Poll indicates interest in new pool for Wayne

Voters would need to approve sales tax increase

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Voters in Wayne may get the chance to sign off on whether or not the city gets a new swimming pool.

A recent survey commissioned by a citizens committee found that the majority of those with an opinion agree that a new outdoor swimming pool is needed to replace the 60-year old facility at the corner of 13th and Lincoln streets.

A total of 260 people filled out the online survey and indicated strong support for an outdoor pool to be built on the south side of the Wayne Community Activity Center, while support was not as prevalent for an additional indoor lap pool.

More than two-thirds of those surveyed agreed or strongly agreed that a new outdoor aquatic center at the Activity Center was the best option. The suggestion of putting the facility near the Summer Sports Complex was overwhelmingly turned down with 71 percent disagreeing or strongly disagreeing on that option.

Renovating the present facility was given a thumbs down by just more than half of those surveyed, while only 27 percent agreed or strongly agreed that was the best option. Doing nothing was rejected by almost 4 in 5 of those surveyed.

"We had some pretty good results from the survey," Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain told The Wayne Herald after the numbers were released. "You never know what you're going to get with a survey, but we had a number of people express their opinion, and some of the information we got from the surveys sort of fell in line with some of the same thoughts we had."

One result from the survey that did surprise the mayor was the interest in an indoor pool. While it was not favored by the majority of those surveyed, it did receive 48 percent favorable support, compared to 33 percent unfavorable (19 percent were neutral or had no response).

"Surprisingly, there was more support than I thought there would be for an indoor pool."

"Surprisingly, there was more support than I thought there would be for an indoor pool," Chamberlain said. "I think the City Council should take a look at including the indoor pool in whatever proposal is put out and that it be phased in as part of the project."

How to pay for a new pool, which has an estimated price tag of just under $3 million, was the big question for those surveyed, and the overwhelming response was to add an additional half-cent to the city's sales tax rate to pay for the pool's construction costs.

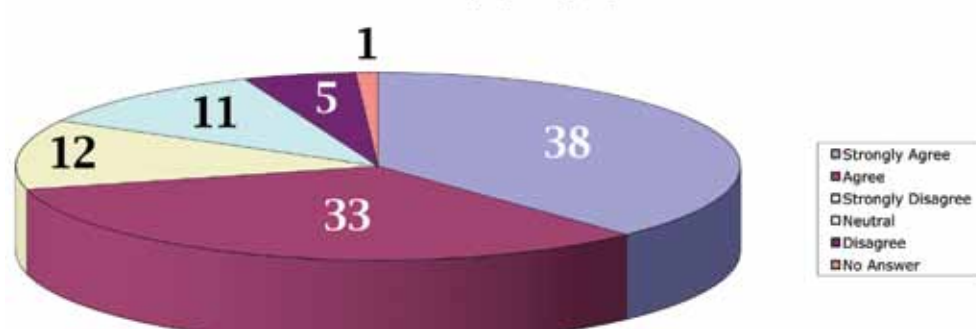

Of those surveyed, 71 percent agreed with a sales tax increase while 17 percent disagreed. By comparison, an increase in property taxes was rejected by 56 percent of those surveyed, while only 23 percent agreed with the option.

Bulls and pigs part of the fair

There were animals of all shapes and sizes at the 92nd annual Wayne County Fair. Some, like the bull at the left giving a cowboy the ride of his life, were there for entertainment. Others, like the little piglets being played with by Charli Seivers (7) and Reagan McGuire (6), were there for the kids. Unseasonably mild weather conditions made for a beautiful and fun weekend of activities for local fairgoers, and you can see some of the images from this year's fair on The Wayne Herald's Facebook page, as well as on pages 4B and 5B. We also have photos from the 101st Dixon County Fair on page 8B.

First steps on journey to Malawi to begin here

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Dr. Joe Mitka has never run a marathon before.

That isn't stopping him, however, from completing a journey that will be longer than a marathon, but will benefit children a long way from home.

Mitka, a Wayne State College alum, is president and CEO of Norfolk Private Schools-Malawi, and he is on a quest to raise $235,000 to help fund the opening of a private K-12 school in the African nation of Malawi, a country that is almost half the size of Nebraska in geographic terms, but has a population of 16 million.

Mitka is hoping to eventually build three schools in Malawi, a nation that gained its independence from Great Britain 50 years ago but is one of the poorest nations in the world.

"It's the 12th poorest nation in the world, so it makes it hard for schools to be built to match the population," he said during a recent stop in Wayne.

The vision for the school came to Mitka about four years ago on a trip to Malawi. He has spent the past couple of years laying the groundwork for what he hopes will be a new private, Christian school in the country by next fall.

"I went there in 2010 to get a feel for it and see if it would be plausible to come up with a private school that would raise the standards there to the point where students there could graduate and apply to college here in the United States if they chose," he said.

Mitka has been working with Norfolk Public Schools, which has provided donated equipment including computers, to help get the school started. He talked with his board about running as a fundraising effort and got the go-ahead for the 32-mile journey that will begin in front of the Wayne City offices on Saturday, Aug. 9 at 6 a.m.

The $235,000 he hopes to raise would get the non-profit school off the ground for the first year, providing enough funding to pay teachers and staff and have all the necessary supplies, desks and books for a Christian-based private school. Tuition would be free the first year for families, and the school would rely on tuition payments to sustain the school after that.

"The school is Christian-based and has American-based curriculum," he said. "In Malawi, they use the British system (of education), so the fact that we're using American curriculum means we would have to get our books here in America and have them shipped to Malawi."

Mitka is working with BankFirst's offices in Norfolk and Wayne to accept donations, and donations can also be sent to First Presbyterian Church, 104 S. 10th St., Norfolk, Neb., 68701. Mitka will make a presentation at the Wayne Rotary Club meeting on Wednesday, Aug. 6, three days prior to his takeoff from Wayne.

Dr. Joe Mitka will be running from Wayne to Norfolk next Saturday in an effort to raise funds for a private Christian school in Malawi that he hopes to build.

Disaster declaration for area

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) announced Thursday that federal disaster aid has been made available to the state of Nebraska to assist local recovery efforts in the wake of last month's storms that hit the state, including storm damage in Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties.

Action by President Barack Obama makes federal funding available to state and eligible local governments and certain private non-profit organizations on a cost-sharing basis for emergency work and the repair or replacement of facilities damaged by severe storms, tornadoes, straight-line winds and flooding in Cedar, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Franklin, Furnas, Harlan, Kearney, Phelps, Stanton, Thurston and Wayne counties. The storms occurred during a seven-day period between June 14-21 of this year.

Federal funding is also available on a cost-sharing basis for hazard mitigation measures statewide.

Christian Van Alstyne has been named as the federal coordinating officer for federal recovery operations in the affected area. Alstyne said additional designations may be made at a later date if requested by the state and warranted by the results of further damage assessments.

Following is a summary of key federal disaster aid programs that can be made available as needed and warranted under President Obama's disaster declaration issued for the State of Nebraska.

Assistance for the state and affected local governments can include (as required):

- Payment of not less than 75 percent of the eligible costs for debris removal and emergency protective measures taken to save lives and protect property and public health. Emergency protective measures assistance is available to state and eligible local governments on a cost-sharing basis.

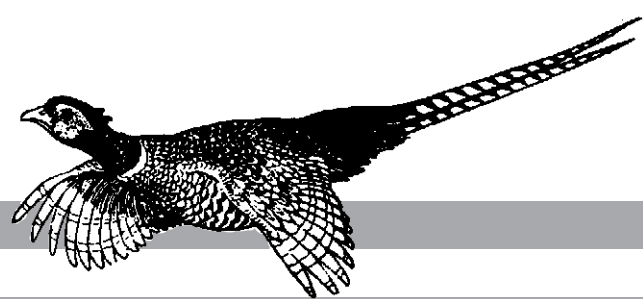

- Payment of not less than 75 percent of the eligible costs for repairing or replacing damaged public facilities, such as roads, bridges, utilities, buildings, schools, recreational areas and similar publicly owned property, as well as certain private non-profit organizations engaged in community service activities.

- Payment of not more than 75 percent of the approved costs for hazard mitigation projects undertaken by state and local governments to prevent or reduce long-term risk to life and property from natural or technological disasters.

Application procedures for state and local governments will be explained at a series of federal/state applicant briefings with locations to be announced in the affected area by recovery officials. Approved public repair projects are paid through the state from funding provided by FEMA and other participating federal agencies.

Bonnie Sprouls

Bonnie Sprouls, 80, of Wayne, died Thursday, July 24, 2014 at her home in Wayne.

Services were held Tuesday, July 29 at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne. The Rev. Ron Nelson officiated.

Bonnie Lou Sprouls was born Feb. 8, 1934, on a farm near Wayne to Curtis and Emma (Wittler) Foote. She was baptized and confirmed at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne. She graduated from Wayne High School. Bonnie married Lawrence Sprouls on Feb. 22, 1957 at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Wayne. The couple lived on dairy farms south of Wayne until retiring and moving into Wayne in 1994. Bonnie worked as a chiropractor's receptionist for five years. She was a Sunday school teacher at Redeemer Lutheran Church for 12 years, was active with the church news letter, and parish visitations at Our Savior Lutheran Church where she was a current member.

Survivors include her husband, Lawrence; their children, Michael Sprouls of Wayne, Julie (James) Hansen of Winside, and Wesley (Dawn) Sprouls of Milford; eight grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; sister, Marion Raymer of Fremont; sisters-in-law, Myla Foote of Wayne, Beverly (Foote) Rusk of Wakefield, Eileen Sprouls of Kansas City, Mo., Marvelee Moser and Carol Cottier both of California.

She was preceded in death by her parents; brothers, Dewayne and Robert Foote; sister, Edna Cary on June 4, 2014; brothers-in-law, Wesley Cary, Floyd Raymer, William Cottier, Ray Moser and Earl Moser.

Pallbearers were Peter Hansen, Paul Hansen, John Hansen, Brittni Sprouls, Micah Sprouls, Kalie Sprouls, Travis Sprouls and Megan Hejtnanek.

Memorials may be made to Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne.

Burial was in Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Wayne. Hasemann Funeral Home in Wayne was in charge of arrangements.

