Second generation 'rooster' wins Cluck-Off

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The Vavra name has become synonymous with success at the National Cluck-Off, and a second generation of the family has assumed honors as America's best clucker.

Mo Vavra of Stanton beat out repeat youth winner J.T. Hobbs of Hoskins to claim the honors as the national clucking champion during the 34th annual Wayne Chicken Show on Saturday at Bressler Park, continuing a family tradition of success that was started by Vavra's father, Joel.

The elder Vavra won the National Cluck-Off title six years in a row from 1987-1992, then won back-to-back titles in 1997 and 1998 before Arkansas native Del Hampton began an 11-year run as the national champion.

In 2011, the elder Vavra returned to top form and won back-to-back national titles once again. Two years removed from his dad's championship, the younger Vavra flapped his wings, stuck out his chest, strutted his stuff and crowed his way to the top spot.

"My dad was going to come, but he didn't feel too good today and he told me I had to do it," Mo Vavra said after being crowned the national champion.

Vavra said he is looking to add some chickens to his farm, but has yet to put up the chicken coop. Drawing from his dad's experience as a top crower was a big help for the Stanton resident.

"I know there was a lot of pressure there because he set the bar pretty high," Vavra said of

It was part of a very successful day for Vavra. He also finished in a tie for first place in the hard-boiled egg-eating contest and had to go through two sudden-death eat-offs, consuming a total of 34 eggs to beat out runner-up Andrew See CLUCK-OFF, Page 4A

Cluckin' around in Wayne

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

When severe weather struck the Wayne area last October, and again this past June, city and county officials struggled with communicating with the general public after the local radio station

Concerns about the radio station management's public reaction to a solution to the problem were addressed by both the Wayne County Commissioners and the Wayne City Council during their respective meetings Tuesday, as radio station KTCH-AM/KCTY-FM has pointed the finger at both entities for not purchasing a generator to keep the station on the air during severe weather situations such as those that knocked power out to the station, located two miles west of Wayne, last fall and earlier this summer. Local retired lawyer Duane Schroeder went before both governing bodies to ask if it were possible for the three entities to come together and work toward a solution to the problem, citing his belief in the importance of a local radio station to provide emergency information to residents during disaster situations.

"Up to last October, I was pretty lackadaisical about the danger posed by tornadoes. In the 40 years we've lived here, Betty and I never went to the basement," he told both boards. "We had gone to the basement and took our battery-operated radio with us, and the (station) was dead, so we had no way of finding out what was going on outside, and it occurred to me that we should explore the possibility to see if we can keep that radio station on the air.'

Schroeder argued that the radio station would be the only reliable source of emergency information if the power went out, noting that cell phone towers could become overwhelmed and the Internet could go down due to a lack of power. He also suggested that, although the city and/or county would be giving money to a private entity, the situation would be a unique one.

"Things are looking good" and "there has been a lot of activity going on in recent weeks" were comments by those involved with the heating/air conditioning projects at Wayne Elementary and Wayne Junior-Senior High School during Monday's regular meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education.

Keith Moje with Otte Construction, and Jon Carlson with Carlson, West, Provonda Architects both told the board that while there is still work to be completed and the last weeks of July will be busy, "things are looking good."

Moje said the plan is to have test startups of the major units during the weeks of July 21 and July 28 and make the necessary adjustments. He also noted that cleanup work will be necessary after the work is

Community Hall with Pastor Dean Pofahl officiating. Memorials are suggested to the family to be designated at a later date. Visit www. hlmkfuneral.com to leave a tribute or message of condolence. Horner Lieske McBride & Kuhl Funeral and Cremation Services in Kearney are in charge of arrangements.

Edwin L. Johnson was born Aug. 4, 1928 near Tekamah, the fifth son of Dwight and Genevieve (Robertson) Johnson. He spent most of his childhood in the Decatur area, graduating from Decatur High School. After graduation he moved to Lincoln and was employed by the State of Nebraska Road Department, enrolling in a Civil Engineering course. Ed married Maxine Pond on Sept. 30, 1950 in Lyons. Early in his their marriage, Ed joined the 370th Engineering Corp. He spent many hours supervising the building of miles of roads in the state and eventually was hired by Missouri Valley Construction Company, a subsidiary of Peter Kiewit, to be in charge of all dirt excavating work in the state of Nebraska, again supervising the building of miles of roads.

In 1971 he was hired by Kearney County to be their county road and bridge superintendent. While there he was appointed by Governor J.J. Exon to serve on the Board of Examiners for County Highway and City Street Superintendents. In a letter written to Ed, the governor said, "I am sure that your contribution in this area of public service will be a credit to our great State." Ending his workdays, he went in business for himself in a polyurethane spraying and painting company. Ed was a hard worker, good husband, and father. He enjoyed his family and work. In the years of road work they moved 30 times and made many friends throughout the state. He had a strong faith, studied his bible, loved music, played the harmonica, and enjoyed dancing. Survivors include his wife, Maxine of Riverdale; daughters, Susan King of Phoenix, Ariz., Danita and Kern Beadle of Kearney and Marta and Ray Nelson of Wayne; sons, Steve Johnson of Kearney, and Jeff Johnson of Riverdale; 13 grandchildren; 17 great grandchildren; a brother, George "Dib" and Lois Johnson of Sacramento, Calif; several nieces and nephews.

City council looks at police cameras, overtime issues

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

The Wayne Police Department was part of two completely different agenda items during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Police Chief Marlen Chinn presented information on new police car cameras, noting the cameras that were previously in the police cruisers were nine years old. He also told the council that grant funding paid for 75 percent of two of the cameras and the STOP Program safety funds paid for the other two Chinn also praised the work of Brian Kesting, the city's technology director, for the work he has done installing the equipment and soft-

Chinn explained all the features of the camera and the Evidence Library that will store the videos of police work and be "beneficial to prosecutors.'

