Governor visits Wayne for town hall event

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The vehicle carrying Nebraska Gov. Pete Ricketts had to maneuver around construction near Elkhorn Valley Bank & Trust on Friday afternoon, slightly delaying the governor's arrival in Wayne as part of a series of town hall meetings in northeast Nebraska.

Ricketts had been in South Sioux City earlier in the day and was flying from Wayne to a similar town hall meeting in Laurel, part of a listening tour to keep Nebraskans up on some of what is going on in their state government in Lincoln and hearing from constituents on a variety of issues.

Ricketts focused on business, unemployment, education, taxes, the death penalty and the state's correction system during the hour-long meeting in Wayne.

One of the biggest challenges Ricketts is hearing from employers is the lack of job applicants.

"I've talked with companies across the state, and they tell me they can't find skilled labor," he said.

Ricketts said he wants to develop a program that would work with the private sector to help schools develop industrial arts programs that have either been cut back or eliminated at schools across the state. Through this initiative, businesses would be able to work with school districts to develop curriculum, hire high school students to work part-time, offer education benefits and then hire those students on a full-time basis once they complete their post-secondary training.

"We could create a pipeline for those kids," Ricketts said, adding that he'd like to see industrial arts programs developed beginning at the junior high level.

Questions about expansion of Highway 275 were addressed at the meeting. Ricketts said that extending the freeway all the way to Norfolk is something that he wants to take a look at.

"With my drive here from Omaha, I certainly feel your pain," he said, drawing laughs from the reporter-estimated crowd of 60 local residents who attended the meeting.

Ricketts said he is working with the Four Lanes For Nebraska group to put together a model for finishing the freeway, and is developing relationships with federal officials and officials from other states to come up with ideas to help speed up construction of some of the long-standing freeway plans like Highway 275.

Ricketts also addressed questions about state aid for schools. Wayne Community Schools is among a majority of school districts in the state of Nebraska that are not receiving any financial aid from the state.

"When the school aid formula was created back in the 1990's, it never anticipated that land valuations would rise as fast and as quick as they have, so now we're seeing more than half of the school districts aren't being equalized," Ricketts told those in attendance. "The revenue and education committees in the Legislature are meeting to talk about and work to adjust the school aid formula, and I want to talk with constituents and state senators more about this and see what we can do."

Ricketts' visit to Wayne was part of a day-long series of town hall meetings that included stops in South Sioux City and Laurel.

'Skychick' drops in on Wayne's airport

Low fuel price draws pilot to town, kudos for town's offerings

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Wayne's Stan Morris Airport is getting quite a reputation, not only for its friendly service, but for offering the best price for air fuel in the region.

So when a pilot known as "Skychick" saw that the Wayne airport's fuel prices were at least a dollar per gallon lower than anywhere else in the area, it proved to be a real sight for sore eyes.

"It was getting late and I was getting tired, and I saw that you guys have the best gas around," Ramona Cox, better known as "Skychick" to those who have seen and read her work, said as she prepared to take off from Wayne's airport late Tuesday morning.

Cox and her travel partner, Dave Wood, were heading home from the annual AirVenture convention in Oshkosh, Wis. late Monday afternoon. A long week of speeches and presentations, and some challenging weather conditions, led to the duo deciding to touch down in Wayne, America and get a good night's rest.

Cox annually presents programs on one of her favorite pastimes - air camping. She flies to remote locations and camps in wilderness areas that aren't accessible by four-wheel vehicles.

Local street construction picking up

By LAURA ANDERSON
Of The Herald

Residents may have noticed the spray paint lines that have dotted the street as Steve Harris Construction is prepping to give Windom Street a much-needed facelift.

Windom Street is being widened by three feet (one and a half feet on each side.) A new water main and storm water system is being put in as well.

"The street doesn't drain very well in several places, and that was a bit of a driving factor for this project," Joel Hansen, street superintendent, said.

The reconstruction will be broken into two phases. The first part will begin south of Fourth Street and is scheduled to take about six weeks. The second half is set to take about eight weeks.

At the same time the first phase of the street project is being completed, Hank Overin Field will have a new grandstand built. Hansen urges the public to avoid the construction zone so people don't get hurt.

"Fourth Street is to remain as open as possible at this time," Hansen said.

The construction is expected to take about 3 1/2 months. It will be an ongoing project when Wayne State College starts the fall semester, and is scheduled to finish before winter sets in.

Prior to the start of construction, a meeting was held at the City Auditorium for Windom Street residents, City of Wayne officials and the contractor to voice concerns about the construction or ask questions.

"It will be an inconvenience to people who

Collaborative Programming planned by Wayne library, senior center

"The dog days of summer will prove to be 'out of the ordinary' each Tuesday in August at the Wayne Senior Center," said Rita McLean, adult services librarian.

"The theme of adult summer reading is 'Escape the Ordinary', thus we are inviting anyone in our area to come share the oddest thing they can find. It could be an item of clothing or costume, memorabilia, a rare old item, antique they possess, a potato that looks like George Washington, or a piece of crazy jewelry. We are excited to share out of the ordinary Tuesdays with the Senior Center," McLean said.

The staff is asking anyone who has a treasure or rare item to call the Library at (402) 375-3135 or Senior Center at (402) 375-1460 and reserve a time slot either on Aug. 4, 11, 18, or 25. The weekly programs will start at 12:45. Five people may sign up on each Tuesday and have approximately 5-7 minutes to share their story.

"Of course there will be time for interaction and mingling with the audience after the initial presentations to answer any questions that may arise," McLean said.

Presenters can be of any age; children, a family, teens, perhaps even a local business or farmer may have an unusual story or tool or implement to share.

"Dig into your family treasure chest and wow us with your story," McLean encouraged. "We can have our own little 'Antique Road Show.'"