Delbert Krueger

Delbert Krueger, 83, of Pierce died Tuesday, July 22, 2014 at the Pierce Manor.

Services were held Saturday, July 26 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Foster with the Rev. Jerome Leckband officiating. Burial was in Hillcrest Memorial Park Cemetery in Norfolk, with military rites by Tomek-Otto Post 72 American Legion and United States Air Force Honor Guard.

Delbert A. Krueger was born to Chris and Elsie (Eichberger) Krueger on Feb. 20, 1931 in Foster. He attended and graduated from District 47 (1944) and Pierce High School (1948). He was baptized and confirmed and married at Trinity Lutheran Church in Foster, as well as serving the congregation as president, treasurer and secretary. On Feb. 20, 1952 he joined the U.S. Air Force and served as an airplane mechanic and flight engineer in Texas, New Mexico, Japan, South Korea and South Carolina. After his discharge in 1956, he married Bernys Havel. The couple had three sons, Michael, Gerry and Gary. Until 1984, with the passing of Bernys, the family farmed northwest of Foster and had a diversified operation.

In 1988 he moved south of Pierce and continued farming with Michael and Gerry. On Jan. 1, 1989 he married Lynal (Longe, Franzen) from Wayne. They later built and moved to their current home south of Pierce.

Survivors include his wife, Lynal; three sons, Michael and Miriam and Gerry and Sherri, all of Pierce and Gary and Kathy of Norfolk; stepdaughter, Holly Thorson and husband, Dave, of Rapid City, S.D.; stepson, Barry Franzen and wife, Peg of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa; nine grandchildren; four step-grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; four step-great grandchildren; brother, Bill Krueger of Pekin, Ill.; sisters Vi Graham and Darlene Bassford of Annapolis, Md. and Carol Liebert of Blaine, Wash.

He was preceded in death by his first wife, Bernys; daughter-in-law, Joyce; his parents, two sisters, four brothers, aunts, uncles and cousins.

Pallbearers will be grandsons, Joshua, Christopher, Austin, Casey and Tyler Krueger and step grandson, Brandon Watts.

Honorary pallbearers will be granddaughters Amanda Lee, Bobbie Tibbetts, Michelle Rahmig and Courtney Krueger and close friends.

Stonacek Funeral Chapel in Norfolk is in charge of arrangements.

Bonnie Aevermann

Bonnie Aevermann, 90, of Norfolk, died Monday, July 28, 2014 at the Golden Living Center.

Services were held Thursday, July 31 at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Norfolk with Rev. Frank Brink officiating. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne.

BonnaDell G. Aevermann was born the daughter of Leslie and Gladys (Jones) Phillips on the family farm southeast of Belden on Oct. 16, 1923. She was baptized at the Presbyterian Church at Laurel. She attended rural school and graduated from Wayne High School in 1942. She worked for Ben Franklin Store and Safeway in Wayne. Bonnie married Harvey Aevermann on March 20, 1944 at Winside and the couple made their home farming until December 1967 when they moved to Norfolk. She was then employed at Hennigson's for a year and worked at the Norfolk Regional Center for 21 years retiring in 1985.

Survivors include her daughter, Sandra and Lon Jochens of Columbus and one son, Harlan Aevermann of Norfolk; two granddaughters, Lori and Shaun Penne of Columbus, and Pamela and Dustin Sutton of Columbus; two great granddaughters, Ashley Penne and Riley Kohles and one great grandson, Ethan Sutton.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Harvey; three sisters, Elizabeth Jacobsen, Winifred Craft and Ilene Liebsack, and three sisters-in-law, Irene Geewe, Etlien Brudigan and LaVern Brudigan.

Home for Funerals in Norfolk was in charge of arrangements.

'Return to Downton Abbey' on NET Television Aug. 10

The extraordinarily popular series "Downton Abbey" tells the story of the noble Crawley family and the staff who serve them in their sumptuous Yorkshire estate. Filled with love and intrigue, "Downton Abbey" has been embraced by public television viewers and critics alike.

Savor a mix of fond memories from the past four seasons of "Downton Abbey" and get a taste of the upcoming fifth season when "Return to Downton Abbey" airs Sunday, Aug. 10, at 8 p.m. and again at 9:30 p.m. CT on NET1.

Academy Award-winning actress Susan Sarandon hosts the program, which includes behind-the-scenes footage, fondly remembered moments from the first four seasons, and interviews with Julian Fellowes and Gareth Neame, providing an overview and context for the series and what to expect next. Recall the high points of the "Downton Abbey" storyline, its memorable cast of characters, and both the great joy and wrenching sadness taking place at the abbey.

Also, learn how to get chances to attend special events in Omaha with Highclere Castle's Lady Carnarvon. Highclere Castle is the location where "Downton Abbey" is filmed.

Discover Bats! Educator Workshops to be held in Beatrice and Norfolk

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, in conjunction with Fulbright's EcoLeadership Program, is pleased to announce two upcoming educator workshops focusing on bats.

The workshops, open to K-12 grade educators in Nebraska, will educate teachers about the natural history of bats, as well as their importance to the ecosystem and how to help in their conservation. Teachers can learn how to incorporate the study of bats into their science curriculum and will receive a variety of educational resources including the Discover Bats! Educator Guide, a bat identification book, a bat-related literature book and a bat house to facilitate in depth study of the bats of Nebraska.

Teachers are encouraged to attend one of two workshops: Friday, Aug. 1, from 3 p.m.-10 p.m. at Homestead National Monument in Beatrice; or Wednesday, Aug. 13, from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. at TaHaZouka Park in Norfolk.

Workshops are free, but pre-registration is required. To register, please send your name, school or organization, email and phone number to Lindsay Rogers, lindsay.rogers@nebraska.gov.

Neala Lubberstedt

Neala O. Lubberstedt, 82, of Lexington, died Thursday, July 24, 2014, at Park Avenue Estates in Lexington.

Services were held Tuesday, July 29 at Grace Lutheran Church in Lexington with Vicar Josh Stibb officiating. PEO Memorial Service was conducted by Chapter GR, Lexington. Burial was in the Greenwood Cemetery at Lexington.

Neala O. Lubberstedt, was born Feb. 13, 1932 in Homer, to Judd M. and Lucille (Coats) O'Dell. Neala was a 1950 graduate of South Sioux City High School. She then went on to further her education at the University of Nebraska where she graduated in 1954, with a BA in Education. Neala married W. Wesley Lubberstedt on June 12, 1955, in Wayne. The couple were the parents of two daughters, Ann and Amy. Neala taught school in Wayne, Lincoln, and Grand Island. The family moved to Lexington in 1971, where Neala did substitute teaching for a time. In 1985, Neala and Kathy Neil opened Main Street Interiors. Eventually, Neala became sole owner/operator until retiring and closing the store in 2003. She often helped Wes at his law office when needed. She and Wes were the best of friends, working together side-by-side on many community projects. She was a member of Grace Lutheran Church as well as the Altar Guild. She was active in Chapter GR P.E.O., Friends of the Library and a volunteer wherever needed. Neala loved growing roses and tending to her flowers, was a voracious reader and enjoyed hosting and attending events with friends and family. Her family meant the world to her and she was so proud of the grandchildren.

Survivors include her husband of 59 years, Wes of Lexington; two daughters; Ann (Matt) Dannehl of Omaha and Amy (Jerry) Hobelman of Lexington; four grandchildren, Claire, Ben, John and Ellie; great-grandson, Landon; one sister, Mary (Robert) Swett of Kansas City, Mo.; along with nieces, nephews, extended family and many friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents; and two sisters, Bonnie Lott and Virginia Lynberg.

Memorials are suggested to Lexington Community Foundation, Lexington Regional Health Center Home Health & Hospice, or Grace Lutheran Church.

Reynolds-Love Funeral Home in Lexington is assisting the family with arrangements. To share online condolences with the family, please visit: reynoldslovefuneralhome.com.

Zach Nordhus, center, poses with Christy and Chris Worrell who helped make his Scouting experience possible and memorable.

Special Scouting experience made possible for local youth

Zach Nordhus of Wayne recently took part in a Boy Scout Twilight Camping experience in Norfolk.

Zach, 12, has Downs Syndrome and was able to take part in the camp due to the efforts of several people, including Chris and Christy Worrell.

The theme for this year's camp of "Knights of the Round Table" and Chris designed and built a catapult, sword, shield and stone for the event. Zach was honored as he pulled the sword from the stone.

Chris also built a bike for Zach to use during the camp and take home with him at the end of the week.

Campers met near the river in Norfolk each night of the week and all day on Saturday for a variety of activities.

"Zach really enjoyed the water part of the camp. He made sand castles and called it Water World and campy out. He was so glad his Grandma got to come and he took her out and showed her the river," said Angie Steffen, Zach's mother.

"I don't think Zach has ever been as tired or had as much fun! Thank you!" Angie said.

Soybean workshops are set

The 16th annual Soybean Management Field Days Aug. 12-15 focuses on staying competitive in a global marketplace, increasing profits and meeting the world's growing food and energy needs starting right here in Nebraska.

The field days are sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Board in partnership with UNL Extension in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources and are funded through soybean checkoff dollars. The efforts of the checkoff are directed by the United Soybean Board promoting progress powered by U.S. farmers.

The field days will offer producers unbiased and research-based information to improve their soybean profitability. Greg Peters of DeWitt, chairman of the Nebraska Soybean Board of Directors, says Soybean Management Field Days is an opportunity for soybean producers to see firsthand some management tips they may use on their operations. It also gives them a chance to visit with other producers as well as some experts from the university and industry about issues they may have that are not covered by the field day, or to give the soybean board ideas for field days next year.

The event consists of four stops across the state, each with replicated research/ demonstration plots, lunch and time for questions. Producers can obtain ideas and insight about the challenges they face in producing a quality crop at a profitable price in today's global economy.

Topics include: herbicide applications, water quality and resistance management; growth, development and growth enhancement products; multiple soybean input study - row spacing, fungicides - foliar and seed applied, insecticides, and nutrient management; soybean irrigation management; grain marketing/ag policy/risk management; Nebraska Soybean Checkoff investment; and how to handle, store and use biodiesel in the farming operation.

By participating in the Soybean Management Field Days, producers will see their checkoff dollars at work bringing leading technology and ideas to producers.

Presenters include university specialists, educators and industry consultants.

