Picking up the pieces

Area residents get help in aftermath of last week's tornadoes

The National Weather Service released its findings regarding the tornadoes that touched down in Cedar County last week.

A total of six tornadoes hit in the area between Coleridge and Laurel on Tuesday, June 17. They were part of a supercell thunderstorm that developed in the late afternoon and moved slowly to the southeast over a four-hour period, producing large hail, flooding and tornadoes.

Only one of the six tornadoes that touched down achieved EF-3 status. This tornado started about 3 1/2 miles northwest of Coleridge and traveled for about 8 1/4 miles before dying out about two miles northeast of the town.

Two other tornadoes touched down around Coleridge, an EF-1 that hit northwest of town and an EF-0 on the northeast side of town.

Two of the three tornadoes that struck near Laurel were EF-2 storms. One was noted a little more than four miles northeast of town, while the second dropped about 5 1/2 miles northeast of Laurel and traveled more than eight miles, exiting in Dixon County.

The third tornado was an EF-1 that traveled a little more than four miles on a path about six miles northeast of town.

All four of the tornadoes that struck in Stanton and Wayne counties on Monday were classified as EF-4 storms by the National Weather Service. Two of the tornadoes near Pilger merged into a single storm near the Stanton-Wayne county line and carried northeast into Wayne County. Another tornado was spawned from that storm and carried northeast into southern Dixon County.

A lot of volunteer help could be seen at the Rod Kvoles farm north of Laurel, which suffered extensive damage from last week's tornado. A total of 11 grain bins were destroyed in the storm, along with a number of buildings and a house on the property.

Laurel family waits out storm in Wayne

By CLARA OSTEN
Of The Herald

Last Tuesday evening Ryan McCoy's father called him and said a tornado was "headed straight toward you."

McCoy, who lives two miles north and two miles east of the weigh station north of Laurel, gathered up his wife, Celeste and four sons, Austin, 11, Paxton, 5, Colton, 3 and Logan, 18 months and headed to Wayne to get away from the storm.

The family spent a considerable amount of time at Dairy Queen in Wayne, hoping the storm would quickly pass. When they attempted to return to their home to find out if there was damage, they saw the storm and ended up watching the clouds from a location approximately four miles south of Laurel for about an hour.

"We had no idea what had happened to our house and because of all the other things, flooding, trees down and power lines down, we came back to Wayne and got a room at the Cobblestone," Ryan said.

At approximately 11:30 p.m. that night, Ryan left Wayne to check the damage at his home.

"We were very, very, very lucky. The only damage we had was one grain bin and lots of trees that were destroyed. Neighbors all around us were much worse. Some lost everything," Ryan said.

Ryan describes the tornado and the damage it caused as "the weirdest thing. It must have gone up into the sky and over our house. Next to the bin that was destroyed is a hole about three feet by five feet by three feet deep, which must have been caused by the tornado," he said.

The McCoy's were without power until approximately 3 p.m. the next day (Wednesday) and the internet tower that provides internet service to their home was destroyed.

McCoy said numerous farms in the area received considerably more damage than his property, and said the community has been working together to get properties cleaned up. He said he even heard one family in the area received damage from tornadoes on two separate occasions in recent weeks.

McCoy said that while his family was not injured and his home was not damaged, his children have expressed concern when storm clouds have been seen.

"With all the damage that is in the area, we really are very lucky," Ryan said.

Krusemark family experiences deja vu with second storm

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Yogi Berra once said "It's like deja vu, all over again."

The Krusemark family can certainly relate to that famous quote, especially as they pick up the pieces from a second tornado that struck the home of one of their family members.

Ron and Corliss Krusemark was one of more than 30 families whose homes were damaged or destroyed in last week's tornadoes that struck eastern Wayne County. The home that has been in the family for more than 100 years was in the path of an EF-3 tornado that traveled through the southeastern part of Wayne County and blew into Dixon County late last Monday afternoon.

Less than nine months earlier, the Krusemarks' son, Matt, and his family suffered a similar fate when their house south of Wayne was destroyed by the Oct. 4 tornado that ripped through the east side of town.

"We definitely don't want to see or hear about another one," Corliss Krusemark said.

The elder Krusemarks lost their home at almost exactly the same time of day their kids had their home destroyed in last fall's tornado, and Mrs. Krusemark said her son and his family were probably not far away from coming out to their house when last week's storm hit.

"They had been at home in Wayne, and Matt said later that they were thinking about coming out here," Corliss Krusemark said. "If he'd thought about it another 10 minutes, they would have been out here."

At first, Mrs. Krusemark thought the storm was going to miss their house.

"When we saw the storm coming, I thought it was going to lift because we didn't see the funnel," she said. "We have a walkway to the storm cellar that we could walk into and see outside, and once we saw it coming we got in (the storm cellar) and went into the corner," she said. "The whole thing was over in about a minute."

When it was all over, the Krusemarks stepped outside to survey the damage. Their house, a barn, an open shed, a hog shed, garages, a corn crib — all of it was destroyed.

"When we made our way out of the basement and pushed the door open, the first thing I thought was that it was just like Matt and Traci's," she said. "Every building out here had some kind of damage, if not totally destroyed."

Krusemark said her son and his family had made frequent trips out to the family farm south of Wakefield when weather became threatening. Her daughter-in-law, the head volleyball coach at Wayne High, and her kids were in Norfolk on Saturday for an all-star volleyball game when severe weather made its presence two days before last Monday's tornado.

Thankfully, she said, they weren't around for last Monday's storm.

"The kids were upset and called to make sure we were in the storm cellar, and when we called back (after the storm), they were in tears," she said. "Three of their cats have been staying at our house, and a couple of them are really spooked right now."

One of the things Krusemark said was remarkable was the randomness of the damage the tornado left behind, particularly with some of the trees on their property.

"We have a new grove (of trees), and it took the outside row to the south and east and took some nice ones around the house, but left some of the other trees standing or with some damage," she said. "How it takes the outside trees and skips over others is just amazing."

Ron had retired from farming just recently, and Corliss said the couple had purchased a home in Wayne and were planning on moving there this fall.

Now, they're planning on moving a little sooner.

"We'll be OK," she said. "To see our home destroyed was tough, but we've had a lot of friends who came and helped out, and we can't thank them enough."

Rural Wakefield family lucky, grateful

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Lucky and grateful.

Jason Barelman and her husband, Mark Moser, were counting their blessings a week after a tornado destroyed their house and her mother's home nearby when a tornado ripped through eastern Wayne County.

Her home was one of more than 30 in an area south and east of Wakefield that were either damaged or destroyed when an EF-3 tornado blew through the area late last Monday afternoon. And, thankfully, her family came through the experience without any injuries.

"We do feel very lucky that nothing did happen to us," she said in a phone interview Monday night. "I sure hope I never experience that again."

Barelman said she beat the storm home after driving from her job as director of career services at Wayne State College. She said she was able to get the family's dogs into the house, and her husband watched the storm make its way toward their home from the porch before joining her and the dogs in the basement.

"At first, I didn't think we were going to get hit," she said. "It felt pretty calm down in the basement and I was sitting there

Looking Ahead in Wayne

City Council Meetings
Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Wayne Public and Private Utility Easements on Your Lot

When early towns were first platted into lots, alleys were always required for access to back yard barns for horses and livestock. Since World War II, land developers Wayne has given developers the choice of dedicating alleys behind the lots or dedicating a 10 foot wide utility easement in the back of each lot to deliver electric, phone, cable and sometimes natural gas, water or sewer to the homes. All developers choose to dedicate utility easements instead of giving up land for alleys so the back yards can be a little bigger to help the lot size. The easements are owned by the lot owner to use but the deed reserves them for utility use and access.

The city utility departments and the phone, cable and gas companies have to get access to repair and replace these utilities. We don't allow lot owners to build buildings within the 10 foot easements but we have allowed people to install fences and plant shrubs. Some owners hide our utility equipment with shrubs and fences which makes them tough to get access to.

We just need you to know that if there is a high voltage service failure, there is a safety issue if our guys have too cramped of a space to work. When there is an outage in a cramped area at night or in bad weather the safety risk is higher. We may need to have the lot owner remove some shrubs or fence or do it ourselves in order to work safely and get access to line faults and large transformers. If we have to do the removal, we bill the lot owners. Many people aren't aware of this or have forgotten it. When we buy property, these easement restrictions come with it.

Lot owners want to use every square foot of their property but we have to think safety first.

Simpson attends Young Leaders Conference

James Simpson attended the Junior National Young Leaders Conference in Washington, DC from June 8-13.

James joined other outstanding middle school students from across the United States, including Puerto Rico. The theme, "Voices of Change," introduced James to activities that developed and sharpened his leadership skills by examining the leaders of the past, and empowering these students with the tools to become leaders themselves.

The program centers on leadership through practical, everyday lessons by incorporating a detailed examination of leadership traits, focus group discussions and keynote speakers.

The conference involved daily class activities and active field study at numerous locations in the Washington, DC area that began at 7 a.m. and finished at 10 p.m. each day.

The opening class focused upon the impact of leadership traits that dealt with character, communication skills, goal setting, problem solving, respect and team work.

The training continued for six days ending in how the students can make a difference in their home communities and the nation. The group visited the Nation's Capital, the Lincoln Memorial, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Korean War Memorial, Harper's Ferry, the Smithsonian Museum, and other locations.

Attendees concluded the week by discussing how these sites commemorated the people who have changed our nation.

James is the son of Jeff and Colleen Simpson of Wayne.

