Gardner Foundation donates to Hank project

The Rebuild Hank Committee announced the receipt of a $25,000 donation from the Gardner Foundation late Wednesday morning. The donation will allow for the completion of the press box, purchase of a new public address announcement system, and completion of the fencing and main entrance to the facility. Leslie Bebee, representing the Gardner family, said that her father's longtime working relationship with Hank Overin was one of the reasons the family foundation approved the grant request. "We are extremely grateful to the Gardner Foundation for this generous gift to our project," committee chair Pat Melena told The Wayne Herald. "We are working hard to have this completed by the time we host the American Legion Juniors area tournament in July, and we want to thank the Gardner Foundation for this wonderful gift." Real estate market hot for sellers in area

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Looking to buy a house in Wayne? Here's a tip - don't wait too long.

The housing market is definitely a seller's market right now, as a low level of inventory is keeping area real estate agents busier than usual for this time of year.

Area real estate agents like Trisha Peters from First Realty are finding themselves a little busier than normal during the first half of 2016 as more people are looking to move to Wayne and take advantage of what the growing community has to offer.

"The residential and acreage market has been very active, even from last year," Peters said. "It's been a unique market. Usually, we'll see a lull around Christmas and then it picks up in the spring, but our heaviest marketing time came in January and February this year. It was pretty hectic around then."

Usually, the summer and early fall is a busy time for local real estate agents as sellers work on their homes to get them ready for sale. An average of a little more than 70 homes have been sold in Wayne since 2008, and with the average price of a home up almost $20,000 from where it was eight years ago, it's definitely a seller's market right now in the Wayne area, Peters said.

"What points us in that direction is that we don't have a lot of listings right now for people coming into town to buy," she said. "Houses are commanding top dollar and selling fairly quickly when they do come on the market, and right now sellers are getting favorable purchase agreements."

Peters said the average time from when a

Year	Average Price	Homes Sold In Wayne
2008	$91,000	64
2009	$95,750	71
2010	$90,000	65
2011	$95,400	67
2012	$104,000	76
2013	$93,700	80
2014	$105,400	84
2015	$110,000	73

home goes on the market until it is sold is about four months, which is less than half the usual time for a house in Wayne.

"Two years ago, the time was about nine months, so we've really cut our time down," she said. "It's been a good market for people who are looking to sell their houses and get into new ones."

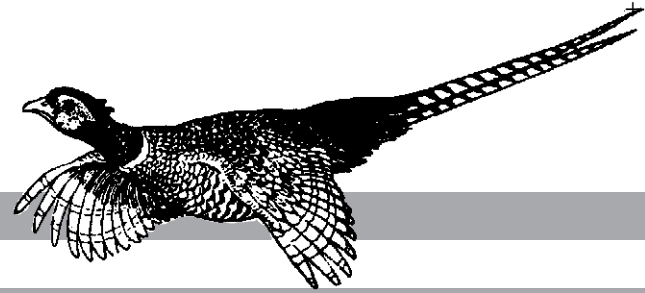

With the major construction project at Bowen Hall on the campus of Wayne State College potentially displacing a number of students for the upcoming school year, one would think there would be a run on sales by parents of college kids who are looking to help their kids find suitable housing during the dorm reconstruction project at the college. Peters said, however, that it hasn't been as active as she thought it might.

"We've had a few calls, but not as many as we've had in previous years," she said. "We'd probably sell 5-10 percent of our

It's tick and mosquito season: protect yourself from tick and mosquito-related diseases

Warm and sunny weather means lots of Nebraskans will be spending quality time outdoors which puts people at greater risk for tick and mosquito bites.

"Ticks and mosquitos can carry diseases that make people sick," said Dr. Tom Safraneck, state epidemiologist for the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. "Remember to take simple steps like using bug spray to help protect you and your family."

Other preventive tips include:
— Dress in long-sleeved shirts, pants and socks when you're outside.
— Drain standing water around your home. Standing water and warmth breed mosquitoes.
— Do frequent tick checks after being outdoors and remove attached ticks promptly with fine-tipped tweezers.

Ticks can cause ehrlichiosis, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, tularemia and Lyme disease. Symptoms of tick- and mosquito-related illnesses can be similar - fever, rash, body aches and pains. Tick-related illnesses can be serious.

Mosquitos can transmit West Nile virus and other diseases to people. Last year, there were 68 human cases of West Nile virus and two deaths.

Most people who are infected with West Nile virus will have no symptoms or only mild flu-like symptoms. Some people will develop a fever with other symptoms like headache, body aches, vomiting, fatigue and weakness. Less than one percent of people will develop a serious illness like encephalitis or meningitis (inflammation of the brain and surrounding tissues).

People over 50 and those with weakened immune systems are especially vulnerable to the disease and are more likely to experience serious consequences.

DHHS starts its West Nile virus surveillance in early June. In addition, DHHS is also starting surveillance in limited areas of eastern Nebraska for the Aedes albopictus mosquito which is potential transmitter of Zika virus.

For people traveling to an area with Zika, dengue and/or chikungunya, it's important to practice proper mosquito prevention when abroad and protect yourself from mosquito bites when you return.

More information about tick-related diseases can be found at www.cdc.gov/ticks.

For more information about West Nile Virus, go to www.dhhs.ne.gov/wnv.

For Zika-related traveler information and advisories, go to www.wnc.cdc.gov/travel/page/zika-travel-information.

Lower Elkhorn NRD receives grant for cost share on flow meters

The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) recently received a grant from Nebraska's new Water Sustainability Fund (WSF). Nebraska's Natural Resources Commission approved nearly $11.5 million in projects, with $900,000 being awarded to the LENRD for water and soil conservation. The LENRD will provide a match of $600,000. This will allow the district to have $1.5 million available for cost-share assistance on irrigation flow meters.

At their May board meeting, the LENRD Board of Directors voted to utilize the funding to offer incentive payments of $250 per flow meter to producers who are approved for the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) funding. They also agreed to offer payments of $500 per flow meter to producers who apply for the LENRD cost-share by June 30, 2017, if they are not receiving any other incentives or cost-share. LENRD General Manager, Mike Sousek, said, "The deadline to have flow meters installed on all irrigation wells is Jan. 1, 2018. The cost-share is available for producers who get signed up before June of next year." Producers are asked to sign-up through their county Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) office to apply for the LENRD cost-share.

The board also approved a contract with Aqua Geo Frameworks (AGF) for the 2016 Airborne Electromagnetic (AEM) project that will provide aquifer framework mapping across approximately 608 miles of the district, including portions of Cedar, Dixon, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Platte, Stanton, and Wayne counties. Sousek added, "By continuing the flights, we can work on defining more aquifers and work with the UNL Conservation & Survey Division to complete an atlas of our district. We have received $250,000 for this project from the WSF, and we will be matching up to $167,000 to continue the mapping project."

In other action, the board voted to provide a $2,197.70 grant for the Madison Public School's Watershed Dynamics Program. The request came from the school for their ongoing sampling program of Taylor and Union Creeks. The program is in its sixth year and provides hands-on learning for many students during the summer months.

Funding was also requested by the Northeast Nebraska Weed Management Area, a group organized under the Northeast Nebraska RC&D, to match LB1038 funding for controlling invasive plant species. The group is requesting funding from four area NRDs to control invasive plant species in the Elkhorn River Basin. The board approved $5,000 for the project.

A public hearing was also held, relating to the proposed amendments to the LENRD's Erosion & Sediment Control Program. The adopted changes will be added to the plan and can be viewed on the district's website.

The next board meeting will be held on Thursday, June 23 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lifelong Learning Center on the campus of Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

A great turnout was on hand to dedicate the new Little Free Library that is set up at the Front Porch at Our Savior Youth Center in Wayne.

New Little Free Library dedicated at Our Savior Front Porch in Wayne

Need a book to read? Try Wayne's newest library, A Little Free Library, located in front of the Front Porch building at 410 Main Street.

