Inauguration Day at WSC

Dr. Marysz Rames officially takes reins as college's 13th President

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

With a crowd of students, faculty, alumni and community leaders looking on, the 13th President of Wayne State College was formally inaugurated Friday at Ramsey Theatre.

Dr. Marysz Rames had the ceremonial medal placed around her neck by Nebraska State College System Board Chairperson Michelle Suarez as she officially became the next leader of the 106-year old institution, promising to "write the next chapter" in the school's history of learning and growth.

Rames was welcomed by a number of school, state board and local officials prior to delivering her inaugural address.

Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain, who served on the search committee to look for the next college leader, said Dr. Rames immediately stood out to him as he looked over the resumes of those who first applied for the job.

"Looking through all the candidates we reviewed, there was one that, to me and some others, immediately stood out above all," he said. "She always scored high, and when we got to the interview process and had six wonderful candidates, it really reinforced my feelings that much more. When it got down to the final three, Dr. Rames stood out above all else."

Several of those who spoke made light of her energy and enthusiasm in improving the quality of the campus.

"The Foundation has worked with Dr. Rames the last 10 months, and she's certainly made an impact," Jerry Carlson, Wayne State Foundation Board of Trustees president, said. "She's very good at identifying projects that the foundation can assist with."

Stan Carpenter, chancellor of the state college system, echoed Carlson.

"You are right," he said, drawing laughter from the audience. "Dr. Rames has a lot of enthusiasm, and we've seen that already."

Adrian Minks, a 1968 Wayne State graduate, delivered the alumni response and said the college is lucky to have Dr. Rames as its new leader.

"I have had a chance to get to know her as a leader and an individual, and she is great on both counts," she said. "She has a style that suits Wayne State College. She has a lot of great ideas and the leadership to make them happen. She has already initiated programs and facilities that will benefit students and the entire state, and I look forward to the growth and improvements she will bring to my beloved alma mater."

Dr. Peggy Gordon Miller, President Emeritus at South Dakota State University, was Dr. Rames' mentor and said her energy will spark a new chapter in the history of Wayne State College.

"With new leadership, the college becomes new again," she said. "I can tell you a bit about what you can expect from your new leader, because I've known her throughout much of her outstanding professional experience. I've had the pleasure of watching her do this. She brought all she had to the table . . . during her tenure at South Dakota State. She accomplished it with vision, great ideas, heart and endless work, strong knowledge of funding projects, and student support."

After thanking the state college system board for the opportunity, Dr. Rames discussed her life growing up and how she and her sister are first-generation college graduates. She relied on the words of a past graduate of Nebraska Normal College — now Wayne State College — noted author John G. Neihardt.

Neihardt came to this college as a young man without the means to fund his education," she said. "Armed with tenacity and courage, and a dedication to his learning, he embarked upon a journey that would prove to be transformational not just for him personally, but for the many people who have since gained powerful insights into the Midwest and its inhabitants through his poetry and prose."

Reservoir plans are criticized

County landowners speak at NRD meeting

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District has maintained that it is nowhere near ready to build a reservoir anywhere in the area.

That didn't stop an overflow, standing-room-only crowd of more than 250 people — many of them Wayne County landowners — from passionately expressing their opposition as last week's LENRD meeting.

The LENRD board met at the Lifelong Learning Center at Northeast Community College to discuss a reservoir evaluation project conducted by Olsson Associates that evaluated 10 creeks in the district for potentially being turned into a reservoir.

While such a project would take the better part of a decade to build, the fact that they were even being considered drew the ire of those in attendance, and several from Wayne County were on hand to express their objection to one being built at Dog Creek, located in the northern part of Wayne County.

Perry Nelson, a Wayne County landowner and graduate of Wayne High School and Wayne State College, flew into town from his home in Louisville, Colo., to object to the possibility of a reservoir on his property.

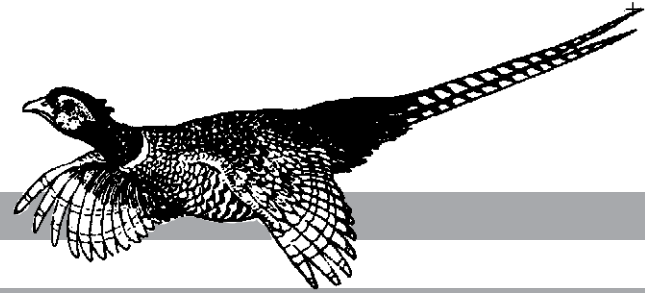

"I'm just appalled," he said. "I can't believe we have an organization that wants to spend 45, 50 or 100 (thousand dollars) to

Safe drinking water is our business - It's Drinking Water Week through May 7

When Nebraskans turn on their taps, they expect their drinking water to be clean and safe. That's why the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services' Public Water Supply Program ensures the state's 1,344 public water systems are tested for a total of 83 contaminants on a routine basis.

"Protecting public health through water quality, that's my business," said Howard Isaacs, administrator of the DHHS Office of Drinking Water and Environmental Health. "We've been seeing a lot of headlines about drinking water lately and fortunately Nebraska is sitting in a pretty good spot."

Public water systems provide water to approximately 80 percent of Nebraskans. Private domestic wells provide water for the rest. More than 90 percent of the state's public water systems use ground water sources. A handful of systems get drinking water from surface water sources.

Many water sources have such good water quality that it can go straight from the ground to the tank to the tap without any sort of treatment according to Isaacs.

The Office of Drinking Water's role is to inspect every public drinking water system in the state, make sure samples are collected, monitor results, ensure systems are in compliance and if there are issues take appropriate enforcement action.

Public water systems must sample their water either monthly, quarterly, annually or on a three, six or nine year sample cycle and more frequently if there are issues. An administrative order is issued when a public water system is significantly out of compliance. In 2015, twenty-eight public water systems received administrative orders.

The big four - most common violations:

- Total Coliform Bacteria
- Nitrates
- Arsenic
- Selenium

To correct those violations, water systems can switch to a different source, connect to another public water system meeting water quality standards, blend a source meeting standards with the source not meeting standards or treat the water.

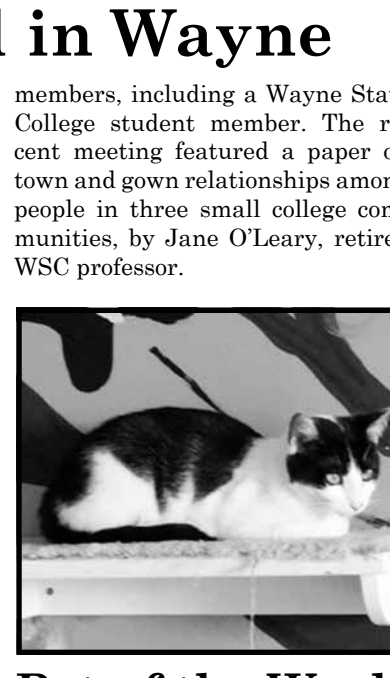

"The Nebraska Rural Water Association provides critical training and technical assistance to communities and water operators throughout the state and shares the same goal as DHHS - water quality and safety are priority one," said Tom Goulette, President of the NeRWA Board of Directors.

Currently, no systems in Nebraska have high lead levels. However, homes, businesses and schools can have high levels of lead in drinking water even if the public water system is in compliance. Isaacs said that those higher lead levels can occur because of actions taken inside the building like using a water softener or renovations that disturb the plumbing.

Not every home in Nebraska can be sampled so it's important for homeowners to consider testing on their own if they have a concern.

Tips to reduce the risk of exposure to lead:

- Test your water. Call your local water system, the DHHS Public Health Environmental Laboratory or a private lab. A small fee may apply.
- Run your water for 15-30 seconds or until water temperature stabilizes before using it for drinking or cooking.
- Use cold water for cooking and preparing baby formula. Lead dissolves more easily into hot water.
- Don't drink or cook with softened water.
- Clean the screen on your tap every few weeks. Unscrew the head and remove any debris.
- Get your child tested for lead if you are concerned about exposure. Contact your local health department or your health care provider.
- Learn more about drinking water testing and safety - dhhs.ne.gov/publichealth/Pages/enh\_pwsindex.aspx.

The Northeast Area Jazz Ensemble practices as they get ready for a special Mother's Day concert this Sunday at the Majestic Theatre in Wayne. The theatre and Sand Creek Post & Beam are co-sponsors of the Mother's Day event.

Mother's Day concert at Majestic

Sand Creek Post & Beam and the Majestic Theatre in Wayne are sponsoring a Mother's Day event at the theatre on Sunday, May 8.

Beginning at 2 p.m. the Northeast Area Jazz Ensemble will be performing a Big Band Jazz Concert, which is free to the public.

All moms in attendance will receive a free rose.

Northeast Area Jazz Ensemble (NAJE) has been in existence since 1980. It was started by the late Jim Boullion, who was a longtime Band director at Northeast Community College.

It is a traditional big band with five trumpets, four trombones, five saxophones, and a rhythm section of piano, bass, and drums. The group meets weekly to rehearse and plan performances around the area. All concerts are performed with the idea that donations will be collected for music scholarships at Northeast Community College.

The members of the group are all volunteers and no one gets paid. These volunteers come from all walks of life including doctors, dentists, engineers, teachers (college, middle school and high school), and retired people. They just all share a love of music in general and jazz music in particular.

Among the members are three Wayne State College music instructors, Dr. Josh Caulkin, Dr. Karl Kolbeck and Kathi Angerth. A number of the other members are Wayne State College graduates.

NAJE can boast four original members who still perform, while only three people have actually led the group in its 36 year history.

"This Mother's Day concert is being sponsored by Sand Creek Post and Beam, so admission is free and open to the public. The group will be performing songs from the Duke Ellington Library, the Count Basie Library, the Buddy Rich Library, and "standards" such as Indiana, and Bye, Bye Blackbird," said Kevin McLouth, music instructor at Northeast Community College who serves as director of the group.

"We would love to fill the house on Sunday and encourage everyone to attend. If you like music, jazz music, good jazz music, or just want a little something different and special; I heartily recommend stopping by and checking out the program," he added.

