Pickinpaugh stepping down as principal

Elementary principal to retire after 26 years of service in district

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Three board members took an oath of office during the first meeting of 2015 for the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education.

Scott Hammer is beginning his first term on the board, and Dr. Jervl Nelson and Dr. Carolyn Linster were re-elected to board positions

Following the swearing-in ceremony, the board elected Dr. Linster to the position of board president and Dr. Nelson to the position of vice president. Suzanne Burbach was elected to act as the board's recording secretary

Among the items highlighting Monday's agenda was the resignation of Jill Pickinpaugh as principal of Wayne Elementary School, effective at the end of the 2014-2015 school year.

Mrs. Pickinpaugh has been employed with Wayne Community Schools more than Principal/Special Education Administrator, 26 years, and plans to devote more of her time to her family, both her parents and her grandchildren.

pal. I will miss the children and the fabulous staff I have enjoyed through the years, but I am looking forward to being available to take care of my parents and having play dates with my grandchildren," Pickinpaugh said.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan told the board that advertising for the position will begin as soon as possible.

The board took action to move forward with creating an Early Childhood Learning Center program for the district.

The plans call for the center to be ready to accept students in the fall of 2015.

The students will attend school in a building on Providence Road in the building which was recently used by Grossenburg Implement.

Board members discussed possible funding for the program, including applying for a grant from the Department of Education.

Additional staff for the school includes a .5 full-time-equivalent Special Education teacher and two paraprofessionals.

The necessary documents to move forward with the re-financing will be prepared and action taken at the board's February meeting

During administrative and committee re-Spearman said that because of lower ports, Beair and Pickinpaugh praised and thanked the community for their support of the school in various ways before the holiday season. More than $4,000 was received and food, gifts and gift cards were distributed to 36 families in the Wayne area.

The Wayne Community Schools Board of Education will next meet in regular session on Monday, Feb. 9 at 5 p.m. at the juniorsenior high school library.

Louie Severson, 3, of Wayne (left) listens intently as his friend Graham Ebberson, 2 1/2, of Belden discusses the benefits of the John Deere planter on display at Grossenburg Implement in Wayne. The two boys were among those attending John Deere Days and the open house celebrating the new facility at Grossenburg Implement. They and a number of other children spent a portion of the evening checking out the new, and not so new, pieces of equipment on display in the new building. The former building housing the dealership was destroyed during the Oct. 4, 2013 tornado. Hundred of children and adults alike were able to tour the new facility and learn about a number of farming techniques at the annual event. In addition to educational seminars, the day included a free supper and dance.

Dunklau new intern on Herald news staff

The Wayne Herald will have a new face out on the streets for the next few months, as Calyn Dunklau will be finishing her internship as a member of the editorial department.

Dunklau shouldn't be much of a stranger to people in the community, as she is a Wayne High graduate who is finishing up her degree in English writing at Wayne State College.

Dunklau is a wife and mother on top of being a full-time student and intern. Her daughter attends preschool in Wayne and will start Kindergarten next fall. Her husband, DJ, is employed at Lincoln Financial as the mortgage loan originator. When she isn't busy with family or the Herald, Dunklau also serves as the opinion editor for The Wayne Stater, the campus newspaper. She also works part time at Missa Sue's Salon in Laurel.

Dunklau will spend the bulk of her time handling general reporting duties, including some news and sports, as well as feature writing, photography, page design and research for projects The Wayne Herald will be putting out in the months ahead.

"We're always excited to see young people with an interest in the journalism field, and we're doubly excited to not only get somebody with Calyn's skill set, but to get somebody who has a local connection to the community," managing editor Michael Carnes positive response to President Obama's call to provide two years of free tuition at community colleges.

On Friday, the President unveiled the America's College Promise proposal to allow "responsible" community college students to receive two years of free tuition. letting students earn the first half of a bachelor's degree and earn skills needed in the workforce at no cost.

"Based on the initial release of this proposal, this could be exciting for community colleges and the nation," said Dr. Michael Chipps, president of Northeast Community College. "If you can have a better educated society, certainly there is no question that educators will be in favor of that. We will always be supportive of any initiative that will help educate and train our constituents with skill sets that will allow them to not only be productive citizens, but be able to

Services were held in New York.

Survivors include her husband, John Bressler, and two sisters, Frances of New York City and Joan Dektar of Valley Village, Calif.

Josephine Ahern Bressler was born July 7, 1924 in Wayne to Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern. She graduated from Wayne Prep High School in May of 1941 and went on to Iowa State College in Ames, Iowa, graduating in June 1945 with a degree in Journalism. She took her journalism degree and combined it with a love of women's fashions for a remarkable career in the fashion world. After graduation she worked in a variety of reporting and fashion positions that led her to the staff of Women's Wear Daily in Los Angeles, Calif. A few years later she was transferred to Women's Wear New York office. In New York she became acquainted with the budding new designers of women's clothes and spoke often of presenting the Coty award to Ralph Lauren.

Sports Illustrated hired her to be Fashion Editor and while there she presided over the launch of the Swim Suit issue, which broke all records for single issue sales. At Look Magazine she was Fashion Editor. The magazine took on a campaign of showing how American fashions would look in foreign locales such as Russia, Iran, Ireland, Alaska, Afgahanistan. This involved working with the photographer in selecting the fashions to be pictured, the models to wear them and then selecting the place to photograph them.

Josephine was also involved with civic work and was a founder of Civitas, a neighborhood organization dedicated to the preservation of the quality of life and living conditions in the Upper East Side of New York. She was a board member and secretary of Civitas for approximately 30 vears.

She was preceded in death by her parents and a sister, Ann Elizabeth Stevens.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

City Council Meetings

Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Projects We're Planning

for Summer 2015

Windom Street: We will tear out and repave Windom from Third Street to Seventh and install a new water main and storm drain system.

