Governor highlights 25th annual forum

Medicaid, marijuana, wind discussed

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The lecture room at Gardner Hall was buzzing Friday as the 25th edition of the community's Legislative Forum had an unusual guest join in the event.

The Wayne Area Chamber's legislative committee, which has hosted the event since its inception, had never included a sitting governor before, but Gov. Pete Ricketts dropped in to join state senators Dave Bloomfield, Lydia Brasch and Jim Scheer in a 90-minute discussion of some of the major issues facing the Nebraska Legislature during the 60-day session that runs through the end of next month.

Students from Ponca and Wayne high schools helped fill a good portion of the seats in the lecture hall, and they listened intently as Gov. Ricketts and the three senators discussed issues ranging from property taxes to the state's infrastructure.

The governor opened the forum by declaring property taxes to be the top issue for the Unicameral to work on this session, pointing to LB958 and LB959 as two bills that, Ricketts believed, would help address the property tax issue.

"This is of particular concern to those in agriculture," he told the reporter-estimated crowd of 150. "Ag land taxes are up 66 percent, while personal and commercial is up only eight percent.'

Ricketts said the state has already cut spending 6 1/2 percent in the last budget and an additional 3 percent for this fiscal year's budget, and the new legslation could bring more than $408 million in relief to property owners in the state.

Wind energy was one of the topics discussed by those on the forum, and all believed it was not up to the state to offer tax incentives to companies who are interested in building the infrastructure to take advantage of the wind energy available in the state.

"Most states like Iowa, Oklahoma and Kansas that are doing well with wind energy started with tax credits that are no longer there on the federal level," Sen. Scheer said. "My question is, does it make sense for me as a state senator to provide for a company

'Much bigger crowd' gathers for county Democrats' caucus

They came in a wide variety of shapes, sizes, ages and backgrounds, creating a standing-room only atmosphere inside the court room of the Wayne County Court-

About 100 hopeful Wayne County residents gathered there Saturday to take part in the county's portion of the Nebraska Democratic Party's caucus, which decided the number of delegates the candidates for President of the United States would receive from the state at this summer's national convention.

This is the third time the state's Democrats have gathered for a caucus, a move made by the party back in 2008 to help give the state more relevance in deciding which of the Democrats' candidates would advance to the general election, and this was by far the biggest turnout of Democrats in the county, according to caucus chair Traci

"This is a much bigger crowd than what we've had before," she said after the hourlong meeting had concluded. "I think the Democratic Party did a good job with outreach for the event. They created a Facebook page and we ran an ad in The Wayne Herald, but I also think there's a lot of excitement about both candidates.'

Asked what she felt the reason for the big turnout could be attributed to, she pointed to the two candidates, as well as those running on the Republican ticket.

"I think we saw a lot of excitement for both candidates, and I think some of it is that they don't want what the Republicans are offering," she said.

The caucus started with a call to ask those supporting one of the four Democrats running for President to speak on behalf of

Merle Ring

Merle Ring, 89, of Wayne, died Thursday, March 3, 2016 at his home at Brookdale-Wayne.

Services were held Tuesday, March 8 at Journey Christian Church in Wayne. Pastor Troy Reynolds and son-in-law Pastor Kerry Jech officiat-

Memorials may be directed to Journey Christian Church in Wayne or Providence Medical Center Hospice in Wavne.

Merle Dean Ring was born Aug. 19, 1926 on a farm near Wakefield to Wallace and Laura (Dawes) Ring. In 1932 the Rings purchased a farm in Wayne County where Merle and his brother were raised. He attended Wayne Country School District #47 and graduated from Wakefield High School as the salutatorian in 1943. During Merle's childhood, he discovered his love for organ music taking lessons on an old pump style organ. He eventually mastered a large three-manual pipe organ. Merle attended Wayne State College where he graduated Magna Cum Laude in 1949. During his final semester at WSC he met the love of his life, Donna Rockwell, an accomplished pianist, in the music department. Shortly after graduation, Merle was drafted into the U.S. Army during the Korean War, serving from 1949 to 1951. Merle and Donna sustained a long-distance romance and were married Sept. 1, 1951 in Donna's hometown of South Sioux City at the First Lutheran Church.

