CHANGING OF THE GUARD

New president hired to lead WSC

Frey: time to catch up on reading

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

There were always two highlights Curt Frye could count on as President of Wayne State College – winter commencement and spring commencement.

A few days from now, Frye will trade the opportunity to congratulate each semester's graduates for a peaceful day on the lake and a boat full of books as he retires – for the second time – from a college where he has enjoyed 30 years of work in the world of academics.

A voracious reader, Frye said he read about 50 books after he first retired from the college in 2009 after more than 20 years of work in the college's administration. Now that he's ready to say goodbye to the campus for the second time, he's looking forward to getting caught up on all that reading and spending time with Diane, his wife of 47 years, at their lake home near Yankton.

"Diane and I sometimes take the pontoon out on the lake and take our books and a lunch and enjoy spending the day reading, and you don't get a chance to do that when you have a job," Frye said.

Frye is getting ready to retire for good after spending all but 14 months of a 30-year career in the college's administration.

He started out as the associate dean of students in 1985 before moving up to the dean of students position in 1988. He became a vice president and dean of students in

Dr. Rames ready for opportunity

The ink was barely dried on her contract, and the next President of Wayne State College was all smiles.

There was a sense of relief and excitement for Dr. Marysz Rames after her nomination was unanimously approved by the Nebraska State College System for her to become the 13th President of Wayne State College.

The Nebraska State College System board approved the recommendation by executive director Stan Carpenter to name Rames as the college's next leader, replacing Curt Frye, who is retiring at the end of this month. She will officially begin her duties as the college's next leader on Monday, July 13.

Relieved that the final hurdle had been cleared, Dr. Rames said she was already looking forward to getting started in her new position. "I'm excited," she said. "I was excited to be a part of this process and felt I learned a little more about Wayne every time I was involved, so I feel this is a good fit and I'm really excited that it's finally done."

Rames comes to Wayne after serving as interim president of Dakota State University in Madison, S.D. She has been a part of the South Dakota higher education system for 29 years, and was looking for an opportunity to lead a school when Frye announced his retirement late last year.

Fourteen days and counting . . .

That is all the time remaining before the 35th annual Wayne Chicken Show, scheduled to take place this year Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July, 10, 11 and 12.

Chicken Show committee members have been scratching out ideas and hope the results will be egg-ceptional again this year. "#chickenselfie2015" was selected as the theme for this year's event and the 2015 Wayne Chicken Show shirt depicts a chicken taking a selfie in front of the Wayne water tower.

While the majority of the traditional events will be a part of this year's celebration, live chickens will stay home, after the Nebraska Department of Agriculture determined that events involving the comingling of live chickens will be prohibited until January of 2016.

Organizers are continuing to work on providing activities to replace those involving live chickens.

Kicking off the celebration will be the Henoween activities on Friday, July 10. The majority of these events will be held on Main Street and include a Flea Market/Sidewalk Sale from 8 a.m.-3 p.m., the Chamber Coffee at 10 a.m., the World's Largest Chicken Dance at 6 p.m. and Egg Roulette at 6:30 p.m.

The Wayne Public Library will be sponsoring free chicken crafts and stories at the

One cemetery vandal is arrested in Cedar County

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

A Hoskins man who was being sought regarding the destruction of markers at a cemetery near Hoskins was arrested in Cedar County late Wednesday afternoon.

Wayne County Sheriff Jason Dwinell released a statement via e-mail that a warrant for the arrest of Michael Svatos was issued, and he was arrested by the Cedar County Sheriff's Office Wednesday afternoon.

"The Wayne County Sheriff's Office would like to thank the Cedar County Sheriff's Office and the Madison County Sheriff's Office for their assistance in the arrest and dissemination of information regarding Svatos, and the multitude of citizens who provided information which led to the quick closure of the investigation," Dwinell said in the e-mail.

Svatos was being sought after video evidence of two vandals attacking the Trinity Cemetery just west of Hoskins earlier this spring. Svatos and another man, who has not been identified, were shown knocking over headstones and tearing up the grounds of the cemetery with an ATV vehicle.

Information on the circumstances that led to Svatos' arrest in Cedar County were not made available.

Burglars target Hoskins bank Tuesday, steal ATM

The Nebraska State Patrol is seeking information regarding the burglary of a bank in Hoskins early Tuesday morning.

According to Deb Collins, a spokeswoman for the Nebraska State Patrol, three individuals went into the outside lobby of Elkhorn Valley Bank early Tuesday morning, shattering a glass door and gaining access to an ATM machine. The three individuals, who were all wearing hoods, attached a chain to the ATM and used a pickup to pull it away.

According to Collins, the suspects did not enter the bank itself, but did enter the outside lobby and tree area. No other damage was noted at the bank.

Parts of the ATM were found about a mile north of Hoskins later in the day Tuesday. It is not known if the thieves got access to any of the money inside the machine.

Anyone with information regarding this crime is asked to call the Troop B office of the Nebraska State Patrol in Norfolk at (402) 370-3456.

Sewer cleaning

WAYNE — During the next two to three weeks, the City of Wayne Sewer Department will be having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the city. In this process, high pressure water is forced through the sewer pipe to clean it. This pushes solid materials to the manholes so they can be removed by vacuuming. This entire process is necessary to keep obstructions out of the sewer system and insure proper drainage of waste.

Anyone with questions about the sewer cleaning process or the areas the sewer main cleaning will take place is asked to contact the Wastewater Treatment Plant at (402) 375-5250 or City Hall at (402) 375-1733.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By LOWELL JOHNSON
City Administrator

City Council Meetings

Regular Wayne City Council meetings are held at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in city hall at Third and Pearl Streets.

Next Year's Budget

Over the next several weeks I'll mention some of the budget questions ahead of the city council for the next year. We always start work on the next year's budget in January at our annual strategic planning retreat. The city's fiscal year begins on Oct. 1. We have two sets of budgets:

City Government — streets, police, library, fire department, civil defense, city recreation, activity center, senior center, swimming pool, parks, public buildings and administration.

City Utilities — water, sewer, electric and transfer station.

Here are some assumptions we use to prepare our staff draft budget for the mayor and council:

a) There are no right budgets or wrong budgets. Budgets are how the community wants to tax itself and spend its resources. Local conditions change and council priorities change.

b) The overall average cost to operate the Government budget is about $3.5 million per year. About 14 percent of this comes from real estate taxes.

c) Government's purpose is not to provide job security but to provide the desired services at the lowest cost possible.

d) Since 2002, the mayor and council have directed city staff to bring them annual budgets that balance costs with revenues without using Emergency Cash Reserve Funds and without increasing the property tax mill levy. The police termination legal costs and the uninsured tornado recovery costs were large unexpected exceptions during this time.

e) During this period we have found additional alternative sources of revenue besides property tax and reduced six full time positions in government departments, knowing that at some point we'll run out of new funding ideas. The budget for next year will begin reflecting that limit unless we raise property taxes to fund current levels of operations.

f) Each one mill increase in the city property tax request will raise an additional $18,000.

Library Department

Since the library budget is a current topic of discussion, I'll start with some general data about this department. The history of the five most recent library total budget expenditures is: 2010 - $215,684; 2011 - $222,919; 2012 - $253,049; 2013 - $297,554; current budget - $315,887. During this period the personnel costs were increased from $144,341 to $198,143.

Our intent has been to provide Platinum level service to the patrons. The mayor and council feel this trend is not sustainable for any department and have directed us to work with library staff to walk this back some and see how it affects our service. I have directed the library staff to begin operating at a budget level reduced by $60,000 per year to see what the results of that are. The $100,000 reduction reported in the paper was a discussion comment for consideration and not a council directive.

Where are we in the budget process for next year?

The council will act on final approval of the city budget in August and we don't have a draft library budget prepared for them yet. Next week we'll talk about the Public Safety budgets which are Police Dept.; Fire Department and Civil Defense.

1993, then served as the interim president for a little more than a year after Sheila Stearns left as the college's 10th president in 2004.