"Having the new equipment and being able to download videos directly from the cars will be a great time saver," Chinn said. The other police department-related agenda item involved paying out overtime (comp time), vacation and holiday hours accrued by members of the police department.

Due to several officers leaving the department, those officers on the force have been unable to take vacation time or use comp time.

Considerable time was spent during Tuesday's meeting on ways to deal with the situation. It was noted that several members of the department have more than 200 hours of accumulated vacation time.

Mayor Ken Chamberlain said he felt the city should pay out the hours accumulated and reset the clock on the hours being accrued. He said that paying out the accumulated hours now would be cheaper than waiting until a later date when the wages to the officer or dispatcher would be higher, due to cost of living increases calculated into the amount of time earned.

Council member Cale Giese said "We have to stop this now, or we Chinn said that when the college goes back into session, members of his department will be limited in the time they can use vacation hours and that, while the department is looking to replace the officers that have recently left, it could be next year before the department if again fully staffed. He said that depending on who is hired, that person may need to attend the Nebraska Police Academy in Grand Island. The next 16-week session that is available begins in January of 2015.

After discussing options, the council voted unanimously to pay down accumulated holiday hours to zero and then cap the number that can be accumulated to 24 hours.

Council members also spent time at the meeting discussing the time frame for fireworks to be discharged

Verdel Lutt came before the council with a request to change the current ordinance, which allows fireworks to be discharged from 8 a.m.-11 p.m. from June 25 through July 3 and until midnight on July 4.

Lutt said he was representing 'those who have to go to work early and are bothered by fireworks until early hours of the morning."

"Even if the ordinance says they should quit at 11 p.m., it is usually an hour or an hour and a half before they quit," Lutt said.

Lutt's recommendation was to change the ordinance to allow for the discharge of fireworks from 8 a.m.-8 p.m. during the time when Nebraska law allows them.

Council member Jennifer Sievers offered an alternative, stating that the city could consider allowing fireworks to be discharged from 8 a.m.from 8 a.m.-11 p.m. July 1 through 5:30 p.m.

City staff will work to put together an ordinance with the proposed changes and the item will be brought before the council in the fu-

Council members also approved several resolutions during the meeting.

Approved was a resolution for a service agreement between the city and Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District for administration of the 13-CIS-106 Grant, a resolution accepting the bid on the Hillside Drive Paving and Storm Sewer Improvement Project and a resolution authorizing the borrowing of funds from the City of Wayne Electric Fund for the LB840 Economic Development Plan. The money will be paid back through the sales tax funds collected for LB840 with a three percent interest rate.

Council approved on first reading an ordinance that would amend the city code to allow for conditional uses in the B-3 Neighborhood Commercial District.

Tom Jacobsen spoke to council members on his plan to construct a two-story apartment building on East 10th Street, adjacent to the former Hair Studio. He plans to tear down the current building and construct a larger building.

Approval was also given to Mayor Chamberlain's request to appoint a Community Citizen Advisory Committee to make a recommendation on the future of Hank Overin Field. The grandstand area was damaged during a recent storm and options for repairing or replacing it will be

Wayne native makes point with recent trip to area jail

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

Lyle George loves coming back home to Wayne, whether it's to take part in the festivities at the Wayne Chicken Show or visit family and old friends.

"I was born in Wayne, America, and I've always loved it here," he said. "I can do a two-week vacation here and not get it all done."

During a recent trip back home, though, he found himself spending a few hours in jail after an act of civil disobedience about 90 minutes away in Fremont.

"I was arrested, handcuffed and given a ride in a police car. I've never been arrested in my life, and at 57 years of age, I decided it was time to get the ticket punched," he said with a laugh during Chicken Show activities in Bressler Park Saturday afternoon.

While in the area to visit family for Mother's Day and attend his niece's high school graduation, he decided to pay a visit to Fremont City Hall to protest that community's housing ordinance that is intended to prevent illegal immigrants from renting in the community. When City Hall was set to close for the day, George told them he was protesting that ordinance and was arrested.

"I was a one-man sit-in in city hall in Fremont," he said. "When they asked me to leave, I said I was there to protest their violation of civil rights and refused to

George said that, before going to Fremont, he wanted to make sure his arrest wasn't that big of a deal for the local law enforcement.

"I had gotten everything off me that could be perceived as a weapon, because I didn't want to cause the police any problems," he said. "I was given an orange jumpsuit and was in the cell for three

While in the cell, George said he prayed for the city of Fremont before he was bailed out by his brother-in law. He came back a couple of days later to enter a not guilty plea and demand a trial. As it happened, the date agreed to for the trial fell the day before this past weekend's Wayne Chicken

We looked at the calendar, the Birmingham Jail" and that and I was going to be back for the there comes a time when we have Chicken Show so we had it that Thursday before."

George ultimately paid $199 in fines and court costs after arguing the the city's clocks weren't calibrated to the U.S. Naval Observatory's time, which meant that City Hall would have still been open to the public at the time he was arrested for trespassing.

"I used the Ernie Chambers defense," he joked. "Whenever Ernie would get caught for speeding between Lincoln and Omaha, he'd always challenge whether or not the speed guns were calibrated. I went after the clocks in City Hall because I'd double-checked my watch with the U.S. Naval Observatory clocks, and (the city's) clock was a minute off."

He was able to get back in time and enjoy the annual weekend festival in his hometown, where it is rumored he is one of the Chickendale dancers who performed along the parade route Saturday mornversary of the day Martin Luther to stand up for our rights as human beings.

"I read that letter, and it really reflected a lot of my own sentiments that, sometimes, we can't wait for rights. We need to stand up," he said. "Our immigration system, as it is, is broken but Congress refuses to act because it's a political football and they don't want to touch it.

