grain are acceptable feed based on quality and quantity.
- Investigative techniques: - Participants will learn how to identify and document the problem and when to take action.
- Hands-on-learning - This is a quick course on basic handling, including halter tying and leading. Participants also will learn the basics of general trailer loading.
- Identifying resources to use.

The cost of the event is $50 per person. To register go to tinyurl.com/ltksc9.

4-H News

COUNTRY CLASSICS 4-H Club

The Country Classics 4-H Club met March 9 at the REA Building. President Emma Loberg called the meeting to order and the Pledge of Allegiance and 4-H Pledge were led by Flag Leader Henry McCalla. Roll call was taken by Secretary Anna Loberg with "What is your favorite summer activity?" Two new members were introduced; Nina Hammer and Riley Haschke.

Secretary Anna Loberg read previous minutes, which were approved. Luke Pulfer gave the treasurer's report, which was also approved. Historian Sylvia Jager gave an update on pictures that were taken and new ones needed.

New business was discussed including; voted on trophy sponsorship, beginning knitting workshops, consumer challenge, tractor safety classes, Citizenship Washington Focus, State Fair changes and summer 4-H camps.

The meeting was adjourned and the next meeting will be Sunday, April 13 at 1 p.m. at the REA Building.

Presentations were given by Maura Loberg and Josie Thompson.

Snacks were provided by Josie Thompson and the Bear family.

AN UPDATE FROM DAVE

Dave Olson - "Good Progress Has Been Made on the Building!"

The crew has been making good progress on the building. The parts and service areas outside walls are up and the first roof is on. Then insulation will be put on and a second roof added. They are currently working on the mezzanine level.

The shop will be finished first and there is still steel work to be done on the wash bay and the areas where the cranes will be in the shop.

We're still working at our other locations.

Lawn mower repair and service will be done at the regular site. You can drop off or we can come pick them up for you. For service or repair work call Scott at 375-3325 or Kurt at 833-0088. We work on all makes and models.

At a monthly staff meeting we told the crew that we will be planting corn in 45 days and we have a lot of work ahead of us.

Storage advice, safety tips offered on grain management

Hopefully, you have been checking your stored grain on a regular basis to make sure there haven't been any problems showing up. Continue to check stored grain thoroughly and take steps to maintain the grain quality.

A lot of grain went into storage at higher than recommended moisture contents, and that increases the likelihood of storage problems. Most of the grain has been stored at below 40 degrees thanks to the Midwest experiencing a colder than normal winter and, while that has kept mold and insect development at a standstill, warming temperatures could result in storage losses if not monitored.

Average temperatures will soon be above 40 degrees and that means aeration will be necessary to manage moisture in the bin.

Ken Hellevang from North Dakota State University has some general information that is very helpful. Solar radiation can warm stored grain, creating an environment for grain storage problems. The daily total solar energy heating the south side of a grain bin on Feb. 21 is more than twice the amount as on June 21. Therefore, grain next to the bin wall may be warmer than the average outdoor air temperature.

Grain warming normally will be limited to a couple of feet near the bin wall and a few feet at the top of the bin. Monitor grain temperature at least in these locations to determine when to operate the aeration fan. Bin temperature cables help

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension
Educator

monitor grain temperature but only detect the temperature of the grain next to the cable. Grain has an insulation value of about R=1 per inch, so grain insulates the cable from hot spots just a few feet from the cable.

Do not operate the fan during rain, fog or snow to minimize blowing moisture into the bin. Bin vents may frost or ice over if fans are operated when the outdoor air temperature is near or below freezing, which may damage the bin roof. Open or unlatch the fill or access cover during fan operation to serve as a pressure relief valve. Cover the aeration fan when the fan is not operating to prevent pests and moisture from entering the bin and warm wind from heating the grain.

It is recommended collecting some grain samples and checking the moisture content to assure that it is at the desired level. However, many grain moisture meters are not accurate at grain temperatures below about 40 degrees. When the grain is cold, it should be placed in a sealed container, such as a plastic bag, and warmed to room temperature before checking the moisture content.

At temperatures above 40 degrees, the meter reading must be adjusted based on the grain temperature unless the meter measures the grain temperature and automatically adjusts the reading. Check the operator's manual for the meter to determine correct procedures to obtain an accurate value.