He returned to his position as vice president of student affairs until his first retirement in 2009, then agreed to come back and serve as interim president after Dr. Richard Collings resigned in 2011 to accept another position. When a search for Collings' replacement didn't pan out, Frye agreed to step into the position on a full-time basis.

Wayne State's campus has evolved remarkably during Frye's 30 years on campus, and a lot of change has taken place during the last five years that has positioned the college very well for the future.

"The thing I've discovered, in talking with my architect friends, is that once you put a building up it starts to fall down, and if you don't pay attention to it and keep up maintenance, pretty soon your institution falls apart. Students will make up their mind whether or not they want to attend within their first 5-10 minutes of a visit to campus, and this campus shows very well with grounds and buildings, and the programs that we offer."

Frye said the advancements in technology have made it possible for Wayne State College to reach out to those who might not otherwise have been able to get a college education, and the school's online offerings have made for some amazing success stories.

"Students who are place-bound can get an education here, and don't necessarily have to come to the campus to get an education," Frye said. "We had a graduate student from Miami who gave our commencement address a few years ago. He was a doctor who wanted to know more about the business of running a business, so he got his MBA (online through Wayne State) and the only time he set foot on this campus was when he gave the commencement address."

Frye, who worked in high school education the first 18 years of his career, brought his family to Wayne in 1976 when he took a guidance counselor position at Wayne High School. The decision to move to a college town was something he and his family were looking to make, and it's one that turned out very well for the family.

"This is an oasis in the middle of the prairie," he said. "One of the reasons we moved here was because this was a college town, and I've developed an affinity for athletic teams and the plays and music we have here. We've also made a lot of friends here and the community has been very good to us."

Frye said that he hasn't had much chance to talk with his replacement, but he feels he's leaving the college in good hands, as he was very impressed with Dr. Marysz Rames, who will assume duties on Monday, July 13.

"I was very impressed with her and I think she's going to be a great fit here," he said. "She came out of student services and has a lot of good experience with a lot of things, and she has a good perspective on to help students. I thought all three candidates were excellent, but I was very high on her choice. I think we got the best of the best."

Frye said he and his wife, Diane, will split their time between their home here and their lake home near Yankton, which will allow him to stay "plugged in" to the town they've called home for almost 40 years.

"We have kids and grandkids in the area, so we'll keep our home here and be out on the boat, which will be an easy commute and will allow me to stay connected to Kiwanis and economic development here, which I'm still very interested in," he said.

And when he's not busy with those activities, there is the volumes of reading material that awaits his inquisitive mind.

"I read Dr. Don Hickey's book about the War of 1812, and it was a fascinating book. It was one of the forgotten wars, but was one of the most important in our nation's history," Frye said. "I have a lot of interests that I'm sure I'll be reading up on. I might even read a book about how to build an airplane."

cies and wanted an institution that was about access and about students being successful, and that certainly fits Wayne and the state college system here," she said.

Rames actually stumbled into the world of academic administration when she accepted her first position as an assistant activities coordinator at the University of Wyoming.

"My background was in business and economics, but I was involved as a student with the board of trustees in Colorado," she said. "The economy at the time was bad in Colorado, and a colleague of mine said there was an opening at the University of Wyoming. It was unusual to pursue a position in higher education with just a bachelor's degree, but I got involved and decided this was where I wanted to go."

Rames, who holds a doctorate in adult education from the University of South Dakota, eventually found her way into the South Dakota college system, where she spent 29 years serving in a number of positions. She was the associate dean of students and director of the South Dakota State University student union before taking a position as vice president for student affairs.

Last year, she was asked to fill in as the interim president at Dakota State University at Madison, S.D., with the understanding that the college was going to hire somebody else for the position, which opened the door for her eventual move to Wayne.

"The Dakota State position was a gift, and I appreciated the confidence the board had in me to help move that institution forward," she said. "But it was time for me and I wanted to pursue a presidency and knew I'd have to move outside of South Dakota."

When Frye announced his retirement late in 2014, Rames wound up being one of the three finalists for the position, and she said she was excited about what Wayne State has to offer.

"I'm excited about the work this institution does with students to open the door for a quality educational experience and a quality way of life and a passion they can pursue here," she said. "I love the campus setting here and the residential aspect of it. It's a strong, robust campus with a very engaging environment, so I'm excited about getting started here."

Rames said she hasn't had a chance to speak with Frye yet about the position, but said she planned on spending some time with him prior to her first day on the job next month.

Rames said she and her husband, Steven - a civil engineer - will be moving to the area soon. Their oldest son, Matthew, is an interactive digital media major at Northwest Missouri State University; and their daughter, Jessica, is a recent high school graduate who is attending Winona State University.

Winside students take historic trip to South Dakota

Eleven Winside students – Kelly Tweedy, Ellie Jaeger, Jayden Prince, Halle Brogren, Sophie Milenkovich, Jami Jaeger, Taylor Anson, Marcos Escalera, Colby Ericksen, Keith Mundil, and Marlowe Kampa – along with instructors Paul Sok and Mark Tonniges recently completed a five day tour out west.

The group departed Winside High School on June 7 at 3:45 a.m. in the school vans. First stop for the day was at the South Dakota Original 1880's Town along Interstate 90. The group had a chance to tour an authentic mockup of an 1800's western town and view a number of movie sets from the academy award winning "Dances with Wolves" film.

"They had a fun time with a group picture in the old saloon along with some of the actors on the property," Sok said.

The next stop was at an historic sod house, homestead outside of the Badlands. The group had a chance to view the world's only white prairie dog town which was native to the area. The homestead was developed by three families from Pierce County in the late 1800's.

After this, the group entered the Badlands National Monument east of Wall, S.D. They hiked a portion of the area with its eroded landscape and saw some of the native wildlife before heading off to Rapid City.

Shortly after arriving in Rapid City, the students were engaged in a film presentation and guided tour of the Journey Center. The director of the museum offered them an historical outlook of the Blackhills region and centered her discussion on the Native American populations that inhabited the area. The group then visited the Blackhills School of Mines Geology Museum in Rapid City and had the opportunity to view a multitude of mineral samples and had a chance to see a reconstructed set of the world's largest gold nuggets along with a number of dinosaur/fish/mammal fossils from the surrounding area.

After this, the group headed south of Rapid City to the world famous Reptile Gardens. Here the students viewed a number of exhibits and were able to take in the snake and alligator shows.

After the shows, the group stopped off at the Cosmo's Mystery Area. This is a site between Rapid City and Hill City that offered a variety of optical illusions and kept the group entertained and scientifically curious for the remainder of the afternoon. Then it was check in time at Hill City before heading off to a video presentation and the night lighting of Mt. Rushmore.

Monday came and it was another early start for the group as they visited the historic Wade's Gold Mine and had a tour of the working mines historic mining equipment display by owner Bob Wade and his employees.

The students had a chance to do a little gold panning with prepared samples and then do some actual panning. Ellie Jaeger was the lucky one who managed to find a gold flake in her sample. This was followed by a walk through tour of the Blackhills Institute of Geological Research in Hill City. They had the opportunity to view several examples of terrestrial and aquatic fossils.

The museum founders (brothers Neal and Pete Larson) and Sue Hendricksen are world famous for their discovery of the nearly complete T. rex fossils, "Sue and Stan" in the early 90's. Next was a stop near Custer at the Crazy Horse Memorial. The students watched an informative video about the construction process and then were able to take a bus tour to the base of the memorial. After the bus tour they had a chance to enter the museum and view some of the local artisans at work.

The afternoon was then spent touring Jewel Cave National Monument and its formations. This was followed up with a drive and hike in the Needles region. The group then took a swim in Sylvan Lake after which all of the students took a short hike around the lake area. Following the hikes and swim the group visited the Gordon Stockade outside of Custer. This was a mock-up of the original fort located on the site during the development of the Blackhills in the 1800's around the time General Custer first found gold in the region.

Tuesday morning was off to another early start. First off was a drive through Custer State Park on the wildlife loop. The group stopped off at the Grace Coolidge General Store and many of them met artist Lane Kendrick from Oklahoma who spends her summers in the Blackhills painting an assortment of wildlife and scenery.