Ironically, the building once housed a Carnegie Library for the city of Wayne.

The Little Free Library was a project of several members of Our Savior Lutheran Church and is designed to carry on the mission of other such libraries - "To promote literacy and the love of reading by building free book exchanges worldwide and to build a sense of community as we share skills, creativity and wisdom across generations."

There are over 36,000 Little Free Library book exchanges around the world, bringing curbside literacy home and sharing millions of books annually.

The Library was dedicated on May 22 following the worship service at Our Savior Lutheran Church.

The library is open to anyone and has books for all ages in it. The stain glass window is from the Old Redeemer Lutheran Church building and all recycled materials were used to construct the library.

This library was built by Ray Novak of Pilger. A bench was donated by Dave and Sue Olson so people can stop at the library and sit and relax as they make their choices.

The Little Free Library motto is "Take a book, leave a book."

"We would encourage anyone to help themselves to books from the library and return any unneeded books they have they would like to share," said Kim Dunklau, one of those assisting with the creation of the library.

Chris and Carol McGuire, along with other Our Savior Members will be the care takers of this Library.

If community citizens have other books they would like to donate to our library they can be dropped off at Our Savior and put in the Tub in the Narthex marked Little Free Library.

"We are currently working with the city to put other libraries around the community. These libraries can be located anywhere within the community, including parks, in front of public buildings or even on private property," Dunklau said.

Anyone in the community who would like to get involved with a little free library is asked to contact Kim Dunklau at (402) 369-1696.

"We are hopeful that this will become a community wide project that involves many service organizations and community members. Literacy in Wayne is important and this is one step in moving that forward."

Finalists named for WSC hoops job

Wayne State College Athletic Director Mike Powicki announced the four finalists Wednesday morning for the position of head men's basketball coach at the school.

The four finalists include Zac Claus, assistant coach at the University of Idaho; Jeff Horner, assistant coach at the University of North Dakota; Dylan Howard, associate head coach at Morehead State University and Jeff Kaminsky, head coach at Valley City State University in North Dakota.

Claus just completed his first season at Idaho where the Vandals won 21 games, the most wins at the school since 1992-93 and the ninth best record in team history. Claus helped Idaho reach the Big Sky Tournament semifinals while earning a bid to the College Basketball Invitational. Prior to arriving at Idaho, Claus served 10 seasons at the University of Nevada (last four as assistant, six years as director of operations). Claus played at Nebraska and Creighton before finishing his collegiate career at Eastern Washington and began his coaching career as assistant varsity and head junior varsity coach at Nebraska Wesleyan in 1998-99 and also served as an assistant at Sacramento State and Portland State.

Horner completed his second season at the University of North Dakota, helping UND to a 17-16 record this season and a 10-8 record in the Big Sky Conference. UND reached the CollegeInsider.com Postseason Tournament for the fifth time in the last six seasons, falling to Cal-Irvine in overtime 89-86. Horner is an assistant coach at UND after serving as director of operations his first year. Prior to that, the former Iowa Hawkeye standout was a head coach at West Des Moines Valley High School in Iowa for four years where he produced a 70-27 record with two trips to the Iowa Class 4A State Tournament.

Howard is in his 21st season of collegiate coaching and concluded his fifth season as the associate head coach at Morehead State University. This season, Howard helped lead the Eagles to a 23-14 record and 11-5 mark in the Ohio Valley Conference while finishing second in the College Basketball Invitational. Howard has helped the Eagles to a pair of 20-plus win seasons in the last four years and the 23 wins this season were the most at the school since 2010-11. Howard also served as head coach at North Park University in Illinois (2011-12), assistant coach at Mississippi Valley State (2008-11) and head coach at Hardin-Simmons University in Texas from 2001-08.

Kaminsky just completed his 11th season as head coach at Valley City State University in North Dakota and has over 450 wins as a collegiate head coach. At Valley City State, he has established a nationally ranked NAIA program that was 22-11 this season and finished 21st in the final NAIA Division II Coaches Poll while advancing to the second round of the national tournament. His 2012-13 team went 23-7 and also advanced to the NAIA National Tournament. Kaminsky also served as head coach at Wisconsin-Superior from 1994-2005 and was head men's basketball coach, athletic director and student activities director at Mid-State Technical College in Wisconsin from 1987-1994.

The finalists will be on campus for interviews next week (June 7-10). Members of the Wayne community are invited to meet each candidate and ask questions during a campus/community forum that will be held at 1:30 p.m. each day in Gardner Hall on the Wayne State campus. Claus will be on campus Tuesday, June 7; Kaminsky on Wednesday, June 8; Horner on Thursday, June 9; and Howard on Friday, June 10.

homes to people who are looking for investments and buying homes for their kids who are going to Wayne State, but right now we just don't have the inventory available. It's been a unique market."

Another factor that could be driving home sales is the rental market. New construction of rental properties has created more options for people looking to move to town, but those properties are going for higher rates as well.

"We thought that with the amount of new rentals in town that it might soften up, but it really hasn't," Peters said. "The demand is still there and we still have a waiting list of people looking for (rental) housing here in town. There are a lot of young professionals coming to Wayne who see the potential of what Wayne has to offer with the activity center, the library and things for kids to do."

Wayne's housing market has gone against the norm, to a certain extent, as the number of homes sold and the average price hasn't seen a dramatic change over the last several years. The average number of homes sold in Wayne has ranged from the mid 60's to a high of 84 homes sold in 2014. The average value of those homes has also been fairly stable, ranging from $90,000 in 2010 - the peak of the housing crisis period in Wayne, Peters said - to last year's average of about $110,000.

"When we had the housing crash in 2008 and 2009, you heard a lot about that nationally but we didn't really see a drop in housing prices here," she said. "Everything here has really held even, and now we're kind of seeing something of a boom. It runs in cycles and we might be hitting our peak right here."

That may change in the near future, though, particularly with this being an election year and some of the uncertainty that comes with electing new leadership.

"I'm curious to see what happens to the financial markets after this election," she said. "Interest rates are still low right now which is driving some of this, but it will be interesting to see what happens after the elections in November."

Regardless of what happens, Peters said the Wayne market is an attractive one for people looking to take advantage of what the community has to offer.

"I've had a number of older people who are looking to retire or be closer to their kids and grandkids and are looking at moving here, so we're not only getting younger people moving to town, but older ones as well," she said. "Wayne has a lot to offer that is attracting people here, so it will be interesting to see how this goes as more new construction happens down the road and more housing becomes available."

A Pedal Tractor Pull for ages four through nine will begin at 4 p.m. at the park.

A barbecue supper will be served at the Fire Hall at 6 p.m.

The day ends with a street dance featuring "Last Call" at 8:30 p.m. and a fireworks display north of Henry's.

The final day of the celebration, Sunday, June 12 includes a community church service at 9 a.m. at the football field, a quilt show at First Lutheran Church, and a 3-on-3 basketball tourney at the school.

A community potluck and ice cream social will begin at 12 p.m. and frog races begin at 1 p.m. in front of the Fire Hall.

Closing ceremonies will be conducted at 2 p.m. at Allen High School.

The town of Allen's history began in 1890 when Henry Allen deeded 40 acres of land to the Pacific Township Company so a town could be established near the newly completed railroad. Originally the town was to have been located three miles southwest of its present site where the South Creek Post Office was located. After a good deal of discussion, the town was named "Allen."

One of the first necessities of the new town was a post office and this was ready for business in June of 1890 with W.A. Hickman as postmaster. There were 132 individual boxes. The post office was on the route from Martinsburg to Springbank and mail was carried three times a week.

The first election was held in November of 1890 in the office of S.I. Hart's Implement Company. The election board was A.W. Whitford and Albert Sharp, clerks and S.I. Hart, Henry Allen and Silas Wheeler as judges.