"It's not the city's job to sit there and say we're going to have a housing ordinance and everybody has to come to the police office and buy a license. That's what they did in Germany (leading up to the Holocaust)," he added. "The only other reason you have to register with the police when you move to town is if you're a registered sex offender. They're treating every new tenant that comes to Fremont like a sex offender," he added.

George, who works as a managing broker for a Seattle-based real estate firm, said he'll continue to fight for those rights and documents his progress on his new website, www.bigotryisbad.com.

"I've got a return ticket back to Seattle this Tuesday, unless somebody arrests me between now and then," he said, laughing. "Maybe I'll show up at the parade in Fre-

County board member Randy Larson expressed concern about who would have control of the radio station in an emergency situation if the two entities were to purchase a generator for the station.

"If we foot the bill for this, do we have some say in what they broadcast? In those situations, you want to hear about the emergency, you don't want to hear their day-today stuff," he said. Wayne Community Schools earns five-year accreditation

Wayne Community Schools has earned System Accreditation Status until the year 2019.

AdvancEd is a worldwide school accreditation organization that seeks to advance excellence in education by involving schools in a thorough and comprehensive accreditation process. AdvancED System Accreditation is an international protocol for institutions committed to systemic, systematic, and sustainable improvement. The goal of the process is to help school systems build capacity to improve and sustain student learning, and stimulate and improve effectiveness and efficiency throughout the institution.

In the spring of 2014, Wayne Community Schools hosted an external visit by a team of educators from AdvancED and the State of Nebraska. The team spent three days looking at our school system from an outside lens to help us in our school improvement process. In order to complete the External Review, the team engaged in several activities, both on-site, and prior to their arrival that involved a review of the standard self-assessment conducted by staff, a review of the institution improvement plan, and a review of data presented by the district. The team also engaged in team deliberations, interviewed stakeholders at all levels of the institution, and observed practices and classroom learning environments.

The team noted strong practices ly serve the identified needs of the in the operation and efficiency of the governing board, the decision making process conducted by the governing board and system leadership, the districts effective longrange planning fiscal planning and resource management, the districts recruitment and retention of highly qualified staff, and a well-maintained and safe learning environment for students.

Areas of improvement that the district will work on during this next five-year cycle will be to construct and implement a professional evaluation system that will serve to inform a best practices, researchbased approach to improve student learning; establish and implement a systematic continuous improvement process to support improvement plans and goals in all divisions of the system; and to construct and upgrade the system's technology infrastructures to more effective-system's instructional program and provide aligned professional training and technical support.

After the visit, the district received an exit report along with a preliminary recommendation for systems accreditation. Upon a final review by the national accreditation review process, Wayne Community Schools was granted full accreditation through 2019. This is the first time the school district has earned full accreditation as a K-12 system, and Wayne Community Schools is one of 44 districts in the State of Nebraska to achieve this status.

"We are very pleased with the findings of the AdvancED External Review Team, and are grateful for the support given to us by our parents and the patrons of our school district," said Wayne Community Schools Superintendent Mark Leni-

Sports card collection memories

I still remember the day I burned hundreds of dollars with one match. During the summer of 1994, major league baseball went on strike as players and owners argued over such world-changing issues as free agency. I'd grown up during the labor issues the sport had experienced during the 1970's and 1980's, and one day after that 1994 work stoppage - which ultimately killed the World Series, something that two world wars and The Great Depression couldn't touch – I decided that I'd had enough.

I took what was left of my sports card collection, consisting of thousands of baseball cards that included rookie cards which, 20 years later, are worth a good chunk of change, and dropped a burning match in the middle of them.

I can still remember how my love of sports trading cards began. When I was a little boy, I got my first allowance from mom and dad and took that dollar bill to the local grocery store. My intent was to buy some M&M's or some other candy, but my attention was diverted by a bright red pack of Topps baseball

The 1974 edition was a special one, and the first card in the first pack I opened was the commemorative card announcing Hank Aaron as the new home run king, even though he had yet to officially pass Babe Ruth's 714 home runs.

The back of the card, which listed Aaron's career stats, showed that he had 713 homers heading into the 1974 season. It was a foregone conclusion, at least to the folks at Topps, that he would pass The Babe game on April 8, 1974, when he homered off Al Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers, but that's another column for another day).

I was bummed out because I could only purchase nine packs of cards with my dollar, which were 10 cents apiece back in the day for a 15-card pack with a piece of gum (as compared to the $3-$4 for half that many cards today . . . and no gum). The lady at the store made me promise to bring a penny back for the sales tax (even back in 1974 as an eight-year old kid, the government was already stealing my hardearned money) the next time I came to the store and let me buy the 10

It was the start of what became a massive collection of 1970's era baseball cards. One summer, my uncle happened upon a case of baseball cards (20 boxes in a case, 36 packs in a box . . . you do the math). I must have had three or four complete sets of the 1977 Topps series, and I'd spend summer afternoons reorganizing the cards in numerical order, by team, by position . . . it was the kind of fun that would be replaced by video games and mindless TV watching in today's era.

By the time I had graduated high school, I lost interest in card collecting and sold my collection to a friend of mine (a decision that, to this day, I kick myself over . . . it was a pennies-on-the-dollar deal that, I'm sure, helped fund his college education and is helping with his eventual retirement.). I tried getting into card collecting as a business, but by that time there were so many different card companies and the cards were so overproduced that it wasn't worth the time, money or effort. Burning the cards I had left was not only a way to express my distaste for the greed and incompetence being displayed by MLB's owners and players – it was an opportunity to clear up space in my apartment as well, childhood memories notwithstanding.

Recently, as I was looking around on the Ebay website, I happened upon a deal for a box of 1989 Upper Deck baseball cards. The first card in this set is the rookie card of Ken Griffey Jr., a card that is considered the modern-day "it" card for rison Collier moves through his lane in the butterfly. Joseph Wur-

BATTLE CREEK - Wakefield-Ponca's hot bats were cooled off by solid Battle Creek pitching in the championship of the Class C, Area 2 tournament Tuesday night.

