Co-pay, prescription costs to stay level

By MICHAEL CARNES Of The Herald

The Wayne County Commissioners recessed last week's meeting to take a closer look at proposals for health care coverage for county employees and decided to stick with their local company on a new plan.

At Tuesday's resumption of the Aug. 2 meeting, the county board voted 2-1 to stay with a United Health Care plan offered by Elkhorn Valley Insurance of Wayne, choosing that plan over a Blue Cross/Blue Shield plan offered by the Nebraska Association of County Officials.

The UHC plan will cost the county about $40,000 more than the Blue Cross/Blue Shield plan, but lower co-pays and prescription costs, along with local service, were cited by board members Dean Burbach and Jim Rabe as they voted in favor of the UHC plan.

county, but Wayne County is one of just three counties in Nebraska that offers such an incentive for its employee base, an offer that may be seeing its final days as part of the county's benefits package.

"We've kind of spoiled everybody because we've had excellent insurance, but sooner or later we're going to have to make them pay for part of their insurance,' Rabe said.

Burbach was concerned with the steep 16 percent increase in the insurance policy, which replaces the old UHC health plan the county's employees are under currently. However, he felt it was important for employees to be able to talk with somebody locally about their health insurance questions, and he made the motion to go with the Elkhorn Valley plan.

Board chair Randy Larson, who voted against the UHC plan, said he had received some complaints about the insurance plan that, in his opinion, justified the move to the Blue Cross/Blue Shield plan offered by

"I don't want to make it an agent thing, because it's not," he said, noting that the complaints he received were not about the local agent. "We've had noth-County employees' health insurance is covered by the ing but the best coverage from Steve (Muir), but I've

Under the UHC plan, employees will pay a $25 copay for primary care visits and $5 for a specialist appointment, compared to $30 and $60 under the Blue Cross/Blue Shield plan. Prescription costs would range from $10-$60 under the UHC plan, compared to $10-$80 on the Blue Cross plan. The UHC plan offers full coverage of health care costs after an out-of-pocket total

The board spent part of Tuesday's meeting looking at preliminary numbers for the 2016-17 fiscal year budget. County Clerk Deb Finn told The Wayne Herald that preliminary figures point to a small increase of about $30,000 in the county's tax asking, which translates to an increase of less than two-tenths of a cent in the levy. According to her numbers, the $0.00159 increase per $100 of valuation would translate to an increase of $1.59 on property valued at $100,000. The board is expected to continue work on the budget at its next meeting before giving final approval in Septem-

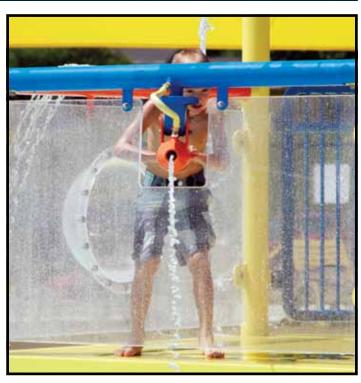

In other action, the board approved the purchase of two tractors to replace machinery in District 3. The board approved the purchase of a 2001 Case IH MX-240 tractor from Titan Machinery in the amount of $62,395.11, and also approved the purchase of a 1997 John Deere 7810 from Grossenburg Implement at a cost of $54,000.

WAYNE'S NEW POOL FINALLY OPEN FOR BUSINESS

(Photos by Michael Carnes) Better later than never was the feeling for local swimming enthusiasts as the new public swimming pool at the Wayne Community Activity Center finally opened its doors last Wednesday. Director Bryce Meyer said that the pool has been busy since opening day and will remain open through the Labor Day weekend. The pool will be open from 1-9 p.m. daily until school starts. After that, the pool will be open during the week from 5-6 p.m. for adult lap swimming and 6-8 p.m. for the general public, with weekend hours of 1-5 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. through Labor Day. The old swimming pool will host its final Dog Dive on Monday, Aug. 15 from 5-8 p.m. before closing down for good. Meyer said that plans for the old pool were still up in the air, pending the wishes of the Wayne City Council.

Severalbats in Nebraska test positive for rabies

The Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services reminds Nebraskans that bats are very active this time of year, which means the possibility of exposure to rabies increases.