A well was sunk in 1890 near the railroad section house at the foot of a hill. At 252 feet, a pit of water-bearing gravel was struck and a pump put in for the depot. The water problem was serious for the first years as water had to be hauled in barrels for culinary purposes. Many cisterns were constructed for other water uses and in 1913 good new wells were sunk.

On May 16, 1893 the town was incorporated with a population of 200 people. At that time there were two hardware stores, two lumberyards, and a real estate office. In 1899 the Allen News published its first edition and was in business until 1943 when the editor, Roger Hill, went off to war.

By 1901, a wide variety of businesses had been a part of the community, including a meat market, three general merchandise stores, two dray lines, a grain dealer, livery stable, an undertaker, two doctors and a dealer in coal in wood.

A disastrous fire swept through the town in 1913, destroying several businesses, including the electric light and gas plants.

Through the years many changes have taken place in the community and though many of the old businesses are gone, the town continues to be a "progressive town in the center of a beautiful and friendly farm community."

Warming up for the Catbacker

Random thoughts, observations and trivial items that might become useful if you're on a zillion-dollar quiz show – it's another purging of the "Bits and Pieces" file:

– The Catbacker is this Friday, the annual fundraising golf tournament for the Wayne State athletic department.

It's a day of fun for all involved. The Wildcat coaches fix everybody breakfast, the Wayne Country Club plays host to a couple hundred Wildcat enthusiasts of varying golf talent levels, and – well, let's just say few leave the golf course dehydrated or hungry at the end of the day.

In the last few seasons, I've done little in the way of physically preparing myself for the action ON the course (the action in the clubhouse, as some are well aware, is something I'm well-versed in). This year, however, I felt compelled to play a little warm-up round to get myself ready and try to contribute SOMETHING to my team's effort – at least, something beyond the high level of unintentional comedy that results from watching me tee off.

To help in these preparations, I enlisted the efforts of my nephew, John Canham. He's going to be a freshman in high school next year and, for someone of his age and size, swings a pretty salty golf club and is hoping to make the Norfolk High varsity roster next year.

We opted for the back nine at Eldorado Hills in Norfolk, mainly because he was staying at my mom's house while his parents were on an "adults only" weekend out. I used to be a member there when I worked in Norfolk 20 years ago, and I still have a lot of the course mapped out in my head, so I figured it would be a chance to shoot a good round.

And I did – shot the course record in fact. The course record is listed as a 63, and I came in with a 60. My nephew shot a 46, but I'm sure his score doesn't count as a record because – and I may be wrong on this – golfers under the age of 18 can't hold a course record, because it violates some random NSAA policy.

I think that covering nine holes in 60 strokes has me well prepared for the Catbacker this weekend. Sixty strokes in nine holes IS a good score . . . right?

– Kudos to a former Wayne High alum and state champion who is making a name for himself in the big-boy division of college track and field.

Grant Anderson qualified for the NCAA Div. I national meet later this month in Eugene, Ore., after jumping 7-foot-1 in regional competition recently in Kansas. He's jumped very well for the Nebraska men's track and field team this year, and if he continues the pace he's set for himself this season, he could make All-American status and finish in the top eight at nationals.

I still remember getting the information the day he cleared seven feet at the conference track meet. After taking two years off from track to play baseball, he came back in a big way.

I seem to recall that, before that fateful day in Madison, he was looking at playing college basketball somewhere. Once word got out about his record-breaking effort, those plans obviously changed. Nebraska was on the phone in rather short order, and it's obviously a change of direction that has turned out to be a good one for the Wayne High grad.

– At this writing, the final list of candidates for the Wayne State men's basketball coaching position had yet to be announced.

I talked with Wayne State athletic director Mike Powicki late Tuesday, and the hope was to have a list of finalists by the middle of this week. Any hopes of a new coach being named before Friday's Catbacker outing were slim to begin with, so hopefully we'll have a new coach in place within the next few weeks. The sooner the college gets this position filled, the better.

Wayne Country Club hosted its annual Men's Memorial Open Sunday, with nearly 150 competing in the various flights. The championship flight of golfers competed over 27 holes if they made the cutline which was 79.

Alta, Iowa's Aaron Clausen emerged as a first-time winner of the yearly event by three strokes over Omaha's Brian Lawson. Clausen fired a four-under par 104 on the day with rounds of 36-36-32.

"I really like this course," Clausen said. "This was my second time playing in this tournament."

The Storm Lake, Iowa native said he was kind of on a roll early in the first nine going three-under over the first five holes.

"I was feeling pretty good about things until I bogeyed the last three holes on the front nine," Clausen said. "Then on the back I managed nine consecutive pars to close out the first 18 at even."

Clausen played the championship nine holes with five pars and four birdies including the par five ninth where he reached the green in two. He said he likes to find a way to get to Wayne when he can play in this event because of his uncle, Bill Erickson, who was the 1983 club champion at Wayne Country Club. He played golf at Creighton University for two years before transferring to the University of Iowa for his final two years.

Tekamah native Preston Walford placed third at even par 108, edging Jason Peterson of Omaha by tie-breaker. Will Anderson of Homer followed at 109, edging out Sioux City's Alex Janssen and Wayne's Joey Baldwin by tie-breaker. Bode Hill of Fremont finished at 111 as did Ponca's Tyson Bodlak. Wakefield Juniors win two, lose two during week

The Wakefield Post 81 American Legion Juniors ran their winning streak to five before losing a pair of games in the Chuck Ellis Tournament on Monday.

In regular-season action, Wakefield shut out Ponca 7-0 on Wednesday and blew out Pierce 11-3 on Friday.

In the Ponca game, Esgar Godinez threw a two-hit shutout, striking out seven and walking six. He helped his own cause with three hits and Noah Lamprecht also had three hits, including an RBI double, to lead a 13-hit attack. Daniel Nuno chipped in with two hits.

Wakefield got on the board with two runs in the first on Lamprecht's big hit. Godinez sparked a three-run third inning with an RBI single as well.

In Friday's matchup, Wakefield scored three in the first and Pierce matched that in the top of the second, scoring three with two outs in the inning to tie the game.

Wakefield answered the challenge with an RBI double by Matt Christensen to break the 3-3 tie, then put up two more runs in the fourth on Julio Sanchez' two-run single. They put the game away with one in the fifth and four more in the sixth.

Sanchez and Christensen each had two hits to lead a nine-hit attack. Parker Lehmkuhl picked up the win, striking out eight and allowing three hits and four walks in 4 2/3 innings.

In the Chuck Ellis Tournament, the Wakefield Juniors lost two games to Pender, losing 11-5 and 10-7.

In the first game, Pender broke a 4-4 tie with six runs in the fourth inning. Ben Klein and Noah Lamprecht each had two hits in the losing effort.

In the nightcap, Pender led 4-0 when Wakefield scored six in the top of the fifth to take the lead. Christensen had an RBI double, Justin Erb scored when Nuno reached on an error, Christensen scored on a passed ball, Solomon Pietz scored on a hit-by-pitch play with the bases loaded, and Godinez and Sanchez followed with bases-loaded walks.

The lead was short-lived, however, as Pender came back with six of their own in the bottom of the inning to go on to the win. Christensen had two of Wakefield's four hits, with Sanchez taking the loss in relief.

The Wakefield Juniors are 5-2 on the season and hosted Wayne in action Wednesday at Eaton Field.

Wayne High alum and Nebraska high jumper Grant Anderson has punched his ticket for the NCAA Div. I Track and Field Championships in Eugene, Ore., with his efforts in regional action Friday in the West Regional in Lawrence, Kan.

The sophomore cleared 7 feet, 1 inch on his first attempt to finish sixth in the event and qualify for the national championships, set for June 8-11 at the University of Oregon. Anderson's best mark this year was 7 feet, 1 3/4 inches on April 9 at the Husker Spring Invitational. He also won the Nebraska Invite on May 7 and finished fourth in the Big Ten Outdoor Championships in Lincoln on May 14, clearing 6-11 1/2.