Following Merle's military service, the couple continued the farming and cattle feeding operation of his parents. At one point, they officially named it Evergreen Heights Farm where they enjoyed raising their family of five children. Together, Merle and Donna played piano-organ music at numerous weddings, funerals, and special occasions. They lived, worked, and entertained as a team their entire marriage. Many will remember Merle as an avid Husker football fan which partially explains his love of the color red. In 1960, the Rings were awarded the Northeast Nebraska Soil Conservation Award and later became charter members of the Wayne County Farm Bureau. Throughout their marriage, Merle and Donna were active in the Wakefield Christian Church, serving as Junior High Sunday School teachers, organist and pianist, and Merle as an elder. After their retirement from farming in 1992 they transformed their cattle barn into a community entertainment facility known as "The Barn." The couple hosted many shows, reunions, celebrations, a fund-raising reception for Governor Dave Heineman, and even several weddings at The Barn. Throughout their lives, they travelled to all 50 states, Canada, Mexico, Bahamas, and enjoyed visiting former exchange students in Sweden and Norway. Together they shared piano-organ concerts at retirement homes, senior centers, and churches. In later years, Merle and Donna enjoyed serving at Journey Christian Church in Wayne. As a testament to their strong faith in the Lord, they have engraved on their tombstone, "Choose you this day whom you will serve; but as for me and my house, we

Michael R. McElhose

Michael R. McElhose, 60, of Pierce, died Sunday, March 6, 2016 at Faith Regional Health Services in Norfolk.

Services will be held Friday, March 11 at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church in rural Pierce (one mile east of Pierce off Highway 98). The Rev. John E. Nelson Jr. will officiate. Visitation will be from 4 - 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 10 at Stonacek Funeral Chapel in Norfolk. Burial will be at Hillcrest Memorial Park Cemetery in Norfolk.

The son of Alvin Richard and Myla June (Granquist) McElhose, Michael was born Aug. 31, 1955 in Wayne. He graduated from O'Neill High School in 1974. After high school, he joined his father in the grocery store business, Ideal Markets, and assumed the position of Assistant Manager. He married Debra Swick in June of 1978, and later the couple divorced. He married Jill Saegebarth on April 29, 1995. They made their home northeast of Pierce. In 1985, he moved to Norfolk. He worked for WisPak Production in Norfolk for the last 30 years. Mike's love of family, golfing, and fishing illuminated his life and those he knew. His passion (loving obsession) for golf occupied much of his free time. He was a member of Fairplay Golf Course for 30 years, competing in many tournaments winning a few in the process. After long days and many rounds, he loved hanging with his numerous golfing buddies hashing out every shot. His love for his family was emulated by those who knew him. Mike relished in the good things in life. The smile on his face and sound of his contagious laughter when he reeled in a fish made everyone around him feel like he had the world on the end of the line. His generous and genuine spirit was felt by all who knew him; especially his granddaughter, Charlie. Whether it was at Pierce High School football and basketball games or wrestling meets and cheerleading, Mike was there for the ones he loved. He was a man who passionately loved his family and was deeply loved by many.

Survivors include his wife, Jill of Pierce; daughter, Sonia and Kyle Clark of Norfolk; daughter, Carly McElhose and son Spencer McElhose of Pierce; one granddaughter Charlie Clark; two brothers, Doug McElhose of Norfolk and David and Lisa McElhose of Columbus; as well as nieces and nephews.

sellable tax credits so they can build a wind turbine that will generate energy that will go into the southwest power grid and reduce costs in Louisiana and Arkansas? Why would Nebraska want to subsidize other states' electrical needs?'

Sen. Bloomfield said, "Wind power is a wonderful thing when it can stand on its own, but as long as we have to subsidize it, I don't see going forward with it. I don't support anything where the state has to furnish subsidies or cash up front to build something like that."

Brasch said the state needs to upgrade its infrastructure to take wind energy into account.

"The problem is that our infrastructure, as it exists, is meant for coal and that's where the investment has been," she said. "In my district, we have farmers who want to have wind turbines and have that money spent in Burt County, and it's been very difficult." The effort to expand Medicaid has been one Gov. Ricketts has been particularly adamant in being against, and he said that is not the solution to address the state's health care concerns.

"Medicaid is for protecting the most vulnerable people in the population," he said. "Arkansas was 61 percent over budget when they expanded Medicaid, so now it's not only a threat to their budget, but it makes it harder for people on Medicaide to actually get care. It will cost the state $1 billion over 10 years, and if the federal government goes back on their promos to cover 90 percent of the expansion – and they do it all the time – then the state would have to add $650 million to cover the program. Nobody's denying there is a problem, but this is not the solution."

"Medicaid is a horrendous expense for the state," Bloomfield added. "Expanding it to everybody that seems to think they need it would bankrupt the state. Depending on how the election goes this fall, there are going to be some huge changes in the way the federal government handles it, so for us to do anything that would tie our hands, not knowing what's coming, doesn't make a lot of sense.'

Sen. Brasch said she talked with a pharmacist in her district, and a lot of the problems with rising health care costs can be attributed to increasing federal regulations.

Gov. Pete Ricketts makes a point during discussion at the 25th annual Legislative Forum as state senators (from left) Dave Bloomfield, Lydia Brasch and Jim Scheer listen.

