Electricity generates interest at Council

By CLARA OSTEN Of the Herald

Electricity - buying, selling and generating – was among the topics discussed during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council. Representatives of C.H. Guernsey & Company from Oklahoma City, Okla., presented information on a proposal to conduct a feasibility study on the city's existing power plant. Bernard A. Cervera with C.H. Guernsey &

Company told the Council his firm would look at multiple options in connection with the Wayne plant, including whether or not the city plans to always have a power plant. He provided information on the current engines that the plant has and noted that the newest of these was purchased in 1998, with others dating back to the 1960s.

He also explained the benefits of replacing approximately two months.

the city's diesel engines with those powered by natural gas, which is more efficient. The disadvantage to those engines would be how to get natural gas in case of a large power outage. The city has the capability to store enough diesel fuel at the power plant to generate electricity for several days.

have a power plant – reliability of power in case of an emergency and the ability to cap the cost of energy.

Cevera also talked about other projects his firm has worked on and explained that they work to make sure all plants are economically feasible.

Following the presentation, the council voted to approve the proposal from the firm, at a cost not to exceed $28,500, to conduct this study. It is estimated that the work will take

Also approved was a 'Request for Proposal to Purchase Municipal Electric Generation Nameplate Capacity" from C.H. Guernsey & Company. The proposal would allow the city to sell power that has been generated in Wayne

Sandy Brown, representing the Wayne Green Team, told the council that Gill Hauling is no longer able to recycle glass and the glass left at the transfer station is being disposed of with the other trash. She noted that the city of Wayne produces about 80 tons of glass per year.

Brown said her group found a vender in Kansas City that will pick up glass at no See ELECTRICITY, Page 4A

Missing ceramic dog has been returned to Wayne Fire Depatment

Mother and child have been reunited.

At Tuesday's Wayne City Council meeting, Fire Chief Phil Monahan told the council that the ceramic dalmatian puppy that was taken from the east plaza at the Wayne Volunteer Fire Department was recently returned.

Monahan said that a local resident returned the ceramic puppy to the police station, more than a month after it was reported stolen by Monahan. The puppy is one of three dogs that stands guard near the flagpole at the fire station, a mother dog and her two puppies.

The dogs are of special value, not only to the fire department, but the community of Wayne. They served as inspiration to local residents after the Oct. 4, 2013 tornado that hit the east edge of town. The storm knocked the flag off its pole, but the flag was draped over the three dogs and did not touch the ground, serving as a symbol of the town's determination to stay strong in the aftermath of the tornado's damage. The image of the flag-draped dogs was used for a T-shirt that was sold locally as a fundraiser to help rebuilding efforts.

County board gets good valuation news

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners got some good news from the county assessor and awarded a contract for the long-discussed Hahn Bridge project during Tuesday's meeting.

County Assessor Dawn Duffy told the board that, while there will be some increases in land valuation for the 2016-17 fiscal year, they won't be near as drastic as they have been in previous years.

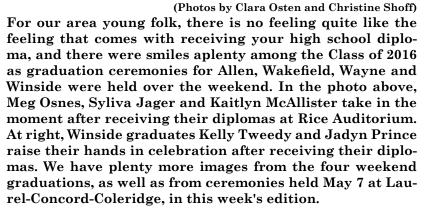

"You're not going to see a big increase in value like in some years," she told the board. "Compared to other years, you're going to see a minimal increase overall."

Duffy said that she is seeing a decrease in value with some parcels of land within the county, and therefore was projecting a smaller increase in the county's land valuation for the coming fiscal year than has been seen over the past several years.

The board awarded the Hahn Bridge project to Dixon Construction out of Correctionville, Iowa, who submitted the best bid of $554,129.70. The company submitted a proposed starting date of April 24, 2017 See COUNTY BOARD, Page 4A an increase in the number of encounters with dogs recently and they're asking dog owners for help.

"We're very concerned about the increase in the number of close calls involving dogs as carriers attempt to deliver the routes safely," said Wayne Postmaster Beth Pasold. "We're asking pet owners to please restrain their dogs for the safety of letter carriers and the community. We can't control people's dogs; only dog owners can do that."

Pasold says the request for restraining dogs includes those who live in rural areas.