Battle Creek pitcher Tristan Simons took a no-hitter into the seventh inning before Wakefield-Ponca's offense finally got to him, but it loaded after a bases-loaded walk was too little and too late as the host scored the second run of the game during the 1974 season (which he team came away with a 7-0 win to proved to be the straw that broke did, and I remember watching that earn the tournament championship Wakefield-Ponca's back, Eaton said. and advance to this week's Class C state tournament in Creighton.

Tayler Kumm followed with another basehit to account for Wakefield-Ponca's second hit of the game, but a fly ball ended the rally and Wakefield-Ponca's 19-9 season. It was Wakefield-Ponca's second loss to Battle Creek in as many days, as the host team won an elimination game 8-5 on Monday to hand Wakefield-Ponca its first loss in four tournament outings.

Wakefield overcame a 2-0 deficit in the third by plating three runs on a pair of hits before Battle Creek responded with four in the top of the fourth to take the lead for good.

Wakefield-Ponca opened the tournament Friday with a dominating 11-1 win over Stanton in a game that was called on the 10-run rule in the sixth inning.

In their second tournament game Saturday, Wakefield-Ponca held on for a 7-6 win over Wisner-Pilger-Beemer. Hunter Schweers pitched well in the win, striking out three and scattering seven hits before Kneifl came on in relief and pitched the final three innings, stirking out four. Schweers, Zamzow and Noah Lamprecht each had two hits in the win and Zamzow had two RBI.

Wakefield-Ponca solidified their spot in the championship game with an 8-2 win over Pender on Sunday. Wakefield-Ponca broke the game open with four runs in the fourth inning, highlighted by an RBI double by Jose Sanchez. Three more runs came home in the fifth, highlighted by Perkins' RBI triple. Johnny Bench, Dave Lopes, Willie Stargell - names that middle-aged guys like me remember fondly from their days as a kid. On those rare evenings off today,

I will dig up the old cards and sort through them. My daughter bought a random assortment of baseball cards for me as a Father's Day gift a couple of years ago, and the joy of opening those packs and remembering the names of some of those modern-day stars like Nolan Ryan, George Brett, Cal Ripken and others made me feel like a kid again. Not long ago, I came upon a great deal on a lot of six boxes of 1990 Upper Deck baseball cards, and I thought that would be more than enough to complete an entire set. Amazingly, I'm two cards short of a complete set after opening all those packs, so now my quest is to complete both the 1989 and 1990 Upper Deck baseball sets. Although I was an adult by that time, those sets still remind me of the time when there was a sense of innocence about the big, bad world of professional sports and the game was still fun to take an interest in.

The fun of opening a pack of baseball cards and the anticipation of what is inside each pack takes me back to that spring afternoon 40 years ago when Hank Aaron became baseball's home run king and if you're looking to reconnect with your youth and complete your 1989 or 1990 Upper Deck baseball sets that you have tucked away somewhere, give me a call. I've got plenty of cards to trade with.

Unless you are trying to rid your home of unwanted, daytime vampires, there is not an energy- efficient reason for letting sunlight pour into your home on hot, summer days. When outdoor temperatures exceed your thermostat setting for cooling, energy savings from the sun's "free lighting" begins to be rapidly offset by air conditioning costs. How can you regulate the unwanted heat?

High-Reflectivity Films High-reflectivity window films help block summer heat gain. They are best used in climates with long cooling seasons, because they also block the sun's heat in winter.

Silver, mirror-like films typically are more effective as a heat gain deterrent than colored, more transparent films. Covering east- and west-facing windows can produce the greatest benefit, while southfacing windows may benefit somewhat and north-facing windows gain no benefit from application of window films.

Note that window films do have some disadvantages, too. They can significantly reduce the level of interior light or visible transmittance. They may also impair outside visibility. Some films require extra care when cleaning and exterior reflections could pose a problem.

Panels - Insulated & Reflective

An insulating window panel or pop-in shutter typically consists of a core of rigid foam board insulation. You can push or clip it into the interior of a window. Panels are made so that their edges seal tightly against the window frame. Seals can be made from magnetic tape or Velcro. No hardware, such as hinges or latches, is required.

Mesh Window Screens

Mesh window screens can diffuse solar radiation, reducing heat gain in the summer. Screens should be mounted in an exterior frame and should cover entire windows. They are particularly effective on eastand west-facing windows.

Overhangs

Properly sized and installed roof overhangs can most effectively shade south-facing windows from summer heat. If oriented properly, through the windows during winter, providing more warmth to a house.

It is easy to incorporate overhangs into a home design before or while it's under construction. Adding an overhang to an existing home, however, can be quite difficult and sometimes impossible. Window awnings, louvered patio covers, or lattice-type panels can be considered as alternatives for existing homes.

Shutters Both interior and exterior, can help reduce summertime heat gain in your home. Remember that interior shutters need a clear space to the side of the window when they are opened. They also require hardware that is fastened to the window jams or trim. Prop-provide the best possible window insulation system. They also offer advantages of weather protection, west-facing windows. Today, awadded security, and no use of interior space.

Like window blinds, louvered shutters work best for summer shading. Movable or fixed louvers allow ventilation and natural daylight to enter a room while blocking some direct radiation. However, they do not provide much insulation against heat loss in the winter. If Public Power District want to help desired, combine shutters with oth- you make the most of the energy er window treatments such as draperies for greater insulating ability. Awnings

With their recent rise in popularity, the U.S. Department of Energy calculates that window awnings can mer by up to 65 percent on southfacing windows and 77 percent on nings are made from synthetic fabrics that are water-repellent and treated to resist mildew and fading. You should choose one that is opaque and tightly woven. And be aware that light-colored awning will reflect more sunlight than a darker awning.