"Several bats have tested positive for rabies over the last few months and we expect to see many more," said Dr. Tom Safranek, State Epidemiologist for DHHS. "We want to remind Nebraskans to be careful around bats and other wild animals like skunks, foxes, coyotes and raccoons or domestic stray animals like cats and dogs which are less likely to be vaccinated. These animals could potentially have rabies and transmit it to Rabies is caused by a virus that affects the nervous system and is transmitted by the bite of an infected animal or if saliva from a rabid animal gets directly into an open wound or a person's eyes, nose, or mouth. Rabies is generally fatal without preventive treatment.

Help prevent the spread of rabies by following these recommenda-

Be a responsible animal owner. Keep rabies vaccinations up-to-date for all dogs, cats, ferrets, and other animals you own.

Seek immediate veterinary assistance for your pet if it's bitten by a wild animal or exposed to a bat. Call your local animal control agency about removing stray animals in your neighborhood. Do not touch, feed, or unintentionally attract wild animals with open garbage cans or litter. Never adopt wild animals or bring them into your home. Do not try to nurse sick, wild animals to health. Call animal control or an animal rescue agency for assistance. Teach children never to handle unfamiliar animals, wild or domestic, even if they appear friendly. "Love your own, leave other animals alone" is a good principle for children to reduce the risk of contact with rabid animals.

Maintain homes and other buildings so bats can't get inside.

If a bat is in your house, don't let it outside until you talk to animal control or public health officials. If you can do it without putting yourself at risk for physical contact or being bitten, try to cover the bat with a large can or bucket, and close the door to the room.

Seek immediate medical attention if you've been in direct contact with or bitten by a bat.

If you think you've been bitten by

If you wake up and find a bat in your room, you should try to safely capture the bat and have it tested. The same precautions should be used if you see a bat in a room with an unattended child.

If you or a family member has been in close proximity to a bat, consult your doctor or local health department for assistance to determine if you might have been exposed to rabies and need preventive treatment. People often know when they've been bitten by a bat but its small teeth can make a bite mark difficult to find. It's better to be safe than sorry. Try to safely capture the bat or call animal control, have the bat tested and seek medical advice.

A hawk finds a new home on the Northeast campus

For decades, the hawk has been an important symbol in the identity of Northeast Community College. Now the mascot of the institution is making an indelible mark of its own. A sculpture of a soaring hawk was unveiled in front of the Cox Activities Center on the Norfolk campus this week. The five-foot long stainless steel hawk, with a nearly nine-foot wing span, stands on a three-foot concrete pedestal near the front entrance to Cox. It was commissioned by members of the 2014-15 and 2015-16 Student Government Association (SGA) as their "signature project."

Corby Forbes, who served as SGA president in 2015-16, said the location was important because both freshmen orientation and commencement take place inside the gymnasium inside the Cox Activities Center; allowing students to have their picture taken on their first day on campus as well as their Forbes said the inscription on the dedication plague, created by SGA member Liz Ketteler, truly reflects the spirit of the sculpture.

"Our plaque reads, 'You've always had the wings; we just taught you how to fly.' When students come here for orientation for the first time, they will all have great potential. But by the time they leave, Northeast will have helped them find that potential."

The stainless steel sculpture was crafted by Merle Mead, a welding/ machinist instructor, who taught at Northeast from 1978-2011. He said the sculpture began as a bird cage, with a frame that resembles a model airplane, or taxidermy, where layers of material were placed over a structurally sound, shaped frame. He overlaid the frame with panel that includes over 1,400 individual stainless steel feathers on the hawk's underside, which has been polished to a high shine.

Mead began work on the hawk at his home, but as the project grew more labor intensive, it was moved to Norfolk Specialties, Inc. The industrial machine shop and metal fabrication facility donated both work space and labor to the

"Not only did he build it, but (he) walked us through the whole entire process and had us build our own

Forbes said the students constructed their own cardboard cutout and placed their replica outside Cox. He said Mead met with the SGA team from October to December 2015 to discuss every single detail of the sculpture. "He talked about what the best material was, how he was going to build it, how long it would take... you name it. If there was a question about the bird, he answered it. We couldn't have asked for a better artist and person for this project." Dr. Michael Chipps, Northeast president, said the statue will become a source of pride for Northeast.