"Summer is almost here, and with temperatures rising and children out of school, our carriers see more dogs running loose," Pasold said. "We take the safety of our employees very seriously. We will not wait until a carrier is bitten before taking preventative action. A dog sulted in medical attention beyond first

How do you describe Suzi? This sweet five year old coonhound mix is loveable and loving, playful and wandering, a wonderful companion and a problem. Suzi came to us with skin problems that were a symptom of allergies. After trying several treatments, we had her tested for allergies and she seems to be allergic to most everything. Now on a special diet and regular injections for her allergies, she is doing great. Her coat looks wonderful and she is even more endearing than before.

Suzi needs a home where she can be inside to interact with her family. A fenced yard is also best as she likes to explore and her nose could take her anywhere.

Does Wayne Plan to Always Have a Power Plant?

Wayne is in a transition period to a new power supplier for most of our power beginning in 2019. We like our current 20 year contract with NPPD but NPPD gave notice to customers that they are replacing this contract with a new 20 year contract that we felt had risk of high fixed costs. NPPD has been leasing our power plant for $600,000 per year and we operate it when they call us to run.

Now with a new contract coming, we're looking at leasing options with other utilities. The market is changing fast. We have hired an electric industry consultant to help us lease out our power plant into the market and the market is calling for new remote start, fast start power plant engines. With all the wind turbine power being built there is a window of time where new, fast start power plants are needed to back up the turbine contracts when the wind

Wayne's power plant engines range in age from 69 years old to 30 years old. The replacement cost of our existing power plant is $24-$30 million. In another 20 years our oldest engines will be nearly 90 years old with parts and trained repairmen hard to find. If we're always going to have a power plant we need to start planning to replace them with new more efficient generators. If we're not going to replace them, then our plan will be to not repair the oldest as they begin to fail and let the plant capacity dwin-

We have hired the consultant to do a feasibility study to show if we can replace engines in the same building, get enough natural gas to operate big generation here, get the power lines going out of town big enough to lease the new equipment into the market, and find a way for the market to pay for the new engines instead of the Wayne rate payers as we did the last two new engines.

Energy Tip Efficient cooling systems save money

Cooling efficiency of air conditioners and air-source heat pumps is often rated by the Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio or "SEER" rating.

The SEER rating of a unit is the cooling output during a typical cooling-season divided by total electric energy input during the same period. The higher the unit's SEER rating the more energy efficient it is. Another way to think of it is the lower the unit's SEER rating, the more you will be paying to cool your home.

Typically, older cooling systems will be less efficient than newer models. Much of that has to do with improvements in compressor technologies, variable speed air handlers, and refrigerants. Also, successive federal energy codes have mandated increases in efficiency over recent years. In 1992, central air conditioners and heat pumps were required to have a minimum 10 SEER rating. In 2006, that minimum jumped to 13 SEER. As of January 1, 2015, those requirements went up one more point to 14 SEER.

If you're one of those people who have an air conditioner or heat pump that has outlasted the national average of 15 years, your system is likely rated at less than 13 SEER. Moreover, the Air Conditioner Contractors of America (ACCA) states that most systems degrade about 5 percent per year due to wear, dust collecting on the coils, unbalanced or leaky ducts, etc. In reality, that old unit is probably performing at 10 SEER or less

So maybe you are wondering if a new unit would provide some "cool" savings this summer. Assuming your current system's efficiency is 10 SEER, this is the percentage of energy you can expect to save depending on the efficiency of your new system. If your existing system want and need is the right sized is in worse shape (8 SEER), the savings are even more impressive.

Today, new units are available that offer a SEER rating up to 26. So does all this mean that you should get the air conditioner with the highest SEER possible? Not necessarily. SEER ratings only represent potential efficiency of the system under perfect conditions. Over half of the system's efficiency depends on correct equipment sizing for your home and proper installation. While looking for a system with the EnergyStar label is a great way to right start, what you really equipment operating at its optimal ratings within varying conditions in order to provide optimal comfort and savings.

Your local electric utility and Nebraska Public Power District want to help customers keep their homes and businesses comfortable this summer. That help includes providing EnergyWise energy efficiency financial incentives to help with the cost of purchasing and installing a new heat pump system.

