Plea agreement reached in child porn case

Judge sets May 6 sentencing date

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

A Carroll man will serve at least six years in prison after a plea bargain was reached with the Wayne County Attorney's office regarding multiple charges of possession and distribution of child pornography.

Under a plea agreement brought before Wayne County District Judge James G. Kube Wednesday morning, Ted S. Perry pled guilty to nine of 18 charges of possession of child pornography and five of 10 charges of distribution of child pornography, the result of a Nebraska State Patrol investigation that led to his arrest last September.

Perry's attorney, Jason Dole, and deputy county attorney Amy Miller presented the plea agreement to Judge Kube on Wednesday morning, and Kube accepted the plea deal and ordered a pre-sentencing investigation before he sentences Perry on Wednesday, May 6.

Under the plea agreement, Perry pled guilty to the first nine charges of possession of child pornography, a Class III Felony, and five counts of distribution of child pornography, a Class I-D Felony. By agreeing to plead guilty to those counts, the county agreed to drop the remaining 14 charges against him.

The charges against Perry came after the Nebraska State Patrol, working off a CyberTip reported by Microsoft Corporation, found photographs and video images depicting child pornography on a computer operated by Perry. According to information in the case, some of the images were taken in Wayne, based on identifying marks found within the images.

The plea agreement calls for a one-year prison sentence on the first count of possession, with one year concurrent on the remaining eight possession counts. For the first two distribution counts, a mandatory-minimum sentence of three years in prison was agreed to, with a mandatory-minimum three years attached to the remaining three distribution charges, concurrent with the first distribution sentence.

Under the agreement, Perry would serve the total mandatory-minimum of six years on the distribution charges and would be ineligible for good time served, but would be eligible for good time on the one year for possession.

Kube accepted Perry's guilty plea and the plea agreement and would take that under consideration before Perry is sentenced.

Position changes to help eliminate various city jobs

City approves electric rate increase

By CALYN DUNKLAU
Of The Herald

The establishment of a rate-increase schedule for electric rates and the elimination and addition of various positions within the city highlighted the agenda for Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Discussion sparked when the proposed action of mixing some positions and titles included that of the Senior Patrolman, a position held by officer Brian Swanson.

City Administrator Lowell Johnson said the idea behind the action is to flatten out administrative positions, clarifying that it is more of a clean-up effort than anything, as some of the positions aren't currently in use.

"It seemed really top-heavy to have four administrators in a seven- to-nine-man department," Mayor Ken Chamberlain said in reference to the Wayne Police Department.

The police department previously operated with a Chief, Lieutenant, Sergeant and Senior Patrolman. The idea was to bring the department down to the Chief, Marlen Chinn, and two Sergeant positions—one of which is currently held by Rick Haase.

Chinn wasn't at the council meeting, but spoke to Johnson prior to it about the impending action. Johnson spoke on Chinn's behalf, stating that Chinn wished to keep the title of Senior Patrolman to be able to differentiate the position, as the pay is higher due to specialized training.

There are no supervisory responsibilities with the Senior Patrolman position, and the expunging of the title would not change Swanson's pay.

Council member Cale Geise moved for the approval of the addition of the titles Street Supervisor, Senior Lineman and Water Supervisor, as was listed in the council packet and moved forward with eliminating the positions listed.

Further on in the meeting, the police wage and salary schedule was amended, re-adding the Senior Patrolman position for the time being.

Power was also on the mind of the Council, as members agreed to a rate increase schedule for electric rates, set to begin this spring.

"The recommendation would be to start in May," Johnson said. "We've had a fair amount of subdivision expansion, and that costs us."

The recommendation is coming from the city's "rate guy", Mike Towne at Western Consulting and the city's auditor, Terry Galloway with Almquist, Maltzahn, Galloway and Luth.

Council member Jon Haase expressed concerns at the rate increase when the city is in the process of buying cheaper power, but Johnson explained this increase would just be until the new power source kicked in to keep the city's cash reserve at an appropriate level.

Council member Matt Eischeid weighed in on the topic, stating the Council needs to remember to drop the rates down after the new power source starts.

"Nobody likes to increase anything," Chamberlain said. "But we need to maintain consistency."

The action carried unanimously.

That action was followed by several unanimous resolutions to approve the amendments to contracts between City and Western Area Power Administration. Currently the City of Wayne receives roughly 17 percent of its power from WAPA, generated from dams on the Missouri River in South Dakota.

These amendments included a contract renewal, pushing the contract end back from December 2020 to December 2050, along with changing the way the WAPA power is measured.

In other news, the unanimous approval of an Engagement Letter with the bond company, D.A. Davidson and Co., was agreed upon to arrange temporary bond financing for construction of the sewer and water infrastructure in the new Southview Addition on Grainland Road.

"There are two major companies in the state. This is the bond company we are working with for the project," said Johnson. "We've had really good luck with them."

The next City Council meeting is set for Tuesday, March 17, at 5:30 p.m. in Council chambers.

Condemnation, district changes are discussed

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners spoke with Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper regarding two issues during Tuesday's meeting in the county courthouse.

The first discussion centered around a process for condemnation of property on the northeast edge of Carroll owned by Darrel Hahn that is part of a county bridge project.

Pieper told the board that the county has 45 days to wait for a report on an appraisal of the property before it can negotiate with the property owner, unless the county has some documented basis for what they are offering the landowner for the property.

"I recommend that we wait until we get that appraisal and have a chance to digest that," he said. "You have to have a basis for what you're offering for that property, and

I suggest we wait until the appraisal comes back unless you have some evidence as to the basis for what we're offering."

Pieper said he would be more comfortable with getting a professional testament to the property's value.

"I think it's prudent for taxpayers that you have a basis before you send out the offer," he said.

Board member Dean Burbach asked if the county could go ahead with letting the project out for bids before the appraisal is received, but board chairman Randy Larson said the county should wait.

"I definitely think it would be putting the cart before the horse," he said.

The county also talked with their attorney about a taxpayer request to look into aligning commissioner voting districts with

Pet of the Week

This week's Pet of the Week at Tenderheart Animal Rescue is Sweet Miracle, a dark brown tabby girl who came to us very small and unhealthy. She has grown to be a beautiful cat. She is our shy one, unsure of people and noise. She also has a slight respiratory condition that will likely be chronic. Miracle will need a special home, probably with one person who is quiet, but should be a good companion for someone with patience to encourage her to be her best self.

For more information or to adopt Sweet Miracle, call (402) 369-6030.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By LOWELL JOHNSON
City Administrator

City Council meetings

Regular Wayne City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Alternative Fuels Event on Friday, March 6

Natural Gas: The Wayne power plant and water departments have replaced two older gasoline powered pickups with pickups fueled by compressed natural gas. Wayne received $30,000 in grant funds from the Nebraska Environmental Trust to help pay the higher initial cost as part of a University of Nebraska survey of performance of alternative fuel vehicles in small city fleets.

Average mileage since November as measured in "miles per equivalent gallon" for the F150 pickup is 18 miles per gallon. The other pickup an F350 is still waiting to be fitted with a crane hoist and platform deck. Both pickups are dual fuel and also have a gasoline tank.

Black Hills Energy has partnered with the city by offering $11,500 to purchase and install a small natural gas metering-pump behind the power plant to re-fill these pickups slowly overnight.

Electricity: Wayne also hosts a ChargePoint Electric Vehicle charging station for public use which is located in the parking lot behind City Hall at Third and Pearl Street. This EV charging station can be found by Googling several national grid maps listing the locations of EV charging stations for EV owners driving across the country. The charge station can be accessed by a swipe of the driver's credit card.

Friday's alternative fuel event: Will be at 10:30 a.m. in the City Hall parking lot. The two CNG pickups and the natural gas meter fill pump will be on display. The EV charging station will also be displayed. Representatives from the Nebraska Environmental Trust, Black Hills Energy and the University of Nebraska will be at the event with comments about their interest in the potential of alternative fuels.