Hank Overin Field grandstand: We are in the process fund raising for the back stop and other costs not covered by insurance. We're designing the replacement grandstand to be built of wood in the same location. We'll wait to rebuild it after the end of the baseball season

Sports Complex storage shed/ batting cages: These will replace and upgrade the storage lost to the tornado and will be built with donation funds. Location will be outside the northeast ball field fence.

Sludge System waste water plant: When we built the plant we had the preliminary design for a sludge treatment system. Since this is the first low-sludge Aquarius plant in the US, we opted to wait until we had operated the Aquarius system for a while to determine the sludge output. The plant discharges only about 20 percent or less of the sludge produced by the old plant. We will build a sludge press to dewater the small amount of sludge and land apply it as a solid.

Swimming Pool: We have begun the design of the new pool and will bid it out for construction in 2015 so it will be open in 2016.

The Phase II Trail project is close to bidding out but the Department of Roads asked for a reroute of a short segment that will delay construction for a year. They are paying most of the costs so the design has to comply with their standards.

Lions Club Park: In 2015 we'll install the new water and electric service lines to the camper pads, finish the rebuild of the picnic shelter, replant the trees and add a public rest room.

The Wayne Herald - Thursday, January 15, 2015 3A www.mywaynenews.com Rural communities get $190 million in USDA funds ceived nearly $190 million in USDA Rural Development funding in federal fiscal year 2014, completed on Sept. 30, 2014.

In five years, USDA has invested nearly $1.5 billion in Nebraska, according to Rural Development State Director Maxine Moul. In the 19-year history of the agency, the funding total is nearly $2.7 billion in Nebraska. The total portfolio of current loans, loans and loan guarantees under management by the Nebraska Rural Development staff is $1.3 billion.

The program funds assist housing, business and community development, water and waste water, energy, distance learning and telemedicine, electric companies and telecommunications. Water and waste water funds are limited to communities of less than 10,000 population. Community facility funding is available to towns of 20,000 population or less. Businesses and industries in communities with up to 50,000 residents can obtain funding through the business programs.

All communities in Nebraska are eligible for housing programs with the exceptions of Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Kearney, Lincoln, North Platte, Omaha and South Sioux City/Dakota City. See eligibility.sc.egov.usda.gov/eligibility/ welcomeAction.do for eligible areas to determine if you are within the established income limit based on the size of household and county and if the property is located within an eligible area.

Herman is a 2006 graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, with a bachelor's degree in Spanish and International Studies. She has traveled to 18 countries and has spent time living and studying in England and Chile, and taught English in the Czech Republic and Ecuador.

She spent half of her 20s living in Europe and South Multicultural Affairs at (402) 375-7749.

Molly Herman will present "A Student Becomes America, first as a student, then I returned as a TEFL (Teaching English as a Foreign Language) instructor.

> "Living abroad has presented me with unique experiences in language and culture, given me lifelong friendships, and thrown me the occasional challenge,' Herman said. If you are more concerned with the transitioning of the business operationally, it really depends on the role of the retiree within the small business. person. You as Zimmerman the remaining business owner are trying to determine how "key' is the exiting partner. Identifying the skills associated with the exiting partner's duties is essential. This will help with comprising a job description and specifically identifying traits that are required for her replacement. This can be a challenge especially when, like most partners, the person retiring is performing multiple duties within multiple different areas. You as the remaining business owner must identify the important duties and may even have to separate duties into different jobs. Essentially you want to create a system for on boarding, but first the owner needs to identify what are the job's essential responsibilities. What we don't want to happen is that this person leaves and the business falls apart. What is the difference between an LLC and a Corporation? - Omaha

Quite simply it's the shares of ownership. A corporation allows the business owner to separate the business into shares for purposes of valuation, equity ownership, or investors. If your business may require outside investors who in turn require an equity stake into your business, a corporation allows for this legal transaction. A limited liability company (LLC) allows for the separation of liability but, ac-and primary aim of your business. I would also recommend discussing this with an attorney since a Corporation has specific requirements concerning meetings, directors, and by-laws.

I have been selling my product to family and friends and they have recommended turning it into a business, what is my first step? – Lincoln

Your first step is to sign them up as investors. Seriously. A good product does not translate into a good business. I can make a better hamburger than McDonalds, but that does not mean I can create a system that turns that hamburger into a successful business. Your second step is to take pause and evaluate, family and friends are not your customers. Customers are your customers! I would highly suggest developing customers before starting any business. Right now, you are assuming since your friends and family like your product, then customers will also buy your product. That is a dangerous assumption. There is a large, gaping hole between friends

The Wayne Herald - Thursday, January 15, 2015 4A Wayne's Future City Team competes in Omaha

The Wayne Junior High Future City Team received the "Best Land Surveying Practices" award and earned fourth place in the Future City competition held in Omaha on Jan. 9.

Team members James Tompkins, Sarah Tompkins, Jasper Hank, Cole Hobza, Erik Alvarez and Zach Schenk have been working since the end of September on this competi-

The competition involves students creating a virtual city on Sim-City software, building a scale model of that city, writing a research paper and a city narrative, and presenting their city information in a creative way at the competition.

This year's research challenge centered around urban agriculture. Teams had to choose one protein and one vegetable and devise an innovative way to grow enough of each within their city limits to feed the entire city population.

The Wayne team chose to raise kale and Coho salmon using a combination of aquaponics, hydroponics, and vertical farming. Their future city, Coral Falls, was located Chipps said, however, there is yet much more to understand about how the proposal could affect such areas as being able to effectively manage growing enrollments and how the proposal would work in relation to the future of funding community colleges by the states.