The bridge, similar in construction to other bridges the county has recently built in the Dog Creek area, should take about 125 calendar days to complete. However, board chair Randy Larson wanted to make sure the county was protected by any possible delays that would slow the project down.

"We found a way to bring glass recycling back to Wayne. If a concrete wall is constructed in the area just south of the Boy Scout trailer, at a cost of less than $1,500, we can store the glass until we have enough for a full load. Then the company will come in and pick it up," Brown said.

Safety concerns were discussed, but it was noted there is a railing in the area where the glass will be deposited.

Considerable debate was held on city ordinances which would amend the city code in regard to how barking and offensive dogs are handled and the fines for dogs, running at large, are handled.

Police Chief Marlen Chinn told the council that his department has had 40 calls within the last six months in regard to barking dogs,

Hoping to keep track on the road

I want to wish all of the area athletes who are competing in this week's State Track and Field Championships the best of luck. May every effort be your personal best, and I hope that we see more than a few medal-winning efforts from the five area schools at this weekend's festivities in Omaha.

I just hope the wi-fi reception is good in northwest Arkansas.

For me, the third weekend in May has always been the going-away party for the high school sports season. Two days of mayhem at Burke Stadium, meeting up with - what seems like – every resident in the state of Nebraska, all of whom happen to be walking right in front of me as I'm trying to get from the press box down to the finish line to take pictures of one of our area ath-

For almost all of the last 30 years, there has only been one "to do" item on my agenda during the third weekend in May, and never has a situation arisen where my presence was required in any place other than Burke Stadium on this weekend.

Until this year.

This weekend, my youngest daughter, Abby, graduates from Siloam Springs High School. She's a "High Honors" graduate (which, supposedly, means she's really smart, but I'm not THAT intelligent that I can really understand that, so let's move on . . .) and will be receiving her diploma this weekend in the basketball arena at the University of Arkansas

Fortunately, I have friends who will be in Omaha to help me out with making sure we get photos of all the area athletes, and I'll try to follow things as best as I can and try to keep our Facebook page updated as much as possible.

Again, good luck to all the area

Allen girls claim second district title, boys earn district runner-up nod

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

HARTINGTON - At this time of year, quality usually trumps quantity.

Nowhere was that more true than on the track in Hartington Wednesday afternoon, as the Allen girls and boys track and field teams a great day for the Lady Eagles' senior leadbrought home team hardware from the D-1 district meet.

The Lady Eagles backed up their district title from last year with another championship, edging Wausa by 10 points to win the nine-team district. Their male counterparts, meanwhile, scored in only half of the events, but made their money in the distance races to come away with the district runner-up plague.

The Lady Eagles put up points in all ares, doing the most damage in the hurdle and distance events with the leadership of seniors Kaylen Smith and Lexi Oswald.

Both athletes will have busy agendas in Omaha at this week's state track meet after qualifying in multiple events. Smith was run with her third-place finish.

Gabby Sullivan in the high jump, and it was ers, coach Dave Uldrich said.

"I'm proud of them," he said. "They ran hard and competed hard and did everything we asked of them all season. Kaylen had some good performances and really stepped up in the hurdles and ran well, Lexi ran great today and she and the Randolph girl should both battle for medals, and Gabby came through in the high jump and won. I was really proud of our seniors.'

Sullivan got the party started with a winning effort in the girls high jump, while teammate Desi Martell just missed on a trip to state with her third-place finish. Sullivan also came up one spot short with a third-place ual efforts from senior S.T. O'Keefe and jueffort in the triple jump.

> Later on, Smith, went back-to-back to win the two hurdle titles. She cruised to the win in the 100-meter hurdles and held off a lastsecond charge by a Wausa hurdler to complete the sweep with the 300-meter title.

> Allen also scored in a number of other girls events. All three relays scored, led by the 400-meter team's runner-up finish, and they also got good efforts from younger athletes like Bri Hingst, Bethany Kneifl, Alexis Hoesing, Kaitlyn Madsen, Katie Bathke and Cassidy Thomas.