Supporting the Program

The Wayne State College Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) recently presented a check to the Wayne Backpack Program. The group raised more than $200 in a Pie to the Face event on the Wayne State College campus. The event concluded with the 'winner' getting a pie in the face during a Wayne State Men's Basketball game. Involved in the check presentation were (left) Jodi Pulfer, Jordan Holdsworth with SAAC and Teri Koenig. Pulfer and Koenig organize the Backpack Program and distribute more than 100 packages of food each week for students at Wayne and Winside Public Schools to eat each weekend.

Colonial visitor talks to Wayne Elementary students

Ellie Curtis, regional president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, visited Wayne Elementary School on Feb. 27 to talk about life in colonial America in the late 1700's.

She presented information, in full colonial costume, about taxes, tea, and the effects it had on early colonial America.

Curtis and Donna Liska of Wayne, also a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, then presented certificates at the end-of-the-month assembly at the school.

The two women recognized the school's two participants of the DAR Essay Contest about Traveling Through Ellis Island.

Abby Wieseler and Kiara Krusemark wrote essays about their 'travels' through Ellis Island.

Ellie Curtis presented information to Wayne Elementary Schools' fifth grade students on life in colonial America, especially in regard to tea and the Revolutionary War.

Omaha Symphony making visit to Wakefield for March 11 shows

The Omaha Symphony is taking its music on the road in three special performances on Wednesday, March 11, at the Little Red Hen Theatre in Wakefield.

The Omaha Symphony's All Aboard Tour project is an initiative designed to bring the musical resources and talents of the Omaha Symphony to communities throughout the state of Nebraska. The tour is designed to engage communities in the live concert experience by providing innovative educational programs and interactive concert experiences, often inviting members of the community to perform with the orchestra.

On March 11, the symphony will perform two Mission Imagination educational concerts at 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. for Wakefield students in kindergarten through third grade. Mission Imagination productions are an ideal introduction to the orchestra with live music accompanied by playful drama in an up-close setting. Encouraged to play along, sing along, conduct along, and more, students are continually drawn into the story and encouraged to participate in the excitement.

This year's program, "The Zookeeper's Melody," will feature an actor, "Zookeeper Ted," whose animals ran away while he was busy creating habitats for them. The animals then refuse to return unless their new homes include their favorite melodies. Zookeeper Ted and the students work with the Omaha Symphony to meet the demands of the animals, exploring the qualities of "melody" in this musical safari.

At 7:30 p.m., the Omaha Symphony will present a separate program for the entire community, adults and children alike, featuring Resident Conductor Ernest Richardson. The concert will include Mendelssohn's The Hebrides Overture ("Fingal's Cave"), Heath's The Frontier, and perennial favorite Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf, a wonderful classic tale that showcases the varied individual sounds of the orchestra. Peter and the Wolf will be narrated by Val Bard of the Little Red Hen Theatre.

There will also be an interactive portion in which the audience will be invited to "help" orchestrate The Beatles's "Hard Day's Night."

"This partnership with the Omaha Symphony and the Little Red Hen Theatre presents an exciting opportunity for us to engage with the community in a very direct and meaningful way," said T. Adam Goos, Omaha Symphony Vice President of Education and Community Engagement.

"The Little Red Hen Theatre is thrilled to be able to offer such a special music education experience to our young Wakefield students," Bard said. "Learning about the many orchestral instruments will be of great benefit as well as fun! The family concert for our Patrons and friends later that evening is a wonderful bonus for the entire area. We look forward to bringing the Omaha Symphony sound to our community!"

Tickets to the 6:30 p.m. performance are available through the Little Red Hen Theatre by contacting Val Bard at contact@littleredhen-theatre.com for ticket information.

Sponsors for the Wakefield tour performances are the Peter Kiewit Foundation, National Endowment for the Arts, Nebraska Arts Council, Nebraska Cultural Endowment, and the Union Pacific Foundation.

maintenance districts. Currently, there is overlapping of the two, and board members asked what could be done to bring the two together.

Pieper said that the only way they could be aligned is after the census determines the boundaries for the three districts, or if voters approve a change in the number of districts from the current three-district setup to a five-district map.

"You can't petition to have those changed," he said. "It depends on the census and where the population shifts, and a lot of that depends on the city of Wayne's population and where it is located within each district."

The county board's next meeting is Tuesday, March 17, at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse.

Tourney title hopes fall short for 'Cats

From The Bleachers

Michael Carnes

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. – The look of dejection on their faces told you everything you needed to know.

The 17th-ranked Wayne State women's basketball team had their sights set on sweeping the Northern Sun Conference regular-season and tournament titles for the first time since the team's magical Elite Eight run in the 2011-12 season, and were one win away from accomplishing that goal on Tuesday evening.

The Wildcats fell short of reaching that rare pinnacle, though, as Northern State jumped on Wayne State early in the finals of the NSIC conference tournament at the Sanford Pentagon and never let the regular-season champions get comfortable in a 61-45 defeat that helped the Wolves avenge an earlier loss to the Wildcats and claim the conference tournament title and the automatic bid into the NCAA Div. II tournament.

The Wolves jumped out to an 8-0 lead by making four of its first six shots to open the game. It would take more than three minutes before the Wildcats could get on the board, and they pulled to within two at 9-7 with 15:10 left in the half, thanks to baskets by seniors Jordan Spencer and Ashton Yossi and a 3-pointer by Sadie Murren.

That was as close as Wayne State would get.

Northern went on a 9-0 run of six minutes after the Wildcats got within a basket, and the Wildcats never got closer than six points from then on.

"We just didn't settle in on the offensive end and play the way you need to play to be successful against them," coach Chris Kielsmeier said after the game. "We really fought the game and didn't get the shots we needed to get."

Kielsmeier said he was most disappointed with the team's defensive effort, and yet the Wildcats were still well within range after a lackluster first 20 minutes, trailing 29-22 at intermission.

"That was the big message," Kielsmeier said of the team's halftime talk in the locker room. "That we played this poorly and were only down seven, we've still got a shot to win this game. I thought we'd come out and really show the fight that we've shown all year, and we just couldn't hit a shot and didn't make the plays we needed to make."

Northern put the game out of reach with an 11-0 run, holding Wayne State without a basket for almost 8 1/2 minutes to build a 20-point advantage.

Murren, who was joined by Spencer on the all-tournament team, ended the long drought with a basket with 7:26 to go, but the Wildcats had no answer down the stretch as they saw their hopes for a sweep of the conference titles pass away.

"This group proved that, from August to today, they were the best team in the league and you'll never take that away from this group," Kielsmeier said. "What's disappointing is how we handled the day. We didn't best represent ourselves the way that we're capable of. We had to play better on a championship day."

Murren and Yossi each scored 12 points for the 27-5 Wildcats, who shot 37 percent from the field in the losing effort.

'Cats open with home win

Wayne State opened up conference tournament play at home last Wednesday, riding a double-double from freshman Paige Ballinger to an easy 76-50 win over Bemidji State.

Ballinger had a game-high 19 points and pulled down 11 rebounds while coming off the bench. She helped the Wildcats break away from an 11-11 tie against the Beavers, as Wayne State outscored Bemidji 31-11 over the final 14 minutes, capped by a 13-0 run to end the first half and give Wayne State a 42-22 halftime lead.

