Slight levy decrease highlights city budget

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Taxpayers in the city of Wayne won't see much change in their annual tax bill, but there will be some major expenses the city will need to cover with their 2016-17 budget.

The Wayne City Council will meet next week to make final plans for their budget for the next fiscal year. The proposed budget is $35.67 million, a 3.4 percent increase over last year's $34.44 million budget. With a 2.17 percent increase in land valuation of $208.7 million, the proposed tax levy will go down slightly, from 45.0295 cents per $100 of valuation to 44.9995, a drop of three hundredths of a cent.

City finance director Nancy Braden told The Wayne Herald that the Wayne City Council has tried to keep the levy in the 44-45 cent range, which allows the city to continue to receive state equalization funds. With this year's budget, Braden said the city should receive about $433,000 in state equalization funds.

"The Council wants to try and keep the tax levy stable, and we've been right around 45 cents since 2008," she said. "It's kind of a double-edged sword, because if you don't keep it at a certain level you can lose equalization funds, and that can be a problem. A $200,000 cut in the budget could mean losing $400,000 in revenue, so it's really a numbers game and there aren't any new revenues out there."

While some of the recent major projects like the storm sewer treatment plant and the new swimming pool have been completed, or are nearing completion, the city has some major issues to tackle with their 2016-17 budget.

Among the biggest expenditures is the first phase of the city's effort to bury existing overhead electrical lines in the downtown area. The $2 million project has already started with the completion of a study and the start of engineering work, with plans to move wiring in the downtown area underground.

The city's electrical department also has a major equipment upgrade budgeted for this year, as a 40-year old transformer at the substation is in need of replacement. Braden said that cost will run close to $800,000.

The Wayne Police Department is also looking at a major equipment upgrade, as the city's 911 system has been obsolete for more than two years and will be replaced with a modern system that incorporates digital and analog technology. The $192,000 requested by the police department will allow for text messaging, and the radio consoles will allow for communication along digital lines, used mainly by other law enforcement agencies like the Nebraska State Patrol; and analog channels that are in use within other city departments.

"Without the analog setup, dispatch wouldn't be able to communicate with other departments in the city, and to replace those radios with an all-digital setup would cost more than $7,000 per radio," Braden said. "This will give them the option to communicate more easily with local departments and the state patrol, which uses the digital system."

In addition, the police department will add to its staff, hiring a seventh police officer and upgrading its dispatch staff from four full-timers and a part-time employee to five full-time employees. Police Chief Marlen Chinn was given the go-ahead by the Wayne City Council to hire the additional staff, Braden said.

Another major expense for the city will be insurance for the city employees. Braden said they are expecting a 10.5 percent increase in health insurance premiums for the coming year. Employees pay 30 percent of their health insurance premiums, and also pay the first $1,500 of their deductible and 20 percent of the remaining deductible up to $6,000, with the city picking up the other 80 percent.

Braden said the city will wait to see what operating costs come with the first full year of the new swimming pool in 2017, and they will also be looking at options to empty and decommission the old lagoon, as well as determining a plan of action for the old swimming pool.

The City Council will make a final decision on its budget at the Tuesday, Sept. 6 meeting at 5:30 p.m. in Council chambers.

A history lesson, as well as insight into the tools used by masons in the building of structures, were a part of the cornerstone laying ceremony at the Wayne Community Activity Center on Saturday.

Corinthian Lodge 83 A.F. & A.M. was the host lodge for the ceremony, which included the Grand Masonic Lodge of Nebraska and Masons from Lincoln, Broken Bow, Kimball, Kearney and Fremont, as well as those from the immediate area were a part of the ceremony.

Musical selections were provided by Josh Calkin on tuba and Phil Pfaltzgraff on piano.

Part of the ceremony included a listing of the items that will be included in a time capsule that will be placed behind the cornerstone. These include a membership list of the current members of the lodge, several copies of the Wayne Herald and a copy of the Omaha World Herald.

Also included was the delivery of tools used in the construction of a cornerstone — the square, representing virtue; the level, representing equality; and the plumb, representing rectitude of conduct.

Those involved in the ceremony poured corn, wine and oil on the cornerstone, representing plenty, joy and gladness and peace, respectively.

Grand Master Dennis E. Rix of Fremont told those in the audience that the history of cornerstone laying ceremonies dates back several centuries and made references to ceremonies in Scotland and the fact that George Washington was

Gift-A-Thon raises money for school

Wayne High School students were out in full force on Wednesday night, collecting money and pledges for Wayne High School Activities.

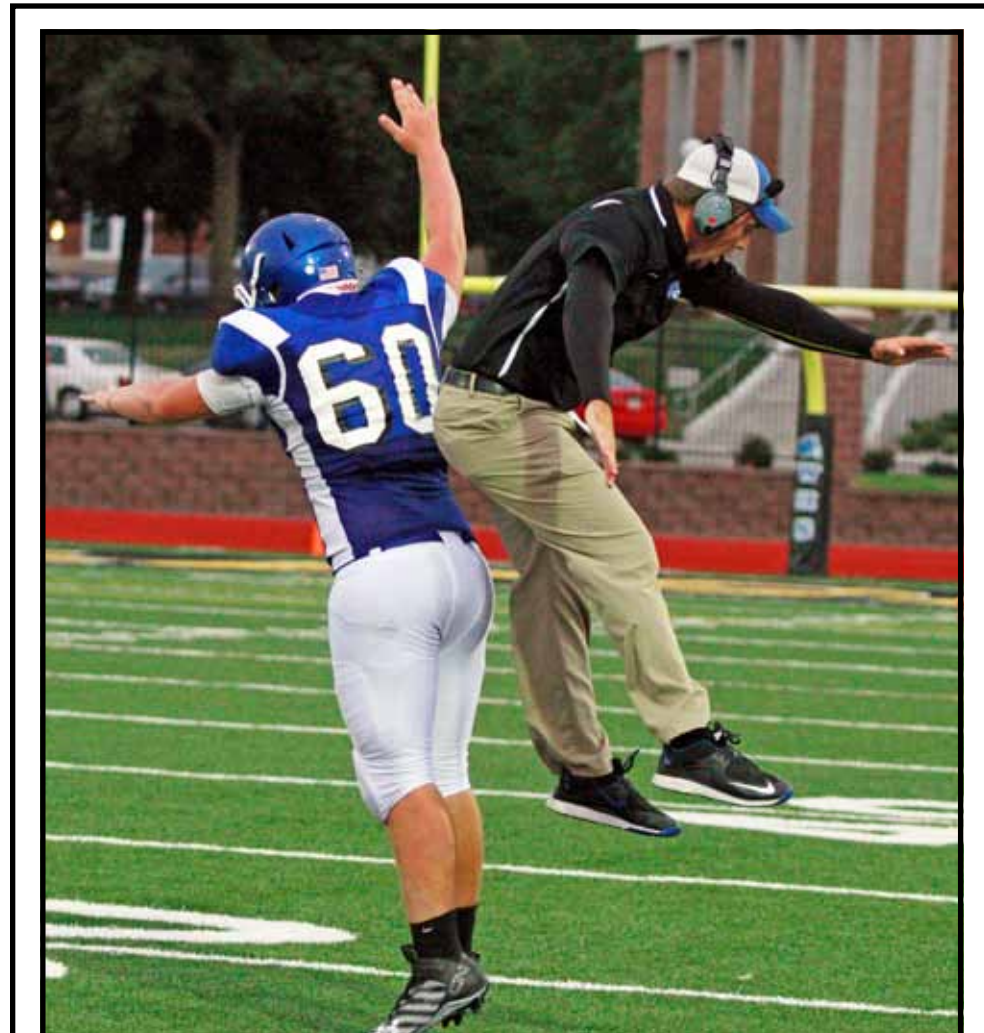

Coordinated by the Wayne Community Schools Foundation, a Gift-A-Thon is being conducted in an effort to raise money for the school and eliminate the many smaller fundraisers held by various groups and organizations.

More than $14,000 was raised in approximately 1 1/2 hours on Friday.

Students were being encouraged to continue the campaign by contacting relatives and others who have supported Wayne Schools through the fundraisers in the past.