Anderson jumped 6-foot-11 and placed fifth during the Big Ten Indoor Championships this past winter.

Loos gets Academic All-American honor

Wayne State senior softball standout Lexie Loos was selected to first-team honors on the 2016 CoSIDA Academic All-America Div. II Softball Team announced last week by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Loos

Loos received first-team honors in voting by college sports information directors across the country, and is just the third player in school history to earn Academic All-American honors, joining Katie Goetzinger (First Team, 2011; Second Team, 2010) and Heather Conley (Second Team, 2002).

Loos posted a 3.758 grade-point average majoring in applied human and sport physiology. She is a three-time NSIC All-Academic selection and received the NSIC Myles Brand All-Academic With Distinction Award during her senior season.

On the field, Loos was a first-team All-NSIC selection for a second straight season and an NFCA All-Central Region first-team and All-American second-team honoree after leading the NSIC in batting average (.467), on-base percentage (.505), hits (92) and runs scored (58) while ranking ninth in total bases (106) and tied for 12th in stolen bases (18). She ranks 10th in NCAA Div. II in batting average and is 13th nationally in runs scored per game at 1.12.

Loos reached base safely in 52 of 53 games this season and led the Wildcats with 29 multi-hit games. She had hitting streaks of 16 and 15 games during the season.

This season, Loos broke her own single-season runs scored record with 58, matched her school-record batting average (.467) and was one hit shy of matching her single-season hits record of 93 set last season. She finished her career as the all-time runs scored leader with 158 and third in career hits with 250.

O'Connor competes at Div. II Nationals

Wayne State thrower Kacie O'Connor finished 18th out of 21 competitors in the women's discus Friday at the NCAA Div. II Outdoor Track and Field Championships in Bradenton, Fla.

The sophomore from Sundance, Wyo., posted a top mark of 141 feet, 1 inch on her third and final throw in prelims after recording a mark of 140-6 on her first attempt and a foul on the second. A mark of 153-5 was needed to qualify for the finals.

O'Connor entered the national meet with the 10th-best mark in NCAA Div. II after winning the NSIC discus title May 7 in Sioux Falls, S.D. with a personal-best mark of 158-7. It was the fourth straight year that Wayne State had a national qualifier in the women's discus.

Dirt Devil 12's earn win

The Wayne Dirt Devil 12-under softball team took Wisner's best shot early and dominated in an 11-4 win Tuesday at the Wayne Summer Sports Complex.

Wisner scored two in the top of the first inning, but Wayne answered with two of their own in the first, then took the lead for good with three in the second before pulling away with the win.

Mikaela McManigal and Kendall Dorey both scored on a single by Madyson Sievers to get the Dirt Devils on the board in the first. In the second, Courtney Brink was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded, bringing Brianna Nissen home with a run. Chloe Klug and Virginia Kniesche later scored on passed balls to make it 5-2 and they cruised from there.

Sievers had two RBIs and McManigal scored two runs for the winners, as Wayne out-hit Wisner 4-2. Dorey pitched the complete-game win, striking out eight.

The 12-under Dirt Devils play in this weekend's Golden Girls Invitational in Norfolk.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Transgendered not the problem

Much discussion has taken place regarding the issue of President Obama's insane declaration that transgendered individuals, and those who identify as the opposite sex, are allowed to use whichever bathroom they feel most comfortable with.

Whenever issues of this nature come up, I find myself thinking back to an old friend of mine from college, and I usually end up asking myself "What would Dave do with this situation?"

Dave was as gay as the day was long. There was never any real question in our minds about Dave's sexual preference, and yet it was something we never really talked about. Living in an uber-conservative part of Nebraska (people who think Wayne County is conservative - this county has NOTHING on that part of the state), it was an issue that didn't get a lot of discussion, partly out of ignorance but mostly because we valued Dave's friendship more than the opinions of those who thought something was "wrong" with our friend.

Whenever we had a costume party, Dave would always dress up as an old lady, complete with a gray wig, an old flowery dress and panty hose. By the end of the night, we'd joke that if we could get past his 5 o'clock shadow and hairy legs, we'd take him home and introduce him to our parents as our new girlfriend. Dave loved dressing as a woman, and I'm sure he'd probably be one of those guys who would find himself in the middle of this issue.

One of the last things you'd have to worry about, as far as Dave was concerned, was him sexually assaulting a member of the opposite gender. Dave enjoyed dressing as a woman, and the way he carried himself, I think that, had he not died many years ago, he'd probably have had a sex change and been a local version of Bruce (now Caitlin) Jenner. He enjoyed dressing and acting out as a woman - having sexual encounters with them, or with children, was not on his to-do list.

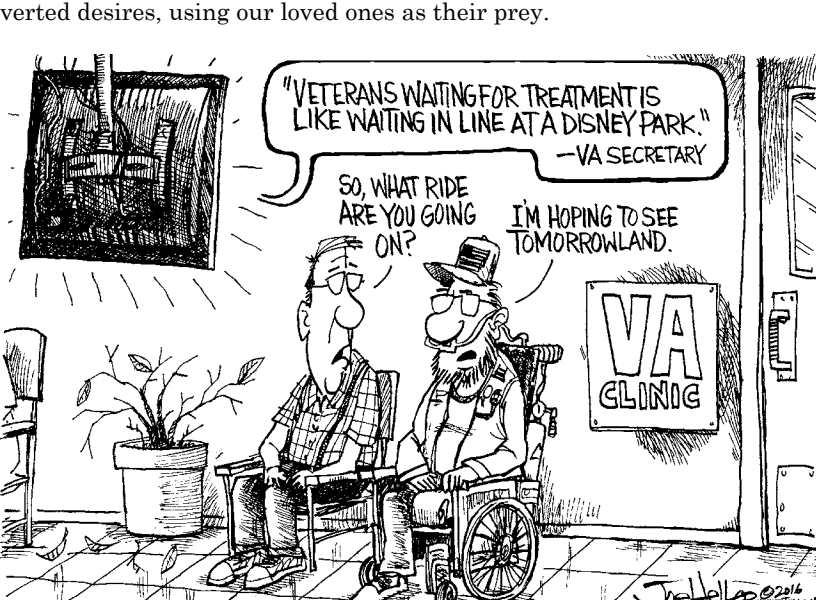

The vast majority of those who consider themselves transgendered operate with a very similar mindset. They might have the "male parts" but don't have the mentality that comes with that particular set of "plumbing." A lot of the hand-wringing and fear-mongering that's going on with this issue right now centers, unfairly, on these people (and yes, contrary to what you might think, they ARE people, just like you).

As far as this issue goes, I don't have a problem with THOSE people if they can document themselves as transgendered and use the "opposite" restroom. Would I be uncomfortable with it if my daughter or granddaughter were using that particular restroom? Most likely - but I would not be concerned about THAT particular individual walking into the ladies' room.

Here's who would get me fired up, though - there are a LOT of sick, twisted, perverted scumbags in the world who are looking for any and every opening they can manipulate in an effort to sexually assault our children, our girlfriends, our wives - these are people who shouldn't be allowed outside the walls of a state prison but, thanks to a criminal justice system that - to be polite - absolutely sucks in regard to proper sentencing of perpetrators of sex-related crimes, are allowed to walk among us and wait for the opportune moment to commit their horrible crimes on unsuspecting - and, many times, vulnerable - members of our community.

By allowing people who simply have to say they "identify" as a member of the opposite sex (a lot of the talk is about males identifying as females, but this does work in the opposite direction), they have every "right" to use the "other" restroom. This allows sex criminals to blend in with those who are legitimately transgendered individuals, giving them - literally - an open door to sexually assault our loved ones who are doing nothing more than going to the bathroom.

Many people have said they won't allow their child to go to the bathroom unattended in a public facility, and they have every reason to be concerned. But let's make sure our concerns are aimed at the right individuals. Transgendered people are not the problem - the problem is with those who will take advantage of this horribly misguided declaration by our President and use it as a free shot at fulfilling their sick, twisted, perverted desires, using our loved ones as their prey.