Agronomists, plant disease, and insect specialists will be available to address production-related questions. Participants can bring unknown crop problems for complimentary identification.

The field days begin with 9 a.m. registration and conclude at 2:30 p.m. Free registration is available the day of the event. Dates, locations and directions are:

- Aug. 12: Louis Stukenholtz farm near Auburn. Go 8.5 miles west of Peru, 7.5 miles north of Auburn or 13.5 miles south of Nebraska City. Field day site is one-half mile west of intersection of Highway 75 and County Road 736.

- Aug. 13: Corey and Chris Sten-gel farm near Shickley. From Shickley, go west on Highway 74 for four miles, go north on County Road 2 for two miles. Field day site is located just west of the intersection of County Roads 2 and R.

- Aug. 14: Craig Frenzen near Belgrade. From Fullerton, go north on Highway 14 approx. five miles to Highway 52. Go west on Highway 52 for three miles to County Road 227/Cemetery Road. Go south on County Road 227/Cemetery Road three miles, or from Belgrade go one mile east on Highway 52 to County Road 227/Cemetery Road and approximately three miles south. Field day site is on west side of the road.

- Aug. 15: Dennis Mueller farm near Snyder. Go one mile south of Snyder on Highway 79. Field day site is on the west side of the road.

The field days are sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Board in partnership with UNL Extension in the university's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources and are funded through checkoff dollars. The United Soybean Board (USB), through soybean checkoff investments, is committed to making your checkoff pay off.

For more information about the field days and maps to sites, visit the Soybean Management Field Days Web site at ardc.unl.edu/soydays. Or contact the Nebraska Soybean Board at (800) 852-BEAN or University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension at (800) 529-8030.

Who's ready for a mud run?

Saturday's brief showers made the mud track a little more fun for barefoot kids who took a little run through the mud at the Wayne County Fair.

Breaking up myths about motors

Electric motors account for 23 percent of all electricity consumed in the U.S. and almost 70 percent of manufacturing sector's electrical consumption.

In rural Nebraska during summer, the most common motor loads include air conditioning and irrigation systems. Consequently, you would think many of us would know how to optimize electric motor use. However, the following are a handful of "motor mistakes" many of us make:

MYTH: Temperature elevation has little influence on an electric motor. FACT: Motors are designed with a specific insulation classification, which specifies the motor's maximum operating ambient temperature. When fully loaded, a motor's temperature increases. The ambient temperature rating accounts for the maximum amount of heat the motor can reasonably operate under. For each 10°C this threshold is exceeded, the motor's life is cut in half. This can become a critical consideration when summer temperatures approach their peaks.

MYTH: Frequent startups do not impact a motor. FACT: If not specifically designed for them, frequent startups will shorten a motor's life. The brief inrush of starting current causes extra heat to buildup, which is usually dissipated while the motor is running. If the motor does not run long enough between starts to dissipate the extra heat, it can exceed the motor's maximum operating temperature.

MYTH: High-efficiency motors always provide energy savings when compared to standard efficiency motors. FACT: The actual operating speed of an induction motor is somewhat less than its synchronous speed. Synchronous speed would be produced if rotation of the motor's shaft is at the same frequency of the supplied electrical alternating current. This difference between synchronous and actual speed is referred to as slip. Many energy-efficient motors tend to operate with less full-load slip or at a slightly higher speed than their standard efficiency counterparts.

For centrifugal fans and pumps, even a minor change in the motor's operating speed translates into a significant change in the imposed load and annual energy consumption. Fan and pump "affinity" laws indicate that the horsepower loading placed on a motor by centrifugal loads varies as the third power or cube of its rotational speed. A seemingly minor 20 rotations-per-minute increase in a motor's speed can result in a 3.5 percent increase in electrical load.

MYTH: Using soft-start equipment on big electrical motors can cut utility demand charges. FACT: The use of soft-start equipment can lead to savings, but it will not significantly reduce the demand charge on your electric bill. When a motor starts, it draws an "inrush" of electrical current often five to six times the motor's full-load running current. This creates a lot of heat, and heat is what kills motors over time. Soft-starters ramp up voltage applied to motor terminals over time, thereby limiting inrush, which significantly reduces heat buildup. By doing so, soft-starters can extend motor lifetimes, in particular, for motors that are stopped and started frequently.

But why are demand charges from the utility not affected? If electrical kilo-watt (kW) demand is measured and billed on your electric utility account, the electric meter measures the average kW you consume over each 15 or 30-minute period. In contrast, a soft-starter affects a motor's power draw over the course of just a few seconds. The reduction of the motor's power draw over that short period is fairly insignificant when compared to the time over which the demand charge is calculated.

MYTH: Power-factor correction saves significant amounts of energy. FACT: Power-factor correction can reduce energy use by only a small amount. But unless your utility requires power factor correction or charges a penalty for low power factor, improving it will not have a big impact on your electricity bill. The amount of energy saved is dependent on a number of site-specific factors, including the mix of electrical loads connected to your meter, the type and length of conductors, and where any power-factor-correction equipment may be placed (i.e. - closer to the meter versus closer to the motor loads). However, even in the most extreme cases, it is unusual for electrical consumption savings to exceed 2 percent.

His new pet?

Five-year-old Ashton Jansen of Wayne looks to be at peace while holding a baby lamb in the petting zoo at the Wayne County Fair. The Love-A-Lop Petting Zoo was very popular during the Wayne County Fair and following the completion of the fair in Wayne, the animals moved on to the Dixon County Fair in Concord.

The family of Josh Mann, a Winside native and American soldier who died in 2011, was recognized during a ceremony last week at the Wayne County Fair.

Military veteran's family is recognized at county fair

A presentation to a military veteran's family and a free concert got the 92nd annual Wayne County Fair off to a good start last week.

The Wayne County Agricultural Society presented a wood sculpture depicting a soldier's boots, gun and helmet to the Josh Mann family. Mann, a graduate of Winside

High School, died in July of 2011 due to complications of his time in the military.

Mann's wife, parents, grandparents and several other relatives were on hand to accept the sculpture and listen as Bud Neel paid tribute to Josh and those who have served our country.

Following the presentation, the American Legion Riders drove into the fairgrounds and listened as Julie & Mike and the Victory Road sang a tribute to all the branches of the military. The musical group from Norfolk then entertained the crowd to a number of classic Christian selections.

Ameritas challenges community on Random Act Of Kindness Day

On Thursday, Aug. 21, Ameritas is challenging Wayne to celebrate a Random Act of Kindness Day.

They will kick off their Random Act of Kindness Day with a Community Blood Drive in the Ameritas parking lot at the corner of Sixth and Main streets. Those interested in making an appointment to donate blood on that day should contact Chele Simon at (402) 309-2625. Appointments will be available from 1-5 p.m.

Ameritas will also "sneak attack" the area with Random Acts of Kindness on that day, and challenges all Wayne residents to perform their own "Acts of Random Kindness on others." One small act can lead to great things, so join in and make somebody's day.

New Pool

Chamberlain said he was happy to see voters preferred the sales tax option to the property tax increase.

"When I came on the City Council eight years ago, I came on for property tax relief," he said. "What I quickly realized, though, is that if we lower property taxes too much we lose state aid, and then if we lose state aid then we'd have to raise property taxes. What we've been thinking about is proposing the sales tax increase so that not just the people who live in Wayne are paying for it, but the people who shop here and work here can help carry that expense."

The next step is for the City Council to put the question before voters on the November ballot. Chamberlain said the citizens committee will propose the design of the pool to include both the outdoor and the indoor pools, doing the construction in phases.

"Right now, the indoor part is a little out of our range from an affordability standpoint," he said. "I think what we're going to propose is to have the City Council approve the design to include both the outdoor and indoor pools, and to do it in phases."

The city has until Tuesday, Sept. 2 to get the question on the ballot. If voters approve the sales tax increase, construction could begin as soon as next spring. Chamberlain even expressed the faint hope that the public could get one good splash in the new pool by the start of the 2015-16 school year in late August.

"If it was done by the time kids go back to school, we might be able to open it up for Labor Day weekend and have a party," he said. "The engineers are pretty optimistic, though, so the safe bet would be that we'd be swimming there by 2016."

As for the 60-year old pool on the north side of town, Chamberlain said a decision on that property wouldn't be made until after construction of the new pool was completed.

"We could make it a bigger and better park there, but it's also a real estate option and we could sell the property as well," he said. "That's a City Council decision and we'll discuss that after the voters decide what we're going to do."

Malawi

He will run along Highway 35 and expects to come into Norfolk shortly before noon that day. The money raised, along with donated supplies and equipment, will be sent to Malawi. Orphan Grain Train is helping with the shipment of equipment and supplies, and Mitka hopes to fill a 40-foot container that can be shipped to the school for its planned Fall 2015 opening.

Malawi has also been working hard to prepare for next week's benefit run. He normally runs four miles a day, four days a week, but has been building up to run what will be the equivalent of a marathon – plus 4-6 more miles.

"I've been adding miles and am up to 20 miles a day (four days a week), but sometimes I can only get 10 or 13 miles in because of my schedule," he said.

And he isn't letting the fact that he's never completed the equivalent of a marathon before from getting in the way of his goal.

"The people who first went to the moon didn't go there and come back and say 'Let's go,'" he said. "I haven't run 30 miles before, but when it comes to things like this it's more psychological than anything. It's good to be in shape, but if you can make it in your mind, there's no way you won't make it."

Experience not needed in this job

I always laugh at people who think that you need some kind of real-world experience in order to be an "expert" on a particular topic.

I'd like to offer up myself as living proof of the simple truth that being an athlete is not - I repeat, NOT - a requirement for you to be an award-winning, worldwide-read, thought-provoking sports journalist - or even the sports editor at The Wayne Herald, for that matter.

I've always had an interest in sports for as long as I can remember. My first recollection of a sports event was the legendary "Game of the Century" between No. 1 Nebraska and No. 2 Oklahoma in 1971. It was - and still is - the greatest 1 vs. 2 matchup ever played in college football, and I was standing on my dad's recliner, bouncing up and down and shouting "GO BIG RED" every time Nebraska had the ball.

It was all downhill from there. My dad got me my first baseball glove when I was eight, a red-white-and-blue model with Frank Howard's autograph on the heel. I used that glove all the way through American Legion baseball, and it may still be in a box stored away somewhere today.