Natural air drying is not efficient until the average outdoor temperature reaches about 40 degrees. The moisture-holding capacity and, therefore the drying capacity, of colder air is so limited that drying at colder temperatures is extremely slow and expensive. When natural air drying, adding supplemental heat primarily reduces the final moisture content of the grain and only slightly reduces drying time. Regardless, try to keep the temperature of the grain within 10 degrees of the average outside air temperature to limit condensation in the bin.

Always remember safety when working around grain bins. Wet stored grain increases grain-handling hazards.

Grain suffocation is likely if entering a bin while unloading. Being engulfed in the grain takes only seconds. Never enter a grain bin without stopping the auger and using the "lock-out/tag-out" procedures to secure it.

Also, a person can be buried instantly if bridging has occurred, grain is attached to the bin wall or it is in a column that can collapse. Read NDSU publication "Caught in the Grain!" (available at <http://tinyurl.com/caughtingrain>) and view one of the online videos on the hazards of grain entrapment for specific information on the dangers and rescue procedures.

Also, low-level exposure to dust and mold can cause symptoms such as wheezing, a sore throat, nasal or eye irritation, and congestion. Higher concentrations can cause allergic reactions, and trigger asthma episodes and other problems. In rare cases, symptoms such as headaches, aches and pains, and fever may develop. Certain types of molds can produce mycotoxins, which increase the potential for health hazards from exposure to mold spores.

The type of respiratory protection a person needs will depend on the amount of his or her exposure to dust and mold. The minimum protection should be an N-95-rated face mask. This mask has two straps to hold it firmly to the face and a metal strip over the nose to create a tight seal. Some masks have a valve that makes breathing easier for people who wear them for extended periods. A nuisance-dust mask with a single strap will not provide the needed protection because the mold spores will pass through the mask.

For more information, do an Internet search for NDSU grain drying and storage. Other information is available from Kansas State, Purdue, and Minnesota.

The world of athletics for women

As I listened to Norris High playing in the Girls' State Basketball Tournament on Thursday, I noticed that Miley Cyrus was bringing her "Bangerz" tour to Omaha. I thought to myself, "Thank heaven for women's sports for keeping girls away from that kind of 'entertainment.'" I personally am offended by most of what I read about Miley.

Then, last night, after helping our Nebraska girls beat Minnesota in the first game of the Big Ten tournament, there was a program about Title IX and its effect on women's athletics. Mike interrupted it to watch the 10 p.m. news, but I decided to Google it this afternoon. The legislation was actually signed in 1972 by President Nixon and simply states that no one can be denied an opportunity to participate on any campus that receives federal assistance. Who knew it would develop into the amazing surge in women and athletics? I didn't; I don't think I even paid any attention to it at the time.

All I knew was that when Sue reached junior high, she was exposed to several organized athletic activities, including volleyball, basketball, and track. And, that, when she reached high school, the practices for these activities took place after school! She was riding the bus; this meant someone had to go after her, and that supper would be late if we all wanted to eat together, which was our pattern at that time.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

After volleyball season, I told her that was enough; I was getting tired of the schedule! Famous last words! We obviously learned to adjust our schedules. Later, when I was a school nurse in four K-12 schools, I would overhear conversations in the teacher's lounges about how hard it was to schedule everything, now that each school had women's sports, too! Too bad, I thought, being the mother of three girls.

On Saturday, as I watched those gals shooting baskets in the Pinnacle Bank Arena, and saw them getting their medals, I thought about how far we have come! And these women do not attend Miley Cyrus clap trap!! They are too busy honing their skills. Especially in the smaller schools, they will go right on to track practice.

Many of them are on the honor roll. Some have part time jobs, or live on farms and ranches where they are expected to help with chores. Jordan Hooper never played club sports; she simply shot the basketball into a hoop her Dad put up on the barn. She is the Big Ten player of the year.

Athletics have enabled women to have so many life changing experiences: just ask Jordan Larson about it. Of course, I read today that three Omaha schools are having to ask for private donations to improve softball diamonds, even though the baseball fields are up to date. And, as usual, the story about the Husker men beating Wisconsin on Sunday takes the front page; while the one about the women being Big Ten tournament champs is on the next. Oh, well, at least, they are recognized as champs, right? It was truly a great basketball weekend, with Creighton winning at home and Dougie putting in 45 points!

Now is the time to stop in and map out your 2014 cropping plan so we are both on the same page when it is time to go to the field!