Parties' behavior needs to change

I'm sure most of you have read this column enough times to know that, when it comes to politics, I don't have a lot of respect for either of the two major political parties.

It's an opinion that, I'm finding out, a lot more people have these days. Even some of those who are longtime supporters of the Republican or Democrat parties are getting more and more disgruntled with their leaders' actions, whether it's in Washington or even here at home in Nebraska.

What I find most reprehensible about the two sides is the overwhelming hypocrisy that "leaders" of both political parties display as one side criticizes the other. The days of civil behavior and polite disagreement have given way to childish behavior, wildly emotional-based accusations and the kind of conversations that are more likely to be heard in a trailer park argument or an alcohol-infused frat party.

I have seen a number of items in the news in recent times where a political topic seems to have two sides - the side who feels they are right and those moronic clods on the other side who don't agree.

And if the issue has something to do with a certain gender, race or sexual orientation? Oh boy - NOW we're getting serious. Those who don't agree with one side or the other are either racist, homophobic, sexist, anti-Christian, anti-this, anti-that . . . some pretty powerful accusations, based more on emotion than fact, are being tossed around by both sides.

Recently, a float in a Fourth of July parade in Norfolk became a lightning rod of controversy and mock outrage that had one side seeing the humor in political satire and the other side raging about the racially-motivated slam that, they believed, the float depicted.

The float was that of a man in shirt and tie with bib overalls, standing behind a walker with his hands to the side of his face and a look of exasperation in his eyes as he stood in front of an outhouse with the words "Obama Presidential Library" on the side.

The man who created the float said it was a self-portrait of his frustration with the Veterans Administration dealing with the health care of issues of our veterans - but his explanation came after three days of fistthumping rhetoric from liberals who claimed the float was a racist depiction of the current President of the United States, Barack Obama.

The Nebraska Democrat Party was quick with their response in noting their outrage over what they perceived to be a racially-motivated statement made in a perennially-conservative state.

"We have seen many times when Nebraskans disapproved of the President, but this clearly crosses the line." said NDP executive director Dan Marvin. "There is a level of respect for the office of the Presidency which should not be crossed. It's beyond disappointing the City of Norfolk, it's officials, and citizens would allow such a thing.'

I think we can all agree that the Fourth of July should be a day where we embrace our differences and put them aside to celebrate the founding for the vacant land. of what was once the greatest nation on earth. To have allowed a float in an Independence Day parade that mocks the President of the United that Chancellor Harvey Perlman versity was mum on plans for the ing also are planned for the area. braska loses more history. States – regardless of race or gender – may have been the wrong decision for parade officials (not the City of Norfolk, as NDP officials continue to insist was in charge of the parade) to make.

NDP officials try to excuse their mock outrage by saying that there has never been an anti-GOP float that was part of a parade in Nebraska, but the defense of their childish behavior and disrespect during the Bush regime speaks volumes about the hypocrisy that they display. I'm not defending Bush here, but after witnessing the countless acts of disrespect our United States Constitution we - which included outhouses, toilets, comparing him to Osama Bin Laden are guaranteed the right of free and even calling for his assassination – that were put out by liberal-minded individuals across the country during that period, the Nebraska Democrat Party couldn't provide a more obvious case of the pot calling the kettle

What it comes down to, when it comes to criticism of the current President, is that the Democrats spent eight years throwing mud at the Bush administration and seemed to have no problems mocking the individual sitting in the Oval Office at that time. I never heard or saw anything from ANY member of the Democrat side of the aisle that disassociated itself from such behavior. That's because they were the ones slinging the mud at the White House.

And now that one of their own is in that position, suddenly it's a problem when people begin mocking and criticizing "their" leader in the White House. And as a bonus, because he is the first non-white President in our nation's history, they seem to think they can use the blanket accusation and call everybody who disagrees with Obama's actions or policies as a bigoted, racist, un-American pig.

We have reached a point in our nation's history where it is time to reject this un-American, unprofessional, childlike behavior that is being displayed by "representatives" from BOTH parties. I do believe that compromise on EVERY issue that stands before us can be reached, and both parties do have people who are capable of providing that compromise that could lead to real, positive, tangible results that can bring this nation back from the brink we now look over.

The only way to gain respect is by first giving it. It's time that we reject the vile rantings and vulgarity being spit out by both parties. Neither side can do it alone – and nothing will get done as long as they continue hurling this sort of garbage at one another.

Preservationists win, lose

RUN FOR YOUR LIVES!

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

You win some, you lose some. Folks in Lincoln have lost an important piece of history to the University of Nebraska's whims and preservationists in Omaha have apparently lost a battle to save a couple historic buildings from the Mutual of Omaha wrecking ball.

Meanwhile, the Saline County Commissioners are to be commended for agreeing to build an appropriate addition to their historic courthouse in Wilber instead of tearing it down and building a new one. Likewise, kudos to the folks in Omaha who are rehabbing the historic Flatiron building west of the Old Mar-

Preservationists mounted a campaign to save the Clarinda-Page apartment buildings and several retail buildings earmarked for demolition so Mutual of Omaha can build an office tower and parking lot. But the Omaha City Council gave unanimous approval to removing the landmark status from the buildings, which will clear the way for the project in the popular Midtown area.

The University of Nebraska had already begun demolition of the original Cushman Motorworks plant (opened in 1913) when preservationist Matt Steinhausen started waving a red flag to save the building, which represented early manufacturing in Lincoln. The University had claimed the building was too unstable to save. When Steinhausen saw a 3-ton skid loader operating on the pre-cast concrete second floor, he knew the mission deco style building was better built than anybody thought.