The weekly programs are free and open to the public. Reservations can be made to enjoy the Senior Center meal that is served at noon. Reservations for the meals must be made by the Monday before each program.

Call the senior center at (402) 375-1460 for details.

A group of youth taking part in the Advanced Leadership Workshop posed for a photo following their work clearing a brush pile near Wayne High School last week.

Leadership workshop brings students to Wayne

For the past three decades, hundreds of high school students from across Nebraska have spent one week of their summer on Wayne State College campus.

A group of these students spent last week in Wayne completing a number of community service projects in several locations.

These students have participated in a summer leadership workshop hosted by Launch Leadership, a volunteer organization dedicated to empowering Nebraska youth. This year, delegates in the Advanced Leadership Workshop (ALW) participated in three service projects in Wayne to give back to their host community. On July 22 a group of 40 rising high school seniors and eight Launch Staffers participated in more than 80 hours of community service around Wayne.

The students volunteered at three different locations. One group of students partnered with the Wayne Parks and Recreation Department to clear brush and lay down a wood chip path near the high school. Another group packed over 700 backpacks at the Wayne Food Pantry. The remaining students spent time with residents at Brookdale Wayne.

"The students were thrilled to be able to give back, and Launch is excited about its growing partnership with the Wayne community," said Sophie Ibrahim, a volunteer with the Launch Leadership workshop.

The Summer Leadership Workshop is a five-day, four-night leadership immersion experience for students entering grades 6-12. The goal is for the students to discover new ways to become leaders and make a positive impact in their schools and communities.

Surber training at PMC

Scot Surber, a Concord native, is in his last year of pharmacy training at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha. He is currently in his advanced pharmacy practice experience at Providence Medical Center (PMC) through the end of this month. Providence's pharmacist, Kim Bentjen (right), has been educating pharmacy students for 20 years and likes to have local students come back and spend time practicing in the community. "Providence Medical Center has so much to offer in the diversity of patients we see and the interdisciplinary involvement pharmacy has with the patient care team," she said. Surber has a BS degree in Nutrition, Exercise and Health Science from UNL and in May of 2016 he will graduate with his Doctor of Pharmacy degree from UNMC.

NDEQ awards $2.26 million in recycling grants

Nebraska Department of Environmental Quality Director Jim Macy has announced the awarding of $2,257,791 in grants through the Waste Reduction and Recycling Incentive Grant Fund.

Among the grant recipients is the City of Wayne, which received $4,415 to hold an electronics collection event.

The Waste Reduction and Recycling Incentive Grant Fund is generated by a fee on solid waste disposed of in landfills, an annual retail business sales fee, and a fee assessed on the sale of new tires for motor vehicles. The grants are provided to local integrated waste management projects including: recycling systems, household hazardous waste collection programs, transfer stations, and yard waste composting.

Tire fee grants totaling $2.01 million for projects related to tire recycling were previously announced in June.

UNMC Chancellor Dr. Jeffrey Gold (center) visits with James Frank, CEO of Providence Medical Center during his visit to Wayne last week.

Statewide tour for new UNMC Chancellor includes stop in Wayne

By CLARA OSTEN
Of the Herald

University of Nebraska Medical Center Chancellor Jeffrey P. Gold, M.D. made a stop in Wayne on Wednesday to visit with administrators and faculty at Wayne State College and administrators at Providence Medical Center. Chancellor Gold made a two-day trip to northeast Nebraska and made stops at West Point, Norfolk and Winnebago before coming to Wayne. "This trip is one more opportunity for me to criss-cross the state, tour hospitals and colleges and most importantly, to listen to people and find out the needs of each community," Dr. Gold said. Dr. Gold, Bob Bartee, Vice Chancellor for External Affairs, Rick Boldt, Manager of Disaster Planning and Bill O'Neill, Director of Public Relations, met with Wayne State College President Dr. Marysz Rames and a number of faculty members at the college and listened to their concerns and suggestions in regard to getting more students interested and involved with careers in the medical field. "My fundamental objective is to listen and find out what the health care needs and the college needs in our state. I also want to determine what are we going to do about the future and what needs to be in our plan," Dr. Gold said. "Our needs currently need to focus around work force. We need more nurses, pharmacists and therapists. The need varies from trip to trip and region to region," he said. Following his stop at WSC, Dr. Gold made a stop at Providence Medical Center to tour the facility and gather information on the needs of the hospital. He then had lunch with PMC CEO James Frank and several staff members of the hospital and again listened to concerns and needs of the medical community. "These trips across the state allow me to build relationships and meet face to face with those we serve," Gold said. "The economic impact of UNMC and Nebraska Medicine in rural communities throughout the state totals $210 million annually and supports employment for 1,400 Nebraskans. UNMC strives to provide the highest quality healthcare services, ensure that rural hospitals are a viable part of the broader healthcare delivery system and educate and train the healthcare workforce in Nebraska," he added.

to remote places that have no road access," the Hermosa Beach, Calif., native said. "You can get to more remote places in an airplane than you ever can in a car." Cox has been flying for more than 25 years, getting the bug when she was competing as a snow skier. "I wanted to get to the mountain faster and I come from a flying family, so that's how I got started," she said. Before long, she was getting involved in a variety of outdoor activities, and has become one of the foremost experts in bush- and back-country-flying trips all over the northwestern part of the United States. She has been a fixture at the Air-Venture convention in Wisconsin every year, and was teamed up this year with Honda's line of portable generators, giving away a Honda 1000 generator during her most recent trip to the convention. "I travel with one, because most of the places that I go, there is no power whatsoever," she said. "I give lectures at Oshkosh every year on how to fly safely and talk about some of the best gear and airplanes to fly in the bush and back country." Cox said that flying in remote areas, as she does, requires a lot of practice and a lot of patience, taking off from and landing on surfaces that are nowhere near as smooth as the pavement surface at Stan Morris Airport. "You really need to know how to handle a plane," she said. "Some of the landing strips are like a golf course, and others are much more challenging, beat up strips."