"I do see in the proposal that states would be required to maintain a certain level of funding, a portion of which would be based on performance, not just enrollment. However, I would be concerned that this proposal could mean that we could have a higher number of students without enough additional dollars to properly serve them."

At Northeast Community College, tuition only accounts for 20 percent of the total cost of educating a student while property tax and state aid cover the remainder of the cost. Chipps said all of these would need to increase proportionately to meet the needs of additional students.

Chipps said whether this makes it all the way through Congress with its budgetary implications remains to be seen, but he appreciates the attention that the White House has been giving to one of the nation's primary economic engines America's community colleges. "The past and present boards, administrators, faculty and staff have well-positioned Northeast to be part of this great new journey."

Chipps said regardless of what happens with the President's proposal, the nation and the world will suffer without properly trained workers.

"To my understanding, the President's proposal has an overall price tag of $60 billion spread over 10 years. It sounds like a lot of money; and it is, but what is the price of not being able to educate and deliver a highly skilled, globally competitive workforce?

Trust the process for rebuilding

Building a program is not something that happens overnight.

Look at some of the more successful programs at Wayne State College. These teams weren't always as successful as they are today. It took a lot of ground work laid by the current and previous coaches to help get them to where they are now consistently competing with the best in NCAA Div. II.

I hope, for those Wildcat fans in the audience, this truth is kept in perspective when you look at the current state of affairs in Brian Dolan's men's basketball program.

Yes, the Wildcats are 3-13 overall and a big, fat oh-fer in Northern Sun Conference play. When more than half of your roster are true freshmen, and you are going up against older, more established players, there will be days like the ones this team has experienced this season in places like Marshall, Minn., and Sioux Falls, S.D.

For Dolan, this is kind of like the old Yogi Berra quote, "It's like deja vu all over again."

About a decade ago, Dolan was trying to make Upper Iowa a competitive program in the NSIC. The school had just made the transition from Div. III to Div. II in the NCAA, and there were some ugly, bumpy nights coming home to Fayette, Iowa from places like Aberdeen, S.D., and Bemidji, Minn.

In his second season with the Peacocks, Dolan started four freshmen and the team limped out of the gate to an 0-11 start. They played almost .500 ball after the holidays, losing two close games to Wayne State that season. "Of the 11 guys we had, seven were high school kids the year before," he said. Fast forward to the start of this season. He had 14 players on the roster – eight of whom were playing eight-minute quarters and were the studs on their teams dominating their opponents left and right. "It's a big change from high school to college," freshman Jordan Cornelius told me after a practice this week. "The game is a lot more physical and a lot quicker, and we've just got to learn to play at this level."

WINSIDE - The Winside wrestlers came away with six first-place medalists and won their own invitational tournament on Saturday at Winside High School.

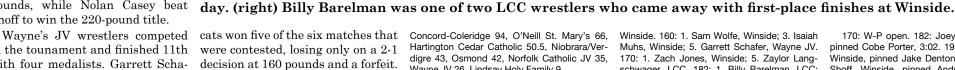

The Wildcats scored 190.5 points to easily outpace runner-up Clearwater/Orchard in the 12-team, poolformat tournament. Winside had a total of 12 medalists on the day.

First-place medals went to Mason King (106), Sean Mann (113), Colby Erickson (126), defending state champion Marcus Escalera (132), Sam Wolfe (160) and Zach Jones (160). The Wildcats got runner-up finishes from Zach Morris (145), Hayden King (152) and Cory Shoff (220).

And learning they are.

For those whose only connection to the team comes when they see the team play on Friday and Saturday nights, it might be hard to believe that anything good is happening with this team. After all, when your last win was over an injury-plagued NAIA school three weeks ago, how can things be getting better?

"We've gotten closer as a team, and that sort of thing doesn't show up in the win-loss column," sophomore Joel Heesch said. "If you're in the locker room every day and in practice every day, you see the significant improvements we're making as a team."

Senior Patrick Kurth, one of two holdovers from the Paul Combs era, sees that improvement as well.

"It's hard sometimes because these younger kids are coming in as freshmen and having to take that step up, and not a lot of them are used to that," he said. "We're growing steadily each day, and when we take that next step, this team is going to go off."

And it's not like these kids don't know HOW to win. Look at their resumes - many of them were either part of state championship teams in high school or played in state tournaments and were part of teams that won a lot of games. Cornelius and Trae VandeBerg actually played AGAINST each other for a state title as high school seniors last year.

Wayne High teams outlast LCC in six-point matchups

LAUREL - Both Wayne High basketball teams got some key plays down the stretch to come away with six-point wins over Laurel-Concord-Coleridge in an area matchup Tuesday at LCC High School.

The girls game was a defensive battle, but the Blue Devils got a pair of key shots from the outside in the final period to hold off a Lady Bear rally and finish with a 39-33 triumph.

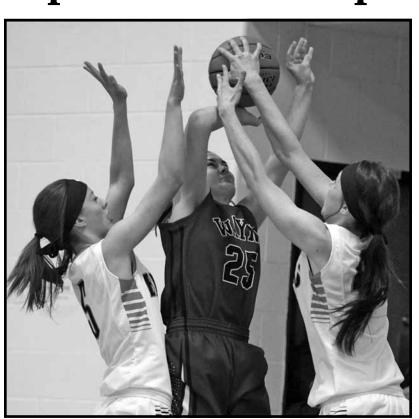

Kylie Hammer, who hit for a game-high 19 points, helped the Blue Devils get going early with a 3-pointer to make it a 7-2 game.

Audra Corbit scored six of the Lady Bears' first eight points in the game and Ellie Arduser added a bucket after a Rachel Rauner 3-pointer for the Blue Devils, cutting the Wayne lead to 11-9 after one period.

Back-to-back baskets by Hammer and Abbie Hix helped Wayne to its biggest lead of the first half, 15-9, with 5:48 to go in the half. LCC stayed close and got the deficit down to a single point on a Corbit turnaround jumper with 1:50 to go, but Hammer hit another trifecta with time winding down to give Wayne an 18-14 halftime advantage.

The Lady Bears made a game of it in the second half. Bryn Schutte got the deficit down to two at 21-19 with a 3-pointer at the 4:15 mark, and after Wayne built the lead back up to five points going into the final period, Corbit sparked an early rally with four of her team-high 17 points to get the game within a point at 27-26 with 7:21 left.

Wayne boys hang on for 46-41 win

The Wayne High boys basketball team built a 10-point halftime advantage and held off a fourth-quarter comeback to edge Boone Central/Newman Grove 46-41 in action Saturday at Wayne High School.

The Blue Devils led 26-16 at intermission and led by double digits for much of the second half. The visitors were able to make a game of it down the stretch, but Wayne held on for the win with a balanced at-

Jack Belt and Ben Hoskins each scored 10 points for the winners, while Peyten Gamble added nine and Grayson McBride had eight. Also scoring were Brook Bowers with three and Zach Keating, Drew Davie and Colby Keiser with two

Lady Bears lose two close battles

The girls came up short in an exciting matchup with Winnebago on Saturday, dropping a 66-64 decision.

The visitors held a nine-point advantage before the Lady Bears made a furious fourth-quarter rally that fell two points short.

Seniors Audra Corbit and Ellie Arduser both had huge nights in a losing effort. Corbit scored a teamhigh 27 points and grabbed 15 rebounds, and Arduser tossed in 22 points and had seven rebounds and Laurel-Concord-Coleridge three assists. Bryn Schutte added nine points and Katie Leapley had four.

On Monday night, the Lady Bears and Hartington Cedar Catholic renewed acquaintances after their game was rescheduled due to snow. The Trojans were able to come away with the win, claiming a 42-34 victory.

Arduser and Corbit both had 12 points for the Lady Bears, while Sydney Cunningham had five and Leapley added four.

Wayne built a lead of as many as 10 points in the second period, but the play of Wolfgram and Jayden Reifenrath helped LCC battle back. Reifenrath put back a Wolgram miss in the final seconds to help LCC cut the lead to 29-28 at intermission.

The Bears were able to tie the game at 33-33 early in the second half when Jordan Jansen hit a long 3-pointer and Wolfgram scored off a Wayne turnover at the 5:15 mark. The game continued to go back and forth, but a buzzer-beating 3-pointer by Grayson McBride seemed to tilt the momentum in Wayne's favor. as they took a 46-41 lead into the final period.

"These guys all come from really successful programs, but they're 18-year-old kids who are playing against guys who have redshirted and are 23 or 24 years old," Dolan said. "This isn't like high school freshmen going up against juniors and seniors."

Dolan is a firm believer in bringing talent in at a young age and avoiding the quick-fix temptation of loading up on juco players or transfers from other schools. It's a process that isn't going to translate into instant success overnight - but let the process play out and see what happens a few years down the road. It seems to have worked out well at Upper Iowa – by year seven, Dolan and the Peacocks were playing in the NCAA Div. II Central Regional, just four months before he took over at Wayne State.

Dolan wants to win - who doesn't? - but he wants to do it the right way, and he'll take the learning experience today to build a winner tomorrow.

"If you cut a corner today, it's going to come back to bite you in the butt," he said. "When these kids are juniors, it's going to be different and we're trying to teach a lesson in how to do things and how we want our program to be, and then keep building from that."

And if you ask the players, they know that the hard work and the lumps they're taking today aren't going to be here forever. They have a goal set to finish .500 over the final 12 games of the season, and they believe that first Northern Sun Conference win of the season is not that far away.

"Absolutely," Heesch exclaimed. "No doubt," Cornelius added.

"It's coming," Kurth concluded.

Wayne, Wakefield wrestlers win at W-P

WISNER - Both Wakefield and Wayne High wrestlers got back on the mats and competed Saturday at the Wisner-Pilger Invitational.

The Trojans came away with a third-place finish in the 15-team tournament, bringing home two champions and a total of six medals for the day.

"We wrestled pretty well early and struggled at the end against some kids we're going to need to beat if we want to get to state," Wakefield coach Eric Burenheide said. "There's still a lot of work to do in finishing good matches and cleaning up some of the mistakes we made."

The Trojans got individual titles from Nick Gonzalez and Caleb Thomas. Gonzalez remained undefeated with his second-period pin at 126 pounds, while Thomas won a battle of ranked wrestlers with his hard-fought 8-6 decision at 160 pounds

"Caleb has been wrestling well, and if he can keep wrestling the way he's been wrestling, I think he'll be fine," Burenheide said. "Nick looked very good today and wrestled very well, and he'll see some tough competition next week at Battle Creek, so he will get tested."

Wayne finished eighth overall and had a pair of medalists. Hunter Jorgensen claimed runner-up honors at heavyweight, while freshman Mikey Reyes battled through illness to take consolation honors at 220 pounds.

"Mikey hasn't been feeling well. I think he threw up after every match today, but he fought through it and wrestled well," coach David Wragge said. "Hunter just moved up to heavyweight to see what he could do, and he wrestled well today and competed hard for us."

The Blue Devils hosted a wrestling triangular on Tuesday, losing matches to South Sioux City (65-18) and Maple Valley-Anthon-Oto out of Iowa (51-27).

The Blue Devils are at the Schuyler Invitational this weekend, while

After a lackluster start to the weekend, the Wayne High girls bounced back from a loss to defending state champion Pierce to earn a conference win over Boone Central/ Newman Grove.

The Blue Devils played Pierce tough at home Friday in the second half, but struggling to get out of the gate early on proved to be the difference as the Bluejays came away with a 52-45 win over Wayne.

"We needed to come out ready to play and put a better first half together," coach Dave Hix said. "I didn't think we'd be intimidated, but it seemed that we were the first half."

Pierce took advantage of Wayne's tentative play early on and held a 24-11 lead at the break. Wayne came out and got as close as one point with a minute left before the visitors hit key free throws down the stretch.

"We had the looks and the opportunities to beat them, but we didn't take care of the details that we needed," Hix said. "We let them get too many second-chance points and just needed to get tougher inside."

Rachel Rauner hit seven treys in the game and finished with a gamehigh 22 points, while Kyle Hammer added 10. Also scoring were Danica Schaefer with six, Abbie Hix with four, Morgan Keating with two and Tarah Stegemann with a free throw.

Hammer had 16 points and Schaefer tossed in 11 to lead the way for Wayne. Rauner added eight points, Hix had five, Stegemann and four and Kelsey Boyer put in two.

Four Trojans were in double figures, and three of them scored 13 points. Brodie Mackling, Dylan Hurlbert and Riley Zamzow shared in scoring honors, while Alex Conley added 12 and Jose Sanchez put

In the finals, Zamzow had a game-high 23 points, but it wasn't enough as Homer came away with a 58-54 win.

It was a reversal of roles on Saturday, as Wakefield held a 45-38 lead going to the final period before the Knights rallied. Zamzow was complemented in the scoring department by Hurlbert with 14 points and Conley with eight.

On Tuesday, the Trojans got down early, but bounced back to beat Ponca 48-47 at Wakefield High School.

Ponca led 19-8 after one period, but Wakefield rebounded and cut the deficit to two points at the half before coming away with the win in the second half.

Hurlbert led a balanced attack with 16 points, Conley added nine, Zamzow and Mackling each had eight and Sanchez put in seven.

Trae VandeBerg had a team-high 22 points in a losing effort to Minnesota State on Friday at Rice Auditorium.

Wildcats' NSIC woes continue

Getting into the win column has been a tough battle for the Wayne State men's basketball team this season, and the Wildcats couldn't come up with their first conference win in last weekend's home matchups.

On Friday, the Wildcats nearly came back from a 16-point first-half deficit before running out of chances in an 89-83 loss to 16th-ranked Minnesota State at Rice Auditorium.

Minnesota State looked as if they would run away with Friday's matchup early. The Mavericks jumped out to a 34-19 lead nine minutes into the game, and after Wayne State got the lead down to eight, they went on another run to push the lead to 16 points before settling on a 53-39 halftime advantage.

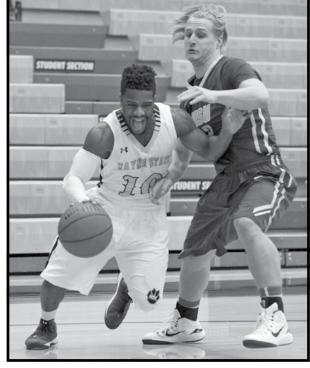

Minnesota State maintained its double-digit advantage until the later stages of the second half when Wayne State made its run. Wayne State cut a 14-point advantage down to four over a seven-minute stretch, capped by a jumper from freshman Jordan Cornelius that made it 79-75.

The Mavericks got the lead back up to nine, but Wayne State was within four with :37 left when Patrick Kuth hit a layup to make it 86-82. Minnesota State hit its free throws down the stretch to seal the win.

Trae VandeBerg tossed in a team-high 22 points to lead the Wildcats, Kurth added 15 and Cornelius scored 11. Kurth led the team with eight rebounds and Joel Heesch had six assists.

On Saturday, the Wilcats dug a huge hole early and never recovered, as Concordia-St. Paul dropped the Wildcats to 3-13 overall and 0-10 in the NSIC with an 80-69 decision.

The Golden Bears scored the game's first 17 points and kept Wayne State off the board for the game's first six minutes until Austin Esters hit a free throw and Tyler Nagy added a 3-pointer later. Wayne State got within nine at 20-11 before the Golden Bears rebuilt their lead to as many as 18 and led 37-26 at halftime. Wayne State was able to rally down the stretch, cutting the Golden Bear lead down to six on a pair of Gary Ross free throws with 3:13 to go. Concordia-St. Paul went on to make 26-of-34 shots from the foul line to finish off the 11-point win. Esters led the Wildcats with 14 points, Cornelius added 11 and Jordan Holdsworth put in 10. Cornelius had a team-high seven rebounds. Area business relies on Northeast career services

Every fall and spring, Northeast east students - all females, includ-Community College students have the opportunity to visit with potential employers before they graduate. Annual job fairs, sponsored by the College's Career Services Office, serve a dual purpose - students have the opportunity to locate work while enrolled, whereas business and industry find college students to fill their employment needs.

A representative for one business said the assistance the office provides is vital to meeting his needs in filling positions in stores he oversees across a large portion of Nebraska.

"We have found throughout the years that it has been crucial to utilize college students and we wouldn't be able to necessarily run the business efficiently without them," said Dan Wolfe, district manager for Fastenal. "We really have a lot of success with students being able to work with us parttime during their time in college. We have discovered that if we have a full-time opportunity and have a career we think they would like, they generally accept it. Many of them have moved on with the company and into positions like mine as district managers.'

Fastenal is an industrial and construction supply company with over 2,700 retail stores in North America and Europe and 13 distribution centers. It has two stores in Northeast Community College's 20 county service area in Norfolk and O'Neill, and just outside the region in Columbus, Yankton and Sioux City, Iowa.

ing Michelle and Shelby."

and Shelby Olsen of Coleridge are among the approximately 25 Northeast students the company has hired in the region.