A city planner threatened to halt the University's demolition because they didn't have a proper permit. But, a University spokesman responded that their action was based on past precedent with the city. He added that he would coordinate with the city in the future. The University further said it has no plans to an early incarnation of Innovation Campus, where the university would partner with the private sector on research and development in coordination with a research center at the remodeled Whittier Junior High School, which is nearby.

But those plans were later abandoned after UNL secured a new Innovation Campus site at the former Nebraska State Fairgrounds. Preservationists fought to save the Industrial Arts Building on that site after it was named one of the nation's 11 most endangered historic buildings by the National Trust for Historic Preservation in 2011. New innards and a second story are being added to that building's first floor, which has been saved.

It is painfully obvious that our federal government is out of control! As a state, we send five elected officials to represent us on the federal level. Sadly, the silence from them has been deafening.

As a country, I think we are taking political correctness to an extreme and it is not always applied equally across the board. The First Amendment grants us freedom of expression; it does not say you are free to express yourself as long as it does not offend anyone else.

I hate to say it, but it often seems as if freedom of expression is allowed for those who are expressing more liberal views. Whereas, those expressing a more conservative view are often chastised or at present called racist. News flash people can disagree with the current administration without being a racist. You may not like it or agree with it but we all have the right to express our thoughts and views without being called names this is one of the principles that has made our country great for so long. Next week (July 13-16) I will be attending the Midwestern Legislative Conference or the Council of State Governments in Omaha.

Nebraska is hosting the conference this year with legislators and their guests coming to Omaha from North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan for four days of discussions on state policy. This is a great opportunity to get together with our neighbors to compare ideas and see what is or is not working in other states that may work for us.

Here's a great sound bite for you: The health of your mouth may mirror your overall health.

Researchers need to conduct more studies to confirm the possible links, but evidence is growing.

Northeast Community College business students earn honors at national PBL conference

Several members of Northeast Community College's Phi Beta Lambda (PBL) Chapter earned honors recently at the organization's National Leadership Conference in Nashville, Tenn.

Overall, Nebraska PBL produced 52 Top Ten finishes, the most ever. The finish also placed the Nebraskans in second place among all of the states attending.

Approximately 80 Nebraska PBL members, advisers, and guests attended the annual conference held June 24-27. Nearly 1,700 of America's best and brightest college students traveled to the historic city of Nashville to make some history of their own as they showcased their talents as future business leaders and yied for the opportunity to win over $79,000 in cash awards.

Northeast students who received awards during the National Leadership Conference included Beth Ebmeier, of Laurel, and Jenna Mc-Cleary of Battle Creek, who placed second nationally in Strategic Analysis and Decision Making; Michael Wallace, of Norfolk, who placed fifth nationally in Economic Analysis and Decision Making; and Gary

Tips for cutting calories, keeping flavor, and food safety with ice

- Ice cream and nutrition. Premium ice cream is usually higher in cost, fat, and calories. Ice cream with a higher fat content tastes richer and smoother. Typically a 1/2 cup of vanilla ice cream will have around 150 calories and 7 grams of fat per serving. Reading Nutrition Facts Labels is a great way to compare brands and make healthier purchases. Check the nutrition label of your favorite brand and see how it measures up. As always, moderation and portion sizes are important.

- Frozen dairy product facts. Ice cream has the highest milk fat and sions as high as 20 percent. Ice milk usually has more sugar and milk fat ranges from 2 to 7 percent. Sheryogurt is made from cultured milk and less sugar than sherbet.

Typically when people are watching their weight, ice cream ends up on the "do not eat" list. Instead of making a big bowl of ice cream with a handful of berries on top, flip the ingredients around. Enjoy a bowl of berries crowned with a small scoop (about 1/2 cup) of ice cream. For example, one cup of strawberries has about 50 calories and fiber, folate, potassium, and vitamin C. A half cup of a light ice cream adds about 100 calories and calcium. Or substitute one sliced medium-sized peach for the strawberries for about 40 calories. This equals a sweet treat of ice cream and fruit for about 150 calories.

- Premium ice cream and portion sizes. Some premium ice creams just aren't available in low-calorie options. However, a small amount of a higher-calorie food is sometimes all it takes to satisfy the taste buds. Try scooping two or three tablespoons of a premium ice cream into a smaller container for you or your guests, such as a juice or shot glass. Serve on a small plate with a little cookie and keep calories around the

Jaeger tabbed for leadership seminar

Sylvia Jager of Wayne was selected to represent Wayne High School at the 2014 Nebraska Leadership Seminar at Midland University June 19-22. Sylvia will be a junior and participates in numerous community activities.

Nearly 150 students from across Nebraska attended the 2014 Nebraska Leadership Seminar," said Zach Anderson, Corporate Board President of NLS. "Each of these students have been given the tools to become the leader their community needs - a leader who is inspiring, challenges the norm, and empowers others to discover their strengths."

Nebraska Leadership Seminar, Inc., (NLS) is a statewide leadership organization that teaches students to lead with their strengths through the nonprofit's relationship with the Gallup Organization. Each summer, the organization hosts a four-day seminar for high school sophomores from around the state to challenge, empower and inspire them to become the leaders Nebraska needs.

an Church, Joy Circle, met July 9.

President Phyllis Rahn opened the meeting by reading Luke 15:1-10. Her devotion was titled "America: Lost and Found." When America attempts to succeed on our own power, we are lost. However, God wants to find America with all of our faults and bring us back to Him. He restores us to our heritage as a nation under God.

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid holds meeting

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid and along with their owners and han-LWML met on July 9 at The Oaks

Vice president Ellen Heinemann called the meeting to order, welcoming 16 members, one guest, Lanora

Sorenson, and Pastor Lilienkamp. Heinemann and Louise Green gave the devotional "God's Fireworks". It would make no sense for Americans to spend $600 million dollars for fireworks and then hide them under a black canopy. Jesus talks about us being lights in the world: "You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a bowl – instead they put it on its stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house. In the same way, let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven" (Matt 5:14-16). St. Paul encourages us with the words: "For you were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Live as children of light (for the fruit of the light consists in all goodness, righteousness and truth) and find out what pleases the Lord. Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them (Ephesians 5:8-11). Each of us should be a firework, ignited by our faith in God. Let us stay connected to our Power Source through Word and prayer.