My first basketball pole was erected around that same time, and when we moved to Milford several years later, my dad put up a pole he made out of scrap irrigation pipe he got from his days working at Lindsay Manufacturing. We must have shot a gazillion baskets on that hoop over the years, and I hit more buzzer-beaters while fantasizing that I was Pete Maravich, Kareem and John Havlicek - all at the same time - while leading my team to one league championship after another.

In the fall, the south side of the house faced an empty lot, and the rain gutter became a goal post for me to kick field goals toward. The Super Bowl-winning kicks were often met with an angry father telling me that kicking that (expletive) football on top of the house is going to ruin the new roof, so my hopes of becoming the Efen Herrera of Milford had to be cast aside.

I gave basketball a try in high school, but where DO you put a 5-foot-nothing kid with scant passing skills who can't handle the ball under pressure and shoots jump shots with an arc so high that it dusted the rafters?

At power forward, of course.

I saw action for about 10 seconds of one JV game and gave a defensive performance for the ages. I stopped a player - conservatively listed at 6-foot-1 who seemed more like 8-foot-5 - from making a pass up the court. Then again, we were down by 12 and the buzzer was about to sound, but that ball never did leave his hands, so I'm counting that as a win for me.

Then there was track during my senior year. I was officially in coast-until-May mode and my running in practice - and in meets - reflected it. Most mile runners were timed with a stopwatch... they timed me with a calendar.

I was weak, but I WAS slow - so slow, in fact, that I hold the very rare and dubious honor that no male distance runner has ever achieved (or admitted to, for that matter).

That's right - I was beaten by a girl.

It was on the last lap of a dual meet in Utica. They ran both mile races because of a late start, and although I was running last in the boys race, I was still looking pretty good - right up until the moment my best friend met me on the inside of the track with 200 meters to go.

"Hurry up," he exclaimed. "SHE'S gaining on you."

She? The young lady caught me with about 20 meters to go, although I was on a dead sprint (at least, it FELT like a sprint - my friend said it looked more like four overcooked pieces of elbow macaroni wiggling in grandma's potato salad), and left

Joey Baldwin of Wayne tied for seventh in the state men's amateur golf tournament last week at the Norfolk Country Club.

Baldwin in top 10 at state amateur

NORFOLK - Making the cut was about the only thing on Joey Baldwin's radar as he geared up for the 106th Nebraska Men's Amateur state golf tournament last week.

Baldwin did a little better than making the cut - like making the top 10.

Baldwin, 34, was in the hunt for a title for much of the 72-hole tournament last week at the Norfolk Country Club and came out of the tournament in a tie for seventh place, finishing in a tie with two other golfers at 2-over par 290.

"Going in, I was just hoping to make the cut and make the top 60 out of 150 golfers," he said. "If you told me I would finish in the top 10, I would have taken that in a heartbeat."

Baldwin got off to a good start in the first round, attacking the course and finishing as one of a handful of golfers who posted a red number, shooting a 2-under par 70 to put him in a tie for seventh.

"I got off to a good start," Baldwin said of his first round. "I was 2-under through three holes on a pretty tight course, and I was just able to hit the driver pretty straight and keep it in the fairway and hit my irons pretty good."

Baldwin shot an even-par 72 on the second day and moved into the top six as the original field of 150 golfers was cut to the final 60. He was four shots behind eventual winner David Clouse of Friend and felt like he was playing a pretty consistent game.

Baldwin had another 72 on the third day and was still among a group of golfer who were tied for sixth, but he struggled down the stretch on the final day Thursday, carding a 76 to finish 2-over par for the tournament.

"I missed a lot of short putts that final round," he said. "Usually, my putting is my strong point, but I didn't putt well the whole week. I hit the ball solid, but coming down the stretch I hit a couple of bad drives."

It was Baldwin's first time playing in the state amateur tournament and he found himself playing alongside some pretty tough golfers, including Rylee Reinterson of Gibbon, a state champion golfer in high school earlier this year who will play his college golf at Oklahoma.

"There were three or four guys from Nebraska that played, and Rylee Reinertson is going to OU, so you look at those names and there I was right in the middle of them," he said. "Going in, I didn't think I could play at that high a level of golf, so to be able to go in and compete with them really gives me a lot of confidence."

Baldwin said he was disappointed with the way he finished his final round, but still took a tremendous amount of pride in being able to finish in the top 10 in the state.

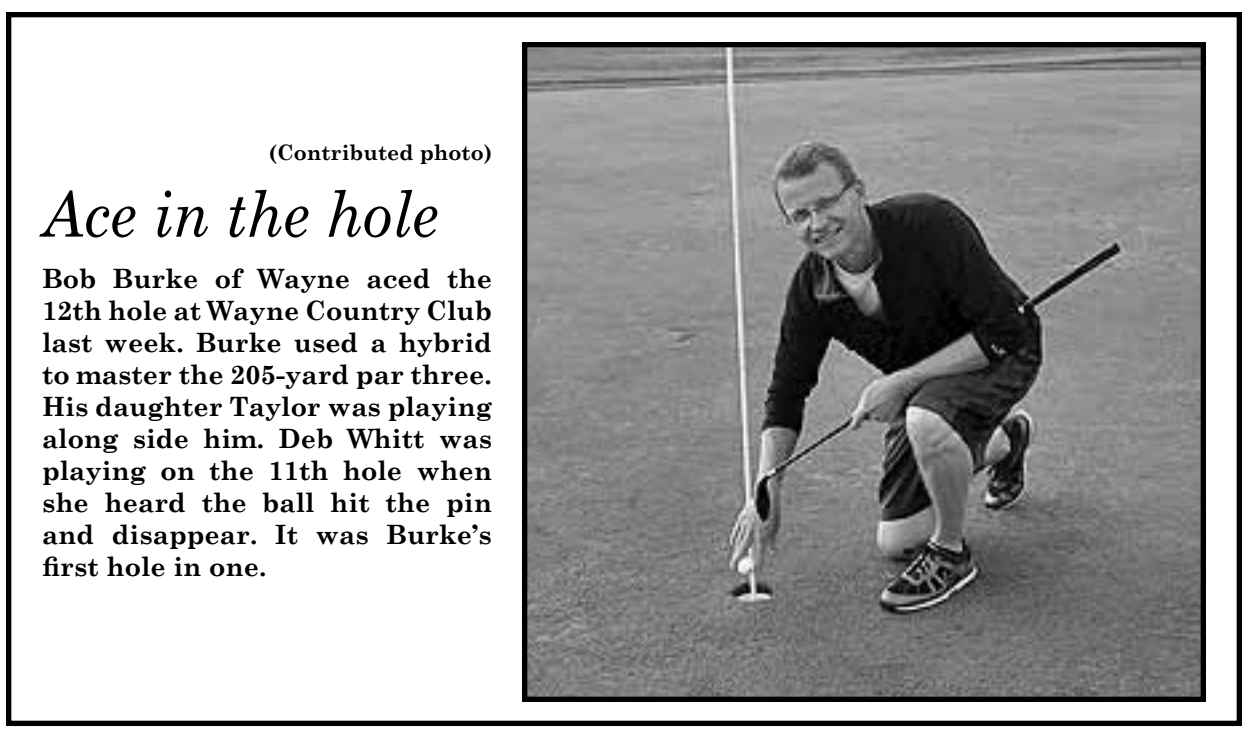

"I was disappointed when it was over because of how I finished, but being in the top 10, I'm pretty proud of that," he said. "It gives me a lot of confidence to know I can play with the best amateurs in the state."

Softball all-stars

(top) Wayne High graduate and Wayne State recruit Jalyn Zeiss watches the pitcher while on third base in the Nebraska Coaches Association all-star softball game last week in Lincoln. Zeiss had two hits in four at bats in the double header, but her team lost both games. On Saturday, she and Wayne High teammate Victoria Kranz (pictured at left) played in the first Northeast Nebraska All-Star Softball game in West Point. They played for the West team, which split a doubleheader with the East, winning 4-1 and losing 6-2. Zeiss and Kranz both scored runs for the West squad in Saturday's doubleheader.

Ace in the hole

Bob Burke of Wayne aced the 12th hole at Wayne Country Club last week. Burke used a hybrid to master the 205-yard par three. His daughter Taylor was playing along side him. Deb Whitt was playing on the 11th hole when she heard the ball hit the pin and disappear. It was Burke's first hole in one.

Harder seventh in pro-am tourney

Troy Harder of Wayne tied for seventh in the professional division of the TaylorMade Pro-Am held last week at Green Valley Golf Course in Sioux City.

Harder, representing Wayne Country Club, shot rounds of 71 and 74 to finish with a 1-over par 145 to tie with Matt Shaner of Kearney Country Club for seventh overall. Ryan Vermeer of Tiburon Golf Club won with a 10-under 134, finishing four shots ahead of runner-up Shane Zywiec of Highlands Country Club.

'NEBRASKA Land & Sky' features stunning aerial views of Nebraska

Nebraska's diverse landscapes and attractions, captured on high-definition video by air, will be featured in the NET Television special "NEBRASKA Land & Sky."

The 60-minute program, set to broadcast Monday, Aug. 11, at 7 p.m. and repeat at 10 p.m. on NET1, includes sweeping aerial views of Nebraska. Segments also showcase interviews and compelling events from around the state.

"Everyone watching gets a window seat in a helicopter and an amazing view of this place we call home," said NET Executive Producer Joe Turco. "I've traveled the state many times and have never seen anything quite like this," he added.

From high above the land and down on-the-ground, the documentary traces Nebraska's history and legacy. Featured stops include Willa Cather's childhood home in Red Cloud, Nebraska's majestic and rugged landscapes around Wildcat Hills in the Panhandle and the vibrant cityscapes of eastern Nebraska. Homage is given to Nebraska's ranchers and farmers, the state's culture, recreation and exciting moments in Nebraska sports history.

A British aerial videography team, Skyworks, joined the NET crew on their statewide journey to film and archive Nebraska's vast landscapes and hidden places from above. Skyworks specializes in top-end aerial filming, creating footage and shows for broadcasters all over the world, including National Geographic, PBS and the BBC.