Inauguration

"Neihardt rang the college bell every hour of the school day as payment for his education and honored Professor James Madison Pile, the founder of our college, by making an indelible mark on the world," she continued. "And the beauty of Wayne State College is that each class sends a new generation of bell-ringers out into the world: students who worked their way through school and who have gone on to become business and community leaders, medical professionals, teachers, soldiers, and parents, all of whom serve as powerful examples of knowing what to do with life when, as Neihardt said, 'we are in possession of the means to live it.'"

"As I have attended numerous alumni events and regional receptions I have met many of these bell-ringers," she added. "Wayne State is fortunate to have such loyal alumni and friends. It has been a joy to meet many of you and hear your heartwarming stories about the impact the College has had on your lives."

Dr. Rames quoted a number of former alumni who used words such as "rewarding," "supportive," "encouraging" and "enduring" to describe their experience at the college, and she looks forward to working with the students, faculty, support staff and alumni of the college.

"It is an honor to support and encourage our students every day," she said. "I am filled with excitement to continue to help our students reach their goal of earning a degree from Wayne State College. I am here today to not only recognize the strength of Wayne State students, but to ask you to join me in pledging that we will continue to hold them accountable to a high standard. Our students are not only fortunate to have a student-centered campus but also a strong community invested in their success. Looking back on that summer day in July when I started as President, I was struck with the strong relationship between the campus and the Wayne community. Together we build a vibrant living and learning environment."

Rames said the next few years will be an important time in the school's history, and the college must be prepared to meet the needs of those who will make Wayne State College their college choice.

"As we embark on this next chapter, we must recognize that in the next three to five years, there will be an increase in the number of first-generation, low-income students from underserved populations wishing to pursue a college degree," she said. "Through our commitment to accessibility, affordability, and student success, Wayne State is in a unique position to provide these students with a transformational learning experience that will serve as a gateway of opportunity. Not only will these students earn a degree in their chosen area of study, but they will also learn resilience, responsibility, creativity, compassion, and humility, which are directly connected to the liberal arts education associated with the College's academic curriculum."

The college must look for alternate ways to deliver education to students in the area and solidify the offerings and interests of students in rural and urban communities that the college serves.

"The root of our efforts here is simple, but the work complex," she said. "We are here to provide students with a quality, personalized educational experience that is accessible and affordable and partner with our region to advance our common goals. It is a great honor to be part of the work we are called upon to do in order to continue the forward-thinking trajectory begun here so many years ago."

"As we approach the 125th anniversary of our College, I am reminded of our founder James Pile and his vision of our 'little college on the hill,' dedicated to renew, to adapt, and to meet the needs of each new generation of learners. Together, as we write the next chapter for Wayne State College, let us name it in honor of one of the most innovative, creative, and passionate Wayne State College graduates, John G. # Mayor, city hear from rural residents on NRD

Of The Herald

After several city officials last week expressed a desire to see continued study on a proposed NRD reservoir project, they got an earful from landowners in the Dog Creek area at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

With a standing-room only gathering inside the already-tight council chambers, the Wayne City Council heard testimony from area landowners about a proposed reservoir that would flood land around Dog Creek, located north and west of town.

Mayor Ken Chamberlain, one of five city officials whose e-mails were read by NRD officials at last week's meeting, set to diffuse the situation before the public spoke.

"I know there's a lot of frustration with e-mails and letters sent by council members and myself," he told the audience. "I have had conversations with a few of you before that meeting, and I have not gotten in front of anybody banging the drum saying we need to build a lake. There's a lot of questions that need answered and a lot that I don't believe (anybody) has answers for."

Chamberlain said he believes some of the reasons for the study on the reservoirs comes from Lincoln and Omaha city officials wanting to address their own water issues, and that he was in favor of the study only to get some of his questions answered.

"Omaha pulls half of their water out of the Missouri River, and it costs money to treat that water," he said. "Omaha and Lincoln have 85 percent of the population and 75 percent of the Legislature, and if they want something they're going to get something. I don't think these questions get answered without that study, and that's why I was in favor of study."

Eight rural residents spoke to the Council about their concerns with the NRD's perceived push to build a reservoir on Dog Creek, including Wayne County Commissioner Randy Larson, who echoed many of the comments he made at last Thursday's NRD meeting in Norfolk and expressed concern for the work the county has done to improve its infrastructure - work that would be underwater with the proposed reservoir.

"It's been our goal to accelerate rebuilding of the infrastructure to catch up to increasing size of farm equipment," he said. "There would be additional expenses as well regarding personnel and equipment for the sheriff's department, and we have no desire or intention of closing these roads or modifying infrastructure that we're trying to build."

Councilman Cale Giese, another city official whose e-mail was read to the overflow crowd at last week's NRD meeting, echoed Chamberlain's thoughts on the study.

"We're going to see this again and it's good we shoot it down now, but need to come up a long-range plan for this," he said. "I'm pro-study, not pro-reservoir. Anybody who is pro-reservoir is simply being foolish, and I thought you guys did a tremendous job speaking. I wrote a letter to the NRD and it got taken out of context, and I'm also writing a letter to the editor to the Wayne Herald as well."

Scott Sievers told Chamberlain and the Council that his only frustration with the city officials' communication to the NRD was that it didn't follow the Wayne Area Chamber of Commerce's position, stated at the NRD meeting by Irene Fletcher, that they would have a neutral stance on the project.

"There's already enough animosity between farmers and city and this would have been a great opportunity for you to remain neutral and wait for more information," he said. "The study is being done for the NRD, so we're going to find a study to be in favor of NRD and if you don't believe that you're kidding yourselves. I would be for a study that's not for one company - this study is going to be one-sided."

Chamberlain said he felt his comments were neutral in nature, but by not saying it directly the message was taken out of context.

"There are certainly some things I missed that I could have said," he admitted.

Another agenda item that drew interest from outside city limits were resolutions that would have raised sewer and water rates to those the city serves outside of city limits.

Currently, those outside city limits pay double the city rate for sewer and water, and a suggestion to study the rates and determine the best route for the city to take was made by Giese and councilman Matt Eischeid.

"I think we need to revisit (the rates)," Giese said. "We're extending services outside city limits, and who is bearing those costs? It will cost money to hire a consultant, but then we would have the data to back us up."

Several rural residents who are connected to city water and sewer agreed, stating that the city would be better served to spread the rate increases out to help them generate the revenue they would need to administer and do upkeep on the infrastructure.

While no action was taken on those rates, the Council did move on a resolution to amend electric rates, noting a need to take care of some infrastructure improvements as part of the most recent 10-year comprehensive plan. A 6.5 percent increase was suggested, and the customer service charge for residential rates will go up 82 cents, from $12.57 to $13.39 a month. Charges for the first 700 kilowatt hours and each additional kilowatt hour over 700 will also see an increase.

The Council also amended the city's municipal code to address barking dog complaints. Police officers now can issue a citation for dogs barking after 11 p.m. after three minutes of continuous barking. The old code gave a 10-minute limit.

The board awarded a roofing replacement project on City Hall to Guarantee Roofing for $40,095, while tabling a bid on the Wayne Community Activity Center's parking lot project. The Council also approved an amendment to the city's one- and six-year street improvement project to add a 100-foot extension of pavement on Windom Street and approved the annexation of the Kardell East 14th Street Addition.

The City Council's next meeting is Tuesday, May 17 at 5:30 p.m.

County repeats opposition to Dog Creek NRD reservoir

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners expressed their objection at Tuesday's meeting to sacrificing recent infrastructure work for a proposed reservoir in northern Wayne County.

Commissioner Jim Rabe was not in attendance at Tuesday's meeting, but board members Dean Burbach and Randy Larson both expressed reservations to a proposed reservoir along Dog Creek that would flood bridges and road work the county has only recently improved with taxpayer support.

"I think we've got to protect our roads and bridges," Burbach said, thanking Larson for comments he made to the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District at their meeting last week in Norfolk. "Your comments summed it up pretty good."

The county recently repaired three bridges in the Dog Creek area at a cost to taxpayers of $1,578,722.48. In addition, four bridges that are in the area have a 100 percent efficiency rating, and Larson said he's not interested in losing those roads and bridges in the proposed area.

"It really affects the county," he said, noting that the county would have to hire additional law enforcement and pay for additional equipment and training to patrol a new reservoir. "Not only that, but it really affects Wayne County farmers."

The county board had a limited agenda, highlighted by the opening of bids for the Haun Bridge project near Carroll. Five bids were received, with the low bid submitted by Dixon Construction of Correctionville, Iowa, for $554,129.70.

Three of the five bidders noted they could start work on the project in the spring of 2017, while two others said they could begin work yet this year. K2 Construction of Lincoln, which had the second lowest bid at $597,273.50, noted that it could begin construction yet this month and have it completed by the end of September. Kea Construction of Milford also noted a 2016 start date, stating it would start the project in October and complete it in January of 2017. Their bid was $702,004.15.

County road manager Mark Casey told the board that final cross sections of the Chiefs Way and Centennial Road projects could be completed by the end of this week. A couple of landowners in the area have yet to be contacted, but he said he thought that would be completed before the week is out.

Emergency Manager Nic Kemnitz talked to the board about some mobile applications for smart phones that could be used to assist in disaster situations, and Larson encouraged Kemnitz to look for a mobile tablet that could be used with the software. Kemnitz was also congratulated by the board on being named Nebraska's Emergency Manager of the Year.

The county board's next meeting is Tuesday, May 17 at 9 a.m. in the county courthouse.

go get some other funds that we don't know we're going to use yet. That's crazy," he said.

Nelson said the well used by the City of Wayne is about a mile from his farm, and he said his well was dug only 16 feet before hitting water.

"That aquifer is full," he said. "How are you going to recharge a full aquifer?"

Shari Dunklau said her family has owned land along Dog Creek for more than a century, and they also don't want to see that land turned into a reservoir.

"A lifetime has been invested in building our operation," she said.

Dunklau challenged the notion that a reservoir would take care of flooding issues in the area.

"Wayne's airport is an official (NOAA) weather reporting system, and . . . it reports no floods on Dog Creek," she said. "The report your experts gave you doesn't say Dog Creek floods. It doesn't have a history of flooding. There is no reason to build a dam on Dog Creek to prevent flooding. In fact, it would do the opposite and you would create flooding."