The stop in Wayne proved to be a great opportunity to relax in a small-town setting, and Cox said she and Wood – who helps out with photography and other show-related activities – had a great time during their short stay in Wayne. "We spent the night at the Cobblestone and had dinner at a great Mexican restaurant and it was just fantastic," she said. "The people here were very helpful and let us use a car to go into town and get settled in for the night. This is a nice place to stop and relax and get some good food." Oh – and the cheap gas. "You guys have some smoking hot prices on gas, and that's something a lot of pilots look at when they're looking to land somewhere," she said. "I'm definitely going to recommend Wayne to my fellow pilots."

don't have access to an alley," Wayne City Administrator Lowell Johnson said. During this time, the 12-5 a.m. parking ban will not be enforced, so homeowners whose access to their driveway is cordoned off due to renovations, have a place to park.

Currently, a chunk of Windom Street between Ninth and Tenth streets is being redone while the Wreidt storm sewer is replaced. Twenty percent of the project is being paid for by the City of Wayne and the other 80 percent is coming from federal funds. The City Council approves and budgets for new projects, like street reconstruction or repainting the water tower, every February. The city has a one- and six-year plan for fixing streets and it is based on priority. The next project scheduled will be the work on the intersection of Third and Sherman streets located by Wayne Elementary School.

Wakefield Seniors' hopes slip away

From The Bleachers

Michael Carnes

Annnnd . . . we are back

Well, that was a fast six-week vacation.

The Bleacher Bum took some time away from his cushy seat in the back row this summer, but now that softball has put away the bats and the final out of baseball season has been called, I guess it's time to start getting down to business.

It seems strange to say this in late July, but we're less than two weeks away from the first day of two-a-days for football, softball and girls golf on the high school front. Volleyball, cross country and Wayne State two-a-days kick into gear the week after that.

So much for summer, eh? Since the home front is a little quiet right now, how about a few thoughts of what's been going on outside the area . . . an "Around The World In A Month Or So" version of the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- What an inspirational story to see the United States women's soccer team finally win the Women's World Cup, taking the title for the first time since the legendary 1999 squad won it on penalty kicks over China.

If you missed the first five minutes of this year's championship against Japan, you literally missed the important part of the match. The United States scored twice in the first five minutes and were up 4-0 not less than 20 minutes into the game before throwing it into cruise control for a 5-2 win over the same Japanese team that beat them on PK's in the 2011 Women's World Cup.

This was a fun team to watch throughout the tournament (yes, I actually WATCH soccer) and it will be interesting to see if the American side can keep that momentum rolling through next year's Olympics in Brazil.

- I guess that World Series run the Kansas City Royals made last year wasn't a fluke after all.

The Royals became the first team this season to hit the 60-win plateau, and with some of the recent trades they've made, it looks like they're serious about taking that last step to the top, a spot they haven't reached since 1985 when George Brett, Brett Saberhagen and the rest of the gang beat St. Louis in an epic seven-game "Interstate 70" final.

The way the Cardinals are rolling through the National League right now, a repeat of that classic from 30 years ago may be on the horizon. I have friends who are passionate, devoted fans of both teams - maybe I should get them together and see how that turns out.

- Deflategate's next chapter looks to be headed to the court system after the NFL upheld Tom Brady's four-game suspension handed down by the commissioner (who, strangely enough, decided on the appeal as well).

I know some will say that I'm still bitter about the end of Super Bowl XLIX, and that's not the case. Having said that, and considering the New England Patriots' past transgressions in breaking NFL rules - if it looks like a skunk, walks like a skunk and smells like a skunk . . .

- Speaking of the end of last year's Super Bowl, let me say this to all the anti-Seahawk fans in the listening audience: the jokes about running vs. passing cease to be funny the first Sunday of the season. And you can bet that the smack cannon will be loaded and used loud and long in the coming offseason if Seattle wins Super Bowl L.

- The Super Bowl has actually reached a single Roman numeral. I was eight months old for 'I', too young to remember seeing 'V', and just old enough for 'X' to realize how much I hate the Dallas Cowboys.

Oh, and in case you're wondering who to pick for Super Bowl L - a computer geek at Harvard has Miami vs. Seattle.

- What? Nebraska doesn't open with a directional school this year? It's B-Y . . . Who???

I think I need six more weeks of summer.

Late rally helps Albion win B-5 title

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

WAKEFIELD - Wakefield's hopes of getting back to the American Legion state tournament were dashed by two comeback efforts from the Albion Seniors.

On Sunday, Albion scored four runs in the bottom of the seventh to drop the Post 81 Seniors into the losers bracket of the Class B, Area 5 tournament at Eaton Field.

Top-seeded Wakefield earned a shot at redemption after a commanding shutout of Schuyler on Monday and had the second-seeded Albion squad on the hook for a possible winner-take-all game on Tuesday; but the visitors responded to two big innings with another comeback effort, sealing the area championship and a trip to state with a 9-7 win.

"Our goal was to get to state and we had the opportunity," longtime Post 81 Seniors coach Paul Eaton said after the game. "We thought we had the talent to get there, but we needed to play a clean game and Albion's got some good athletes. We're disappointed, but to Albion's credit, they're a good team."

Wakefield drew first blood in the second inning when Tanner Perkins lined an opposite-field single to left to lead off the inning. Daniel Gustafson sacrificed him to second, and a wild pitch by Albion starter Colton Pelster and a passed ball helped Perkins break the ice.

Albion put up three runs in the bottom of the third, thanks to two errors and a Pelster single, but Wakefield responded with back-to-back three-run innings in the fourth and fifth, and it appeared they would take command of the game and force a second championship game.