Accident on county road sends three to hospital

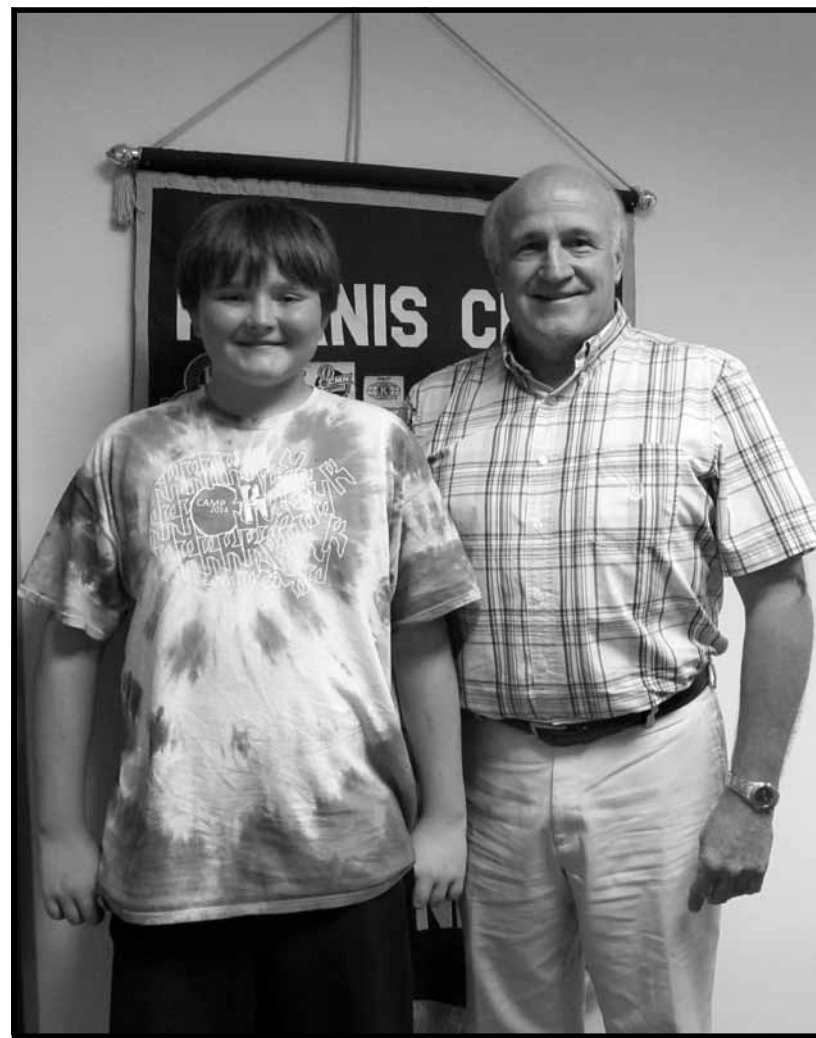

A two vehicle crash on a rural county road near Wakefield at approximately 4:30 p.m. on June 20 sent three people to area hospitals.

All three persons in the Sebade vehicle were taken to hospitals for their injuries. Sebade was taken to Pender Hospital by the Wakefield Fire Department Rescue Unit. Ardyce Mayberry of Emerson was also taken to Pender Hospital by Providence Medical Center Ambulance of Wayne and Dale Mayberry was Life-flighted to Mercy Medical Center in Sioux City, Iowa. Petters was alone in her vehicle at the time and was not injured in the crash.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office investigated the crash and advises that no citations were issued.

Pet of the Week

Prancer is a little girl who is a tornado victim. It appears that she became separated from her owner in Wakefield during the tornado.

Tenderheart Animal Rescue will hold this little charmer for one more week before adopting her out. She is 2 - 3 years old and can leap well. She seems to like to sit in laps but not just be held while standing. She is very people oriented, not really interested in the other dogs.

For more information or to adopt Prancer, call (402) 369-6030.

Local leaders gather to talk about economic development

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

Representatives of the city of Wayne, Wayne County and the Wayne Community Schools, along with representatives of Wayne Area Economic Development met Tuesday for a discussion of past and future goals for economic development in the city and county.

Facilitated by Wes Blecke, executive director of the Wayne Area Economic Development, the group discussed topics such as getting people engaged in the community, business retention and expansion, increasing the workforce in and around Wayne and supporting housing efforts in the community.

The success of Leadership Wayne in the last five years was noted, and the benefits to the community in terms of developing leaders was noted.

In the area of business retention and expansion, the group discussed surveying current business owners to find out what brought them to the community and what is keeping them here.

In addition, Blecke said presenting businesses awards for their work and service to the community, along with visits to the businesses is an important part of making the businesses feel appreciated in the community.

When discussing ways to more retail businesses in the community, it was noted that "retaining retail is tough." A number of suggestions were offered to get people to shop in Wayne, recruiting more businesses into the downtown area and dealing with empty storefronts.

The areas of workforce in the area and housing were also discussed. City Finance Director Nancy Braden told those in attendance that more than 200 bedrooms have been or are currently under construction in terms of apartments in the community.

"We need to do a better job of promoting the apartments by stressing that fact that these apartments are opening up housing in the community. There have been a lot of negative comments about the apartments, including the design, but we need to talk about the positives," Braden said.

Following the discussion of previous goals, Blecke asked for input from those in attendance on future goals.

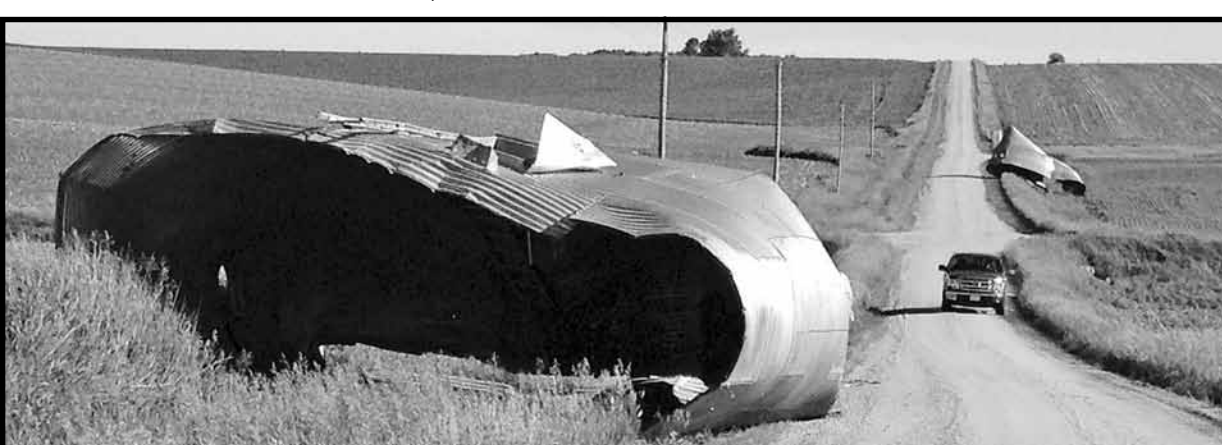

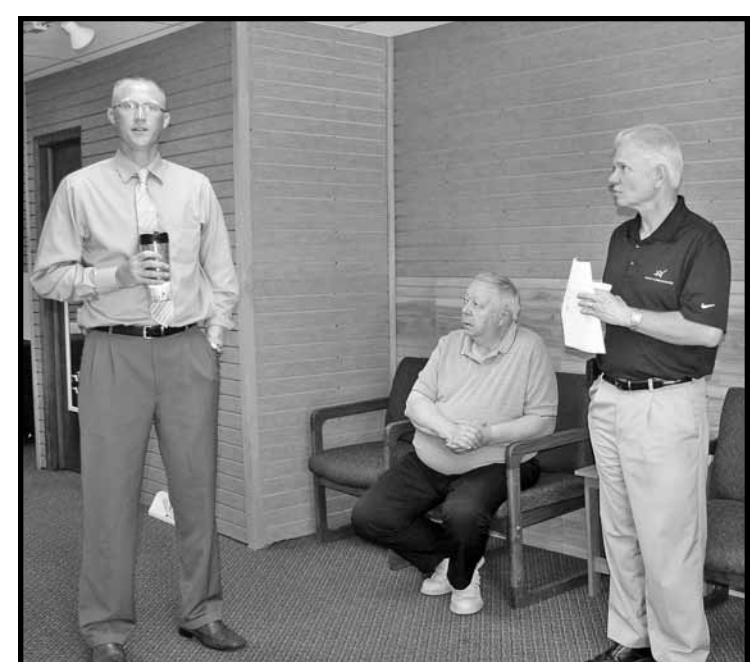

The general consensus of the group was to continue to promote retail business in the community, recruit businesses that work off each other and use technology and telecommunications to promote the city and surrounding area.

Also on the list was more partnership between the city and Wayne High School and Wayne State College to keep graduates in the community.

out, and part of the roof was torn off, which allowed rain that followed the storm to do more damage inside the house.

"I heard the roaring sound and the glass breaking upstairs, so once I heard that I knew we were hit," she said. "We came up out of the basement and our kitchen was fine, but as we turned and kept walking through the house we could see the damage that was done, and then we went outside and saw all the trees torn up and the power lines were down."

Barelman said one of her ponies was killed in the storm and another was hurt, and the six cars that were in the family's garage were all damaged or destroyed. It took some time for her and several others to round up the cats and rabbits that sought shelter and survived and took them to the veterinarian in Wayne.

"I'm sad that I lost my pony, but I'm so grateful to the Wayne Veterinary Clinic for helping me keep my animals safe," she said. "My animals are very important to me, so that was a real source of comfort."