Legalization of marijuana was another topic where the panel was in agreement, expressing concern with Colorado's legalization of the drug while, at the same time, looking for ways to take advantage of the medicinal properties of the

"We have a process to allow dangerous drugs like marijuana to be used for medical purposes," Ricketts said, pointing to the Federal Drug Administration. "Derivatives of marijuana are going through the FDA process now and when they're approved they'll be legal in Nebraska. Legalizing marijuana in Colorado didn't do away with the black market there; in fact, it's flourishing and that's spilling over into Nebraska with increased trafficking. Bloomfield said he's also against recreational use of the drug, but said the medicinal properties should be researched, as should the growing of industrial hemp, which doesn't have the medicinal properties of marijuana but can be used in a variety of ways.

"My wife worked for more than 20 years with kids with seizures, so if there's any way we can get that under control, we need to work at it, but what we do not need is recreational use in the state of Nebraska," he said. "Industrial hemp would be a good crop for Nebraska, and the university is studying it and it could be an economic boom

At the close of the meeting, Gov. Ricketts encouraged the younger members of the audience to take an active role in their government.

"Our constitutional republic only works if people like you get involved," he said. their candidate. Two came forward - one siding with Hillary Clinton, the other for Bernie Sanders.

Charlene Rasmussen, a longtime resident who spoke in favor of Clinton, said she cut her teeth supporting candidates who didn't fare well in the general election, starting with Eugene McCarthy in 1968 and George McGovern four years later.

"I've been there, done that, and I think I still have the T-shirt," she said as the crowd laughed.

She told the gathering that she felt Clinton was the most electable candidate and had been put through quite a lot with ongoing investigations into a variety of issues. And while she said her vote was with the former First Lady, she encouraged everyone in the room to follow through this November, regardless of whether or not their candidate is chosen in the primary.

"If your candidate doesn't win, don't go home and be a spoil sport," she said. "I've seen too many elections lost because people went home (after the primary) and didn't vote (in November).'

Dominic Reinke, a student at Wayne State College, spoke in favor of Sanders, citing his stance on social issues and desire to get things done for America.

"He's been consistent on issues and has been on the right side of these social issues long before they became big and popular," he said. "He's running on a dream to make America better."

After the speeches, those in the room were asked to separate into groups, based on who their vote was for.

Those who were undecided were asked to come to the front, where they heard passionate conversations between the two sides to help them decide which group

"You heard a lot of people on the Sanders side say 'Let's be dreamers and go for these issues,' and then you saw people on the Clinton side say 'We need to be realistic about what we can accomplish in Congress,' so there's some push and pull there," Bruckner said. "The thing I enjoyed was that it was a respectful dialogue that was offered on both sides, which is something l think Democrats can offer that Republicans can't."

Once the undecideds had made their choice, a head count was taken of each side. When the votes were tallied along with the absentee ballots that were cast prior to Saturday's caucus, Clinton had 58 votes to Sanders' 52, giving Clinton the county's one delegate at the party's state convention, which will be held June 17-19

While the May 10 primary results won't have an effect on who wins the party's nomination, Bruckner said it's still important for voters to cast their ballot in this spring's primary.

"If you wanted to vote for your presidential preference for the Democratic Party, you had to do it today, but it's very important that Democrats vote in the primary as well so we can vote for the candidates in the other races," she said. "It's important for us to turn out and support those candidates as well."

WHS girls battled 7 state teams

Since we've got a little break before spring high school sports kicks in, how about a little spring cleaning of the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- Whoever the next coach is for the Wayne High girls basketball team, that individual needs to have a heart-to-heart conversation with athletic director Rocky Ruhl about the team's schedule for next season. The Wayne High girls finished 16-11 and made the "Final 12" in Class C-1 this past season. That record doesn't SOUND impressive, but when you look back on who they played, you have to be impressed with the job this team did this sea-

The Blue Devils played 21 different schools this season, and a third of those teams wound up playing in the state basketball tournament. Two other teams ended their seasons a game short of Lincoln, losing in the district finals as the Blue Devils did.

That accounts for 13 of the 27 games the Blue Devils played this season. Ten of their 11 losses were to teams who played in the state tournament, including losses to the eventual champions in both Class C-1 (Kearney Catholic) and C-2 (Crofton), along with C-2 runnerup Guardian Angels Central Catholic and C-1 consolation champion Pierce, both of whom beat Wayne twice this season.

They also defeated C-1 fourthplace finisher Louisville and lost to the top-seeded team in Class A, South Sioux City (who was upset by eventual champion Lincoln East in the opening round).

Of their 27 games, 19 were against teams with a .500 record or better. In fact, the Blue Devils last 13 games were against teams who finished with a .500 or better record, so there weren't any cupcakes Wayne was going up against the last six weeks of the season.