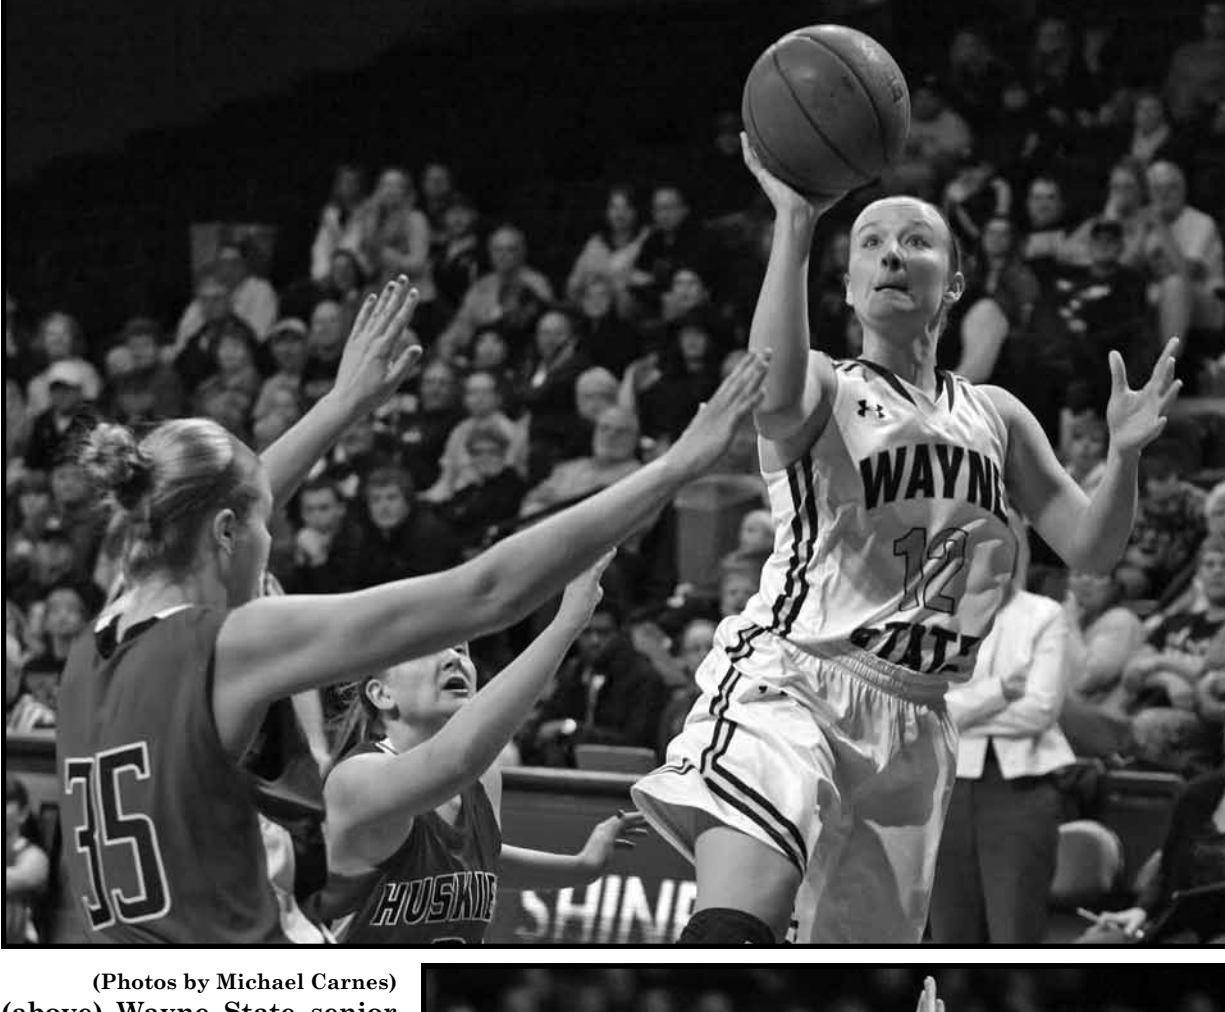

Spencer put in 15 points, and Yossi and Millie Niggeling each had 12 in the opening-round win.

Spencer keys St. Cloud win

Spencer got in early foul trouble on Saturday against St. Cloud State, but the senior came to life in the second half, scoring 18 of her game-high 23 points in a 76-63 win over the Huskies in Saturday's quarterfinal round in Sioux Falls.

Wayne State trailed 7-2 early in the game, but went on a 14-0 run to take the lead for good. St. Cloud got as close as four at 18-14, but Niggeling's 3-pointer highlighted a 7-0 run that made it 25-14.

St. Cloud got to within three late in the first half, but Mur-

Blue Devils out-runned by Winnebago in C1-7 finale

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

OAKLAND – Wayne High boys basketball coach Rob Sweetland hoped his team could stay within striking distance of Winnebago and catch them at the end.

Unfortunately, the top-seeded Indians built too big a lead for the Blue Devils to overcome in the fourth quarter, and Wayne High's season came to an end Thursday in the C1-7 subdistrict finals with a 63-51 loss to Winnebago at Oakland-Craig High School.

Winnebago rushed Wayne's offense early on and built a quick 14-2 lead. Wayne got the deficit down to five points early in the second period, but a 16-5 second-quarter run by the Indians made it a 20-point halftime edge that Wayne couldn't eliminate.

"I knew we'd have to play well, and we dug too big a hole in the first half," Sweetland said after the game. "If we would have executed better on offense early on, it might have been different. But that's what they do – they speed you up and we had to do things that were outside our comfort zone."

When the Blue Devils were able to get some good looks at the basket, they were unable to knock shots down. Ben Hoskins got the Blue Devils' first basket at the 3:51 mark of the first period, and they wouldn't score again until Grayson McBride hit a 3-pointer in the final minute and Hoskins hit another basket with time running out to make it a 16-7 Winnebago advantage.

After Brook Bowers and Hoskins scored to get the Blue Devils within five early in the second, Winnebago took over the game. They held Wayne to just one free throw the final 6:32 of the half, Isaiah Medina hit a pair of 3-pointers, including one in the final minute of the half, to give the Indians a 32-12 lead going into the locker room.

"The few possessions where we did get some nice opportunities, we couldn't get shots to fall," Sweetland said. "I thought that if we get those to fall, we could keep it close and maybe they might fall apart in the fourth quarter, but it just seemed to snowball on us in the second quarter."

Winnebago continued to outrun Wayne and built a 24-point lead on a buzzer-beating layup by Kobe Smith. The Indians brought the crowd to their feet on a Matthew Wingett dunk off a steal and led by as many as 25 before the Blue Devils turned up the pressure and tried to rally. They went on an 11-0 run, capped by a 3-pointer by Hoskins, to get within 54-40 with 3:10 to go.

The waiting game starts for Wildcats

The great 20th century philosopher Thomas Earl Petty once opined, "the waiting is the hardest part."

There isn't a lot of concern here in Wildcat country about whether or not the Wayne State women's basketball team will be playing in the NCAA tournament. With a 27-5 record, the regular-season NSIC title and a runner-up finish in the conference tournament on their resume, the question isn't WILL they get in, but WHERE?

And that, my friends, is the unanswered question – and so, we wait.

There was every reason to believe this team could get that much-coveted golden ticket that is awarded to every one of the 24 conference tournament champions in NCAA Div. II. Wayne State won the regular-season conference crown for the fourth time in five years. Three of the four teams they lost to in NSIC regular-season play were caught in the other half of the 16-team bracket. When Moorhead disposed of Winona and Northern took care of both Augie and Mankato (and Mankato knocked out Crookston), Wildcat fans were feeling pretty good that a sweep of conference supremacy was inevitable. Teams they had already defeated were the only ones standing in their way.

The problem, though, is that you've got to come ready to play every night in this league – and even more so come tournament time.

Tuesday night, it was clear within the first couple of minutes that the Wildcats weren't playing with the same fire and determination they showed 24 hours earlier in a 22-point beatdown of Moorhead. The problem seemed to have momentarily corrected itself by the first media timeout when the Wildcats got within two points of Northern State, and even at halftime, you had to think the problem was going to correct itself when Wayne State was only down by seven after playing, easily, its worst 20 minutes of the postseason.

The Wildcats never got into a flow, though, and this has been the way this team has rolled more often than not this season – when it gets things going early, they tend to dominate. If the game doesn't come to them right away, it's a struggle.

Back in December, when the Wildcats dropped three of four games, we could chalk it up to inexperience. Seven of the 13 girls on the roster were playing their first college basketball games, and three others were getting acclimated to a new system after transferring from other locations. Chemistry is a volatile element in the development of a championship-caliber basketball program, and it takes time for that to come together.