Wayne County Commissioner chairman Randy Larson also spoke out against the proposed Dog Creek reservoir concept, stating the county has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxpayer funds to reconstruct bridges and improve roads in the county where the reservoir would be located.

"I can't speak for the other commissioners, but it's safe to say that I have no desire or intention of closing any roads or modifying any infrastructure we are trying to rebuild," he said, adding that the proposed reservoir would cover three bridges the county completed just last year, along with four county roads that have a 100 percent efficiency rating.

Dairy farmer Doug Temme said his family has owned land in the targeted area for almost 80 years, and he questioned the need for another recreation area with so many within a short drive of Wayne.

"In 2012 during the drought, we were asked by Ikes Lake if we would pump water from our well into their lake to prevent fish kill," he said. "We used over $1,000 worth of fuel and they only raised $500, so we donated the rest. If a current fishing spot a few miles from Wayne can't raise $1,000, how bad is (a reservoir) really needed? There are 10 public recreation areas within an hour's drive of Wayne, many of which are under-utilized."

Temme added that he talked with a convenience store owner in Pierce who asked if the nearby Willow Creek Recreation Area had made a difference in his business, and he said that it hadn't.

Temme said the area landowners should not be penalized for the inability of those downstream to conserve water, particularly in the big cities.

"We strive to conserve water (here)," he said, "and with all that pavement and parking lots that make up the 220 square miles of the cities of Omaha and Lincoln, how much (water) do they let run away? If they aren't willing to conserve water and save water, why should we have to do it for them?"

Temme said that a significant amount of the revenue and taxes that are generated from the farm land being targeted by the Dog Creek project will be lost.

(Photos by Michael Carnes)

David Loberg (top) and Shari Dunklau were among more than a dozen Wayne County landowners who stated their objections to a proposed Dog Creek reservoir project during last week's meeting of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District in Norfolk.

"Taking our prime farm land is like killing the goose that lays the golden egg," he said. "You say it will take about 1,000 acres, but the pool area is twice that, and that generates $150,000 in property taxes and, even with today's low crop prices, produces $2 million worth of grain. Our dairies produce 2 percent of the milk in Nebraska, which amounts to $5 million in sales. Voting for the Dog Creek project, or any other project, transfers our youth and our wealth-generating ability to Lincoln and Omaha. I ask you, please don't sell us down the river."

While opposition expressed during public comment was unanimous, LENRD director Mike Sousek did read correspondence sent to him by Wayne Mayor Ken Chamberlain, City Councilman Cale Giese and City Administrator Lowell Johnson, all of whom were in favor of further study of the Dog Creek project.

"I completely understand the hardship this may cause some or all of the property owners affected by the construction of this site, and it would certainly be my hope, that all of the property owners would be treated and compensated fairly," Chamberlain was quoted. "That being said, as Mayor of Wayne I cannot ignore the potential economic benefit, as well as other benefits for Wayne should this project move forward. The tax dollars generated in Wayne and the Wayne area are obvious, but there are other benefits as well. One of the other major advantages to this project would be the continued recharge of the city well field, the aquifer north of Wayne in the potential area, I believe is one of the largest in the state, and it is the sole source of water for the community of Wayne. I believe it would also benefit neighboring, ag producing property owners, particularly in dry years. With a constant source to recharge our aquifer, they should have more freedom to run their irrigation systems when it is a dry year."

Giese said in his e-mail that there were "too many benefits" for the city and the area to not pursue further study, citing the reduction of the flood plain around the city, increasing of water recharge for the city's wells, the need for water recreation in the area, the economic benefits and Wayne State College's future growth potential.

Sousek said that, while the issues surrounding the initial study still exist, the idea of further study on potential reservoir projects will likely be put on the back burner for now. Even if one were approved, it would be the better part of 10 years before a reservoir would become a reality.

"We're not going to build all of them, but we need to figure out where's the best bang for the buck to accomplish as many goals we can to meet these issues that we're facing," he said.

That being said, one site has not been picked, nor was one suggested at Thursday's meeting.

"The maps produced were conceptual in nature. There is no study done to say this is where the dam will be and what the body of water will look like," he said.

WSC wins third 7's title

Barner has built rugby juggernaut

I never know where I'm going to find Darrin Barner after he wins a national championship.

When the Wayne State rugby team captured its first-ever 15-man national title back in 2012, Barner just missed his flight home from Philadelphia – the team had left on a bus a few hours earlier – and decided to visit the famous Rocky Balboa statue in the city's art district. He was enjoying a celebratory cigar and talking with some of the locals when I called.

On Sunday, my timing was perfect, as the team had just made a stop to get a bite to eat before leaving town with their third straight NSCRO 7-on-7 national title. They opted for a little hole-in-the-wall soul food restaurant near the site of their latest national championship conquest.

"Oh man," he said, gushing over a stew-type dish that, he thought, contained chicken. "That food was almost better than winning the title. I'm bloated."

This winning national championships thing is becoming old hat for the mad scientist who has built a dynasty in the last place most rugby fans would think a championship-caliber program could be built – in the middle of the country, on a small college campus in a small town called Wayne, America.

The Wayne State women's rugby team has become quite the gridiron juggernaut. Barner is the Barnum & Bailey of the sport, recruiting kids who have never SEEN a rugby match, much less play in one, with a simple pitch – give the sport a try, and if you enjoy it and are willing to learn it, you can be part of the team.

Many of the kids who go out for rugby are kids who played sports in high school, but were not the kind of kids most college coaches would go after to compete in football, volleyball or basketball. Not tall enough, not big enough, too fat, too slow, yadda yadda yadda (with the exception of Sam Warneke, a former Wildcat soccer player). But even though they aren't the kind of kids who can play at the varsity level, they've still got a lot of competitive fire left in them and are willing to take that energy and desire and try out a new sport – and are doing quite well for a bunch of kids who had never played the game before.

Throw in a passionate coach who, even as he approaches 50, still has the energy of the 19, 20 and 21-year-old kids he's coaching as your coach, and the potential for something special has most certainly manifested itself into one of the nation's best women's rugby teams (and the guys aren't too bad either, finishing fifth last year and just missing out on a trip to the Elite Eight this year).

Wayne State had several close calls before finally breaking through for their first 15-on-15 national title back in 2012, and they backed it up with another title in 2013 before turning their attention to the growing 7-on-7 game (which will be featured in this summer's Olympics in Brazil). Barner recruited some fantastic young ladies who were not only physically gifted, but driven to succeed. They mirrored the passion for the game their coach has exhibited, and the payoff has been quite impressive these last five years.

For many years, Barner has worn multiple hats in an effort to make this program a success. He's beat the streets for donations from the community, done all of the legwork to make their annual 80-team weekend tournament a huge blow-out (and turn an otherwise-sedate spring weekend into a huge weekend economic boon for the community) and has probably spent more of his own money on this program than we can even begin to fathom. I get tired just watching him work the phones and adjust schedules the week of the annual rugby tournament.

And when these teams make it to the big show to play for a national CHARLOTTE, N.C. – Sometimes, an ugly win is better than an elegant defeat – especially when it leads to a national championship.

The Wayne State women's rugby team claimed their third consecutive 7-on-7 national title Sunday with a 20-0 win over Colorado College Sunday in the National Small College Rugby Organization championships, overcoming a rough semifinal match to post a dominating win to cap a three-peat in the NSCRO sevens competition.

Wayne State beat Lee (Tenn.) University 19-5 in an ugly semifinal match, then dominated play against Colorado College to claim the school's fifth national championship in as many years, adding a third straight 7-on-7 title to the 15-man titles they won in 2012 and 2013.

"We couldn't have played any more horrible, the semifinal was that ugly," coach Darrin Barner said by phone on the team's return home Sunday evening. "It was humid and we had water standing on the field from the rain that morning and nobody could catch the ball. We had plenty of opportunities to score, but we couldn't catch anything."

The wet fields due to heavy rains early Sunday morning made ball handling a challenge, but the Wildcats were able to get on the board first in their matchup with Lee University with a good play to the right side that found Sam Warneke with room to move, and she used her speed to sprint about 60 yards for the first score of the game midway through the first half.

Wayne State quickly made it 10-0 on the next series, using a Lee penalty to advance the ball quickly. Jasmine Kovacs took advantage of a free kick situation and raced 30 yards for a try. Warneke's point-after kick made it 12-0 at the half.

Lee scored quickly to open the second half after a Wayne State knock-on penalty to make it 12-5. Lee was able to control the line of scrimmage in the second half, but Wayne State's defense held them out of the try zone after that, moved the ball out toward the middle of the field and put the game out of reach late, swinging the ball out to the far side and taking advantage of Lee being bunched up in the middle, with Warneke taking the ball about 40 yards for an insurance try and advance to the finals.

"I thought we'd come this far and hadn't played great yet, so before the final we talked about how we hadn't played our best game yet," Barner said. "On paper, Colorado College was probably better than us, but they only crossed midfield once and we played really well and our three-man back rotation was really solid."

In the championship game, Wayne State faced a team very similar in style in Colorado College.

Wakefield's Dylan Hurlbert splashes down in the pit with a medal-winning effort in the long jump at the Norfolk Track and Field Classic.

Area athletes shine at Classic

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

NORFOLK – All five area schools came away with at least one medal competing with the best of the best in Northeast Nebraska at Thursday's Norfolk Track and Field Classic at Norfolk High School.

Highlighting the day was Wayne High sophomore Kylie Hammer, who won the long jump to highlight a four-medal day. Her winning jump of 16 feet, 7 1/4 inches won by just over an inch, and the top four jumpers all were within 2 1/4 inches, with teammate Tarah Stegemann taking fourth at 16-5.

Hammer also medaled in the triple jump, tying for fourth, finished sixth in the 100 and just missed out on a win while anchoring the 1,600-meter relay, finishing third by less than a second behind Humphrey St. Francis and Crofton.

Stegemann was one of three Wayne High girls who earned multiple medals for top-six finishes. She was also on the 1,600 relay. Gabi Meyer was fifth in the 800 and was on the 1,600 relay as well.