- Another coaching change in the area that will be worth watching will be in Winside, where they will have to replace longtime wrestling coach Paul Sok after his 35-year run as the Wildcat mat mentor.

Whoever fills that spot will have quite the shoes to fill when you consider how much team and individual success Winside has had over the

This year marked just the fifth time in the last 20 years that a Winside team failed to crack the top 10 in the final Class D team standings. The 21st century has been particularly good for the Wildcats, as they have 12 top-10 finishes in the new millennium, including three runner-up finishes and the 2005 state title, along with 11 individual

 St. Patrick's Day and the first day of March Madness fall on the same day next week. I'm sure the White Dog Pub will be unusually quiet on that day since nobody around here is interested in celebrating a day of Irish heritage or sit around watching college basketball

(Your sarcasm meter should have the exploded with that last paragraph. Just don't tell the boss that I'll be there "doing a story" with several other hard-working locals who will be spending the day watching March Madness.)

- Excuse the mess, but you'll want to be in the new grandstand at Hank Overin Field for the Wayne High baseball team's home debut on Tuesday, March 22.

A lot of work has gone into rebuilding the grandstand after it was destroyed in a 2014 wind storm, and kudos need to go out to the group of local citizens who worked hard to raise money and design the new and improved grandstand.

You'll see some new additions at Hank Overin Field, including a new press box and storage facility behind the first base dugout. Restrooms are being renovated as well, so it will be a great looking ball park once the work is completed.

Anderson places fifth in Big Ten indoor meet

Wayne High graduate and Nebraska sophomore Grant Anderson finished fifth in the high jump at the B1G Conference Championships in Geneva, Ohio recently.

Anderson's mark of 6 feet, 11 inches and fifth-place finish were an improvement over last year's seventh-place finish. He helped the Huskers run away with the team title, scoring 116 points to win the title by 43 pounds.

Anderson will compete in outdoor competition beginning Easter weekend at Arizona State.

> People with diabetes are 40 percent more likely to suffer from glaucoma than people without diabetes. The longer someone has had diabetes, the more common glaucoma is. Risk also increases with age. Many people without diabetes get cataracts, but people with diabetes are 60 percent more likely to develop this eye condition. People with diabetes also tend to get cataracts at a younger age and have them progress faster. With cataracts, the eye's clear lens clouds, blocking light. Diabetic retinopathy is a general term for all disorders of the retina caused by diabetes. There are two major types of retinopathy: nonproliferative and proliferative.

The Control Diabetes for Life style is the key message today. Diayou live. Nebraska Extension and Northeast Nebraska Public Health Franciscan Care Services invite you and your family members to participate this diabetes educational program. Participants will learn about current issues related to diabetes from educators with over 25 years of team-teaching experience.

Wednesday, March 30, is the first of three programs in the 2016 Control Diabetes for Life series. The theme for the March session is Ready, Set, Go! Diabetes Self-Management a New Look. Topics that will be addressed during the twohour program are: What's New In Diabetes Care, Nutrition and Eye Health, Are You Sitting Too Much?, and Is Your Home Slim by Design?

Control Diabetes for Life is a joint project of Nebraska Extension and Franciscan Care Services of West Point. The program is offered freeof-charge. Control Diabetes for Life will help participants learn to control diabetes and prolong the onset of complications from the disease. These sessions are designed to supplement the education that you receive from your local diabetes education team and are not a substitute for diabetes classes through your local health care providers.

Participants are asked to pre-register by calling Nebraska Extension more about signs and symptoms in Wayne County at (402) 375-3310 of eye problems. Phone and Internet Discounts Available to CenturyLink Customers

The Nebraska Public Service Commission designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink's basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $20.46 per month and business services are $31.00 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in a government benefit program (Lifeline) to make residential telephone service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers are those that meet eligibility standards as defined by the FCC and state commissions. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless telephone. A household is defined for the purposes of the Lifeline program as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline service is not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in the program. Consumers who willfully make false statements in order to obtain Lifeline telephone service can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from the program.

Lifeline eligible subscribers may also qualify for reliable home highspeed Internet service up to 1.5Mbps for $9.95* per month for the first 12 months of service. Please call 1-866-541-3330 or visit centurylink.com/internetbasics for more information.

If you live in a CenturyLink service area, please call 1-888-833-9522 or visit centurylink.com/lifeline with questions or to request an application for the Lifeline program.