Anyone still wishing to contribute to the Gift-A-Thon who has not been contacted by a Wayne High School student, is asked to contact Wayne Community Schools' Foundation Director Lindsay McLaughlin at (402) 375-3150.

Coach has got some 'big ups'

We all celebrate the start of football season in our own way. For Justin Dean (60) and Wayne assistant football coach Dave Wragge, celebrating a turnover was something to get excited about during the Blue Devils' season opener against defending state champion Columbus Scotus. Pet of the Week

This week's Pet of the Week at Tender Heart Animal Rescue is Zola. She was found wandering with wounds on her belly and back leg, likely from an unfortunate encounter with some brambles. All healed up now, she is ready for some full time companionship. Zola is a pit-bull mix, probably with lab. She has some of the signs of advancing age - some arthritis, perhaps the start of cataracts and some hearing loss. She walks well and loves attention.

If you can give Zola a good home with lots of love please contact Tenderheart Animal Rescue at 402-369-6030.

Class of 1947 gathers for annual reunion

The Wayne High School class of 1947 met in Wayne Aug. 12 for their 69th reunion.

The luncheon was held at Tacos & More. Twelve classmates, three spouses and one guest attended.

New memories were added to the scrapbooks. One interesting article that Hollis Frese found was about

Dr. Herbert Reese of Lincoln. He was a cardiovascular and thoracic surgeon and was on the team that performed Nebraska's first heart transplant in 1986 at Lincoln's Bryan Memorial Hospital. He was a classmate of the group in early years of grade school.

The group phoned all those members who could not attend and passed on their messages to the group.

The class lost another friend from the class this past year. Bea Stage Atwater passed away in her home in Denver, Colo. She had been an airline stewardess, a school teacher and in later years, she corrected essays for a school in Denver.

The only people attending from out-of-state were Dottie Tiede from Stevens Point, Wisc. and Joanne (Foster) McNatt of Yankton, S.D.

Those Nebraskans attending the reunion were Adeline (Hoeman) Anderson of Winside, Marion (Foote) Raymer of Fremont and Jim and Ginger Nissen of Lincoln.

Attending from Wayne were Elaine (Test), Les Menke, Ruth (Shufelt) Victor, Faye (Beckman) Mann, Bill and Rae Kugler, Hollis (Johnson) Frese and Pat (Hook) Straight.

Guests were Rae Kugler, Ginger Nissen and Nancy Powers.

The class will meet again next year for the 70th class reunion.

Household hazardous waste events to be held in September

The Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Council along with the communities of Ponca, Wayne and Santee are hosting Household Hazardous Waste collection events during the month of September.

Ponca's will be Friday, Sept. 9 at the City Office's parking lot from 3-5 p.m. Wayne will hold collection event on Saturday, Sept. 10 from 8-10 a.m. at the City's transfer station. In Santee, the collection will be Saturday, Sept. 10 from 1:30-3:30 p.m. at the Community Center.

These collection events are for households only, no businesses. Participants will be asked for a small fee to help with the cost of the project. This is also being funded in part by a grant from the Nebraska Environmental Trust.

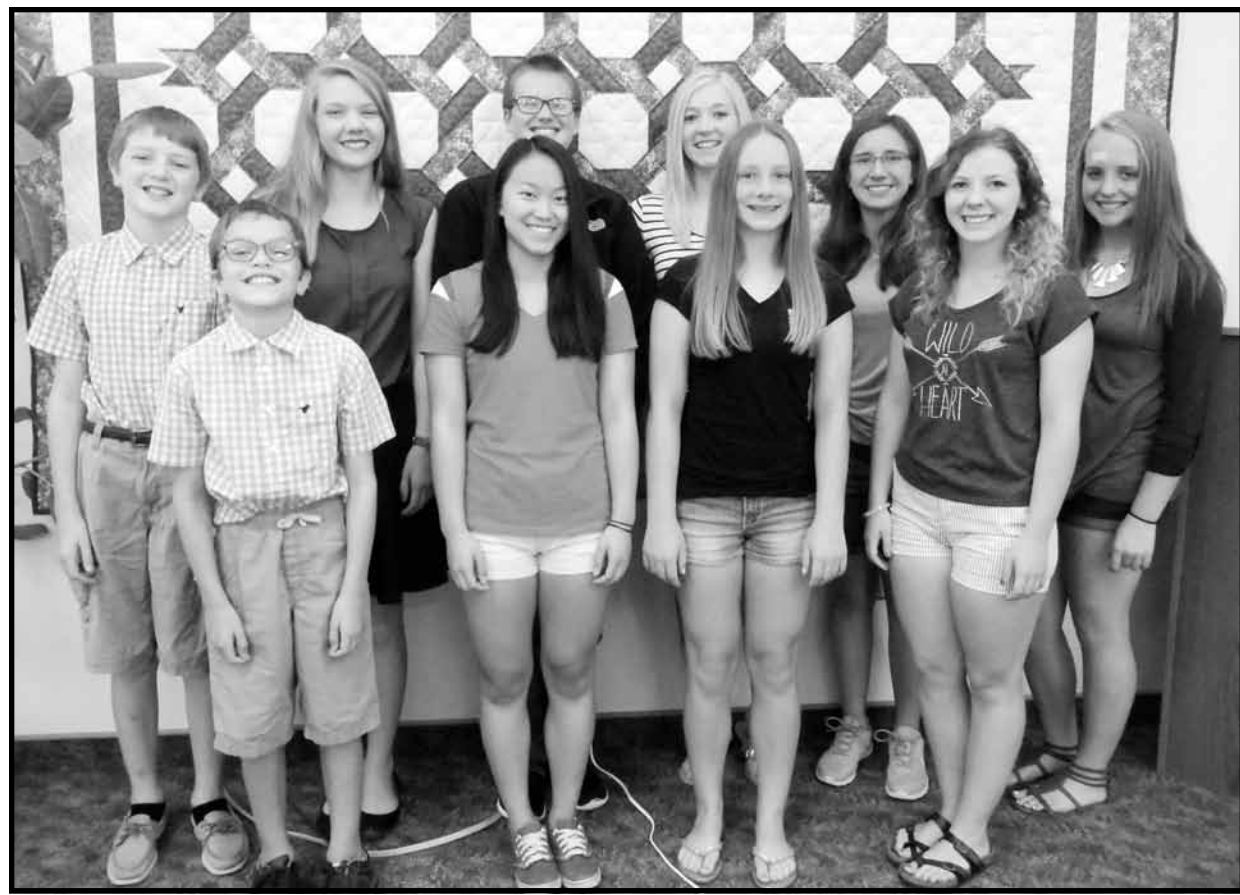

Leftover household products that contain corrosive, toxic, ignitable, or reactive ingredients are considered to be household hazardous waste (HHW). Products, such as paints, cleaners, oils, batteries and pesticides that contain potentially hazardous ingredients require special care when disposed of.

Red Willow County Household Hazardous Waste of McCook is the contractor and is well-versed in the proper handling and disposal of these materials. Some items brought in may be available for recycling or reuse to those who have need of them.

Specifically the items that will be accepted are: latex and oil-based paint, pesticides, herbicides, oil, cleaning chemicals, fluorescent light bulbs, yard and garden chemicals, anti-freeze, car and household batteries, mercury and mercury-containing devices including compact fluorescent bulbs.

Contact the Northeast Nebraska RC&D Council at (402) 582-4866 or via email at northeastred@plvvtelco.net for more information. The Council provides its service to citizens through projects that will make life better for people in Antelope, Cedar, Dixon, Knox, Pierce, and Wayne counties.

Piano recitals

Computer virus targets seniors

A local computer company is reporting that a computer virus that appears to be targeting senior citizens in an effort to steal money.

JoAnn McKenzie reported that a number of customers have fallen victim to The Hijacker, a virus that takes over internet browsers on peoples' computers. A warning comes on the screen about a virus and asks the user to call a number. They are they told a story about the virus and attempt to secure a credit card number, supposedly to remove the virus, and then asking to access the computer remotely. The scammers are targeting senior citizens by offering them a discount.

