Family's return home delayed after Florida airport shooting

By Calyn Dunklau

calyn@wayneherald.com

The Erhardt family was checking their rental car in when shots sounded in the baggage claim area of Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Air-

After a 10-day vacation in Florida the family of four was ready to return to home to Colorado to sleep in their own beds but the events that transpired on Jan. 6 would force them to stay an extra two days in Florida.

Jason Erhardt, a 1991 Wayne High School graduate, and his wife Kelli had made several stops around the state while the family was on vacation, including Orlando, St. Pete's beach and Key West before heading north to Fort Lauderdale to fly home.

The family had no intensions of staying in Fort Lauderdale -- they wanted to board their plane and head home, but it all changed when an active shooter disembarked from his flight, collected his checked baggage, entered a bathroom to load his weapon and opened fire in the baggage claim area of the airport.

"We had just gotten to the rent-a-car place, just turned it back in and were going to hop on the shuttle to go check into our flight," Jason Erhardt said. "That's when everything went down."

Five minutes doesn't seem like a long time, but it was enough of a buffer that the Erhardts never actually made it into the airport to check in.

"Everything happened pretty fast actually. Everything was shut down immediately," the 20-year police officer veteran said. "There was no traffic in or out. They even told all the shuttles to cease moving." His wife's phone went off with an in the Fort Lauderdale airport, but it much worse.'

"There were maybe 5 to 10 choppers overhead, so we knew it was going to be a serious thing. We watched just non-stop cops and firemen flying in there."

had no details beyond that.

"We weren't certain how big it was and it didn't say where in the airport

It was that confusion that had people running onto the tarmac, behind vehicles and hiding out in the airport, not knowing how many, where or the extent of the incident.

Flights initially showed being on time, but that quickly changed, as times posted delayed or cancelled all together.

"I thought to myself 'there's no way they're going to be on time with all of this going down, it being a major crime scene.'"

The Erhardts stayed put at the rental car check in, playing the waiting game, still not sure the extent of the damage 'There were maybe 5 to 10 choppers overhead, so we knew it was going to be a serious thing," he said. "We watched just non-stop cops and firemen flying in

And part of the impressive response was due to the talk of a second shooter on the grounds.

"Someone actually thought there was a second shooter at one point in a parking garage. And then they thought there was another active shooter going on -alert saying there was an active shooter which there wasn't -- and that made it

The knowledge Erhardt possesses as a police officer was a benefit for him, allowing him to remain calm. There were mixed emotions, he said, commenting that people not knowing how bad it was really had an effect on their emotions.

Erhardt said his wife was upset, and justifiably so, but his law enforcement career in Denver had him used to dealing with threatening situations regularly.

Watching the live feed on the television, the Erhardts learned people were stuck on planes for six to seven hours, the highway coming into the airport had been shut down so all the traffic was stopped there. Even those in the cruise ship port were halted in their tracks.

Erhardt said they lucked out in more than one way, stating that because they hadn't made it into the airport yet, they were able to take a cab out and swap their flight out to Sunday, Jan. 8. They managed to scoop up a hotel room quickly as rooms were going fast.

Eventually busses were brought in to get people out of the terminals. Having no transportation in or out required law enforcement to bring in the busses.

When the family got to the airport on Sunday, it was business as usual for the

Unclaimed luggage sat in a pile waiting for people to recognize their own pieces that had been abandoned in the

An increased police presence reassured passengers, but things moved quickly as far as check in, Erhardt said.

Given that the gunman's weapon had been checked baggage, not carried illegally on board, Erhardt didn't feel there could really have been more that could have been done.

"He had even checked his gun in, and See Shooting, Page 4A

Changes embraced as PMC pushed into new era of medicine

By Calyn Dunklau calyn@wayneherald.com

As Providence Medical Center pushes forward in its impressive construction and renovation project, we will publish a series of five articles centered around various aspects of PMC. This week focuses on developing the healthcare system and next week's will highlight shortcomings and necessary improvements.

After the construction of Providence Medical Center, a client base had to be established and the most effective way to get clientele is to bring in

And that's what Providence set about to do and successfully did so, incorporating a family practice clinic at its location in 1994.

Dr. Willis Wiseman purchased a family practice clinic located at 214 Pearl Street from the Madsen family in 1975 when he moved from Wyo-Nearly immediately, Wiseman began searching for physicians to join the practice because of the extreme need for health care in the area that he and the other clinic in town, the Benthack clinic, weren't able to keep "In 1979, I recruited Dr. Jim Lindau to come to town," Wiseman said

"Later that same year, we opened the Wisner clinic as a satellite clinic, which happened to be the first family practice satellite in the state." In 1982, Wiseman and Lindau recruited Dr. Todd French to come to town and join the clinic's practice because there was still a serious need for family health care in the area and there was about to be a second satellite clinic opened, this time in Laurel.

Yet another physician was brought in, a doctor named Dave Wachs, who cost quite a bit to recruit, but by the end of his first year, the farm crisis of 1980s had its grip on the area.

"It hit us economically really hard and even though he was really popular, we had to let him go," Wiseman said. "It was very disappointing to a

A mere six months later, French decided he was going to pull out of the family clinic to pursue anesthesiology.