The Allen boys did most of their damage in the distance events, dominating the 3,200-meter relay and getting strong individnior Tayler Kumm, both of whom have strong Once action started on the track, Oswald chances of medaling at state after their ef-

"We only scored in a handful of events, but we scored all those points with our distance guys and they ran very well," Uldrich said. "Tayler is second in the 3,200 and third in the 1,600, Sean has the second-fastest 800 in the stae this year and our 3,200 relay leads the state, so we have a chance to go down to Omaha and make some noise with these guys."

Allen cruised to a win in the 3,200-meter relay with a time of 9:08.0. Kumm added two individual titles to his relay crwon, easily winning the 3,200 and finishing strong to take the 1,600. O'Keefe also claimed a district tile with his win the 800. He tried to make it to state in the 1.600 as well, but struggled in the last part of the race and settled for a sixth-place finish to go with his fourth in the 400.

athletes – hope you'll be able to hear me cheer from that far away.

One of the things we sometimes forget, when we talk about high school athletics, is that the men and women who serve as coaches of the various sports teams are, more important, teachers of our children in the classroom.

When a superintendent is looking to hire people, the first priority is what class (or classes) that individual will teach. Hiring teachers with a coaching background is a bonus, especially if you have a coaching position open.

But what if you have a coaching position open - but no staff position that would draw a coach with knowledge of one specific sport?

Such is the case in Winside right now, where superintendent Mike Shoff has found the school in a situation where they need a wrestling coach, but don't have a teaching position open that most wrestling coaches would usually fill.

Add in the fact that whoever Shoff hires will be replacing Paul Sok, who built the Winside program into the perennial top-shelf program that it has become over the years, and it's a job that, to this point, remains unfilled.

I called him Monday to check on the job status, and when asked if Winside has a new wrestling coach yet, his response was, "No we don't – do you know anybody?"

Actually, there are a number of people, both here in the area and within a stone's throw of Wayne County who, I think, would be good options.

There are a number of Winside residents who grew up in the Sok system who, if Shoff can work it so that the coach would be state certified and had an employee as an assistant, would be fantastic options if they can juggle full-time jobs and the time and effort it takes to coach high school wrestling. I know John Thies would be a great option among this group, but I'm not certain that his status as a current school board member would be a po-

end at districts

Both the Laurel-Concord-Coleridge and Wakefield golf teams ended their spring campaign Monday in the C-2 district meet at the Oakland Golf Club.

The Bears finished ninth out of 14 competing schools with a 410, while Wakefield was 13th with a 498. No individual golfers from either team finished among the top 10 to qualify as an individual. Individual results were not turned in at press time.

Stanton dominated the district, finishing with a 327 and placing all four scoring golfers in the top 10, led by medalist Brook Klinetobe's 74. Klinetobe was six shots better than Hannah Hunke of GACC, who shot an 80. The Bluejays (360) and Logan View (373) also qualified for state falling on the second-to-last hurdle to place second and punch his ticket to state.

WHILE WINSIDE DID NOT get as many into state as the Eagles, coach Mark Tonniges was happy with his young teams' efforts.

"Ellie Jaeger peaked at the right time and had a great race in the 800 and Haley Cummins had a personal best as well," he said. "We had some good efforts from our girls, but we're still a young team and this was a tough district. Our boys had some good efforts even tough we didn't get anybody in, but they're also young and we just need a bit more work.'

Winside's only state qualifier will be senior Kelly Tweedy, who won the district title in the girls discus and came through with a solid effort to earn a trip to state in the shot put with a runner-up finish.

"She did an awesome job today," Tonnige said. "She's been throwing well in the discus all year and did so today, and the shot put was a nice surprise. She's been coming on there and got over 30 (feet), and it was one of those things where someone who was expected to go didn't fare as well and she had a good day, so she gets to go.'

Winside's best finish in boys competition came from JaShaun Vyborny, who missed state by about four inches with his third-place finish in the boys triple jump. Zach Morris (long jump) and Hayden King (300 hurdles) both earned fourth-place medals for the Wildcats.

Also keeping a busy schedule will be senior Tarah Stegemann. She won the 400-meter and added a fourth in the high jump, but her best effort of 5 feet, 1 inch, was good enough to match the qualifying standard for state, guaranteeing her a spot in the event.

"Tarah really ran the 400 very well," Hochstein said. "The school record is 59.6 (seconds) and I don't know if that's in the back of her mind or not, but I hope that it is and she can come up with a big effort there.'