"The Hawk is the mascot, an important symbol in the identity of Northeast Community College. It is a visual representation of who we are. It elicits pride that can motivate and inspire our students to his children attended Northeast extra-curricular activities. It gives and this was his way of giving back us a sense of loyalty and belonging as an entire College.'

> Chipps commended the students for their efforts in bringing a new tradition to campus.

> "I am so proud of this project because the idea came from our student leadership. Cory Hladky (2014-15 SGA president) and Corby Forbes and their teams worked for the past two years to create a plan and bring it to fruition. They have shared a tradition that will allow future students to have a connection to their alma mater long after they have left Northeast."

Chipps also praised Mead's work on the project.

"It truly is a work of art that our students, faculty, staff and guests will come to appreciate."

Carissa Kollath, director of student activities, Amanda Engelhart, business instructor, and Lisa Reifenrath, advisor, worked and guided the students on the plan over the past two years.

Forbes said he senses the sculpture will stand the test of time.

"I feel that this sculpture will be the start of a great tradition here at Northeast Community College and work as hard as they possibly can I hope that it will carry on for many

"This program has the potential to be a significant boost to communities as well," Garvin said. "The updated flavor of the course content not only provides the technical theory and practice needed for success in careers in this field, but it also encourages digital entrepreneurship. With broadband Internet access more widely available, plus the growth of mobile technologies, students with the proper training and a good idea are able to launch viable online enterprises that allow them to live and work in the community of their choice while contributing to local economic development. They are also better able to assist organizations that exist in those communities as those organizations move into the online realm or manage their existing presence there."

Pool open for business

A ribbon cutting ceremony was held Aug. 5 for the new Wayne Swimming Pool. Members of the Wayne Ambassadors and those on the Swimming Pool Committee pose with Community Activity Center Director Bryce Meyer (above). The pool was opened to the public on Aug. 1. Meyer also spoke during the weekly Chamber Coffee on features of the pool. He demonstrated the piece of equipment in the background and those at the Coffee took the opportunity to walk into the zero depth entry area of the pool. The pool will remain open on limited hours until Labor Day. The pool on Lincoln Street will be drained after the annual Dusk Dog Dive, scheduled for Monday, Aug. 15.

Deja vu for loaded WHS softball team

Legendary Yankees catcher Yogi Berra was once quoted as saying "It's deja vu all over again."

The upcoming high school softball season is still two weeks away, but already I'm getting the feeling that I've been here before – and I'm not so sure I'm happy about it.

Let's go back five years to the 2011 fall season. Wayne High's softball team was, to put it in conservative terms, loaded. Great pitching, experienced defense, explosive offense – this team was going to have a scorched-earth kind of season where they would go on to beat anything and everything in their path.

The team caught fire right out of the gate. In the first 10 days of the season, they won two tournaments and got a signature win with an 8-1 win at Blair – the two-time defending Class B champions. The team allowed just 11 runs the entire regular season and rolled to a 28-0 regular season campaign.

They beat Blair again in districts before losing twice to the host Bears and earned a wild card in the state tournament for the first time. They competed in a Class B bracket that was as talented as that division has been in some time, and they lost to eventual state champion Omaha Skutt and Blair to wind up 31-4.

The thing about that 2011 team was that they were the smallest school in Class B and missed the cutoff for Class C by less than five students. In my opinion, had they been in Class C that season they would have blitzkrieged their way to a state title.

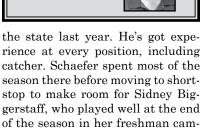

Fast forward to the coming 2016 season, and guess who's got a loaded team coming back - and is the smallest school in Class B this year? Yup. Our own Blue Devils.

Wayne and Polk County both have an enrollment number of 218, tying them for last among the 41 schools in Class B. With two fewer students, Madison/Humphrey/ Lindsay Holy Family would be the smallest school in Class B and Wayne would be the biggest in Class C. (I believe this is probably the only time we could look at the economic growth in town in a negative light, but I digress.)

Rob Sweetland lost just one senior from a team that finished fourth in ings will net a better result.