"NEBRASKA Land & Sky" repeats Wednesday, Aug. 13, at 9 p.m. CT on NET1. For a preview of the new documentary, visit www.netNebraska.org/television.

"NEBRASKA Land & Sky," funded in part by the Nebraska Tourism Commission and Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, is a production of NET Television. NET1 is part of NET Television, a service of NET. For a complete television program schedule, visit NET's website (netNebraska.org/television).

AN UPDATE FROM DAVE

The weather got warm again. It's nice to be inside.

The parking lot is poured and the front road was being formed and should have been poured Monday or Tuesday. We'll need to stay off of it for a week.

We have been moving parts into the new building. Everyone should still go to the Providence Road location to get parts and we'll relay things back and forth. There is a drop box by the gate for us to use.

The building is still considered a construction zone, so we have to watch who we have on-site. We are getting closer. Still need to have an electrical inspection and the fire marshal needs to come back another time.

We're hoping to have it opened up to have a combine clinic on Aug. 12 in the new building. We might not have use of the whole building, but should be enough room to have the clinic.

The phase 1 early order program for planters ends July 31. The program still keeps going, but the discounts get less.

We're hauling in about 4 combines a week to work on them to get ready for harvest, which should be in about a month and a half.

We're hoping to have the parts department in the new building soon. Hopefully will know by next week when that will be.

If you need anything, call us at 402-375-3325 or if there is an emergency, the after hours number is 402-369-0255.

Horseshoe champions

Winners in the annual Wayne County Fair's Horseshoe Pitching Contest include: first place, Kim Brahmer (Stanton) and Tyler Gilliland (Wayne); second place, Austin Allen (Emerson) and Craig Tentinger (Wayne) and third place, Nate Robins (Wayne) and Landon Olson (Sioux City). Pictured are (left) Craig Tentinger, Austin Allen, Tyler Gilliland, Kim Brahmer, Landon Olson and Nate Robins. The event took place on July 26 during the 92nd annual Wayne County Fair.

Ashfall event set for Aug. 9

Ashfall Fossil Beds State Historical Park will host its 2014 "Fossil and Artifact Identification Day" from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 9 at the park near Royal.

Puzzled about a fossil or artifact you have discovered? University of Nebraska-Lincoln paleontologist Mike Voorhies and Rob Bozell, highway archeology program manager at the State Historical Society, will help identify items during Fossil and Artifact Identification Day. Visitors may bring a single item or a whole collection to be identified. Past discoveries include leg and teeth bones from camels, mastodons and mammoths, stone points, pottery and a petrified tree trunk weighing in at 500 pounds.

Ashfall Fossil Beds is a national natural landmark with complete skeletons left in place for viewing. The research center and active dig site allows visitors to watch as paleontologists unearth barrel-bodied rhinos and other animals entombed by ash from a supervolcano eruption 12 million years ago.

SEWER CLEANING NOTICE

Over the next few days, the City of Wayne Sewer Department will be having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the City.

In the cleaning process, high pressure water is forced through the sewer main line, which pushes the air from the sewer main into the service lines of homes and businesses. If this happens, it can result in the air exiting through the toilet, causing the water to shoot out of the toilet bowl. This air should exit through the sewer vent of the building, but inadequate venting or location of toilets can cause the air to exit through the toilet.

This is a rare occurrence, but can be remedied by covering the toilet bowl with a towel and keeping the lid closed. This will keep most of the water in the bowl rather than on the floor.

Again, during the next week, when the toilets are not in use, cover them with a towel and keep the lid down.

If you have any questions about the sewer cleaning process or the areas the sewer main cleaning will take place, you may call the Wastewater Treatment Plant at 402-375-5250.

Experience

 my coach shaking his head in disgust. It was the longest 30-mile bus ride I've ever experienced.

But it was during my freshman year that I discovered how I can be involved in sports, even though I lacked all the physical tools.

I couldn't play football because of my size (and my mother's fear that her son would die the first time he got dinged in a hitting drill), but that didn't stop me from wanting to be a part of the team.

"Coach," I said to him one day in the locker room, "I want to be a part of this football team, no matter what my mom says. I want you to put me in the one spot on this team where I can best help Milford High be a successful football team."

The man knew talent - he took one look at me, scratched his chin as he thought about it for a second, turned around and went back to his office. Moments later, he handed me a clipboard and said, "Keep stats, and don't give the running backs any extra yards."

And with that - a sports writer was born.

More than 30 years later, I'm still walking sidelines, cheering on the local teams, and keeping stats while, no doubt, serving as an inspiration for all those wannabe athletes with wild fantasies of backyard athletic grandeur to become the sports writing experts with journalistic talents that defy their lack of athletic prowess.

So don't worry, boys and girls - if you say your prayers, eat your veggies, practice your buzzer-beating jump shots (remember . . . misses send the game to overtime, makes win the NBA title) and study your major league boxscores, you too can one day become a cranky, tired, out-of-shape sports writer.

Just like Mike.

Hanging on for dear life was the order of the day during Friday's bronc riding competition at the fairgrounds.

Natalie Kruger (front) attempts to control her goat, while Harlie Wylie (left), Misty Wylie and Jackie Escalante hold other goats that were judged during the 4-H Goat Show.

The Wildlife Encounter Shows were a huge hit at this year's fair. Above, Miley, a young brown bear, gets a bottle during on the shows.

Following each Wildlife Encounter program, those in attendance were allowed to hold and/or touch the young alligators that were part of the show.

Saturday afternoon's rain helped create even more mud for the annual Pick Up Mud Run. The event was delayed for a short time due to the rain, but resumed with even more enthusiasm after the shower.

Changes in state business laws noted by Secretary of State

Updates have been made to the Nebraska Secretary of State's website as the result of three new laws that are now in effect.

The changes relate to the creation and obligations required, and enhance update capabilities for various business entities operating in Nebraska.

LB751 clears the way for the formation of a new business type known as a benefit corporation. "Many states have passed legislation related to this new type of corporation in recent years," explained Sec. John Gale. "Basically, these are for-profit companies that promote social responsibility as part of their corporate purpose."

Gale said one notable example is Greyston Bakery in New York which sells brownies and other items in stores and online. The bakery also operates various programs focused on worker training, housing, and creating community gardens. Another example is Plum Organics which sells organic baby food nationally and also operates a program that donates food to children in need.

Firespring, a company in Lincoln that provides website and marketing support to small businesses and nonprofits, announced this week that it qualified to become the first benefit corporation in Nebraska.

"This is certainly a movement that is catching on in business formation," said Gale. "It's slightly different in that benefit corporations must meet certain standards related to purpose, transparency and accountability. Reports are provided to shareholders annually and some of that report is posted on their website. Additionally, a portion of the report is filed with the Secretary of State's office."

Also going into effect is LB753 which makes it easier for registered agents of domestic and foreign limited liability companies (LLCs) to change their addresses. "Previously, it would have been necessary to have the LLC approve and submit the change of address. This streamlines the process and allows the agent to change their address simply by notifying the LLC and then filing the necessary paperwork directly with my office."

Gale said the new law also makes it compatible with guidelines regulating agent address changes for business corporations and nonprofit corporations.

The third law also brings uniformity in how annual and biennial reports are corrected or amended to the Secretary of State's office. Previously, the only mechanism for doing so applied to corporations. LB774 now does the same for joint public agencies, LLCs, nonprofit corporations, limited cooperative associations, and limited liability partnerships (LLPs).

"This proposal was made based on what we heard from filers, specifically, nonprofit corporations, who expressed the desire to be able to update officer and director information on their biennial report after the reporting period was over," said Gale.

All three laws went into effect July 18. The Secretary of State's website (www.sos.ne.gov) reflects the changes in Nebraska's business statutes.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Going all-in during rush-hour traffic

You say you need a distraction from the social ills and the general chaos of today's world? I have just what you're looking for – a giggle-inducing run through the "Bits and Pieces" file:

– From the "Something you'd NEVER see in Nebraska" department: A suicide attempt seemed to be the perfect time for some people in Los Angeles to break out the cards and chips and play a little Texas hold 'em – on the freeway.

A man was threatening to jump off a freeway overpass recently, and the long delay caused by the stoppage of traffic served as an inspiration for a few card-playing folks to break out a table, chips and cards for a little poker on the freeway.

Unlike here in Nebraska, where the government knows better than you do about playing games of skill like poker, the people in California can play pretty much anywhere except online, so there was no problems busting out the chips for a few hands. The people played for the bulk of the three hours they were stuck in traffic, and the jumper eventually was talked down and taken to a hospital.

In the end, everyone was a winner – except for the one guy whose straight was riveted by a full house.

– Sticking with the gambling theme, an Edmonton Eskimos fan cashed in on a 50/50 split-the-pot raffle in a big way recently.

The Canadian Football League team has a raffle each week, with half the pot going to the winning ticket holder and the other half to a local non-profit youth football organization. The previous week's prize of more than $66,000 went unclaimed, and there was a sellout crowd on hand for a battle between the league's two remaining undefeated teams, the Eskimos and the Calgary Stampeders. Throw in the fact that it's a regional rivalry between the two Alberta teams, and you can guess what happened next.

The raffle was in full throttle for the game, and the winning number couldn't be announced until the next morning, due to the vast ticket sales that took place. In the end, an Edmonton Eskimo fan arrived at team headquarters the following day to hand in the winning ticket, valued at – $348,534.

My guess is this guy is going to host one whale of a tailgate party for the next Eskimos home game.

– They may not be real "wrestlers," but you still don't want to tempt fate with them outside the ring – or in their own home, for that matter.

An Arizona man found this out the hard way after robbing a Phoenix-area home recently. As it turns out, the home belonged to none other than WWE rasser Daniel Bryan, and guess who the robber had to confront as he was leaving the house?

Yep – Mr. Bryan himself.

The man and another accomplice ran from the scene on foot, but Bryan was able to run down the 22-year-old robber and detain him – presumably with some kind of choke hold or other body-contorting form of punishment – until the authorities arrived.

Let this be a lesson to you wannabe crooks out there – don't mess with a pro rasser's house. The moves may be fake on TV, but they're all too real if you try to take his big-screen TV.

– Many people, businesses and organizations have been taken to court over the years regarding some form of sexual dysfunction – this may be a first for a pro sports franchise, however.