McBride has jumped particularly well in the high jump this spring, and Hochstein is hopeful that he'll be in the mix in Omaha.

Don't get me started

Making it to 50: hope this decade beats the others

Well, how about that? I made it to 50.

That's right - yours truly hit the half-a-hundred club earlier this week. By the time most of you read this, the celebration should be over, the presents put away and the hangover properly serviced.

To be quite honest, I'm hoping THIS "decade birthday" is better than the previous four. It's remarkable how, for most of my birthdays, the day has either been a fun one or a quiet one – but my world goes haywire on the birthdays that are in multiples of 10.

Just a few weeks before my 10th birthday, I was sexually assaulted (a story you've read countless times here already, so we won't rehash details). Ten years later, the "highlight" of my 20th birthday was my parents getting divorced (and I thought, as most college-bound children are prone to do, that I could solve my parents' marital issues from a pay phone in my dorm room 60 miles away).

When I turned 30, I was still dealing with the aftermath, anger and frustration of my own divorce (trying to do so with a nightly challenge of emptying the cooler at the local bar down the street). My 40th was a real zinger – I was in the middle of a very dark period in my life and was contemplating suicide on a frequent basis. I was actually bummed out when I celebrated my 40th with family. Instead of saying "Wow – I'm 40," I was thinking "How the hell did I last THIS long, and how much longer do I have to put up with this crap?"

Life takes some funny twists and turns for each of us. Some go through life with not a care in the world – the universe seems to line up for them at every important turn, they enjoy success and good health and untold riches and a happy home life.

For others, life is a constant kick in the mouth. Each day is a Murphy's Law kind of day – anything that can go bad, more often than not, does. They are the anti-optimists that you run across – the ones who look at inmates. He said improvements to life's glass as not only as half empty, but with a leak in the bottom and a dry well to draw water from.

I've lived both existences during the course of these past 50 years. In my good moments, life has given me wonderful situations - the birth of my daughters, the birth of my granddaughter, getting a phone call from Kevin Peterson to work and live Wayne, watching Nebraska's football team win a national title. And it has also given me some horrible situations to live through (most of which are mentioned above). Every day is a new day with a new opportunity for something good - or bad - to happen in my life, and the Tecumseh riot was the issue of vestigation. Lawmakers, employee somehow, for 50 years (plus two days), I've survived all of it.

So now, instead of wondering WHY I've somehow lasted this long, my era

It has been a little more than a year since a riot at the Tecumseh prison left two inmates dead and two injured and caused hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage to the facility. The incident was seen, by some, as a major test for new Corrections Director Scott Frakes and his boss, Governor Pete Ricketts. It came on the heels of an ongoing investigation of the corrections system by a special legislative committee amid promises by Ricketts and Frakes that they were going to change the culture of the system.

Some inmate groups have said they simply wanted their grievances - about everything from programming to solitary confinement - heard. Reactions vary as to whether or not that has happened. But Frakes said a number of things have changed for the better.

He said the approval by the Legislature for money for a 160-bed expansion of the Community Corrections Center in Lincoln was a big step. Frakes said the beds will provide housing for a specific population of inmates who need to be in the less restrictive environment of community corrections but separated from some who may have caused them harm in the past. Likewise, the Protective Management Unit has been created at Tecumseh. Frakes calls that the department's first example of "mission specific housing.'

Following through on a promise made after the Tecumseh riot, Frakes said the department now has inmate councils meeting at every facility. That has improved communication between staff and the inmate grievance process will be addressed in the next budget. In addition, Employee Positive Impact Councils have been launched at each facility to provide a forum for employees to share ideas that will shape the agency and provide feedback.

year, but Frakes hopes that implementation of the Internal Critical Incident Review process will identify response improvements to maintain staff safety. He said the addition of security equipment to include a stronger concentration of pepper spray, restraint chairs and electronic restraint devices at the facilities should also help. Identifying the activity contributing to assaults and disruptive behavior is the task for a dedicated intelligence team which will also rely on the expanded use of cognitive-behavioral interventions to specifically address criminal thinking.