In the fourth, Tanner Perkins singled and came around to score on a wild pitch. Pelster walked four consecutive batters in the inning, with Jack Belt and Alex Conley drawing bases-loaded passes that brought home Brodie Mackling and Julio Sanchez.

Wakefield chased the Albion starter in the fifth as Perkins and Sanchez both singled and Albion committed two errors that led to three more runs and a 7-3 Wakefield advantage.

That lead proved to be short-lived, however, as Albion responded by taking advantage of three Wakefield miscues, sending 10 batters and plating half of them, turning a four-run deficit into an 8-7 advantage.

Wakefield had a runner in scoring position in the sixth after Conley singled and moved to third on a Hunter Schweers sacrifice and a Jake Lutt groundout, but could not bring home the tying run. Albion got an insurance run in the bottom of the inning, thanks to an error and two wild pitches, then closed out Wakefield's final threat with a diving catch in the outfield to seal the championship.

Eaton credited the pitching of Conley, who threw three shutout innings in Monday's 7-0 elimination win over Schuyler and was solid before running out of gas in the fifth.

"Alex pitched well, but we know

Wakefield Post 81 Seniors' Alex Conley tries to hang on to the corner of third base after hitting a triple during Wakefield's win over Schuyler on Monday.

"Our goal was to get to state and we had the opportunity. We thought we had the talent to get there, but we needed to play a clean game . . . We're disappointed, but to Albion's credit, they're a good team."

- Paul Eaton
Post 81 Seniors coach

that when Alex pitches we don't have enough middle infielders, and we've really got to make some plays," Eaton said. "We've got a good outfield and we had some good efforts out there tonight."

Perkins had three of Wakefield's five hits in the contest, while Conley and Julio Sanchez also adding hits for the 19-19 Post 81 Seniors.

Wakefield reached the championship game with a solid all-around effort, limiting Schuyler to just two hits and breaking the game open with a five-run third inning to earn the rematch with Albion.

The Post 81 Seniors got a run right away in the first inning as Julio Perez lined a one-out single to center and came home on Schweers' single to center. They added five more in the third, highlighted by a Schweers double and an RBI triple by Conley. Noah Braun and Coleman Kneif also had hits to highlight the five-run, four-hit outburst.

Conley, Julio Sanchez and Isaac Camarena combined on the two-hit shutout for the Post 81 Seniors, teaming up to strike out five and walk four. Schweers and Perez both had two hits in the win, while Kneif, Conley and Braun added hits.

Wakefield opened the tournament on Friday with a 6-1 win over Columbus Lakeview, breaking a 1-1 tie with five runs in the fifth inning.

Lutt and Perkins both had the big blows in the key fifth inning, as they each had two-RBI doubles. Schweers added an RBI single. Lutt got the win on the mound, scattering five hits and four walks while striking out 12.

On Saturday, Wakefield eliminated Central City from the six-team, double-elimination tournament with a 10-0 whitewashing, limiting the visitors to five hits while cranking out 12.

Wakefield took command early with four runs, highlighted by RBI singles from Conley, Schweers and Gustafson. Perkins' two-run single highlighted a three-run second inning, and Lutt led the team with three hits. Kneif threw a complete-game five-hitter, striking out two.

Wakefield dropped to the losers bracket on Sunday with a heartbreaking 5-4 loss to Albion in the first of the two tournament meetings between the top two seeds.

Wakefield gave up a run to Albion in the first, but got it back in the second when Perkins reached on a fielder's choice and scored on an error.

Wakefield had a big inning in the sixth to break the 1-1 deadlock, highlighted by Frankie Nuno's RBI single and an RBI groundout by Perkins. Perez added another run when he scored on an error in the top of the seventh, giving Wakefield a three-run advantage.

Unfortunately, Albion had the last at bat and took advantage of several Wakefield miscues in the bottom of the seventh, allowing them to score four runs and steal the win from the tournament hosts.

(Photos by Michael Carnes) (above) Tanner Perkins had a hot bat for the Wakefield Post 81 Seniors, while Noah Braun (warming up in background) was a solid role player during the tournament. (right) Jake Lutt hit the ball well and also got a win on the mound, striking out 12 in an opening-round win over Lakeview. (below) Julio Perez comes around third to score a run for Wakefield during their 7-0 shutout of Schuyler on Monday.

National Farmers' Market Week noted with 100th market

Nebraska Agriculture Director Greg Ibach is promoting the celebration of National Farmers' Market Week in the state, set for Aug. 2-8, by noting a new fresh produce milestone. The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) recently registered its 100th farmers' market in the state.

"The growing demand for locally-produced fruits and vegetables has been a positive driving force for farmers' markets in Nebraska," Ibach said. "This sector continues to grow and add diversification to the state's overall agricultural economy."