Also comforting was the help that seemed to appear out of thin air. "It was amazing," she said. "The people showed up so fast. The storm chasers were there asking if we needed help, and the Red Cross was out here within minutes. It was amazing how fast people were responding."

Her mother, Hilda Pearson, lives nearby and had her house completely blown off of its foundation, but she rode out the storm in a closet in the basement.

"Mark went and checked on my mom and had to get a ladder to get her out of the basement, because her house was gone," Barelman said. "I'm so happy that she was OK. She could've been sucked out of her house. She said that when the storm was over, she looked up out of that basement closet and saw blue sky, so we're very lucky to have her come through it."

When all was said and done,

Storm victims need to be wary of repair solicitors

The recent damage caused by tornados and severe hail storms in the area have brought out the best in people, as strangers reach out to help others in need. Unfortunately, the aftermath of a crisis also brings out contractors who take advantage of those who have already been victimized.

The Better Business Bureau is warning both businesses and residents affected by the recent storms to beware of storm chasers/out-of-town contractors (travelers) soliciting business.

"These firms typically set up temporary shops in the area to capture construction work caused by the storm's damage. Sometimes they canvass the area with flyers or go from door to door offering their services. While some of these contractors may offer a low price and fast repairs, they may not stand behind their work or have the proper licensure," BBB President and CEO Jim Hegarty said.

The Better Business Bureau offers the following tips for storm victims:

- Get the company's complete name, address and phone number. Be skeptical of any vague or hesitant answers, or no offers of contracts, brochures, or anything in writing. Beware of high-pressure sales tactics. A reputable company will be happy to let you check them out first.
- Make sure your contractor has all the appropriate permits for the work they are doing and verify that the company has liability and worker's comp insurance. If a contractor cannot provide proof, beware. If possible, verify that the insurance is active by contacting the contractor's insurance company directly.

- If it is an out-of-town or out-of-state company, ask how any warranty issues or problems will be addressed after the work is done - and the company is gone.
- Ask for references from previous jobs and check them out before signing the contract.
- Before work starts, have a signed, written contract including start and completion dates, exact costs, specific work to be done, and warranty information. Read any fine print carefully and understand all terms before signing.
- Get at least 3-4 quotes from contractors and insist that payments be made to the company, not an individual.
- If you have damage, check with your homeowners' insurance to have an adjuster sent to determine if and how much they will cover to repair or replace damaged property.
- Be highly suspicious of a contractor that asks you to pay for the entire job upfront. He may take your money and never return.
- Disaster victims should never feel forced to make a hasty decision or to choose an unknown contractor. Visit bbb.org or call BBB's office at (800) 649-6814 to get business reviews or lists of BBB Accredited repair firms.

"I think we're going to take our time and try to figure that out," she said. "Right now, we don't want to make any decisions. I think we're still in shock and waiting to wake up from this terrible nightmare."

Barelman said her family's residence was damaged and they lost a new garage, two barns and a couple of sheds. They haven't decided what they will do as far as rebuilding is concerned.

"I think we're going to take our time and try to figure that out," she said. "Right now, we don't want to make any decisions. I think we're still in shock and waiting to wake up from this terrible nightmare."

USDA housing programs are available for area storm relief

Families in rural communities that have been affected by the recent tornado disaster and severe storms may be eligible for assistance through USDA Rural Development Housing programs.

USDA Rural Development can help with low-interest loans and grants to assist very low income rural residents for home repairs for owner-occupied homeowners. Applicants cannot exceed the income guidelines established by county and household size based on 50 percent of the county's median household income.

The USDA repair loan may be made up to $20,000 at a 1 percent interest rate, with a repayment term up to 20 years. Loans of less than $7,500 may not require a mortgage against the property. The low interest rate and extended terms of the loan make repayment more affordable for households with limited income. Funds can be used to repair or replace furnaces, electrical, foundations, siding, roofing, windows, plumbing, wells, septic systems, and other health and safety hazards as well as improving and modernizing a home.

Grants may be available for applicants 62 years of age or older who have very low income and do not have repayment ability for a loan. Grant funds can only be used to remove health or safety hazards or to make a dwelling or making a home accessible for disabled household members.

USDA Rural Development also has two loan programs that provide 100 percent financing for home purchases at affordable rates and terms. For the Direct Loan program, Rural Development offers a fixed 3.75 percent interest rate for 33 years, but additional subsidies may be available, making interest rates as low as one percent for eligible low income applicants not exceeding 80 percent of the county's median household income. Applicants can pre-qualify with USDA Rural Development by contacting its offices across the state.

With the Guaranteed Rural Housing (GRH) loan program, no down payment is required and clients work with approved traditional mortgage lenders, and interest rates have typically been less than 4.75 percent. Eligibility is based on income, acceptable credit and repayment ability. Income eligibility for the GRH program can be up to the moderate income limit of 115 percent of the county's median household income.

In the event of a natural or man-made disaster declared by either State or Federal Authorities, USDA Rural Development may also allow waivers for Multi-Family Housing (MFH) projects so that displaced residents may rent apartments. Owners of rental units who make their housing available for disaster evacuees and to assist displaced households in locating housing in RD financed properties may receive the waivers.

You can visit the RD's eligibility website at eligibility.sc.egov.usda.gov to find out if your income is within the program limits based on household size and county and if the property is in an eligible rural area.

Households interested in homeownership opportunities or the home repair program are encouraged to contact the local USDA Rural Development office nearest them. You can locate an office by visiting www.rurdev.usda.gov/NE-Contact.html or contact Jeff Carpenter in the Norfolk office at (402) 371-5350.

It was estimated approximately 300 individuals took part in the activities and barbecue, including a group of bicycle riders from the University of Illinois who called their group "ILLINI 4 Cancer" and just happened to stop in Winside for a rest on their 4,000-mile trip.

Sunday's activities included the Q125 hosting a rest stop at the farm of Richard and Georgia Janssen on Highway 98 from 8-11 a.m. for the 230 bicyclists of the 27th annual Tour de Nebraska group who were on their way back to Pender. The committee had bottled water and rolls available for the riders.

Taking ride on soccer's bandwagon

I've lived a life being a member of the bandwagon-driving causes in the sports world.

A lot of sports "fans" will jump on a particular bandwagon when it comes to a certain team, athlete or even a particular sport. When that entity is popular and is all the rage, they're on board and enjoying every minute of the action. And the moment the enthusiasm begins to wane, they break their ankles jumping off that particular bandwagon.

Not me – when I get behind an athlete, a team or a sport, I'm in it for the long haul. I've been a Seattle Seahawks fan from their first season in the NFL. I was one of the first full-time members of the print media to really get behind the sport of wrestling and put some interest and passion into the coverage of man's original sport.

And I'm also one of the clear minority – in this area, anyway – who truly enjoys what is known as "The Beautiful Game" . . . you know it as soccer.

My initial interest in the sport goes all the way back to the "good old days" of the now-defunct North American Soccer League. The league reached its popularity peak in the late 1970's as I became a teenager, and I enjoyed watching the Tampa Bay Rowdies on TV when they went up against teams like the New York Cosmos, the San Diego Sockers or the Seattle Sounders.

The people who ran the league, though, got a little too crazy with the overexposure and astronomical (for that period, anyway) salaries and the league folded in the mid 80's. It would be more than a decade before a top-shelf league would reappear, and Major League Soccer was a byproduct of the United States hosting the World Cup in 1994.

Now, I don't cut myself off from the civilized world and spend a day watching nothing but soccer matches like I do when the NFL heats up with the "other" football season – but I will sit back and enjoy a good soccer match, try to figure out the strategic moves that are made and enjoy watching the controversial calls (or no-calls) and the wonderful shots that finish as goals.

The World Cup has been amazing to watch this year as the 32 teams battle in Brazil, and it was easy to find me last Sunday afternoon when the United States took on Portugal in what was an amazing soccer match that, quite literally, went down to the game's final kick.

The United States had a golden opportunity to advance to the single-elimination 16-team knockout stage, were it not for a miracle crossing pass that Portugal was able to score on during the final seconds of stoppage time (this time is added by match officials to make up for stops in play for things like injuries, yellow or red cards and other periods of non-action). It was an amazing match to watch, as the United States gave up an early goal, then came back to score two late in the second half, only to have Portugal – one of the top teams in the world – come through with a miracle finish in the game's final moment.

By the time you read this, the United States will have played their final match against one of the world's best teams, Germany. They still had a good chance to finish as one of the top two teams in their four-team, round-robin group and advance to the next level of play. The possibility still existed for the other two teams in the group – Portugal and Ghana – to overtake the United States-German loser and knock one of those teams out of the final stage (a tie in the Ghana-Portugal game would allow both U.S. and Germany to advance).

There have been some incredible matches to watch, and while the naysayers of the sport will point to its lack of scoring and an inability to see the strategic elements that Jamie Gamble cranks out a base hit for the Dirt Devils 14-under team as they participated in league tournament action Saturday in Wayne.

Devils 14-under 1-2 in tourney

After opening win over West Point, team falls to pair of Tekamah-Herman teams

The Wayne Dirt Devils 14-under softball team went 1-2 in league play over the weekend and battled some tough teams in regular-season league play last week.

On Thursday, the Dirt Devils went to West Point and outlasted West Point's 18-under team in an 8-4 win.

Ashten Gibson pitched well for the Dirt Devils, striking out eight to get the complete-game win. She got some good offensive support from Jenna Trenhaile and Kiara Hochstein, both of whom stroked doubles to highlight the offense.