The Stanley Cup Champion Los Angeles Kings have been sued by a Riverside, Calif., couple who claim that a wayward hockey puck had come between the couple's efforts in the bedroom.

According to a recent story, the couple was celebrating their granddaughter's birthday party in a room away from the team's ice rink where the team was practicing when a wayward hockey puck struck the woman in the head, knocking her out cold.

The husband claims that his wife's nausea, headaches, mood swings and memory loss have all come as a result of the incident. For most of the married men I know, this is an illness known as Friday night.

– A little "did you know" for those of you who plunked a lot of quarters in video games during the 80's . . . the little man you control in the video game "Donkey Kong" is actually the villain.

Most video games have some type of story line where the player you control is trying to thwart evil, but the backstory to Donkey Kong that I read recently indicates that the giant ape that's rolling kegs and throwing fireballs at the player is actually trying to avoid being captured by the player. This runs counter to the presumed theme of the player trying to beat the monkey and get the girl that has been taken hostage.

Makes you wonder if the folks at PETA aren't preparing some form of protest against Nintendo. Will they make us feel bad for playing Galaga at the local Pizza Hut?

– Annnnnnd finally, today's proof that insurance sales may one day be intergalactic: the Russians have lost contact with a satellite in space that was part of a weightlessness experiment.

Helping them conduct the experiment were a bunch of geckos. Obviously, these were the ones who couldn't help Vladimir Putin save 15 percent on his car insurance.

Capitol View

Opposition to minimum wage

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Nebraska voters will have an opportunity in November to weigh in on raising the minimum wage to $9 an hour by 2016. Proponents say raising the minimum wage would allow more Nebraska families to make ends meet. Opponents say it will be a burden to small businesses and will force them to increase prices or lay off staff to make ends meet.

State Senators Jeremy Nordquist of Omaha and Danielle Conrad of Lincoln spearheaded the statewide drive to petition the matter onto the ballot after lawmakers failed to pass a bill that would have increased the wage from $7.25 an hour – which is also the federal minimum wage – to $9 making Nebraska the 22nd state to raise the minimum above the federal standard.

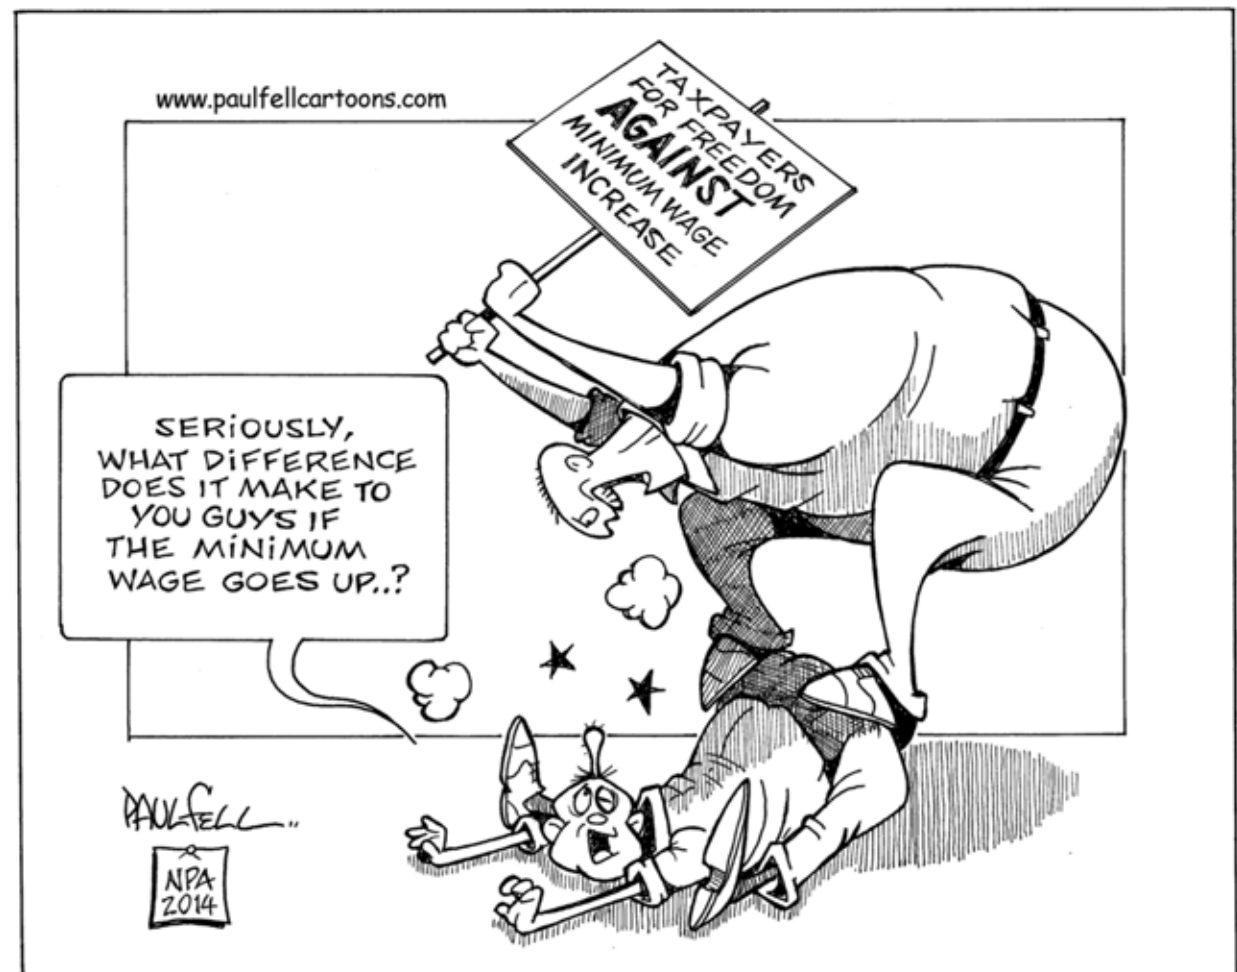

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Nebraska ranked 13th-highest for the percentage of hourly workers making at or below minimum wage and second highest among neighboring states. Voters approved minimum wage increases in 2006 in Colorado and Missouri and four other states. State officials in four more states also raised the minimum wage. The rates in border states Colorado and Missouri are $8 and $7.50 respectively. Washington State has the nation's highest at $9.32. Seattle has a minimum wage of $15 per hour.

Nebraska Taxpayers for Freedom spokesman Doug Kagan admits that opposition to the measure, following a successful grassroots petition effort to get it on the ballot, will be difficult. Similar proposals have been overwhelmingly successful in other states. He says the campaigns against those efforts have been weak, but he hopes the effort in Nebraska will be stronger.

Kagan says increasing wages will result in an increase in the cost of goods and services, an increase that can only be passed on to consumers. In labor-intensive industries, it will be hard to keep a strong employment force.

Low unemployment in Nebraska has created a labor shortage, which naturally pushes wages higher, thus negating the need for the ballot approved increase.

A lobbyist for the Nebraska Federation of Independent Business says raising the minimum wage hurts employment and often results in the lowest-paid employees losing their jobs. He cautions that an increase in the minimum wage, particularly on the heels of a recession, simply adds cost to the bottom line for already struggling small businesses.

Nordquist argued during the waning days of the legislative session that Nebraska's middle class is shrinking and the median household income is shrinking along with it. When efforts by lawmakers failed to advance the bill on a 20-20 vote, Nebraskans for Better Wages was formed and paid petition circulators between $10.50 and $12.50 an hour to collect the necessary 80,000 signatures to get the measure before voters. The group turned in nearly 135,000 signatures.

Opponents plan to take their message to newspaper editorial pages, a public speaking tour and social media. The message will be the impact of increased wages on small business and the layoffs and closings that could follow if labor costs soar.

Proponents simply say that it's time to raise the wage, which has not been increased since 2009. They cite what they call continuing poverty and the struggle for single parents to survive.

Increasing the minimum wage is an admirable goal. But, who knows what the right minimum wage is for each business? Who knows what the breaking point will be for each business? Counting the cost of raising the minimum wage makes sense.

Let's hope that voters consider the issue carefully before marking their ballots.

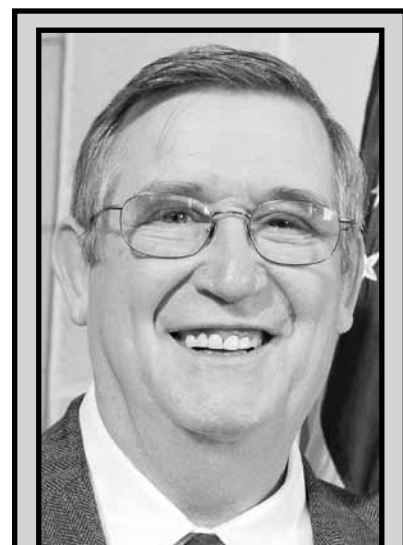

Legislative Update

Horse race question to be on the ballot

During this past session the Legislature passed LR41CA, a constitutional amendment that would authorize the licensing and regulating of wagering on live or replayed horse races on the ballot. We have known since then that when we head to the voting booth on Nov. 4 we will have the opportunity to vote on this measure.

An Omaha attorney, Steve Grasz, requested that the Secretary of State John Gale remove this from the ballot on the basis that he said it violated the state constitution because it contained more than one subject. Secretary Gale has rejected this request stating that all of the subjects contained are all related by one general subject. While this may still be challenged in the courts, as of right now you will be able to vote on whether Nebraska should allow machine gambling on historic horse races at licensed race parks in the future.

The Nebraska State Fair is just around the corner, starting on Aug. 22, and they are looking for some volunteers. Since making the move to Grand Island the fair has been growing and as it grows so does the need for volunteer workers. This year the fair runs from Aug. 22-Sept. 1 and will more than likely see more than 325,000 walk through the gates.

Grant (left) and Jake Kvols, three-year sons of Megan and Greg Kvols of Laurel were very excited to ride the motorcycles on the midway on Tuesday evening at the Dixon County Fair.

These horses seem more than willing to be petted by fair-goers at the Dixon County Fair. Ideal temperatures made this year's fair pleasant for both the animals and the humans in attendance.

Numerous flowers, plants and vegetables were judged on at this year's Dixon County Fair.

Fair-goers were greeted by cool temperatures and were therefore able to leisurely take in all the fair activities.