*CenturyLink Internet Basics Program - Residential customers only who qualify based on meeting income level or program participation eligibility requirements, and requires remaining eligible for the entire offer period. First bill will include charges for the \first full month of service billed in advance, prorated charges for service from the date of installation to bill date, and one-time charges and fees described above Qualifying customers may keep this program for a maximum of 60 months after service activation provided months of service (after which the rate reverts to $14.95/mo. for the next 48 months of service), and requires a 12-month term agreement. Customer must either lease a modem/router from CenturyLink for an additional monthly charge or independently purchase a modem/router, and a one-time High-Speed Internet activation fee applies. A one-time professional installation charge (if selected by customer) and a one-time shipping and handling fee applies to customer's modem/router. General - Services not available everywhere. Have not have subscribed to CenturyLink Internet service within the last 90 days and are not a current CenturyLink customer. CenturyLink may change or cancel services or substitute similar services at its sole discretion without notice. Offer, plans, and stated rates are subject to change and may vary by service area. Deposit may be required. Additional restrictions apply. Recapping the weekend of basketball

Well, last week's column turned out to be shorter than I realized; bet you were surprised and grateful. I'll try not to make up for it this week. But after watching the finals of the girls' state basketball tournament, which were some of the closest finals I have ever seen, I must quote one of my favorite philosophers, Theodore Gesell, aka Dr. Seuss; "Don't cry because it's over; Smile because it happened." That will be my advice to my grand daughters, too, as I attend one more music concert this evening.

Did you notice last week that the six teams in the three smallest categories were all from northeast Nebraska? What does that tell you about the athleticism in the area? And, furthermore, they beat up on each other all season, and then hope they get to state, while playing in some of the toughest districts. Wild cards help that situation a bit, and that is how Pierce has made it for four years in a row, winning it

I drove to York on Sunday afternoon. My cousin had let me know that her mother, my last surviving aunt, and also my godmother, would be celebrating her 95th birthday, which was on the first. Since kids from Arizona and Oklahoma would be there, I thought it would be a good time to see everyone.

My Aunt Flora is really an amazing woman. A farmer's wife with an eighth grade education, she raised eleven children, two sets of twins. That meant a big garden, of course, and quite a lot of cooking and canning. My uncle also milked cows, which I can believe would be almost

The upstairs in their house was makes it to one hundred.

Anyway, it was all exciting, with one big dorm style room, with the boys at one end and the girls at the other. They all graduated from Bradshaw High, and about half went on to college. Everyone had good jobs, and most are now retired. I really don't know how many grand children and great grands there are now; I'm not sure Flora knows! I do know that each child has received a crocheted bedspread, and I have one, too! She also crochets beautiful clothes for dolls, and has them displayed in a cabinet. She also reads a lot, swims at the local senior center, and two weeks before the birth date, drove for the patrolman and passed her license renewal! At Christmas, I get a hand written note in my card. Before I had a couple kids, I used to say I was going to keep up with her; obviously, I changed my mind.

She really is an amazing gal, and a role model for me, but there is no way I will ever keep up with her. God bless her soul! I hope she fixture and install the LED lamp. tion. Typically, the retrofit requires disconnection and possible removal of the ballast, then direct wiring between the lamp and the AC power coming into the fixture.

LED replacement lamps, also rethe old fluorescent tube and install the new LED tube. However, this simplicity comes at the cost of being dependent on the longevity of the original ballast, which will likely require replacement before the end of the new LED's life. Also, this approach is usually the least energy efficient, as some power is still being consumed by the old ballast. With retrofit LED lamps, ballasts are removed from the fixture or bypassed, and the sockets or "tombstones" that hold the tube are wired directly to the line voltage. Typically only one socket is rewired and the other socket is left in place to hold the lamp in place. Many fluorescent fixtures have shunted sockets so often times you will need to replace the socket that is being rewired to a non-shunted socket. Retrofitting may also require installing an external LED driver if the newly selected LED lamps do not contain internal (inside-the-tube) drivers. While retrofits with external drivers tend to provide better energy efficiency and retrofit flexibility, they often require additional time for installation.

While replacements and retrofits both offer energy savings, there are additional advantages to LEDs over

- Mercury Free - Unlike fluorescents, LEDs contain no mercury. This makes more them environmentally friendly.

 Dimmable – Many LEDs have full dimming capabilities, whereas fluorescents are expensive to dim and do so poorly.

- Occupancy Sensors - Expected lamp life for LFLs is significantly reduced the more it is switched "on-and-off." This is especially true when occupancy sensor switching is used to control fluorescent fixtures with instant start ballasts. However, LEDs are not impacted at all by frequent switching.

- Directional Lighting - LEDs offer directional light (illumination exactly where it is needed). Fluorescents have multi-directional light, which means some light is lost in the fixture and other unnecessary Quality Light – Today's LEDs produce light in a variety of color temperatures (warm white to cool white) similar to fluorescent but do not have any flickering issues that can happen with LFLs.

– Lifespan – The average life of a T8 LED is 50,000 hours, versus only 30,000 hours for an average T8

 Shatterproof – LED T8 tubes traditionally were made using plastic and aluminum, meaning they are shatterproof. Though there are now glass options as well, which mimic the look of T8 fluorescent lamps, the majority are still made of shatterproof material.