The LWML pledge was recited in unison. Treasurer Fauneil Bennett gave the financial report which was approved and filed for review. Secretary Louise Green read the June minutes which were approved as read. Committee reports were giv-

Louise Green spoke of the Bible Studies and fellowship and encouragement of one another that was so evident. Ellen Heinemann said the book by the keynote speaker, a vineyard owner, is available in the church library. Vines are grafted to the root stock to produce certain fruit and prevent diseases; this process necessitates a band-aid to help the healing process. We too are broken and need band-aids to heal. Scholarship available through UNL

The Robin Coulter Lapaseotes Memorial Scholarship for Agricultural Entrepreneurship Students has been established in the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

A gift of $120,000 was made by the family and friends of Robin Coulter Lapaseotes, a rancher, community leader and entrepreneur from Bridgeport. Coulter Lapaseotes was killed in an automobile accident in February 2014.

Two awards of $6,000 will be awarded annually to recipients who are enrolled in majors in CASNR at UNL, have a declared minor in the Engler Agribusiness Entrepreneurship Program, and are committed to pursuing an entrepreneurial career in agriculture following graduation.

A former advisory board member for the Engler Program, Coulter Lapaseotes was a force of enthusiasm and vision for young women desiring to build businesses in agriculture and rural communities.

The inaugural recipients of the award are Amber Burenheide of Howells and Kolin Scheele of Odel.

Application for next year's award can be found at engler.unl.edu and the deadline for submission is Feb. 15, 2015.

Leafy Spurge Task Force to host annual tour and conference

O'Neill will be the site and Aug. 6-7 will be the dates for the 2014 annual Tour and Conference for the Nebraska Leafy Spurge Working Task Force.

Featured stops for the Aug. 6 tour will include The Seed House; a Spotted Knapweed chemical test plot; Ashfall Fossil Beds Historical Park; and the Grove Lake State Fish Hatchery.

The first day will conclude with a steak fry. The Conference portion of the event will take place Thursday, Aug. 7 and will include speakers giving presentations on: Leafy Spurge Control; the collective value and impact of Nebraska's Weed Management Areas; an update from the Nebraska Weed Management Area Coalition, (NEWMAC); an update from DuPont on the chemical Perspective and an activities update from the Sandhills Weed Management Area (SWMA) and the Middle Niobrara Weed Awareness Group (MNWAG).

For more information on the Tour and Conference, contact Rod Stolcpart at (402) 822-0186 or by e-mail at weedmanrod@ abbnebraska.com.

'Horse Whisperer' consultant to discuss low-stress handling Many will remember the 1998 movie, "The Horse lunch the conference will move to the fairgrounds for Whisperer," starring Robert Redford. One of the consultants on that movie was Curt Pate from Texas. Pate will show why his expertise was sought by the movie producers when he demonstrates low-stress animal handling techniques at the Buffalo County Fairgrounds on the second day of the 14th annual Nebraska Grazing Conference. Pate's appearance on the program is sponsored in part by the Beef Checkoff.

The two-day conference will begin at the Kearney Ramada, a change in location from past years' gatherings, on Tuesday, Aug. 12. Topics that day will include: water capture, transfer and storage; soil health and grazing; mob grazing; wildlife and grazing; managing during and after drought; and GrassSnap, a new mobile app for monitoring grasslands.

Pate will start things off the second day, Aug. 13, with a talk on stockmanship and stewardship fundamentals, followed by three producers who use lowstress cattle handling techniques. Additional morning speakers will address management practices of the 2013 Leopold Conservation Award winner and research on switchgrass for forage and biomass. After edu, or your local UNL extension office.

Pate's live cattle handling and roping demonstration.

In addition to Pate, conference presenters include faculty in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, government agencies and farmers and ranchers who discuss their experiences with various grazing methods.

Full registration is $80 if postmarked by Aug. 1 and $95 afterward. The fee includes the conference proceedings, lunch both days, evening banquet, pre-banquet social, break refreshments, and the demo at the fairgrounds. One-day registration rate is $45 before Aug. 1 and $55 after, and does not include the evening banquet. Morning walk-in registrations at the hotel are welcome and may be for either or both days. Those interested only in the Pate presentations must complete and pay for a Wednesday-only registration either in advance or on the morning of Aug. 13 at the conference registration desk in the Kearney Ramada.

Results from this study, he added, also demonstrated that heifers supplemented with Zilmax had a decreased production of the stress hormone cortisol, and decreased body temperature during the simulated stress event. Histopathology of the heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, and adrenal glands revealed some differences between the heifers supplemented with Zilmax and the heifers not receiving Zilmax. The livers and right adrenal gland of the Zilmax heifers were slightly smaller than heifers that were not fed Zilmax, but there was no difference in

Fair time is fun time

Well, it is that time of year when a lot of county fairs are occurring and here is a reminder that the Dakota-Thurston County Fair will be held from July 13-22. The Wayne County Fair will be the next week on July 23-27 and the Dixon County fair follows on July 27-30.

County fairs are a great time to enjoy each other's company and get to see some good entertainment whether it be musical, mechanical, or animal. A lot of the county fair revolves around 4-H. Local county fairs provide 4-H youth across the state with an opportunity to showcase the project work that they have completed throughout the year and to receive recognition for their efforts. Model rockets that have been assembled from basic materials, cookies that will make your mouth water, sheep that are sheared for the big show, and many other exhibits can be seen. Through these projects, youth develop self-confidence by experiencing success at solving problems and meeting challenges. Local county fairs provide a safe environment for youth to make mistakes and to receive constructive feedback, not only through competition, but also through participation.