Savannah Nelson of Wakefield was also a double medalist at the Classic, taking fifth in the long jump and fourth in the 400-meter run.

The area did well in the throwing events, as Wayne's Danica Schaefer placed third in the shot put, while Jenna Trenhaile was second and Kelly Tweedy of Winside placed sixth in the discus. On the track, Lexi Oswald of Allen was third and Jamie Dolph of Wakefield finished fifth in the 3,200.

In boys' action, Malik Knox of Laurel-Concord-Coleridge had the biggest medal haul among area athletes. He finished an impressive third while running out of Lane 8 in the 200-meter dash, and also finished sixth in the 100 and anchored the 400-meter relay to a sixth-place finish.

Wildcat athletes honored at banquet

Wayne State College honored its athletic accomplishments, both on the field and in the classroom, during Monday's annual Honors Banquet at the Frey Conference Suite.

Alyssa Frauendorfer (volleyball) and Bryan Dunn (track and field) were honored as the female and male Athletes of the Year. Frauendorfer earned third-team All-America honors in helping the volleyball team win its first-ever regional title and advance to the Final Four of the NCAA Div. II volleyball tournament. Dunn earned All-American honors in indoor track and field, placing sixth in the weight throw at the Div. II Indoor Nationals.

Freshman Athletes of the Year were football player Taylor Reedy and softball player Emily Chandler. Reedy came off the bench early in the year after starting quarterback Zach Osborn went down with a season-ending injury and completed 146-of-286 passes for 1,538 yards and 10 touchdowns with four interceptions, capping the season by being named Egg Bowl MVP and play-

Loos gets Player of the Year

Six Wildcats on All-NSIC teams

Six Wayne State softball players were named on the postseason honors list for the Northern Sun Conference, led by Player of the Year honoree Lexie Loos.

The senior outfielder was unquestionably the toughest out in the NSIC this season, finishing second in hitting with a .466 average and fifth in on-base percentage at .496 in league games. Counting all games, she leads the NSIC in hitting (.466), hits (89) and runs scored (58) and is second in on-base percentage (.505) and eighth in total bases (102).

Loos became the all-time school leader in career runs scored, scoring her 158th run against Concordia-St. Paul to surpass the 156 of Amy Sandstrom. She is also third all-time in hits at 247, trailing Sandstrom's all-time mark of 257.

Also receiving postseason honors was senior second baseman Morgan Hoeg, who was tabbed the Newcomer of the Year in the NSIC. Hoeg, a transfer from Austin Peay, batted .321 in league games this year and was fifth on the team in doubles with 10 and she had 10 multi-hit games this season for the 27-24 (21-9 NSIC) Wildcats.

Four Wildcats were named to the NSIC's first-team All-Conference squad, with a fifth making the second team. First-team honorees were Loos, junior Melanie Aleya, and freshmen Abbie Hix and Emily Chandler. Senior Cassy Miller was named to the second team. Aleya ranked third on the team with a .384 and played first base this season. She was eighth in the league in doubles (14) and ninth in slugging percentage (.470) while finishing 12th in hitting (.384). Her 14 doubles led the team and she was third on the team in hits (53), multi-hit games (17) and mutli-RBI games (6).

Softball team ends season, goes 0-2 at NSIC tourney

The Wayne State softball team saw its 2015 season come to a close with a pair of losses in the Northern Sun Conference tournament Thursday in Sioux Falls, S.D.

In the opener, Augustana connected for six home runs to send the Wildcats to the losers' bracket with a 10-2 defeat.

The Vikings set the tone early, hitting three home runs and a double in the first four at bats to take a shocking 4-0 lead.

Wayne State scored both runs in the top of the fifth when Caitlin Fehringer led off with a homere to center field and Morgan Hoeg walked and scored on a Lexie Loos double.

The Wildcats were held to three hits in the contest, two coming from Loos, who was 2-for-3 with a double and an RBI. Cassy Miller took the loss, allowing seven runs on eight hits over four innings with one strikeout and two walks. Shelby Wobken worked the final 1 2/3 innings and gave up three runs on six hits.

In the losers bracket, the Wildcats couldn't get the bats going as Sioux Falls eliminated Wayne State with an 11-1 defeat.

Sioux Falls scored two in the second, three in the third, four in the fourth and two more in the fifth. The Wildcats' lone run came in the fourth when Emily Chandler hit a solo homer to center, giving her a school-record 53rd RBI for the season.

Chandler's homer was one of four hits in the game, with Loos, Fehringer and Sam O'Brien also adding hits. Miller took the loss, charged with five runs on six hits in 2 1/3 innings. Wobken closed out the game, working the final 2 2/3 innings and allowed six runs (four earned) on seven hits.

Wayne State ends the year with a 27-26 record.

Olympian featured at Winside camp

The Winside Wildcat Volleyball Camp will feature a former Olympian as its camp clinician.

Tom Sorensen, a member of the 1996 U.S. Olympic volleyball team, will be featured at the camp, which runs June 27-28 at Winside High School.

The camp is open to girls in grades 3-8. Grades 3-6 will run from 9 a.m.-12 p.m., with grades 7-8 going from 6-9 p.m. in the Winside High gym.

Registrations are due Wednesday, May 18. For more information, e-mail Christine Shoff at cshoff@winsidewildcats.org.

Ruggers

a team that was able to match the Wildcats' speed and agility.

The Wildcats moved the ball deep in Colorado College territory, switched the field and found Alex Feeley for the first try of the game about three minutes into the first half for a 5-0 advantage.

Four minutes later, the Wildcats increased their advantage to 10-0, stealing the ball out of the ruck and moving the ball to the left, where Jasmine Kovacs took the ball the final 10 yards for the score.

The Wildcats almost had a third score at the end of the half. Kovacs took the ball within two yards of the try zone and was brought down hard. Colorado College was issued a yellow card and had to play two minutes minus one player. Wayne State wasn't able to take advantage of the 7-on-6 advantage. Faith Sorensen scored on a pass from Kovacs, but the goal was not allowed due to an illegal forward pass.

The Wildcats cashed in on the man advantage early in the second half. A couple of strategic kicks led to a line out situation, and the Wildcats scored on good ball movement, with Leanna Rosberg taking it the final five yards for a 15-0 advantage.

The Wildcats put the finishing touches on their third straight national title late in the first half, taking the ball down the far side and scoring on a 10-yard run by Feeley, making it 20-0 and giving the Wildcats the national championship.

"It was a pretty special moment for these girls," Barner said. "They beat Ohio State and Iowa State this year, and when we're playing well we are one of the best teams in the nation. We weren't quite clicking on all cylinders this weekend, but we saved our best for last and played well when we had to."

All-tournament team members from Wayne State included Warneke and Kovacs. Kovacs was named the tournament MVP.

Alex Feeley tries to run past a Lee University defender in the NSCRO 7-on-7 national tournament in Charlotte, N.C. The Wildcats won a third straight national title with a 20-0 win over Colorado College.

"Jasmine is our Magic Johnson," Barner said. "She creates everything in the back line, and if that's covered she just takes it herself. She's an unselfish player and creates a lot of 2-on-1 situations and finds the open man. She's the best passer I've had in 15 years."

Barner also noted the play of Warneke, Feeley, Sorensen and Kelsey Stutzman, all of whom played key roles in the Wildcats' run to a third straight title.

"Sam is a former Wayne State soccer player and has a lot of great speed on the outside," he said. "Alex played well defensively and made some great tackles, and Faith is only a freshman and has great speed for somebody her size. She's tough to break down and has a lot of endurance and really has a promising future. Kelcey also ran things well for us and had a really nice long run."

The Wildcats opened tournament play Saturday by winning their four-team pool, going 3-0 with wins over California University of Pennsylvania (35-5), Usinus (27-5) and Endicott College (26-10).

They had the No. 1 seed in the eight-team elimination bracket and opened quarterfinal play Saturday with a 30-7 win over Usinus, taking advantage of some key turnovers to build a 15-0 halftime lead. They added three more tries in the second half to advance to Sunday's semifinals.

Juggernaut

tournament, it's not just a bus drive down, a couple of walk-through practices and then it's game time. Over the last few years, this team has had an opportunity to visit Congress, see the Rocky Balboa statue and visit a number of other historical monuments. They've toured the Army's plush rugby center in Maryland, and this year were able to tour the Billy Graham library and the home of the NFL's Carolina Panthers (thanks to former Wildcat football player Glenn Sutton, who is the stadium's head of security). It's become something of a field trip, with a chance to win a national title as an added bonus.

Some will try to dismiss this run of success, saying it's not a sport recognized by the NCAA, and it is those individuals who miss the point of what this program has done - not only for Wayne State College and the community, but for the young men and women who give of themselves, through their time, money and hard work, to make this rugby juggernaut something that the entire community, including Wayne State College, should applaud and be proud of.

Now, if I could just pull Barner away from Rocky Balboa for a quick interview ...

The Wayne High girls track and field team claimed their second Mid State Conference title in three years, winning the 1,600-meter relay on the final event of the day.

WHS girls claim conference

O'NEILL – The Wayne girls slipped past Boone Central/Newman Grove and Crofton to win their second Mid State Conference track and field championship in three years on Monday at O'Neill High School.

The 1,600-meter relay team of Tarah Stegemann, Kiara Hochstein, Gabi Meyer and Kelsey Boyer came into the final event needing enough points to overtake Boone Central/Newman Grove, and they got the job done with a second-place finish in 4:21.91, allowing Wayne (91) to edge out the Cardinals and Crofton (84 each) to regain the conference title they won in 2014.

"We knew going in to the last event we were down one to Boone and they were out of people, and we needed to place ahead of them," coach Dale Hochstein said. "As long as we placed higher than sixth we'd be fine, and we ended up second with a different team."

Hochstein said some moves were made in the regular lineups, including taking Kylie Hammer out of the 1,600 relay and putting her in four individual events. She came through with conference titles in the long jump (joined by Stegemann for a 1-2 finish) and the triple jump, finished second in the 100 and third in the 200.

"I know she wasn't happy with her 200 time, but picking up those points for us was big," Hochstein said. "We put people in the right place today and they did really well."