Area residents are advised that they should never give out a credit card number over the phone to somebody they don't know, and to never give remote access to their computer. If the virus appears and you have already given somebody your credit card number, call your bank and have the charge reversed immediately. If your computer has been remotely accessed, turn it off and contact a service technician.

For more information, contact McKenzie at (402) 369-0804.

Dove hunting season set to begin

Dove hunting season begins soon, and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has some reminders for those hunters, as well as recommendations for areas to hunt.

Doves may be hunted statewide. The season is Sept. 1-Oct. 30, with daily bag and possession limits of 15 and 45, respectively. Bag limits are for mourning, white-winged and Eurasian collared doves in aggregate. Shooting hours are 30 minutes before sunrise until sunset.

Nebraska residents 16 years and older and all nonresidents are required to have a valid Nebraska small game hunting permit, habitat stamp and Harves Information Program (HIP) number. HIP numbers are free and can be obtained by calling toll-free at (877) 634-8687, by registering at OutdoorNebraska.gov/hip, or in person at any Game and Parks office. A federal migratory bird hunting stamp (duck stamp) is not required to hunt doves. Shotgun plugs are also required, restricting it to no more than three shells.

Dove hunters who find a leg band on a dove should contact the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at (800) 327-2263 or report it at reportband.gov. In addition, randomly selected hunters will be asked to save one wing from each dove during the first week of the season and mail the wings postage-free to the USFWS.

Sunflower, millet and wheat, which generally provide good dove-hunting opportunities, have been planted at several wildlife management areas across the state. Game and Parks recommends hunters scout areas before they hunt. To view a list of these areas, see the 2016 Dove Hunting Fact Sheet at OutdoorNebraska.gov/Small-

GameSpieces.

"Dove hunting is a great way to get back into the fall hunting season," Karie Decker, acting Wildlife Division Administrator, said. "Dust off the decoys, fine-tune the dog training and get some practice shots in before Sept. 1. It's shaping up to be another good year for bird hunting."

Other WMA's throughout the state can provide good dove hunting opportunities, depending on local conditions. Contact the nearest Game and Parks office for area-specific information.

Public hunting lands and lands open to the public hunting through the Open Fields and Waters program can be found in the Nebraska Public Access Atlas, available where hunting permits are sold or online at OutdoorNebraska.gov/Wheretohunt.

Eurasian collared-doves also may be harvested between Oct. 31, 2016 and Aug. 31, 2017, with bag and possession limits of 15 and 45, respectively.

LENRD board approves budget for 2016-17 at Aug. 25 meeting

The 2017 fiscal year budget for the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) was approved by the board of directors at their Aug. 25 meeting.

The tax request for 2017 is $4,390,132. The budget of all expenditures shows a 10.5 percent decrease of over $1 million from last year, due to the grant funding secured by the district.

The estimated levy based on the property tax request is 2.401 cents per $100 of valuation, a decrease of 0.2 percent from the fiscal year 2016 levy of 2.406 cents per $100 of valuation. For example, if a person owns a $100,000 house, the taxes owed to the LENRD would have been $24.06 in 2016, and will be approximately $24.01 in 2017.

The funds received by the LENRD are returned to the citizens of the district, through projects, programs, and studies across all or parts of 15 counties in northeast Nebraska. Some of these conservation benefits include: water quality and quantity programs such as groundwater management, flood control, and nitrate management; as well as erosion control, cost-share to landowners who apply for conservation practices, recreation areas and trails, urban recreation and community forestry programs, and many other benefits that protect our natural resources.

LENRD general manager, Mike Sousek, said, "We are working together to create a budget that not only addresses our 12 responsibilities, but that also focuses on improving the quality of life for the citizens across our district. We are doing more with less, by focusing on efficiencies and streamlining processes to protect our natural resources for the benefit of everyone."

Sports

From The Bleachers

Michael Carnes

Sports fan grateful for time here

This all began with a letter to the editor about my high school basketball coach.

Back when I was a junior in high school, the local school board voted to relieve the boys basketball coach, a guy who was a favorite of everybody who played basketball at Milford High School, from his duties. My letter was to the point, passionate and called for the resignation of the four board members who voted to take our favorite coach away from us.

The letter was SO passionate that, for the protection of the author and his family, the publishers of the newspaper – who were also friends with my parents – decided that the letter should be published under an “anonymous” moniker, which turned out to be a good idea. My mom worked with the wife of one of the board members who was the target of my ire, and to say she was unhappy with the letter and promised mayhem if she ever found out who actually wrote it would be a rather grand understatement.

Two months later, the publishers of the newspaper decided that the kid with the passionate pen would make a good sports writer. By the start of my senior year in high school, I'd already had then-Husker football coach Tom Osborne call my house, had interviewed the sports editor of the Lincoln Journal-Star and became known as “The Bleacher Bum” as a nod to my column, From The Bleachers.

Today, I make my last trip into the stands as a full-time sports columnist. My spot in the press box will eventually be filled by another, but it's time for me to make my mark in another venture as a co-owner of a mobile app design company, AKA142 Media.

I've been a sports fan, almost from the moment I came out of the womb. I remember the Game of the Century between Nebraska and Oklahoma in 1971 and how I cheered the Huskers on to victory from my dad's recliner. I made my first sports wager with my mom, who just KNEW the Dodgers were going to beat the favored Phillies . . . although she wouldn't know Ron Cey from Ronald McDonald. I bought my first baseball cards in the spring of 1974, pulling out the card commemorating Hank Aaron as the new all-time home run king in the first pack (although, at the time the card was printed, he was one home run shy of matching Babe Ruth, so Topps took a big gamble on that).

My parents were agast that I couldn't tell them about my homework assignment, but had little trouble rattling off statistics, scores and stories from games I'd only read about in the local newspaper (this was WAY before ESPN, boys and girls . . . ANCIENT history we're talking about here). I'd plead with them to stay up and listen to Mark Ahmann rattle off the statewide high school football and basketball scores on Friday Night Sports Round-Up.

I was a fan of the Seattle Seahawks from the moment they joined the NFL, marveled at Pete Maravich when he played for the New Orleans Jazz, and was probably the only teenager outside of Omaha who actually could name more than one team from the now-defunct North American Soccer League. With all of that knowledge, I guess the local newspaper publisher saw something that I never envisioned as a kid – that I could be a great sports writer.

I've been very fortunate over the years to have covered some amazing athletes, witnessed some outstanding sporting events and rubbed elbows and keyboards with some great sports journalists in this state over the last 30-plus years. If I had a dollar for every time somebody came up to me to tell me about the clipping of the story or photo I ran in the paper about them that they STILL have in their scrapbook all these years later, I'd be a million-

Mason Lee tries to pull down Columbus Scotus receiver Luke Jarecke during the first quarter of Friday's season opener. The Blue Devils nearly overcame a 21-point deficit before dropping a 37-26 decision to the defending Class C-1 state champions.

Comeback falls short for Wayne in opener

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

For the first seven minutes of the first quarter, it looked like the defending state champions were going to roll to an easy win over an eager Wayne High football team.

The Blue Devils had other ideas, though, nearly erasing a 21-point first-quarter deficit and coming within a two-point conversion of tying the game before finally falling to visiting Columbus Scotus 37-26 in the season opener for both teams Friday at Wayne State College's Memorial Stadium.

The Shamrocks scored on each of their first three possessions and raced to a 21-0 advantage, prompting Blue Devil coach Terry Bear to pull his starting unit aside for a sideline attitude adjustment that, obviously, was well received.

The Blue Devils responded with two scores of their own, both coming on the legs of running back Tyler Pecena. He raced 42 yards up the far side for the first score of the game, then added a 61-yard run after Scotus scored again to cut the deficit to 28-14 after one period.

Bear said he was happy with the way his team responded after the first-quarter explosion by the 2015 Class C-1 state champions.

“They’ve got some athletes and we knew that coming in,” he said. “We went to a zero coverage with no safety and it took a little bit to figure that out, and then we went to a two-deep zone and that seemed to work. Our front line really got after it tonight, and these kids played with a lot of heart and I was proud

This was something of a familiar situation for the Scotus defense, as Tyler Pecena ran for more than 150 yards and three touchdowns, including this long first-quarter score, in Friday's 37-26 Scotus victory over Wayne High.

of the effort.”