Annie Kniesche, Kennedy Maly, MARRISA LUTT and Allison Claussen also had hits in the win over West Point.

On Saturday, the Dirt Devils won their first game in Logan Valley League action before dropping their final two.

Wayne beat West Point 8-4 on Saturday morning at the Wayne Summer Sports Complex, riding the pitching of Gibson, who struck out six to get the victory.

Wayne followed those games with losses to Tekamah-Herman's 18-under and 16-under teams to bow out of the tournament.

On Tuesday, the Dirt Devils played on the road at Tekamah-Herman, losing both games. The hosts claimed the opener 10-0, then took the nightcap 8-4. No other highlights were available.

Wayne is at home on Thursday, facing Wisner in a doubleheader beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Area athletes play in all-star games

The area was well-represented on Friday as six area athletes competed in the Northeast Nebraska All-Star Basketball Classic at Northeast Community College.

Laurel-Concord/Coleridge standout Cameron Eddie earned Most Valuable Player honors for the Dark team as they posted an 82-72 win over the Light squad in the girls' matchup.

Three area players were involved in a wild matchup in the boys game that went down to the final buzzer, with the Dark team prevailing in an 85-83 decision.

It was the cap to a busy week for Eddie, who scored a game-high 27 points after spending much of the days leading up to the game helping with cleanup of Tuesday's tornadoes in the Laurel and Coleridge area in southern Cedar County.

The Dark team took control of the game in the second period, outscoring the Light squad 26-17 to take a 44-33 halftime lead. Eddie had 11 of her points in the opening half, then took control in the second and put up 16 more to help her team to the victory.

Eddie, who will play her college ball at Northeast, was one of four players in double figures for the Dark squad. She was followed by Wakefield standout Lauren Lehmkuhl, who is taking her talents to Morningside College after putting in 17 points and grabbing a team-best four steals. Maggie Schulte of Wynot added 14 points and Brandan Tighe of Homer put in 11.

Wayne High standout Jalyn Zeiss was the lone area player on the Light squad, and she finished with three points and a steal in the contest. Zeiss is staying home and playing softball at Wayne State College.

The boys game came down to the final buzzer, as Shaka Taylor of Lutheran High Northeast drilled a 19-footer as time expired to give the Dark squad the victory.

The boys game was a barn-burner from start to finish. The Dark team led 50-44 at intermission, but the Light squad bounced back from a 13-point deficit late in the first half to get within one on a 3-pointer by Wakefield's Evan Nicholson with :31 left.

The Dark team hit a free throw on their next possession, and the Light squad tied it at 83-83 with :15 left before Taylor hit the game-winner.

Nicholson and Wayne High standout Jalen Barry both played for the Light team. Barry was one of four players in double figures, finishing with 10 points. Matthew McLeod of Ainsworth and Adam Moon of O'Neill St. Mary's each had 14 points to lead the team.

Taylor led five Dark players in double figures with 18 points. Winside native and Randolph graduate Garrett Watters scored four points.

Mickey Doerr became Wayne State's first three-time Academic All-American with his first-team honor earlier this week.

Doerr first three-timer in academics

Wayne State College senior sprinter Mickey Doerr has been named to the 2014 Capital One Academic All-America Men's Track and Field/Cross Country Team, receiving first-team honors.

It marks the third straight season that Doerr has received Academic All-American honors, making him the first Wayne State athlete to be named Academic All-American three times.

Doerr

The Capital One Academic All-American teams were released Wednesday morning and are selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Doerr, a graduate of Bloomfield High School, posted a perfect 4.0 grade-point average this season, majoring in history and science education. He was a second-team Academic All-American last year after collecting third-team Academic All-American accolades as a sophomore in 2012.

This season, Doerr was recognized as the Bob Cunningham Scholar Athlete of the Year at Wayne State College. On the track, he ran a leg on the fourth-place 400-meter relay team and finished 13th in the 400-meter dash and 14th in the 200-meter dash at the NSIC Outdoor Championships.

His name still appears on two indoor school records – running legs on the 640-meter and 800-meter relay teams.

Adam Bentjen pitched well and earned the win for the Wayne Juniors in their 11-6 win over Battle Creek on Friday.

Juniors win two out of three

The Wayne American Legion Juniors bounced back from a tough road loss last week to post a pair of solid wins.

On Thursday, the Juniors traveled to Albion and came up on the short end of a 7-1 decision.

The game was close for much of the night before the home team pulled away late to come up with the win. Tucker Nichols went 2-for-3 to lead the Wayne offense. Micah Sprouls struck out four in six innings of work and took the loss on the mound.

CWS fans help out area victims

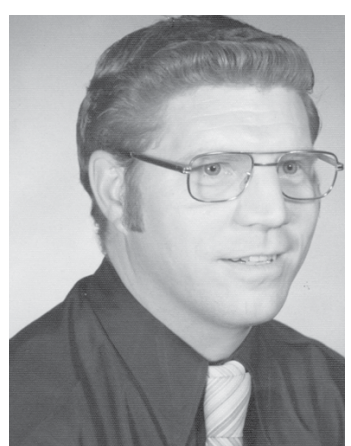

Baseball fans from Omaha and across the country are helping tornado victims in Pilger and surrounding Nebraska communities recover from the devastation of recent tornadoes through donations to the American Red Cross, and with help from the NCAA and College World Series of Omaha, Inc.

Red Cross volunteers collected $4,683 for disaster relief at the 2014 NCAA Men's College World Series June 17 game between TCU and Virginia. The evening before, tornadoes killed two people in Pilger, devastated the town and damaged surrounding communities, including Wakefield. The NCAA and College World Series Omaha, Inc. matched the donation at $5,000 each to bring the total to $14,683.

"The support of the CWS, NCAA and the many fans from around the country is heartwarming to the more than 100 families who lost their homes in last week's devastating tornadoes in Northeast Nebraska communities, including Pilger," said Tina Labellarte, CEO of the American Red Cross Nebraska/SW Iowa Region. "Red Cross volunteers will remain in these communities for the days and weeks to come providing support and hope to the families as they begin their road to recovery."

"We want to thank the fans from Omaha and the surrounding metropolitan area for their support of our neighbors in Pilger and other affected communities," said Jack Diesing Jr., president of CWS Omaha, Inc. "The donations are providing shelter, meals, snacks, water and other services to help restore people's lives after this catastrophe."

"College World Series fans are the greatest fans in the world," said Damani Leech, NCAA managing director of alliances and championships. "Given our long history with Omaha and the surrounding area, we feel like the local communities are part of our family, and we want to support our friends and neighbors. We encourage people to support the relief effort by donating to Red Cross Disaster Relief."

take place during a 0-0 match, it is still a great sport to watch and features some of the best athletes in the world.

The sport is gaining more and more ground in the United States with each passing year. More kids play soccer than just about any other sport, including the "other" football. In fact, it would not surprise me if more young people with the talent to play either sport will look at the safety concerns in American football and turn to "futbol" as their sport of choice in the years ahead.

Of course, nothing compares to a weekend of watching the top college and pro football teams (that's American football, in case you're confused) battle it out on the gridiron. But if you take the time to sit back and watch two teams meet on the soccer pitch for 90 minutes, I think you'll find it to be a sport whose bandwagon might be worth jumping on.

Just watch your step.

WSC golf fundraiser set for Omaha

Registrations are being accepted for the 26th annual Wayne State College Wildcat Golf Classic at Eagle Hills Golf Course in Papillion on Saturday, July 19.

Registration begins at 12:30 p.m. with a shotgun start of 1:30 p.m. for the four-person scramble tournament. The day will conclude with dinner, prizes, awards and silent auction at 6 p.m. Cost for the event is $100, which includes golf, cart, two mulligans, practice range, five raffle tickets and dinner.

"The Wildcat Golf Classic is another great summer event that supports our student-athlete scholarship fund," said Wayne State athletic director Mike Powicki. "With the amount of alumni in the greater Omaha area, it makes sense to host these types of events in their backyards. We have an incredible group of alums who organize this event in conjunction with the WSC Foundation and we hope to see a lot of people at Eagle Hills Golf Course supporting Wildcat athletics on July 19."

Jonah Brodersen strokes one of two hits he recorded during the Broncos White team's win over Pender last week.

Broncos White picks up wins

The Wayne Broncos White team continued their winning ways this past week with wins over Tekamah-Herman and Pender.

On Thursday, the Broncos posted a 10-0 shutout of Pender, using some solid defensive play to shut out their guests at the Wayne Summer Sports Complex.

Hagan Miller threw a no-hitter in the win over Pender, striking out nine. Offensively, Gunnar Jorgensen had a big game, recording a home run, a double and a single to lead the Wayne offense. Josh Lutt, Jacob Kneiff and Jonah Brodersen each had two hits.

On Monday, the Broncos White team won their eighth game in league action, taking down the Tekamah-Herman Gold team 18-1.

Nolan Hunke pitched three strong innings and struck out six to get the win, while Victor Kniesche pitched in relief. Sam Perry highlighted the defensive effort by throwing out two runners from right field.

Offensively, Kneiff hit a grand slam home run and had three hits to lead the Broncos White team. Lutt, Kniesche, Brodersen, Hunke and Christopher Woerdemann each had two hits.

Broncos Blue team dominates Stanton

The Wayne Broncos Blue team continued their solid offensive play in action Monday, dominating Stanton in a 16-4 win on the road at Stanton.

Drew Buck and Isaac Braun both had hot bats in leading the Blue's attack on Monday. They also got solid pitching from Tay Guill and Drew Buck, who combined to shut down the Stanton offense and help the Broncos Blue team to the win.