Frakes said that the department is making efforts to reduce vacancies, overtime hours and turnover rates for all staff. Complaints that staff was stressed by mandatory overtime at Tecumseh were plen-One of the major concerns about tiful in the immediate post-riot in-

> Before the 2015 riot, several inmates said they were trying to get the administration to pay attention to a two-page statement of grievances about arbitrary solitary confinement, perks for some inmates and not others, disrespect by some ecutive Board, Sen. Bob Krist of staff, inexperienced staff and increasingly crowded conditions.

> They also objected to being denied access to jobs, training and self-betterment clubs that would help prepare them for a return to life outside prison. Prison sentences are for punishment, but many feel that prisons have become warehouses. Without positive programs and opportunity for inmates self-betterment, many of those incarcerated for making some changes. Let's will return to the streets no better than when they came in.

say they still aren't clear on exactly what he is doing to change the culture and fix the issues that have plagued the system for a number of years. The committee has said it definitely wants to see behavioral and mental health treatment and programs.

The head of the Legislature's Ex-Omaha, said the make or break for him is going to be a safe environment both for the prison staff and the people who are behind bars.

"My own gut tells me that if the temperature goes up in the summertime and the prison population stays consistent, we're going to have some issues," Krist said. "But I hope I'm wrong.'

Hats off to Frakes and his staff hope that he has a big enough box of band-aids to hold out until sweep-question is: What's next?

An old friend has told me that "energy flows where attention goes." Evidently, those past birthdays were full of a lot of negative juju, and so I've decided that I'm going to try to change the mindset and fix the funk that seems to come around my world every 10 years.

There are so many great things happening for me personally at this time. I have a beautiful grandbaby who loves "talking" with Papa C on FaceTime (usually, I get a big smile and then she's off to play with her toys, with only an occasional return to toss another smile my way). I've watched my oldest daughter graduate high school and college and is now a wonderful wife and mother. My youngest daughter graduates (with HIGH honors, if I may brag for a moment) from Siloam Springs High School in Arkansas this weekend. I work in a great community for a great employer and with a staff that, more often than not, is wonderful to work alongside.

And, yes, there are some challenges I must face. Most of those are on the personal side (when your doctor tells you you're borderline diabetic, have high blood pressure, need to lose 30 pounds AND get a haircut . . . you know it's bad). My house needs some repairs, my finances could be better and my golf game would have to get 100 times better just to be considered

But you know what - this turning 50 thing may not be such a bad deal. After all, you can't get to 51 without first hitting 50, and like my Grandpa Carnes used to say, every day above ground is a good day (he lived to be almost 93, so I think he had a better frame of reference than I do at this point). So feel free to throw an "old fogey" joke at me, or check on my AARP membership status, or drop a bottle or two of Milk of Magnesia off at the office with a note attached that says "your new Happy Hour drink at the White Dog Pub."

Most people think of turning 50 and say "My God, I'm getting old."

Not me - I've tuned 50 and all I can say is "THANK GOD, I'm getting old."

A national poll of teens found that 21 percent rated "Not having enough time together with parents" as their top concern. Another study found that teens that ate meals regularly with their families had greater academic success, participated in fewer undesirable behaviors and were better adjusted psychologically. Reunions a chance to take a look back

Ah, 'tis nearly summer, and the scent of reunions is in the air. "Scent" is the operative word here, because scent is what causes you to remember an event, catching a whiff of a similar odor three months or 30 years from now. So do pay attention to your olfactory sense.

There's the scent of high school reunions, the strongest being that of varnished wood floors and a gymnasium trying not to smell like sweat socks. You'll probably rediscover the scent of a kegger (oops, did we say HIGH SCHOOL reunion? Well, if the shoe fits . . .). And there's a definite fragrance in a room full of people nervous about first impressions after 10 years, or 20, or more, away from your senior class. Hold on to the memories of those aromas, so that when they come around again – and they will – you can call to mind all of your classmates, friends and foes alike, who helped shape your life in those teen years. These are the people, students and teachers, who made all the difference, for better or for worse, in who you are today. And all those fragrances will remind you forever of the impact high school had.