The students then located the bulk of the bison herd in the mid region of the park before heading to the Blue Bell lodge for a late morning snack. Next up was a panoramic view of the Blackhills region from the top of Mt. Coolidge before taking a half mile trek up to the Rankin fire tower for a group picture. On the way down the students met the majority of the Wind Cave herd coming in for an afternoon drink at the local watering hole.

After this the group then proceeded to Wind Cave National Park. Nine students and Mr. Sok then participated in a four hour spelunking tour of Wind Cave. Since this was Mr. Sok's 20th consecutive year at the cave, Ranger Jeri Fredericks allowed him to take the lead for most of the tour. The remaining two students visited Wind Cave via a scenic natural entrance tour with Mr. Tonniges. The afternoon/ evening concluded with a two hour swim at the historic Evan's Plunge site in north Hot Springs and a viewing of the Brownstone Architecture that dominated the historic town.

Wednesday morning began with a guided tour of the Mammoth Site on the south end of Hot Springs. The students were able to see several mammoth skeletons and a mockup of a primitive, native dwelling during their tour. Then it was off for a quick viewing of Cascade Falls south of Hot Springs.

After this it was time to leave the Blackhills and head back to Nebraska. The students had a guided tour of the Toadstool Park formations north of Crawford. This was followed up by another guided tour of the Hudson-Meng Bison Kill Site along with a hands on demonstration of how the prehistoric Americans used an atlatl (ancient hand held spear thrower). It was then time for a drive through of Chadron State College in nearby Chadron.

After a noon meal, the class headed east over to the North American Museum of Fur Trade for a video presentation and walk through tour/scavenger hunt of the historic fur trading post provided by the museum curators. The afternoon concluded with a tour of the Bowring Ranch north of Merriman and ranch meal by the ranch operator Diane Burress before heading off to Valentine.

The final day started out north and east of Valentine at the Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge. At the refuge, the class took a drive through of the main area and was able to locate a herd of about 15 elk. Following the drive through, ranger Steve Hicks gave a brief talk concerning bison genetics at the park and throughout the United States. After his discussion, the students went for a hike around the Ft. Falls area near the Niobrara River.

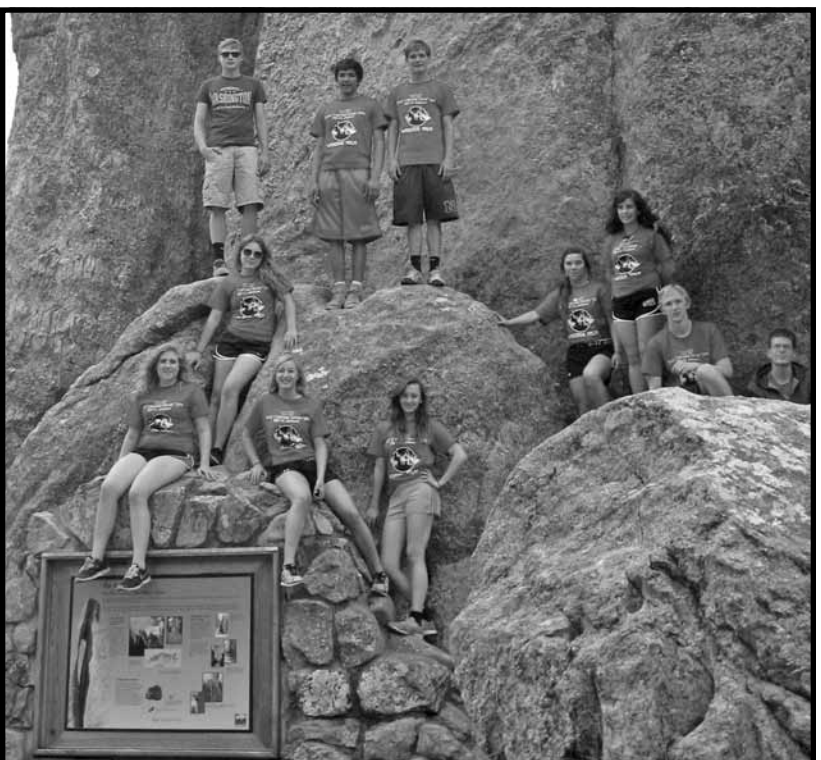

The Winside students then concluded the trip with a guided tour of the Ashfall Fossil Beds by Rick Otto. While at the "Rhino Barn" they had an opportunity to see a number of prehistoric rhino, horse, and dog fossils. They then had the opportunity to have a brief discussion with Dr. Voorhies (discoverer of the site) who was actively working the site.

This proved to be a great chance for Sophie Milenkovich to meet Dr. Voorhies again. They first met in 2005 when she was seven. Sophie and her sisters (Chelsey and Leslie) had found the first documented fossils in Wayne County at the time which were verified by Dr. Voorhies that summer.

"The group is especially thankful to Gardner Foundation of Wakefield which provided an $1800 educational grant and Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District centered in Norfolk for also awarding the group a $500 education scholarship, which funded the majority of the trip. A special "Thank You" to Warnemunde Insurance and the Winside State Bank for providing t-shirts commemorating the trip and to the Winside Board of Education and Administration for the use of the school vans," Sok said.

This is the 19th consecutive summer trip that Paul Sok has lead to the Blackhills and western Nebraska and the fourth for Mr. Tonniges.

Wayne Juniors hot, win three of four

The Wayne American Legion Juniors baseball team won three of four games this past week to improve to 12-6 on the season.

On Friday, the Juniors won a 12-inning thriller at Hank Overin Field, posting a 4-3 win over Battle Creek.

Wayne scored three runs in the first inning, but the visitors came back with two in the third and tied the game in the seventh to send it to extra innings.

Both teams had their chances to win in the extra frames, but Wayne finally finished it off in the bottom of the 12th when Zane Jackson drove home Payten Gamble with the winning run for the victory for Wayne.

Jackson pitched seven innings as the starter, allowing three hits and two walks while striking out four. Caden Korth got the win in relief with five scoreless innings, allowing two hits and a walk while striking out eight.

Adam Bentjen each had two hits to lead the way. Bentjen got the win with five solid innings, striking out six and allowing eight hits and four walks.

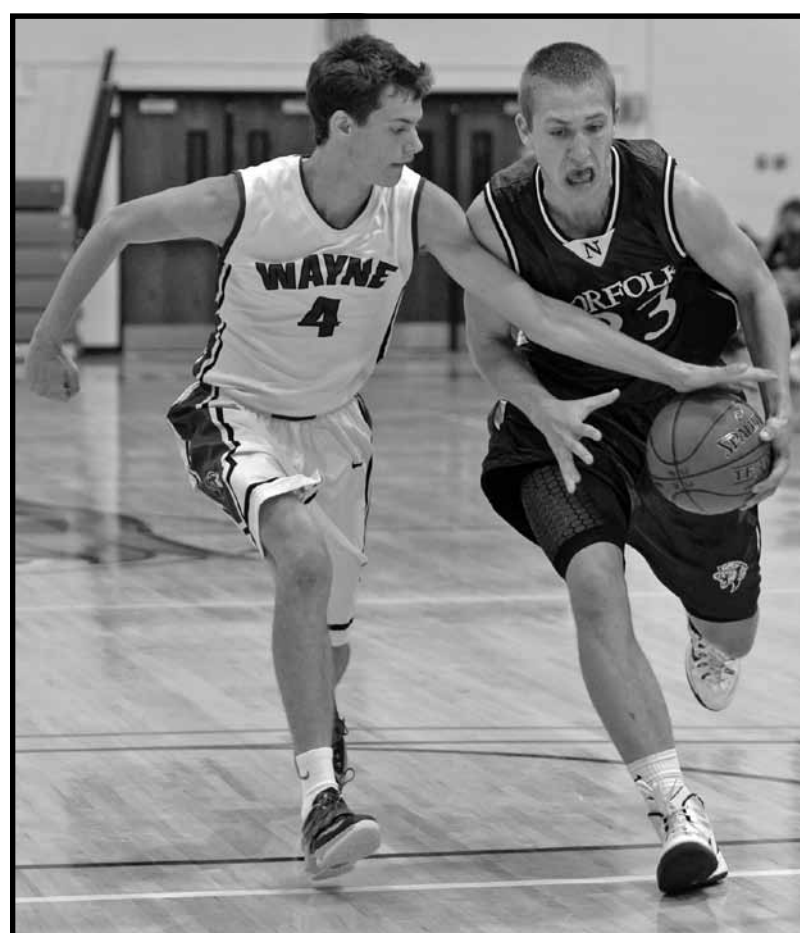

In the nightcap, Platteview scored five in the top of the first, but needed a run in the seventh to break an 8-8 tie to come away with the win. Wayne led 7-5 after a four-run fourth inning, but Platteview scored three in the sixth to retake the lead.