From The Bleachers Michael

Carnes

In addition to that, Wayne has not one, but THREE monster arms to choose from in the pitcher's circle. My guess is that senior Hannah Belt will get a lot of the work, but he's got a great second arm in fellow senior Ashten Gibson and a young prospect in Tori Kniesche. With that kind of arsenal to work with, it's going to be tough for opposing batters to get comfortable.

This is Wayne's best lineup since that 2011 team, and if this lineup was competing in Class C, there's no question in my mind that this team would be the runaway favorite to win a state title.

That's not to say they can't do it in Class B, though. The road certainly will have more challenges in 2016. Gretna is the defending state champion and has a lot of talent back from last year. Elkhorn South was the runner-up and they should also be well-stocked. Throw in teams like York, Beatrice and Omaha Skutt, and the Class B field will be a lot more challenging for Wayne to get through.

Wayne's district sets up as a manageable district. Wahoo is the only program other than Wayne with any recent state tournament history in the B-3 district that will play at Wisner this October, so if the Blue Devils take care of business in August and September, they stand a good chance of making it back to state for the 14th time in the 15-year history of the program.

Hopefully, that return to Hast-in the Northern Sun Conference preseason (132) and MSU Moorhead 10th (97). coaches poll.

The Wildcats, 4-7 last season and 1-6 in the NSIC South Division (seventh), received 71 points overall and 14 points in the South Division in voting conducted by league coaches. Minnesota State was selected the preseason favorite by league coaches with 216 points and 11 of 16 first-place votes. Augustana was second with 198 points followed by Minnesota Duluth (194), Sioux Falls (192) and Bemidji State (153) in the top five. Northern State was just ahead of Southwest Minnesota State for sixth

12th overall and seventh in the South Division State in eighth (139), St. Cloud State ninth In the NSIC South Division, Minnesota

State led the way with 47 points and six firstplace votes. Augustana and Sioux Falls tied for second with 40 points with Southwest Minnesota State fourth at 30. Winona State (27), Upper Iowa (18) were also ahead of Wavne State (14) with Concordia-St. Paul closing out the South Division poll with eight points.

Wayne State's Players to Watch in the NSIC this season are junior quarterback Zach Osborn and sophomore defensive end Logan

Osborn, a 6-foot, 185-pounder from Harlan, Iowa, suffered a broken thumb on the second series in the second game last season at Minnesota Duluth and received a medical redshirt. In his first two seasons as starter (2013 and 2014), Osborn threw for 5,440 yards and 43

Weinandt, a 6-foot-5 255-pounder from Wynot, appeared in 10 games last season and ranked sixth on the team in total tackles (37) and third in tackles for loss (6.5/31 yds).

Wayne State returns seven starters on offense and six on defense this season. They open the 2016 campaign on Thursday, Sept. 1 at 6 p.m. at MSU Moorhead.

"Don't get dirty." "Wash your hands!" This has been the request of parents throughout the ages aimed at children coming in and out from outdoor play. But is this good advice? Can getting dirty and being exposed to germs actually benefit children? The answer is ves.

The Centers for Disease Control stated that the number of Americans with asthma grew by 28 percent from 2001 to 2011. Research has also noted that children who are exposed to more microbes (or germs) early in life develop better immune tolerance to things like asthma and allergies.

So, what can you do as a parent? Relax. Kids are meant to be dirty. Their bodies crave the outdoors. As children are spending more and more time in front of a screen, the need to get dirty is increasing. Encourage children's excitement for the outdoors. Let them taste dirt. Let them touch a worm. Forgo the hand sanitizer for every speck of dust. Not only does dirt benefit a child's health, but it also benefits his emotional state.

The National Wildlife Federation, in their article The Dirt on Dirt, states that, "Making direct contact with soil, whether through gardening, digging for worms, or making mud pies has been shown to improve mood, reduce anxiety and facilitate learning."

What are some ways that you can help your kids get dirty? Start a garden. Even a small windowsill

little man can have big results

AWord In Faith

Pastor, Grace Lutheran Church

By Mike Feldmann

Ever feel like you are insignificant? Ever feel like no one really wants you? If you do – you are not alone.