Many unique creations, such as these cupcakes with bear faces, were judged at the fair.

The essential elements and 4-H

Within youth development education there are various frameworks that researchers have identified and utilized to define and guide the design and structure of youth development programs.

Nationally the 4-H program has adopted a list of eight essential elements. The Essential Elements are one model of Positive Youth Development.

Each of the elements is vital to the growth and development of youth.

It is the combination of these that creates a positive environment for youth development. By leaders intentionally focusing on these elements, youth benefit from participating in hands-on, experiential activities and events, feeling nurtured in a safe environment, mastering new skills and abilities, and knowing that they are contributing to their environment and communities in a positive way.

The eight essential elements

A Positive Relationship with a Caring Adult. A caring adult acts as an advisor, guide and mentor. The adult helps set boundaries and expectations for young people.

An Inclusive Environment. An inclusive environment is one that creates a sense of belonging, and encourages and supports its members with positive and specific feedback.

A Safe Emotional and Physical Environment. Youth should not fear physical or emotional harm while participating in an experience, whether from the learning environment itself or from adults, other participants or spectators.

Opportunity for Mastery. Mastery is the building of knowledge, skills, and attitudes and the demonstration of the competent use of this knowledge and skill by a proficient practitioner.

Engagement in Learning. An engaged youth is one who is mindful of the subject area, building relationships and connections in order to develop understanding.

Opportunity to See Oneself as an Active Participant in the Future. The ability to see oneself in the future is to have hope and optimism to shape life choices, which facilitates the transition into participating in the future.

Opportunity for Self-Determination. Believing that you have impact on life's events rather than passively submitting to the will and whims of others is self-determination.

Opportunity to Value and Practice Service to Others. Finding yourself begins with losing yourself in the service of others. Service is a way for youth to gain exposure to the larger community and indeed the world itself.

As a youth volunteer you have an opportunity to help provide a positive youth development experience for our members. Using these eight elements as a framework you can help you make it the best experience possible.

Barn quilt workshop set

The Friends of Homestead is hosting a Barn Quilt Workshop on Thursday, August 14, 2014 from 1-4 p.m. at Homestead National Monument of America's Education Center. This workshop is open to everyone and will be led by Kay McKinzie.

Participants will get everything they need to complete a barn quilt to hang on a building or post in a yard. Along with instructions, participants will receive a primed board to pencil on a pattern, tape off the pattern and paint the first color. They will leave with the rest of the paint and brushes needed to complete their project. Pre-registration is required with Tammy Weers at First National Bank of Omaha at (402) 228-4241. There is a $30 supply fee payable to Friends of Homestead with the registration form.

Barn quilts have become a major tourist attraction. There are several barn quilt trails near Beatrice.

The goal of this workshop is to develop a barn quilts in the area and to connect Homestead National Monument of America with Beatrice through a barn quilt trail which would then emphasize the current quilts at the Gage County Fairgrounds.

Northeast CC set to go tobacco-free

Effective Aug. 1, Northeast Community College will become tobacco-free. The College Board of Governors voted recently to approve a change from a smoke free policy to a tobacco free policy.

"We are changing the focus from being a non-smoking college to being a tobacco free institution," said Dr. Karen Severson, vice president of student services. "We have worked with all employee groups, student groups, classes, and others over the past year-and-a-half on this new initiative. Over the summer, we have also spoken with incoming students during new student registration and will continue those conversations with students during fall orientation so they are aware of the change."

Presently, the College's smoke free policy prohibits smoking inside or within 10 feet of college buildings. The new policy includes outdoor areas on Northeast's four campuses in Norfolk, O'Neill, South Sioux City and West Point and inside vehicles on college property. Items impacted by the new tobacco free policy include cigarettes, cigars and pipes; smokeless tobacco products; e-cigarettes and other vaping devices; and other products intended to imitate tobacco or deliver nicotine. Tobacco cessation devices are the only exception.

Dr. Michael Chipps, college president, said this is not that unusual of a policy as more and more places, such as Faith Regional Health Services in Norfolk and other businesses, have instituted such guidelines. "It creates better health, wellness and a healthy environment at the College," he said.

Northeast Community College is joining with other higher education institutions across the country in moving toward eliminating tobacco materials from their property. Presently, there are approximately 1,400 100-percent smoke-free campuses in the United States, according to the American Nonsmokers' Rights Foundation. Of these, 938 are 100-percent tobacco-free, and 176 prohibit the use of e-cigarettes anywhere on campus.

"The primary premise of a tobacco-free policy relates to the message of 'respect for others, respect for yourself, and respect for your environment,'" Severson said. "This is also an opportunity for us to prepare our students to work in a tobacco free workplace. We are seeing such policies more and more, and it's our responsibility as an educational institution to prepare our students for tobacco free environments."

Severson said those who use tobacco products on college property will be educated about the policy and asked to refrain from using tobacco products. She said the College has also produced small business-type cards that will help explain the policy to everyone.

A Bit of Light

Praise Assembly of God, where Rev. Jason Pickering is the pastor, is located at 1000 East 10th Street in Wayne. The service times for weekly events are as follows: Wednesday evening Bible Study (for adults) and Kids' Praise events for children K-6.

The Sunday morning schedule starts with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. throughout the building. Morning worship begins at 10:30 a.m. in the sanctuary, with Tom Green providing the music and also preaching in the service this coming Sunday, August 3. The public is welcome to join the Praise Assembly congregation this weekend.

This installment of "A Bit of Light" is being written from the "Green Room", just to the side of the platform of the Tabernacle on the grounds of the Riverview Conference Center, located in Cedar Falls on the bluffs just above the Cedar River. The Cedar Falls Bible Conference is one of a number of ministries that meet on these conference grounds, along with conferences and an extensive Gospel Music Concert Series called "Praise His Name Ministries." This is the 93rd Annual gathering of the Bible Conference, drawing families from across the country and around the world. Speakers in this year's event come from the US, the United Kingdom and Canada.

Dr. Derek Thomas, the senior pastor at a large Presbyterian church, began his series of four preaching services on Monday morning (which he entitled "Fainting Fits and Gospel Cures") in which he focuses on three individuals recorded in the Bible. In the Monday message his attention was on the Sons of Korah who are listed as the authors of Psalm 42, described as "A Maskil of the Sons of Korah."

This is a familiar text which is the basis for a familiar worship chorus that has become widely-sung in many congregations entitled "As the Deer." Dr. Thomas' emphasis was a conversation that the writer of this Psalm was having with himself in which he asked: "Why are you cast down, oh my soul? Hope in God!" From that he began to cite the Psalmist's suggestions for believers who are in a difficult state of mind and heart.

The speaker asked an honest question: What do miserable Christians sing? and gave an answer (actually a suggestion) that we should sing the Psalms, which has actually been a practice of believers for 1800 or more years. Why? They are so honest, and more genuinely reflect the way a person feels. Psalm 42 is one of those readings. John Calvin said of the Psalms: They are an anatomy of all the parts of the soul. Of Psalm 42 in particular, Charles H. Spurgeon said this: "There are dungeons beneath the castle of despair, as dreary as the abodes of the soul, and some of us have been there."

In his 35-minute message, Dr. Thomas spoke of the symptoms, the causes, and the cure for the "Fainting Fit" described in Psalm 42. The symptoms (according to the Psalmist) include tears, crying, emotional distress, and inner turmoil. In the midst of these, the writer cries out to The Lord and even asks The Lord: "Why have you forgotten me?" because, at least in the perception of the writer, God seems to be far away and the Psalmist feels that he is in a state of spiritual isolation. God appears to be silent. Even those around who have known that you are a believer may ask you - as they asked the writer of this Psalm: where is your God now? The cure is given to the reader in verse 4 of Psalm 42: I remember. I remember where God is. I remember what the Gospel truly says. I remember the covenant that God eternally has with His people. I remember the steadfast love that God truly has for people. That is the reason Jesus came into the world: to show us the way to God. The Psalmist, nearing his conclusion, affirms this: I shall again hope in God.

An old hymn of the church starts with these words in the first verse: "What a friend we have in Jesus!" and closes with this phrase - referring to our trials and temptations - that we should "take them to The Lord in prayer!"

Rotary meeting

Darius Agoumba, Ph.D., Professor of Chemistry at Wayne State College, (left) and Alyssa Bish, Wayne State College student from Aurora, were introduced to Mr. Gary C.K. and Mrs. Corinna Huang, his wife, in Grand Island. Huang is the president of Rotary International, a worldwide organization. The Rotary Club of Wayne is a partition of the Rotary Club of Nebraska. He was invited to visit Nebraska. Agoumba and Bish were introduced to him after a conference with the Rotaract Club and several youth organizations of Grand Island on July 9. Bish was selected from WSC as she was the president of the WSC Rotaract Club.

Northeast CC expands offerings in information technology program

A $1 million investment in the renovation of the Kenneth J. Echtenkamp building on the Norfolk campus of Northeast Community College isn't the only new addition to the program that is housed there. The College's information technology (IT) program has been redesigned with more concentrations and a unique "build your own" degree.

"This is such an exciting time for all of us. Along with the renovated building, classroom configuration, and new equipment, the most important aspect is the students," said Gigi Simonsen, information technology instructor. "We feel with the dedicated staff, new learning environment and high-quality instruction, our students will be more competitive in today's job market."

Northeast Community College has expanded from two concentrations in information technology (programming and PC repair and networking) to five concentrations where students can earn certificates. The new concentrations are Cisco networking, information security, IBMi application development, web and visual application development, and technical services support. In addition, the Associate of Applied Science (AAS) degree is now made up of a core of 23 IT credits, 15 general education credits and any two of the certificate offerings.

Kris Coan, another information technology instructor, said the new curriculum provides students with the ability to build an AAS degree that best suits their individual skills. "By providing the students with five different career areas, this opens up ten potential combinations of coursework. It is a very unique approach and one we are very excited about," she said.

Simonsen agreed. "Giving the students an opportunity to build their own degree is a new way of thinking. They will be able to lay down their path to the future that they feel will best fit their needs. For example, if a student is interested in application development, they will get a variety of programming language experience in visual and web development along with application development for small businesses using the IBMi. If a student wants to learn about information security and networking, they can chart their course for a degree in information technology with an emphasis in these two areas."