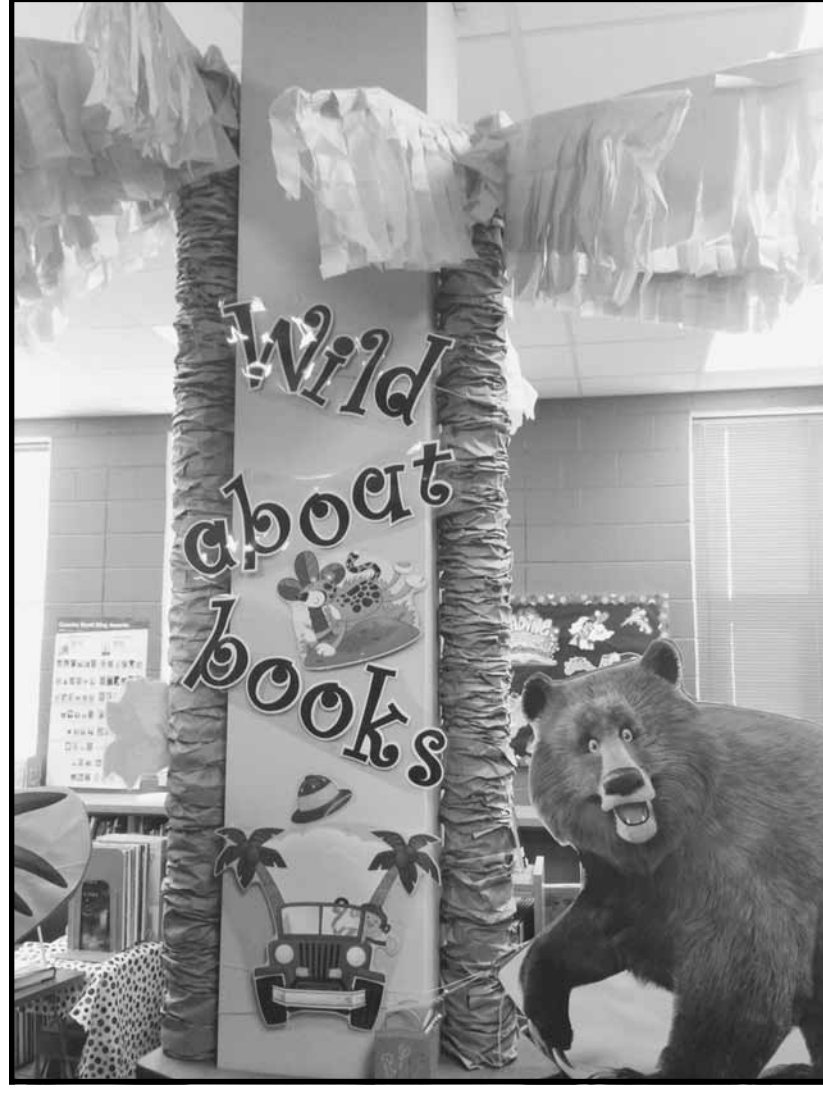

Growth of farmers' markets in Nebraska is occurring in rural, as well as urban, communities. Since 2000, Nebraska farmers' markets listed with NDA has increased 257 percent, according to NDA Ag Promotion Coordinator Casey Foster. As demand has increased, some communities have begun holding markets on more days with longer hours. In addition, many of the vendors have begun offering a wider variety of produce, he said.

To facilitate access to market information, NDA earlier this year launched a new web page that provides details on locations, days and times of farmers' markets across the state. Produce farmers also are given the opportunity to list locations where they sell from, as well as the types of produce they sell.

"There definitely has been a need to have all the pertinent information regarding the state's farmers' markets in one recognizable location," said Foster, who is the farmers' market coordinator for NDA. "We provide access to the site to registered farmers so they can list all their pertinent information as well as keep it up-to-date. We also have an easy search function to make the page user-friendly for consumers wanting to find market and grower information at specific locations."

The farmers' market page can be accessed through the NDA website at www.nda.nebraska.gov. The page lists the 100 farmers' markets, as well as over 400 produce growers. Foster said market managers, as well as individual growers, can contact him to be added to the database by calling NDA at (800) 422-6692.

In addition to coordinating farmers' market programs, Foster also manages several federally-funded specialty crop programs. The Seniors Farmers' Market Nutrition Program and the WIC Farmers' Market Nutrition Program both are designed to increase sales for produce growers by encouraging the consumption of fresh fruits and vegetables among qualified senior citizens and individuals in the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) Supplemental Nutrition Program.

Sharing history of 'Fiddler on the Roof'

A long time ago, when I was still singing for weddings, the bride asked for, and received, "Sunrise, Sunset", from Fiddler on the Roof. At that time, I had the recording, but had never seen the story. In about 1981, Jon high jumped at State Track in Omaha, and we all stayed over with my sis in Papillion. I learned that a local dinner theater was presenting "Fiddler", and I took the whole crew. It was absolutely wonderful.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

I know that J. Allan Cramer was Tevye in a Wayne Community Theater production, and in '89, I was Golda for a short portion from that musical in the community theater's collection of songs from Broadway. I absolutely loved her response to his question, "Do you love me?"

Sometime in the 80s, Wayne High also performed Fiddler, and Curt Jeffries was the "fiddler on the roof"! I also loved the song, "Tradition."

Last year, for Christmas, Sue took me to Omaha, to the Orpheum, where we saw the whole thing again. And I cried again, when the "Fiddler" opened on Broadway fifty years ago tonight, July 27. And the director, who is now 90, says it's really about family, and everyone can relate. How true. It's become a part of everyone's repertoire, and has stood the test of time. Because it's

The Nebraska Beef Council has announced the launch of the 5th annual Nebraska's Best Burger contest which will include a judging event at the Nebraska State Fair.

Public online nominations for the award will be accepted from Aug. 1 through Aug. 20 on the Nebraska Beef Council website www.nebeef.org or through their Facebook page.

On Aug. 21, the top five nominated restaurants will be announced and the finalists will be invited to a judging competition hosted at the Nebraska State Fair in Grand Island. The contestants will prepare their hamburgers for a panel of judges and a winner will be chosen based on the judges' scores. "We're excited to include the Nebraska State Fair in the contest this year," said Adam Wegner, Director of Marketing for the Nebraska Beef Council. "This new format allows the public to get involved and creates a fun event for the nominated restaurants."

The contest is open to all Nebraska restaurants including past winners. Previous recipients of the award include The Cellar Bar & Grill in Kearney, The Peppermill Restaurant & Lounge in Valentine and two-time winner Stella's Bar & Grill in Bellevue.

The final judging event will be held Friday, Sept. 4 in the Raising Nebraska building at the Nebraska State Fair.

Landlord/Tenant Cash Lease Workshop, Soybean Management Field Days scheduled

I'll be repeating these two meetings for the next couple of weeks since we always have a lot of interest and then people forget to come or wish they would have been there.