A couple of key surprises helped the Wayne cause. Stegemann was seeded third in the 400, but won the race in a time of 12:50.04. Distance runner Andrea Torres knocked more than 20 seconds off her best time and snuck in for fifth in the 3,200-meter run.

"We knew it was going to come down to some little things, and we had a number of people who really stepped up and competed hard," Hochstein said.

Wayne also did well in the throws. Trenhaile just missed the conference title, settling for runner-up honors, while Danica Schaefer had one of her better days outdoors in the shot put to finish third.

"Danica threw some of her best stuff outdoors, and Jenna battled in the discus and got second by five inches," Hochstein said.

On the boys' side, Wayne champion in Nolan Reynolds, who won the 800-meter run after a disappointing effort in the pole vault.

Grayson McBride was runner-up in the high jump and added a fifth in the long jump and a sixth in the triple jump to also post a three-medal effort for the Blue Devils.

Jack Evetovich also placed in the high jump, finishing fifth. Christian Rogers was fourth in the 100, the 400-meter relay team finished third and the 1,600-meter relay team took sixth.

Spenner wins NSIC decathlon

Josh Spenner won the Northern Sun Conference Decathlon title on Monday, earning 6,496 points and winning three events on his way to the conference crown.

Spenner won three events in the 10-event decathlon, taking first in the shot put (39-10 1/2), pole vault (15-3) and discus (124-5). He won by 375 points over James Ryan of Minnesota Duluth.

Spenner was in eighth place after the first day of the two-day event, but his big win in the pole vault helped propel him to the championship, and his 6,496-point performance ranks 20th in NCAA Div. II this season.

Robert Sullivan placed sixth in the event with 5,993 points. Sullivan took second in the 110-meter hurdles (15.35), tied for third in the high jump (6-4 1/4) and was fourth in the shot put (37-5).

The finishes gives Wayne State's men 11 points and the early lead heading into the NSIC Track and Field Championships that will be held next weekend in Sioux Falls.

Allen teams finish high at Ponca

The Allen track teams ran out of numbers when it came to the Ponca Invitational last Tuesday. The Lady Eagles racked up 131 points, but ran out of people to enter into events, which kept them from challenging for the meet championship. The boys scored 85 points, six behind runner-up Winside, with limited numbers, but in the end, the depth factor determined the outcome. Nonetheless, the Eagles continue to find surprises, and some continue on a path to improvement. "The teams performed above average, but not at the level we had one week ago," coach Dave Uldrich said. "We still have things to clean up, correct, and hopefully it will all come together in the very near future. We are getting closer to meeting our team expectation, but detail will determine whether or not that does occur. Good job today teams, keep working."

Headlining the day for the girls squad were three individuals. Kaylen Smith picked up three firsts in the 100, 100 hurdles and 300 hurdles. Lexi Oswald won the 1,600 and 3,200 and ran a season-best 800, finishing second. Bethany Kneiff shattered career marks in the 1,600 and 3,200 and also ran a leg on the 3,200 relay. Gabby Sullivan added the other gold medal performance of the day for Allen, winning the high jump. The boys had one individual gold medalist, Kyle Smith in the 110 hurdles. The boys 3,200 relay also won gold. The Eagle boys were heavy on second-place finishes with four individual performances - Taylor Kumm in the 1,600 and 3,200, S.T. O'Keefe in the 800 and Kyle Smith in the 300 hurdles. Every single male and female athlete collected at least one medal on the day.

Wildcats sweep Mustangs, stay in hunt for postseason

The Wayne State baseball team swept a four-game series with Southwest Minnesota State to keep hope alive for making it into the conference tournament later this month.

Freshman Mitch Ragan fired a four-hit shutout in Friday's opener while Aaron Krier drove in four runs in the second game to lead Wayne State College in a 9-0 and 10-3 sweep over the Mustangs in Alexandria, Minn.

The games were originally scheduled to be played in Wayne but were moved to Knute Nelson Memorial Field due to rain in northeast Nebraska.

The opener saw Wayne State use a seven-run fourth inning to go with superb pitching from Ragan to register their first shutout of the season.

Wayne State opened the scoring with two runs in the second on an Alex Krefit RBI single that scored Albert Johnson, while Tanner Simons crossed the plate on an SMSU error for a 2-0 lead.

The Wildcats erupted for seven runs in the fourth on five hits and three Mustang errors. Big hits in the inning came from Krefit with a two-run double and Curtis Bussard with a two-run single.

Ragan was solid as he fanned seven batters without issuing a walk in the four-hit shutout win, improving his season mark to 3-2.

Wayne State had 12 hits, led by senior first baseman Albert Johnson who was 4-for-4 with a double and two runs scored to extend his season-best hitting streak to 18 games. Bussard ended 3-for-4 with two RBI while Krefit was 2-for-3. Aaron Krier added a double and drove in two runs.

The second game saw Wayne State score five runs in the fourth inning while junior pitcher Matthew Wood struck out nine batters in six innings of work to give Wayne State the sweep.

Wayne State took a 2-0 lead in the second on Krier's two run double that scored Brandon Fowler and Nick McIntee.

The Wildcats pushed five across in the fourth inning on seven hits. Bussard's two-run double was the big hit in the inning along with an RBI double from Bodie Cooper and a run-scoring single by Fowler.

After Southwest scored in the sixth on a solo homer, Wayne State scored three in the bottom of the seventh to take a 10-1 lead on a Cody Jenkins two-run single. The Southwest scored two in the eighth to close out the scoring.

Wayne State cranked out 13 hits in the win. Krier finished 2-for-2 with a double and four RBI to lead a balanced attack. Tanner Simons was 2-for-5 with a double and two runs scored followed by Fowler going

2-for-3 with two runs scored. Jenkins finished 2-for-4 with two RBI with McIntee scoring a team-high three runs.

Matthew Wood (3-3) notched the pitching win with six strong innings, striking out nine batters while allowing just one run on four hits. Relievers Mitch Savine, Matt Faulkner and Joey Greco each worked one inning of relief.

The Wildcats completed the weekend sweep of Southwest Minnesota State with wins of 15-14 and 10-6 on Saturday.

In the opener, Wayne State scored in every inning to win a wild, high-scoring battle.

The Wildcats used bases-loaded walks by Johnson and Simons to offset two first-inning runs by the Mustangs. In the second, Wayne State scored two but the Mustangs scored six in the top of the third to take an 8-4 advantage.

Wayne State tied it at 8-8 in the bottom of the third, thanks to a three-run homer by Krier and an RBI single by Fowler. They made it 10-9 in the fourth thanks to RBI groundouts by McIntee and Kraft.

Southwest retook the lead 11-10 in the fifth, but the Wildcats reclaimed the lead with Simons' grand slam homer to make it 14-11.

Southwest tied the game with three in the sixth, but Bussard's RBI double scored Krefit with what proved to be the winning run as Bussard came on in relief to get the win.

Bussard and Krier each had four hits to lead a 17-hit attack for the Wildcats. Bussard scored three runs and Krier had four RBI's. Simons had two hits and five RBI's and Krefit and Fowler each had two hits.

In the nightcap, Wayne State connected on four home runs and got good pitching from Dalton Smith to finish off the sweep.

Krier's two-run homer in the third gave the Wildcats the lead for good at 3-1. Jenkins and Cooper hit back-to-back homers in the fourth, and Johnson extended his hitting streak to 21 games with a two-run homer in the fifth. McIntee added a two-run single in the sixth and Chris May's RBI single in the seventh closed out the scoring.

Krier led a 14-hit effort with four hits and scored four runs. Johnson was 3-for-5 with three RBI's and May had two hits and scored two runs. Dalton Smith got the win, striking out 10 in five innings of work.

Wayne State (13-24, 10-12 NSIC) played at Minnesota State Wednesday and closes out the regular season this weekend with a Friday-Saturday doubleheader at Upper Iowa.

W/W baseball gets second win

The Wayne/Wakefield baseball team made it a two-fer on Monday as they closed out the regular season with a 9-6 win over Thurston-Cuming County in action at Hank Overin Field.

The second game of the day was rescheduled due to rain last week, and the locals jumped on the visitors for six runs in the first two innings to take control of the game.

Zane Jackson got things started with an RBI double to left, scoring Isaac Camarena, who had doubled earlier in the inning. Mason Lee, running for Jackson, later scored on a bases-loaded walk to Tyler Lutt, Caden Korth followed with a free pass that scored Tucker Nichols, and Noah Braun scored on a sacrifice fly by Justin Dean to make it 4-0.

After the visitors scored one in the top of the second, Wayne/Wakefield put up two more as Lutt singled home Camarena and Lee scored on an error. They added another run in the fifth on Micah Sprouls' sacrifice fly, scoring Korth, and finished it off with two in the sixth on a Braun RBI double and a Lutt sacrifice fly.

Jackson had two hits to lead an eight-hit attack and Lutt had three RBI's in the win. Four of Wayne/Wakefield's eight hits went for extra bases, as Camarena, Korth, Jackson and Braun all had doubles. Julio Sanchez pitched five solid innings, striking out five and scattering seven hits to get the win.

In the first game of the day, Wayne/Wakefield scored in the bottom of the first inning, but couldn't keep the lead late as visiting Arlington came back to post a 5-1 win.

Wayne/Wakefield drew first blood in the first, taking advantage of an Arlington error to bring Brennan O'Reilly home for a 1-0 advantage.

Great pitching by Adam Bentjen and solid defense kept Arlington off the board until the sixth, when they put together back-to-back doubles to score a pair of runs and take the lead. The Eagles added three insurance runs in the seventh to go on to the win.

Braun's fourth-inning single was the only hit of the game for 2-15 Wayne/Wakefield. Bentjen threw well in a losing effort, allowing just four hits in six innings.

Wayne/Wakefield opens play in the B-6 district tournament at Orval Smith Field in Ralston on Friday at 5 p.m., taking on GACC/Scribner-Snyder/West Point-Beemer in a 5 p.m. matchup.

Ky Kenny to play in Masonic all-star band

Wayne Chapter No. 194, Order of the Eastern Star of Wayne, has awarded a 2016 Masonic All-Star Marching Band scholarship to Ky Kenny, a sophomore at Wayne High School. Kenny is the son of Joe and Kelly Kenny of Carroll.