Three months later, this team has come a long way from that shaky start. Winning 14 in a row and storming to the regular-season conference title came in a variety of ways, leading this writer to believe that this team had the makings of something special. I still believe that an Elite Eight trip can be had by this team, but Tuesday's effort should be a reminder to this group of girls that anything less than their best effort isn't going to cut it at this time of the year.

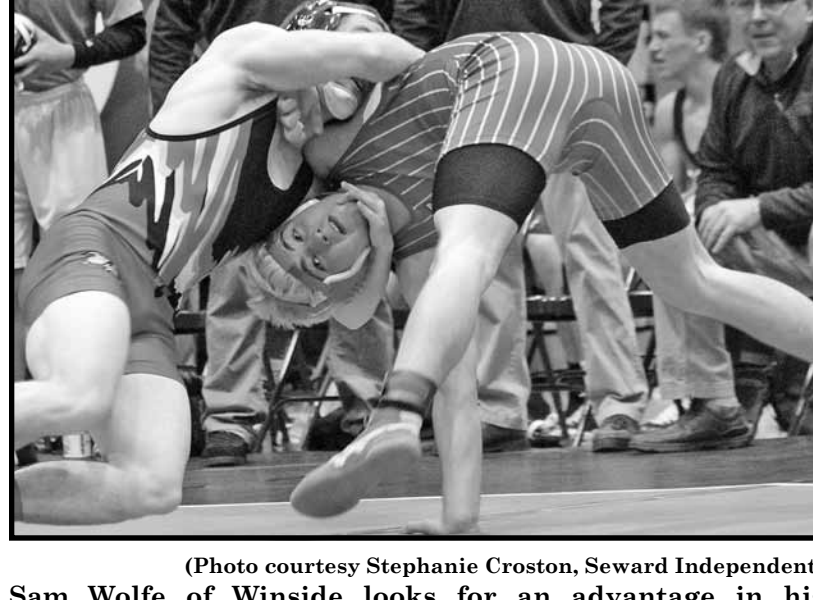

Wayne State will be one of the top 64 teams among the close to 300 Div. II schools playing in the postseason. The question is – do they want to be one of the 63 teams who fell short of achieving the ultimate prize, or are they going to be the one team that puts it all together over the course of the next six games and brings home that rarest of trophies – the one given to the national champions.

Whatever the outcome – it will be worth the wait.

A footnote to the Wildcats' tournament run – Monday's win over MSU Moorhead was the 350th career win for coach Chris Kielsmeier.

Winside wrestles to runner-up finish

KEARNEY – Winside's storied wrestling program has won plenty of state trophies over the years in team competition.

Now they can add a duals trophy to their collection.

The Wildcats lost a tough 53-21 dual to Amherst in the finals, but came away with the Class D runner-up trophy in the 2015 Nebraska State Duals Wrestling Championships at the University of Nebraska-Kearney. The Wildcats beat Friend (45-29) and North Platte St. Patrick's (63-18) to reach the championship round before falling to the six-time defending tournament champion Broncos in the finals.

"The kids wrestled very well," Winside coach Paul Sok said. "I thought we had a good dual tournament this year. We had a couple of close matches against Amherst that could have went either way, but overall we wrestled well and I was happy with how we finished the season."

Winside was able to shuffle their lineup around against the Bulldogs in the opening round, which helped them overcome some defeats in the heavier weights. Moving Cory Schoff to heavyweight proved to be helpful, as his 4-3 decision to open the dual helped Winside establish a big lead early.

Friend won five of the final seven matches, but wins by Sam Wolfe (160) and Zach Jones (182), both by pin, helped put the Wildcats into the semifinals.

"We shuffled things around a little bit," Sok said. "We didn't avoid a match, but we tried to get some more favorable matchups and that helped out. We filled 13 weights in all three duals, so we had some flex-

WSC men's season ends in NSIC opener

MOORHEAD, Minn. — The Wayne State men's basketball team saw its season come to an end last Wednesday in the first round of the Northern Sun Conference tournament.

Fifth-ranked MSU Moorhead outscored the Wildcats 42-22 in the second half to pull away for an 89-60 win, ending Wayne State's year with a 7-22 record.

The host Dragons opened the contest with a 12-4 lead in the first four minutes. Wayne State went on a 10-2 run and knotted the score at 14 thanks to back-to-back treys from freshman Austin Esters, then went back and forth with the Dragons before 3-pointers by Trae Vandenberg and Tyler Nagy gave the Wildcats a 24-23 lead with 7:51 to go in the first half.

That would be the final lead of the night for the Wildcats, as the Dragons scored the next seven points for a 30-24 lead and built an 11-point advantage by halftime.

Wayne State stayed within reach of MSU Moorhead in the second half until the midway point when the high-scoring Dragons pulled away. The Wildcats trailed 62-48 with 10:28 to play, but Moorhead went on a 17-3 run over the next 4:18 to take a commanding 79-51 lead and the Dragons went on to the 29-point win.

Esters led Wayne State in scoring with 14 points while senior center Patrick Kurth had 12 points and eight rebounds in his final game as a Wildcat. Sophomore Joel Heesch also reached double digits with 11.

Nagy led Wayne State with four assists, while Kendall Jacks and Jordan Cornelius each had three. Heesch had five steals.

It was the final game for two Wildcat seniors, Kurth and Gary Ross.

ish in double figures in Monday's semifinal against MSU Moorhead, as the Wildcats jumped out to a quick 10-0 lead on their way to an 81-59 win over the Dragons.

The win was Kielsmeier's 350th career win, and the Wildcats made it look easy against Moorhead. Spencer scored eight of the game's first 10 points and Moorhead turned the ball over six times in the first five minutes of the contest.

A 3-pointer by Niggeling and a basket by Katie Hoskins gave Wayne State a 24-9 lead midway through the half, and Murren hit another 3-pointer as the halftime buzzer sounded to give Wayne State a 45-24 halftime lead, and Moorhead never got closer than 17 after that.

we're sent."

Three wins at regionals will put the Wildcats right back in the same arena where they experienced Tuesday's disappointing finish, which means they could avenge their tournament defeat back at the Pentagon by making it to the Elite Eight later this month.

"You need to play the best basketball of the year in the NCAA tournament, and that's our drive for the next week and a half," he said. "We know there's no doubt that when we play our best, that we can beat anybody. We have a lot of confidence knowing that."

Spencer led five Wildcats in double figures with 22 points, Yossi added 14, Niggeling had 13, and Ballinger and Murren each had 10 points. Murren also cashed in a career-high 10 assists.

While the automatic bid into the NCAA tournament is not in the cards for the Wildcats, Kielsmeier said the team is a solid bet to be part of the eight-team field in the Central Region tournament when the NCAA announces the 64-team field on Sunday night.

"That eases the pain (of losing) a little bit, knowing there's going to be another day," he said. "This is a tired basketball team right now, and we'll go home and get some rest and prepare hard for wherever who has had quite the impressive run during his coaching career with a Div. III national championship to go with all the success he has had here.

Kielsmeier will be quick to point out that he has been extremely blessed to have had some outstanding talent to work with during his career, and you certainly can't argue that truth. But a coach can have all the talent in the world, and if he isn't talented in his own right, has a solid plan in place, and has quality people working alongside helping him to achieve the goals he's set for his program, all the talent in the world isn't going to put enough notches in the win column to keep you in business very long.

While many Wildcat fans have enjoyed and appreciated what Kiels-meier has done with the program, the concern has always been how long it will be before he follows in the footsteps of other Wayne State coaches who have moved on to the next level (see McDermott, Greg, or Kielsmeier's predecessor, Williams, Ryan). Kielsmeier maintains that he loves where he is at, but talent such as what he possesses does not go unnoticed by those at the Div. I level who are looking to resurrect or kick-start a stagnant program.

Hopefully, we'll see Kielsmeier hit those next victory milestones (400, 500, etc.) while pacing the sidelines at Rice Auditorium. Regardless of what the future holds, Wildcat fans should appreciate and applaud the work he and his staff have done with this program over the past seven seasons.