How NOT to play hooky at home

You're already tired of all the garbage going on in politics, and I'm tired of telling you why four more years of Republicans and Democrats is the last thing America needs. Let's put that all aside this week and run gleefully through the "Bits and Pieces" file:

- For those kids in the audience who are giving thought to playing hooky from school, here's a quick lesson, courtesy of a guy in eastern Pennsylvania who will be doing time for trying to pull a fast one on authorities.

The man had filed more than 30 lawsuits, claiming that he was severely njured at his job. He told authorities he couldn't walk or hold a glass of water, and couldn't pick up papers he was being served by authorities at

The ruse was working quite well – right up until the moment investiga-

fors using surveillance footage found the man raking his lawn, pulling a hand cart, dumping debris, using a power saw and climbing up and down

The court in Bucks County, Pennsylvania sentenced the man to 1-23 nonths in prison for perjury.

- Want to make every other guy in school feel like a jerk on Valentine's Day? Follow the lead of a young man in Utah who made the day special for every girl in his school.

The young man saved his money from part-time jobs for more than a year and wound up buying 900 carnations from an online flower wholesaler, then gave each girl in his school a flower for Valentine's Day.

The young man said he was inspired after noticing that some girls in his schools didn't receive anything on the romantic holiday, so he bought the flowers and had about 20 friends process and cut the 24-inch stems.

My guess is this young man isn't going to have a problem getting a prom date – although I'm sure his date will have to stand in line when it comes time to dance.

- How about this for a good case of "sibling rivalry": two brothers in Pennsylvania each received checks from the Florida Lottery after cashing in winning tickets together.

One brother picked up a check for $7, but his brother's was a little bigger - as in $291.4 million.

The man had been on vacation when he bought the ticket and didn't check the numbers until he'd flown back home to Pennsylvania. When he was eating at a local diner the following morning, he found out he had the ticket that matched all six numbers to win the big prize.

The man bought the ticket with two other friends, and the three of them flew to Florida to claim their winnings. They'll each get about $40 million

- My apologies in advance for the forthcoming item regarding Kim Kardashian, but it was just too good to pass up for those of us who have long since tired of the do-nothing family full of media whores.

Recently, Kardashian's husband hacked her Twitter account and posted a nude selfie that had been taken a year ago. The post prompted many to reply, and the home run post came from Bette Midler, who said "If Kim wants us to see a part of her we've never seen, she's gonna have to swal-

Kardashian tried a weak comeback, suggesting Midler post nude selfies of herself if it wasn't already past her bedtime, but by then Midler had already dropped the mic on the bubble-headed showoff.

- Annnnnd finally, on a more serious note, justice was served in a Tennessee courtroom recently when a jury of five men and seven women awarded TV sportscaster Erin Andrews $55 million after she was subjected to sexual assault thanks to Marriott Hotels and a sick, twisted pervert who was able to film video of Andrews in the nude in her hotel room when she was in Nashville for a football game back in 2008.

The perpetrator of the crime, who had already done time in jail and been fined for the attack, was declared to have been 51 percent liable for the attack on Andrews, while the hotel chain's ownership group was found to be

The only thing more disgusting than the act of rigging the peephole of her hotel door to film her was the efforts by the defense to paint her as a golddigger who was using the video to try to further her own career. I don't know how it's possible for someone with that twisted a mind to be able to sleep at night after attempting to shame a victim in such a manner. Lawyers like that, in all honesty, need to be hung in a public square.

Kudos to Andrews on winning the court case, and continued prayers for finding peace in dealing with this assault.

Capitol View

Property tax debate continues

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

Plans to cap annual increases in statewide agricultural land valuation have won the support of Governor Pete Ricketts but brought opposition from some municipalities and appears to have created mixed reaction among farm groups. All this as lawmakers try to solve a decades-old property tax problem in a short session. It's a daunting task at best, but an impossible one with a Legislature more prone to quibbling than cooperating.

Grand Island Sen. Mike Gloor introduced the 3 percent cap for the governor in LB958. The measure would affect aggregate agricultural and horticultural land valuation increases and tighten spending limits on local governments to slow property tax growth. Gloor said the intent is to slow down the valuation increase and slow the growth of locally levied taxes.

Gloor's bill would remove some exclusions from levy and budget limits, including the ability of a political subdivision - other than schools - to approve a levy in excess of its limit during a meeting in which more than 10 percent of the subdivision's registered voters are present. The use of restricted funds for capital improvements, sinking funds and inter-local agreements would also be limited to the 3 percent cap in 2017.

There appears to be no argument with the 2013 Tax Modernization Committee, a joint interim study of the Revenue and Education Committees that Nebraska relies too heavily on property taxes to fund K-12 education. The disagreement comes in finding a way to fund education and lower property taxes. Gloor said his plan could result in a variety of increases or decreases in property valuation assessments.