The 4-H youth look forward to the county fair because of the fun that this time of year brings. In a recent they are motivated each year to participate in the county fair because they have fun. Whether showing a market steer, modeling a garment in the fashion revue, or exhibiting a GIS map of a local park, youth across all project areas compete and participate in county fair activities because they are fun.

Youth also shared that "achieving goals," "spending time with hind the scenes work and to the sufriends," and "teamwork" contributed toward their participation in work in organizing and providing the annual county fair. Recognition, feedback for the many exhibits that study, many youth reported that competition, fair premiums, and are enjoyed by all.

qualifying for the state fair ranked low in comparison to these other motivating factors.

Important educational youth development opportunities exist within the 4-H fair experience. By completing 4-H projects and activities at the local fair and throughout the year, youth are mastering skills to make positive career and life choices. It is important for youth to discover and learn in a non-threatening setting that certain vocations may or may not be right for them.

Give 4-H youth at your local county fair a grand champion experience by providing constructive feedback and encouragement. Your words and actions will allow youth to discover their own personal strengths and weaknesses through their 4-H project areas, all while having fun in a positive county fair environ-

Don't forget to say thank you to the many volunteers, sponsors and 4-H leaders that contribute their time and money to making the local county fair a "must-see" experience for all. Special thanks need to go out to the county fair board members who do most of the important beperintendents and judges for their

Our tourist season is warming up. Friends from Topeka were here last week. We expect a couple from Virginia this weekend, and from Napa, California, the end of the month. They are coming to be honored at the Cass County Fair for keeping their farm ground in the family for 100 years. That is always an accomplishment, but less so in that county; lately, we saw some statistics that showed a lot of land in that county is now being farmed by the fourth generation. We found that out when we lived there; it seldom came up for sale. Of course, that ara great way for kids to make some had the calves broke to halter yet ea was settled mainly by Germans, and we all know that Germans regard land as something almost sa-

AN UPDATE FROM DAVE

Barry Grossenburg was down for a visit - said everything looks unbelievable. Things are really coming together - it's a gorgeous facility.

We're starting to move parts, but we still have some things to work on in the building. There is still some outside concrete to be poured and some electrical work to be done.

Customers will need to watch out for the concrete. We're working on the round out front and parts of it will be closed at different times. You just need to watch which road you come in on.

Dave Olson

When we get to moving into the building, our phone service may be interupted for awhile. You may have to use the cell phone numbers during that time. Hopefully within 2 weeks, we'll be moved. It will take quite a while to get everything moved into place. We'll probably have parts in both locations for awhile, but we'll find whatever you're needing.

The Grand Opening is set for Thursday, Aug. 7. There will be a lunch at noon, followed at 1 p.m. by John Deere Days with 2-3 hours of classes and exhibits. Afterward there will be fun things for the kids and then from 5-6 p.m. we will feed the whole community with a pork feed. There is a good band coming at 7:30 to play into the night. It will be a great time! After the tornado, you guys deserve a little fun!

If you need anything, call us at 402-375-3325 or if there is an emergency, the after hours number is 402-369-0255.

THANK YOU

In memory of Anne Charles

To everyone who has supported us following the death of Anne, we would like to express our sincere thanks and appreciation. Your many acts of kindness and sympathy continue to be a great comfort to us in our time of sorrow. We especially thank all the wonderful people at the Oaks, Dr. McCorkindale, the nurses at Providence Medical Center, Providence Hospice, and Scott Hasemann. We will miss her dearly.

-The family of Anne Charles-

We know it is impossible to mention everyone who helped us after the tornado and each day since June 16 when we lost our farmstead. We are so grateful to each of you. In our Church bulletin the next Sunday it stated it very clearly — God promises to be present with His people. Sometimes that presence is realized through the ministry of angels; at other times, it is special people who carry out God's work on our behalf.

You are those angels and we thank you so very much!

Bob and Milly Thomsen

Thank you to everyone that sponsored, donated and participated in the annual Betty Robins Memorial 5K. Ande was very honored and our family is very grateful for your support. A special thanks to Alex and the Community Activity Center for all of your work. Betty is forever missed and never forgotten! The Ande Schulz Family

PUBLIC NOTICE NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT (FONSI)

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES GROUPS AND PERSONS:

The Wayne Housing Authority has received $32,946 Capital Funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the purpose of completing capital improvements to the Villa Wayne. Improvements to residential units replacement of lighting fixtures plumbing, appliances, equipment and boiler unit. Improvements also include installation of handicap accessible door openers for the community building. The Wayne Housing Authority gives notice that it has been determined that the release of 2014 Capital Funds for the property improvements will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly the Wayne Housing Authority has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA, 42 USC 4321).

The reasons for the decision not to prepare such Statement are as follows: No serious environmental adverse impacts or hazards were identified in the course of the environmental review

An Environmental Review Record (ERR) respecting the proposed project has been made by the Wayne Housing Authority which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such a statement is not required. The Environmental Review Record is on file at Wayne Housing Authority, 409 Dearborn Street, Wayne, NE 68787. The records are available for public examination and copying upon request between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday. Please contact Trine McBride at 402-375-2868 for further information.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the release of Federal Funds.

Public Comments on Finding All interested agencies, groups or persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration Such written comments should be received at Wayne Housing Authority, PO Box 183, Wayne, NE 68787 on or before August 18, 2014. A public hearing will be held on August 18, 2014 at 8:30 a.m. at Wayne Housing Authority, 409 Dearborn Street, Wayne NE 68787. The public is invited. All such comments so received will be considered and the Wayne Housing Authority will not request the release of Federal Funds or take any administrative action on the proposed project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence
