Council concerns are aired on golf course

Mayor proposes list of items in agreement

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Mayor Ken Chamberlain channeled his days as a member of Wayne City Council in coming up with an idea to help with efforts to renovate the clubhouse at the Wayne Country Club.

During Tuesday's City Council meeting, a significant portion of the meeting centered around concerns that council members had about the Wayne Country Club board's hopes to take care of some long-overdue renovations to the clubhouse and their hopes that the city assist in securing a grant that would help cover the costs.

Chamberlain, who spent four years as a City Council representative before becoming mayor in 2011, proposed a seven-part agreement that the city could present to the Country Club board as terms that would need to be satisfied before the city would apply for a $375,000 grant from the Civic and Community Center Fund.

"I wanted to try and look at this from the Council's perspective and try to come up with something that would provide some level of comfort for everybody to move forward with this," he told the Council.

The agreement, according to a document obtained by The Wayne Herald, consists of the following:

- All golf course and related properties will be deeded over to the city indefinitely. According to Chamberlain's comments in the document, this would eliminate confusion as to what is owned by whom and would eliminate any perceived "shadyness" that may be associated with this agreement.

- The city will enter into a perpetual lease of all the property back to the golf course for a set amount to be determined, and would place those funds into a reserve account for future maintenance issues and an annual audit. These funds will not be used for upgrades or additions to the current infrastructure, and any upgrades, improvements or additions would be done with revenue generated by the course. No other money would be given by the city for golf course operation.

- The city would have some oversight over golf course finances. The city would require an annual budget from the golf course, including expenses and revenues, and may also ask for a current budget balance sheet. The city would also include the golf course's finances in the annual audit. The golf course board would agree that any improvements, purchases or profit sharing would be done after all the annual expenses are paid.

- The golf course will make the clubhouse publicly available for rent for weddings, receptions, conferences and other events. The rental fee will be an amount agreed upon by the golf course board and the Wayne City Council.

- The golf course may sublease or rent a portion of the clubhouse, if they choose. The dollar amount of the lease or rent will be agreed upon between the golf course board and the city council.

- A more accurate estimate for construction will be required before the application of the grant.
- All of the matching funds would need to be in place before the city council will apply for the grant.

One of the significant concerns raised during the meeting was whether the golf course board was set up as a corporation. City attorney Amy Miller questioned who actually owns the course, noting that her research indicated that the last entity on record to own the golf course was a corporation that is no longer in good standing. She suggested that the golf course board create a corporation or a limited liability corporation that would allow for the signing of legal documents in an ownership exchange.

Board members questioned how much oversight the city should have over the golf course, and whether or not employees of the golf course would be employed by the city or by the golf course.

"Do we need to act as big brother to their finances?" councilman Matt Eischeid asked, noting that the golf course board has made money every year it has been in operation.

Councilman Cale Giese said he felt that, if the city does enter into this agreement, it should have some sort of control over the relationship.

"I think this (proposal) is a step in the right direction, but a lot of things need to be cleared up," he said.

Council members Jennifer Sievers and John Haase both expressed concerns about the city taking ownership of the golf course. Sievers questioned whether other cities Wayne's size own their public golf courses, while Haase was concerned about the city taking on a non-revenue entity similar to the public swimming pool.

"Can the city afford another loss leader?" Haase asked.

Eischeid said there has been concern from people in the community about whether or not the city should be involved in an entity that is not used by all in the community.

"Not everyone uses the pool or the city auditorium,"

County talks bridges

By CALYN DUNKLAU
Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners met Tuesday to discuss several items on the agenda, including an update for area bridge construction.

Nic Kemnitz, emergency management director for Wayne County, came before the board to discuss the appointment of County Sheriff Jason Dwinell as the second contact for Wayne County for FirstNet meetings.

FirstNet is a wireless internet network designed for emergency responders. The private network addresses security concerns many have now about information being shared on open network currently used.

Kemnitz was the Wayne County representative at FirstNet meetings where the build-out of data to vehicles such as fire trucks and police cars was being discussed, but wished to have Dwinell there as the network is designed with emergency responders and law enforcement in mind.

By appointing Dwinell as a second contact point, the costs associated with the meetings - travel, hotel room - would be covered by Homeland Security. The appointment passed unanimously.

Along with Dwinell's appointment, Pilger's long-term recovery was discussed.

Mennonite Disaster Services will be constructing several homes in Pilger. They are offering the homes to those whose homes were destroyed or severely damaged in last summer's tornado. There are a few floor plans to choose from and the three bedroom, two bath homes will cost $35,000. This will cover the materials. The Mennonites are offering their labor for free.

Response to the homes has been slow, but there is hope that it will pick up once the first home is built. A dedication ceremony will accompany each home's completion.

The United Methodist Church will be donating $2,500 toward appliances in each of the new homes.

"The issue is that the homes that are being built are more standardized and that isn't what they lost," said Kemnitz.

Several updates were given on bridge and culvert projects around Wayne County, including an amended estimate for the bridge project north of the Wayne Municipal Airport.

The project initially included Theisen Construction laying the decking for the bridge, but has since been removed as the County plans to do it itself.

Theisen Construction Company lowered their estimate by roughly $9,000 to accommodate the change in plans.

The project's estimate currently sits at $94,049. Theisen's plans on moving equipment into place this week.

The board's next meeting is Tuesday, Feb. 3 at 9 a.m. at the county courthouse.

Wayne State College student-athlete Katie Hughes has taken on a project to raise money to help build wells in impoverished rural populations in Africa. She is selling Wayne State bracelets to help raise $1,000. She is one of a number of Wayne State college students participating in 'mini-missions' through the College Group at Journey Christian Church in Wayne.

Turning gold bracelets into fresh water on 'mini-mission'

By CALYN DUNKLAU
Of The Herald

Roughly 40 billion hours are spent collecting water in sub-Saharan Africa every year. One student-athlete at Wayne State College wants to make a change in that number.

Katie Hughes, a junior at Wayne State, has set a goal to raise money to send to an organization that aides impoverished rural populations in building wells, establishing appropriate sanitization methods and implementing proper hygiene practices.

Hughes is a member of Journey Christian Church's College Group, a Sunday evening life group for those college aged. On average, 50 to 75 students attend each week.

"There are baseball players, softball players, volleyball players. People from the band. People from my major. It's a wide variety of people who come to College Group," said Hughes.

At the end of the semester, Justin Raulston, Minister of Involvement at JCC, challenged those in the group to take a Kingdom card if they felt so compelled. In each card was a mini-mission of sorts. From raising money for non-profit organizations to short term mission trips, each card had a different mission.

"We gave out 22 Kingdom cards this year. They don't know what is in them when they take them. That's part of the deal," said Raulston. "We had five students who ended up with Kingdom cards for raising money for non-profits."

Hughes' card stated she was to raise $1,000 for Lifewater International.

"We got them before finals in December. I opened mine the night I got it. I talked to my mom about how to fundraise," said Hughes.

Hughes custom ordered 200 rubber bracelets online. Each gold bracelet is emblazoned with Wayne State's mascot name and the WSC paw.

"I advertised a little on my social media, but I didn't start selling them until the first week of classes. I'm at $250 or so already," said Hughes. "But it's not just people buying the bracelets. People have donated or paid more for their bracelet than I'm asking."

Hughes is charging $2 per bracelet. So far, she's selling them by word of mouth, but she is considering setting up a table at some of the athletic events to increase sales. The cutoff for Hughes' fundraising, as well as any other College Group member's, is the end of the semester.

"We want them to see that their faith is to be lived out in the world around them, to trust that God is leading in using them to make a difference," said Raulston.

Flu not as bad in area

Is the U.S. having a flu epidemic right now? The United States has a seasonal influenza, or flu, epidemic every year.

Right now, all public health tracking systems show that almost all states have widespread flu cases, including all Midwest states. This year the flu is hitting the very young and those 65 and older the hardest. Sadly, at least 45 children have already died from complications of influenza.

The latest data, which was released Jan. 20, indicates that in Nebraska hospitalizations due to Influenza-Like-Illnesses (ILI) are up throughout the state. Six influenza-associated deaths have been reported for the 2014-15 season so far in the state of Nebraska.

Northeast Nebraska Public Health Director Deb Scholten reports that so far this year, there have been flu outbreaks in two of the long term care facilities in the Northeast Nebraska Public Health District which serves Cedar, Dixon, Thurston, and Wayne Counties.

"Schools are seeing flu but have not yet been hit as hard as some years. However, the flu season is not over and will continue for the next couple of months," Scholten said.

At Wayne Community Schools, School Nurse Carolyn Harder said that there have been some cases of the flu, but indicated that there were more absences prior to the holiday break.

"We continue to use the same guidelines for all students who are ill. They are not to return to school unless they have been without a fever for 24 hours without medication," Harder said.

The school works with the students to take measures to help prevent the spread of illness, including washing hands frequently and not touching your face.

No injuries in Friday mishap

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office investigated a one-vehicle accident on Highway 98 west of the junction with Highway 57 on Friday.

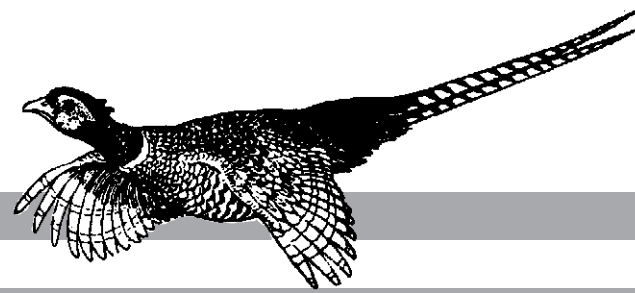

A gravel truck towing a trailer lost control and rolled one time. The rollover caused the contents of the truck and trailer to spill onto the highway. This caused the highway to be closed for approximately two hours.

No injuries were reported in the accident.

The highway was cleared by the Nebraska Department of Roads and reopened to traffic. The Wayne County Sheriff's Office was assisted on the scene by the Carroll Volunteer Fire and Rescue, Winside Volunteer Fire and Rescue, the Nebraska State Patrol, and the Nebraska Department of Roads.

City Council Meetings

Regular City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Planning and Zoning?

Planning: The schedule for the annual mayor and council strategic planning retreat is this Friday, Jan. 23 from 5-9 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 24 at the Senior Center. At this meeting they set one year goals and long term goals for management and growth. Our city budget for 2015-2016 is based on the goals from this retreat. This retreat is open to the public.

Zoning: Zoning regulations are meant to group similar property uses into neighborhoods, such as industrial, commercial agricultural and residential uses. Zoning regulations set the rules for what things can or can't be done and how properties can be used in your neighborhood.

Every city with zoning has a long-term Comprehensive Plan for the orderly development of the community. The zoning regulations are based on the Comprehensive Plan. These plans are updated about every 10 years by citizen groups appointed by the mayor and council. Final action to adopt the plan is done by the city council.

Wayne is planning to update our Comprehensive Plan next winter. The citizens committee process is pretty time consuming but necessary to get wide public input. If you're interested in this committee, let us know.

Community colleges, UNMC pave smoother path for transition to bachelor's degree in nursing

In an effort to increase the number of registered nurses in Nebraska with bachelor's degrees, the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Nursing will provide early, guaranteed admission in the registered nurse (RN) to the bachelor of science in nursing (BSN) program for qualified students enrolled in associate degree nursing (ADN) programs at the six community colleges in the state, including Northeast Community College.

"The intent of the Nebraska RN-BSN Collaborative is to encourage seamless transfer opportunities for students and enhance communication between the institutions. The agreement also is one strategy toward Nebraska's goal of attaining 80 percent of registered nurses with BSN degrees," said Juliann Sebastian, Ph.D., dean of the UNMC College of Nursing.

"This will be a wonderful opportunity for students and will help boost the BSN pipeline in the state," Dr. Sebastian said. "One of the most exciting things is each community college worked with our faculty to design the program in a way that will work optimally for students and strengthen opportunities for seamless progression from the associate to the baccalaureate degree."

Dr. Sebastian said the program is streamlined and has been customized to meet the needs of registered nurses.

"Students at the community colleges still will have opportunities to apply for any UNMC nursing program of their choice, but the agreement provides a unique early entry option for students who meet the qualifications."

Community college students approved for early admission will have completed at least one quarter of nursing coursework and have a minimum GPA of 3.25. Students will be admitted pending completion of the associate degree in nursing program and attaining their registered nursing license.

The RN to BSN program requires 20 credit hours and is delivered online. An additional 11 credits are required and are met through documentation of professional and educational accomplishments.

The program is designed to bridge the gap between the credit hours students already have taken in their associate degree programs and what they need for a BSN. Flexibility of the program enables students to finish it full time in two semesters or part-time over three years.

"This agreement was developed to provide an opportunity for the very motivated Northeast nursing student to consider moving on to the BSN degree after completion of the ADN degree," said John Blaylock, vice president of educational services at Northeast Community College. "It reserves a seat for the student once selected. This agreement with UNMC requires the nursing student to complete a two-year associate degree nursing program and obtain licensure before beginning the BSN program. The ability for a student to have a seat reserved for him/her is a direct benefit for our nursing students as these BSN programs fill up fast and could cause delays in the transfer to a bachelors program."

Applications will be accepted beginning in February 2015 for the semester that begins in August 2016. Guaranteed spaces will be made available at the beginning of each academic year for a select number of students.

Lynnette Leeseberg Stamler, Ph.D., professor and associate dean for academic programs at the UNMC College of Nursing, said the RN to BSN program provides skills and knowledge in leadership, teamwork, critical thinking, best practices, patient safety and quality improvement. It also provides education in population-based care.

According to a 2012 report by the Nebraska Center for Nursing, 48 percent of the 20,434 registered nurses working in Nebraska have earned a BSN. About 51 percent of nurses in the nation have a BSN degree, Dr. Stamler said.

Nursing programming at Northeast Community College in Norfolk is conducted in the J. Paul and Eleanor McIntosh College of Nursing. A $12.9 million fundraising campaign allowed for construction of the facility, which opened in 2010. Healthcare education provided through the J. Paul and Eleanor McIntosh College of Nursing is the result of a collaborative partnership between Northeast Community College, the University of Nebraska Medical Center and Faith Regional Health Services.

The Wayne TeamMates hosted the Chamber Coffee on Friday at the Coffee Shoppe in honor of National Mentoring Month.

TeamMates celebrate mentoring month

The start of a new year marks the start of a new national mentoring month campaign at TeamMates Mentoring Program.

"As we start the new year, we want to take the time to show gratitude to the more than 7,000 mentors who make an impact on the lives of their mentees. Our message in 2015 is one of gratitude. Thank you to our mentors that share their time and talent with their mentees, and to all of those that support our mission, "to positively impact the world by inspiring youth to reach their full potential." said Suzanne Hince, executive director of the TeamMates program,

The Wayne TeamMates program is currently serving more than 60 youth in grades three through 12. Ellen Imdieke serves as coordinator of the program and Jill Walling is currently the president of the 10 member board that guides the program.

"TeamMates Mentoring Program is proud to take part in the annual National Mentoring Month campaign and be a part of raising awareness of the need for mentors in communities across Nebraska and Iowa," Hince said.

TeamMates data has shown that mentors play a powerful role in decreasing disciplinary referrals and boosting academic achievement and school attendance. Mentors help to build young people's character and confidence, expand their universe, and help them navigate a path to success. Despite these benefits, the gap between the number of mentors and the number of young people who need a mentor continues to grow.

"At the TeamMates Mentoring Program, our 2015 resolution is to continue our impact, by reaching our goal of serving 10,000 youth in 2015. There are young people who are ready to be matched with a mentor today. Help us close the gap. We hope you will consider becoming a mentor as part of your new year," Hince said.

The Wayne TeamMates Program has conducted a number of activities to celebrate National Mentoring Month, including attending a Wayne State College Women's and Men's basketball game, hosting the weekly Chamber Coffee, sending thank you notes to current mentors and conducting additional recruiting activities as the program strives to reach its goal of 75 mentor/mentee matches by 2017.

To become a mentor go to www.teammates.org or call (877) 531-8326.

WSC president search meeting Jan. 28

In late January, the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State College System will commence its search for the next President of Wayne State College.

NSCS Chancellor Stan Carpenter and search consultant Dr. Chuck Bunting will visit the college on Wednesday, Jan. 28, to meet with stakeholders. The purpose of the college visit is to seek input on the qualities that campus and community members think will be important in the 13th President of Wayne State College.

Chancellor Carpenter and Dr. Bunting will host two meetings that will be open to the Wayne State College community and the greater Wayne community as well. The meetings will be held in the Gardner Business Building Auditorium with the first session starting at 8:30 a.m. and the second session at 10 a.m. All are welcome to attend one of the sessions to share thoughts and ideas as Wayne State College prepares to journey into the future with a new president at the helm.

If your schedule will not permit you to attend one of the open meetings, you may share your thoughts by sending a letter to Chancellor Carpenter in care of Lynne Olson, 1327 H Street, Suite 200, Lincoln, Neb., 68508, or by e-mail to lolsen@nscs.edu.

Flu

infectious diseases like the flu to make sure that the public is aware when there are health threats.

According to information provided by the Health Department, "the most important steps to keep that flu bug from making you or your family members sick are these:

- Get vaccinated for the flu. Even though this year's flu virus changed since the vaccine was produced, a flu shot or nasal vaccine is still going to protect you and your family better than none. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that everyone six months and older, get immunized with a shot or nasal vaccine. It is not too late to get flu vaccine now.

- Wash your hands often with soap and water! A school project in one state had students washing their hands every hour, AND before and after using the restroom, AND before and after eating. This helped keep doorknobs, hallway rails, library books, countertops, and other surfaces less likely to pass germs between students. As a result, student absences were greatly reduced.

- Don't touch your eyes, nose or mouth with your fingers or hands. They are direct routes for germs to get into your body.

- If you are sick, stay home. You may be able to pass on the flu to someone else before you know you are sick, as well as while you are sick. Children who are sick pass on flu germs even longer than adults - up to seven days.

- As soon as you become aware of your symptoms, call your doctor. You may be able to get treated with an anti-viral medicine that keeps your symptoms milder than the full-blown flu.

- If you are well, stay away from others who are sick.

- Keep babies under 6 months old away from the public where they might be exposed to the flu or other infectious diseases.

For more information about the flu, call NNPHD at (402) 375-2200 or go to www.NNPHD.org.

and so this is certainly not for everybody," he said. "There are improvements (at the golf course) that need to be made, and the committee that's looking at this is trying to come up with ways to fund this."

Any agreement that would be reached between the city and the golf course board, in all likelihood, won't happen before the Feb. 28 deadline for the application for the grant. Chamberlain said the golf course representatives understood this and were planning on going after the grant in 2016, which would give them time to come up with a more detailed proposal and begin to put a fundraising campaign together that could raise the funds needed to match the grant.

Chamberlain said the issue was something the board could discuss further during an upcoming retreat they will have this weekend at the Wayne Senior Center.

In other action, the Council:

- approved an agreement with JEO Consulting Group Inc., for oversight services for the design and construction of the new swimming pool at the Wayne Community Activity Center. According to figures presented at the meeting, engineering fees will take up about 14 percent of the total project cost, which was estimated to be around $2.8 million.

- approved the recommendations of the Wayne Planning Commission to rezone an area on the north side of Grainland Road, across from the new Southview subdivision, from R-2 to A-2 Agricultural Residential. The zoning change will allow property owners on the north side of the street to request an agricultural deferment on their portion of the utility assessments in the Southview subdivision until the north side of the street is developed. The final reading on the annexation of the Southview addition was also approved by the council.

- approved an agreement with JEO Consulting Group Inc., on construction services for the Hillside Drive improvement project.

- approved plans and specifications for the repainting of the east water tower, authorizing the city clerk to begin advertising for bids for the project, which will repair and repaint the inside and outside of the water tower.

- tabled an agreement with Advanced Consulting Engineering Services for the Thorman Street sanitary sewer extension project.

- approved an amendment for the recreational trail sign project, decreasing the required maintenance date on signage from 25 to 10 years.

- approved a pay application of $95,575.91 to Robert Woehler and Sons Construction for the 2014 Hillside Drive paving and storm sewer improvement project.

- delayed action on a staff proposal to extend city sewer services south on Chiefs Way.

The Wayne City Council's next regular meeting will be Tuesday, Feb. 3, at 5:30 p.m.

Hoskins' long shots bring miracle win

3-pointer to tie, half-court winner

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

You would be hard pressed to find a kid who has played more than five seconds of basketball and didn't fantasize about hitting an exciting buzzer-beating shot.

There aren't many who have been able to live out that exciting moment, and fewer still who did it the way Wayne High senior Ben Hoskins did it Friday night.

Twice. The senior Blue Devil forward brought his team back from the dead twice in an exciting matchup with Dakota Valley at Wayne High School. He hit a 3-pointer with time running out in regulation to tie the game, then nailed an improbable half-court shot at the buzzer to give Wayne a 76-75 triumph.

Video of the two shots made its way on to the Internet and has received plenty of buzz thanks to websites like MaxPreps and Deadspin. Hoskins said he uploaded video to his Twitter account to show his friends, and the video has gone viral after it received more than 50,000 hits as of Tuesday afternoon.

"To have the same kid do that in one game, you don't see that happen very often. That was definitely highlight material," coach Rob Sweetland said.

The Blue Devils had to battle from behind just to put themselves in position for the crazy late-game heroics. They trailed 64-61 with less than 10 seconds to go in regulation when Sweetland drew up a play designed to free up Grayson McBride or Peyton Gamble for a potential game-tying 3-pointer.

"We had Ben on top and we ran Peyton and Grayson along the baseline with the other two guys screening for them to get them open on the wings," he said. "If they couldn't get open, then Ben was supposed to take the shot."

At 6-foot-4, Hoskins towered over the Dakota Valley player guarding him at the top of the key, so he let it fly.

"I saw Grayson open for a second, but they covered him up right away and time was running out, so I shot it," Hoskins said.

Hoskins admitted that the shot didn't feel good coming off his hand, but it bounced three times on the rim before falling in with about two seconds left to tie the game at 64-64.

For a while, it looked as if Hoskins' half-court heroics wouldn't be needed. Wayne led by six with about a minute to go, but Dakota Valley's pressure defense quickly turned things around, giving them a 75-73 lead. When Hoskins' pass sailed over Ryan Jaix-en's head and out of bounds, it appeared all was lost.

But, with 0.6 seconds showing on the clock, there still was hope.

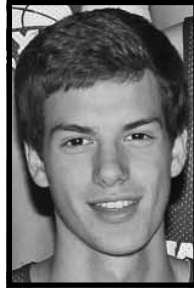

Dakota Valley called a time out, which allowed Sweetland to bring 6-foot-7 senior Zach Keating into the game to guard the inbounds pass.

"I told the kids they were probably going to throw it over Zach and throw it deep, which might give us a chance to catch and toss in one motion," Sweetland said. "The pass went right in Ben's pocket where he needed to catch it and get rid of it."

Hoskins' man was standing near the basket at the opposite end of the floor, so when the pass came his way, he had an unobstructed path to the ball.

"I took two steps forward and it landed in my hands with me straight at the basket and I just heaved it," he said.

The shot flew skyward toward the basket. See MIRACLE, Page 2B

Win on the court, lose in the polls

Time to mysteriously deflate some of the more properly-inflated items in the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- When is it possible to lose when you're winning?

The Wayne State women's basketball team can tell you all about that these past couple of weeks. The Wildcats have won six straight games since the holidays, but went from No. 14 in the USA Today Sports Div. II coaches poll two weeks ago to the first team out in this week's rankings.

Granted, the 25 teams in the rankings all sport quality records (I guess Wayne State's 15-3 mark isn't worthy), but when have you ever seen a team penalized for not only winning, but winning big?

This recent series of events has cast a rather dubious shadow upon the USA Today Sports rankings system, and the people running the rankings really don't have a legitimate leg to stand on right now when it comes to determining who the top teams in the country are.

Maybe coach Chris Kielsmeier and the Wildcats should just tank these next two home games against Upper Iowa and Winona State this weekend - following USA Today's logic, it would probably bounce them back up into the top 10.

- I watched the video of Ben Hoskins' buzzer-beating half-court shot that beat Dakota Valley in overtime last week, and I don't think I've seen a better-executed interception-turned-score since last year's Super Bowl.

Hoskins caught the ball on a dead run toward the basket at waist level, took a step, and pushed the ball toward the south basket, all in one fluid motion (which he kinda had to do, seeing as how there were only SIX TENTHS OF A SECOND left on the clock).

Unless Zach Keating executes a 360-degree dunk or somebody else does something amazing, that's the front-runner for the area's play of the year in my mind.

- I've been holding off on this for as long as I could, but the Winside boys basketball team have a chance to do something this weekend that they haven't done in three years - win a game.

You have to go back to Jan. 26, 2012 to find the last Wildcats victory. They beat Hartington High 43-34 that evening, but it's been a long, hard road since that last victory - although not due to lack of effort.

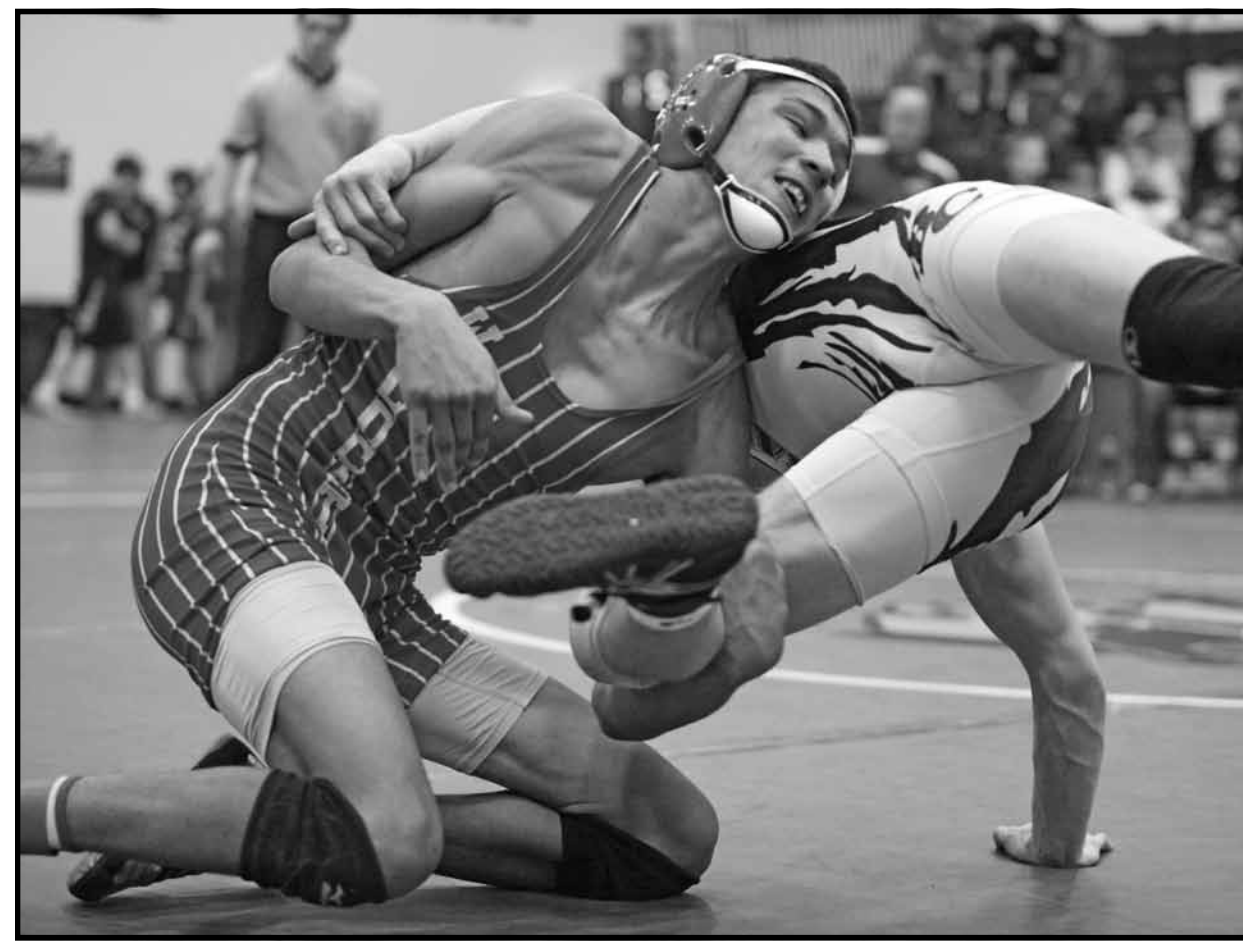

Last year, the Wildcats played with only six players, one of whom was a foreign exchange student. That team struggled to get into double digits and scored a measly five points in their season-ending sub-district game, three of which came on a buzzer-beating 3-point shot to end a 48-0 run by Bancroft-Rosalie.

Tuesday's loss to Creighton was the 61st consecutive defeat for the Wildcats, a streak that comes in as the fourth longest streak of defeats in Nebraska boys basketball history. If they don't put one in the win column this season, the streak will be at 71 games (70 if they don't play a consolation game in the conference tournament) and would trail only the 86-game streak put together by Guide Rock between 1988-1995.

Here's a little perspective, though - Wynot actually has two of the five longest streaks in state history. Their 69-game run between 1969-1973 was followed up by a 58-game run of losses from 1973-77. I'm not sure what their record was in between those streaks, but that's AT LEAST 127 defeats over an eight-year period. Obviously, it could be A LOT worse than it has been the past couple of seasons for the Winside faithful.

There is good news for the Wildcats, however - they have a great chance at breaking that streak this Saturday on the road against 0-12 Scribner-Snyder. There is also an opportunity for a win at home on Feb. 10 when they host Allen, who Top-ranked and defending state champion Marcus Escalera of Winside won a tough match in the finals at 132 pounds to lead the Wildcats to a runner-up finish Saturday.

Winside finishes second at Battle Creek Invite

Wakefield, LCC also finish with finalists

BATTLE CREEK - It was a good day for area wrestlers Saturday at the Battle Creek Invitational, as Winside, Wakefield and Laurel-Concord-Coleridge combined for a total of 21 medals.

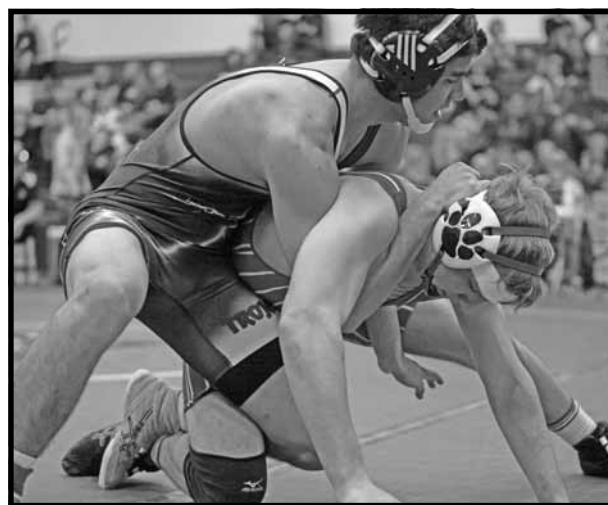

The Winside wrestlers had the biggest haul of the trio, finishing second in the 19-team invitational and earning 12 medals.

Leading the way for the Wildcats was undefeated and top-ranked 132-pounder Marcus Escalera. The defending Class D champion faced a tough matchup in the finals, but wrestled well and came away with a 15-10 decision over Chase Osborne of Battle Creek to stay unbeaten and bring home a first-place medal.

Escalera was joined in the finals by Zach Jones, but Jones was pinned late in the second period by Efrén Godinez of Wakefield in the 170-pound championship, one of two first-place medals for the Trojans.

Also bringing home gold for the fifth-place Trojans was Nick Gonzalez, who stayed undefeated, won his 100th career match and kept his streak of pins going with his 20th fall in a second-period win over Zachary Hazen of Creighton at 126 pounds.

Trojan teams tame visiting Wildcats

WAKEFIELD - Two area teams collided on Friday at Wakefield High School, with the host Trojans coming out on top in both girls and boys action.

In the girls game, the Trojans jumped out to a big lead early in the game and won a defensive battle against the Wildcats, coming away with a 38-23 win.

Wakefield led 12-1 after one period and maintained that 11-point lead into the fourth quarter, thanks to the outside shooting of Caleigh Mackling, who hit a pair of 3-pointers and finished with a game-high 18 points.

Also scoring for Wakefield were Emily Puls with nine, McKenzie Rusk with five, Savannah Nelson with three and one point each by Shelby Oetken, Megan Muller and Danicka Dorcey.

Winside was led by Halle Brogren with eight points and Morgan Jensen with seven. Also scoring were Sarah Wolfe with five, Alex Bargstadt with two and Kelly Tweedy with one.

In boys action, the Trojans shot the ball well from outside, hitting nine 3-pointers to help them post a 62-29 win over the Wildcats.

Jose Sanchez had the hot hand on the perimeter, hitting five shots from beyond the arc and scoring a game-high 18 points to lead the victors. Isaac Camarena added 11 points.

Also scoring for Wakefield were Dylan Hurlbert with six, Alex Conley and Brodie Mackling each had five, Riley Zamzow, Julio Sanchez and Parker Lehmkühl had three apiece, Anthony Victor and Zach Pommer both had two and Tim Anderson hit a free throw.

For the Wildcats, Dylan Brogren led the way with 11 points and

Wildcat women show scoring balance on road

The 24th ranked Wayne State women ran their winning streak to six games and, with the help of two Northern State losses over the weekend, moved into a four-way tie for first place in the Northern Sun Conference race.

On Friday night, the Wildcats matched season-highs for field goal percentage (.593) and 3-point baskets (14) in a 91-53 blowout win at Minnesota Duluth.

Wayne State trailed early in the game, but rattled off 19 unanswered points to take a 19-5 lead and never looked back from that point on.

The Wildcats put together a solid first half, closing with an 18-4 run to take a 40-18 lead at the break. They used a balanced attack to build on that lead, as seven players finished in double figures to lead the Wildcats to the easy win.

Millie Niggeling paced the Wildcats with 13 points, while Ashton Yossi, Sadie Murren, Katie Hoskins and Alex Nelson all had 11 points. Maggie Schulte tossed in 10 points, while Paige Ballinger had a double-double with 10 points and a career-high 14 rebounds.

Wayne State committed just eight turnovers in the win, and Haley Moore directed the offense with five assists.

On Saturday, the Wildcats broke open a close game with a 20-0 second-half run, helping them win their sixth in a row with an 82-63 win at St. Cloud State.

The Wildcats got out to a 19-11 lead in the first six minutes of the game, with Jordan Spencer putting in two of her game-high 24 points to help Wayne State build the early advantage.

The Huskies were able to take the lead on Wayne State twice in the second half, the final time coming at the midway point on a 3-pointer by Carley Jeffery.

It was all Wildcats after that. Yossi started the rally with a 3-pointer and a layup, and Wayne State would hold St. Cloud State scoreless for almost six minutes, turning a one-point deficit into a 19-point advantage, and Wayne State would go on to the victory.

Wayne State shot a season-high 62.5 percent from the field, led by Spencer's 28 points and eight rebounds. Niggeling added 15 points, Yossi scored 13 and Schulte added 11. Niggeling shared rebounding honors with Spencer with eight boards. Spencer and Yossi each had four assists.

Wayne State is 15-3 on the season and tied with Northern State, Winona State and Sioux Falls at 9-3 in conference play. The Wildcats will be at home Friday and Saturday, hosting Upper Iowa Friday at 6 p.m. and Winona State on Saturday at 4 p.m. at Rice Auditorium.

Masters is Wildcats' interim OC

Wayne State head football coach Dan McLaughlin has announced that Logan Masters has been named interim offensive coordinator for the Wildcat football program.

Masters replaces John McMenamin, who left Wayne State earlier this month to become offensive coordinator at Central Missouri.

"I am pleased to announce the promotion of wide receivers coach Logan Masters to the position of offensive coordinator for the Wayne State football program," said McLaughlin. "Logan has been a Wildcat since we recruited him out of Storm Lake, Iowa in 2008 and he knows our offensive scheme better than anyone. He is also a valued and tireless recruiter."

McLaughlin added, "In the middle of the recruiting season, we decided to name him on an interim basis. It allows a speedy and seamless transition and eliminates a break in our recruiting, which is so critical at this time. We are thrilled that Logan is continuing his career as a Wildcat and look forward to the contributions he will bring to Wildcat football."

 as the buzzer sounded and hit nothing but the bottom of the net and sending the Wayne faithful into a frenzy.

"The first thing I did was look at the bench, and they were jumping up and down. It was a crazy feeling," Hoskins said.

Hoskins finished with a game-high 28 points, while Gamble added 15 and McBride 12. It was Wayne's first overtime win under Sweetland, who was 0-3 in overtime games during his first two seasons as the Blue Devils' coach.

ON SATURDAY, THE BLUE Devils traveled to Omaha to take on Boys Town, and the host Cowboys were able to come out on top in a 68-50 decision.

Wayne led early, but the Cowboys used a 23-13 third-quarter run to take control of the game and come away with the victory.

Hoskins had 17 points and was the lone Wayne player in double figures. Gamble had nine points.

Wayne needed overtime for the second time in three outings Tuesday, and came out on top once again with a 61-58 win over Crofton.

Hoskins had another big night for the Blue Devils, finishing with 24 points and 10 rebounds. McBride had eight points, Gamble scored seven, Drew Davie had six and Brook Bowers, Zach Keating, Colby Keiser and Jack Belt each had four.

All streaks - good and bad - come to an end sometime. Here's hoping the Winside boys can put an end to their negative juju very soon.

I don't say this because it would give my favorite team, the Seattle Seahawks, a prohibitive advantage against a team that would have to scramble at the last minute to put things back in order and make the

Wildcats drop two on the road

The Wayne State men's basketball team is still looking for its first conference win after a couple of tough losses on the road last week.

On Friday night, Minnesota Duluth outscored the Wildcats 14-0 in the extra session as the Bulldogs outlasted Wayne State 94-80 in overtime at Romano Gymnasium.

The game went back and forth for much of the night with seven ties and 14 lead changes in the opening frame. Duluth broke a 35-35 tie late in the half with a 10-2 run and took a 45-37 lead into the locker room.

Wayne State trailed 76-64 with 5:35 to go before mounting a furious comeback.

Trae Vandenberg hit a 3-pointer with :40 left to get the Wildcats within one at 78-77. Duluth's Pierre Newton hit a pair of free throws to put the Bulldogs up 80-77 with 19 seconds to play.

Kendall Jacks was fouled with :11 left and made one of two free throws for the Wildcats. His miss on the second shot was rebounded by Vandenberg, who scored to tie the game at 80-80 and send it into overtime.

In the extra period, the Wildcats couldn't get anything going, missing all seven shots from the field, and the Bulldogs outscored Wayne State 14-0 in the overtime to come away with the win.

Vandenberg led Wayne State in scoring with 21 points, Patrick Kurth added 18, Jordan Cornelius had 15 and Kendall Jacks put in 10 for the Wildcats, who hit 43.9 percent (29-of-66) from the field in the losing effort. Kurth led the team with eight rebounds and Joel Heesch had five assists.

On Saturday, the Wildcats couldn't stop a hot-shooting St. Cloud State team, as the Huskies hit 63.9 percent from the field on their way to a 94-77 victory.

Vandenberg, who posted his fourth 20-point game of the season Saturday, hit a pair of treys to start the game before the Huskies responded with a 10-0 run to take the lead for good.

Wayne State got as close as 16-15 on a Jacks tip-in with 14:15 to go in the half, but the Huskies took control of the game and led by as many as 20 before taking a 54-35 halftime lead and cruising to the win.

Vandenberg scored a game-high 23 points for the Wildcats, Jacks added 18 and Kurth put in 12. Jacks had six rebounds and five assists.

The Wildcats, 3-15 overall (0-12 NSIC), will be at home this weekend, entertaining Upper Iowa Friday at 8 p.m. and Winona State

Wayne girls fall to Mid State foes

The Wayne High girls basketball team ran into some tough competition this past week, and coach Dave Hix said the opportunities were good ones for his team to experience.

On Friday, the Blue Devils couldn't keep up with Mid State Conference rival Norfolk Catholic on their home floor, as the Knights came away with a 53-36 win in Norfolk.

Wayne went down 14-6 in the first period and weren't able to keep pace with Norfolk Catholic, thanks to the Lady Knights' pressure on defense.

"We made some good cuts and passes, but we just couldn't finish," Hix said. "Some of that was Norfolk Catholic and the pressure they put on us, and we missed a lot of attacks at the hoop."

Hix said the team didn't respond well to adversity early on, and he said the effort was a learning experience for the team.

"Our attitude got the best of us. If we made a mistake, we got down instead of competing harder, and that has to change," he said. "I know the girls learned from this game and we're ready to put in some extra time and effort to compete with the best."

Freshman Kylie Hammer led the Blue Devils with 12 points and seven rebounds, while Rachel Rauner added nine, Abbie Hix scored seven and Tarah Stegemann and Danica Schaefer each had four.

On Tuesday night, the Blue Devils faced another uphill climb in three-time defending champion and all-class Top 10 Crofton. The Lady Warriors were relentless on both ends of the floor, and they took care of the host Blue Devils, 71-39.

Wayne made a game of it in the first half, keeping the Warriors within striking distance and trailing by eight, 29-21, at intermission. Crofton came out with full-court pressure in the second half, outscoring Wayne 25-11 in the third period to help them turn a close game into a one-sided affair.

Hix led the Blue Devils with 14 points, Stegemann added nine and Rauner put in eight. Hammer had four points, Morgan Keating scored two and Kelsey Boyer and Allison Echtenkamp each had a free throw.

of the third quarter to account for her three points, and Ellie Jaeger scored two.

The scoring woes continued for the Winside boys, as they came up on the short end of a 54-32 decision to the Bulldogs.

JaShaun Vyborny scored in double figures, leading Winside with 10 points. Keith Mundil added five, Brandon Watters had four, Caleb Kampa and Cody Frederick each had three, Bryce Meis had two and Colton Jensen hit a free throw.

On Monday, the Eagles ran into Lawton-Bronson, coming up on the wrong end of a 64-17 final. Kneiff led the Eagles with nine points, while Klug, Apts, S.T. O'Keefe and Wade Connot each had two.

An unpleasant grocery experience

For some reason, I always have to learn things the hard way! This morning was another example. There is a new grocery chain in town, and I had even heard of it from friend Marlyce, in Orlando. Apparently, the owners are German, and they do feature German foods. Like stollen at Christmas time.

The first store is at South Pointe, and since I seldom go that direction, I had not been in it. But the second one is on O Street, and I had heard good things about prices, so I decided to check it out.

The first surprise was when I grabbed a cart. They are all outside, and they are chained! You have to insert a quarter as a "deposit." So, I did that, and headed inside. It's a typical warehouse store, with boxes piled on top of each other.

The second thing I noticed was that none of the brands were familiar. I found that almost disorienting. Plus, there is limited selection. For instance, one whole aisle seemed to be chips and crackers of all kinds, but I needed Thousand Island dressing and the only kind they had was fat free.

I headed for the cooler because we were almost out of milk. The price was right, but they had whole milk, 2 percent milk, and skim; no 1 percent, which is what we typically drink. Oh, well, we'll feast on 2 percent this week.

By: Pat Meierhenry

I trundled to the checkout counter and she rang up $42 worth of groceries. I started to put my Visa card in the little device and she asked if it was a debit card. I don't use a debit card; for one thing, they say they are not as secure. Then, she informed me they only take Discover credit cards; I've never had a Discover. So, I took out my check book and she politely said they don't take checks, either. I did not have that much cash; I don't typically carry much cash.

Fortunately, the kind lady behind me said, "Write me a check and I'll pay with my debit card." This, I happily did, and thanked her for the Random Act of Kindness. I was used to bagging my own groceries in a store like this, but I didn't see any bags. I don't feel guilty using plastic bags, as I recycle every one. But they don't provide bags, unless you buy some of their fabric bags! Or, bring your own, of course. I had just taken a whole bunch of plastic bags to our church day care, where they use them for disposable diapers.

SO, I took the cart to the car, and put each grocery item in individually. Thank goodness, it was only $42 worth! Then I took the cart back to the rack and left the quarter for the next poor soul instead of hooking it back onto the chain and getting the quarter back.

I think I will stick with the hometown grocer I'm used to. I'm kind of set in my ways about this stuff; it seems to happen with age.

This daylong meeting will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and cover relevant topics related to new challenges in crop production in Northeast Nebraska. Topics include: Making the most of Your Fertilizer Dollars; Decisions for the 2014 Farm Bill; Nozzle Technology and Product Update; Ensuring Efficient Center Pivot Management; and Update on Weed resistance in Nebraska.

Included in this meeting is pesticide safety training for those who want to be certified or re-certified as private applicators. If you just want to go to the meeting with lunch provided, the cost is $20. If you want to be certified as a private pesticide applicator, the cost is $45. History of Natural Resources Districts shared
The year 2012 marked 40 years of protecting lives, property and future of natural resources for Nebraska's 23 Natural Resources Districts (NRDs). Throughout that year the NRDs celebrated the success of projects and programs that help protect Nebraska's natural resources.
Natural Resources Districts are unique to Nebraska because they are governed by locally elected boards and Nebraska is the only state in the union to have this system. A handful of board members, managers and staff have been a part of the NRD system since the NRD was created back in 1972.
Senator Maurice Kremer introduced and the Nebraska Legislature enacted Legislative Bill (LB) 1357 in 1969 to combine Nebraska's 154 special purpose entities into 24 Natural Resources Districts by July, 1972. The original 24 NRDs' boundaries are organized based on Nebraska's major river basins which allows for better management practices to be applied to similar topography. In 1989, the Middle Missouri NRD and the Papio NRD were merged into one, becoming the Papio-Missouri NRD which resulted in the current 23-NRD system.
Natural Resources Districts were created to solve flood control, soil erosion, irrigation run-off, and groundwater quantity and quality issues. Nebraska's NRDs are involved in a wide variety of projects and programs to conserve and protect the state's natural resources. NRDs are charged under state law with 12 areas of responsibility including flood control, soil erosion, groundwater management and many others.
NRD Structure
NRDs are local government entities with broad responsibilities to protect our natural resources. Major Nebraska river basins form the boundaries, enabling districts to respond best to local needs. Elected boards of directors govern districts. Much of the funding comes from local property taxes. In many cases, your local natural resources district typically uses 1 to 2 percent of all property taxes collected in the county.
Challenges & Solutions
NRDs help Nebraskans respond to natural resource challenges with local control and local solutions. Often, they build partnerships with other agencies and organizations, including the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission, Nebraska Department of Natural Resources and other state and federal agencies, municipalities, counties and private organizations.
Leaving a Legacy of Conservation
Many NRD projects produce long lasting results: dams, terraces, drainage ditches, windbreaks, reservoirs and recreational trails.
NRDs are unique to Nebraska, a state which has a long history of political innovation including the nonpartisan, single-house legislative and total public power.
In the past 40 years, NRDs have experienced tremendous growth in the responsibilities given to them by state statute, especially in protecting ground water.
With information, education and outreach efforts, NRDs also touch Nebraska's future generations, the young people who will watch over the state's resources in the 21st Century.

Biologists Cassidy Gerdes (Pheasants Forever) and Bekah Jessen (NGPC) prepare for a prescribed fire to improve the quality of habitat and forage for wildlife on Commission grounds.

Basic Prescribed Burn Workshop to be held Feb. 4 at Northeast CC

Pheasants Forever and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission (NGPC) will host a basic prescribed fire training at the Lifelong Learning Center at Northeast Community College in Norfolk on Wednesday, Feb. 4.

Workshop speakers will discuss how fire can be used to benefit land managers' objectives and give a step-by-step breakdown of how to safely plan a prescribed fire.

Fire remains the most cost-effective method of controlling pasture suffering from cedar encroachment. Prescribed fire may also be useful to those who have land enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP). When properly designed, fire can boost the quality of CRP cover both for forage and wildlife.

Pheasants Forever works closely with NGPC, the Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Nebraska Environmental Trust and other conservation partners to help Nebraskans plan prescribed fires. Since 2008, they have hosted 79 workshops with a total of 1,765 attendees.

"We stress safety, effectiveness and planning," said Pheasants Forever Biologist Cassidy Gerdes. "It's definitely a crash course, but it's packed full of good advice. We work to get speakers there who have really spent some time on fire, and we give people the contacts they need to follow through if they decide that fire is a good option for their land."

The workshop will run from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. A $10 registration fee covers all training and training materials, refreshments, and a noon meal. Attendees are encouraged to preregister to reserve a meal.

For registration and more information, contact Cassidy Gerdes at (402) 360-1957 or www.NebraskaPF.com.

Don't get me started

Quality of gene pool getting bad

Thoughts I was pondering while driving down a dark highway wondering if I really DID see my Seattle Seahawks escape the jaws of defeat and earn their second straight trip to the Super Bowl:

— Today's evidence that 7 billion people is a telltale sign of how low the quality of the gene pool has fallen: A recent study by the National Science Foundation concluded that 1 in 4 Americans believe the Earth revolves around the sun.

A survey of 2,200 people found that 26 percent provided the incorrect answer to the question, "Does the Earth go around the Sun, or does the Sun go around the Earth?" The survey also found that 39 percent believe the universe began with a huge explosion and less than half believe human beings developed from earlier species of animals.

Don't think we've got the market cornered on an abundance of idiots — in Europe, 1 in 3 people missed the earth-sun question, and a third of Chinese residents surveyed were correct on the question regarding human evolution.

The National Science Foundation would not confirm the assumption that most of those surveyed are members of Congress, the University of Nebraska Board of Regents or Chicago Cubs fans.

— Here's a game of poker where the phrase "going all-in" takes on a whole new level of courage (or stupidity — I'll let you be the judge).

An Oregon TV station reported that a man was injured while playing a game called "bull poker" during a rodeo in Portland, Ore., on New Year's Eve.

Now this isn't anything like Texas Hold 'Em or 7-card stud. The game involves a group of people seated at a poker table in the middle of a bull fighting ring. The object of the game is to stay at the table the longest while a bull runs around the table. There is also, evidently, an additional incentive for pulling a joker card attached to the bull's horn.

Not surprisingly, the man was overrun by the bull and had to have surgery to reconnect his femur to his hip. He didn't win enough in the game to cover his medical expenses, so his family is seeking online donations.

— The United States government has been torturing international prisoners in a manner that, quite frankly, would be disturbing to just about any living, breathing, intelligent human being.

What the government does is play music (or audio files that, to some, might resemble something OTHER THAN music) in an effort to create delirium and vulnerability in detainees who might be offended by such music, based on their culture or their religion.

It's a rather eclectic mix of classic rock, foul-mouthed rap and commercial jingles so mind-bendingly annoying that would make even the most sane human being confess to crimes committed years before their birth.

Songs like "Enter Sandman" by Metallica, "Hells Bells" by AC/DC, "American Pie" by Don McLean and anything by Rage Against The Machine would be OK by me.

But then you start getting into stuff like rap music from Eminem and Tupac, bubblegum pop from Christina Aguilera and "Stayin' Alive" by the Bee Gees, and that's where I might start getting a little twitchy.

I'm sure they save the REALLY horrible stuff to put these poor prisoners over the edge, though. After a couple of hours listening to repeated airings of the Sesame Street theme song ("Sun-ny days . . ." — and you are more than welcome to enjoy that mind virus), Prince's "Raspberry Beret" and the commercial jingle for the old Meow Mix commercials, and even the most hardened criminal will be begging for mercy.

And for those whose will can't be broken by these acts of audio assault, there is always the TV theme song that has caused more parents to throw their TV's out the window. And if you had a kid growing up in the 90's, you know EXACTLY how it starts:

"I love you . . . you love me . . ."

Where do I sign the confession???

— Annnnnnd finally, from the "No, you most certainly HAVE NOT seen it all yet" department, we have the little old lady from Texas who was arrested by law enforcement after it was discovered she was kidnapping her neighbors' cats and using them to make fur coats.

The woman used as many as 30 cats to make one fur coat, and more than 20 coats were found in her house when she was arrested by authorities. Some people recognized their cats in the furs of some of the coats, and she was luring other cats using the meat of cats she had already skinned.

If convicted, the 85-year-old woman could spend up to 18 months in jail. This lady gives a completely new spin on the phrase "crazy cat lady."

Capitol View

Newness is wearing off quick

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Five of the nine members of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee are new to the budget-setting body that meets almost every day that lawmakers are in session. Three of those five are also new to the Legislature.

That makes a difference since this has to be one of the thickest-skinned groups in the whole process. On one hand, there are 40 of their colleagues who are sponsoring pet projects that need funding. On the other hand, there is the Executive Branch that has its own budget proposal and will likely mount a major campaign to fight for it.

Chairman Heath Mello of Omaha is a veteran of the task to create the state's biennial budget. He's joined by veterans Kate Bolz of Lincoln, Jeremy Nordquist of Omaha and Bill Kintner of Papillion. Kintner can best be described as a wild card. He is married to the director of the Governor's Policy Research Office and was the only member of last year's committee to vote against advancing the proposed budget to the full Legislature.

When lawmakers voted to override a lengthy list of gubernatorial budget vetoes, Kintner tried unsuccessfully to have each issue separated from a blanket override motion and debated again. There's a different governor, but Lauren Kintner is still in charge of the PRO. Kintner claims that he and his wife don't discuss the day's work on their drive back to Papillion. Right!

Committee newcomers include Senator Ken Haar of Lincoln who is in his last two years before being term-limited and Senator Dan Watermeier of Syracuse who has two years under his belt. The freshmen also include Senators Robert Hilkemann of Omaha, John Kuehn of Heartwell and John Stinner of Gering.

Mello, who is also in the last two years of his second term, says the committee's priorities are already pretty clear. You'll likely recognize these issues as already being bathed in the media spotlight. They include prison reform, property tax relief, restructuring of the Department of Health and Human Services and educational funding.

Funding and the equitable distribution of it will also fall on two other committees, Revenue and Education. Senator Kate Sullivan of Cedar Rapids returns as chair of the Education Committee for the remainder of her second term. She is also a member of the Revenue Committee, which is chaired by Senator Mike Gloor of Grand Island. Gloor, a retired hospital administrator, is also in the last two years of his second term.

The Revenue Committee has no senator from Lincoln and only one from Omaha. That means that seven of the eight members are considered representatives of "rural" Nebraska. No freshmen in the bunch either. That gives the committee a pretty good feel for the task ahead and that will be a taxing thing.

Oh, and lest you forget, the old rural-urban split thing will likely rear its head at some point. Remember, when it comes to taxation, it's all about whose ox is getting gored.

These heavy issues are going to require that the 18 newbies step up their game, quickly.

Legislative Update

Busy week with new bill introductions

This week the Legislature has been busy with bill introduction and organizational meetings for committees as well as debating the rules. So far this session, with two days left to introduce bills, 430 bills have been introduced.

I have introduced five of the 430 so far. LB31 is similar to a bill that I have introduced before, this bill would repeal the motorcycle helmet law. LB190 is a bill that died in the black hole that was the Judiciary Committee last year. LB190 would allow the spouse of a member of the United States Armed Forces assigned to a permanent duty station in Nebraska to be considered a resident for the purposes of the Concealed Handgun Permit Act. LB191 would provide a sales tax exemption on food sold by veterans service organizations. In order to provide a vehicle for discussion, I introduced LB256, a bill that would increase the sales and use tax a half a cent and designate that money for the Property Tax Credit Cash Fund. This bill has already generated some interest from the press and would provide approximately $140,000,000 for property tax credits. LB303 is another bill that I have brought before granting schools the ability to adopt a child sexual abuse policy.

Additionally, this week I was elected to be the vice chairman of the Business and Labor Commit-

Nebraska reaches $1 billion in beef exports during 2014

Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) Director Greg Ibach announced a new milestone for the state's beef sector. In the first 11 months of 2014, over $1 billion of Nebraska beef was exported to international markets, setting a new record for the state.

"Nebraska farmers, ranchers, feedlot operators and processors work hard to produce high-quality beef products that are recognized around the world. That hard work has been rewarded, as we are seeing significant growth in East Asian markets and also in several emerging markets," Ibach said. "We are optimistic for a continued upward trend in 2015."

According to Ibach the value of beef muscle cut exports has increased by 250 percent since 2009, while the total volume of beef exports during that same time-frame doubled. In 2009, the state exported $409 million in beef muscle cuts; for 2014, with numbers available through November, the state exported $1.031 billion.

Gov. Pete Ricketts also noted the new benchmark. "Export activity like what we are seeing in the beef sector is exactly what we need to keep our Nebraska economy moving in the right direction," Gov. Ricketts said. "I am excited to further our state's export efforts for all Nebraska agricultural goods."

Ibach said Japan, Hong Kong and South Korea all have had significant beef import increases during the past six years and are all countries where the state has conducted focused promotion activities. The state also has done work in Europe, an emerging growth market for Nebraska beef.

In addition to beef muscle cuts, Ibach noted export growth over the past six years for beef products that generally aren't utilized in the American marketplace, such as beef livers and tongues. In 2014, $93 million in exports of these types of products were sold, compared to $32.3 million in 2009.

"The sales increases for these products are important since there is not much value for them in the United States," he said.

"The reputation of Nebraska beef continues to grow, and we find customers seeking us out for further information on our state," Ibach said. "Nebraska's beef sector should be proud of reaching this new $1 billion export high."

Northeast Community College named finalist for national award

Northeast Community College has been named a finalist for a prestigious award from the American Association of Community Colleges.

Northeast is one of four finalists among the nation's community colleges for the AACCC's 2015 Exemplary CEO/Board of Trustees Award of Excellence. The award recognizes a community college whose CEO/Board of Trustees collaboration and working relationship are exemplary in promoting effectiveness in community college governance.

Dr. Michael Chipps, Northeast president, said being named a finalist for the award is a testament to an excellent board that serves the College.

"As president of Northeast Community College in Nebraska, I am continually amazed at the caliber, passion, and work of our college. For over 34 years, I have had the distinct privilege of serving three community college systems and have also served as an educational consultant for over 60 colleges and universities. Over this span of three decades, I now have the utmost pleasure of working for a highly visionary, engaged and motivated Board that deeply understands what it means to govern."

Prior to becoming president at Northeast, Chipps said the Board of Governors outlined its vision of taking the college to the next level of development.

"We are living out that vision on a daily basis through the collective effort of the board, our senior leadership team, faculty, and staff. Our board has taken thoughtful steps forward to prepare the college for the 21st century needs of rural America and has provided me with the direction and support necessary to assure their vision is achieved. This board understands governance and bestows the president with the proper authority to lead and accomplish their goals."

Other members of the Board include Steven Anderson of Concord; Arlan Kuehn of South Sioux City; Keith Harvey of Creighton; Dr. Terry Nelson of West Point; Dr. Don Oelsigle of Tilden; Dirk Petersen of Norfolk; Shirley Petsche of Petersburg; Larry Poesnecker of Atkinson; Julie Robinson of Norfolk and Gene Willers of Pilger.

Finalists for the award will be recognized at the AACCC Convention in San Antonio, Texas in April.

This is the second time in as many years that Northeast has been named a finalist for an award presented by the AACCC at the national level. The College was recognized in 2013 with the American Association of Community Colleges Awards of Excellence in the Outstanding College/Corporate Partnership category for its collaborative work with the Nucor Detailing Center in Norfolk.

Minerva Club meets at Senior Center

Minerva Club met at the Senior Center on Jan. 12 with nine members and guest Lisa Hansen present. Roll call was something members knew about North Carolina.

President Joyce Mitchell opened the meeting by reading a poem, "Flour Sacks" telling how versatile and useful they were. Another article read was of a historical nature about how in the 1880's the best place to buy watches was at the train station and how the enterprise was expanded by Richard Sears and his partner A.C. Roebuck. She also told of an inspirational story about Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin landing on the moon and Aldrin pausing to give thanks and take Holy Communion.

Hollis Frese shared a news article that a United States One Cent Piece dating to 1793 brought $2.35 million at auction. It was known as a 'chain' cent having a chain circling around the edge linking the 13 colonies. The first time it sold at auction it brought $76.

A program on North Carolina was given by Connie Webber. She highlighted on the map a chain of long narrow islands along the coastal side of the colony that made exploration by ship limited. Most colonists came from Virginia and spread north to south in the eastern coastal plains and then to the middle plateau area but slowed into the western mountain range. An abundance of large pine trees provided tar and pitch. Wood was used for making furniture.

Today the area is known as the furniture capital of the world. The abundance of tar contributed to the nickname 'The Tar Heel State'. Other industries were textiles, tobacco and tanned hides. Crops grown were corn, wheat, peas and beans. Most plantations were built on a smaller scale than in the other colonies.

Businesses originating in North Carolina were Hardee's, Pepsi, and Krispy Creme Donuts. Along the coastline there was a problem with pirates - the most famous of whom was Edward Teach, known as Blackbeard. In 1903 the Wright Bros. first flight took place. The Biltmore Estate is located near Asheville. In closing Webber sang the state song, Old North State.

The next meeting will be at The Oaks on Monday, Jan. 26 at 2 p.m. with members bringing something to share about the Pennsylvania Colony.

Local Honored

Chele Meisenbach of Wayne was recently honored with the Volunteer of the Quarter award by Ameritas for her efforts in helping out a number of location efforts, including the Chicken Show, Wayne County Museum, Kiwanis, Wayne High School athletics and the local United Way. She was honored among the 500 employees who work at Ameritas in Wayne, Lincoln, San Antonio, Cincinnati and Bethesda, N.Y. With the award comes a $500 donation that she can make to the local non-profit organization of her choosing. She said she is donating it to the Majestic Theatre to make it possible for more free family movies to be shown at the theatre during 2015. She said she is blessed to work for a company that encourages its associates to give back to the community, and encouraged local residents to volunteer their time and talents and help out wherever they can in the community.

Northeast Board of Governors approves new mission statement

The Northeast Community College Board of Governors has approved a new mission statement for the institution as it sets the stage to implement its 2015-2020 strategic plan.

At its monthly meeting in Norfolk, the Board unanimously approved the new mission statement, "Northeast Community College is dedicated to the success of students and the region we serve." It replaces the previous mission statement, "Northeast Community College provides comprehensive, lifelong, learning-centered educational opportunities and services to meet the diverse needs of our public."

"Although it is a shorter statement, it doesn't change the Board's forward thinking vision for the College," said Dr. Michael Chipps, Northeast president. "We have worked with the Board to develop and provide a simpler mission statement which declares the primary intention of the Board, the success of our students and the corresponding success of our 20-county service area."

Chipps said the new mission statement prepares for the development and implementation of the new five year strategic plan entitled Vision 2020. The essence of the plan was recently released at the spring all-college in-service.

"We have used the American Association of Community College's recent release of Empowering Community Colleges to Build the Nation's Future, which is a framework for taking the nation's community colleges on a journey for the 21st century student. Northeast has adopted the principles of this work and has incorporated it into the new Vision 2020 strategic plan. Not only does it address our current work, but it presents us with opportunities of great potential and promise. This work has been incorporated into the themes that continue to be developed for our new strategic plan."

Chipps said senior leadership at Northeast has been deeply engaged in a series of planning sessions focused on designing the College's long-range future.

"Vision 2020 will allow us to be even more responsive and flexible, prepared to meet the needs of the 21st century student, and to fulfill our Board's new mission," Chipps said. "During these planning sessions, we have incorporated institutional feedback mechanisms that draw input from multiple facets of the institution. We will be continuing these sessions over the spring semester as we work on integrated planning, continuous evaluation, and resource allocation, which are built around the Northeast Board's goals."

Get homes tested for radon now

In recognizing January as National Radon Action Month, EPA encourages Americans around the country to test their homes for this naturally occurring radioactive gas and make 2015 a healthier, safer new year.

"Many people don't realize that radon is the second cause of lung cancer after smoking," said EPA Administrator Gina McCarthy. "The good news is radon exposure is preventable. Testing and fixing for radon will save thousands of lives, prevent burdensome health care costs, and make America's homes and schools safer for future generations."

Each year about 21,000 Americans die from lung cancer caused by exposure to radon. Testing is the only way to know if a home has elevated levels of radon. The U.S. Surgeon General and EPA recommend taking action to reduce the radon level if it's at or above 4 picocuries per Liter (pCi/L) of air.

Affordable do-it-yourself radon test kits are available online, at many home improvement and hardware stores, or you can hire a qualified radon professional.

If your test result is 4 pCi/L or more, you should contact a qualified radon-reduction or mitigation contractor.

A professionally installed radon reduction system removes the radon from beneath your home and discharges it harmlessly outside. That's done by using a vent pipe and exhaust fan.

Taking action to reduce your exposure to radon is also a long-term health investment. A working mitigation system is a positive selling point for homes on the market; in many areas a radon test is a standard part of real estate transactions. If you're building a new home, work with your builder to include radon-resistant construction techniques.

More information on how to test, obtain a test kit, contact your state radon office, and find a qualified radon professional is available at epa.gov/radon or by calling (800) 767-7236.

Lifestyle

There is no fuel like an old fuel

Relaxing around a warm, crackling fireplace is an enjoyable way to spend a cold winter evening. As Nebraskans begin stoking their fireplaces, however, they should keep a few wood burning tips in mind to get the most for their money.

Firewood can vary widely in measurement units and quality. The standard unit of measure for firewood is the cord, a stack 4 feet by 4 feet by 8 feet, or 128 cubic feet of wood, bark and air space. Depending on how logs are stacked, only 60 to 110 cubic feet may be solid wood. Other common units of volume when selling wood include face-cord, rick and pickup load, but they may be deceiving.

A face-cord or rick usually is considered a stack of wood 8 feet long and 4 feet high, but the width can vary from between 12 to 30 inches. A pickup load can mean almost anything, depending on the size of the pickup's bed and the height to away from the house to prevent any insects in it from entering the house. Place two logs on the ground so that the first row is safely off the ground. For long pieces (up to 2 feet or so), stack up to 6 feet high. For shorter pieces, four feet should be the maximum. Prevent the ends of the stack from falling away by driving a post into the ground at each end of the stack and possibly bracing it with an angled board.

Tree species primarily influence quality. Each species burns differently. Hard, heavy woods such as hickory and oak burn slowly and produce short flames. Soft, light woods such as cottonwood, willow and pine produce large flames and burn rapidly. Generally, the hard heavy woods are considered better firewood because they produce more heat per unit of volume than the lighter woods.

Whether firewood is purchased or cut, be sure the wood is dry when burned. Green wood produces only about 60 percent as much heat as dry wood because a great amount of heat energy is required to evaporate water from green wood. Green wood should be allowed to air-dry for 6 to 12 months to reach a moisture content (15-20 percent) suitable for adequate burning.

Due to high energy costs, many homeowners have rediscovered wood as a fuel. One cord of heavy wood produces about the same amount of heat as one ton of coal, 165-200 gallons of fuel or 24,000 cubic feet of natural gas. Firewood has certain distinct advantages: It burns clean, starts easily, gives quick heat and has low ash content.

The major problem with burning wood for fuel lies in the heating unit. The efficiency of a common fireplace is very low, with typically only 5-20 percent of the potential heat released into the home.

Air-tight wood burning stoves or furnaces are much more efficient in radiating heat. Modern, well-designed wood burning stoves may have a heating efficiency of 65-75 percent, with is comparable with most oil and gas burning heating units.

The amount of firewood required for the winter season depends on the size of the house, amount of insulation, climatic conditions and purpose. For occasional fireplace use, only about one-half cord of firewood per year is consumed. For constant stove or furnace use, 4 1/2 to 7 cords per year may be required.

As with most consumer goods, the price of firewood has risen in recent years. Firewood prices are also quite variable. Price often depends on species, whether it is green or dry, quantity purchased and whether it is delivered.

which the wood is stacked. To compare prices, use cubic foot volume as the basis.

To get the most wood for your money, look for round, un-split wood. Round wood has more solid wood content per cord than split wood. Split wood that is loosely stacked or contains crooked pieces may contain about one third less than a tight cord of round wood. An average diameter of 6 inches is satisfactory for most uses.

Remember that green (wet) wood shrinks when it dries. This shrinkage can reduce the volume of a cord by 8 to 10 percent. When you buy green wood, you are paying for an extra 10 to 13 cubic feet of airspace.

Forgiving - when it seems impossible

Do any of you ever struggle with forgiveness? I know that I do. I am not an expert but I look at forgiveness as being of two simple types - forgiving others and forgiving yourself.

Both types of forgiveness can be difficult. Perhaps you struggle with both but one more than another? I know that I have the hardest time forgiving myself. I am going to touch on both types of forgiveness and I pray that something within this article helps at least one person.