In my devotional reading this past week I've been reading about David and Goliath. It's an interesting story about a little guy named David who doesn't seem to matter. David is the youngest of eight sons. While his three older brothers are off to battle, David is left home tending the sheep. His dad, Jesse, one day tells him to take some food out to them and to the commander of the army, see how his brothers are doing, and bring back a token. David does this without hesitation.

While delivering what he was given, David hears Goliath insulting the Israelite people and defying God. David is angered by this and starts to ask questions of who this Goliath guy is. David's brothers aren't too happy with this. They tell him that he should go back and tend the sheep like a good little boy. David even responds, "What have I  $done\ now$ ?" (1  $Samuel\ 17:29$ ).

When reading through this, I can't but imagine David thinking, "What am I in trouble for now?" To his older brothers, David is where he shouldn't be. To them, David has no place out on the front line of a war. If you answered yes to feeling like you don't matter, feeling like your insignificant, or feeling like no one really wants you . . . you're ath is no different than those lions believe David was feeling.

But David doesn't allow these feelings to stop him. The questions David asked about Goliath and defying the armies of a living God get back to King Saul. King Saul summons David. When in front of King Saul as a little shepherd boy, David is truly a little man. But David tells King Saul that he will go and fight Goliath. King Saul responds with, You are not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him, for you are but a youth, and he has been a man of war from his youth." (1 Sam 17:33) . . . Again, feeling insignificant, feeling like you don't matter?

David though steps up again. He tells King Saul about how he has killed lions and bears while tending line, grabs a stone from his pouch, his father's sheep. To David, Goliprobably feeling the same thing I and bears and if God delivered David then, He will do it again now.

King Saul agrees to let David fight and puts his armor on him. The armor is too heavy so David takes it off and goes out to stand in front of Goliath with five stones and a sling shot. (Not your typical war weaponry.) When David stands before Goliath, Goliath says, "Am I dog, that you come to me with sticks?" (1 Sam 17:43). Again . . . feeling insignificant, feeling like you don't matter?

As Goliath continues this downsizing of David and of God, David reacts with his own words of promise that God will deliver Goliath into David's hands. Goliath gets up, grabs his weapon, approaches David, and David rushes the battle slings it at Goliath, and the stone ing him. Once Goliath is on the ground, David cuts of Goliath's head with Goliath's sword.

This tiny little boy . . . a boy who was looked at as being insignificant, was looked at as not mattering . . . he did mighty things for God. This little man trusted in God when no one else seemed to, and with God on his side, he accomplished mighty

So . . . ever feel like you don't matter? Ever feel like vou are insignificant? Ever feel like no one really wants you? If you do . . . you are not alone. David felt the same way. By his faith in God, David knew God was with Him. You and I, we may be little people and we may be looked at as being insignificant . . . but you are significant, you do matter. You matter to God. You matter to God and God proves to you that you matter by sending His one and only Son to live, die, and rise from the grave so that you may be with Him in eternity and know that He is with you now.

You and I, we may not be able to take down a giant, ISIS, or completely change the culture . . . but by being a little man of God, we mayshare with others the love which Christ has for you and for them. And in that little action . . . HUGE results can happen.

Life revolves around Olympics

These days, our schedule depends on the Olympic schedule. The Big Farmer even took an 11 a.m. nap on Monday so he could watch the girls' volleyball game at 1 p.m.

On Sunday, I sat down after lunch to read the paper and the TV was on the LONG bike race. In the morning, when it started, they showed the road along Copacabana beach and TWO rugged mountain trails. So, here, at about 1:30, they were in the second mountain stretch. The road was paved, so that was good, but it was steep and full of curves. A gal from the Netherlands was well in the lead, with our USA biker in second place. Right behind her were three Euopeans.

Suddenly, the girl in the lead wiped out, and our intrepid cyclist was in first place. And she kept the lead! It started to sprinkle and the road was slick, but she pedaled hard and kept the lead UNTIL the last mile, when those three stinkers behind her suddenly poured it on into all this. I love the parade of stays humid. But I'm sure the corn athletes in the opening ceremony. Our flag bearer, Michael Phelps, looked as if he was totally enjoying himself, as were all the other USA folks in their navy jackets, white pants, and red, white, and blue shirts. And, he also looked as if he was very much enjoying himself on Sunday eve when he helped bring the 4x100 men's relay gold back to America! And he hugged the youngest member of that relay on the podium as there were more

It has to be an honor just to be there, let alone to win a medal. Of course, since it was gold #19 for Phelps, he could afford to look quite comfortable up there.