Capitol View

Changing face of Legislature

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

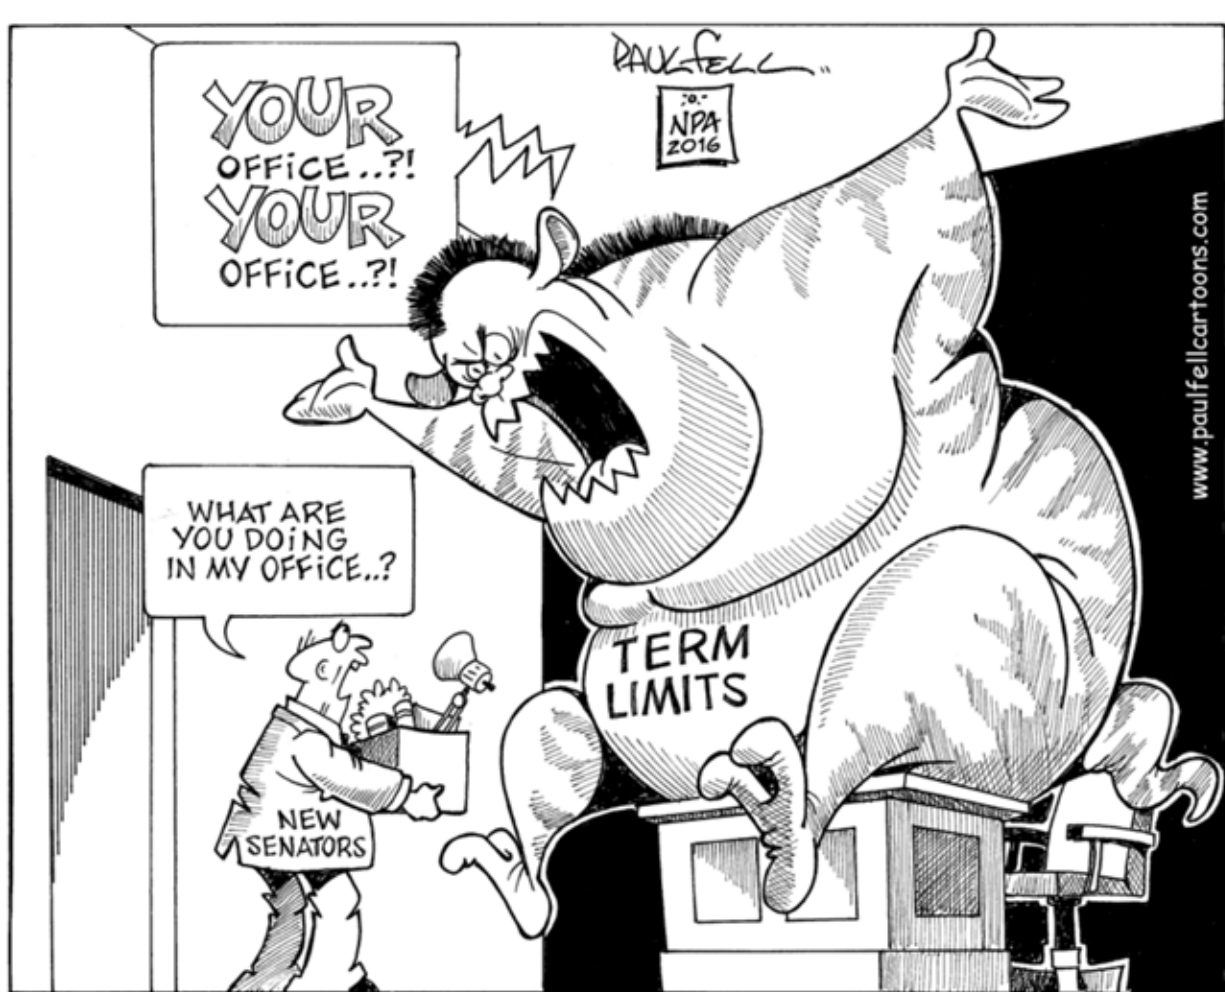

There was a time when the prospects of at least 12 new faces in the Nebraska Legislature wasn't a bad thing. There were still enough seasoned veterans in the body to explain the art and nuance of law-making to the greenest of freshmen.

That has changed because of term limits and a partisan governor who is calling out the names of Republican (his party) senators in the officially non-partisan legislature for failing to support his legislative agenda. Governor Pete Ricketts is even supporting a challenger in one of the races against 11 incumbents who have four years of experience. That incumbent, Les Seiler of Hastings, is chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

At least five of those incumbents finished behind their challengers in the recent primary. While it's too early to sound the alarm, if those five are replaced by newbies, that's 17 of 49 senators - one-third of the body - who face a straight-up learning curve. It takes a while to find the bathrooms in the marvelously historic state Capitol. It's an even bigger task to learn to read and resist the lobby, dodge the scrutinizing eye of the governor and his minions and pay attention to the constituents - the folks who brought you to the dance.

By the numbers: Ernie Chambers, clearly the senior statesman of the whole bunch, has 41 years of experience. He's likely to return for his second four-year term after sitting out the mandatory one term required by the term limits law, which was designed to get rid of him.

The next closest is Omaha Sen. Bob Krist, Chairman of the Legislature's Executive Committee, who comes in second in seniority with a whopping seven years of experience. Next up are five senators with six years under their belts. They include Business and Labor Chair Burke Harr of Omaha; General Affairs Chair Tyson Larson of O'Neill; Transportation Chair Jim Smith of Papillion; Lydia Brash of Bancroft and Paul Schumacher of Columbus.

That leaves the next seniority level at 11 senators who have four years of experience. Sen. Tommy Garrett of Bellevue has three years. Eighteen senators have two years of experience and, at least 12 will have no experience. That depends on which of the 11 incumbents stumble.

Veteran lawmaker Jeremy Nordquist of Omaha, a Democrat in the officially non-partisan legislature who represents a heavily Democrat and Hispanic area of the city, left the Unicameral last year to go to work for U.S. Representative Brad Ashford of Omaha. Ricketts appointed Nicole Fox, a Republican, to replace him. She came in third in the primary and won't be coming back.

Left in that race in Omaha's District 7 are John Synowiecki and Tony Vargas. Synowiecki served 6 years in the Legislature a few years ago and is a Democrat. Vargas is Hispanic and a member of the Omaha Public School Board. This single legislative race is enough to give one hope that representative government still exists.

Troubled incumbents who finished second to newcomers include: Seiler who finished 1,926 votes behind his challenger; Al Davis of Hyannis who finished 808 votes back; Jerry Johnson of Wahoo, Agriculture Committee Chairman who finished 595 votes behind his challenger and Rick Kolowski of Omaha who garnered 481 fewer votes than his challenger. The fifth, Fox, finished in third place behind her two challengers and is out of the race.

New faces coming for sure. Whether it means fresh ideas or fresh meat for the governor and the lobby, that's a matter of perspective. Let's just hope that the Nebraska Legislature doesn't become embroiled in the same partisan divisiveness that has hamstrung Washington.

Legislative Update

Tourism group not following the rules

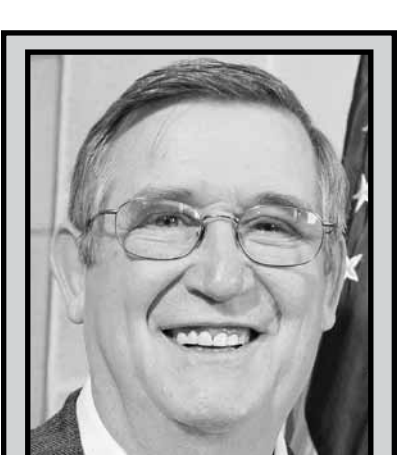

Roughly, a month ago, the Nebraska Auditor of Public Accounts released a report regarding the Nebraska Tourism Commission; this report raised many questions for lawmakers as well as citizens.