A Free Landlord/Tenant Cash Lease workshops will be offered Monday, Aug. 10, at the Farm Service Meeting Room at 1505 Broadway in Dakota City, and also the next day, Tuesday, Aug. 11 at the Lifelong Learning Center in Norfolk. The meetings will be from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. It is designed to help landlords and tenants put together a lease that is right for both parties, and help maintain positive farm leasing relations.

Topics for discussion include the latest information about land values and cash rental rates for the area and state; a review of typical leases used for crop share, cash rent, and variable cash rent arrangements; lease termination, including terminating handshake or verbal leases; lease communication, determining appropriate information sharing for both the tenant and landlord; alternative cash lease arrangements, flexible provision considerations for your situation; and other topics, like irrigation systems, hay rent, pasture rental agreements, and grain bin rental that will be covered as time allows.

UNL Extension Educators will present this workshop. It is very helpful if both the tenant and landlord can attend together. It is also helpful if the spouse attends. Everyone is welcome to the workshop.

Ag Happenings
Keith Jarvi
Extension Educator

This is a free workshop and is sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Board. Refreshments and handouts are provided. Registration is requested by calling the Dakota county office. To register contact Tammy Peterson at (402) 987-2140 or email her at tpeterson3@unl.edu. For Norfolk contact Mary Jarvi at 402-370-4021 email mjarvi1@unl.edu. Please register by Aug. 5 to ensure that there are enough handouts and refreshments.

This workshop has been held extensively across Nebraska for the past two years with over 2,800 attending. The vast majority of both landlords and tenants find the workshop to be very helpful in improving communications, setting rental terms, and learning about the use of flex lease provisions. As crop budgets are tighten, it is even more important to attend and listen to the latest discussion about leasing issues.

For more information or assistance, please contact Allan Vyhnanek, Extension Educator, Nebraska Extension in Platte County. Phone: 402-563-4901 or e-mail avyhnanek2@unl.edu.

Be sure to come to the Soybean Management Field Day on Thursday, Aug. 13 at the Mike Anderson Field five miles south (three miles south of Hwy 35/16 Junction), two miles east, and 1/4 mile north of Wakefield. This free event is also sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Board and Nebraska Extension. Registration begins at 9:00 and the event lasts until 2:30 pm. Included are rotating presentations on Grain/Marketing/ Financial Outlook; Soil Fertility Concepts for Soybeans; Water Quality and Nozzle Selection in Weed Management; Irrigated Soybean Production and Management.

Along with the presentations this year's field days feature integrated studies that combine several potential yield enhancing practices in pest management and agronomy. Refreshments and a noon meal are provided courtesy of the Soybean Board. For complete information go to arcd.unl.edu/soydays.

NDA 'Nebraska Agriculture' video garners national award

"Nebraska Agriculture," a video commissioned by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) and viewed by thousands on YouTube and at the 2014 Nebraska State Fair, recently was named a Golden ARC award winner by a national agriculture professional organization.

The video took first place in the video programs division of the contest, which was coordinated by The Agricultural Relations Council.

"I want to thank the farmers and ranchers who contributed their time to be a part of the 'Nebraska Agriculture' video," NDA Director Greg Ibach said. "They, along with our production partners, should be proud that the story of our state's number one industry received such a prestigious award."

"Nebraska Agriculture" was produced as a collaborative effort of NDA, David & Associates and the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (IANR) Media at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. It can be viewed by visiting www.nda.nebraska.gov and clicking on the video icon.

The six-minute video was re-released in March 2014 to promote Nebraska's agricultural industry both domestically and internationally. The video was featured at the debut of the Raising Nebraska exhibit at the 2014 Nebraska State Fair. It continues to play in that exhibit's Grain Bin theater. The video also has over 17,800 views on YouTube. The piece is intended to inform as well as create an emotional connection between viewers and the state's farmers and ranchers.

Golden ARC winners were announced at The Agricultural Relations Council's professional development meeting held in Denver, Colo., in June. The Agricultural Relations Council is a national organization dedicated to agriculture public relations professionals.

Watts Guerra LLP currently represents over 19,000 corn farmers against Syngenta for disrupting the corn export market. The firm recently led the effort to obtain a $750 million settlement from Bayer Crop Sciences for U.S. rice farmers - making them one of the few firms in the country experienced in agricultural mass actions. Local attorneys from your community have teamed up with Watts Guerra and will discuss the Syngenta claims and your options at the following Town Hall Meetings. # Wayne State College Wildflower Walk on Wednesday, Sept. 23

Wayne State College hosted a Wildflower Walk on campus on Wednesday, July 22.

Gathering on the Wayne State College Campus to explore seasonal native plants and wildflowers in the landscapes were a number of people including Barbara and James Kanter. The Nebraska State College System Board of Trustees officially named the college's student center the C. James and Barbara K. Kanter Student Center in honor of the couple for their service and support of the college.

Audience members chose native plants to take home at the event. Kim Schramm, Arboretum Landscape Manager, answered questions on the use of native plants in the summer landscape. Individuals strolled along the Wayne State College pathways this summer and experienced the native grasses and flowers that have been cared for by Schramm and his crew. The event was sponsored by the Campus Beautification Committee and the Wayne State College Arboretum.

An additional seasonal walk will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 23, and will be presented by Dr. Mark Hammer of Wayne State College Department of Life Sciences.

Hammer completed his bachelor's degree at Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa; master's degree at Clemson University, Clemson, S.C.; and doctorate degree at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, Ark. His teaching interests include environmental concerns, biology concepts, botany, ecology, biology and society, conservation biology and the nature and culture of the Great Plains. Among his professional activities and awards, Hammer has earned a Nebraska Environmental Trust grant for Educational Wetland Establishment and a Nebraska State Wildlife grant for Tall Prairie Restoration at Thompson-Barnes Wildlife Management Area.