Ponies win vs. North Bend

The Wayne Ponies improved to 6-2 overall in league play Friday with a 12-4 win over North Bend.

The Ponies were solid on offense, knocking out 11 hits and taking the lead early on their way to the big win.

Kniesches recognized as Good Neighbors for unselfish deeds

The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben Foundation and the Omaha World-Herald have announced the 70th annual Good Neighbor Award recipients. The Good Neighbor awards recognize individuals from Nebraska who have performed neighborly acts and deeds unselfishly without personal gain. The 41 recipients represent 22 Nebraska counties. Later this year, award winners will be recognized at their local county fair with a certificate and a Good Neighbor lapel pin.
Wayne County residents Vince and Vickie Kniesche of Wayne are among those recognized.
The nominating letter for the award states, "The Kniesches will stop whatever they are doing to help anyone – even strangers. Recently, after a very long day of taking his parents to a doctor appointment and, finally, at the end of the day when Vince was ready to grind feed for his hogs, a dilapidated pickup was stranded at his feed mill farm. "As they were unable to repair the broken ball joint, he loaded the pickup on his trailer and took the couple 40 miles to their home free of charge, then had to grind feed for his hogs after he returned home late that evening. Vince and Vickie took in a 15-year-old boy after his grandfather had passed away, with whom the boy was living. The Kniesches already have five children of their own.

"Vince has let me use his grain vacuum to salvage corn when a trucker had upset my straight truck. Vince stopped when he was driving past my place to help me with unplugging my combine; he had his own combine to do but still took time to help me with mine. Vickie volunteers to coach all kinds of sports programs in the Wayne area."

Don't get me started

Why should we have all the 'fun'?

Just a bunch of thoughts running through my head this week. Here are some of the highlights:

– Hey, why should WE have all the fun here in Wayne?

Last week was yet another reminder of just how little control we, as human beings, have over the whims of Mother Nature.

I walked out of Northeast Community College's Cox Activities Center last Saturday after taking pictures at an all-star volleyball game, only to find that a wall cloud was making its way across western Wayne and southern Cedar counties.

That was but the opening act for the main event – tornadoes that all but destroyed the town of Pilger, then moved up into Wayne and Dixon counties, taking out more than 30 homes to the east of us.

And then came the encore, in the form of tornadoes that struck near Coleridge and Laurel, causing quite a bit of damage in those areas.

I watched the Laurel tornado from a distance, and even as the sun had set and I had only the flashes of lightning to rely on for my viewing, I could see the power of what was going on to the north and was amazed at what I was witnessing.

Of course, what didn't surprise me was how everybody who was affected by the storms were responding. If you were around for the aftermath of last fall's tornado here in Wayne, you saw the blue-collar, get-your-hands-dirty attitude that people exhibited while dealing with what was left behind. People from other communities, Team Rubicon, the Red Cross and others were all in the area, helping those in need pick up the pieces and get them on their way to getting things back to a certain degree of normal.

While it was a difficult week for many in the area, I'm proud of the work that people in this area have done – it's the kind of work that, as a Nebraskan, is expected, but is still impressive to bear witness to.

– You may be wondering why we haven't given a lot of ink to the cleanup efforts in the Pilger area, focusing our coverage more on the Wakefield and Laurel storm damage.

While the Pilger story is certainly newsworthy and has been the focus of many of our neighbor news outlets, we made the decision to keep ourselves in our traditional coverage area, which Pilger is not technically a part of. Our traditional coverage area includes Wayne County, as well as the southern parts of Cedar and Dixon counties.

There are two reasons why we made this decision. First, with the storms that hit eastern Wayne County, as well as those touching parts of Dixon and Cedar counties that we cover, we had more than enough going on here without having to work on a story that, while close to home, is outside the three-county area that we traditionally cover here at The Wayne Herald.

Second, for as many media outlets that have already descended upon Pilger – some of whom are there under dubious circumstances – we felt there was no need to clog recovery efforts up any further by adding our name to the list of media entities who are on site. While our local radio station's coverage area does reach into Pilger – and we appreciate the work they've done in updating news from the Pilger cleanup – we try to operate under the idea that our local area comes first and, therefore, we don't NEED to be in a location where we don't usually cover news events.

I've been watching a number of the news outlets through their websites and Facebook pages in the days since the storms hit, and they're doing a fantastic job covering events in Pilger. That will be just fine with us, and we'll try to hold up our end of the deal here in our area.

– One of the things we may not think about in the aftermath of these storms are what happens to the pets of those families whose homes were hit by tornadoes or high winds.

Some of these pets have wandered off and have been found by people and taken to some of the animal rescue sites in the area. Tender Heart Animal Rescue, located north of Wayne, has had a number of cats and dogs brought in who are believed to be runaways from the storm, and Norfolk's animal rescue organization has also seen some animals brought in from storms in the Stanton and Pilger areas.

If you're among those whose homes were damaged or destroyed, and you're wondering about your dog or cat's whereabouts, you might contact those people first. A number of pets have been reunited with their owners, which I would think would be a huge relief to those involved.

– Annnnd finally, it has nothing to do with storm recovery efforts, but I thought it would be worth sharing in the event you know any U.S. fans attending the World Cup soccer tournament in Brazil.

One of our esteemed (ahem) U.S. senators is concerned that fans may bring back a contagious mosquito-borne virus known as chikungunya back to the States.

Sen. Chuck Schumer of New York is asking the Centers for Disease Control to issue an alert to doctors about the disease.

He has every reason to be concerned – it can cause severe fevers, joint pain, headaches and even death . . . which is much the same afflictions most Americans have been dealing with during the Obama regime.

Capitol View

Are we beating a dead horse?

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Proponents say it's an attempt to revive a tradition that started 80 years ago when Nebraskans first approved pari-mutuel gambling on horse races. Opponents see it as simply another way to expand gambling.

Folks from both sides agree that it's a good thing to let the voters decide the matter in the November election, although opponent Pat Loontjier of Gambling With the Good Life says that out-of-state money for advertising will swamp any efforts to defeat the measure. She also predicts that Nebraska Indian tribes will seize the opportunity and open their own outlets for instant racing. But Mike Kelley, a lobbyist for Nebraska horse trainers and owners, predicted the opposite. He said out-of-state casino gambling interests would invest heavily to defeat the new competition that betting on historical horse races would provide.

Much of Nebraska's colorful Thoroughbred racing centered on Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben for more than 70 years. The Coliseum was a popular spot for ice hockey and big name entertainment. It also housed a cinema-sized screen and betting windows to handle fan overflow. In its heyday, Ak-Sar-Ben was tenth in the nation in attendance with $2 million per day bet on weekends by an estimated 25,000 people.

Dog racing began across the river in Iowa in 1986 and other forms of gambling soon followed, marking the eventual end of Ak-Sar-Ben and a decline for the state's other tracks in Columbus, Lincoln and Grand Island. Following the closure of the racetrack, a simulcast facility, Horsemen's Park, was opened in Omaha in 1998. The horse racing industry in Nebraska is now confined to live racing dates rotating from Fonner Park in Grand Island, to the Lincoln Race Course in Lincoln, and finishing at Agricultural Park in Columbus, plus a four-day meet at Horseman's Park to allow that facility to keep its simulcasting license.

Legislative Update

Document everything after a tornado

It is hard to believe that it was just eight months ago that the Wayne community was devastated by a tornado, and now northeast Nebraska is once again being hammered by Mother Nature.

This last week has been full of storms and tornadoes that have taken a toll on our part of the state.

As he has before, Omaha Senator Scott Lautenbaugh carried the water on the latest proposal. Governor Dave Heineman vetoed his 2012 proposal that would have allowed the State Racing Commission to license and regulate historic horse racing. He said the measure raised constitutional issues. Lawmakers failed to override the veto. This year's version, passed 30-17 by lawmakers in May, proposed a constitutional amendment to allow voters to decide. That didn't need the governor's approval.

Lautenbaugh knows it's a gamble to put it before voters. In 2004, voters rejected two proposals to allow casino gambling in Nebraska and in 2006 they defeated a plan to allow video keno in the state. Casino gambling available in border states seems to be satisfying the whims of those who want a faster-paced gaming experience.

He said the measure would resolve any constitutional concerns by amending the Nebraska Constitution to allow betting on "live or replayed" races at state racetracks. If approved by voters, the Legislature would have to revisit the issue next year and create implementation laws. He says allowing the new video wagering terminals would increase revenue for horse racing, which would boost purses for Thoroughbred owners and increase live races and jobs in the industry.

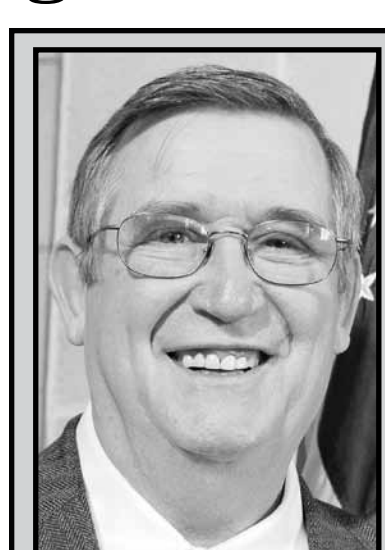

He said the Instant Racing terminals allow bettors to place wagers on previously run races after being provided the racing history of the horses and jockeys involved in the rebroadcast races. The identities of the horses and riders are changed to guard against bettors recalling the outcomes of old races. The terminals can be programmed to show only the final seconds of a race, thus allowing more bets per hour.