Ricketts testified in support of the bill with the understanding that any property tax relief plan must include limits on local government spending.

Steve Nelson, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau, said he and money. supports the bill because Nebraska commercial property owners. Nebraska Farmers Union President John Hansen spoke in opposition to the bill, saying the 3 percent assessment limit could result in an overcorrection of agricultural land valuations over the next 10 to 15 years.

Lincoln Mayor Chris Beutler opposed the bill, saying spending limits would devastate some political subdivisions by removing budget flexibility. LaVista Mayor Doug Kindig spoke against the bill because of the imposed limitations on interlocal agreements, which have allowed his city to grow. Nebraska Association of County Officials President Robert Post opposed the bill because limits on sinking funds would prevent counties from making unforeseen but necessary purchases of equipment without going to a popular vote, which takes time to a more permanent solution. Wahoo Sen. Jerry Johnson's bill (LB940) would freeze valuations on all classes of property for three years at their 2016 levels unless lawmakers pass a law to reduce the percentage of school funding provided by property taxes. Tax credits would remain the same during the freeze and political subdivisions could increase their levy limits only if the state budget grows.

the end of the freeze, assessed values would increase by the same perbudget from year to year. If there is no reform in place before the end of the stabilization period, assessed values would increase by the same percentage as the increase in the state budget from one fiscal year to the next. Johnson said he hopes the stabilization period would give The Revenue Committee is also lawmakers time to pass comprehenfarmers and ranchers pay a dis- considering a couple of stop-gap sive tax reform that would reduce possible in a short legislative sesproportionate amount of property measures that could be implement- the dependence on property taxes to sion.

Nebraska Association of County Officials Executive Director Larry Dix said he is against the bill because it doesn't consider land use changes during the stabilization period Senator Mike Groene ment that assessors use a five-year comparable sale history instead of the current three-year formula.

These appear to be good ideas. But none will be the hoped-for panacea without the necessary study, debate and compromise that is clearly not

Last week I commented on the fact that we seem to have senators that are missing for key votes. Having senators abstain from voting is nothing new - in fact, it is often considered a "polite" no vote. Senators being absent from debate and votes altogether seems to be more prevalent this year. Last week on a bill that was fairly important, there were only 41 senators present to vote. There were eight senators gone. There are three or four who are serious repeat offenders. I guess maybe I am a little old school, but it seems to me that if you take a job

City Survey

The City of Wayne Planning Commission and

the Wayne Community Housing Development

Corporation are working together on a Comprehensive Planning Project to determine the present and future needs of the community. The finished product will give guidance to the leaders of the community on what Wayne needs for business, housing, and recreation opportunities as well as other items. The most important part of this project is input from those worked with a consultant to create four separate surveys that can be completed on-line by going to www.cityofwayne.org. They are Citizen survey,

Workforce Housing Needs survey, Continuum of Care for the Elderly survey, and Student Housing Needs survey. The plan Wayne develops will be highly dependent upon the information and opinions we receive from the public. We would appreciate your input and need the surveys completed by Monday,

March 28th. If you prefer to fill out a paper copy of the surveys they are available at City Hall at 306 Pearl

Today's Youth are the future of programs, youth gain a clear understanding of their role in civic affairs and are able to build their decisionmaking ability.

> Citizenship is having the knowledge, skills, attitudes and motivation that give youth the capacity to move beyond one's individual selfinterest and to be committed to the well-being of some larger group. It is important to instill citizenship in youth so they are aware and involved when it comes to engaging in any type of governing body.

A great way to help youth grasp this concept is through 4-H clubs, councils and community service

> Congratulations Young Lady! Dolores Erwin turns "90 years young" on Monday, March 14!

Help Dolores celebrate this special occasion in two ways: 1. Send her a card of celebration or 2. Better yet, find time before or after her birthday on March 14 to stop by and visit her. SHE LOVES VISITORS! Just don't stop on Sunday, March 13 - that will be a special family time.

projects. By youth engaging in clubs, councils or community service projects they gain the skills, experience and confidence they need to emerge as effective leaders and contributing members of society. Youth who engage in citizenship and leadership projects as well as being a member of their local 4-H club and/or 4-H council exposes them to important issues and helps them learn how to effectively make decisions.

of any government and one of the easiest ways to have your voice heard, hold elected officials accountable for their decisions and to have a say on important issues that affect your community. People may not vote because they are uncomfortable with the voting process or are not up to date on the current candidate opinions on issues.

One of the ways to help people feel more comfortable with the voting process is by being exposed to it. If youth are involved in 4-H projects or are members on a board or club, they have a chance to listen to both side of an issue and make an informed decision and vote. The 4-H curriculum has over 150 projects available for youth to engage in. This is proof that everyone is different and has different areas of interest and strengths. Having so many different types of people in this world is a good thing because it takes all kinds of people to make the country and the world work.