In 2012, the Legislature created the Tourism Commission to be overseen by nine commissioners appointed by the governor. Prior to 2012 tourism had been part of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development. Apparently, the commission has been operating since its creation without following any rules.

When it was established in 2012 there were certain things laid out in statute that the commission was legally obligated to fulfill. The audit revealed two of those requirements have not been met to statutory requirements - creating internal regulations to govern the commission and forming a strategic plan.

The commission placed the State Tourism Director Kathy McKillip on paid leave on May 13 while an investigation into the report was conducted. At a special meeting yesterday (May 26) the commission voted to fire Director McKillip.

While this is a step in the right direction, the commission has a lot of work to do to regain the trust of the taxpayers. For four years now, the Nebraska Tourism Commission has operated under what appears to be the unilateral control of Director McKillip and they have grossly misused taxpayer dollars.

Funding for the commission comes from the 1 percent lodging tax.

Changes coming in power industry

Two weeks ago, the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) recommended that the Fort Calhoun Nuclear Power Station be shut down by the end of 2016. OPPD management recommended this because the plant is too costly to operate; annually losing money on the energy it produced. Keeping the plant open would mean a rate increase to customers.

Northeast Nebraska Public Power District (Northeast) appreciates that this is an extremely difficult decision because it affects loyal, hardworking employees of OPPD, who are Northeast's own employees' brethren. Northeast also appreciates OPPD's willingness to make this hard decision for the benefit of its ratepayers, who are, after all, the "public" in public power.

This probably was not a sudden jolt to OPPD's management. Nuclear plants all over the country have steadily been closing as their electric utility-owners cannot afford to run them. Once considered the least cost way to produce electricity, when they were built in the 1970s, nuclear plants have fallen victim to competition as federal policy pushed utility companies to join competitive regional markets operated by federally-chartered grid coordinators called Regional Transmission Organizations or RTOs.

RTOs stripped away the notion that a utility company like OPPD or NPPD own generating plants to provide energy to only their customers. These RTO controlled energy markets have the effect of "wringing the fat" out of production costs by making each power plant compete directly with every other power plant. The RTO in the Great Plains area (from Texas to Canada) is called the Southwest Power Pool or SPP. Nuclear Power Plants and many coal fired plants can no longer compete on price during many hours when consumers are not using much energy and demand/prices are low. This can be hard on the owners of noncompetitive plants, but it is good for the ratepayers and that is the goal.

The SPP only pays a power plant to run for specific hour(s) it is needed. Traditional utilities like OPPD and NPPD bid in the lowest price they can. But the competition does not stop there. Merchant producers of electricity with plants running on low priced natural gas can ramp their production up and down to match consumer demand thereby avoiding losing money in the same way as a nuclear or coal fired plant designed to run all hours at near maximum output. And wind energy and other alternative forms of generation also compete in these markets, further benefitting ratepayers.

Not all nuclear and coal fired plants will be forced out of business. For a big base load generating plant to survive in this new era of competition, the plant must support reliability over a large load area and be efficient to produce at the lowest cost. Profits are now razor thin, as they should be in a competitive commodity market.

There are frequent news reports of coal and nuclear plants no longer being financially viable in the market environment. Filling the gap seems to be new investments in wind power, which we believe, will eventually take up much of the slack as older coal and nuclear units retire. Wind power holds a lot of promise for new investment, economic development and property tax relief in our service area and throughout Nebraska as utilities across 16 States look for new low-cost sources of energy from wind. Harnessing the power of wind is one of the lowest cost ways to produce electric energy and is easily paired with efficient gas fired power plants that can ramp up when the wind is not blowing.

The coming years will see continual change in how power is produced, priced and consumed. To remain viable and provide rate stability for customers in the uncertain future, a utility will need to focus on efficiency and cost control in its operations. This would include things like reducing debt obligations, using competitive bidding to keep costs down, and doing more work with fewer employees. These are the kinds of things that we, at Northeast, have committed to doing to benefit our customers.

Don Larsen, President
Northeast Nebraska
Public Power District

Honey Challenge provides valuable insight

Population trends project the world population will grow by two billion in the next 40 years, requiring a 70 percent increase in food production to feed the world. To meet this demand, the future generation of farmers, scientists, and other professionals will need to be Ag Innovators.

This year's Ag Innovators Experience that is sponsored by National 4-H Council and Monsanto is called the Honey Bee Challenge. It teaches 4-H youth about the importance of honey bees in food production.

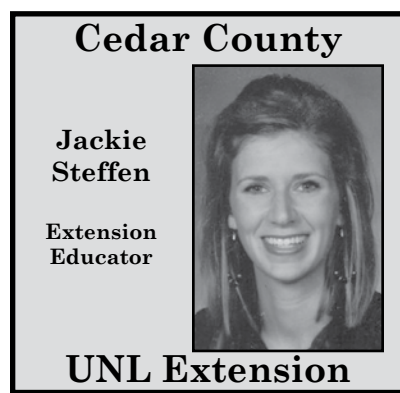

Approximately one in every three bites we eat is the result of these pollinators at work. Apples, pumpkins, strawberries, alfalfa, sunflowers, oranges, buckwheat, and almonds are just some of the crops that rely on honey bee pollination.

This past winter three Nebraska teens traveled to Washington D.C. to be trained to facilitate The Honey Bee Challenge. Eight states which have strong agricultural industries had youth represent them for this three day educational training. The teen's role once they returned home was to train other teens to become facilitators in the Honey Bee Challenge. They are currently leading workshops throughout their respective states targeting youth in grades third-eighth at reading programs, summer camps, summer childcare settings, festivals, and fairs.

Youth in Nebraska have the opportunity to take part in the Honey Bee Challenge at various locations including 4-H Ponca Day Camp and workshops in Cedar County. Participating youth will be challenged to connect honey bees to the foods they eat and also learn about best management practices and foraging behaviors. They'll use bristlebot platforms and modeling materials to explore honey bee habitats in various ecosystems and gain a broader understanding of the honey bees' role in growing food and feeding the world.

Youth begin with a Farm-to-Table warm-up activity based on the USDA MyPlate model. This activity helps youth connect honey bees to the MyPlate food groups. Working in teams, youth then assemble model bees using bristle bot kits and construct foraging routes for their model bees to follow. Teams are evaluated on the efficiency of their material use in designing foraging routes, the amount of pollen their bees collect, and the time their bees spend foraging. A wrap-up discussion underscores the importance of honey bees in agriculture and outlines ways youth can help bees in their own communities.

The collaborative, hands-on challenge helps youth:

- explore honey bee habitats in various ecosystems,
- understand the important role of honeybees in agriculture and food production,
- learn the threats to honey bee habitats and how threats are being addressed, and
- explore best practices for preserving and maintaining honey bee habitats.

To learn more about the Honey Bee Challenge, contact Cedar County Extension Educator, Jackie Steffen at (402) 254-6821 or follow the Cedar County Ag Innovators Experience-Honey Bee Challenge Facebook page.

Dr. Ron Holt awards students with Civic Engagement Award

Dasirae Sieh of Stanton was awarded the Ron Holt Civic Engagement Award during a luncheon at Wayne State College on April 27.

Dr. Ronald Holt, a 1989 Wayne State College Alumnus, has recognized a WSC senior for the last three years with a "You Make a Difference" plaque, medallion and a $500 award upon graduation.

Finalists Brandon Whitten of Nebraska City and Alexandria Filipowicz of Elkhorn were also awarded with a "You Make a Difference" plaque, medallion and a $250.00 award at the luncheon. The Wayne State College students are honored for their involvement in service-learning, campus leadership roles, and engagement in campus clubs, organizations, and in the community. The award is given to the selected Wayne State College graduates annually through an endowment.