Mason Lee had two hits and a run scored for Wayne. Jackson and Michael Kniesche each scored twice, and Jackson and Ryan Jaixen both had two RBI's. Gamble pitched five innings, striking out five and allowing eight hits and three walks. Tyler Lutt took the loss after giving up a run in the seventh.

Student-athletes post solid scores in GPA's

Student-athletes at Wayne State College were once again a success in the classroom during the 2014-15 academic year, as the Wildcat athletic department saw all 11 teams record a team grade-point average over 3.0 for the 2015 spring semester.

The combined GPA for Wayne State athletics in the spring 2015 semester was 3.283, up from the fall 2014 semester numbers of 3.225. All 11 teams posted GPA's above 3.0, with 10 percent of Wayne State student-athletes achieving a 4.0 GPA.

"I can't say enough about the success our student-athletes have in the classroom," Wayne State Athletic Director Mike Powicki said. "I thoroughly enjoy seeing our teams compete and win, but seeing this kind of academic performance really makes me proud to be the athletic director at Wayne State College."

Overall, 26 of the 253 student-athletes had a perfect 4.0 grade point average during the spring semester while 69.5 percent (176 of 253) had at least a 3.0 GPA.

"It is proof that our staff and coaches take academics very seriously and work hard to make sure we position our student-athletes to be successful," Powicki said. "We are also very fortunate to have dedicated and talented faculty members who are willing to work with our student-athletes during their challenging competition and travel schedules. Ultimately, the credit goes to our Wildcat student-athletes who work extremely hard to make sure they are taking advantage of the opportunity they have at Wayne State."

Celebrating 125 Years

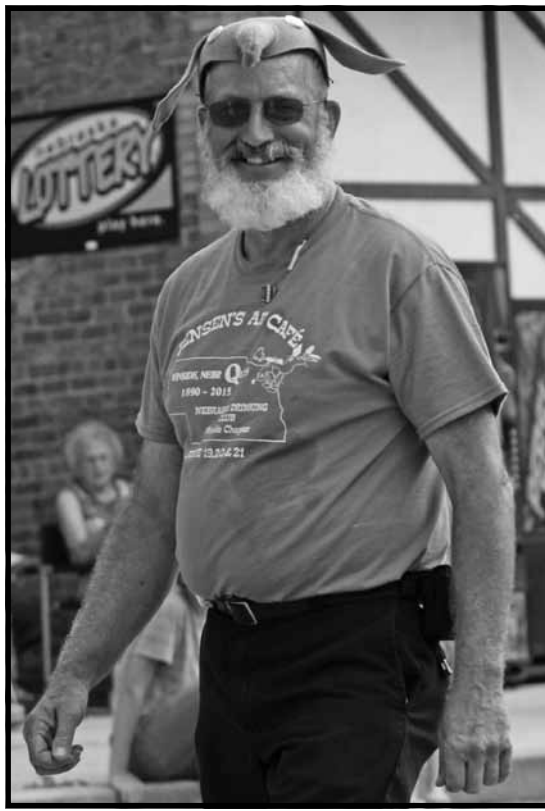

The ice cream and pie social was a cool diversion on a hot summer's day for those who enjoyed Winside's Q125 celebration over the weekend.

Rough Cut rocked the streets of Winside with their performance on Friday night.

Mick and Sue Topp's grandchildren were characters from the Wizard of Oz during the Kiddie Parade on Sunday.

Mrs. Nebraska, Erika Shelton, signs an autograph in the park Saturday afternoon.

Loretta Tejkl with Loretta's Custom Creations presented a wealth of information on vintage clothing during a style show on Sunday in the Winside Auditorium.

More than 100 runners sprinted from the starting line at Winside Public Schools early Saturday morning for the 5K Run and Fun Walk.

A good time was had in the Legion Club on Friday during the Winside Q125 pitch tournament.

A horse-drawn carriage on the parade route was a nod to the early days of the history of Winside, which was incorporated in 1890.

What's a parade without candy being thrown from floats, tractors and fire trucks on the parade route? Kids got more than their share during Saturday's parade in Winside.

The free barbecue on Saturday afternoon was as hot an event as the temperatures, which jumped into the 90's in downtown Winside.

Car enthusiasts were in heaven on Sunday as more than 100 vehicles were part of the Winside Q125 Car Show. The cars and pickups lined both sides of Main Street for several blocks.

Entries in the Q125 parade included fire trucks from several area communities and a miniature barn being pulled by this young man on a tractor.

Tractors of all sizes, colors and ages took part in the Tractor Parade in Winside on Sunday. The tractors ranged from those produced in the 1930's to present day. Many of them have been owned by local families for several generations and a number have been recently restored.

Don't get me started

Laughing at some 'news' of the day

We all need some time off – including me. So, before I go, here are some funny and/or slightly oddball odds and ends from somewhere near the back of the “Bits and Pieces” file:

– For those who have good musical taste, here is some potentially humorous (or exciting, depending on your political persuasion) information regarding fundraising for the Hillary Clinton campaign for the White House.

A benefit concert was being held this week in New Jersey, which included Tony Bennett, Bon Jovi and Lady Gaga. It was a pretty pricey show – tickets were running as high as $2,700 a seat.

I don't know about you, but it sounds like the campaign is getting pretty desperate if they're charging that much to see one of popular music's legends, a Rock and Roll Hall of Fame standout from the 80's, and some oddly-dressed female from the present-day era of what some refer to as “today's music.”

– And, for those who have no taste in music, but love their football, there's this note from Hollyweird (UCLA campus): wannabe musician/media mogul Sean Combs was arrested after getting into a fight with a member of the UCLA football coaching staff.

According to the report, Mr. Combs, also known as P. Diddy to the musically (if not intellectually) challenged, struck a coach with a kettlebell weight after an argument escalated between the two. The altercation came after a coach was yelling at Combs' son, a member of the UCLA football team, during a strength and conditioning session.

This is not Mr. Diddy – er, Combs' – first run-in with law enforcement. He was previously arrested for a weapons violation and a suspended driver's license.

– Of all the things I DON'T need my iPhone to keep track of, this might top the list: Apple is reporting that the next release of the iPhone operating system will have a new set of HealthKit features that will actually let you keep track of your sex life.

Yep – there will be a pre-installed app that will let you keep track of everything, from how often you have sex and how often you use contraceptives, to all those “lady” issues that us guys have absolutely no knowledge of (and, if we did, we wouldn't know what to do with it, so maybe it's just best we don't . . . can I paint this corner any tighter before we move on to another subject?).

– My granddaughter turned 3 months old on Tuesday, and she's already rolling over and grabbing balls, small toys and the remote control.

Is it too early to start the recruiting process? I'm seeing either a Gold Glove-winning second baseman or an LPGA Tour champion golfer. Will Chris Kielsmeier have need for a 5-foot-6 point guard with mad ball-handling skills and a nose for defense in his recruiting class in 2033?

The fact that I'm a proud grandfather with big dreams for my granddaughter isn't showing, is it???

– A lot of people who were watching the U.S. Open golf tournament over the weekend were trying to figure out if Jordan Spieth won the tournament or if Dustin Johnson choked when he three-putted from 12 feet away on the final hole.