"I was proud of our kids. They kept fighting and we were able to make a run," Sweetland said.

Wayne would get within 14 on a 3-pointer by Payten Gamble with 1:41 to go, but Winnebago forced a turnover as Matthew Wingett made a steal, then sent an alley-oop pass to David Wingett, who slammed it down to bring an emphatic end to Wayne's comeback hopes.

Hoskins led all scorers with a game-high 20 points and 11 rebounds, and McBride added 15 for the 15-10 Blue Devils. Zach Keating added seven, Gamble had six, Bowers had two and Jack Belt scored one and had four assists.

It was the final game for Wayne High's five seniors, and Sweetland applauded the efforts of the class this season.

"They've worked hard and played the game the right way and did it with class," he said. "Ben had an unbelievable career and set some school records, and the other guys have worked hard for us and played very well. It's sad to see the seniors go, and with the way this season started, we beat some good teams along the way so it was a good season for us."

with the Wildcats, and Winside was able to dominate the dual and move on to the finals. Winside won six of the eight matches that were held in the dual, getting pins from Zachary Morris (145), Hayden King (152), Jones (wrestling at 170), Jon Escalante (195) and Zane Jensen (285). Wolfe also won a 5-2 decision at 160.

Winside simply didn't have enough to hang with the powerhouse team from Amherst, who won nine of the final 10 matches after Winside got out to an early 18-6 lead, highlighted by a second-period pin by Sean Mann.

"That was a little redemption for Sean, and he really wrestled up to his capabilities there," Sok said. "We had a couple of close matches we could have won. Kevin Ross was close on a couple of takedowns, and Sam went down to the last second and had a takedown just as the clock expired, and that would have taken it to overtime and he would have had the momentum."

Marcos Escalera became the first 50-match winner in Winside history during the duals. His forfeit at 132 put him over the 50-win mark for the season, but Amherst responded with a technical fall and five pins in their comeback. Jones was the only other winner on the mat for the Wildcats, getting a 7-5 decision at 182 pounds.

WSC wrestlers send 11 to nationals

The Wayne State wrestling team came away with 11 qualifiers for the NCWA national tournament later this month after a runner-up finish in the Great Plains Conference tournament Saturday at Rice Auditorium.

The Wildcats finished with 150 points and finished as runner-up to Rochester College of Minnesota, who won the eight-team tournament with 174.5 points. United States Air Force Academy finished third with 136.5 points.

The 11 Wildcats who qualified for the national meet in Texas did so in nine weights, led by four-time qualifier and returning All-American Jon Williams and three-time qualifier and conference champion Matthew DeGarmo.

DeGarmo was the lone conference champion for the Wildcats, winning the 197-pound title by going 3-0 in round-robin action. He won all three of his matches by pin, closing with a first-period pin of teammate Spencer Trout, who also qualified for nationals by going 2-1 in the bracket.

Wayne State will also send a pair of heavyweights to the national meet, as Jason Trautman and Ethan Hirschman both qualified for nationals. Trautman was the conference runner-up at 285 pounds, while Hirschman finished third.

Williams was a conference runner-up for the Wildcats at 174 pounds. He pinned his way into the championship round before losing in the finals to Cory Berry of Rochester College on a late first-period pin.

Also qualifying for Wayne State were Alex Calderon, who placed second at 125 pounds; Casey Glasgow, a runner-up at 141 pounds; Devon Rupp, a second-place finisher at 149 pounds; Patrick Donnelly, who finished fourth at 157 pounds; Robbie Thomsen, a fourth-place finisher at 165; and Tanner Clark, who finished third at 184.

No place to hang all the art work being produced

All of a sudden, it's a new month. And it actually came in as a lamb. I had so much fun at the Nebraska women's game two weeks ago, I went again on Sunday. Actually, a friend called to say she had an extra ticket and the weather was so nice, I took her up on it. It was a very disappointing game, but the ceremony honoring the four seniors was special. All the parents were there, each girl received a huge picture of themselves, and Mrs. Laudermill had four blankets made, featuring photos of the gals as children, on up to the present.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

I found it hard to believe that we had been watching Emily Cady for eight years! She had been such a force on the championship Seward team while Thomas was in school, and she has never missed a start at NU; that is an amazing record.

I had to smile at the huge pictures, though, and wondered where they will hang. I recently came to the conclusion that there are not enough walls anywhere in this country for all the art work being produced. Think about it. People are taking exquisite photos and framing them, artists are painting up a storm, and then, there are all the sports pictures generated, also framed.

At coffee with friends on Saturday, two brought picture books that can be made on such services as Shutterfly. One was about foot surgery, of all things, and the other was a beautiful keepsake of her son's wedding. This had cost her $33, and we all agreed was much better than the huge albums in which each picture had cost that.

But, the fact remains, we can't hang all the art work out there. In today's Omaha paper, there is an article about a knitter. She is seated on her couch, and her walls are FULL of art work, top to bottom. I have seen one other house like that, a hospice patient a few years ago. It almost made me nervous!

My neighbor has family pictures lining the wall of her stairway. I really like mine bare. I have a box of pictures in the basement with no place to hang them. I actually gave away one by Gene Roncka of Memorial stadium and the capital for a Christmas grab bag gift.

A church friend has over 100 paintings in her basement done by her husband after he retired from teaching. They are very good! And she has lined up a few shows for them, which entails her piling them carefully into her car and delivering them; then, picking up later. It's a lot of work, and they sell very slowly. I would like one, but I have no place to display it.

Years ago, I bought two original prints from a Nebraska artist featured in Nebraska Life; they do hang here in the townhouse. So does a John Falter print of Falls City at Christmas time. But I have no room for more! And who will want them eventually? It's a dilemma, not to be solved by me today.

Keep looking for Spring!

Farm bill deadline is extended

The USDA announced on Friday Feb. 27 that an extension of the farm bill deadline for the base and yield update decisions will be made to March 31, consistent with the ARC vs. PLC election decision deadline.

All three decisions are inherently linked with each other, so making the deadlines the same and extending today's base and yield deadline is a logical way to handle the current rush and demand for enrollment relative to FSA staffing resources.

Some of the program details relating to yields were not available until very recently, such as procedures for yield histories for hybrid seed corn and also popcorn production. And, the county yields for 2014 that factor into the ARC-CO revenue guarantees and payments were just released last week as well. Those yields can affect the performance of ARC-CO relative to PLC

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension Educator

and potentially affect the ARC/PLC decision and the base acreage decision as well.

All of that means pushing the base and yield update decision back to March 31, in line with the ARC/PLC election, will give farmers time to digest this latest information. And, with the spring crop insurance deadline of March 15, producers will be able to study final decisions on both commodity programs and crop insurance programs, including any supplemental coverage, at the same time. Contact your local FSA office for more information.

Many questions and answer to the new farm bill can be found on the University of Nebraska's Agricultural Economics Farm Bill website (agecon.unl.edu/farmbill). Included on the website are the latest rules and details updates, links to get to videos of presentations and decision making aids (including computer program spreadsheets) and other information to help make the election decision.

If you haven't updated yields and base acres there is no further time to delay. This decision will last through 2018 so now is the time for finalize your choices regarding the new farm bill.

Soil test new and established alfalfa

Submitted by Ruth Vonderohe
Extension Educator in Knox County

Alfalfa is a hungry crop. Proper fertilizing in spring often is needed to feed alfalfa so it will produce profitable yields. So what are your fertilizer plans?

How much fertilizer should you apply to alfalfa? With increasing fertilizer costs and strong land use competition from other crops, the only way to answer that question intelligently is to first get a soil test. Soil tests tell you the amount of each nutrient your soil can provide to your alfalfa plants. Then you can determine how much more fertilizer, if any, should be applied for maximum profits.

Remember that alfalfa gets most of its nitrogen from the air if the plant roots are well-nodulated. So usually you are just wasting money and fertilizer if you fertilize with nitrogen. However, all other nutrients must come from the soil or from fertilizer.