For more information about the upcoming walk, contact Schramm at (402) 375-7384 or email kischra1@wsc.edu.

Emily Duncan, adult education coordinator at Northeast Community College, leads Adult Education instructors through an all-day training session on the Norfolk campus.

NECC adult ed instructors prepare for new academic year

With the new academic year right around the corner, instructors in the Adult Education program at Northeast Community College are preparing to welcome students.

Emily Duncan, adult education coordinator, began the new instructional year with an all-day staff training session. She recently finished a yearlong leadership and mentoring training program through the Nebraska Adult Education Department. The training was conducted by Neil Sturomski, a nationally-known consultant and trainer in adult education with over 30 years of experience in the field of adult education, special education, and learning disabilities. Duncan was one of thirty participants selected.

Adult Education instructors at Northeast were introduced to the key shifts in college and career readiness standards, effective teaching strategies and methods, metacognitive-higher-order thinking skills, critical thinking skills, strategy instruction, and the language continuum.

Duncan said, "These skills are important as federal guidelines are becoming more rigorous. Students are in need of 'higher-order' and critical thinking skills to be successful in post-secondary education and/or higher-level careers. The Adult Education Department will continue to build upon these strategies and methods through monthly webinars."

At the end of training, instructors were asked to try at least one strategy when classes begin in August.

Duncan said the goal of the training is to help all adult education instructors become more efficient and effective in all basic instruction; to provide instructors with an effective instructional methodology that supports the improvement of services to adult education students; and to support higher-order thinking skills needed in postsecondary education and careers.

The Adult Education Department at Northeast Community College offers several services including instruction in basic skills such as reading, writing, and mathematics; preparation and testing for a high school diploma (GED®); English as a Second Language (ESL) instruction; and preparation for the Law Enforcement Academy Entrance Test.

The program is free to anyone 16 years of age or older and not enrolled in a secondary school. Students are requested to attend an orientation session to register and take diagnostic tests to determine what skills are needed and develop a learning plan. Registration is presently underway for classes that are held in a number of communities across Northeast's 20 county service area. Classes begin Aug. 10.

Northeast's Adult Education Department was recognized earlier this year for outstanding performance for its work. The department earned the award for Outstanding Performance in Exceeding Nebraska's Adult Education Performance Standards for the 2014 fiscal year.

Recognition is based on the eleven educational functioning standards utilized to measure student progress throughout each instructional year. This is the third such award bestowed on Northeast's Adult Education Department.

For more information on Northeast Community College's Adult Education Department, contact Duncan at (402) 844-7253 or Tim Young, adult education intake coordinator, at (402) 844-7500.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

On Bloom County, grandbaby update

It's County Fair week, so while Clara is out chasing 4-H pictures, time for me to do a good late-summer purging of the "Bits and Pieces" file:
- If you grew up in the 80's and had any kind of an offbeat sense of humor, you no doubt enjoyed the "Bloom County" comic strip that was drawn by Berkley Breathed.

Late in the 80's, Breathed ended the comic strip in his usual off-the-wall fashion - the severed head of then-billionaire mogul Donald Trump was attached to the body of Bill the Cat, and Trump/Cat announced that he had bought Bloom County and fired all the characters.

Now, a quarter-century later, "the Donald" is back in the news as a GOP candidate for President, and with the state of "higgledy-piggledy" (a classic Bloom County term) in the current state of American politics at an all-time level of absurdity, it seemed the perfect time for Breathed to bring Opus, Bill the Cat, Steve Dallas and the rest of the Bloom County crew back.

The early strips have been side-splitting hilarious, mixing the characters in with the latest political and cultural nonsense, and if you want to see the strips, you can "Like" Berkley Breathed's Facebook page.
- OK, so we've gone far too long without a grandbaby update and some photos, so let's get you caught up.

Emmie turned four months old last Thursday, and she's already rolling over, holding her head up and even starting to sit on her own.

Of course, she loves it when Papa C comes to visit, and she's starting to "talk" to her mommy and daddy, who seem to have a better grasp on what she's saying than I do right now. I shot some video of her trying to chat me up on my last visit, and I've watched it several times and still can't figure out what she's saying. Fortunately, it won't be long before her parents won't know what in the world she's talking about, either (this should take place about 13 years from now).

My daughter told me that Emmie's favorite thing to do is watch Mickey Mouse Club - I strongly encouraged my daughter to discontinue this practice at once, as we don't want Rachel Maddow clogging this young, impressionable mind with the kind of lunatic-laced gobbledegook that is the order of the day on the cable news networks.

- So much for the long, quiet summer... just looked at the calendar as I was writing this week's column, and by the time you read this we will be exactly two weeks away from the start of the 2015-16 school year.

Whatever happened to three months of summer vacation for school kids? Didn't they just let out for the summer last week? It sure feels like it. Maybe I'm getting old and time is moving a lot faster than it used to.

- One of the fun things about this job is that you never know when a story will, literally, fall out of the sky.

I was coming home from Wakefield after shooting a Legion baseball playoff game, and as I pulled in front of the office, a nice couple were walking out of Fiesta Brava across the street. They were out-of-towners and were asking some questions about the town, and by the time we were done talking, I was setting up a time to talk with a lady that flying enthusiasts know as "Skychick."

Ramona Cox and her flying partner, David Wood, were heading home from the annual airplane festival in Oshkosh, Wisc., and had made a stop at Stan Morris Airport here in Wayne to fuel up at what is fast getting a reputation for being the cheapest place to buy airplane fuel in the Midwest. They stayed the night here in town before taking off Tuesday morning, and they gave a glowing review of what they experienced while they were here in town, gushing over the Mexican food, the wonderful Cobblestone Hotel they stayed at overnight, and the accommodations at Wayne's airport - the kind of news I'm sure will make Wes Blecke's day over at the Wayne Area Chamber.