We've had a welcome break in the weather, and since I use the heat as an excuse not to get outside and lowed by Sweden, and then Italy. I walk, I did walk on Saturday and could have bawled right along with Sunday eves. I can tell I've been sloughing off. And tomorrow, it's and beans are loving that.

I was in Cass County again last week, and the crops are just beautiful. There is no other word for them. I'm hearing good reports from all over. Of course, if we have a bumper crop, prices will take a hit again. It's hard to win at this game.

I'm thinking that possibly the folks at York who grow my sweet corn and tomatoes and cukes all summer are maybe making money. But they get up before dawn to pick it, they load the pickup with ice and cover it all with tarp, and their daughter in law heads down the highway to arrive at her spot by 10 a.m., under an awning in the heat and humidity. She always has a smile. We are often there and waiting! It's all so good, and when I don't have to plant or pick it, I think the price is right!

Better get back to the TV set; if it stays warm, I'll have an excuse to

Time to scout for soybean aphids

Soybean aphids have been showing up in some fields over the last week, so now is the time to be doing some thorough scouting. The weather has been less than ideal for them as temperatures in the 90's slow their reproduction, and may even kill them. However, as temperatures begin to moderate, populations may increase, so don't stop looking until the beans hit the R6 stage. If you have already treated earlier this summer, it doesn't mean that the aphids will stay out. Early treatments will have worn off by now, so soybean aphids may actually have a greater chance of infesting those fields since predators and parasites have been eliminated by the early treatment.

Speaking of soybean aphids, in an age when farming continues to go high tech, it was only a matter of time before scouting for soybean sheets or keep track of your writing utensil in the field. Two recent offerings from UNL provide that opportunity. The first is Aphid Speed Scout. It is an app for your mobile device. The second is the spreadsheet EC1582: Soybean Aphid Speed Scouting Spreadsheet. Both are available free of charge.

Any mobile device that is capable of running an Excel spreadsheet can make use of the spreadsheet. That means you keep track of what is going on with soybean aphids in your fields on your smart phone or tablet. The spreadsheet and app will allow for in-field decisions to be made for soybean aphid manage-

Both the spreadsheet and app

aphids went digital. That means for determining whether soybean you won't have to make use of paper aphids have reached the treatment threshold of 250 aphids per plant. Scouting this way relies on the number of "infested" plants rather than estimating the number of aphids on each plant. Plants are considered "infested" if there are 40 or more aphids on the plant. When using the spreadsheet or app they will let you know whether you need to "Resample in 7-10 days," "Resample in 3-4 days," "Sample 5 more plants," or "Treat, confirm in 3-4

Don't get me started

Talking journalism and slimy politics

Because school starts next week, it's time to clear out the "Bits and Piec-

- Outside of the local newscasts and the occasional sports event, I don't watch much television these days. In fact, a lot of the TV-related video clips that I see are stuff that pops up on other friends' Facebook pages.

One that particularly caught my interest was a recent episode of John Oliver's "Last Week Tonight" on HBO that talked about the decline of journalism in general, particularly within the newspaper industry.

Oliver took a rather unusual turn on the subject, steering away from the usual "print is dead" conclusion that some in the TV and radio industry are all to quick to jump at, and instead talked about how often, in fact, those two mediums turn TO the printed word to help them with their stories.

Part of the segment included quick video clips of newscasts where the on-air personality quoted a major newspaper in Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Washington or Salt Lake City, adding this comment: "The media food chain would fall apart without newspapers."

He also noted that a lot of media websites are relying on what we would call "fluff" content that drive people to click on their websites. Many times, these aren't reports of news that MATTERS in the world - things like the economy, education, the war on terror – but are irrelevant bits about things like "Who's got the best boobs in Hollywood?" or "15 kittens that are cute as all get out." Other sites also like to "borrow" news stories from other sources, rather than coming up with their own local-based content to inform and educate their readers with.