Many soils in our region provide high quantities of most nutrients. But very few soils provide all the nutrients needed for top alfalfa yields. So fertilizer often is needed.

Collect soil samples as soon as frost is gone from existing alfalfa fields and also from fields you expect to plant to alfalfa this spring or next fall. Send these samples to a lab for analyses of at least phosphorus and soil pH. If your field is sandy, eroded, or highly weathered, also test for potassium and sulfur.

Most important of all, use the results of these soil tests, with advice from your extension educator and fertilizer dealer, to develop an alfalfa fertilizer program designed for your conditions. Better alfalfa profits will be the result.

Private pesticide applicator training scheduled

Private pesticide applicators whose licenses expire in 2015 and those seeking first-time certification can find information on pesticide safety education programs at their local University of Nebraska Extension offices.

Licensing as a private applicator allows farmers to purchase and use pesticides classified as restricted use by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in their own farming operations.

Extension provides the educational program, while the agriculture department is responsible for licensing. The training fee is $30. An applicator may also certify by self-study or online training for a $60 training fee.

In 2001, the Nebraska Legislature created a state pesticide license fee of $25 for private applicators. The fee covers a three-year license period.

A training is scheduled for Thursday, March 12 at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. at the Fire Hall, 510 Tomar in Wayne.

For additional sites contact the UNL Extension Office-Wayne County at (402) 375-3310 or check online at pested.unl.edu where you will find the Private Training Schedule.

Snow or water – what's the dif?

Submitted by Ruth Vonderohe
Extension Educator

Are you getting tired of winter? Tired of hauling water or chopping ice? Well maybe, just maybe you can let your cows eat snow once in a while for their water needs.

Snow sometimes can be a good source of livestock water. Research from Canada and several northern states have shown that cows can eat 30 to 40 pounds of snow per day to meet their water needs. And some ranchers already rely on only snow to provide water on their winter pastures.

To be successful using snow as your water source, several conditions must be met. First off, the snow must be clean and fresh. We've all heard jokes about eating yellow snow, but it's no joke if that is what your cows are depending on. Snow that's crusted over, filled with dirt, or heavily trampled is not adequate.

Second, the cows must be in good shape. It will take body heat energy to melt the snow they eat so thin cows or sick cows should not be forced to rely on snow for water. Lactating cows also should have a good source of liquid water.

Make sure the cows are eating an adequate diet to provide the extra energy needed to melt that snow. Cows that go off feed or aren't eating enough might be having trouble getting enough water from the snow. After all, they do need to learn how to effectively graze snow to get enough water.

Lastly, be sure to have an alternate water source readily available.

Snow availability and snow conditions can change rapidly.

Snow can be used as the only source of water for many livestock, saving time, money, and potentially extending grazing to remote areas or later in the season. However, monitor intake and cow condition carefully to be successful.

Don't let nitrates cost cattle lives

Submitted by Ruth Vonderohe,
Extension Educator in Knox County

Are you feeding cane, millet, or oat hay, or maybe corn stalk bales, to your cows this winter? If so, don't let high nitrate levels kill your cows or cause abortions.

Nitrates occur naturally in all forages. At low levels, nitrates either are converted into microbial protein by bacteria in the rumen or they are excreted. But when nitrate concentrations get too high, they can kill cows and maybe abort calves.

When stress affects pasture and hay production, nitrates often reach potentially toxic levels. Some plants are more likely to be high in nitrates than others. Annual grasses like cane, millet, oats, and even corn often have elevated nitrate levels. So do certain weeds like pigweed, kochia, and lambsquarter. If your hay has lots of these weeds or is an annual grass, be alert to the potential for high nitrates.

That doesn't mean these feeds always are toxic, nor does it mean that high-nitrate hay can't be fed safely. But always test these feeds for nitrates in a lab to determine how to feed them safely.

Remember, there are many ways to feed high nitrate hay safely. Diluting with grain or low nitrate forages is most common. Frequent, small meals that slowly increase the amount of nitrate fed helps cattle adapt to high nitrate hay. And make sure cattle have plenty of clean, low nitrate water at all times.

Nitrates cause deaths most often after animals have been prevented from eating naturally for a day or more, like after a snow storm. Avoid feeding high or even marginally high nitrate hay at this time because cattle will eat an extra large meal when very hungry. This could create an overload of nitrates to their system, leading to death.

More details about nitrates in forages are available in a NebGuide at your local extension office or online to help you feed safely.

Dave Domina to present update on water law issues

Dave Domina and Brian Jorde, agricultural lawyers representing farmers and ranchers across Nebraska, will host a series of free informational meetings providing updates on issues critical to agricultural producers and the state's economy.

The informational meeting will be held Tuesday, March 10 at 1 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium, located at 220 Pearl Street in Wayne.

Domina will discuss important water issues and what all corn sellers need to know about lawsuits related to Syngenta's MIR 162 and who is affected.

"It is important those concerned about water issues and access to competitive markets stay informed on the latest legal challenges and opportunities. There has also been an influx of out of state law firms chasing after Nebraska farmers recently and we want to let folks here know the facts, not the hype, about their potential financial recovery against Syngenta and what to do," Domina said.

Domina is known for his decades of legal work successfully representing farmers, ranchers and small businesses predominately with agricultural related issues and challenges.

WSC makes most with sports dollar

I have an uncle who is a magician with a dollar. For as long as I've known him, whether it was a paper route, collecting sports memorabilia or even owning his own business, he has a knack with making the most of his financial resources and had made quite a name for himself during his business career.

My uncle isn't a Wayne State graduate - in fact, he's never taken a single college class - but it would appear that the people running the athletic programs at Wayne State College run their operations much in the same way my uncle does and gets quite a return on their investment.

A recently-completed comprehensive analysis of athletic programs in the Northern Sun Conference that was published in a recent edition of The Wayne Stater shows that, without question, Wayne State does a better job with their financial resources than any other school in 16-team conference.

And it's not even close. Wayne State outperforms the rest of the conference in women's basketball and softball, and is one of three schools (Winona State and MSU Moorhead) that has a positive ranking in each of the seven sports studied (men's and women's basketball, baseball, football, softball, volleyball and women's soccer).

And, when you compare those three schools, Wayne State gets more bang for its buck than all of the comparable MSU Moorhead teams, and outperforms Winona State in every sport except soccer (where Winona State is the top school in that sport).

Of the seven sports, Wayne State is the best in women's basketball and softball when it comes to having an average performance ranking that is higher than their average expenditure ranking. Wayne State is also the only school whose average performance ranking is two ranking positions higher than its average expenditure ranking.

The only thing Wayne State doesn't rank as high in, when it comes to finances within its athletic department, is the AMOUNT that is spent on athletics in Wayne State College - where the Wildcats are 13TH out of 16 schools.

That's right - Wayne State is one of the WORST schools in the conference when it comes to the amount of money its athletic department has to work with, yet its overall average performance is, far and away, the best in the Northern Sun Conference.

There is a lot that the average fan doesn't see, when it comes to how financial resources are used, that each coach and his or her staff has to think about, and it would blow your mind to look at all the things that they have to take into consideration when spending their limited financial resources.

It's more than uniforms and equipment - it's travel costs, meals and hotels, recruiting visits, apparel, updated computer and video equipment, online resources such as video distribution services . . . all those behind-the-scenes bells and whistles that a program needs to be competitive.

And when you look at what the teams work with, there aren't a lot of bells and whistles within the halls of the Wayne State athletic department. Coaches aren't flying in private jets to all parts of the globe to recruit kids. The team doesn't eat in the finest restaurants in town when they're on the road (Applebee's or Ruby Tuesdays is as good as it gets for a team meal).

And the athletic department doesn't get a blank check when it comes to its budget. If they want or need something more than the budget can't cover, there are a variety of fundraising efforts the athletic department has to work with to help raise that money. The annual Catbacker golf tournament is a big money-maker for the department, and that money goes toward those expenditures that are not a part of the budget.