Students who are hired by Fastenal assist with its walk-in customers, take phone orders, problem solve with customers, as well as other responsibilities. They also have some physical-type responsibilities such as receive and stock inventory and pick-up and deliver

Wolfe said the Career Services Office at Northeast has been an important component in helping to staff their retail stores. "While Fastenal is main stream to folks who use industrial and construction type supplies, we're not as main stream as a Walmart or Menards to the general public. With that said, the public really doesn't know about the opportunities we provide. However, we get the chance to explain who we are and what we do because we have the students to help tell our story."

Haselhorst said she can see how the experience with Fastenal will help her once she graduates and attains her goal of becoming an agriculture loan officer. "This will help with my future career by enhancing my customer service skills, handling money and inquiring about credit checks with other branches." She said Fastenal works well with her schedule, both during the aca-Wolfe said Fastenal has learned demic year and in the summer, and in its nearly 70 years in business her fellow employees are very good with answering her questions. Olsen, who also wants to become an ag-loan officer, said she is grateful for the assistance provided by Northeast's Career Services Office in helping her get the job. "Terri (Heggemeyer, director) has helped me find jobs and has reviewed my resume. She is really a great help and is so passionate about her job. I hope to love my job someday as much as she loves her. She really pours herself into her work and goes the extra mile for us as students." Heggemeyer said her office provides many local employers with students to fill their employment openings. "Our students are well equipped for employment or additional training. We have excellent faculty, staff, facilities and technology to facilitate the learning of each student.' Heggemeyer said Northeast also offers a wide variety of clubs, programming and events in which students can broaden their scope of involvement. "This additional involvement enhances students' communication, leadership and teamwork skills. Our graduates leave Northeast as well-rounded individuals who are ready to pursue their dreams.

that it needs good, quality employees. He said college students are part of the equation.

"Many of these students work part-time for us while they are still in school. We use career service offices, such as the one at Northeast, to really embed ourselves into a school and get to meet the students when they come in as freshmen and sophomores so they can work with us during their time in college. When I was branch manager at the Norfolk store, I reached out to Northeast because the students who attend there really fit the mold of the folks who have our core values. They have been a real good fit with our business."

Wolfe said he initially used Northeast's job board and then began staffing the job fairs. "The one thing we pride ourselves on is that Fastenal's business unit for students offers pretty good pay and flexible hours. I asked that that be the heading on a job posting. Shortly after that, we attended one of the job fairs at Northeast and it was like the floodgates just opened up. We had 38 applications for a few open positions – most of which were Northeast students. After we went through the application and interview process, we hired three North-

Cropping systems workshop, land application workshops to be held

Our second annual Northeast Systems Challenges Cropping meeting will be held at the Pender Fire Hall on Thursday, Jan. 29.

This day-long meeting will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and cover relevant topics related to new challenges in crop production in northeast Nebraska. Topics may include: Making the most of Your Fertilizer Dollars; Decisions for the 2014 Farm Bill; Nozzle Technology and Product Update; Ensuring Efficient Center Pivot Management; and Update on Weed resistance in Nebraska.

Included in this meeting is pesticide recertification for those who want to be certified as private applicators. If you just want to go to the meeting, with lunch provided, the cost is $20. If you want to be certified as a private pesticide applicator, the cost is $45. That would actually save $5 off the usual $30 private applicator training fee. We need a pre-registration to help us plan for meals. Please register with

Several complete 'Director Certification Program'

Josh Alexander, VerNeal Marotz, and Joe Sateren, directors of the Farmers Cooperative of Pilger, recently completed a four-phase educational program co-sponsored by the Nebraska Cooperative Council and CoBank.

Each will receive a Certificate of Recognition acknowledging completion of the program.

The Director Certification Program is a unique educational program specifically designed to assist cooperative directors to more fully understand their ever-changing responsibilities. The program has been presented annually at various locations throughout Nebraska since its inception in 1978. More than 8,000 phases have been comoleted.

The program consists of four one-day courses designed to help participants become more effective cooperative directors. Some of the workshop topics include legal obligations of directors; cooperative principles and practices; using financial statements in making decisions; the benefits of long-range planning; capitalization of cooperatives; and a director's role in establishing proper controls. Workshop segments are patterned to closely follow the growing responsibilities of cooperative directors.

Robert C. Andersen, President of the Nebraska Cooperative Council of Lincoln, said, "Farm supply and marketing cooperatives are essential segments of the agribusiness industry in Nebraska. These local cooperatives contribute to the success of today's farmers and ranch-

It's time for us to say THANK YOU

Thoughts shared on cell phone usage

Boy, it's been cold the last two weeks! We are hoping the forecast for this week comes true. We both need haircuts, for one thing. And,

The chaplain informed us that his daughter, a junior on her high school basketball team, went to a basketball party the other night, we get a little cabin fever, too.

I typically don't worry much about our grandkids and cell phones. I know they are ubiquitous. not just for them, but for their parents. I know there is a "whole lot of texting going on." But unless I get a text, I don't concern myself about it. They are usually polite about it when they are here, and it's not a problem.

But, the past week. I've been involved in several conversations about them. One, the PT aide I see was bemoaning the fact that her oldest had driven to school for the first time that day and had forgotten to text her that he arrived okay. I was chuckling about it with Jon that eve; he commented, and it's true, I just sent them off and figured the school would call if they did not show up!

I admit there were many times at midnight that I would have been very happy to have had the ability to call them and find out where in the world they were! Parents are just plain spoiled these days.