Looking at how horrible the greens were on the course, my question would have been something along the lines of “Are the powers that be at the USGA drug-tested before they make significant decisions, such as awarding golf tournaments to courses whose greens aren't as, uh, smooth as the county roads west of Winside? (I fully expect to hear from Jim Rabe about this at the next county commissioners' meeting – and I hope he knows I'm kidding.)

– One more before I check out for a few days of R&R: Somebody explain to me how cheating during your career is less of a detriment to the game of baseball than betting on your team to win while you're still playing and/or managing in the game?

How does Alex Rodriguez, a known and admitted user of performance-enhancing drugs continue to be allowed to play the game while Pete Rose, who has admitted to betting on the game as a manager (and, as we have recently discovered, also as a player late in his career), is banished from the sport? I realize Rose committed these crimes against the sport as a manager, but it's insane that the all-time leader in hits – a record that will never be broken – is not allowed entry into the Hall of Fame based on his achievements as a player.

There are many reasons why I stopped caring about Major League Baseball after the 1994 owners lockout killed the World Series (something two World Wars, the Great Depression and even 9/11 couldn't pull off). The moon jobs working in Major League Baseball's upper-level management make the halls of Congress look like a mecca for intelligent thought and discussion.

Capitol View Best and worst of Legislature

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

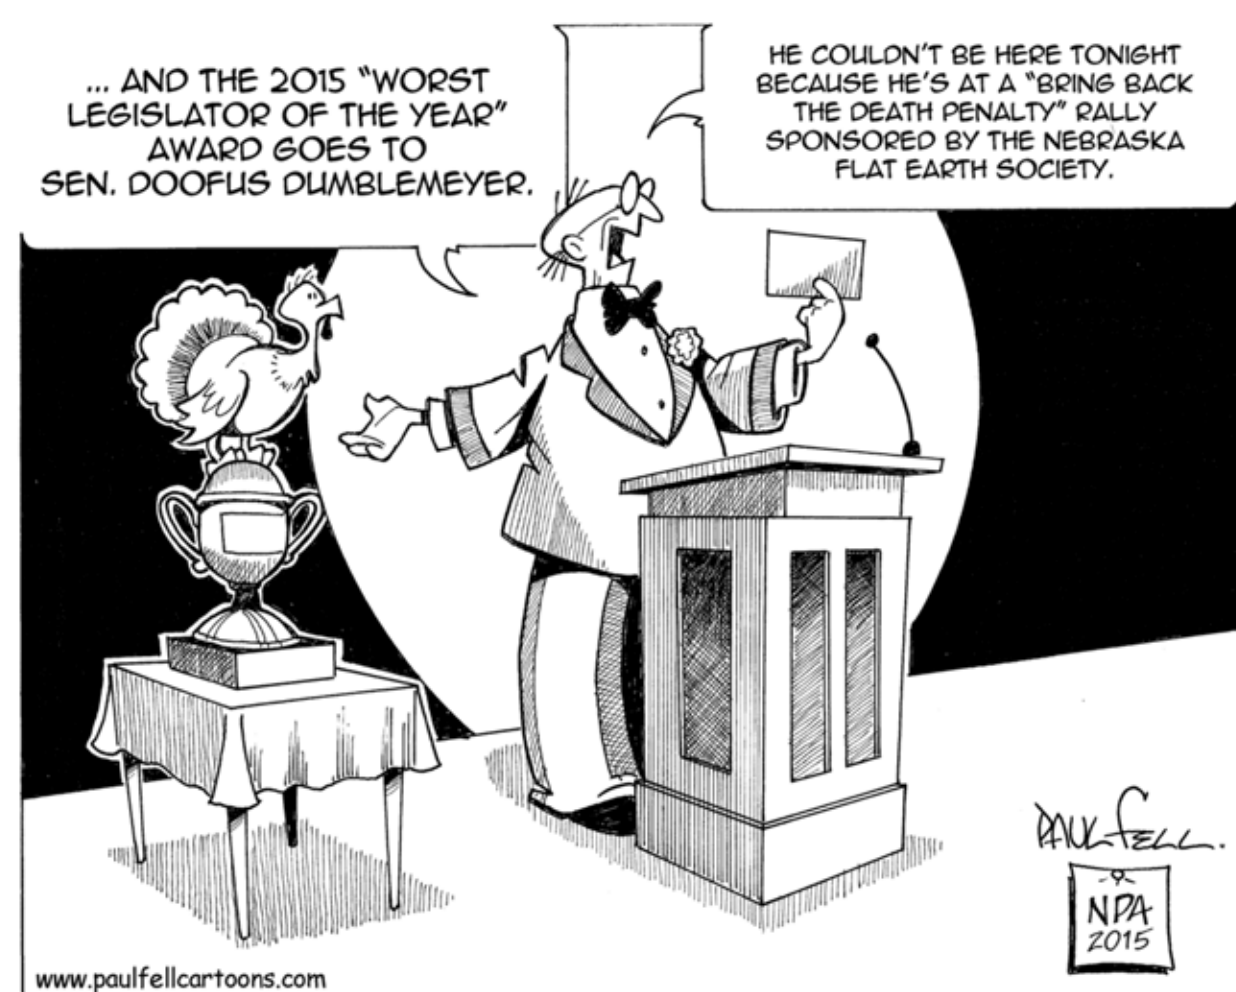

Being a state senator is, at best, a thankless job. The pay is lousy, the hours are long. Even though lawmakers meet in the most beautiful building in the state, things often get ugly. Colleagues often belittle and degrade each other as they mount their bully pulpit on matters of public policy.

The recently completed 104th Legislature – First Session – was contentious and the final two weeks were riveting. Reporters and lobbyists often play a game to pick the “best” and “worst” lawmakers of the session. Sadly, only a few stand out as the best. The worst has more contenders than the Republican presidential primary. And most of them lived up to the label by pitching fits and showing their true colors.

To their credit, lawmakers considered 664 bills. Of those, 243 were passed and signed by Governor Pete Ricketts. Five bills were vetoed and did not have override attempts. Compromises were in the works on a couple of those when the session ended May 29. Senators also crafted and passed a two-year budget that survived Ricketts' scrutiny.

Some say the defining moment of this Legislature was three veto overrides of major issues, which Ricketts had loudly – and often – lambasted. In case you have been under a rock – lucky you – and missed it, lawmakers overrode Ricketts' vetoes on: driver's licenses for the so-called dreamers, children of illegal immigrants; a hike in the gas tax to pay for much-needed road construction projects; and the death penalty.

A close second in the defining moment category would be the filibuster. It seemed like a daily occurrence as lawmakers pushed protracted debate to the limits to halt progress on certain bills. Among the victims were measures by Omaha Sen. Jeremy Nordquist to provide enhanced tax credits for wind energy and a bill to allow meat packers to own hogs (currently banned in Nebraska) sponsored by Sen. Ken Schilz of Ogallala. This seemingly independent bunch of renegades

even filibustered measures on second-round debate and final reading, two rarely seen practices.

For me, the defining moment of this Legislature came in the opening days when some tried to do the bidding of the state Republican Party and change the legislative rules to require that senators reveal their votes for committee chairs. The secret ballot has been a sacred practice for years and rightly so in an officially nonpartisan public body. But, the party has taken notice that there are 35 Republicans, 13 Democrats and one independent in the legislative body. Party leaders have openly complained that too many Democrats have been elected to head committees.

When the rules change failed by a wide margin, Sen. Bill Kintner of Papillion introduced a bill to do the same thing. It was killed. Striking out twice seemed to be more than the party leaders could handle and the tone of the session turned nasty. Kintner, whose wife is the director of Ricketts' policy research division, appeared as the ringleader. He was quickly joined by Sen. Mike Groene of North Platte and Ricketts' appointee Sen. David Schnoor of Scribner as the Senators Against Virtually Everything. Sens. Lydia Brasch of Bancroft and Beau McCoy of Elkhorn soon joined the club. The group used filibusters to inflict pain and impede progress. But, in the waning days of the session, their speeches intensified with name-calling and threats to work against the re-election of senators if they voted a certain way. What an embarrassment.