Fortunately, we're not in the same boat as the big-city newspapers. We have a publication and website that people rely on for local news, our management is all at the local level and the chain of command is much shorter, which means we can make faster and better decisions on important business manners that help our bottom line. We keep our focus on Wayne and the Wayne/Dixon/Cedar county area that we've covered for almost a century and a half and make the best with what we have to work with.

While big-city papers flounder, small-town newspapers continue to flourish. Next time you hear about the demise of the newspaper on the radio or TV, just consider the source and be thankful that, at least for this newspaper, you won't have to wonder where we'd be without it.

- This columnist has, in previous issues, been critical of our representative in the Nebraska Legislature, Sen. Dave Bloomfield.

He and I are in disagreement on a number of issues, most notably the education of our children and our schools on how to help kids report sexual assault. Others in the area he has represented, who I have spoken with, have also been critical on parts of his voting record during his six years as the District 17 repersentative.

While we might disagree on certain aspects of his work in the Legislature, one thing I think we can all agree on is the fact that he represented himself and the area with a certain degree of class and dignity - something that certainly can't be said for those down in the district represented

Kintner, who is already well-known for some rather dubious comments and a general lack of accomplishment as the District 2 representative in Cass and Sarpy Counties. Recently, he took political sliminess to a whole new level after being busted for using his state-issued laptop computer to engage in an online sexual relationship with an overseas prostitute who, in turn, threatened to blackmail the senator.

While he was fined $1,000 by the Accounting and Disclosure Commission for his misuse of taxpayer-funded equipment, he seems incapable of remorse and is unwilling to do the honorable thing and resign his position as the District 2 representative. Gov. Pete Ricketts has called for him to step down, but he claims that God has put him in this position and he is acting on His orders. He says he's apologized to God and his wife, and feels that's all that need be said on the matter.

A couple of years ago, then-lieutenant governor Rick Sheehy was asked to step down after it was found he was using his taxpayer-funded cell phone to make late night booty calls to women who weren't his wife. The discovery came during his run for the governor's seat, and he did the honorable thing by walking away from both his current job and the one he coveted. Sadly for those in District 2, their representative doesn't feel the need to exhibit any kind of decorum and class and chooses to further embarrass himself, his family and his district.

- The group that determines who will stand on the podium for the Presidential debates this fall is telling debate host sites to prepare a stage as if there were more than two candidates.

This is bad news for both of the mainstream candidates, Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton, as they could very well be forced to actually talk about issues, rather than spending the debates telling us how bad the other candidate would be for our future. The possibility of Libertarian Gary Johnson, or even Green Party candidate Jill Stein, joining them on stage would be a welcome relief for those of us who are sick and tired of the politics-as-usual garbage the Democrats and Republicans insist on giving us as choices for our nation's leadership for the next four years.

Frankly, I think if people give Johnson a good listen and he accurately articulates his plan, the Libertarian party is going to do a lot better than naysayers think he'll do. Call me crazy at your own risk, but if voters listen and are REALLY interested in changing America for the better, he'll not only do well – he might win the whole darn shootin' match.

Death penalty wording tricky

NOW I KNOW

WHAT THEY MEAN

WHEN THEY USE THE TERM SHELL GAME"...

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

What's in a word? Or a couple

The death penalty referendum on the November ballot is a great illustration. The words retain and repeal are the keys. If you want to retain the death penalty you have to vote to "repeal." If you want to repeal the death penalty you have to vote to "retain." Confused? The best way to remember is that the referendum actually seeks to retain or repeal the action of the Legislature, which voted to replace the death penalty with life in prison. So, if you want to keep the repeal eliminating the death penalty, you vote to retain. If you want to repeal that action and keep the death penalty, you vote to repeal. Retain the Legislature's repeal of the death penalty, which took an override of Governor Pete Ricketts' veto of the action in the waning days of the 2015 legislative session, as repeal veteran Senator Ernie Chambers tried for the 26th time to get it off the books. Repeal the Legislature's repeal of the death penalty. That's what led to this ballot question after Ricketts and his dad reached in their deep pockets and provided $300,000 to a campaign to collect enough signatures to get it on the ballot. Nebraska, which hasn't used the death penalty since 1997, became the first conservative state in 40 years to repeal capital punishment. Harold Otey, John Joubert and Robert Williams were the last three to die in the electric chair between 1994 and 1997. Otey had been on death row for more than 17 years. After the Nebraska Supreme Court ruled in 2008 that the electric chair was unconstitutional, the Legislature in 2009 adopted lethal injection as the method of execution. But the state struggled to get and keep on hand two of the three drugs needed for the procedure.