Then, on Sunday, I helped some picked up until leaving.

ladies from our church serve the noon meal at the chapel on campus. Those college kids really enjoy the home cooking. And only a few of them were scanning their phones instead of conversing. One of the women commented that she has a friend who keeps a basket by her front door, into which all phones are placed upon arrival, not to be and everyone was just sitting around looking at their phones. But they all professed to have had a good time.

Then we discussed his sermon for that morning, because one of the students had told me it touched on roommates. He nodded, and said something I had not thought of. Most of the people in college today have never had to share a room! And, most of them have way too much stuff. This causes all kinds of problems. His take on it was that he was dismayed at some of the stories he hears about how disrespectful roommates could be about boundaries..This was NOT a problem in that good old nurses' dorm on South Street in the fifties! But then, most of us had shared rooms, and clothes, with siblings by the time we arrived there

A second trip to see Huskers play

Jess Gibson is on a roll.

If vou've been to any Wayne High sporting events in recent years, you know Jess. He's one of those unique souls in our world who, in spite of the cerebral palsy that keeps him in his wheelchair, brings a tremendous amount of happiness and joy to those who get a chance to hang out with Lately, Jess has been spending some time with the Husker basketball team, all thanks to some random yahoo who tried to steal the family's van the morning of a planned road trip to see the Huskers play Indiana.

If you saw the story in last week's edition, you know that Jess' parents, Brian and Shannon, woke up the morning of the game to find their van missing from their driveway. Fortunately, the van was found by the Wayne Police Department in time for the family to make it to watch his favorite team play the Hoosiers.

If that was the end of the story, it would be a pretty cool feel-good story for a local boy – but as Paul Harvey would say, here's the rest of the story.

A couple of days after the Huskers' loss to Indiana, Shannon Gibson was doing some painting in the basement when her phone rang. On the other end was Brett Sapp, an administrative coordinator for men's basketball coach Tim Miles.

"He said that they had heard about the van being stolen and how it sounded like a good outcome for us, but he said it wasn't a good enough one because they lost the game," Shannon told me. "He said, 'We want your son to have the win, so we wanted to offer you complimentary tickets to come back.' I came up to tell Jess about it, and his face just lit up and he freaked out."

Usually, Jess and one of his parents attend one game a year. Brian Gibson said that Marian Arneson had tickets that he wasn't using and offered them tickets to the Indiana game.

"Those tickets are hard to get, so we were very fortunate that Marian gave us those tickets," Brian said.

This time, the Huskers came through with tickets for Jess and both parents, who braved a snowstorm last week to take their son to watch the Huskers beat Rutgers.

Capitol View Lawmakers are back in town

The Wayne

Hera

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

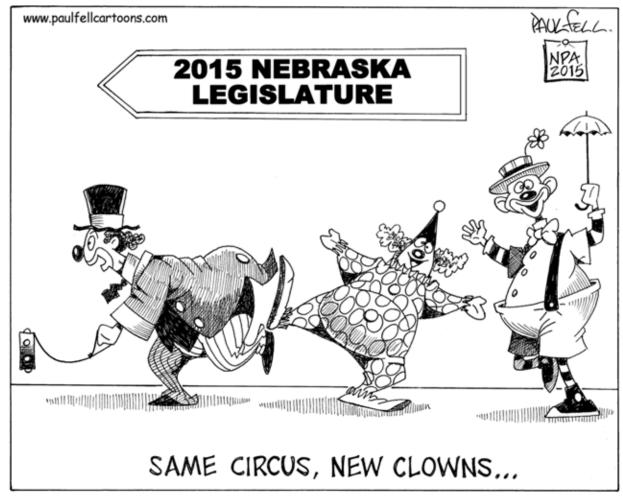

They're back. Thirty-five Republicans, 13 Democrats and one Ernie Chambers - he's an Independent are back at it in the state Capitol. Eighteen of them are new faces this year. The "veterans" have a whopping six years under their belts. Ernie has been around the George W. Norris Legislative Chamber for 40 vears.

Yes, they're back. But looking at the issues on their plates, it's almost as if they never left. The mess at Corrections, the mess at Health and Human Services, Medicaid expansion, schools, taxes and unfunded mandates on county and local government are all to be considered. Again.

State law gives lawmakers ten days to introduce bills. Many deal with the afore-mentioned problems. Some brave senators will try to offer new (to them, probably) proposals. A number of issues will be left in the 14 standing committees. Some may live to see another day next session. But all will get some manner of public airing during the 90 days of official business, which spread into June.

Just a reminder, it's a budget year. That means the Legislature's Appropriations Committee - the only committee that meets five days a week – will have its hands full, and then some. Many of the hot topic issues carry some hefty price tags. Consider the $200-plus million that a new prison would cost. And what about the cost of expanding Medicaid and re-organizing the bureaucratic juggernaut known as HHS.

Tax relief and relieving the burden of unfunded mandates sound good. But where does the money come from to make those campaign promises a reality? I've said it be-ox is getting gored.

Then there's the new guy in the Governor's office. Pete Ricketts brings a business background from the private sector. That can be refreshing and scary at the same time. Hope springs eternal. But, he needs to remember that he is responsible for the Executive Branch and if he runs that like a business, things should be fine.

If history teaches us anything, Ricketts will attempt to have some Ernie Chambers has always been

Now, if THAT was the end of the story, it would be an even better finish – but there's more.

As Shannon and Sapp were talking, she was told that Jess could stop by after the game and talk with the coaches and players. Shannon said they didn't tell Jess about that until the end of the game, not wanting to get his hopes up in the event that they wouldn't be able to meet anybody.

"Close to the end of the game, Brian asked Jess if he was ready to go and Jess said, 'Where?' and Brian told him we were going to the locker room to meet the coach and he got all excited," Shannon said.

Coach Tim Miles stopped by to chat with Jess, and so did his favorite player – Terran Petteway. To say Jess was on Cloud Nine after high-fiving his favorite player would be the grandest of understatements.