The Masonic All-Star Marching Band Camp is a one-week camp held in conjunction with the Nebraska Shrine Bowl on the campus of the University of Nebraska in Kearney. Nebraska Blue Lodges, Eastern Star Chapters, Shrine Clubs, Scottish and York Rite Bodies, individuals and companies sponsor high school band students from all over the state to attend this first-rate marching band camp.

Selection was based on evidence of talented Nebraska high school band students in their freshman through junior years with experience in at least one marching band instrument. The Masonic All-Star Marching Band Camp provides an excellent experience for Nebraska youth, while assisting in the mission of the Shrine Bowl - "Strong Legs Run, that Weak Legs May Walk."

Kenny is involved in marching band (clarinet), jazz band (tenor saxophone), participates in honor bands, jazz choir, speech, mock trial, one acts, and the musical. He is a member of the Spanish Club and FBLA, and is on the honor roll. Activities outside of school include 4-H, Sharp Shooters, piano and as a volunteer at the Tenderheart Animal Rescue Shelter.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Why have I been here this long? Blame my mother

This is all my mother's fault.

I've been managing editor of this newspaper for almost seven years, and if you're looking for someone to blame for my long tenure here, there are a number of people you could point the finger at – starting with my mother.

This is something that is almost 50 years in the making. It was around this time way back in 1966 that my mother gave birth to me, setting in motion a chain of events that led to my arrival here at The Wayne Herald in the summer of 2009.

It was my mother who, along with my father (who probably should share equal blame in this, but this is a Mother's Day column, so we're pinning all the rap on her this week) brought me into this world, fed me, clothed me, nurtured me and kissed my boo-boos (except for the one time when my younger sister sucker-punched me and gave me a bloody nose – my mother is STILL laughing that one off).

It was my mother who sat up nights worrying about me when I was late coming home from a friend's house. On those nights when I went out partying and drinking myself into an altered state of consciousness (or lack thereof), she would be there to gently remind me that alcohol is bad for you and will kill you if you're not careful.

When I started out in the newspaper business, my mom would sometimes be my sounding board. I would occasionally read an editorial to her and gauge her thoughts on the topic I was writing about.

"Are you SURE you want to refer to the mayor as a 'verbally incoherent, drunken, knuckle-headed train wreck, son?'" she would ask.

And then there was the one time she actually talked me out of taking a job as a sports editor for a small daily newspaper.

"Why in the world would ANYONE want to live in Goodland, Kansas? That dump is a zillion miles from civilization. I wouldn't see my granddaughter until she was 20," she opined. (And, yes, I DID turn down the job offer.)

In later years, she has offered a strange mix of solid wisdom and annoying suggestions on everything from upkeep on my house ("you need to get off your lazy butt and lose some weight – maybe you should go out and mow the lawn") and financial advice ("stop playing poker at the casino and put your money in a good stock, like Enron") to socializing and romance ("you need to find a girlfriend, get married and settle down so your house doesn't look like somebody dropped a bomb in the middle of it").

And my publisher, Kevin Peterson, has never come out and admitted it to me, but I'm pretty sure that my mother called him on the phone sometime after Memorial Day in 2009. I'm sure the conversation went something like this:

Mom: Kevin, my son lives on the other side of the planet in Ogallala. Do you have a job that he could take so he'd be close enough that I could keep an eye on him?

Kevin: How about janitor?

Mom: Do you have something that isn't THAT complicated? He graduated in the middle of his class and did a lot of drugs in the 80's, so he's not really all that intelligent.

Kevin: What about managing editor?

Mom: Perfect – he won't have to think that much.

In retrospect, it's probably a good thing that Kevin offered me this job so that I could be closer to my dear mother. This year, she celebrated her 70th birthday (although she INSISTS she's only 40 and will slap anybody who argues with her . . . and trust me, she has a WICKED right jab, one that she obviously taught my sister), so having both of her children within a short driving distance is important to her, whether it's spending time with her grandchildren (and great-grandchild) or needing somebody to remind her that she needs to take her Metamucil so she stays regular (sorry for that visual).

In all seriousness, my mother is a wonderful human being, one that has had a profound influence, not only on my life, but on the lives of other mothers in our family, from my sister to my daughter (the latter of whom, I swear, believes her grandma sits on the right side of the Almighty, whereas her parents are well down the chain of command). I can't imagine life without her (especially if I'm ever needing to be bailed out of jail a SECOND time) and I want to wish her – and all the mothers out there – a happy and joyous Mother's Day this weekend.

Capitol View

That awkward interim time

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Join us once again fellow Nebraskans as we enter that awkward time of the year, the months between the Legislature adjourning and the football season starting. Waiting for the focus to shift from 14th and K (the Capitol) to One Stadium Drive (the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Memorial Stadium) – about 12 blocks – can seem like an eternity.

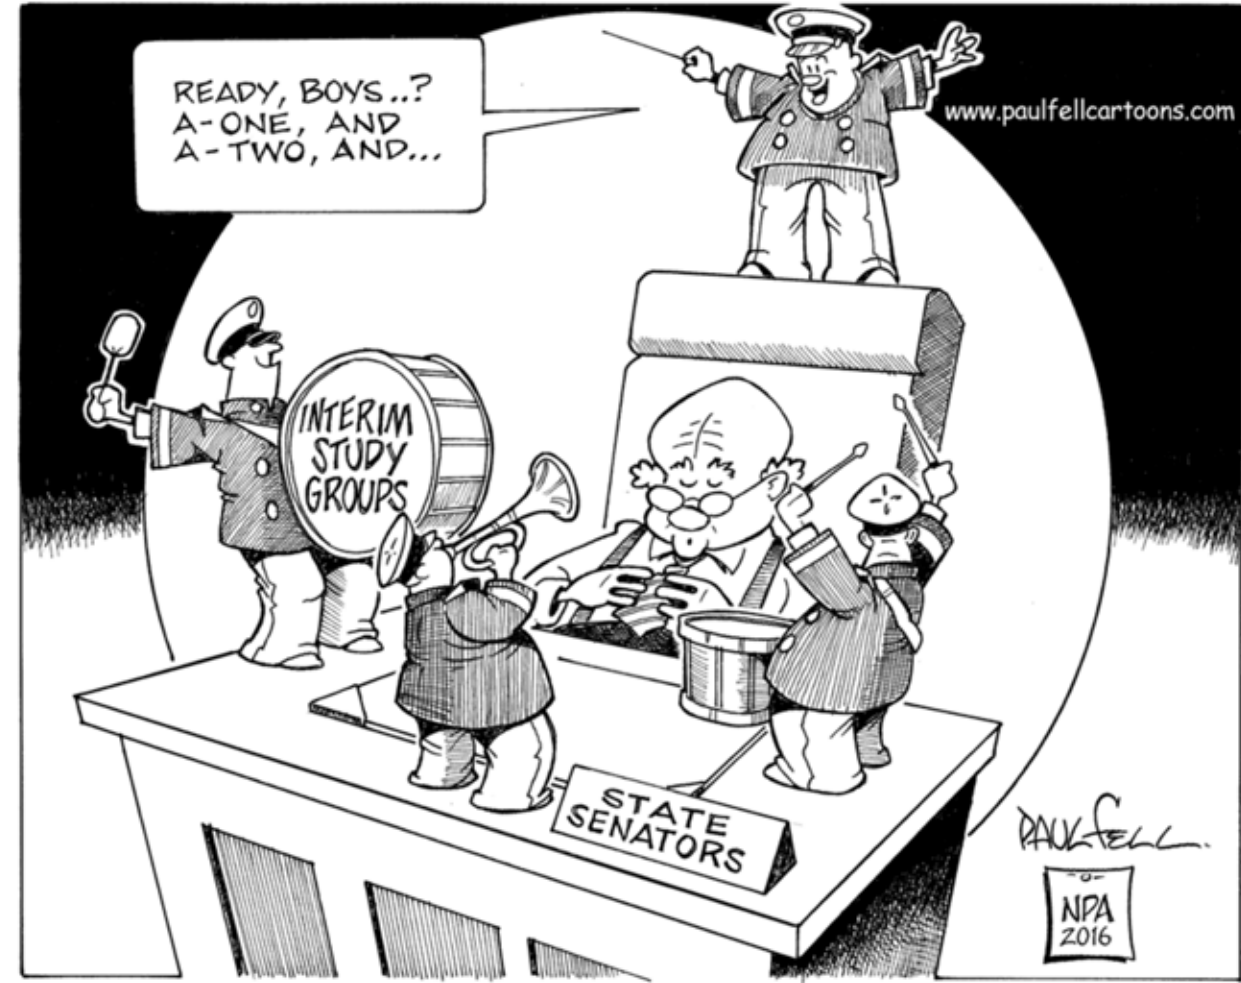

It seems to go more quickly during an election year, what with all the campaigning by the state senators in the odd districts and a national presidential election, but there's still a lot of space to be filled. Enter the Legislature's standard fallback, the interim study. The topics have been introduced during the session by various lawmakers and committees. Most of them are pretty important things to ponder.

The work of the interim study committees often provides the source for proposed bills in the next session. There are a few high profile committee studies that seem to earn the headlines. Think corrections issues and tax revisions. Here is a sampling of what's being considered.

Climate change and its impact on Nebraska will be the subject of a special study committee of the chairs of Appropriations and Natural Resources and five senators at-large selected by the Executive Board of the Legislature.

Promoted by term-limited Sen. Ken Haar of Malcolm, an outspoken advocate of alternative energy, the study will examine issues related to the impacts of climate change including assessments of vulnerability, risks, and economic impacts. The committee will also examine opportunities, including methods of producing food, generating power, or protecting land and water that can be used to adapt and mitigate the impacts of climate change and provide jobs and economic benefits to Nebraskans.

Other studies are follow-ups to issues that were discussed but not activated. Agriculture Committee Chairman Jerry Johnson of Wahoo has proposed a study to examine the Nebraska Right to Farm Act. This on the heels of a failed attempt to let voters adopt a right-to-farm constitutional amendment. Such measures are on the books in North Dakota and Missouri. Oklahoma voters will consider it. Proponents said the measure would protect the industry from emotionally charged campaigns against modern agriculture.