The Blue Devils held Scotus scoreless to keep the deficit at 14 points by halftime, then came out and put the entire state on upset alert with two big scores.

On the Blue Devils' first drive of the second half, they marched to the Scotus' 26-yard line and faced a fourth down and long. Quarterback Beau Bowers found Ryan Jaixen on a fade route in the near corner and connected for a score to cut the Scotus lead to 28-20.

After Scotus turned the ball over, Pecena found the end zone for the third time on a six-yard run, moving Wayne to within a two-point conversion of tying the game. Bowers rolled to his right on the two-point conversion and had a wide open lane to the end zone, but slipped and fell when he cut up field, leaving the score at 28-26.

“I thought we were in position to make it and that could have been a difference maker if we'd have punched that in,” Bear said. “I'm not going to put it all on one play, but that showed the kids that we can score some points on a very good team.”

Marchese hangs on, wins sixth seniors trophy

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

Winning never gets old for Susan Marchese – even if she isn't playing her best.

Marchese admitted that her game wasn't as sharp as she liked it, but it was still good enough to post a six-shot victory to claim her sixth title in the Nebraska Women's Amateur Golf Association Seniors championship held last week at the Wayne Country Club.

The Omaha native held off the effort of first-timer Felicia Hutnick to win the 54-hole tournament by six shots, finishing the final day with a 4-over par 76 to post a three-day total of 232.

“My game wasn't as sharp as it has been and I haven't put in enough time on making my game better, but I played well down the stretch and hit a couple of pars and was able to come away with first,” she said.

Hutnick, who has played pro tennis before recently picking up the golf clubs, made the most of her first effort in the ladies' seniors tournament. She made it to the final pairing on the third day and was able to cut a four-shot deficit down to two going to the back nine on the final day before Marchese pulled away.

“It was the first time I've played in this and it was so much fun,” Hutnick said. “I got within two after the 10th, but (Marchese) is just a great player and she took me to the cleaners. I'm a tennis player by nature, but I learned a lot from this experience and I hope to come back next year.”

Jane Pohlman, another longtime player with a number of titles to her credit, finished a distant third in the 98-player field, shooting her best round of the tournament on the final day with a 79 to finish with a 244, 12 shots back of the winner.

“You always want to play well, but I had an injured shoulder going in and this wasn't my best display, but I'll take third,” she said. “I was five over after the first two holes today, but I played pretty consistent after that and shot my best round today.”

Wakefield lights it up in 91-42 win

Wakefield got the 2016 season off to a flying start Friday, scoring early and often in a 91-42 blowout of Winnebago.

The Trojans had a muffed punt early in the game, but that was about the only noticeable error the team committed as they rang up an amazing 68 points in the first half on their way to the easy win.

“For the first game of the year we were pleased with the boys intensity,” coach Mike Hassler said. “We had a couple of bad breaks early with a muffed punt, but we didn't get down and responded very well. Once we settled in we just rolled. As always there are a lot of little things to clean up, but I felt our overall execution was good. It was just nice to finally get on the field and find out the areas we need to work on.”

Daniel Nuno made the most of his seven carries, taking four of them to the house. He scored on runs of 66, 2 and 4 yards to help Wakefield build an early 24-0 advantage, then added a 54-yard run in the second period as the Trojans scored 38 points to build a 68-24 halftime advantage. Nuno finished the night with 148 yards on seven carries.

“We have weapons that's for sure,” Hassler said. “I would put Daniel Nuno up against any other runningback in Northeast Nebraska. He looked like a senior out to prove something, and that was nice to see.”

Esgar Godinez had a hand in four touchdowns as well, returning an interception, a kickoff and a punt for scores while adding a 35-yard touchdown run in the second half.

The Trojans also scored through the air, as Ben Klein caught a 62-yard pass from Solomon Peitz. It was the only pass attempted by the Trojans on the night.

Hassler said Friday showed that Wakefield has a lot of options offensively, and the challenge will be to keep everybody focused on the big picture as a team.

“The biggest obstacle will be everyone playing for each other and not worrying about their touches,” he said. “As a coaching staff we are going to take what the defense gives us, so week to week any one of those guys could be the weapon. The scoreboard is what is important, and if these young men feed off each other this could be a potent offense.”

While the offense was explosive, the defense played solid for much of the night, limiting the Indians to 232 yards in total offense while forcing two turnovers.

Area golfers finish well in Wayne Invitational

By MICHAEL CARNES
Of The Herald

The Wayne High girls golf team finished sixth in the Wayne Invitational held Friday at the Wayne Country Club.

Coach Josh Johnson said he was happy with the first tournament outing as a full team.

“The girls played pretty well for the first Invite of the year,” he said. “For a few of them, it was their first 18 holes of the year. This was a great learning experience and we can take a lot of it. It was also nice to see Megan and Marrisra medal. I think four of the six girls had personal bests today and hopefully we will see many many more of them.”

A total of 11 schools were represented in the tournament, but Wayne trailed the field of full five-golfer teams with a 480. Hartington CC won the tournament with a 410.

Megan Keiser paced the Blue Devils with a 108 and finished 15th, while Marrisra Lutt added a 110. Hana Nelson shot 123, Kecia Schenk had a 139 and Liz Junck had a 162.

For Laurel-Concord-Coleridge, Brooke Young shot a 93 and finished fifth overall. Nicole Hanson carded

Wayne, Nebraska August 16, 2016

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners meeting was called to order by Chairman Larson at 9:05 a.m. on Tuesday, August 16, 2016, in the upstairs conference room of the Courthouse. Chairman Larson, Members Burbach and Rabe, Attorney Pieper, Sheriff Dwinell, and Clerk Finn were present. Notice of this meeting was published in the Wayne Herald, a legal newspaper, on August 4, 2016. A current copy of the Open Meetings Act was in the meeting room and accessible to the public.

Larson presented the following consent agenda items:

- a. Approve minutes of August 2, 2016, meeting as printed in the Commissioners Record
- b. Approve fee reports
- c. Approve payroll
- d. Approve substitution of Cusip 3136G3B4 for Cusip 3133EFZ67 as pledged securities held by Farmers State Bank, Carroll
- e. Approve withdrawal of Cusip 557354CU9, Cusip 388178AV7, Cusip 388178AW5, and Cusip 357415LR7 as pledged securities held by State Nebraska Bank & Trust, Wayne

A motion to approve the consent agenda was made by Rabe and seconded by Burbach. Roll call vote: Rabe, Burbach, Larson - aye; motion carried.

A motion to approve the regular agenda was made by Burbach and seconded by Rabe. Roll call vote: Burbach, Rabe, Larson - aye; motion carried.

Emergency Manager Nic Kennitz reported he had done additional checking on mass notification systems and found that none of them could guarantee their service due to all the different cell phone providers. Kennitz recommended using the CivicReady system, a mass notification product of CivicPlus. The first-time setup fee is $800. The annual system fee to cover all county residents and the entire City of Wakefield is $2,495. Automated alerts that permit public health and weather alerts to roll directly into the system is an additional $500 per year.

A motion was made by Burbach and seconded by Rabe to approve the amendment to the Civic Plus contract authorizing the implementation of CivicReady with the addition of automated alerts. Roll call vote: Burbach, Rabe, Larson - aye; motion carried.

Wayne County Ag Society representatives Dave Jaeger, Kevin Davis, and Trevor Toop provided an overview of projects completed the last few years. They hope to replace the sheep building this year using the leftover metal from the state fair building. Future projects will include more concrete for young families and handicapped accessibility, and grandstand replacement. Their 2016 preliminary tax dollar request is $95,377.68.

Preliminary tax dollar requests were reviewed and action was taken:

Resolution No. 16-17, setting the preliminary tax allocation for the Ag Society General Fund at $90,000 was approved on a motion made by Rabe and seconded by Burbach. Roll call vote: Rabe, Burbach, Larson - aye; motion carried.