Sieh was accepted into the Rural Health Opportunity Program (RHOP) and is a Biology/Pre-Dental major. She is an honors student and serves as the Honors Club secretary and Pre-Dental Club president. During her time at Wayne State, she has served as a recreation center lifeguard and is currently the recreation center supervisor and aquatics coordinator.

Sieh is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Cardinal Key, Alpha Lambda Delta, Rotaract and has served at numerous community events such as Mercy Meal packing. She leads the choir and is the pianist at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Stanton. In her award application Sieh noted, "Service is often referred to as one's civic duty, but for me, service is much more of a habit than a responsibility." Sieh maintained a perfect 4.0 grade-point average while at Wayne State College and will begin classes in the fall at the Nebraska Medical Center-College of Dentistry (UNMC) major. He plans to pursue a career in physical therapy. Whitten has served as a tutor and is the president for the Pre-Physical Therapy Club and an active member of the WSC Bike Club. He also served at the local Science Bowl and participated in two service-learning projects at Wayne State. Whitten has continued to serve as a tutor at his hometown high school helping with the incomplete homework program while at Wayne State College.

Filipowicz is an Elementary Education with Early Childhood major and is currently completing her teacher training at Hamilton Heights in Omaha. Filipowicz served a resident assistant and front desk manager at Wayne State and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Alpha Lambda Delta. She maintained a high GPA, was a member of the Dean's list every semester, and was an active member of Wayne State Education Association Network (WSEAN) and a Northeast Nebraska Teaching Academy (NENTA) substitute. Filipowicz has the distinction of being one of a handful of May graduates that participated in five Service-Learning projects as a WSC student.

"Each of us has unique knowledge, skills, and abilities that can be used to help others," Holt said. "We each have the ability to make a difference in our own special way."

Dr. Holt is an attending psychiatrist in the Department of Psychiatry at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in South San Francisco, Calif. Throughout his educational and professional career, Holt has exhibited outstanding accomplishments as a strong advocate and champion of civic engagement and community service.

Holt has received several awards for his community service across the country. He has been awarded the College's 2004 Alumni Service Award and the 2012 Alumni Achievement Award.

Rabies Clinic

There will be a Rabies Clinic held on Wednesday, June 15 from 7 - 7:30 p.m. in the Allen Fire Hall. Anyone getting vaccinations for their pets (dogs and cats) that night will be given a free pet tag. Also anyone bringing proof of vaccination to the Village Office before July 1 will also get their pet tags free. After July 1, the pet tags will be $5. All pets (cats and dogs) over the age of six months are to be licensed according to Ordinance #2-302 on or before July 1.

Book Exchange

With approximately 250 books to choose from, Allen Students from pre-school to sixth grade received books in the third annual book exchange held May 17. Students and community members donated previously-read books. Those students who brought books were given first choice on picking out different books. They each received approximately 10 books while other students who didn't donate books each were able to choose five.

Because of the Thrivent Action Team money, all kindergarten through fifth grade students received at least one new book of their choice. Thanks goes to everyone who donated books and volunteers Kathy Boswell, Carol Jean Stapleton, Sharon Boysen, and Tammy Thelan and coordinator, and first grade teacher Carla Dickens, for making this a success and another incentive for summer reading.

Another way for children to continue reading in the summer is to visit the Springback Township Library located in the same building as the Allen Village Office. Library hours are 2 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday's, 2 to 5 p.m. on Friday and 9 to 11 a.m. on Saturday.

Senior Center News

As many of you know our board president Joanne Rahn passed away suddenly in May. It is with deep sorrow that I say she will be missed greatly.

Joanne had been past manager and was involved in all aspects of the Allen Center from 1978 until her passing in May. Prayers and healing goes out to all of her family. Darlene Roberts has been assigned the President of the Board, which she will hold until election of new officers in July.

We will also be looking for two members to cover board members retiring. Please think about becoming a voice in the center. Meetings are once a month and last for about 45 minutes.

At the board meeting in May, Jean Rahn was awarded a 20 year plaque for her 20 years of dedicated service to the Allen Center from Norfolk NENAAA. Jean has done the finances and the budget for the senior center for the last 20 years. Since my accident, Jean has taken over a lot of the day to day paperwork and the reports, the newsletters making of the raffle tickets. I truly do appreciate all the extra things Jean does for the center.

A Build your Bonnet contest was held for Mother's Day. The winner of the best bonnet was Peggy Terry. The board decided to move the meetings from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. on the second Thursday of the month, same day as the birthday/anniversary luncheon. We also want to remind everyone that the luncheon is open to everyone that day and the cost for all seniors attending is still $4.

Members voted to have Facebook page set up for the senior center, that way last minute changes to the daily menu on the page. The board also voted to have the newsletter e-mailed to seniors who would like to have the newsletter and menu e-mailed instead of being mailed. With the cost of ink, paper, and postage, we are trying to hold down cost. So if you would like to have your newsletter emailed to you please e-mail the center at allcenter@nntc.net so we can get your name on the list.

Our first big event for June is the Security Bank Brunch, being held on Friday June 3. The menu is Sausage gravy and biscuits, sausage links, fruit, milk, and fruit juice. Please call the center or Missy at the bank to get a meal reserved for the brunch.

The Allen Q125 is Friday, June 10 through Sunday, June 12. On Friday afternoon the Center will be open for the scavenger hunt from 3 till 5 p.m. We are in need of a couple volunteers to help that afternoon in the center.

The Center will be having the annual Pancake Breakfast on Saturday, June 11 from 7 a.m. til 1 p.m. We are also looking for volunteers to help set up, clean and serving during these hours. The center is also taking donations of syrup, fruit juice, milk, butter, and plastic juice cups. There are signup sheets in the center to sign for times you can volunteer, or call we can sign you up.

We are also in need of volunteers to sell cookbooks at the school and fire station on Friday night, as well as all day, Saturday at the fire station. The Q125 cookbook sale is the biggest fundraiser for the center this year, and we need to sell all of these in order to make our fundraising budget. Thank you in advance for all your help.

The next event for the month of June will be the Father's Day luncheon on Thursday, June 23 at 11:45 a.m. this is also the day of our monthly carry in dessert bar. All Fathers are invited to participate in the Deck out your Tie Contest. Winner will be announced during the luncheon and will receive a surprise.

Carol from the Extension Office will be here June 2 at 11:30 a.m. to give a talk on food safety. Door prizes will be given. Please plan to attend as this is needed to help with funding for the center.

We are called by Christ to be joyful

A farmer had a neighbor, a constant complainer, a wet blanket in the linen clothes of life. The Farmer decided to impress this man once in his existence, so he bought the world's greatest hunting dog, trained it thoroughly and invited this joyless friend to go hunting.

He showed the neighbor how this dog could stand motionless for an hour and pick up a scent a mile away. No response. From the blind the farmer shot a duck, which landed in the middle of the pond. Upon command the dog trotted out, walked on the surface of the water, retrieved the bird, and dropped him at the feet of his master.

"What do you think of that?" the farmer challenged his neighbor. To which his friend responded, "Your dog can't swim can he?"

We all know people like the neighbor, don't we? If we're honest, at times in our life we've been that neighbor: always finding the worst in situations, and people, and circumstances, just having that sour attitude and viewpoint that brings everybody down. Unfortunately it's easy to be "that guy."

A Word In Faith

By Justin Raulston
Director, CSF Partners

As Christians, however, we are called to be joyful. Listen to what the Bible has to say about joyful living.

Hebrews 13:15 "Through Jesus, therefore, let us continually offer to God a sacrifice of praise - the fruit of the lips that openly profess His name."

1 Thessalonians 5:16-18 "Rejoice always, pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus."

Philippians 4:4 "Rejoice in the Lord always, I will say it again! Rejoice!"

Joy seems to be pretty important to God, and it seems that joy is supposed to be pretty important in the life of the Christian. Joy is different than happiness. Joy does not mean we are never sad, it does not mean we never have struggles or that our life is happy all the time. Joy means that I will not let the discouragement of what I'm going through make me forget the benefits of belonging to the God who has been so good to me.