Despite legal challenges, Instant

Racing betting has been lucrative in Kentucky, generating an additional $41 million in revenue and $5.7 million for purses since the terminals were installed at two racetracks in 2011. In Nebraska, proponents are hoping to raise enough money to build a new racetrack in Lincoln to replace the track that closed after the Nebraska State Fair moved to Grand Island.

The world is a different place than it was in 1934. Entertainment opportunities and interests have changed markedly since 1986. The amount of options available on computers and smart phones have killed video stores and taken a bite out of revenues at movie theaters and record stores. Much of what we would call "old school" has just become "old."

Voters must decide if betting on historical horse races will amount to reviving an industry or just beating a dead horse.

activities.

If you have had property which was damaged by any of the recent storms please make sure you contact your insurance agent and DOCUMENT EVERYTHING! The State Fire Marshal has been fielding calls by individuals wishing to start burning homes that were destroyed in the storms, but you do not want to do that until after you have talked to your insurance company. If you lost livestock, the Nebraska Department of Agriculture is encouraging you to keep detailed records of those losses. Documentation should include some kind of third-party verification.

Monetary donations are also being accepted at several locations, depending on where you would like your donation to go. Midwest Bank, Stanton State Bank, or the American Red Cross are all taking donations.

If you are looking for information or guidance on what to do or how to volunteer, I would encourage you to visit the Nebraska Emergency Management Agency website at www.nema.ne.gov.

Our thoughts and prayers continue to be with all of the communities affected by these storms.

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or e-mail dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

Ercoupe participant enjoyed visit here

I would like to specifically thank Scott and Jean Morgan for all their efforts and the many people of Wayne, Nebraska for hosting a wonderful 2014 Ercoupe National Convention June 19-22.

In light of last year's tornado, it was obvious that a lot of people worked really hard to get the airport rebuilt and ready for us.

Thank you!! We'll all be looking forward to coming back soon.

Burnin' down the house

Area firefighters take part in practice burn on abandoned area farm house

Fire personnel from 14 departments from throughout the area and as far away as Iowa took part in a training exercise at a house located two miles north of Wayne recently. The Wayne Volunteer Fire Department organized the training.

The firefighters took turns extinguishing fires and learning the best procedures for doing so through the instruction of several members of the Nebraska State Fire Marshall's office.

A fire in the garage portion of the home was monitored by two of the nearly 100 firefighters who took part in the training.

Firefighters listen to instructions from one of the training officers and adjust equipment prior to entering the burning structure.

Don Forney, a member of the EMS team, visits with two firefighters following their exit from the house. The health of all involved was monitored closely throughout the training.

Firefighters took turns manning the water supply to control the fire after the house was allowed to burn. Smoke from the fire could be seen for several miles.

Photos by Clara Osten

Following the training, the house was allowed to burn to the ground. Three new homes will be built on the property in the near future.

Medical personnel from several departments and the Providence Medical Center ambulance crew were on scene during the training to provide health checks for those taking part in the exercise.

Only a shell and clouds of smoke remained as the house burned. The firefighters monitored the site for several hours to prevent the fire from spreading to other areas of the property.

The Wayne

Working with your children after a tornado

I would like to let individuals in Wayne County and the surrounding counties affected by the recent weather that we are thinking of you all and are so sorry for any loss that was sustained.

Who would have thought that what we saw in our area last October could reoccur so quickly? In reading up on a tornado, watching weather reports and listening to weather conditions, it seems that we are becoming more versed in what a tornado actually is and have seen firsthand the devastation. I read that the most violent tornadoes tend to be in the spring, but they can occur any time of the year, and in less than a year we have seen this. We also know that tornadoes have an impact on children and families.

A tornado threatens the usual assumptions of safety. The winds and flying debris can disrupt telephone lines and other utilities, breaking down communication. As we have seen, a powerful storm can blow off the roofs, break windows, blow open doors, split trees in two, and destroy entire homes, homesteads, and places of work.

According to the National Child Traumatic Stress Network, tornadoes are unusual storms, as their path is often erratic. In the same neighborhood, some houses may be leveled completely while others sustain little damage. While scattered destruction can be easier on the community than that of a flood or a hurricane – in that not all community resources may be used up –

Amy Topp
Extension Educator
4-H & Youth

the inconsistent pattern of damage can cause feelings of guilt in those spared or unfairness in those recovering. Children may develop unusual ideas or myths about why a tornado did or did not hit their home.

Children may see anxiety and fear in parents and caregivers who are usually confident. They may lose their homes and cherished pets, memorabilia, and toys. They may see collapsed or damaged buildings – including their schools or familiar community landmarks. They may encounter rubble, debris, or other wreckage, and experience the horror of seeing severely injured people and animals, as well as loss of life.

As with other natural disasters, there may be a spectrum of psychological casualties. Individuals with preexisting emotional and behavioral problems may get worse if their support systems fail, they run out of medications, and/or their routine destabilizes. Others may develop chronic emotional and behavioral problems following exposure to pervasive stresses, such as the loss of community infrastructure, home or employment, or family or friends. In addition, emotional and physical exhaustion may affect individuals or families' ability to recover.

Children and adults frequently experience traumatic reminders, during which they suddenly relive and reexperience the emotions, fears, thoughts, and perceptions, they experienced at the time of the tornado. Typical traumatic reminders include tornado watches and warnings, thunderstorms, dark clouds, high winds, and hail.

Common emotional reactions of children and family members exposed to a tornado include:

- Feelings of insecurity, unfairness, anxiety, fear, anger, sadness, despair, and worries about the future;
- Fear that another tornado will occur;

- Believing myths or folklore as to the cause of the tornado;

- Disruptive behaviors, irritability, temper tantrums, agitation, or hyperactivity;

- Clinging/dependent behaviors or avoidant and phobic symptoms;

- Physical symptoms, such as stomachaches, headaches, loss of appetite, nightmares, or sleep problems;
- Increased concerns regarding the safety of family members, friends, and loved ones;

- School-based problems, with decreased motivation and school performance.

Adolescents may differ from younger children in how they respond to a tornado or other natural disaster. Some believe they will not live long and may exhibit:

- Socially withdrawn, angry, or irritable

- Risky behavior

- Conflict with authority

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension has compiled a webpage of resources that may help individuals and families. This information can be found out at www.extension.unl.edu/disaster-recovery.

tension.unl.edu/disaster-recovery.

So even though I wish that none of the recent weather events would have taken place, I want individuals to know that they can contact their local UNL Extension Office for resources that may assist in helping families through difficult times and helping with questions about healthy living and food safety, crops, livestock, and community vitality. In UNL Extension Office in Wayne County can be reached at (402) 375-3310.

A Bit of Light

Start your Patriotic Celebration early this year and join with others at the "I Love America Rally" activities next Sunday evening, June 29. Praise Assembly of God at 1000 East 10th Street will be the host site for an event organized by Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church (Rev. James Seal, Pastor) and Praise Assembly (Rev. Jason Pickering, Pastor). The event will draw the talent not only from those two church congregations, but also from many all across the community. Everyone in the community is invited to participate. The special event will begin at 5 p.m. with a free meal honoring retired and active military personnel and their families (in the church fellowship hall). Anyone who wishes to attend, is asked to e-mail praiserassemblywayne@gmail.com or call (402) 375-3430 and leave your name and the number of people who will be joining for the meal. At 6 p.m., there will be a 30-45-minute "Rally" in the church sanctuary featuring local members of the military - presenting the flags, the "Star-Spangled Banner" sung by the local JourneyMen Quartet, an audience singalong, solos by Connie Webber ("God Bless America"), Sherie Lundahl ("Statue of Liberty"), and Jeff Dose ("God Bless the USA"), narrations by Charles Maier ("Barbara Freitche"), Elaine Neimann ("Hats Off!"), and Mollie Spieker (the "Soliloquy of Ruth Stonsifer"), and choral music by a children's ensemble (singing "50 Nifty United States" and "You're a Grand Old Flag") as well as an adult ensemble singing the "Salute to the Armed Forces". A number of local instrumentalists will also be playing. Members of the military, active and retired, will be recognized during the rally; and all are welcome to appear in uniform if you want. Each attendee at the Rally will receive a small American Flag. Following the rally, watermelon will be served in the church parking lot. Organizers stress, "Don't miss this 'Community-wide' special event. It's a great opportunity to join with others in the area to honor military personnel, to be thankful for our great land, and to pray that it will stand strong, safe, and good!"

Lutheran Women's Missionary League conducts biennial convention in Norfolk

Almost 300 women and men arrived in Norfolk for the Nebraska North District Lutheran Women's Missionary League's (LWML) 37th biennial convention.

The convention theme was "I am the Vine, you are the branches," based on the scripture from John 15:5. The convention was held June 20-21 at Lutheran High Northeast in Norfolk.

Cindy Steinbeck of Paso Robles, Calif. was the keynote speaker on June 20. Steinbeck is a fifth generation farm working with her parents and son at Steinbeck Vineyards & Winery. She holds a Master of Arts in History and Theology from Concordia University Irvine where she served on the Board of Regents. She created CRASH COURSES in her vineyard, providing an experience into wine through the eyes of the vineyard. She loves speaking her heart on Jesus' words "I am the Vine" while riding through the vineyards in the family's vintage jeep. VOICE is Steinbeck's daily reflection on God's word and her heart. VOICE can be accessed through www.trinitylutheranpaso.org.

Friday night, after a day of business, the convention goes were entertained with the improvisational comedy group, The Improvables, from Concordia University in Seward.