Don't get me started

By: Michael Carnes
Managing Editor

Thanks, Wayne for a great time

Life is short – and it's taken me a long time to discover this simple truth. For the bulk of my 50-plus years as a card-carrying member of the human race, I've been a writer, editor, photographer, page designer, web designer, video editor – I've even been known to write the occasional opinion column (sometimes doing it WITHOUT sarcasm, but it wouldn't be my column if there wasn't at least ONE MORE moment of it, right?).

In my adult years, I've also been a customer service representative, worked in the insurance and annuities industry, been a bartender, a newspaper carrier, the guy who takes school pictures, a survey interviewer, a radio personality and – for one funny month – the guy who makes the potato oles at Taco John's.

For most of these years, though, the newspaper business has been what I've hung my hat on when it comes to answering the question "What do you do for a living?"

Until now. This is my last submission of "Don't Get Me Started" and my last week as managing editor (sports editor, web editor, video editor, assistant janitor emeritus, etc.) of The Wayne Herald. After more than three decades in the newspaper business, it is time for me to start something new and to spend more time on jobs of greater importance – like being a grandpa, enjoying my adult children and their families, and making a real difference in this world.

My best friend and I have started a mobile app business called AKA142 Media, and we are working to not only develop that business, but to use it as an avenue to help out people and causes that are important to both of us. We both want to make a comfortable living with our business, but at the same time help others whose lives may have been dealt a bad hand.

I've been blessed to work with a fantastic staff here over the years. As it goes in any business, there are times where coworkers butt heads, get mad and complain to the boss about it. Through it all, though, I've come to appreciate the work that everybody does here at The Wayne Herald and will miss 99.9 percent of what goes on here every day.

I've lived in a lot of different locations during the course of the last 30-plus years in my career in the newspaper business. From small towns to the big city, I've played in just about every size sandbox there is in Nebraska's newspaper world. I've been fortunate enough to work alongside living legends like Denny Fuehrer (whose Norfolk Daily News pages first interested me in newspapers as a young boy) and work for some of the state's all-time greats in the publishing world. I've worked with and mentored a lot of young reporters who have moved on to bigger and better things and worked alongside legends – both living and otherwise – at numerous state tournaments and major sporting events.

Through the grace of God, I've been blessed as one of those unusual cats who is equally adept at the pen and behind the microphone. I intend to keep both of those talents sharpened up as I continue to write, broadcast, publish and speak in other venues when I'm not busy, whether it's with my business or with the World's Cutest Grandbaby. I may be leaving this post, but you'll not see the last of me in these parts anytime soon.

I will always be grateful to our publisher, Kevin Peterson, for the random phone call I received one summer's afternoon, asking if I'd be interested in taking this position and being closer to family. I had moved to Ogallala to get back in the newspaper business after a two-year self-exile, and I'll always have fond memories of the opportunity he presented to me seven years ago this summer.

One thing Kevin didn't spend a lot of time selling me on was what a wonderful community Wayne and the surrounding area is. Having worked years earlier in Norfolk, I had a pretty good idea of what Wayne and Wayne County was all about when I accepted his offer.

I knew it was good – but I didn't know it would be THIS good. Having worked for more than a dozen media outlets in the state, I've moved around quite a bit and had the chance to live in nice communities like Gretna, York, Papillion and Plainview. All of these towns have their positive attributes – but Wayne has them all covered when it comes to the people. I've been wonderfully blessed to have developed friendships and professional relationships with some amazing people in this town over the last seven years. The great thing about this new opportunity is that I can take it with me wherever I go – so there is no need for me to load up another U-Haul and move somewhere. You could say that I've finally found a home, after all of those moves, right here in Wayne, America.

It would be easy for me to stay and continue doing what I've done most of my adult life – but after 50 years, I know I don't have a lot of time left on this planet, and there are much more important things that God is calling me to do with my life.

To all of you who have made the seven-plus years a great time and an absolutely wonderful adventure – thank you and God bless.

That's it . . . and that's all.

Capitol View

Trying times with corrections

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It's hot and it's crowded. Not a good mix for many places, especially not the Nebraska Department of Corrections, which is about 160 percent over capacity with 5,400 inmates. The number of inmate assaults on guards – and one another – continues to climb. Multiple reports indicate general unrest among the population and threats of physical violence toward staff.

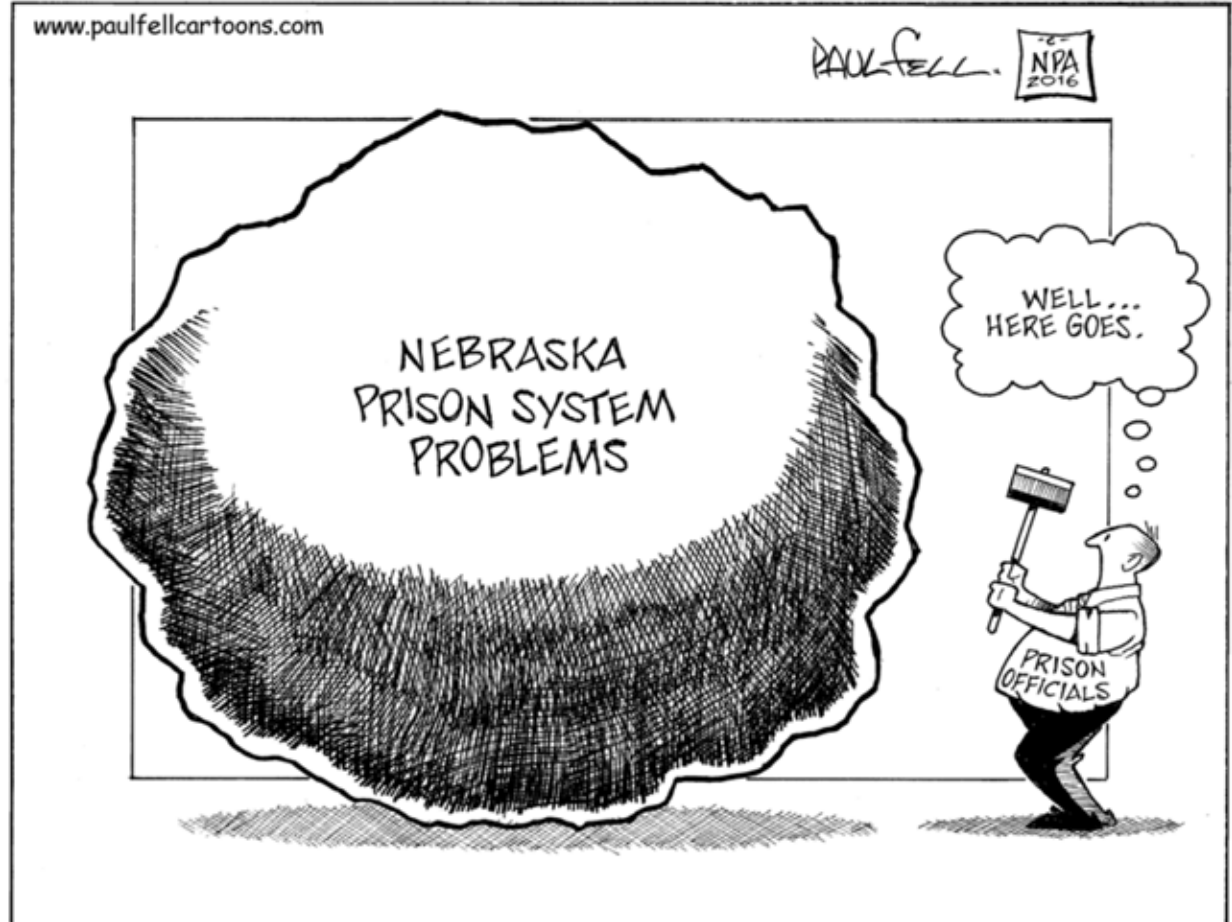

In addition, a longtime prison official resigned and a caseworker was fired in the aftermath of the escape of two inmates in a prison laundry truck. An investigation revealed that the caseworker had provided cell phones to the escapees. In unrelated cases, a civilian kitchen worker was fired after she and an inmate were caught having sex in a closet. Another caseworker was fired after officials determined she and an inmate had also become romantically involved.