Sen. Sara Howard of Omaha is asking the Health and Human Services Committee to examine how to best integrate palliative care into Nebraska's overall medical care structure. Omaha Sen. Ernie Chambers failed in his attempt to get lawmakers to approve a bill to let terminally ill patients end their own lives.

Sen. Al Davis of Hyannis has asked the Revenue Committee to examine existing law governing the collection of sales and use tax on remote (buying on-line) sales. The perennial issue surfaced again this year during debate on property tax bills.

Sen. Paul Schumacher of Columbus has introduced a proposal to have the Judiciary Committee examine possible legislative reforms to Nebraska's mandatory minimum sentencing laws. That issue commonly surfaces in discussion of prison overcrowding.

The Transportation and Telecommunications Committee will study the jurisdiction and structure of the Nebraska Public Service Commission. This comes on the heels of the commission's controversial decision to hire an energy insider to direct the pipeline department.

Interim studies will also place other entities under scrutiny. At the request of Sen. Burke Harr of Omaha, the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee will evaluate the governance structure of the Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Commission.

The Appropriations Committee will examine the funding history, programs, and services offered by the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nebraska. The scope of the program has evolved from a two-person office with one doing home and one doing farm. Multiple staffers are now involved in a diverse range of activity.

Another perennial favorite has been assigned to the Judiciary Committee. Omaha Sen. Bob Krist wants a look at the effectiveness, economic stability, and long-term viability of the Youth Rehabilitation and Treatment Centers in Kearney and Geneva.

That's a lot of work between now and the end of the year, especially in an election year.

A wait-and-see approach on reservoir?

There recently has been sentiment expressed to the Lower Elkhorn NRD that we need to take a wait-and-see approach; that we should not be proactive but instead discuss ideas or study options only when a problem comes to the surface.

The reality is this: the issues that the LENRD is concerned about already have presented themselves.

They came to the surface in 2012 when water shortages were experienced throughout the district. The result of that drought is still felt today with no addition of irrigated acres in the district.

There is a general feeling among property owners in the district that we need to continue to add more irrigation development in our district. The board of the LENRD agrees with that. But we also understand the need for and importance of managing that growth.

During times of weather-related stress, the district knows it already has a problem. If we are going to continue sustainable development, we must also focus on the other half of the equation – how to keep and add water to the overall system. And what's important for everyone to realize is that at current development levels we will not be able to continue to withdraw water without making some deposits.

The LENRD is also not operating in a vacuum. Our district is one of 23, all tasked with managing the natural resource of water. What Northeast Nebraskans should be aware of is that there already is an active effort beyond the district boundaries to find water and transport it to where other needs are present.

Given that, I believe the LENRD board would be neglecting its constituents by not discussing options on how to mitigate any such plan that may come forward.

While this discussion certainly has some unpleasant and worrisome aspects, the board must keep discussing options with a mindset of what is best for all constituents in the LENRD, as well as what's best for the natural resource itself and all of northeast Nebraska.

That's why suggestions of taking a wait-and-see approach aren't practical or appropriate now. To not discuss issues that already are facing the LENRD would be shirking our responsibilities.

Mike Sousek
General Manager, LENRD

Legislative Update Primary election is coming Tuesday

The primary election is upon us. It is my hope that on May 10 every one of the registered voters in District 17 and in Nebraska will take the time to vote.

This is your opportunity to let your voice be heard on the direction that you feel your township, city, county, state and country should take. I would encourage each of you to do a little research on the candidates vying for the opportunity to represent you. Find out where they stand on the issues that are important to you. I understand that we live in a busy world and this can be inconvenient but it is important for you to know whom you are voting for before you cast your vote.

Remember, you cannot (or should not) complain about your elected officials if you do not take the time to vote and voice your opinion.

As always, if we can be of any assistance, contact our office at (402) 471-2716 or e-mail dbloomfield@leg.ne.gov.

Take your child to work day

On April 28 First National Bank of Omaha hosted 13 youth for their annual Take your Kids to Work celebration. A mix of activities were planned for the students, including games that involved teamwork, collaboration and communication. The youth had a chance to sit with their parents and learn about the work they do for First National on a daily basis. ## Be prepared for summer job interviews

Schools are getting out soon and it's time to start looking for a summer position, or maybe a position for the fall semester next year. I wanted to share a few interview "Tips for Teens" who are looking for jobs

Be Prepared

Don't just show up for the interview. The more information you have prepared in advance, the better impression you will make on the interviewer. Take the time to get working papers (if you need them) and references, before you start looking for a job. Bring the following with you to the interview:

- Completed job application (if the employer doesn't have it already)
- Working papers
- References
- Resume (if you have one)
- Note pad / pen

Be Polite

It's essential to have good manners when interviewing. Shake your interviewer's hand. Don't sit until you are invited to. Don't slouch in your chair. Don't use slang or swear. Be polite, positive, and pro-

Stanton County

Kim Bearnese
Extension Educator

UNL Extension

fessional throughout the interview.

Know Your Schedule

Know what days and hours you are available to work. The employer will ask. Flexibility is definitely an asset, because the more time you are available, the easier it is for the employer to set a work schedule. Also know how you are going to get to and from work, if you don't drive.

Be on Time

Arrive at the interview site a few minutes early. If you're not sure where to go, get directions ahead of time. If you don't have a driver's license, make sure you have a ride.

Go on Your Own

If your mom or dad brings for an interview, don't bring them into the interview room with you. Go by yourself. It's important that you speak for yourself and connect with the interviewer, without someone else's assistance.

Send a Thank You Note

Take a few minutes to thank the person who interviewed you. If you have an email address, send an email thank you note; otherwise send a paper note thanking the interviewer for taking the time to meet with you.

Attire

Applying for a teen part-time or summer, non-professional job is a little different from applying for a full-time professional position. Dress should be, at the least, neat and tidy. Business casual is usually appropriate. For example, khakis and a neat tucked in polo shirt would work well. Your shoes should be moderate and you should avoid extreme hairstyles or colors. Also, keep makeup and perfume to a minimum. No jeans or shorts, no tank tops, crop tops, or anything especially low cut (shirt or pants) or too short (skirt or blouse) - keeping everything professional is a must.

Engagement

Bennett-Schulz

Shaila Bennett and Cody Schulz are planning a Sept. 17, 2016 wedding at Grace Lutheran Church in Norfolk.

Shaila is the daughter of Kevin and Tina Borgelt of Beemer and granddaughter of Sandie Bennett and Duane Lutt of Wayne, Gaylen and Arlene Bennett of Wayne and Lynn and Marlene Borgelt of Wisner.

Cody is the son of Perry and Diane Schulz of Pierce and grandson of Kathy Otto of Adams, the late Donald Otto and Eldon and Karen Schulz of Pierce.

The future bride is a 2014 graduate of Wisner-Pilger High School. She is currently a full-time student at Northeast Community College and will graduate May of 2016.

Cody is a 2011 graduate of Pierce High School and a 2013 graduate of Northeast Community College with an Applied Arts of Agriculture degree. He is currently employed at RB Angus and Show Cattle in Albion.

Lord lifting us out of our miry clay

"I waited patiently for the Lord; He inclined to me and heard mecry. He brought me up out of the pit of destruction, out of the miry clay; He set my feet upon a rock making my footsteps firm. And He put a new song in my mouth, a song of praise to our God." (Psalm 40:1-3).

I grew up in the southwest Missouri Ozarks. The southwest Missouri soil, unlike much of the soil in Nebraska, is a sticky clay. It balls up on tires, machinery and shoes. The Ozark mud on a tire, just keeps getting bigger and bigger until the wheel won't turn in the wheel well. It becomes impossible to get the mud off, and it is very easy to get stuck in it. This is the way our Christian life is sometimes.

By nature we are sinful, and it is impossible to change our hearts and attitudes so as to not be turned to sin. We are stuck in the "miry clay" according to the words of Psalm 40. Our best efforts still leave us

By Carl Lilienkamp
Associate Pastor, Grace Lutheran Church

short, namely, sinful. It takes God's action to free us, and that's what the Psalm says. God has freed us in Christ, Jesus.

The Christian life starts with God's love. With sufficient exposure to it, we come to trust Him. That faith results again in our love for Him and each other. With sufficient faith in God's goodness and an appropriate amount of love to motivate us, we have hope in the present and for the future. As a result of our hope that things can and will be better, we act to make it happen.

Many years ago a barge sank in New York harbor. It settled to the Hudson River bottom and became embedded in the mud. The owners wanted to retrieve the expensive piece of equipment, so they brought in gigantic floating cranes. The monstrous cranes pulled until their power failed, but the mud sucked on the barge, clung to it like glue and held it . . . stuck in the muck. No man-made device could provide the power to pull it free.

Then a tugboat captain came up with an idea. Deep-sea divers attached cables to the sunken vessel. The other ends of the lines were fastened to a number of boats and empty barges and at low tide all the slack was taken in. When the tide started to rise, the bulging power of the Atlantic Ocean began relentlessly to buoy up those vessels until the sunken barge was pulled free and could be raised to the surface.

Our lives can become embedded in the mire of depression, despair and hopelessness. It is deep and sticky enough that human efforts will likely be useless. Only hope inspired by faith in the Savior Jesus, motivated by love and empowered with the irrepressible strength of God can pull us loose and bring us to the surface of life. Amen,

Minvera Club members learn about Michigan

Marian Clark hosted April 25 meeting of the Minerva Club at the Wayne Senior Center.

Roll call was incorporated into the program as each of the 12 members read a factual statement prepared by Marian Clark about the state of Michigan. President Joyce Mitchell opened the meeting by making members chuckle as she read "The Middle Wife". She also read a story entitled "The Mouse Trap".

Minutes were read and approved. Treasurer Donna Hansen gave the treasurer's report.

Historian Hollie Frese read minutes from May 7, 1923. At that meeting members presented the entertainment doing readings, story telling, etc as it was "Stunt Day". May 24, 1923 was guest day which was attended by 53 members and guests. Each member told about their favorite program from the past year.

The committee presented the program theme and topics for the coming 2016-2017 year. In observance of the club's 120th anniversary the theme will be "Minerva Through the Years/ Then and Now". Members chose the topic they want to present and the date of presentation.