There's the scent of family reunions, heavy with the odor of bar-burning on the grill. Don' forget the families, long gone from the area, underlying scents of sweet grass to lay loved ones to rest in the local discovered during various fam- cemetery. Joy Circle discusses Pentecost

Joy Circle of Our Savior Lutheran perpetrators of violence against Church met May 11.

Vice President Lynette Lentz welcomed everyone and gave announcements. She asked each person to share a "high" she had recently experienced.

Thelma Moeller gave the devotions and the program based on Pentecost. Pentecost, celebrated 50 days after Easter Sunday, is considered the birth date of the Christian Church. According to Acts 2:1-4, the Apostles were all together in one place as Jesus had instructed. While together, divided tongues, as of fire, rested on each of them. They were filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke in other languages as the Spirit gave them ability. Three thousand members were added to the church on that day.

Pentecost is an ideal season of the church year to emphasize living our baptism and discover the five gifts of discipleship which are affirmed at Confirmation – live among God's faithful; hear the Word of God and share in the Lord's Supper; proclaim the Good News of God in Christ through word and deed; serve all people using Jesus' example; and strive for justice and peace in all the earth.

Jesus told His apostles that power will be given to them by the Holy Spirit. We have also been given power as modeled by the disciples. That is the power through prayer.

The group was given three ar-women, and praying for those facing "red tape" such as immigrants, women and children in poverty, those dealing with homelessness, just to name a few.

Each person was asked to commit to praying for one of the three areas throughout the year.

The next meeting will be June 8 at Brookdale Wayne with Carol Bauermeister presenting a musical program and the Executive Board hosting.

Eagles Auxiliary has May meeting

May 16 with President Julie Addison presiding.

The Eagles will have a Steak Fry on June 4. There has been a slight increase in price. Members are asked to bring salads or desserts.

Father's Day will be celebrated grill cookout. Those attending are to bring their own meat to grill and one other dish. Friends and relatives are welcome.

The scent of lit candles and sacred moments. The musty smell of old basements where the youth group played hide and seek, growing together in friendship and faith. All these scents serve as reminders of life-changing encounters. Encounters with Sunday school teachers who listened and cared. Encounters with old friends who stood beside you in difficult times. Encounters with so many people who taught you about the love of God and the difference that love has made in your life. Encounters that made you a part of the family of God, that remind you again and again of the family that gives you hope for the future, and the God who loves you too much to ever let you go.

Reunions are a time to examine our beginnings and our ties, a time to look at the past and how it informs who we are. It's also a time to decide what we want to let go of and what we want to hold close. It's a time to re-discover and re-claim God's presence in our lives, past, present and future. Isn't it time you reunited with your faith roots? Or perhaps it's time to put down faith roots and discover the love of God in a community of believers. Come worship the Lord and begin to make scents of your life.

Fourth grade students at Wayne Elementary recently participated in Pizza and Agriculture. (from top) Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Hix and Mrs. Janke's classes heard from Amy Topp, Nebraska Extension Educator from the UNL Extension Office in Wayne County, who shared with students the role that agriculture plays in producing the ingredients in pizza. Students discussed information that they knew about agriculture, learned about various agriculture careers, and about the ingredients in pizza and the importance that agriculture plays in feeding the world. Students completed the session by making their own mini pizza. The project is sponsored by the Wayne Area Chamber Agriculture Taskforce.

Recalling past commencement speeches

It's the season of commencement speeches. We are catching clips of some that our president gave, that Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas gave, and even one by Hoda Ktolb. The latter, she says, was inspired by the sight of one of the graduates in front of her, a quadriplegic. I think that, basically, she channeled Winston Churchill when he simply got up, said "never give up, never, never give up", and sat back down.

AND DESCRIPTION OF THE OWNER OWNE

Our two high school graduates were confirmed on the same day, also. So, for graduation, I chose to drive to Norfolk for Jacey's at Lutheran High, while Kay went to a brunch for Danica and then stayed with her Dad. Reverend Russ Sommerfeld, a Norfolk native, was the speaker and he said what we all know, "You won't remember who your speaker was, or even most of what he said." Sad, but true. I know don't remember mine.

Interestingly, Sue remembered that theirs was Tom Peterson of

The Farmer's Wife By: Pat Meierhenry

Tom, with the pointer? He gave the weather and then flipped his pointer, which was different every single day because we all sent him some very unique ones. If memory serves, the Sioux City TV. Remember he died in an auto accident in bad weather.