I haven't seen it this bad since an Omaha senator called a Lincoln senator a horse's ass during heated floor debate in the late 1980s. He was gavelled down by Lt. Governor Bill Nichol who was presiding at the time. But the mood lightened the next day and the session ended without incident. And nobody called for a massive change in the way the Legislature operates.

Now, some are calling for an end to the nonpartisan Unicameral. Some want to give Ricketts more power by requiring more than the 30 votes to override a veto. Some have talked of a two-house legislature. The parties – well at least the Republicans – want control. They want to make a unique and very effective system of government more political.

Give me a break. The rules of the sandbox have been clearly defined for years. If you must throw sand and cannot play well with others, get out! Keep your tantrums to yourself. Try something constructive for a change. Come up with some actual solutions to problems. Be adults.

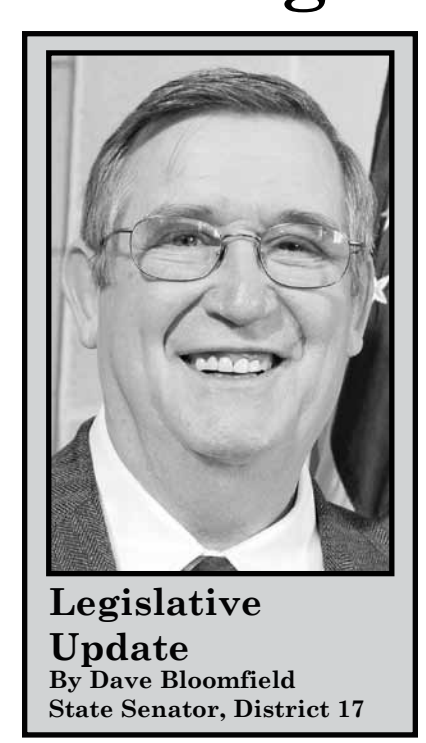

Legislative Update

Concerns about state college askings

There was a news article recently regarding tuition at the University of Nebraska campuses as well as the Nebraska State College System. It seems as though the tuition freeze is a thing of the past.

Former Governor Dave Heineman had struck a deal that had the university and the state colleges freezing tuition rates for the last few years. Last week the university announced that they would be increasing tuition this fall by 1.75 percent and 2.5 percent next year. The Nebraska State College System's board at its meeting in Wayne yesterday voted to increase tuition by 9 percent.

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

The state college system claims that this increase is needed in order to cover the costs of doing business – salaries, insurance, utilities, etc. The system had asked the Legislature for a 6.35 percent increase for this year to avoid a tuition increase and the Legislature gave the university and the state colleges each a 3 percent annual increase in each year of the two-year budget. 3 percent this year plus 3 percent the second year in this case would equal a little over 6 percent.

Here is what I find troubling. The state colleges asked for 6.35 percent increase to avoid a tuition increase – they got a 3 percent increase this year and next – they increased tuition 9 percent. The same day that they voted to increase tuition, they also voted to increase some key salaries. Chancellor Stan Carpenter will see a 9 percent increase moving his salary to $255,000; Peru State President Dan Hansen will get a 5 percent increase to $189,000; Chadron State President Randy Rhine will have a 7.5 percent increase to $184,000; and salary information was not yet available for Marysz Rames, who has been selected to be Wayne State's new president. While I am in support of keeping our schools strong, it does seem like they require a lot of money. As we struggle to find ways to decrease the tax burden on the people of Nebraska, it seems that we are treating some of the best paid people in the state pretty well at the taxpayers expense. This is the same idea that led me to vote no on the pay increase for the Supreme Court Justices.

Lifestyle

Youth-adult partnerships are vital

Youth can be active participants in school and community activities, especially if they receive mentoring and encouragement from adults. Youth are a resource that often times go untapped in a community. Youth who become engaged in their communities now will benefit the future of our communities.

What is a youth-adult partnership?

A youth-adult partnership is a joint effort—youth and adult working together to achieve common goals. Adults offer the knowledge they have on a topic and the youth are able to give fresh ideas, energy and enthusiasm to carry out the goal.

In this process youth gain . . .

- life skills such as leadership, planning, and teamwork

- a sense of belonging and being accountable and committed to their community

- civic awareness, the capacity to care for others, and a desire to change and improve the lives of others

- a sense of pride and the feeling of being needed and valued

- new respect and acceptance from adults.

In this process adults gain . . .

- first-hand information about the needs, concerns, and issues that pertain to youths

– the satisfaction of seeing youths willingly accept the services and messages of the relationship

- open and honest interactions and feedback about existing programs or services relating to youth

- access to new collaborators with fresh and innovative ideas, creativity, energy, and enthusiasm

- new perspectives on decision-making and community problem-solving, as responsibilities are shared with the partnering young person

- opportunities to foster active community members for the future.

In this process communities gain . . .

Chapter AZ of PEO meets June 16

Chapter AZ of P.E.O. met at the home of Gail McCorkindale on June 16.

Assisting hostesses were Jill Walling, Annette Rasmussen, and Joyce Reeg. A new member was initiated. President Monica Jensen conducted the business meeting. The Treasurer was instructed to pay any bills that may come in during the summer months when there will be no regular business meetings.

The program consisted of President Monica Jensen's report on the annual state convention which she attended in LaVista on June 5-8. She presented an interesting report of the activities of the meetings, noting many new policies and rules that will affect the Nebraska chapters in the year ahead. She noted especially the sharing of activities of the various chapters and brought back many ideas for the local chapter in the year ahead.

Monica brought back a book which lists all the current Nebraska chapters of P.E.O. This book is published by the state officers every 20 years and it will be interesting to see what other chapters in Nebraska are doing currently.

The next meeting of Chapter AZ will be in August, date yet to be determined, and will include the husbands of chapter members. The hosts for that meeting will be Carolyn and Dennis Linster, Susan Boust and George Burcum.

Overcome your fears and take a jump

I have a confession to make. I'm afraid of heights. I get that uneasy, queasy feeling in the pit of my stomach whenever I am looking down from the top of something tall.

A few summers ago we stayed on the 27th floor of a hotel with a floor-to-ceiling window the entire length of one wall. I loved the view as long as I was looking straight out and standing at least two feet away from the window. My kids, on the other hand, loved leaning against the window staring straight down. Sometimes my fear would get the best of me and I would tell them to back away from the window. Now, I knew intellectually that they weren't going to plummet to their deaths, but fear isn't always based in reality, is it? Someone once described fear as "False Evidence Appearing Real."

Do you know what is ironic? I love climbing things that are tall. I'll climb a tree. I'll hike up a mountain. I've been cliff diving and bungee jumping. I'm looking forward to zip-lining in the Smoky Mountains next week. And I would really love to go skydiving. I know, that doesn't seem right, does it? A man who is afraid of heights wants to jump out of airplanes and off of cliffs.

But there is a difference between falling and jumping. Ian Morgan Cron says, "A jump is about courage and faith, something the world is in short supply of these days. A fall is, well, a fall." My fear of heights is really a fear of falling. I don't want to fall. But courage is about facing that fear, standing on the edge, and jumping. And it's only in the jump that you experience the rush of adrenalin and the exhilaration of true living. And you can have the courage to jump because you have the faith that God won't let you fall; that He will catch you. "Cast your cares on the Lord and He will sustain you; He will never let the righteous fall" (Psalm 55:22). As John Ortberg says, "Never let the 'No' of fear trump the 'Yes' of faith."

So, from where do you need to jump? What fear do you need to face? Climb up the cliff, walk out to the edge, and jump.

Running for the cause

St. Mary's Catholic Church hosted a Bloody Mary Fun Run/Walk last week in an effort to raise funds for the playground located on church property. More than 50 runners and walkers of all ages took part in the event, which also included refreshments and fellowship. Among the donations for the playground was one from the Fr. Kearnes Council of the Knights of Columbus. Involved in a check presentation were members of the playground committee (left) Mollie Spieker, Theresa Kaup, Paul Fehringer with the Knights of Columbus, Amy Miller and Beth Lutter. The fundraising effort is ongoing with donations being accepted at the church.