Also in observance of the anniversary, a committee consisting of the Nicki Tiedtke, Joyce Mitchell, and Twyla Lindsay will prepare a window display for the hallway cabinet of the Senior Center/Library for the month of March, 2017 since March is Women's History month. The group voted that the program presenters continue the plan where the program presenters prepare the roll call topic and also a written summary of their program for the Secretary to used in the minutes.

Marian Clark gave the program about the state of Michigan. French explorers Etienne Brûlée, and his companion Grenoble, are probably the first white men to arrive on the shores of Lake Superior as far back as 1622. They were welcomed by the Ojibwe Indians to a land they called Michigama, meaning great or large lake.

The state is bordered by four of the five Great Lakes. It has the longest freshwater shoreline in the world and at least 320 islands that rise from the Great Lakes. There is the lower and upper peninsula and Isle Royale. The Straits of Mackinac separate the two peninsulas. A five mile long suspension bridge was completed in 1957 to connect them. It remains one of the longest in the world. No cars are allowed on Mackinac Island. Horse drawn carriages, biking or horseback riding provide the mode of transportation there.

Michigan was admitted to the Union as the 26th state in 1837. Two major industries are manufacturing and agriculture. Michigan has a rich history with the Big Three automakers: General Motors Corporation, Chrysler LLC, and Ford Motor Company which all began in Michigan in the first quarter of the 20th Century. Post and Kellogg cereals got their start there as well.

Ag statistics show that only Oregon grows more Christmas trees than Michigan. Many farmers raise flowers and shrubs while others produce corn and soybeans. On livestock farms you will find cattle, hogs and sheep. Michigan is a leading state in growing tart cherries and ranks high nationally in milk production. Michigan's wildlife continues to be a major asset of the state.

Tourism is a big industry as well with its abundance of waterfalls, hunting, and fishing. Some well known people from Michigan include Gerald R. Ford, 38th U.S. President, Madonna, Henry Ford, Joe Louis and Lily Tomlin.

Members will meet in the home of Susan Boust May 9, 2016 for a 12 p.m. meal and fellowship to complete the 2015-2016 year.

Confirmation ceremony

Confirmation occurred at the First Presbyterian Church in Wayne on Sunday, May 1 as seven young people became members of the church. The Rev. Sally Carlson officiated the service. Those taking part included (from left) Robert Shea Sweetland, Jon Worner, Gabriel Peitz, Madison Bear, Rev. Sally Carlson, Maysn Dorey, Maria Ras and Emily Armstrong.

Wayne Eagles auxiliary celebrates May events

The Wayne Eagles Auxiliary met May 2 with President Julie Addison presiding.

The Mothers' Day Tea and Painting Party was held May 1. Honored was Mother of the Year DeAnn Behlers. She received a fairy garden made by Julie Addison.

The Eagles Club also celebrated its 39th birthday. Honored was Ruth Korth for starting the Eagles Club with her now deceased husband, Wendell, in 1977.

Taryn Tenopir led the group in painting a teddy bear. Members of the committee were Julie Addison, Deb Moore, Taryn Tenopir and Katie Talbott.

Installation of new officers for the 2016-2017 year will be held Thursday, May 19 at 7 p.m. Anyone who has agreed to hold an office is asked to attend this meeting.

The next regular meeting will be held Monday, May 16 at 8 p.m.

Rye cover crop removal explained

Here are some comments by Paul Jasa on a popular cover crop. Cereal rye has become a common choice to reduce soil erosion and add carbon to the soil system.

Producers often ask "What's the best time to terminate the rye to get the benefits of the cover crop while still conserving soil moisture for the cash crop?" They also ask about when it's safe to plant corn into rye residue as they've heard that it's toxic to corn. Others are worried about an allelopathic effect on the growing crop as they have seen yellow corn plants emerge. With proper management, these potential problems can be minimized while taking advantage of the benefits of the cover crop.

When it comes to planting time, there is a chance of germination injury from the decaying rye residue. It may be due to the decaying green ooze that can interfere with germination of the corn seed if the first moisture taken into the seed has the leachate from the ooze. The worst time to plant corn is five to ten days after spraying the rye as the ooze leachate may be in the seed zone. To be safe, wait at least two weeks after spraying before planting corn, especially if there has been a rainfall event after the cereal rye started dying. Terminating rye earlier will conserve more soil moisture, but not result in much biomass production.

An alternative would be to plant first and spray a couple of days later so that the corn seed starts to germinate before the cereal rye dies. The rye uses some soil moisture while producing more biomass to protect and build the soil. This can also dewater wet soils in a rainy spring and provides some soil structural stability with the added rye roots to allow traffic on wet soils sooner.

Be sure to check with your crop insurance provider on the timing if you want to insure the corn crop. In established no-till systems in eastern Nebraska, you may have up to seven days after planting corn to terminate the cover crop; however, there is a risk that the weather conditions may not allow spraying in a timely matter. Further west, the cover crop may need to be killed several weeks before planting in order to conserve soil moisture.

Under irrigation, the intervals may be different, depending on the crop and the location. Again, check with your crop insurance provider.

When planting into a cereal rye cover crop, the chance of germination injury is reduced as planting depth is increased. Some producers report that they are planting corn 2.5 to 3.5 inches deep and haven't seen any germination injury. Also, the potential for injury is reduced when planting into moist soils, into continuous no-till soils with higher organic matter, and when the seed-vee is properly closed.

While some producers use residue movers to get the rye residue off the row, many prefer to leave the residue over the row to reduce crusting and drying out of the seed zone. In addition, taller rye residue may wrap around the turning residue movers, creating problems at planting time. Some producers increase their starter fertilizer rate to help get the corn off to a quicker start. Some extra starter nitrogen (30 to 50 lb/ac) may be needed for corn-on-corn and/or when planting into a rye cover crop as some nitrogen is tied up by the decaying corn stalks and rye residue, especially if the primary nitrogen application is broadcasted on the soil surface.

The tied-up nitrogen is released to the soil system later as the residue decays, but the corn may be yellow and nitrogen deficient before this occurs, affecting the yield potential. This problem is greatly reduced if the nitrogen is injected into the soil rather than broadcast on the soil surface and when extra starter nitrogen is placed near the crop row at planting time.

Some research indicates that the yellow corn is more likely the result of a nitrogen deficiency rather than allelopathy of the rye residue. This is especially observed with late applications of surface-applied nitrogen without enough rainfall to move it into the active root zone.

While planting decisions have already been made for this year, planting soybeans into a cereal rye cover crop avoids most of the problems with germination injury and early season nitrogen. However, timing of cover crop termination in relation to planting date still has to be considered for crop insurance purposes.

Not fond of planting, weeding or gardening

The Unitarian church just south of us always has interesting signs in front. This week, it says, in the spring, at the end of the day, you should smell like dirt!

I certainly understand that sentiment. There are flowers for sale everywhere, even in grocery stores and churches! Our congregation tried a plant fund raiser this year, and it did very well. The nurse at my doctor's office took a week off to plant flowers and work on the yard. She called it a vacation.

Problem is, I understand it, I just don't enter into it. Both my brother and my sis inherited the family love of growing things, and luckily, they got spouses who are in agreement with that. I think I mentioned that my last living aunt, my mother's sister, at age 95, planted potatoes last month.

It just did not rub off on me; I'm sorry. When we were first married, I tried, I really did. There was an established strawberry bed in the garden spot. I had grown up picking those things, and I love to eat them. Problem was, I didn't like weeding them, and did not know the first thing about keeping them alive. The Big Farmer did all he could; he dug the holes for the potatoes, and planted the sweet corn. We managed to keep a few tomato plants going. AND, I was happy to take care of the produce. There was never a question about that.

Even at the B and B, he had volunteer tomatoes beside the shelter belt. We bought corn from a neighbor who was another one of those retired farmers who just had to grow something.

But here, at the townhouse, I'm reduced to some pots on the patio. Some years, I clean them out and start with fresh potting soil. Other times, I'm really lazy and just use last year's. Then, I fight rabbits all summer.

I have two neighbors who share my abhorrence, but the rest of the cul de sac is out there pruning and planting, and they do smell like dirt at the end of the day! I say, good for them.

Music Boosters

The Allen Consolidated Schools Music Boosters will be holding its next meeting at the school on Tuesday, May 17 at 7 p.m. During this meeting the group will be discussing what they have in the works for this summer during Allen's Q125 and for the 2016-2017 school year. On April 19, Mr. Lacy announced to the students that they have been invited and received approval from the school board for them to attend the Alamo Bowl in San Antonio, Texas in December 2017 if we can raise half of the funds necessary to go by January 2017.

Students will be continuing their fundraising for this amazing opportunity. With the trip comes a lot of support and help from not only our students, parents, and school but also our community and alumni. To help keep everything moving in the right direction, we need our band parents to attend our Music Boosters meeting each month. On Tuesday, May 17 the group will be holding elections for the following positions: Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Events Coordinator. These positions will be filled the night of the meeting.

Anyone with questions regarding the Music Boosters please contact Sara Kumm, Melissa Rahn, or Richard Lacy.

Arbor Day Program

The 2016 Arbor Day Assembly was held April 29 at the school with students and adults attending.

Tree Board chairman Marcia Rastede welcomed everyone to the assembly and then introduced the program. Because of the recent windy weather in northeast Nebraska, the power point and accompanying narration was about the reasons to have and points on how to plant a windbreak, also known as a shelterbelt.

Windbreaks are necessary for wind, snow, noise, and odor control, to protect livestock, to provide wildlife habitat, and to beautify a property. Fourth grade students helped to show the types of trees and shrubs which should be planted, in what arrangements, and how far apart.

When designing a windbreak, Marcia reviewed basic factors to keep in mind. They include density, height, length, continuity, and orientation. Annette Sudbeck, representing the Lewis and Clark NRD then spoke about what the NRD does and how it can help anyone planning on establishing a windbreak. Marcia concluded the program by stating that Allen was named a Tree City USA for 2015 and reviewing the criteria to be so recognized. This is the 23rd year for this honor. As the students left the assembly, they each received a Norway pine or Colorado spruce, compliments of the LCNRD.