Both the Lincoln Correctional Center and the Nebraska State Penitentiary have experienced numerous lockdowns as officials work to control the situations of unrest. In one incident, a shot was fired from a guard tower at NSP to force recalcitrant inmates to disperse. The ensuing lockdown affected operations for a large portion of the inmate population, not just the defendant ones.

During a lockdown, movement is strictly limited for the affected housing units. Inmates receive their meals in their cells and yard privileges are often canceled. Visitation is also canceled.

Corrections Director Scott Frakes said he doesn't use lockdowns to punish people but rather to regain control of a facility. He said they are safety measures to protect staff, inmates and the public. They prevent actions that could lead to people getting hurt. To his credit, Frakes seems to be someone who understands safety as an issue involving inmates as well as staff and the public.

In spite of all the negative news that started with the Mother's Day Riot of 2015 – that left two inmates dead, several staff and inmates injured and hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to the Tecumseh Correctional Center – there have been bright spots.

A study by the Council of State Governments indicates that Nebraska could reduce recidivism by providing more access to programs. A report from the organization's Justice Center said the state currently misses opportunities to identify risks and needs of inmates and to target program resources accordingly. About a third of inmates with one year of parole eligibility are not getting parole hearings because they have not finished programming, or don't have access to programs.

Nebraska's recidivism rate is about 31 percent within three years of release. Frakes said he wants to see that drop to at least 28 percent as a first target.

Two years ago, the organization made numerous recommendations on how the state could avoid incarcerating about 1,000 people a year to reduce crowding. That led lawmakers to pass the Justice Reinvestment Act, major legislation designed to slow prison population growth, ease crowding, contain spending and reinvest a portion of savings in strategies to reduce recidivism and increase public safety.

The Council of State Governments study indicates that Nebraska has some of the best state-of-the-art programs in the country, but they need to be streamlined to meet the needs of inmates and the state needs more professionals to conduct them. Frakes said that is another of his personal goals, noting that program delivery has increased over a year ago. The department allocates, but does not necessarily spend, about $5 million a year on core programming including substance abuse, sex offender and violence reduction treatment programs.

The study has laid out a plan for building on Nebraska's programming, emphasizing that it must be provided earlier and that the state Board of Parole must have confidence in the programs so they can successfully oversee the transition of inmates back into the community.

Director Frakes has a big job: keeping a lid on inmate unrest; monitoring conduct of employees; and providing guidance for inmates subsequent assimilation into the community with reduced propensity to re-offend.

Let's hope he continues to receive the support of Governor Pete Ricketts and the Legislature.

Legislative Update

No need for special session on Kintner

Last week, (8-19-16) I was in Lincoln to attend a hearing of the Executive Board of the Legislature. At that meeting, the board was to discuss what steps, if any, should be taken on the matter involving Senator Bill Kintner.

The board decided that more information was needed and have scheduled another hearing for Aug. 29. Senator Kintner has admitted to using his state issued computer in a cybersex incident while he was in Massachusetts.

While we might find cybersex revolting and/or disgusting, it is, to the best of my knowledge, not illegal. The only actual crime that Senator Kintner is guilty of is improper use of state equipment. Senator Kintner has been asked to resign by Governor Ricketts and Speaker

Legislative Update
By Dave Bloomfield
State Senator, District 17

Hadley as well as some other senators, but he has declined to do so. Senator Kintner's resignation would have been the quiet and easy way out of this mess for both he and the legislature.

I am inclined to agree with Senator Kintner, due to the fact that there are very few guidelines or rules controlling how these things should be handled. I am sure changes will be made in the very near future to define the actions that should be taken. Someone once told me that even a dirty, ugly looking cloud can let down some sweet rain; I think that is what we are seeing here.

There have been calls to have a special session to deal with this. Some want to impeach Senator Kintner, others want to expel him and still others want to censure him.

The very thought of having a special session for this is more wrong than anything Senator Kintner has done. A special session would cost Nebraska around $75,000 and probably would not have the votes to remove him from office. There is nothing that could be done now that the next Legislature cannot deal with and some of the personal petty problems will be removed at the next election.

I will be back in Lincoln on Monday, Aug. 29; I will be trying to convince the Executive Board that there are more important things to deal with such as a budget shortfall in excess of $100 million. Senator Kintner has admitted his error, asked God for forgiveness, apologized to his wife and received her forgiveness, apologized to the legislature and the voters of his district and paid a fine of $1,000 to the accountability office, the rest can wait until next year or maybe even two years when the voters in his district can decide his fate.

Back-to-School kick-off

Winside Public School kicked off the 2016-2017 year with former Cornhusker DeMoine Adams. With five years of pro football experience in the CFL, NFL, and AFL and Academic All-American honors, Adams is currently pursuing his Doctorate degree at UNL in Leadership, Motivation, and Sociology. DeMoine engaged the K-12 students by comparing the game of football to the game of life. In order to make touchdowns in life, students need to follow this Game Plan: 1) Practice your best. 2) Follow directions. 3) Hang with winners. 4) Never give up!

The top 15 benefits of a STEM education

STEM scares many students because it is perceived as being too difficult and – tragically – boring. Clear up the misconceptions and check out these benefits of a STEM education. The truth is that STEM encompasses the most engaging, hands-on subjects in our schools. Strong STEM skills lead to more beautiful art, more engrossing performances, and more polished productions. STEM classes develop those soft skills that so many careers need, and so many students lack – skills like communication, problem solving, critical thinking, creativity, and data analysis. In fact, non-STEM fields heavily recruit graduates with STEM degrees because they possess these skills that students from other majors have not developed.

Here are some other benefits of a STEM education you may have never considered:

1. It helps you stay current. In a technology-based society, technology is forever changing. It's also used in almost every aspect of our lives. As work places change with updated software, and office equipment and machinery become more advanced, STEM knowledge is vital. Keeping up with technology, not the Kardashians, is incredibly important.

2. It allows you to be innovative. Someone created an app that allows you to take a picture of a piece of clothing and finds similar looks throughout the web. Just think of the latest device you have in your hand or at the top of your wish list. STEM helps to transform new ideas into the best inventions.

3. It helps you make a difference. Building that shelter, finding that cure, inventing the best way for people to communicate, or helping people overcome financial obstacles makes a huge difference – and with a STEM education, you can make that happen.
4. It fosters – and benefits from – creativity.

Creativity is one of the many benefits of a STEM education. Ironically, creativity is also the result of

Birthday

Open house for Allemann 90th

Maxine (Preston) Allemann of Wayne will observe her 90th birthday on Wednesday, Sept. 14.

An open house will be held in her honor at Brookdale Senior Center on Saturday, Sept. 10 from 1-4 p.m. A light lunch will be served.

Celebrating with her will be her children, Ken and Judy Preston of Florence, Ariz., Jean (Preston) and Frank McMahon of Sun Lakes, Ariz., Larry and Denise Preston of Florissant, Colo. and Rod and Deb Preston of Boomfield, Colo. she has four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Cards and correspondence may be sent to her at 1500 Vintage Hill Drive, Apartment No. 42, Wayne, Neb. 68787.

a STEM education! According to the NYTimes, James Michael Leake, director of engineering graphics at the University of Illinois, said that learning to make even rudimentary drawings is critical to development as an engineer. Design can help students understand how to effectively use the space within the structure.

5. It can get you a job in the beauty industry.

Without new innovative products hitting the shelves constantly, brands such as Covergirl and L'Oreal will not stay current and may lose business. This creates a lot of new opportunities for scientists to break into this industry. Just think – a product you design or create could help people feel more confident and comfortable in their own skin.

6. It promotes equality in education. Women today are taking over some of the top-paying jobs. STEM education helps to promote diversity and can contribute to gender equality in the workplace.

7. It prepares you for a college curriculum.

Kids with STEM educations score higher on the SATs and take fewer remediation courses when they enter college.

8. It can land you a better job within the fashion industry.

Technology and fashion are merging day to day. You own Google watches and Apple iatches, and with a bit of inspiration and hard work you can sell your own designs over the web. You could even create a fashion app that revolutionizes online shopping or helps people rethink their existing wardrobe.