"Jess put his hand up and gave him a high five as he came by, and I thought Jess was going to come out of his chair," Brian said. "He stopped by and talked with Jess and got down to eye level with him, and it was really neat to see him talk with Jess."

Coach Miles said his wife had told him about Jess' story after the van ncident and was happy to make Jess' day by inviting him to the Rutgers game.

"Jess and I had a great talk after the game," Miles said. "He was very excited to be there and to meet several of the players - specifically Terran. After hearing the story about his debacle before the Indiana game, we were happy to have him back and pull out a win for him and his family as well. He left all smiles with Husker gear and an autographed ball in hand. It was a great day for everyone involved."

Even a week after the experience, Jess was still smiling and talking about the experience.

"It was cool," he said, his wide smile beaming. "He high-fived me."

The first session of the 104th Legislature is underway, and as expected it has been a busy few days. While we knew we would be seeing a changing of the guard, there were still some surprises as the members of the legislature elected our leadership for the next two years.

Ken Schilz, of Ogallala, decided to leave the Agriculture Committee chairmanship to lead the Natural Resources Committee. The Revenue Committee is now chaired by Sen. Mike Gloor, of Grand Island. Sen. Jim Smith, of Papillion, is the new chairman of the Transportation and Telecommunications Committee. And Sen. Sue Crawford, of Bellevue, is the chairperson of the Urban Affairs Committee.

The following four committees will continue under the leadership that they previously had. Sen. Heath Mello, of Omaha, continues to serve as chair of the Appropriations Committee; Sen. Kate Sulli- ne.gov.

van, of Cedar Rapids, is once again the chairperson of the Education Committee; the Health and Human Services Committee continues under the direction of Sen. Kathy Campbell, of Lincoln; a single vote keeps Sen. Jeremy Nordquist, of Omaha, as chair of the Nebraska Retirement Systems Committee.

In addition to the standing committees a new chair was elected to serve the Executive Board. I ran against Sen. Bob Krist, of Omaha. for this position. I was unsuccessful in my bid.

After the election of the committee chairs the Committee on Committees. which I am now a member of, started the process of assigning members to the committees they will serve on. For the last two years, I served on the Agriculture, General Affairs and the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committees. I will continue to serve on the Agriculture and the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committees but will no longer be serving on the General Affairs Committee; I have made a move over to the Business and Labor Committee. I will be seeking the vice chairmanship position of this committee.

In addition to electing new leadership and finding out committee assignments we also have the opportunity to move offices. My office will stay in room 1206 and my office phone number will remain the same.

- Sip Smart and Drink Green Tea: Drinking green tea may also be a good weight loss strategy. Some studies suggest that it can rev up the body's calorie-burning engine temporarily, possibly through the action of phytochemicals called catechins. At the very least, you'll get a refreshing drink without tons of calories.

- Try Yoga: Women who practice yoga tend to weigh less than others, according to a study in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association. What's the connection? - Pause When Eating: Most people have a natural "eating pause," when they put down their fork for a couple of minutes. Watch for this moment and don't take another bite. Clear your plate and enjoy the conversation. This is a quiet signal that you're full, but not stuffed and, unfortunately, most people miss it.

- Chew Strong Mint Gum: Chew sugarless gum with a strong flavor when you're at risk for a snack attack after work. Socializing at a party, watching TV, or surfing the Internet are other dangerous scenarios for mindless snacking. Gum with a big flavor punch overpowers other foods so they don't taste good.

Shrink Your Plates: Choose a 10-inch lunch plate instead of a 12-inch dinner plate to automatically eat less. Professor Brian Wansink, Ph.D., found in test after test that people serve more and eat more food with larger dishes. Shrink your plate or bowl to cut out 100-200 calories a day and 10-20 pounds in a year. In Wansink's tests, no one felt hungry or even noticed when tricks of the eye shaved 200 calories off their daily intake.

Keep working on making small changes to your environment to lose weight in a healthy way. Simple changes can help take pounds off without a person ever dieting. Have a healthy and happy new year.

Change happens in presence of Christ

Jesus said in John 15:4 "Remain in me, as I also remain in you. No branch can bear fruit by itself; it must remain in the vine. Neither can you bear fruit unless you remain in me."

As the new year began, and I sat down thinking of "resolutions" or "goals" or whatever else we want to call them, I'm continuing to be struck by Jesus words in John 15 of the need to remain in Him, and how much more will be accomplished and improved in my own life, by doing less, and being with God more. I need God to do the work in me and my life this year, more than I need to work on doing it myself.

Too many times, I think we (or at least me) spend so much time on what we'll do to be better, or to get better, that we forget that change will only happen as much as we sit in the presence of Christ and let Him, His Word, and His Holy Spirit "do" their work in us.

have some for this year written great things for His glory in every but I'm also writing down a new list sufficient in me. His power is made

I hope that all of our goals and need God to do in me. Ways I'm ask- aspirations are met this year. I hope that we all do great things for This year I need more of Christ's Christ and His Kingdom and the Christ to instill in me His joy and and take the time to let Christ do Jesus promises that fruit comes from remaining in Him. He promises that He remains in us and we can remain in Him. What an incredible promise!

We have two great opportunities as we head into this New Year. We have the opportunity to do better, to work on things we'd like to be different to set new goals and accomplish those resolutions. We also have the opportunity to let God do His work in us, to sit in His presence, to dig into His Word, and be changed by Him. We just have to take the time, we have to commit to doing less, so we can be more. We have to allow God to be all sufficient for us in all things

As Paul said in 2 Corinthians 12:9 "And He said to me "My grace is sufficient for you, for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Therefore most gladly I will rather boast in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.'