In God's presence is where our joy is found, so when joy seems to disappear in our life, it is back into God's presence that we must go.

Psalm 100:4-5 "Enter His gates with thanksgiving and His courts with praise; give thanks to Him and praise His name. For the Lord is good and His love endures forever; His faithfulness continues through all generations."

Memorial Day tributes very emotional

The long weekend is coming to an end, and the Golden State Warriors are battling to stay alive, the Royals needed "magic" to sweep the White Sox, and the Nebraska baseball team bombed in the Big Ten tournament and still managed to get into the NCAA.

Meanwhile, we have had more rain, and on my annual trip to York for Waco High's alumni banquet, there were lakes along Highway 34. And then, I watch the news from Houston, and I thank my lucky stars. Even when I hear about the holes in houses from the hail in Lincoln two weeks ago, I feel very fortunate.

I did not grow up going to cemeteries on "Decoration Day", and I don't think there were any special memorial services. We often sang God Bless Our Native Land in church that weekend, and since my Dad had lost two friends in WWII, we were aware of its toll.

By: Pat Meierhenry

I think the first Memorial Day services I attended were probably the ones at the Winside auditorium when our kids played in the band. Eventually, we added that kind of thing to our alumni banquets, asking veterans to stand and be recognized, reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, and ending with God Bless America. It's the right thing to do.

Since moving to Lincoln, and no longer hosting a bunch of guests on the holiday weekend, we have tuned into the special observance in Washington, DC. I think this year's was especially poignant, with Gary Sines offering counseling help to veterans several times during the program. I have such admiration for "Lieutenant Dan", who has a band by that name; they tour in places we are sending our military in the way that Bob Hope and his friends used to.

He is also involved in accessible housing for disabled vets. When you look around, there are all kinds of good things happening in this arena. Lutheran Family Services has a program called At Ease, which deals with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Some of the prosthetics that have been developed are almost miraculous, compared to the ones that were produced years ago. Whenever I see someone running on "blades", I wonder what my problem is!!

Then, there are the videos that keep coming, of homecomings, of children at military funerals, of young people playing Taps, of flags, and bands, and bagpipes, and speeches. It almost overwhelms the emotions.

On June 6, a week from Monday, 500 Vietnam vets are being flown to DC to view the Wall. I can only imagine what that will be like. I know how moved we were by it. I hope that with all these things happening, the veterans know that we appreciate, and remember, and honor them for their service. We salute you; God bless.

Preparing to make good use of forage

Mid- to late May is when many alfalfa growers would like to take their first cutting of alfalfa. But not this year! For many growers over the last few weeks, harvest has been prevented due to rain, and sometimes overly abundant amounts of rain.

We have options when the hay is already cut and we need to beat some rainy weather. Chopping haylage, baling with preservatives, and wrapping bales in plastic are three ways we avoid rain interference - as long as we prepare in advance to be able to use these options.

But when rain prevents us from even cutting the hay, all that can be done is wait. Well, maybe that isn't the only thing to do. While waiting for the rain to stop and sun to shine, checking to see that all haying equipment is ready to go full speed might be wise. Installing preservative applicators or arranging for choppers or bale wrappers might prevent future problems if rains return too soon after cutting. And, like it or not, figuring out how to use or market this grinding hay or stock cow hay may put you one step ahead of the crowd.

Also look ahead to next cutting, and even to the one after that. All this rain is likely to encourage good alfalfa regrowth, along with some annual weeds. Timely herbicide applications may preserve the quality of future cuttings.

Ag Happenings

Extension Educator

If you haven't taken first cutting yet, it might help if you slightly changed the way you cut this crop. Even if it is not blooming heavily, you might be surprised to find that it already has started to grow your next cutting.

Walk into your alfalfa field before cutting and look closely at the base or crown of the plants. Do you see short, new shoots starting to grow? If so, these new shoots are the new plants that your alfalfa hopes to turn into your second cutting.

Look closely - how tall are these new shoots? Are many of them a couple inches taller than your usual cutting height? If you cut these new shoots off - along with the first growth - your alfalfa plants will have to start a whole new set of shoots for regrowth. This could cause a delay in second cutting regrowth by as much as one week.

Fortunately, you can avoid this delay. All you need to do is raise your cutting height just a couple inches so that you avoid clipping off most of these new, second growth shoots. Your regrowth then will have a head start towards next cutting. And since the stubble you leave behind has quite low feed value anyway, the yield you temporarily sacrifice is mostly just filler.

Normally I suggest cutting alfalfa as short as possible because that maximizes yield and it doesn't affect rate of regrowth. But a late cutting that already has new shoots growing is different.

Most pastures are looking pretty good. But how they are grazed now will affect how well your pastures do the rest of the summer. When pastures look good and cattle are doing well we usually pay little attention to them. But don't take good pasture for granted; in a couple months it could look a lot different. Now is the time to pay special attention to your rotational grazing. In particular, whenever possible, leave more growth behind than usual when you move to new pasture.

When moisture is available, like now, your grasses will regrow after grazing. Regrowth starts more rapidly when extra leaves remain behind after grazing. These leaves help plants harvest more sunlight energy to hasten regrowth, so your pasture will be ready to graze again much sooner and with more forage than if it had been grazed very short. After all, grass grows grass.

Another valuable reason to leave extra growth behind is the increased competition this provides to weeds. June and early July is the time many weeds like ragweed really start growing rapidly. The extra grass you leave behind and the faster regrowth of your grass will help reduce this weed invasion.

A final reason to leave extra growth behind is to improve animal nutrition. As you leave behind the stemmy, less desirable feed and move animals more frequently into fresh, high quality pasture, rates of gain increase, cows get bred more rapidly, and overall performance improves.

To keep your pastures looking good and your cattle performing well: avoid overgrazing, encourage rapid regrowth, maintain competitive residues, and rotate often onto fresh, productive pasture.

Soil health day is June 21 in Winside proving soil health through continuous no-till cropping systems is the focus of a field day on Tuesday, June 21, in Winside, Neb. The event is hosted by No-till on the Plains. Producers, crop consultants, media and public are invited to attend.

The event begins at 8:30 a.m. at the farm, of Scott Heinemann three miles east and three miles south of Winside, one-eighth of a mile of the intersection of 571 Ave and 849 Road. Morning presentations include a rainfall simulator demonstration, field tour, equipment set-up tips, and discussion of soils and soil communities in a soil pit. Lunch will be provided at the Winside Auditorium, 424 Main St. in Winside. Afternoon presentations will feature producers and soil health experts, concluding with a question and answer session.

Registration is $30 per person for non-members, $15 for members.. Pre-register at www.notill.org by Friday, by June 17. Limited space is available for walk-ins, with meals not guaranteed.

Featured speakers include Keith Berns, owner at Green Cover Seed in Bladen, who will discuss the soil carbon economics in the soil. Scott Heinemann, continuous no-till producer from Winside, will share tips for getting started with no-till and cover crops in northeast Nebraska. Dan Stelling will share his experience integrating livestock into the no-till system on his farms.

Visit www.notill.org or call (785) 210-4549 for more information. Pre-registration online is encouraged.

This education event is funded through a grant from the Nebraska Environmental Trust with support from the United States Department of Agriculture's Natural Resource Conservation Service and University of Nebraska Extension. Sponsorship is provided by Green Cover Seed, Arrow Seed and the Nebraska

Environmental Trust.

No-till farming systems offer several advantages to producers willing to implement the system. Fewer trips across fields without tillage passes will reduce fuel costs. Increasing crops in rotations breaks weed and insect pest cycles. Increased crop residue and root systems will increase soil organic matter and microbiological activity, thereby increasing the productivity and fertility of the soil. Implemented in a site-specific systems approach, no-till will, over time, outperform conventional tillage.