9. It is a confidence booster.

When you meet challenges and solve complex problems you achieve tremendous boosts of confidence. STEM classes also require you to communicate your findings, defend your positions, and conduct meaningful discussions. Students who are able to communicate their ideas clearly exude confidence, making this hard-to-measure attribute one of the many benefits of a STEM education.

10. It gives you a higher income. STEM-related jobs can be financially rewarding, which is evident when you look at starting salaries in some popular STEM careers:

Biomedical engineers, $77,400
Financial examiners, $70,930
Medical scientists, except epidemiologists, $72,590

11. It increases your chances of landing a job.

STEM occupations are growing 17 percent faster than any other field, and the unemployment rate for recent graduates are less than those with liberal arts degrees. People with STEM degrees are coveted in other fields because of the special skills and talents they possess. No one was ever passed up for a job because they were too good at solving problems.

12. It's great for writers.

Finding a job as a freelancer writer is more difficult than finding a job as a nurse assistant, unless you're applying for medical and technical writing jobs (which are in high demand). Being able to write clearly about complex topics will make you more marketable, which means that you have a better chance of becoming a writer.

Diaper Wipe & Baby Clothing Drive!

nebraska children's home SOCIETY

Providing Save and Loving Care to Children Since 1893
Nebraska Children's Home Society builds lives and strengthens families with our specialty programs that include: pregnancy, parenting and adoption, foster care, early childhood education and the Children and Family Center.

In honor of our daughter, Laura Hannah Marie Hassler, who we adopted from the Nebraska Children's Home Society this past March, we are sponsoring this drive to help out the Children's Home in areas of need.

Right now the Children's Home has a shortage of diaper wipes and baby clothing (newborn to 3 months) for their expecting mothers, newborn and foster care programs. These programs are vital in helping out with caring for newborns in need. Diapers and other general baby supplies are also appreciated.

Thank you for your support

Dealing with your dirty laundry

Where, at home, do you keep your dirty laundry? You get home from work and you want to put on something more comfortable, where do you put your clothes? Or you've just got done working out or doing some yard work, where do you throw your sweaty clothes?

We have a place in our bedroom where all of our dirty clothes go. But our kids, well, it just happens to be wherever they are at the time. You might find socks in the living room, pajamas in the bath room, and clothes strewn all over the floor of their room. And often times it stays like that until we're having company or until they have some friends coming over. And then all of a sudden, it's, "Let's get these clothes all put somewhere out of sight where nobody can see them."

But it's not just clothes we do that with, is it? We all have dirty laundry in our lives that we don't want anyone to see. Stuff we've done that we're not very proud of. Maybe it's something criminal or illegal. Maybe it's something that could cost

A Word In Faith

By Troy Reynolds
Pastor, Journey Christian Church

you your job or your family. Maybe it's an addiction. Or maybe it's just something that extremely embarrassing that you don't want anyone to find out about.

Most of us have stuff that we want to keep hidden. We want to put it in the closet, out of sight, so no one can see it because of people found out about it, well, they wouldn't like us anymore. They wouldn't want to be our friend. Maybe you're afraid you'd lose your job. Maybe you're afraid your spouse will leave. And sometimes we think that stuff we've done is so bad that even God won't forgive us. But the truth is that there is nothing we can do that is unforgivable.

There's a story in the Old Testament of the Bible that sounds like a 2016 political scandal. It's a story of conspiracy and cover-ups. High ranking officials abusing their power. Sex and lies and murder. It's the familiar story of David and Bathsheba.

David is king of Israel who commits adultery with his next door neighbor's wife and she becomes pregnant. When his attempted cover-up fails, he arranges to have Bathsheba's husband killed and takes her as his wife.

He thought he had gotten away with it, but eventually was confronted by a close friend. David's guilt and shame were overwhelming and He cried out to God for mercy (see Psalm 51). He understood that forgiveness was found exclusively in God's unfailing love. There was nothing he could do to earn God's grace. All He could do was throw Himself on the mercy of God. And God did have mercy. The Lord took away David's sin and forgave all his guilt.

Think about this. If God's grace had limits, David's behavior would have exposed them. This was and always had been a story of grace. Grace that has no limits. Grace that knows no boundaries. "Grace that is greater than all our sin," as the old hymn declares.

So, regardless of what you've done, regardless of how far you've strayed, regardless of how long it's been since you prayed, regardless of how you feel, your failure is forgivable! If God can forgive and restore David, He can forgive and restore you. If God can redeem David's failures, He can redeem yours. If God could still use David after he committed adultery and murder, God can still use you. Your failure is not fatal; your failure is forgivable!

Repeat Holy Hackers champs

A total of 40 parishioners from St. Mary's enjoyed golf and a potluck meal during the Holy Hackers VIII, played at the Wayne Country Club Aug. 27. The golfers ranged from eight years of age to 70 years. Teams consisted of families, couples and teenagers. Special thanks to Father Mark Beran and Father Jeff Mollner for attending the gathering. The winners for the second year in a row were the Knutson/Hix team. Pictured are (left) Eric Knutson, Elizabeth Hix, Ryan Hix, Nicholas Hix, Kim Hix and Benjamin Hix. Not present, Lindsay Knutson.

ing an in-demand writer instead of a starving artist. You heard that correctly — even writers can enjoy the benefits of a STEM education!
13. It is a growing field.
One in 20 jobs are projected to be STEM-related by the year 2018. For example, engineering jobs are projected increase 11%. Besides the healthcare industry, STEM fields are expanding more quickly than any other. And according to publicschoolreview.com, the National Science Foundation estimates that 80% of jobs available for the years to come will require math and science skills.
14. It shapes a better world.
Every election is based on choosing leaders who know how to estimate statistics and how to base decisions on sound economics. And many of the local and state polls depend on both economic and scientific knowledge. Having a strong set of STEM skills will allow you to analyze the world around you and find ways to make improvements.

15. It is part of our daily lives.
Science is the makeup we wear and the fuel that gets us where we need to go. Few of us could imagine living without our personal tech — smartphones, tablets, and fitness trackers. Advances in engineering allow us to live in more energy-efficient, cost-effective homes, work in greener buildings, and travel more safely across bridges and through tunnels. We all rely on mathematics when evaluating different loan options, choosing healthcare plans, and calculating the cost of trips, education, and childcare. There are so many benefits of a STEM education, but make sure you decide to pursue one for the right reasons. Not everyone automatically sees themselves as a math person or a science person, but if you are able to combine your passions with a strong set of STEM skills, you can do what you love.

"My name is Nicole Ann Johnson, my maiden name is Harkness. I was born July 31 1986 to George Henry Harkness and Tina Ella Wahlers. I lived in South Sioux City, until I was in sixth grade where I then moved to Elk Point for seventh grade year. I moved to Walthill, where I graduated. I attended Western Iowa Tech Community College for a year. I moved to Allen in 2012. I married my husband, the love of my life, Jarrod, on June 24, 2013. I have four kids that are my biggest joy and accomplishment Andrew, 10, years old, Kristina, 8, years old, Leah, 5, years old, and Samuel, 3, years old. I have worked various jobs as a cashier customer service and one assembly job. I now stay at home with my kids.

"I am the troop leader for girl scouts in Allen. I enjoy children and love interacting with them. I also enjoy music, drawing, reading, coloring, crafts and writing. I am very excited to be writing the news of Allen. I am glad to have the opportunity to provide you with up to date news from our small town."

Reliving memories in the old 4-H building

For several years, our family took in the State Fair in Lincoln. Once in a while, we even took some cattle along. All the 4-H activity took place in a huge brick building, baking and sewing and refinished furniture in the west half, livestock in the ring in the east. In fact, that is where my projects had been shown thirty years before that. We knew the building, and the one across the street from it, were getting old, but they were almost sacred ground for us.

Then came the upheaval! The Devaney Center was basically on fair ground, and during the fair, it housed all kinds of interesting vendors, from massage chairs to cooking tools, and locally produced honey to all kinds of hand crafted jewelry. Besides, it was air conditioned, so you headed there when the heat and humidity got too high.