The additions to the College's information technology program offerings are also reflected in the design of the Echtenkamp building. Each lab in the building has been designed to meet the needs of a specific group or type of student or learning environment.

One lab is designed to allow computers to be taken and left apart for more than one class period. Another has two computers for each student, one of which can be networked on a private network to allow networking students the ability to multitask within a given lecture or lab period. The third is a traditional lecture/lab environment, but has dual monitors which allow for enhanced learning opportunities. Another lab is wireless with laptops.

Tables can be easily moved into any configuration, allowing students the opportunity to collaborate in areas such as systems design and analysis. The last lab is configured in a U-shape, giving space to a permanent robotics playing field to serve Northeast robotics students. The room has excellent visual presentation capabilities. This permits the instructor to display one image to three overhead projectors and a second image to a monitor on the student's desk while it allows the student to work on a second monitor.

"The design of each classroom was based upon the individual needs of the courses offered in those rooms," Coan said. "I have a mobile lab in my classroom in which I am able to teach using laptop or tablet technology and the wireless network. Students are able to collaborate easily by moving the tables into groups. The ability to move the tables out of a traditional row-type classroom into pods and then use a laptop or tablet, facilitates the collaboration within a classroom."

In addition, Coan said students are able to use a white board when necessary to brainstorm solutions to problems. "Collaboration is a priority within the business structure. The days of programmers working independently in cubicles are gone. The IT worker of today must have communication skills, both oral and written, as well as the ability to work independently or on a team."

Simonsen and Coan said students will also have an opportunity to decide the path that will best suit them in the job market. "With the 'Build Your Own Degree' structure, the students will be able to pinpoint the areas that interest them the most," Simonsen said. "Two of our current students have already landed jobs and are earning a maximum $40,000. This is an awesome return on their educational investment!"

Northeast Community College graduates continue to see how important earning a degree prepared them for future employment.

Paul Feilmeier, infrastructure manager at Faith Regional Health Services in Norfolk, said Northeast provided a "kickstart" to his career. "Northeast helped build and shape the necessary fundamentals for me to succeed in the workforce. Not only did my instructors and professors care about my education, but they cared about my success. Fifteen years after I graduated from Northeast I still feel that I have full support by the Northeast staff."

"I was at a tough crossroads in my life when I first started attending Northeast for an information technology degree, said Chad Miller, who currently serves as manager of the College's (technology) Service Center. "The degree I earned from Northeast did not only get me a job, it earned me a career."

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the potential for future IT jobs is 1.4 million jobs by the year 2020. Simonsen said as she, Coan and the other two IT instructors at Northeast - Richard Chrisman and Brad Vogt - conducted research for their program review, they learned that among all occupations in all fields of science and engineering, computer science occupations are projected to account for nearly 60 percent of all job growth through 2018.

Chrisman said the 2012 median base salary for those employed in the information technology field was $96,000. "The Bureau of Labor Statistics is predicting, based upon current higher education enrollment figures, that up to one million IT jobs may go unfilled due to the lack of qualified applicants. This combination has led both Forbes and US News and World Report to list application development and systems analysts as the top two most desirable occupations in America for 2014. Our new program teaches skills needed by those two and five of the top 15 occupations in the list."

100th Cooperative Extension anniversary is coming soon

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of Cooperative Extension, there will be a free open house at the Haskell Ag Lab one mile east of Concord on Wednesday, Aug. 13. Everyone is invited to see all the extension and research programs at the lab. Tours begin at 3 p.m. and run every half-hour with the last tour leaving at 4:30 p.m. The tours will last about an hour. Please join us.

It's been a busy week with a lot of activities going on at the Wayne and Dixon County fairs. I would like to thank all the volunteers, judges, superintendents, and parents who make the 4-H aspects a rewarding and learning experience for the kids. Livestock shows, clothing, and other exhibits are a lot like weddings. A lot of effort goes in to the planning and everyone wants it to go perfectly, but usually something has to be fixed or adjusted. It's just a part of life.

Now it's time for a few days off.

It's getting to be time for the 2014 version of Soybean Management Days. Growing Nebraska's Future is the theme of the 16th annual event occurring on Aug. 12-15. The focus is on staying competitive in a global marketplace, increasing prof-

Be on lookout for fraudulent postcards

Postcards stamped on the fronts and backs with the words, Unclaimed Property Notification, are not being sent by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Unclaimed Property Division, State Treasurer Don Stenberg said.

The postcards instruct receivers to call a toll-free number and enter personal identification information. The recorded message at the toll-free number instructs receivers to search for unclaimed property at www.unclaimed.org.

"These cards are not being sent by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office, and the website mentioned when receivers call the toll-free number is not the State Treasurer's website," Stenberg said. "I recommend that Nebraskans who have received these postcards not call the number on the card or respond to the card in any way.

"We continue to encourage Nebraskans to check for unclaimed property at our website at www.treasurer.org or by calling our office at (402) 471-8497 or (877) 572-9688 toll free," Stenberg said.

Stenberg said Nebraska's Unclaimed Property Division has received complaints and inquiries about the postcards. The National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators (NAUPA) and unclaimed property administrators in other states also have reported receiving consumer complaints over the past several weeks regarding the postcards, which are post-marked from Denver, Colo.

A NAUPA spokesman said the cards appear to have been sent by a debt collector. They have shown up in a variety of solid colors - green, blue, yellow, and orange.

"I want to assure Nebraskans that these misleading postcards are in no way related to the work of the Unclaimed Property Division of the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office. My staff works diligently to promote our unclaimed property program through clear, consistent messages that Nebraskans can trust. I encourage all Nebraskans to contact my office if you have any question about any unclaimed property correspondence or phone call that you have received. 'Fiddler on the Roof' celebrates anniversary

A long time ago, when I was still singing for weddings, the bride asked for, and received, "Sunrise, Sunset" from Fiddler on the Roof. At that time, I had the recording, but had never seen the story.

In about 1981, Jon high jumped at State Track Meet in Omaha, and we all stayed over with my sis in Papillion. I learned that a local dinner theater was presenting "Fiddler," and I took the whole crew. It was absolutely wonderful.

I know that J. Allan Cramer was Tevye in a Wayne Community Theater production, and in 1989, I was Golda for a short portion from that musical in the community theater's collection of songs from Broadway. I absolutely loved her response to his question, "Do you love me?"

Sometime in the 80s, Wayne High also performed Fiddler, and Curt Jeffries was the "fiddler on the roof"! I also loved the song, "Tradition."

Last year, for Christmas, Sue took me to Omaha, to the Orpheum, where we saw the whole thing again. And I cried again, when the Russians ruined the wedding reception, and later, when they were ordered out of their little town.

Politics aside, I still root for Israel as they try to defend themselves. But I bring this all up because I learned on the internet tonight that Registration is presently underway for anyone interested in adult education classes through Northeast Community College. Classes are held in a number of communities across Northeast's 20 county service area.

The Adult Education Department at Northeast Community College offers several services including instruction in basic skills such as reading, writing, and mathematics (ABE); preparation and testing for a high school diploma (GED®); English as a Second Language (ESL) instruction; and preparation for the Law Enforcement Academy Entrance Test.

Nancy Schultz, director of adult education at Northeast, said the program is free to anyone who is not enrolled in a secondary or post-secondary school. "We encourage students to attend an orientation session in order to register and take diagnostic tests to determine what skills they need and develop a learning plan."

There are six sessions during the academic year with the first beginning Monday, Aug. 4.

To register for Adult Education classes, contact Emily Duncan, adult education coordinator, at (402) 844-7253 or Schultz at (402) 844-7254.

REQUEST FOR QUALIFICATIONS FOR ENGINEERING CONSULTING SERVICES

FOR THE CITY OF WAYNE, NEBRASKA
Proposals will be received by the City Administrator, 306 Pearl Street, Wayne, NE, 68787 until 2:00 p.m. (local time) on August 14, 2014, for furnishing engineering consulting services for the design and construction of street improvements, replacement water, sewer and storm drain systems, public storm shelter, demolition and clearing and other public works projects to be completed by July 31, 2015 in connection with CIS Phase II grant funding located within the City of Wayne, NE. Proposals received after the specified time will be returned unopened to sender. Proposals must be based on the City's Request for Qualifications. Contact the City Administrator, Lowell Johnson, at (402) 375-1733 for further information.

The award winning consultant will be required to design and oversee projects that comply with CDBG requirements and the City's insurance requirements. The preliminary and final design and "as built" plans of the projects must be submitted to the City of Wayne in electronic format acceptable to the City and will be jointly owned by the City of Wayne.

Proposals will be evaluated based upon qualifications, previous experience of similar scope, fee for services rendered, and the agreement terms and conditions. Proposals shall remain firm for a period of sixty (60) days after proposal due date. The City of Wayne reserves the right to refuse any or all proposals, to waive technicalities, and to accept whichever proposal that may be in the best interest of the City, at its sole discretion.

THANK YOU

We want to thank everyone for remembering us on our 50th Anniversary. We appreciate the cards, flowers, gifts and good wishes. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered! Living the Good Life!
Richard and Georgia Janssen

The family of Hazel Roberts wants to thank everyone for the cards, food and telephone calls we received at the time of her death. We are truly grateful.
Eldin Roberts & Family

Thank you, thank you, thank you to everyone that helped us clean up and cope with the loss of our homes in the June tornado. We are forever grateful for all of your assistance and your continued support. The kindness that we continue to be shown reminds us of all we have to be grateful for – not all that we have lost. Although we have a long road ahead of us as we rebuild our lives, we will find comfort knowing that our friends and the communities in which we live and work will be there when we need support to help us through the hard times. Your kindness will not be forgotten!
Mark Moser, Jason Barelman and Hilda Pearson

The family of Dale Mayberry express their deep appreciation for all the expressions of sympathy and acts of kindnesses shown to us at this sad time. We have been overwhelmed by the goodness of people. It is at these times, when we realize the riches that we have, generous family, neighbors and friends, who extend comfort and peace.
A special thank you to the Pender Veterans Gun Guard for the moving presentation of the flag and the gun salute at the cemetery.
Dale loved life, his family and friends. He was a big man with a big heart, a twinkle in his eye, a "stogie" in his mouth, and a smile on his face.
Your love and kindness will never be forgotten. God bless you all.