Take all that into consideration, and it makes the results we have seen from the Wildcat teams over the years all the more impressive. That Wayne State can have one of the smallest bank accounts in the NSIC, yet boast THREE top 25 programs (volleyball, women's basketball, women's indoor track) and have competitive programs in sports like football, baseball and softball (along with rebuilding efforts in men's basketball and women's soccer) speaks volumes to the work the entire athletic department - from the administrators to the coaches and athletes - do to get the biggest bang for their buck.

It's the kind of resource management that would make my uncle proud.

Saying 'no' to needless legislation

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

There is such a thing as a needless bill. And then, there's a needless bill with an estimated $1 million price tag. Fortunately, Nebraska lawmakers voted to table the voter photo ID bill for the remainder of the 2015 session. In "bracketing" the bill (LB111) until consideration on the final day, the officially non-partisan Nebraska unicameral rejected the Republican Party's goal of a requirement that voters must show government-issued photo IDs. Supporters say it's important to prevent voter fraud. Opponents suggest the real motivation is to further disenfranchise people groups who tend to vote for Democrats.

Nebraska is a predominantly Republican state. There have been no reported cases of voter fraud in the state. Proponents said everyone who wants to vote would be issued a free photo ID. The fiscal note attached to the bill for that provision would be about $1 million. So let's recap: Republicans already have the edge on votes; there have been no reported cases of voter fraud; to make the bill happen would cost $1 million.

Freshman lawmaker Sen. Adam Morfeld of Lincoln said the bill would place a burden on a fundamental constitutional right to vote. Freshman Sen. Brett Lindstrom of Omaha said the measure is fiscally irresponsible. Freshman Sen. John McCollister of Omaha said voter fraud is not a problem in Nebraska. Lindstrom and McCollister are both Republicans and were joined by 10 other Republicans in voting to table the bill. The final vote, 25 to 15 to NOT do something stupid.

In a second breath of fresh air, a legislative committee voted NOT to advance a proposal to the full Legislature that would have allowed Nebraska bars to stay open 24/7. The General Affairs Committee, chaired by Sen. Tyson Larson of O'Neill, said NO to Larson's proposal, which would have been part of an omnibus liquor bill. Larson had said the elimination of "last call" would keep bars from dumping too many people in the street all at once.

Bar owners and law enforcement agencies have spoken out against the proposal. Lincoln Police have installed cameras at a busy downtown intersection to monitor the activity of people from a cluster of bars and have found no major concerns over the swell of people from closing time. Bar owners obviously struggle with staffing and cleanup and maintenance if the doors never close.

Omaha Sen. Bob Krist probably summed it up best when he questioned whether lawmakers should have the no-last-call conversation this year, "or we should ever have it in this millennium."

Larson said he'd wait to try the measure again after the next election (in two years) with a new batch of lawmakers.

The bill (LB330), sans the 24/7 option, would also: motivate people to use locally grown beer ingredients; to allow bars to sell growlers of beer brewed elsewhere; and to eliminate a requirement that filings to the Liquor Control Commission be made in triplicate. Those items were previously included in other bills.

In addition, the committee advanced a bill (LB460) by Sen. Jeremy Nordquist of Omaha to allow drinking on pedal pubs, or beer bikes. The bike owners would need to be licensed and serve drinks in opaque containers with unique logos. The committee removed a major piece of that bill, a provision that would have allowed the Liquor Control Commission to regulate buses and limousines that allow alcohol on board. A Nebraska Wesleyan student who had been on a so-called party bus last year was killed when he wandered away from the bus and was hit by a car while walking along the Interstate.

Well snap, I guess you can't always regulate stupid.

NOTE: J.L. Schmidt has been a registered non-partisan for 16 years. He also operated a bar and restaurant in a college town (Peru) 40 years ago.

Big Oil trying to kill ethanol

Big Oil imposes a 90 percent gasoline mandate on our nation's motor fuel supply. Worse, it endangers human health and U.S. jobs in the process.

Various components of gasoline create enormous environmental hazards. According to the National Academy of Science, fossil fuels like gasoline cost the United States more than $120 billion annually in direct health costs. Even so, American taxpayers continue to subsidize Big Oil at the rate of $8 billion a year. Simply stated, petroleum industry subsidies paid oil company profits and keep American drivers dependent on their products.

Ethanol currently accounts for more than 10 percent of the U.S. motor fuel market and is the only product that helps clean the nation's air. Lower cost ethanol also mitigates inevitable gasoline price hikes. And, ethanol does so without subsidies. Big Oil is waging a magnificently financed lobbying campaign to restrict ethanol production by repealing the Renewable Fuel Standard. This action would further restrict fuel choices and increase costs.

Consumers should remember these facts as gas prices continue to rise in the months ahead.

Camp Invention coming to Wayne Elementary

Camp Invention, the nation's premier summer enrichment day camp program that is supported by the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) and the National Inventors Hall of Fame (NIHF), is coming to Wayne Elementary School the week of June 8, 2015. The weeklong day camp for students entering grades one through six fosters innovation and creativity while also building self-esteem, teamwork, persistence and goal-setting skills.

Selection of the right summer camp for children can be intimidating and overwhelming as the options continue to grow and become more niche. Camp Invention not only encourages inventive young minds through Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) in a fun and creative atmosphere, it also incorporates outdoor activities as part of its curriculum.

Camp Invention students experience winning, success and victory, along with an adrenaline rush that comes with competition among students and successful completion of challenging projects. Camp Invention provides a great opportunity for inventive young minds to exercise their creativity and use their imagination in ways they don't normally get to - through real-world problem-solving challenges, they build things, take things apart, explore different types of technology and so much more. Many times, the students are having so much fun, they don't even realize they are learning and developing new skills.

"We are thrilled to be offering Camp Invention to students in our community and developing skills that ensure bright futures for our participants," said Nancy Lenihan, Camp Invention Director in Sumner, Wash. and Highly Capable Classroom Teacher. "We are molding inventors, innovators and entrepreneurs and instilling creative problem-solving, which sets this camp apart from the rest."

This year's Camp Invention curriculum is called Illuminate and was inspired by some of our nation's most brilliant minds including experienced educators, Inductees of the National Inventors Hall of Fame and members of the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Illuminate™ will encourage children to explore their inventiveness in the Design Studio; Illuminate module, investigating circuits and taking on a nature-inspired design challenge. As they dream, build and make discoveries, children will have a chance to build a prototype from scratch and explore math from a new angle when they create origami flight models during team-building exercises.

Local programs are facilitated and taught by educators who reside and teach in the community. Camp Invention serves more than 87,000 students every year through more than 1,300 camps across the nation. For additional information, or to find the nearest location for registration, visit www.campinvention.org.

Teaching Ag Literacy in everyday life

Today's youth are now at least three generations removed from the farm and have become dependent on supermarkets and restaurants to supply almost all of their food needs. In the state of Nebraska one in three jobs is dependent on agriculture and agribusiness. You may be thinking "how I am going to make a difference?"

It's actually easier than you may think. One way that you can help to educate today's youth about the importance of agriculture in their daily lives is by playing the "Where Does my Food Come from Game." This is a very simple activity that you can do using the snack at your club meeting or the meal that your family is eating.

Start by simply asking the youth where do you think "x" comes from? For example: "Where do you think pizza comes from?" Answer: the store, restaurant, etc. These are all correct answers, but you can take this question one step farther by saying, "Okay, that's right but what do you think the main ingredient of crust is?" Answer: "Wheat" okay where does wheat come from? Answer: farmer's fields.

Another concept you could discuss is in what states/part of the food), the list could go on and on.

You could create a matching game out of everyday objects. This could be accomplished by bring pictures of various plants/animals and/or items made from them. Then you would ask the youth to match the items up with the plant/animal that they came from. For example: 100 percent cotton t-shirt - cotton, crayons - soybeans, marshmallow's - corn, leather - beef, chewing gum - corn, football - swine, etc.