Cox is an avid flyer and an expert in "air camping" (read the story for more details) and is an annual speaker at the air event in Wisconsin every year. She was a fun person to interview - definitely the highlight of my work week.

Capitol View Rural optimism is very high

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

In a few weeks I will be participating in one of Nebraska's time-honored traditions, the high school reunion. It's a milestone event as our first high school graduating class of Baby Boomers gets together for a 50-year-anniversary.

Classmates from all across the country and Nebraska will be traveling to what would be considered a rural Nebraska community, a non-metropolitan area, in the heart of the Nebraska Panhandle, a time-zone away from the Nebraska Capitol and actually closer to the capitals of three other states than to Lincoln.

Call it what you will, we tend to think of it as home. And it is generally a great place to visit. Folks just seem friendlier, the memories seem happier and the scenery is to die for.

Considering all this, it comes as no surprise that the annual University of Nebraska-Lincoln "Rural Poll" has revealed that Rural Nebraskans are the most optimistic they've been over the past 20 years. Perhaps the exact title of the poll, administered in April to 6,228 households in 86 counties, says it all. "Optimism in Nonmetropolitan Nebraska: Perceptions of Well-Being" based on 1,991 responses.

Save for Omaha, I think all of Nebraska's other 534 communities - yes, even the Capital City - can be considered real. That assessment is based on a standard set of values, which seem to blanket the state. Nebraskans are generally conservative, hard-working and honest people who love their ancestors, enjoy time with family and have plans for the future. Churches still draw crowds on Sunday mornings - not just for weddings and funerals - and potluck is still a food group.

Radio stations play a variety of music - it's not all country and western -- and the stock market reports right before noon are all about livestock and grain prices. Rain and wind at the right time are valuable assets. Drought and hail are liabilities. A new combine costs more than a new house and it's not unusual to see more old pickups, trucks and tractors than new ones.

The state Constitution sets terms on how much money the state MUST have in reserve to avoid the economic woes suffered by some states - think Kansas. Limits are also set on how much can be levied in taxes and for what purpose. Playing it fiscally "close to the chest" is not an oddity, but more of a lesson learned from those who have survived several recessions. Those survivors probably heard the stories of their parents who survived the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl. History is a great teacher - at least in Nebraska.

Traveling "back home" for that summer reunion just seems right. It's comfortable. People don't really seem to care about what you have done to make a name for yourself or a living. They want to know your last name, whose kid you are, who were your siblings. That Schmidt kid's dad was a butcher and his older sister went to school with so-and-so's brother and they all grew up on that street and went to church over there. They want to tell you stories about your dad or your uncle or your grandpa. Stories that likely involved their dad, or uncle or grandpa too.

I don't know if, or how, sociologists quantify that type of information and interaction. Don't really much care. It is those very things that weave the tapestry of "rural" America that has created the backdrop for this latest rash of reported optimism.

So, what DID the poll reveal? Fifty-three percent of poll respondents said they were better off this year than five years ago, up slightly from 50 percent last year and the highest proportion in all 20 years of the study. Additionally, 48 percent said they believe they'll be better off in 10 years, another 20-year high up from 44 percent last year.

Analysts think that timing could have skewed some of the results.

The 2015 poll was done in the spring, before heavy rains interfered with planting and before the publicity about falling farm - some predict as much as a 45 percent fall -- income. But there is no drought and unemployment is low.

One downside is that satisfaction with clean air and clean water declined. The percent satisfied with clean air declined from 85 percent last year to 80 percent this year. And those satisfied with clean water declined from 80 percent to 76 percent.

But, rural Nebraskans continue to be most satisfied with their marriages, family, friends, religion/spirituality and the outdoors. They say they are least satisfied with job opportunities, current income level and financial security during retirement.

It's unlikely that my classmates and I will discuss the poll. But I will try to gauge the level of optimism and report on that at another time.

Legislative Update

Helping workers find jobs in Nebraska

A few weeks ago, Governor Ricketts revealed the plan that would require Nebraskans receiving unemployment benefits to take part in a reemployment plan if they want to continue receiving those benefits. The program that is scheduled to start in October will be the only one like it in the country.

The goal of the program is to help workers find jobs sooner and help employers fill vacancies. Finding the right fit can be difficult in our state, which enjoys the lowest unemployment rate in the nation. Currently, the state helps to reemploy about 6,800 people a year. The hope is that with the implementation of this program they will be able to help an additional 8,000 a year.

The next thing that I think needs to happen is for us to drug test able-bodied people who refuse to work and still expect to draw benefits from the state.

The Nebraska Department of Labor will implement the program, with assistance from the U.S. Department of Labor that is providing a $354,000 grant to fund the program. The grant funding will be for new staff and the technological updates that will be required.

Presently, unemployed claimants identified as being likely to exhaust benefits were required to participate in a reemployment plan. The new plan will require most all claimants to participate. The program will include training workers on using online resume and job searches within the Department of Labor's website. They will also take a "career interest assessment" and an individualized reemployment plan will be drawn up with the help of a job coach.

Currently, Nebraskans are eligi-

SWEET CORN

(Contributed photos)
 A light breeze and mild temperatures greeted those attending the 14th Sweet Corn Sunday at Immanuel Lutheran Church of rural Wakefield on July 19. Guests came from South Dakota, Michigan, Illinois, New York, California, Missouri, Iowa and various locations throughout Nebraska. (top) Ken and Eileen Petit of Wakefield brought guests with them from New York; (clockwise from above) Attendees gathered for morning worship before the dinner; Merle Ring of Wayne and his daughter, Jeanne (Ring) Walker of Lincoln enjoyed visiting outdoors following the meal; Larry and Mary Lou Beeson of Wisner take their time making a decision on what type of pie they wanted to go with their meal; Kevin Echtenkamp dishes out sweet corn to the guests. Approximately 200 people were a part of this year's Sweet Corn Sunday.