www.paulfellcartoons.com The group called Nebraskans for the Death Penalty supports repeal. They are relying heavily on a law and order agenda pointing out that the death penalty is a deterrent and provides protection for law enforcement and corrections workers. Retain a Just Nebraska is the group seeking to retain the Legislature's action and eliminate the death penalty and replace it with life in prison. They are using victim's families and former prosecutors to deliver their message that homa prison as the assailant, the system is broken. Retain a Just Nebraska has pointed to the case of the Beatrice Six, which has gained national notoriety for havbined 70 years they spent in prison. Former Gage County Attorney Randall Ritnour, who opened the case again years later, said "it happened right here in our backyard. We can't say it's not possible to make a mistake because we did, we made a huge one." The six were charged in the death of a 68-year-old woman in her downtown Beatrice apartment. During the re-opened investigation, DNA evidence led to a man serving time in an Oklawhich he admitted before he died.

"Our ability to execute all the . . murderers we can is not worth the death of one innocent individual at ing the largest number of defen- the hands of the state," Ritnour said. dants wrongfully convicted in a Lincoln attorney Bob Evnen, a single prosecution. in exchange for taking capital punishment off the table. In such cases, the death penalty helps save money and lessen the burden on the courts while sparing loved ones of the victim an emotionally painful trial I hope that clears things up for you. Repeal keeps the death penalty last used 19 years ago -- on the books while the state tries to find the lethal drugs necessary to carry it out. Retain honors the vote of the Legislature - after a committee hearing, three rounds of debate and a veto override – to abolish the death penalty and replace it with life in

J.L. Schmidt has been covering

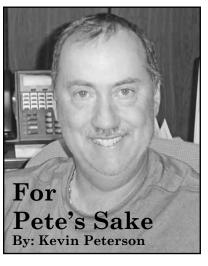

Hard to believe but school starts Wayne students K-12 next Wednesday. Fall sports practices for football, softball and girls golf got underway this week with volleyball and cross country hitting the ground next Monday. The annual Blue Devil Tailgate will be Aug. 19 as athletes from all the fall sports teams will be introduced to parents and fans of everything Blue Devils.

Since that time, two death row inmates have died of natural causes.

Also new will be the first ever Gift-A-Thon which begins at next Friday's Tailgate and goes through the following Friday (Aug. 26). The event will feature students from all factions of the Wayne school system from Speech Team to cheerleading to golf (I had to get that sport mentioned), going door-to-door through the community on Wednesday, Aug. 24 to fund-raise for the school year for everyone. This is good news for a couple reasons. One, everyone wins because 100 percent of the donations raised will go right to the students through their clubs, programs and activities rather than having to give up part of the funds to pay for administrative costs charged by fund-raising companies.

Second, gone is the myriad of fundraisers that take place through the school year including popcorn sales, cookie dough sales, coffee mug sales butter braid sales, etc. . . . I think you get the picture. This is a one-stop opportunity that is also tax deductible for you itemizers out there (another win).

Wayne Community Schools Foundation director Lindsay McLaughlin said the school heard from numerous folks they wish their donations would go completely to the students in the various clubs/activities instead of the majority going to the fundraising companies that supply the products.

There will be some fundraisers that will remain in tact such as those coordinated through booster organizations like WEB, Music able to Wayne Community Schools Boosters, Blue Devil Booster Club Foundation at Box 23, Wayne, Neb., and WCS Foundation. Those events include the annual Pie and Ice Cream social, WEB parent dances, (402) 375-3150. tailgates along with Blue Devil Discount Cards and the Annual Alumni Campaign letter.

There is a variety of ways to donate including cash, check, pledge, online, drop-off location or mail-in. take care of your popcorn, butter All checks need to be made pay- braid and cookie dough needs.