Business conducted included selecting officers for the next biennium: President Crystal Miller, LaVista; Vice President of servant Resources, Connie Wobken, Pender; Vice President of Gospel Outreach, Betty Poppe, Scribner; Treasurer, Debra Gutz, Osmond; Pastoral Counselor Rev. David Feddern, Atkinson; Nominating Committee: Linda Pohlman, chair, Norfolk; Janice Nellor, Beemer; Connie Anderson, Wausa; Joyce Oerman, Hooper and Phyllis Ohlmann, Crookston.

Mission Grant goal for the next biennium was established at $86,000, with $29,000 to go to scholarships and $57,000 for Mission Grant projects of: Cup of Grace Mercy Meals Event at Wayne State College in Wayne; Financial Assistance for concordia Theological Seminary, Food and Clothing Co-op in Fort Wayne, Ind.; Scholarships for Jesus Our Savior Lutheran students in Winnebago; Missionary to Central Alaska, Tok, Alaska; Elementary and Secondary Tuition Assistance, Nebraska District Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod (LCMS), Seward; Homecoming for Shepherds of Sudan, LCMS, St. Louis,

The ladies are from the societies of Grace Lutheran church that attended the District LWML Convention which was held at LHNE in Norfolk this past weekend included (front) Louise Green, Carol Rethwisch, Rhonda Sebade, (middle) Julie Bose, Fauniel Bennett, Lanora Sorensen, Lorraine Johnson, Mary Janke, Mary Lou Erxleben, Sarah Hansen, Gert Vahlkamp, Kris Fox, (back) Valerie Knight, Bea Kinslow, Darlene Lilienkamp and Teresa Tiedtke. Not pictured were Pastor Mike and Jessica Feldmann, Ellen Heinemann, Kathleen Johs and Pastor Carl Lilienkamp.

Mo.; Camp Luther of Nebraska, Hispanic Program, Schuyler; Care for Church Workers, Nebraska District LCMS, Seward; Engaging Communities to Share the Gospel, Nebraska District LCMS, Seward; and Trinity/HOPE, Gallatin, Tenn.

To make this goal, the women of the LWML gather "mites," which may consist of just pennies, but when all the pennies are added together they can do great things.

The next convention will be hosted by the West Point Zone in 2016. The next national LWML convention will be held in Des Moines, Iowa

June 25-28, 2015 with the theme "Bountiful! Sow • Nurish • Reap," based on scripture "And God is able to make all grace abound to you, so that in all things at all times, having all that you need, you will abound in every good work. (2 Corinthians 9:8).

Pay attention to temperatures with livestock

The heat and humidity of summer are arriving in many parts of Nebraska this week, and a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension educator is offering tips on how to handle livestock in these potentially dangerous conditions.

Heat stress is hard on cattle and other livestock, especially when combined with high humidity and low wind speeds. Heat stress can reduce feed intake, weight gain, reproductive efficiency and milk production, while increasing susceptibility to diseases.

Signs of heat stress can include animals bunching, seeking shade, and panting, slobbering or excessive salivation, foaming around the mouth, open mouth breathing, lack of coordination and trembling, said Lindsay Chichester of UNL Extension.

If such symptoms are observed, handlers should assume the animal is suffering from too much heat and immediately try to minimize the stress to the animal, especially by reducing handling or movement of the animal. Previous health of individual animals is an important risk factor, as animals with past health problems will be more affected by heat stress than animals with no prior health problems. These animals will generally be the first to exhibit signs of heat stress and be the most severely affected.

As county fair season approaches, Chichester said, there are several things people showing animals should keep in mind, beginning with the heat index commonly reported by media outlets.

If the heat index is above 100 degrees, animals can tolerate it if shade is available and/or wind speed is at least 10 miles per hour, so show animals should be provided shade and/or moving air via fans.

If the index gets above 110 degrees, animals will be stressed regardless of wind speed. Show animals should be in the shade with fans, especially market ready animals, and have plenty of access to water. If a heat index above 110 is predicted, livestock shows should be completed by noon. In addition, livestock that need to be moved or transported should be out of the facilities by early morning but certainly by noon, if possible. If the heat index is above 115 degrees, avoid moving or handling market ready animals. Livestock show rings should be shaded with fans and misters; the show staff should consider postponing the show due to excessive heat.

If the heat index is above 120 degrees, no activity should occur for animals or humans.

During the heat of summer, livestock management must include providing: shade, ventilation and air flow, plenty of clean and cool water, skin wetting, cool water drench (if the animal becomes very heat distressed), and sprinklers or hoses. Shade can be provided by trees, buildings or other sunshades. In addition, the temperature can be lowered by spraying cool water on the roof and walls of buildings where the animals are being housed. Improved ventilation can be provided by fans or opening windows on a breezy day. Sunshades should be high enough off the ground (10 feet or more) to allow for adequate air movement.

Chichester stressed that if one is wetting cattle, the droplet size should be large enough to wet the skin, not just the hair. "A small droplet size will usually just wet the hair creating more humidity for the animal, thus not helping at all."

During times of heat stress, animals should not be subjected to too much activity, including movement or transportation.

Distict 4-H Horse Show winners announced

The 2014 District 4-H Horse Shows were held recently in six locations across the state with a total of 440 exhibitors with 1,259 entries. These competitions are an opportunity for youth to showcase what they have learned through their 4-H Horse project area and practice good sportsmanship. The 4-H Horse Program is an educational program designed for 4-H members to learn about equine science, care, and career opportunities related to horses. Youth have learned basic riding and horsemanship skills and build their knowledge about the care and science of horses. Youth learn about care and management as well as safety practices while working with their horse. Youth have also been learning about the science of nutrition to be able to apply that knowledge for their horse to be able to maintain a healthy body weight and to provide exercise so that the horse is in good condition. A key component of learning in the horse project is studying the science of animal behavior which is used while working with horses in training strategies. Youth learn about different careers and explore career opportunities they may select after high-school. AN UPDATE FROM DAVE

It's been kind of a bad week. I was out in Oregon at the start of the week and came back on Monday night and heard about the tornado then and experienced Tuesday night. It brought back memories I really didn't want to remember. We have made progress on the building this week. Progress has been slowed a lot. The guys and myself are busy visiting customers that have been affected by the storms. We wrote a lot of insurance estimates. We know what they are going through. It's not fun. Hopefully, we just get some more moisture out of this and everything starts to recover and things settle down. We are here to help as we said. We are a little behind because of the insurance estimates. A lot of my guys are volunteering to help clean up. We have some equipment out in the country we are working on. We will try to keep up as good as we can and try to keep everybody happy with their insurance company. We will have a storm shelter available to us in our new building. This will be a lot better area for us to go to than we had before. It was one of the first things we decided to do in the new building because of the October tornado. We're still shooting for an Open House on August 7. Sometimes it looks like nothing is happening, but there is still progress being made. I still anticipate moving our guys back in in June, and we will be moving shelving and parts back into the building by the end of July. If you need anything, call us at 402-375-3325 or if there is an emergency, the after hours number is 402-369-0255.

Fireworks safety vital for fun on July 4th

The nation's birthday is a time of celebration — picnics, ball games and fireworks. As fireworks sales begin across the state, fire-safety officials say it's a good time to review wildland fire safety measures.

Fireworks routinely cause wildfires. Just one careless, stray spark can burn thousands of acres and cause needless injuries. Last year, fireworks caused 57 fires in Nebraska, which resulted in $285,365 in losses, according to statistics provided by the Nebraska State Fire Marshal's office.

"We want Nebraskans to keep their Independence Day celebrations both memorable and safe by following basic fire safety precautions," said Mike Morgan, wildland fire prevention associate with the Nebraska Forest Service. "The largest number of outdoor fires associated with fireworks involve grass and brush fires. Combine that with the dry conditions in Nebraska during the summer and you create suitable conditions for wildland fires."

Even though recent rains helped some areas of Nebraska return to a normal wildfire season, others continue to experience increased fire danger. Since wildfire season began in mid-April, Nebraska has declared extreme fire danger alerts during 43 percent of that period.

In addition, the National Fire Protection Association reports that in 2011 fires started by fireworks caused an estimated $32 million in direct property damage. During 2007-2011, the largest numbers of outdoor fires associated with fireworks involved grass fires (6,800 per year), brush fires (4,500), dumpster fires (1,700), unclassified or unknown-type natural or vegetation fires (1,300) and other outside trash, rubbish, or waste fires (1,200).

Tips for Enjoying Fireworks Displays

Fire safety experts say the safest way to enjoy fireworks is to attend a public fireworks show put on by professionals. Stay at least 500 feet away from the show. If you are lighting fireworks at home, follow these safety steps:

- Never give fireworks to small children, and always follow package instructions.
- Keep a supply of water close by as a precaution.
- Make sure the person lighting fireworks always wears eye protection.
- Light only one firework at a time and never attempt to relight "a dud."
- Store fireworks in a cool, dry place away from children and pets.

— Never throw or point a firework toward people, animals, vehicles, structures or flammable materials.

— Leave any area immediately where untrained amateurs are using fireworks.

Other common ways people often unintentionally start a wildfire:

- leaving burning leaves or other debris unattended
- sparks from equipment such as lawnmowers, ATVs, power equipment
- smoking
- unattended campfires
- carelessly discarding ashes from a fireplace or grill

Tornado scenes cause tears back home

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

All I've done this week is cry! It started with the news about Pilger on Monday and ended this afternoon (Sunday) with the Portugal/USA soccer game! I never thought I could get so excited about soccer, but watching the fans in red, white, and blue when we scored that first goal brought tears.

On Monday afternoon, the Big Farmer tuned into the Weather channel and hollered. "They are in Stanton, Nebraska!" So, of course, I ran into the living room to see TWO black funnel clouds. What a sight.