Triennial convention elects new district president

The Rev. Richard Snow, senior pastor of St. John Lutheran Church in Battle Creek, was elected to his first term as president of the Nebraska District of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod by the delegates attending the 18th convention of the Nebraska District in Kearney, June 12-13.

Former District President Rev. Russ Sommerfeld has completed his fourth and final term due to term limits. Rev. Snow has previously served three terms as one of four District vice-presidents.

Named for a second term as vice-president, and his first term as first vice-president, was the Rev. Scott Porath, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church in Eagle.

Chosen for his first term as second vice-president was the Rev. Karl Ziegler of First Lutheran, Papillion.

Named third vice-president for his first term was the Rev. Craig Niemeier of Zion (Worms), St. Libory.

Chosen for his first term as fourth vice-president was the Rev. David Kuhfal of Grace Lutheran, Neligh and Trinity Lutheran, Elgin.

Crossing, Darla Rosendahl of Omaha, Marvin Swan of Grant, and Kent Warneke of Norfolk.

Board of Regents for Concordia University Nebraska, Seward are Rev. Eugene Gierke, Seward; Krista Barnhouse, Lincoln; Ryan Burger, Lincoln; and Andrew Stadler, Columbus.

The 332 voting delegates, composed of a pastor and one lay person from congregations in the Nebraska District, were joined by 97 advisory delegates, generally teachers and other pastors serving in the District, and 112 guests and staff members, for a total of 541 attending the triennial convention at the Younes Conference Center in Kearney.

The delegates, under the convention theme of "In the World, Not of the World," based on John 17:15-18, devoted considerable time to worship, study of the Word, education and prayer.

The convention was opened with a worship service including communion, and with the Rev. Nabil Nour, Fifth Vice President of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, delivering the sermon the sermon. Rev. Nour encouraged those attending to "Consider the privilege God give us: we know that the Father, Son and Holy Spirit has claimed us as family. Do you know who you are? You are sons and daughters, purchased with His blood. We are treasured possessions because we belong to His Son, Jesus."

The Rev. Dr. Brent Smith, Executive Director of Mission Development for the LCMS South-eastern District, led keynote presentations during the convention. He spoke to the Convention attendees and commended they look beyond appearances and statistics to reach out to everyone around them, as all are in need of the Good News. He shared statistics about the demographics within the state of Nebraska, showing many pockets where the sharing of Word and Sacrament is desperately needed. "Go in peace, serving Jesus. God will cause the growth."

Rev. Matthew Harrison, president of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, also spoke to the delegates during his time in Kearney, taking time to address questions presented to him by delegates in attendance.

The Nebraska District of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod has its headquarters in Seward, with over 107,7000 baptized members in 247 congregations and with 35 preschools, 38 elementary schools and four high schools in the state of Nebraska.

The Nebraska District Office of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod serves the congregations, church workers and laity in Nebraska, offering resources and support as they go about their mission to reach all people with Good News of Jesus.

The 4-H Horse Program is an educational program designed to encourage 4-H members to learn about equine science, care, management and career opportunities related to horses. Youth increase their knowledge of safety precautions needed to prevent injury to themselves, others and their mounts. Learn skills in horsemanship and an understanding of the business of breeding, raising and training horses. They experience the pride of owning a horse or pony and become responsible for its management. Horse competitions teach good sportsmanship through a friendly, competitive atmosphere while developing leadership abilities, building character and assuming citizenship responsibilities. These events also promote future horse industry development and expansion while promoting a greater love for animals and a humane attitude towards them.

SEWER CLEANING NOTICE — June-July 2015
 During the next two to three weeks, the City of Wayne Sewer Department will be having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the City. The majority of the sewer cleaning will take place in the area between 1st and 2nd Street between Douglas and Sherman, Pine Heights from 8th to 10th Street, north of Claycomb Road, Providence Road going north, and the entire Sunnyview area.
 In this process, high pressure water is forced through the sewer pipe to clean it. This pushes solid materials to the manholes so they can be removed by vacuuming. This entire process is necessary to keep obstructions out of the sewer system and insure proper drainage of waste.
 Residents should be aware that when this process is done, the high pressure water pushes the air in the sewer line which occasionally enters the private sewer lines into homes and businesses. If this happens, it can result in the air exiting through the toilet bowl, shooting the water out of the toilet bowl. This air should exit through the sewer vent of the building, but inadequate venting or location of toilets can cause the air to exit through the toilet.
 This is a rare occurrence and keeping the lid closed on the toilet during this time will keep most of the water in the bowl rather than the floor.
 If you have any questions about the sewer cleaning process or the areas the sewer main cleaning will take place, you can call the Wastewater Treatment Plant at 375-5250 or City Hall at 375-1733.
Thank you — Jeff Brady, Water/Wastewater Foreman

Mosquito management critical during summer months

Wet weather and standing water equals many mosquitoes. With West Nile Virus and other disease concerns, mosquito management in and near landscapes and avoiding mosquito bites is important.

Where there is standing water that cannot be drained or emptied, such as ditches, low areas or stock tanks, larval development can be reduced with the bacterial agent, Bacillus thuringiensis israelensis (Bti).

Bti is specific to mosquito larvae and certain other semi-aquatic flies, but is safe for birds, fish, mammals, and other organisms. Birds can safely drink water from bird baths treated with Bti. These microbial insecticides, such as Bactimos™ and Vectobac, are typically available as briquets or granules.

The insect growth regulator, methoprene, is also available in briquette or granular form. It kills mosquito larvae by interfering with their development but has no effect on pupae or adults.

Such products are available in hardware stores, garden centers, and farm supply and home improvement stores. Once moistened, the active ingredient is gradually released and can be effective for up to 30 days.

An important practice around the home is reducing standing water in children's wading pools, rain barrels, birdbaths, flower pot bases, clogged gutters, pails, and discarded containers. Anything that can trap and hold water should be removed, turned upside down, or emptied at least once a week.

If an outdoor gathering is planned, adult mosquitoes can be reduced by spraying the lawn and surrounding shrubbery or flower beds with a labeled insecticide such as bifenthrin, permethrin, or cyfluthrin. These treatments only last a few days, but are helpful if applied a few hours before needed.

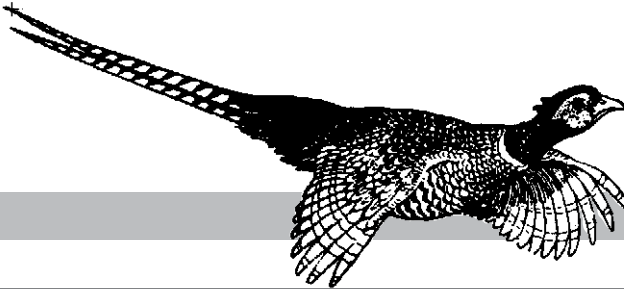

Applying insecticides throughout the landscape is only recommended prior to gatherings to avoid unnecessary harm to pollinators. For temporary relief in outdoor areas, aerosol foggers containing pyrethrins, esfenvalerate, and permethrin are helpful for immediate knock-down of adult mosquitoes.

When possible, avoid being outdoors at dusk or after dark when mosquitoes are most active. Protect yourself when outdoors. Wear long-sleeved shirts and full-length pants. Use personal repellents to prevent being bitten.

The Center for Disease Control recommends products containing one of four active ingredients which are DEET, picaridin, oil of lemon eucalyptus and IR3535. These active ingredients are registered by the EPA and have been approved for effectiveness and human safety when applied according to label directions.

Bug zappers are not effective in controlling mosquitoes. They are not selective for mosquitoes and kill beneficial insects as well. Mosquitoes make up less than one percent of insects killed by these devices.

High frequency ultrasonic devices are advertised to repel mosquitoes. Studies show these do not

Days filled with baseball, celebrations, anniversaries

I think summer has finally arrived! And I'm going to try not to complain about heat because I've been waiting for it. It was hard to pass up the celebration in Winside this past weekend; I HATE to miss a reunion or a celebration! It's one of the hazards of old age, I guess.

And it looks like the Vanderbilt baseball team is going to claim the College World Series for a back to back championship. AND, the Oakland, CA, team beat LeBron for the NBA championship!