Every person has a unique mixture of strengths, some are good at math or science and others are good at music or art but we need all types of people and their strengths to make a difference.

Sometimes when in a group setting people tend to only want to be around those that are similar to how they are, however it is truly better to have all different types of people with different personalities, qualities and strengths in a group. This way in any club, board or other governing body there is a lot of different perspectives and all are important to hear ask questions before Voting is such an important part moving forward with any decision.

By being a part of a club, council or service project youth gain skills that they will use throughout their entire life such as problem solving and decision making, how to manage resources, how to work in a group and how to communicate and relate to others. By having the understanding, confidence and drive to want to be a leader our youth will be able to become good leaders of their peers. Today's youth are the next great leaders for our country and our worlds. 4-H, club leaders, volunteers and parents let's continue to help today's youth as they are the future of the United States and

Is God asking you to 'get out of the boat'?

In Faith

Pastor, Calvary Bible Church

One of the most famous yet intriguing stories in the Bible is the account of Jesus walking on the water described in Matthew 14:22-33. Jesus sends his disciples out in a boat to cross to the other side of the Sea of Galilee while he stays behind and prays. The disciples find themselves caught in a storm that was tossing their boat around on

Around 3 a.m., Jesus came walking on the water to where the disciples are struggling in their little fishing boat. Jesus is not only walking on water, which is impossible for human beings, he is walking on the waters of a raging sea. As Jesus approaches the boat the disciples become frightened because they think Jesus is a ghost. I imagine that most of us would have a similar reaction to seeing a person walking

Jesus speaks to his disciples to calm their fears, "Take courage, it is I. Don't be afraid." What follows is truly extraordinary. Peter in his typical outspoken fashion immediately says, "Lord if it is you tell me to come to you on the water." Who in their right mind would ever think to ask such a question? Asking Jesus to get in the boat with them would certainly be reasonable. Asking Jesus to help them manage their situation might be expected. But to ask Jesus to tell you to walk out on the water in the middle of a storm is certainly a ridiculous request. What follows is equally unexpected. Jesus tells Peter, "Come."

Most messages I have heard on to continue to walk on the water. boat and watch someone else take tually failing.

But what even ask Jesus to allow us to walk is usually overlooked in this story is this statement, Then Peter got down out of the boat, walked on the water and came toward Jesus. Is that not amazing? Peter actually walked on the water of the raging

A Word

By James Seal

What we sometimes miss in this power, and character of Jesus. story is the faith that Peter had in Jesus. It was the faith to believe that if Jesus said he could walk on water, then at Jesus' command he actually could walk on water. It was the faith to believe that no matter how ridiculous the request, if Jesus says you can do something then you actually can. If Jesus says he will of failure. give you the ability to accomplish something, then in his strength you are able to do it.

faith? How many of us are willing to culated risks. In other words, you take that kind of risk? How many try to take out all the uncertainties this story focus on Peter's inability of us would just rather stay in the so that there is much less risk of ac-

They emphasize the fact that Peter the risk? How many of us are too on the water?

You see, I don't think that was Peter was the failure in this story: it was the eleven who stayed in the boat who did not have enough faith to even ask. Peter certainly had his sea and came toward Jesus. Who blunders but he also had a willingness to take great risks for God because of his faith in the person,

> Some of you reading this article are by nature risk takers. You don't mind taking a risk even if you fail because you see your lack of success, not as a failure, but as a lesson learned. You know that if something is going to get done, somebody has to take action even at the risk

Some of you reading this article are more like me. You don't take a lot of risks and when you do they How many of us have that kind of are very carefully thought out, cal-

Still others just don't take risks but would prefer to remain in the comfort of the boat. These people have made their boat as safe and comfortable as possible and avoid even putting their boat in water that has the potential of a storm. Comfort, safety, and security are their life goals. The fear of failure or the fear of criticism has paralyzed their willingness step out of the boat.

Complete trust in God is what Christ followers are called to exercise. Without faith in God and sometimes faith in the impossible, life can become quit boring and rou-

What is God asking you to do that requires you taking a risk? Where has God called you to go that you are unwilling to go? Is there something you know you should do yet your fears have caused you stay in the boat?

God has called believers in Jesus Christ to trust him completely even when it does not make sense. God has called us to follow Christ as our example. God has called us to set aside our personal preferences, our comforts, and our fears and surrender our lives to Him, trusting Him

Is it time for you to become a wa-

Yet most of us know that most significant change is not accomplished without taking a risk. Risk is required to have faith. If we are certain of the outcome, then no faith is required. It is only when we trust God and step out on the waters of uncertainty that we accomplish things of eternal value.