We drove over to Pius HS, just a few blocks away, to watch Dani in a summer league basketball game. Right after we got there, Ann texted that Pilger had been hit. Then, the news started filtering in.

By the time we got back home, we heard there had been one fatality, and equally disturbing to me, at least, that there were 15 "critical" folks to Faith Regional Health Services in Norfolk. My old home needed me! It was all I could do not to get into the car and drive there, knowing full well that I would just be in the way.

But I had a hard time getting to sleep, trying to picture the staff dealing with all those patients. What a relief the next day to find that the majority had been treated and sent home.

But then the pictures of the damage started! Each time, I cried. And on Wednesday, when 1,800 volunteers showed up, I cried! And on Thursday, when I learned of the folks near Wakefield who had been hit, I cried again. And so on, when I read of all the kind things that were being done by folks who just wanted to help. Tyson Foods has a truck that is outfitted for just this kind of emergency, when they want to feed a bunch of people. Orphan Grain Train was on the scene. Lancaster and Douglas county law enforcement is taking over for those who are completely worn out. Adrenaline can only carry you so far, how well I know.

Even today, I heard that the egg plant at Wakefield was gone! And all those feed lots at Wisner? Gone! Hundreds of livestock destroyed. Plus, homes, barns, machinery, center pivots, crops. Gone! It's still difficult to comprehend.

St. John's Church, nothing but the bell tower. People locked in the vault at the bank, and in the col storage at the grocery store. What an experience! Even writing about it, now, the tears are coming again. Once again, the goodness of mankind is on display, and as one counselor said, "They will cease to be victims, and become survivors." I will just continue to pray that happens quickly. And send a check! God bless them all.

Please know that those affected by recent storms are in our thoughts and prayers.

Recovering from the tornadoes

I hope everyone is recovering from the devastating storms that have hit our area recently. It is going to be a long road to recovery and let us all pitch in to help where and when we can.

A weed herbicide resistance field tour is coming up at the Haskell Ag Lab on Thursday, June 26. In Nebraska, we have about 20 weed biotypes that are resistant to five main herbicide modes of actions. The list of weed species include: common waterhemp, redroot pigweed, Palmer amaranth, kochia, shattercane, marehail and giant ragweed. The type of resistance includes: tri-azine, HPPD, ALS, growth regulators and Glycine. The newest type of resistance is the glycine which resulted from repeated use of glyphosate based products over the last 15 years.

This Field Day on Thursday, June 26 will highlight the importance of herbicide mode of action, and how to use the Site of Action Numbering System to reduce potential for weed resistance in Nebraska. Also, 20 herbicide studies will be shown during the Field Tour. Studies will show comparison of many EPP, PRE and POST herbicides for corn and soybean, as well as control of volunteer Roundup-Ready soybean in Roundup-Ready corn.

It will be a minimum 3-hour long event, which will start with presentations of several topics for discussions, and then a Field Tour. Topics for discussion will include: Herbicide Mode of Action and Site of Action Groupings, How Weed Resistance Develops, Weed resistance in Midwest and Nebraska.

Safe drinking water supply key following storms

Recent tornadoes left some residents without a potable drinking water supply. As cleanup begins, many will rely on commercially bottled water. In some cases, bottling and hauling water as needed might be an option, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension water quality educator says.

"You might draw water from a nearby public water system tap or from a water vending machine at a nearby location," said Sharon Skipton, UNL Extension water quality educator. Water vending machines are systems plumbed into a public water supply where customers fill their own containers with treated water.

Many types of containers are available for water storage, including those made of glass and plastic. Glass provides an effective container for water storage but is easily broken and heavier than plastic. Glass containers manufactured and advertised for food storage will be safe. Plastic containers manufactured and used for food or beverage storage or which are advertised as food-quality containers also will be safe, Skipton said.

Plastic jugs with tight fitting, secure lids that have contained juice, punch, or other edible substances are safe for emergency water storage. However, these containers can degrade over time and should not be used repeatedly.

"Avoid using plastic milk containers if possible, as fat traces may remain," Skipton said. "If used, wash thoroughly, giving special attention to hard-to-reach areas such as handles."

New containers can be purchased in most housewares and sporting goods departments, as well as at some water vending locations. New containers should be labeled for storage of food or beverages. Some containers deemed safe for water storage may affect the taste of stored water.

Skipton recommends washing the containers and lids thoroughly with hot tap water and dish detergent. "Rinse thoroughly with hot tap water, or wash in a dishwasher," she said. While the water from a public water supply should be free of disease causing organisms, bacteria can be inadvertently introduced into the water during the collection and storage process. Treating the water with a chemical disinfectant will deactivate organisms that might be present in the storage containers, or that might be introduced as the water is collected, Skipton said.

Some, but not all, public water supplies are disinfected with chlorine or chloramines. These water supplies may contain enough residual disinfectant to deactivate pathogens that might be introduced during the water storage process, making additional treatment prior to storage unnecessary.

For water supplies that are not disinfected with chlorine or chloramines, or for an additional safety margin, follow these directions:

Use liquid household chlorine bleach that contains 4 to 6 percent sodium hypochlorite. Bleach that contains fragrances, soaps, surfactants or other additives should not be used for drinking water disinfection. Use the freshest container of liquid chlorine bleach available, preferably not more than three months old. Add six drops of bleach per gallon of water using a clean uncontaminated medicine dropper.

Stir the water, cover, and allow it to stand for 30 minutes. One should be able to smell chlorine after the 30-minute waiting period. If there isn't a chlorine smell, add another dose and let the water stand covered another 15 minutes. Cap containers. Store the containers in a cool dry place away from direct sunlight if at all possible.

This information was adapted from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension NebGuide "Drinking Water: Storing An Emergency Supply," available at local UNL Extension offices or online.

Bids for the "Wayne County 2014 Bridges" project, consisting of C-90 (210) on County Road 861 between Section 15/22-Township 27 North-Range 3 East, C-90 (217) on County Road 860 between Section 23/26-Township 27 North-Range 3 East, C-90 (561) on County Road 574 between Section 26/27-Township 26 North-Range 3 East, C-90 (565) on County Road 574 between Section 22/23-Township 27 North-Range 3 East, were opened on June 3, 2014. Joel Hansen questioned replacing the three bridges located in Township 27 North-Range 3 East. Hansen stated the current bridges withstand normal traffic, and although it would be nice to have bridges that could handle larger equipment he questioned spending up to 2 million to serve a limited number of individuals. Burbach stated he felt it was necessary to maintain and update the bridges to better meet the needs of the residents and their equipment. Hansen asked the board to consider waiting a few years to work on the bridges as there is a possibility of a water reservoir being constructed in that area. A feasibility study has not been conducted yet, but it is being discussed. Burbach responded the bridges were in the 1 & 6 Year Plan for several years, and had been chosen to be part of the bond project.

Motion by Rabe, second by Burbach to accept the bridge construction bid of $1,702,628.00 submitted by Dixon Construction for "Wayne County 2014 Bridges". Roll call vote: Rabe-aye, Burbach-aye; motion carried. The roadway construction work will be completed by the county.

DIABETES, CHOLESTEROL, AND BLOOD PRESSURE

The last couple of decades tell a "good news, bad news" story about diabetes. That's the disease that makes it tough for your body to control blood sugar. Here's a snapshot:

In the last 20 years, the number of adults with diabetes has more than tripled.¹ Nearly one in 10 now has the disease.² That's certainly not good news.

But there are some bright spots in recent reports. In general, control of blood sugar has improved and rates of serious complications from diabetes have declined a great deal.

If you're at risk for diabetes or already have it, consider these three questions:

1. Are you making good lifestyle choices?
Where people haven't made progress, lifestyle has a lot to do with it. For example, it's no secret that the obesity epidemic is growing, right along with the diabetes epidemic.¹

Think about the lifestyle choices you make. Yes, you've heard it all before, but it still holds true: Make healthy food choices—and understand diabetes meal planning. Exercise 30 to 60 minutes most days of the week. Move to or stay at a healthy weight. And manage your stress as well as you can.³

2. Do you know your diabetes ABCs?
Knowing your numbers is also a big piece of the diabetes story, especially if you are at risk for or have high blood pressure or high cholesterol. High blood pressure is when blood moves through your vessels with too much force. Cholesterol is a fat-like substance that can cause plaque buildup in arteries. Combined, these three give your heart and blood vessels a triple whammy.⁴

These are the diabetes ABCs:

A is for the A1C test. That's the test that shows what your blood sugar levels have been the past three months. In most cases, you want to shoot for a number below 7.

B is for blood pressure. A great goal is below 140/80. The top number measures pressure in vessels as your heart beats. The bottom number measures pressure when vessels relax between beats.⁵

C is for cholesterol. Ask your doctor or me the numbers you need.⁴

3. Are you managing your medicines?
If you have type 1 diabetes, you must use insulin. Some people with type 2 diabetes need pills and/or insulin to meet target blood glucose levels.⁶ Although lifestyle is a first line of defense, cholesterol medications such as statins can help control cholesterol levels.⁷ As for high blood pressure, there are many classes of drugs to keep this silent killer at bay.⁵

It may not be easy keeping track of all this, especially if you're taking multiple medications. That's what I'm here for. I can explain how each drug works, what side effects to watch for, and how to make sure you're taking them all properly.

So, what's your diabetes story? Together, let's make sure it has a happier ending.

Nothing herein constitutes medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, or is a substitute for professional advice. You should always seek the advice of your physician or other medical professional if you have questions or concerns about a medical condition.