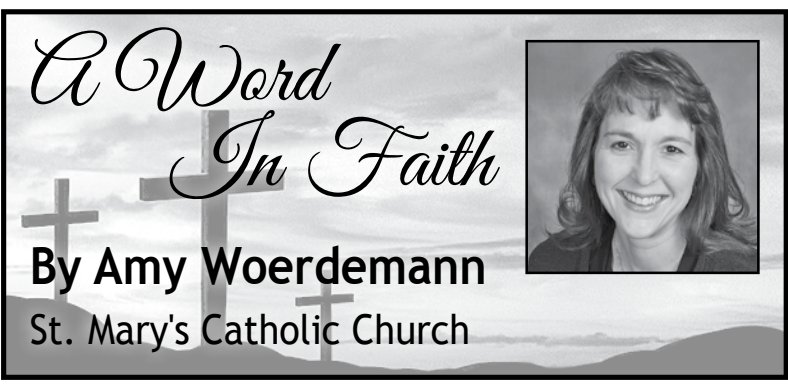

Forgiving others

Do you have someone in your life who you feel has wronged in your some way? Do you harbor a grudge toward someone? Do you find yourself turning the other way when you meet someone in the store? How does this make you feel?

I know, for me, when I harbor ill feelings toward another I feel a sickness. I know that I shouldn't feel this way toward another, but somehow I can't stop it. They have hurt me and I just can't let go of it!

Whether you believe in God or not, I'm sure most everyone has heard the story of how Jesus forgave those who crucified him. As he took his last breath he said "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do." (Luke 23:34) If Jesus was able to forgive those who killed him - why are we unable to forgive the smaller things in life?

I know sometimes I tell myself, "Well, I'm not Jesus," but shouldn't we all be striving to be more like Jesus? Even if you don't believe in Jesus - is it such a horrible thing to strive to be a better loving person? To be like Jesus is to be the best person you can be. If we all tried to forgive those who we think have wronged us wouldn't we feel better inside? I know that when I feel better within my heart I am able to be happier and help others more.

Forgiving yourself

This is the one I struggle with the most. I probably don't go one day without thinking about all the things I have done wrong. I think about the people I have hurt with my actions or my words. I waste so much energy beating myself up over the things I have done wrong in my life. Imagine how productive I could be if I turned that energy to doing good?

I am working to change this, because I know that these feelings are not from God. When feelings are from God, you should feel peace. Beating yourself up over things you have done never brings you peace, so rest assured those feelings are not from God.

God made us special and beautiful and although we are not perfect he made us for a reason. He didn't make us so that we could continually hate ourselves for the wrong we have done in our lives. He made us so that we can do good in this world. Yes - we have all made mistakes in life, but instead of using those mistakes to keep us down let us try to start forgiving ourselves and use those mistakes for good. Let's try to not make those mistakes again, and by doing so we will hopefully make this world a better place for ourselves and others. You can find so many amazing stories of forgiveness but here are a few that pull at my heart - St. Pope John Paul II went and visited the man who shot him, reached for his hands and told him that he was his brother and that he was already forgiven. An Amish community attended the funeral of the man who killed some of their children in a school shooting and not only comforted his widow but offered financial support to her and her family. If Jesus, St Pope John Paul II and an Amish community can forgive what we would view as the unforgivable, why can't we forgive others and ourselves?

Forgiveness might be hard, but we need to try. Forgiving someone doesn't cost us anything except opening our heart and loving. Perhaps you will never become friends with the person that you forgive, but you will be amazed at what happens when you open your heart to loving others. You will be amazed at the world waiting for you when you open your heart and forgive others and yourself. Believe me - it is worth it.

"People are often unreasonable, irrational, and self-centered. Forgive them anyway. In the final analysis, it is between you and God. It was never between you and them anyway." - Mother Teresa

Grace Lutheran Ladies' Aid gathers at The Oaks Jan. 14

In a meeting held at the Oaks in Wayne, President Rhonda Sebade welcomed 16 members of Ladies' Aid and Pastor Feldmann to the Jan. 14 meeting.

After reciting the LWML pledge in unison, she led the devotional prayer for Building Homes and Hope in Haiti, one of the 2015 Mission Grant recipients.

Pastor Michael Feldmann led the installation for Barbara Greve as new Treasurer. The President welcomed her, thanking her for being willing to serve and thanked Faunil Bennett for her service as past Treasurer.

Secretary Louise Green read the November and December, 2014 minutes, which were approved as read. She also read five thank you notes for the Christmas cookie trays, two thank you notes for funeral luncheons and a thank you letter from Orphan Grain Train.

Treasurer Barb Greve gave the treasurer's report, which was filed for audit, and the 2014 year-end report. Rhonda Sebade and Louise Green volunteered to audit the 2014 books.

Committee Reports followed. There was no Old Business. New Business included:

Pastor Feldmann reported that the L.I.F.T. group received their LWML charter from District President Crystal Miller at their meeting last week. We welcome them into the LWML fellowship. He also reported that President Miller presented to Cup of Grace the $2,000 grant money for 2015.

The LWML zone meeting was to be held at Grace Lutheran on Jan. 19. All were invited to attend. The annual Spring Workshop will be set and the group voted to volunteer to host it if that were still available.

Bev Hansen reported that the Right to Life Breakfast will be held at St. Mary's Church on Saturday, Feb. 7 at 9:30 a.m. Breakfast casseroles would be welcomed and disposable diapers are needed for the crisis pregnancy center.

The Birthday song was sung for Pastor Mike and Barb Greve as they were presented with lighted cupcakes.

Louise Green led the Bible study taken from the Winter Quarterly entitled "Words Fitly Spoken." Proverbs 25:11 states "a word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in a setting of silver." Galatians 5, Romans

7 and the story of Joseph and personal sharing reminded all of the need for encouraging and supportive words rather than those that tear down.

The meeting concluded with the Lord's Prayer and Table Prayer. Hostess was Louise Green; next month's hostess will be KimBerly Hansen.

Joy Circle holds Jan. 14 meeting

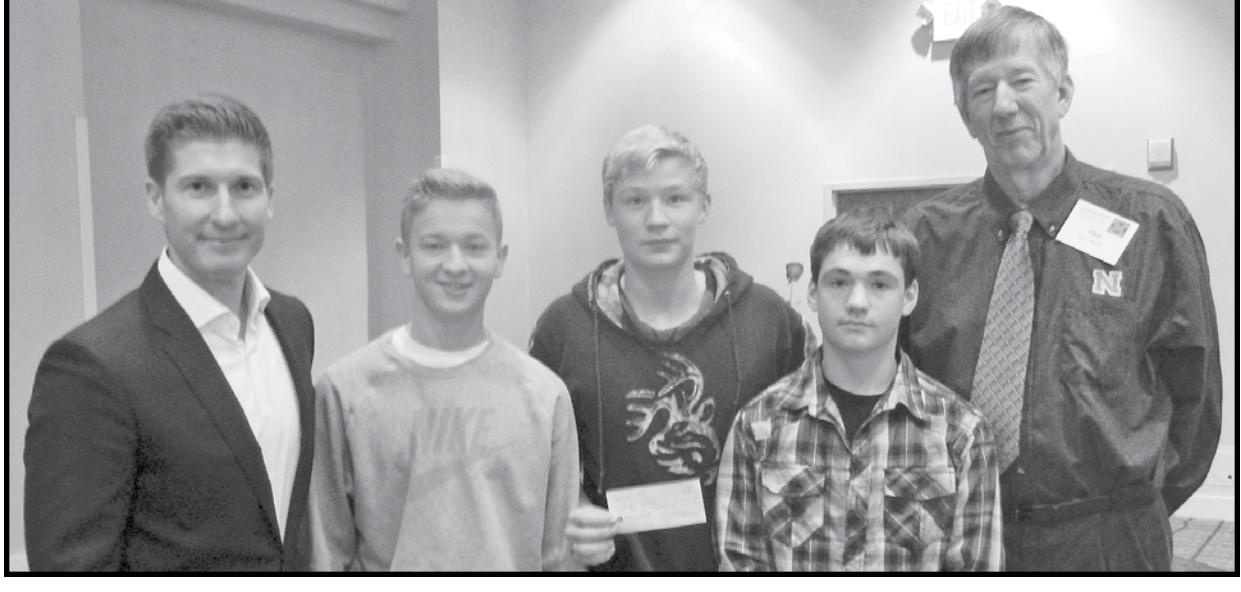

Our Savior Lutheran Church's Joy Circle met on Jan. 14.

President Phyllis Rahn welcomed everyone, gave announcements, and began the meeting with devotions. She based her devotions on Philippians 1:3. "We could look at the book of Philippians as a thank you letter. St. Paul wrote to the believers at the church of Philippi that he thanked God every time he remembered them. Perhaps the joy in St. Paul was that he was seeing the believers at Philippi by faith. We often hear the phrase - is the glass half full or half empty? If we can't decide if it's half full or half empty, be thankful you have a glass. Like St. Paul, we can let people in our lives know we are grateful for them by sending a card or calling them to say thank you."

The program given by Phyllis Rahn and included a report of her attendance at the Triennial meeting in Charlotte, N.C. The theme verse for the Triennial was Isaiah 58:12. "Six generations were represented, all of them like many women today know the joys and heartaches of today. Forty from Nebraska attended. Two main speakers were Becca Stevens, founder of Magdalene and Thistle Farms, an enterprise that supports women recovering from violence, prostitution, addiction, and life on the streets.

Pastor Susan Sparks shared her story through humor. She was a trial lawyer, stand-up comedian and a breast cancer survivor. With her cancer, she felt denial, anger, bargaining, depression, and acceptance. However, she was still able to find things to pick her up.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, Feb. 11, with Jennifer Van Meeter as speaker and Gena Puls and Phyllis Rahn co-hosting.

Husker Salute support

Members of the Winside Sons of the American Legion (SAL) took part in the seventh annual Husker Salute. The event, held at the Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln, was a fundraiser for military personnel and the wounded warrior project. The 2014 Winside SAL donation was the third such donation. Involved in the presentation were (left) Jeff Makovicka, former Husker football player, SAL members Connor Lilienkamp, Kieth Mundil and Sean Huxtable Mann and Garry McGirr, President of the Husker Salute.