As you can see there are many ways fun and entertaining ways in which you can teach youth about the importance of Ag Literacy each and every day. If you are ever in the Grand Island area, be sure to check out Raising Nebraska, an interactive exhibit that opened during the 2014 Nebraska State Fair. A joint effort of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the Nebraska Department of Agriculture and the Nebraska State Fair, this 25,000 square foot exhibit is designed to help visitors better understand and appreciate the advancements, impact and global leadership of Nebraska agriculture. The exhibit will be available year-round, staffed by a UNL extension educator. Building hours are 9 - 11 a.m. and Thursday 2 - 4 p.m. or by appointment. For more information on Raising Nebraska go to <http://www.raisingnebraska.net/> country is wheat grown. This game can continue on for each part of the pizza/meal.

Another fun activity to do with your club would be to ask all the youth's parent to tell you their career/occupation. Then try to find the relationship between their job and agriculture. Examples could include: Farmer/Rancher (that's an easy one), Banker (loan's money to producers and producers keep their money in a bank, Car salesman (farmers/ranchers purchase vehicles), Newspaper Owner (Producers may have a subscription or take out ads), Restaurant owner (producers raise the products used to create

Life is a victory when God is the coach

I'm writing this article from my hotel room in Sioux Falls, S.D., waiting for the NSIC Women's Basketball championship game in which our very own Lady Wildcats will be playing. I watched them obtain another hard fought victory last night in the semifinals, and as I reflected on their season, last night in my hotel room, some spiritual application (or at least a thought) came to my mind.

There are lots of reasons that victory occurs on the field of athletic competition. Good coaching, solid training, mental acumen, and even some lucky bounces. Paul related our spiritual life to athletic completion in 1 Timothy 4:8 when he says, "For physical training is of some value, but godliness has value for all things, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come." I personally, have been very blessed spiritually, by athletics. I came to know and surrender my life to Jesus because of the basketball team I played on in college - in fact, my coach was the guy who led me to Christ.

Coaches are important. He certainly was for me. If you watch our Lady Wildcats, you will soon see that coaching is important for them as well. There has to be someone on the sideline who calls the shots. Someone who is in charge, and someone in whom you place your trust to put you in the best possible situation for success.

The same is true for us spiritually. There has to be a coach. There has to be someone who is our source of truth, who we surrender to and who we allow to call the shots in our life. When we surrender to Jesus as Christians, we are placing our trust in Him. When we commit to live for Jesus, to give Him control of our lives, we are saying that we believe that He and His Word is our ultimate authority, and it puts us in the best possible situation for victory. Not just victory in this life, but victory in eternity.

Now, if you come to a Wildcat game, you're going to notice that the players on the court aren't always thrilled with what gets called from the sideline. Believe it or not, I've seen players throw their hands in the air a time or two in frustration. I've seen confused and inquisitive looks toward the sideline, wondering why that's what was called. I've even heard a raised voice a time or two. But you know what - I've never seen a player suggest that they are in charge and that they want to take over and run the show. Never.

I'll be honest with you, I relate to God this way very much at times. There have been times in my life where I've looked to Him and been frustrated with how life is going. I've had times where I've read His Word and questioned why it says what it says. There have been moments of confusion and questions as I am tempted to not live out what He teaches me from Scripture. I'll admit to you, I may have even raised my voice a time or two.

But here's the deal. Never once have I wanted or thought that I should be in charge. Never once have I thought that I should be the one who gets to write the playbook, that I should be the one who gets to pick which plays stay in and which plays get thrown out. Because that's the deal, either I surrender to God and His Word, or I take over ultimate authority as the one who decides what is true and what is not. (And me calling the plays is a bad idea... think Bruce Almighty goes wild.)

Here's the great thing though! It is a choice. God loves us so much that He lets us choose. He lets us decide whether or not we want to be on His team, and like all good coaches, He puts up with (even welcomes) our questions, frustrations, and struggles, and He gives us grace and forgiveness for the times we mess up. He picks us up, pats us on the back, and tells us to get back in the game. So take some time daily, to sit at the feet of the coach, spend time in the playbook with Him, and live in His victory!

1 Peter 1:23-25 "For you have been born again, not of perishable seed, but of imperishable, through the living and enduring word of God. For, "All people are like grass, and all their glory is like the flowers of the field; the grass withers and the flowers fall, but the word of the Lord endures forever."

Youth participate in 'Making Cents of It' and America Saves Week

Nebraska Extension has partnered with local schools and banks in the area to do a Piggy Bank Pageant for kids in second through fourth grade.

"Making Cents of It" 4-H is a school enrichment project in grades 2-4. Through the project youth learned about money, wants and needs, saving, earning money and spending. They made a bank to start their savings project. Participating banks include: Security National Bank, Allen; Iowa-Nebraska State Bank, Wakefield; Bank of Dixon County in Ponca, and Newcastle; and First National Bank, Emerson.

All banks will be recognizing participating young people with a gift. Sandy Preston, Nebraska Extension Educator in Dixon County taught the project in the schools.

Allen second grade students taking part in Making Cents of It were (front) Ben Jorgensen, Bryan Isom, Adrian Flores, Abby Moore, Gabe Olesen, Breanna Millard, Garrett Tramp, Ruany Figueroa, Brayden McCorkindale, (back) Garrett Geiger, Zander Roth, Alex Kneifl, Dylan Boyle, Erica Niemann, Bo Jackson, Gracie Coughlin, Aceson Graves and second grade teacher Mrs. Smith.

Program to help prevent complications from diabetes

You probably already know that diabetes can lead to devastating problems with the heart, kidney, eyes, and nerves. Did you also know that by taking control of diabetes and identifying problems early you can prevent or slow many of these conditions?

The next Control Diabetes for Life program will be held Wednesday, April 1 from 1:30-4 p.m. at Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, 215 N. Pearl Street in Wayne.

High blood glucose is a major cause of serious diabetes complications. Recognizing diabetes early and getting your blood glucose levels under control allows for swift action to slow its progression and avoid complications. Lowering your A1C by just one percentage point lowers your chance of getting eye, kidney, or nerve disease by 40 percent.

Blood glucose control is just one aspect of preventive care. Following a meal plan, being physically active, losing excessive weight, keeping your blood pressure and cholesterol levels in check, quitting smoking, and taking aspirin are all important ways to prevent future health problems.

Set a goal to take control of your diabetes. Aim for lower blood glucose levels to feel better now and stay healthy for years to come. The April 1 session will focus on What's New in Diabetes Self-Management and topics include: Fats and Their Tie to Heart Disease, Latest in Exercise as a Key to Controlling Blood Sugar Levels, What's New in Diabetes Self-Management, and Stress Release with Humor. There will also be a question and answer period.

Participants will receive recipes for diabetic appropriate foods. Team-teaching the program will be Stacie Petersen, BSN & Certified Diabetes Educator; Deborah Willcox, RD, LMNT, and Terry Nelson, DPT all of Franciscan Care Services in West Point and Debra Schroeder, Nebraska Extension Educator in Cuming County.

These sessions are designed to supplement the education that participants receive from their local diabetes education team and are not a substitute for diabetes classes through local health care providers.

Control Diabetes for Life is a joint project of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered free of charge. Control Diabetes for Life will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease.

Participants are asked to pre-register by calling Nebraska Extension in Wayne County at (402) 375-3310. Please register by Monday, March 30, so the proper number of handouts may be prepared. Nebraska School Food Service Association has approved this session for two hours of continuing education credits.

Champion spellers

The 2015 Wayne County Spelling Bee finalists include (left) Mariah Frevert, a seventh grader at Wayne Junior High who was the overall winner and will represent Wayne County for the state competition on March 14. Other finalists are Madi Meyer, Wayne seventh grader; Kati Topp, Winside sixth grader; and Kellie Kampa, Winside eighth grader).

In this moment...

It doesn't matter if you saved money in 15 minutes.

It doesn't matter if your neighbor has the same insurance you do.

What matters right now is that you get to enjoy this moment because your independent insurance agent and the company that stands behind them have you covered.