Cousin Dennis from Arizona is in town today, so patronized the Runza place for lunch and joined us here for Val's pizza this eve. Now, he can return home in peace, since he always has to have a taste of both when in Nebraska. I forgot to ask him if he's partial to Dorothy Lynch.

All I've done this month is send golden wedding anniversary cards! There must have been hundreds of couples who got married in June fifty years ago. And that's all good, of course; and have you noticed how many sixty year celebrations are taking place? What a blessing to be able to be married that long and be able to observe it.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

My friend, Steve, who avoided matrimony until he was 32, told me today that young people are marrying too young, which is contributing to too many divorces. Well, that may be the case now, but I'm pretty sure most of those couples I sent cards to were in their early twenties when they tied those knots.

I'm also pretty sure it's not a matter of age, but of commitment. And I'm observing a lack of commitment today, not just in marriage, but in organizations, in churches, and even in jobs. A friend in the home health office tells me the new employees are not willing to work overtime on a busy day, or volunteer for an extra shift on call, or to just generally "pick up the slack." There is a certain sense of entitlement, and it's hard to counter.

So, what to do? I don't know, but it made for interesting conversation, since he's a hard core Democrat and I tend to lean to the Conservative side! We did agree it's not a problem Government can solve. Too bad!

Cream of the Crop

Landen and Courtney Roeber were part of the Cream of the Crop Dairy Show at the Cumming County Fairgrounds in West Point. The Nebraska Junior Dairy Association sponsored the event, which was held June 7. Landen's Crossbred & Holstein calves each were purple ribbon winners, and he made the championship round with both. Courtney also received a first place purple ribbon with her crossbred calf. Courtney beat out her brother for Grand Champion Crossbred Heifer, which Landen won last year. The two are children of Kyle and Jill Roeber of Carroll.

Time to spray weeds, harvest alfalfa

Most farmers are in the field spraying for weeds now and with good reason. Research data from UNL Haskell Ag Lab Weed Scientist Dr. Steve Knezevic and his colleagues indicate that yield losses due to competition may already be occurring in soybeans and will be aggravated if growers don't eliminate these undesired plants from their fields in the near future. Therefore, weed control should be on the top priority of growers "to-do" list.

Post emergence herbicides, such as glyphosate in Roundup Ready soybeans (Group 9), ALS-inhibitors (Group 2), PPO inhibitors (Group 14), and Liberty (Group 10) in Liberty Link soybeans, are now the main options for weed control. In fields where glyphosate resistance is a problem, rescue herbicides, such as Cobra and Flexstar (Group 14), should be included at this point in tank-mixes. These rescue herbicides should preferably be applied to weeds smaller than 4 inches tall.

In fields where Roundup Ready volunteer corn is present, ACCase-inhibitors (Group 1), such as Select Max and Post Plus, should also be considered.

Keep in mind that the use of multiple effective herbicides will result in excellent weed control and assist growers in the fight against herbicide-resistant weeds.

For more information on post emergence herbicide options to control established weeds, check cropwatch.unl.edu and the UNL Guide for Weed Management in Nebraska.

Rained-on hay is always difficult to manage, but this year maybe more than usual in some areas. The "windrow disease" that often follows presents lingering problems.

Windrow disease (the name given by Dr. Bruce Anderson, UNL Forage Specialist) refers to the striped appearance in fields where alfalfa windrows remained so long that regrowth was delayed. It is usually due to rained-on hay and sometimes, insects.

Windrow disease presents special challenges. Weeds often invade, requiring spraying to maintain quality and protect stands. During the next growth period, plants that were not smothered regrow rapidly, while plants underneath the windrow suffer delays. Part of the field often will begin to bloom while windrow-stressed plants are still short and tender.

This brings harvest timing into question: Should you cut when the first plants begin to bloom or wait until injured plants are ready?

Two factors can help guide your decision — the health and vigor of your stand and the nutrient needs of your livestock. For example, is your alfalfa healthy and regrowing well? If not, wait to cut until stunted plants begin to bloom so you can avoid weakening them even more. But, if your alfalfa is in good shape, cut when it will best meet the needs of your animals. Dairy cows need alfalfa that is cut early, so harvest when the first plants begin to bloom. Regrowth of injured plants may be slow after cutting, but this sacrifice is needed for profitable milk production. Beef cows, though, do not need such rich hay. In this case let stunted plants recover, and then cut when they are ready to bloom.

By next cut, it's hoped growth will be more uniform, plants healthy, and production back to normal.

Mosquito

deter female mosquitoes from biting and mosquitoes do not flee from the sound.

Mosquito traps that use propane to generate carbon dioxide and attractants such as octenol to draw and capture mosquitoes are available. Generally these devices are costly to purchase and maintain for the benefit received. They work best to draw mosquitoes away from an area. While they may perform well, they may not be sufficient when mosquito numbers are high.

Keep your home mosquito-free by checking doors, windows, and window screens to ensure they are in good repair. Reduce outdoor lighting to minimize attracting mosquitoes. Keeping porch lights off when not needed and replacing white light bulbs with yellow ones is helpful.

Nebraska Forest Service offers assistance for woody biomass heating

Seasonal heating costs can be unpredictable for the 325-plus Nebraska nursery greenhouse operations with enclosed plant-growing structures. With that in mind, the Nebraska Forest Service is promoting woody biomass heating as an eco-friendly, cost-effective alternative to fossil fuels that is both eco-friendly and cost-effective. Offering technical and financial assistance through the TREES Heat Nebraska program, NFS is working with facilities to explore wood heating opportunities.

This renewable energy option uses woodchips, wood pellets or cordwood to produce hot water that is piped to structures and used to create hot air. "Woody biomass heating lowers operating costs, uses locally available wood fuel and stimulates local economic growth and job development," said Adam Smith, NFS forest products utilization team leader. "Wood heating systems can provide significant savings by lowering fuel costs compared to fossil fuels such as propane."

Papio Valley Nursery Inc., was the first greenhouse operation to seek NFS assistance through the TREES Heat Nebraska program in fall 2014.

"As we were interacting with landscaping firms and tree care companies, we saw a lot of wood material being wasted after tree removals or pruning jobs," said Alan Weiss, president of the Papillon nursery. "The increasing costs of heating with propane caused us to begin looking at other heating options, and heating with wood made the most sense given the amount of wood material available as a potential fuel source."

A feasibility study completed in October 2014 showed evidence of significant annual heating cost savings. The business is working to secure final funding for the construction of the wood heating system.

"We are excited to be involved in this program," Weiss said. "We hope to serve as an example for other greenhouse operations in the state to demonstrate this opportunity."

Greenhouse operations can benefit from this heating option by taking advantage of financial assistance in the form of grants and loan guarantees available through three key programs: TREES Heat Nebraska (THN) through NFS Rural Energy for American Program (REAP) through USDA-Rural Development Dollar and Energy Savings Program through Nebraska Energy Office (NEO)

In addition, NFS provides technical assistance by working with greenhouse operations to consider all expenses related to wood heating, including calculating the potential savings of converting to a woody biomass heating system.

For more information about how wood heat can work for a greenhouse operation, contact Adam Smith with the Nebraska Forest Service at 402-472-1276 or go to <http://go.unl.edu/znpe>.

The Nebraska Forest Service, an affiliate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, provides education and services to Nebraskans covering all aspects of planting, protection, care and utilization of the state's forest and tree resources.

Citizen's State Bank drove "this little piggy" through the parade.

An old fire truck represented the town of Coleridge in the parade.

Children, as well as adults, drove entries through the parade route.

Members of the class of 1965 were on hand to ride in the parade and attend the alumni banquet held Saturday evening.

The ball toss was one of the favorite games that the youth enjoyed at the City Park.

Megan (Sohler) Egger and her son, Rhett, enjoy playing on the swings at the Park on Saturday.

One of the most popular events was the inflatable slide which many kids stood in line to enjoy.

A parade is not complete without horses. Members of a local saddle club make their way through the parade route.

The Village of Belden had an entry in the parade. They will be celebrating their Q-125 in August.