So, now, the University wanted that center to be just for college events, and, in fact, it wanted all the ground around it, to the north and to the east. There was a lot of discussion, a lot of complaining, and all for naught. The next thing we knew, the fair as we had known it was moved to Grand Island, of all places!! Gasp, folks in Lincoln would have to drive an hour on the interstate to get to it!

By: Pat Meierhenry

Construction, and destruction commenced on the former fair grounds. Horrors, they were going to wreck those two grand old brick buildings. That brought out the people who like period architecture. And two of the buildings were saved.

This winter, Alex was telling me that his company would be moving to the Innovation Campus, which is now the name of the area. As he described the building, I realized it was the old 4-H building.

Last Friday, the company observed ten years and hosted an open house for friends and families. I took Antelope Creek Parkway to Salt Creek Road, parked where the cattle sheds used to be, and found myself in a huge building dedicated to internet business.

It's one of those entrepreneur stories; two business grads put all their expenses on their credit cards and launched what is best described as a baby Amazon in downtown Lincoln. They had something like ten employees; now, they have 168. They have four warehouses in four different states, and are poised to open a fifth. I don't blame them for wanting to show it off.

Alex took me to his desk facing three screens and tried to explain to me how it all worked, and how they are able to do two day delivery on most items. And, his was not the only desk; it seemed like there were dozens. It has an industrial décor, to fit its mission, but it's super high tech. I had to keep pinching myself and looking up at the tall ceiling, to remind myself of what used to happen here. It really is amazing.

And, finally, I got meet his former roommate, Sawyer Jager, and reacquaint myself with Sawyer's parents, whom I also knew from 4-H days. It was a fun afternoon, if a bit breath taking. And I'm really grateful they saved those two old buildings. They look very grand now. Thanks to many dollars and creative designers.

This week's topics include State Fair, Irrigation Field Day, fall lawn improvement

Just a reminder that the state fair continues through Labor Day.

I was at the fair last weekend helping with the Entomology ID contest and I will be helping with the Hog Show on Labor Day. Once again, many things have been added to the fairgrounds, most notably there are an absolute glut of food stands so whatever you want to eat, it is there at the fair.

The huge new Nebraska building is finished and it is now open all year. It features an outdoor theme by the Nebraska Game and Parks, and in Raising Nebraska you have an entire building dedicated to showing people how agriculture works. It is a great educational experience and I will hope that you stop by. Of course there are the outstanding 4-H exhibits and later this week the 4-H livestock shows are being held.

If you are interested in getting the latest in irrigation information there will be a field day held near Elgin Nebraska this next Thursday, Sept. 8. This meeting is co-sponsored by Nebraska Extension and Midplains Ag. This is a free meeting beginning with registration at 8:30 a.m. and finishing around 3:30 p.m. Topics include Soil Water Sensor Technologies; Developing Management Zones; Incentives for Water Management technologies; Variable Frequency Drives; and Al Dutcher will be there with a long range weather forecast. This meeting is at the Rich Uhrenholdt farm at 51556 836 Road outside of Elgin. For more information contact your local extension office.

The best time to improve a lawn is in the fall. It's September and we don't normally think of doing too much with lawns in the fall other than mowing them when we have to. However, now is actually the best time to improve your cool season fescue/bluegrass lawn, which 99 percent of us have. The information in this article comes from a recent on-line publication from UNL with the title Improving Turf in the fall. This can be found on the website turf.unl.edu. Go to Turf Factsheets and NebGuides to find it. Also available at the Backyard Farmer website, byf.unl.edu/turf are links to tube videos to watch.

Almost all high maintenance cool-season lawns do well with fall fertilization as well as broadleaf weed control, and many slightly thinned lawns can be improved during this time. September is the most important time to encourage rooting for next year and increasing density this fall. In our area fertilizing can take place at any time from here on at a rate of 1.0 lb nitrogen per 1000 square ft of lawn. Most fertilizers are found in bags with a ration similar to 24-6-12 (Nitrogen, Phosphorous, Potassium) or 20-0-10 and this will be fine.

Local fertilizer dealers will have other combinations, some that include iron which may help with the yellowing of the grass. Follow the directions on the label. A second application at or just after the last mowing, while the turf is still green will really help. You can even apply a third application in October if your lawn was especially thin.

However, this last application can increase the chance of snow mold if we have a high snowfall year.

An application from mid-September to mid-October of a broadleaf herbicide with 2 or more active ingredients (such as 2,4 D and dicamba) will control most common weeds like dandelions, plantain, and black medic, among others. Apply the herbicide preferably on a sunny day when no rain is forecast and temperatures are above 50 degrees. For more recommendations on specific weeds, refer to the herbicide ratings on the web page at <http://turf.unl.edu>.

You can also oversee a lawn if it is significantly thin but it requires core aeration with a special machine that you can rent. Or, you can hire a lawn care firm to do it. Much more information is available on the publication and I encourage you to download it, or come to the extension office where it can be printed out. Here's to a thicker lawn.

Hunters asked to report sick, dead deer observed

Hunters are asked to report observations of sick or dead deer to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission as they head afield this September.

Each summer, the Commission monitors for signs of diseased deer; reports from the public help track incidents. Deer populations in Nebraska have been healthy across most areas and last year's harvest resulted in near-record numbers.

Few cases of sick deer have been reported so far this year. However, incidences of epizootic hemorrhagic disease (EHD) are suspected in Cedar County in northeastern Nebraska, where approximately 15 dead deer have been recently discovered. South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks recently confirmed a white-tailed deer with EHD in the southeastern part that state. Commission staff will continue to collect samples for testing and confirming cause of the death.

EHD historically has occurred in the state since the 1970s, peaking in 2012. EHD normally occurs in late August to early September, when hot and dry conditions exist. Because the disease is spread by biting insects, it usually does not persist much beyond the first frost.

The disease poses little threat to cattle and no problems for humans. Deer killed by EHD often are found near water to counteract fever and sometimes show evidence of bleeding from the eyes, nose or mouth.

More information about EHD and other wildlife diseases can be found at: OutdoorNebraska.gov/Wildlife-Diseases/. The Commission will continue to track and test deer for diseases throughout the fall.

The public should report sick or dead deer to the Norfolk office at (402) 370-3374.

Champion exhibitor

Kylie Kempf of Carroll exhibited the third place Market Heifer at the Loup Valley Livestock Challenge in Ord on Aug. 21. This year marks the 10th year of the Challenge, an invitational show open only to county fair champions, hosted by the Loup Valley Ag Society and sponsored by area NAPA Auto and Truck Parts stores. Kempf's awards were donated by NAPA and Green Plains-Ord, and were presented by Gaylord Boilesen of NAPA Parts Bin Stores in Columbus, Ord and St. Paul.

THANK YOU

I would like to thank everyone for the cards, phone calls, food and visits after returning home from having surgery; also to the fellows at the Sidelines for their card. Many thanks also to our neighbors for their help cleaning up the lawn after the wind storm. God's blessing to all. Willard Bartels

Thank you so much to our family and friends for helping to make our 50th anniversary so special. All of the cards, flowers and gifts meant so much to us. Our kids, grandkids and great grands all went that extra mile to make everything so memorable for us. Thank you, Donna, for coming early to take pictures. God's blessing to you all. Dean and Beth

The family of Chris Sherry would like to give many thanks to the wonderful community for the kindness, support and generosity you have shown us at this difficult time. The cards, flowers, food and compassion were very comforting to us. Thanks to Father Jeff, Hasemann Funeral Home, St. Mary's School and Church family, family, friends, Kirkwood House, R-Way, Wayne High Class of 2008 and Wayne East. Our Sincerest Thanks! The Sherry Family

The family of Don Langenberg would like to thank all our friends for all the cards, flowers, visits, phone calls, memorials, food and just being you. Don will be missed but with friends like you, we will be just fine. A special thank you to the ICU at the Omaha Veterans Hospital and the Bel-Aire Nursing Home for caring and treating him so well. The care was great! Also a special thank you to Pastor Goodman, for all the encouraging words and prayers. Thank you, Mary Langenberg and all of Don's family