Then, we both recalled the speaker at Jon's graduation, a blind man, also from Sioux City, who had not let his blindness interfere with his life. He even hitchhiked! That particularly impressed me, because I would not hitchhike, even with sight!

After that, we couldn't' recall. I remember the speaker for the class ahead of Sue's. In fact, I wrote about him at the time. It was Walt Hamm, who had been the janitor at the school for the entire time that class was there. The title of his talk was "Don't Quit," and he used the poem of that name as his theme. Great minds think alike, Walt Hamm, the janitor, and Winston Churchill, the prime minister.

Point being, we are all so excited about the fact that we are finally graduating, we don't really remember the things that take place that dav.

But I did take to heart some of the things that Pastor Sommerfeld spoke of on Sunday. Namely, that their class verse, from Joshua, is one to remember. "Be strong and courageous, do not be afraid, do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go." He admitted that there are a lot of things to fear these days, and that Christians in many parts of the world are being horribly abused. Even here in good old US of A, we aren't always being appreciated. I think Joshua would agree with Mr. Churchill and with Walt, the key is just to face life and what it hands you, and make up your minds you aren't going to let you get it down. And, then, to remember, that there is a Higher Power in your corner, and "He will work all things for good for those who love Him and are in His plans."

Congratulations, Jacey, and Danica, and Randa, Simpson College and Alex, UNL! We love you, and hope for the best for your future -Grandma and Grandpa Meierhenrv

Herbicide groupings explained

The evolution of herbicide-resistant weeds requires close attention to which herbicides belong to which site of action group when adopting your herbicide program. Herbicides kill weeds by disrupting or preventing vital metabolic processes in different ways. Herbicide molecules bind to "sites" that change the functioning of the plant. Changing herbicides (and other pesticides) by site groupings helps control resistant pests and prevents resistance from occurring.

These site groupings are based on a classification by the Weed Science Society of America and include a numbering system to help growers select a herbicide program that provides for site of action diversity. Each herbicide site of action is given a group number which is found on the first page of most herbicide labels. This chart can be used to select herbicide(s) that belong to different sites of action.

Chemigation permits are due June 1

Farmers planning to chemigate

Avoid repeat applications of herbicide(s) that belong to the same site of action group; however, simply including herbicides that belong to multiple sites of action is not sufficient. The different sites of action must also be effective against herbicide-resistant weeds or hard-tocontrol weeds. The chart also shows the number of weed species with resistance to the site of action.

Take Action on Weeds: Herbicide Resistance Management is a national, multi-partner initiative to help farmers manage their herbicide programs to avoid further development of herbicide-resistant weeds. The chart was developed with funding from the United Soybean Board Soybean Checkoff and private industry.

For more information and to see the chart visit TakeActionOn-Weeds.com or use the 2016 Guide for Weed, Disease, and Insect Management in Nebraska. The links to both of these websites are available on our on-line newsletter cropwatch.unl.edu in the May 13 issue.

during the 2016 growing season must renew chemigation permits by June 1 to meet state deadline requirements, according to Josh Schnitzler, Field Technician for the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD).

Chemigation is the application of any chemical, fertilizer or pesticide through an irrigation system. To legally chemigate in Nebraska, an operator must be certified to apply chemicals and obtain a chemigation permit from their local NRD.

An irrigation system that has not been renewed prior to the June 1 deadline cannot apply chemicals through the system until a new permit is obtained. Chemigation renewal permits cost $20. New chemigation permits cost $50, and the applicant cannot use the system until it passes a mandatory inspection. All permits must be submitted to the LENRD office at 601 East Benjamin Avenue in Norfolk.

By renewing a permit by June 1, a producer may proceed with chemigation. An inspection does not have to be performed prior to chemigation for a renewal application, Schnitzler said. However, a random chemigation inspection may be necessary later in the season as part of the LENRD's routine summer inspections as required by state law.

If chemigating is necessary, on short notice, emergency permits can be obtained at a cost of $250. Irrigation systems meeting chemigation law standards will then be allowed to operate within 72 hours. For more information, call the Lower Elkhorn NRD at (402) 371-7313.