This left Wiseman and Lindau to hold down three locations between two doctors, when, had they known, they would have made things work for six months with Wachs until French left.

During that time, the Benthack clinic had recruited Dr. Benjamin Martin and Gary West, P.A.-C. to work along side Dr. Walter Benthack and Dr. Robert Benthack. They also opened a satellite location in Wakefield. Wiseman recruited Dr. David Felber, but he had a year of residency left to complete before he could join the practice in 1987.

It wasn't until 1988 that the two clinics merged, changing from Wayne Family Practice Clinic and the Benthack Clinic into one Northeast Nebraska Family Practice, Inc.

But changes that large don't come together seamlessly or overnight, so there were hurdles to clear.

"For a while we were operating the two downtown clinics at the same time, as one entity," Wiseman said. "Which was awkward."

That was when discussions began with the Missionary Benedictine Sis-

"Finally, after a lot of negotiations they built the addition onto the hospital, which still is the clinic presently.'

The clinic broke ground in August of 1994 and was dedicated in September of the following year. Wiseman, along with Felber, Lindau, West, and Martin operated under Northeast Nebraska Family Practice in the across the state according to the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services. Outbreaks are being reported in schools and long-term care facilities and numerous work places are experiencing staffing shortages due to illness.

"The first two weeks of January showed a strong spike in flu activity and increases in doctors' office visits and flu-related hospitalizations," said Dr. Tom Safranek, State Epidemiologist for DHHS. "Antiviral drugs like Tamiflu should be used as early as possible in people who have flu-like illness. For those who aren't sick, common sense preventive measures along with flu vaccine can help prevent flu and other winter illnesses during the height of the season."

Protect yourself from the flu by: Washing your hands often;

 Avoiding contact with people who are sick:

Record amount of unclaimed property in 2016 returned

More than $16.3 million was returned by the Nebraska State Treasurer's Office to owners of unclaimed property in 2016. The total is the largest amount returned in one year in the history of the program, State Treasurer Don Stenberg said. The $16,348,497 returned in 2016 exceeds the previous calendar year record of $14 million set in 2008. A total of 16,984 claims were paid in 2016. The largest claim paid was for two trusts valued at a total of $1.2 million for an Omaha couple. The average claim in 2016 was $962.

The state's unclaimed property program began in 1969.

"I am very happy for the Nebraskans, former Nebraskans, and heirs who received unclaimed property from the Treasurer's Office in 2016. And I am very thankful to the staff of the Unclaimed Property Division who put impressive effort into locating owners, helping owners file claims, and verifying ownership so that more than $16.3 million could be returned to rightful owners to be used as the owners see best," said State Treasur-

Stenberg said the addition of two full-time researchers to the Unclaimed Property staff contributed to the record numbers in 2016. The two researchers devoted their time to identifying and seeking out owners of larger properties, while other specialists in the division concentrated on responding to claims filed by individuals through the website, mail, telephone, outreach events, or in person.

"I want to commend the Unclaimed Property staff members for their hard work, diligence, and perseverance in locating hard-to-find owners and helping them file claims. I receive many compliments for the friendliness, patience, and knowledge exhibited by the staff," Stenberg said.

Stenberg also noted that as more Nebraska companies engage in global business, the unclaimed property staff is now searching for owners not only from across the United States, but also internationally. In 2016, the Treasurer's Office paid claims to owners throughout the United States as well as in Australia, Canada, France, Germany, Japan, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom.

"Our success in 2016 truly has been a group effort involving the entire staff. Our researchers worked determinedly to contact owners and complete claims. The rest of our claims staff pitched in to locate owners and initiate claims as well in between responding to callers and visitors to our office and owners who filed claims online or through the mail," said Meghan Aguirre, director of the Unclaimed Property Division. "We are looking forward to achieving similar results in 2017, and we can only hope to return another $1 million claim in 2017 like we did this last year."

Stenberg reminded owners that they may search for unclaimed property anytime at treasurer.nebraska. gov. In instances in which property is $500 or less, owners may file claims online through the Treasurer's web-

STEM opportunities for LCC students thanks to area extension educator

Robots may not have taken over the world like in some cheesy science fiction movie, but they did invade classrooms in one area school.

Laurel-Concord-Coleridge High School had the opportunity last school year to bring in Angela Abts, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Youth Development and Extension Educator for Dakota County, to teach a couple of Lego Mindstorms Robotics lessons to Kim McCorkindale's ninth grade students. McCorkindale is the 9-12 science instructor who taught all the science courses last year and learned right along with the students.

Over the course of two days, Abts taught the students how to build and program Lego Mindstorms Simplebots, which are made of Lego pieces, a programmable brick, color sensor, light sensor and infrared sensor.

Students paired up to build and program the robot to move on a course that they set up with different colored tape and signs. The robotics project is used to help kids problem solve with others and use trial-anderror to find out what will or won't work to make the robot successful.

"The students loved it. They are pretty tech savvy and caught on pretty easily to the instructions," said McCorkindale.

Abts said that the difficulty in programming and building the robots goes up with every age group she teaches whether it be at a school or for 4-H camps in the summer. For the high school age groups, math formulas and division are more heavily involved in the construction of the robot, such as trying to find the radius of a wheel to see what size would work best for it to move.

"It's a fun project. I never thought I would be teaching about robots," Abts said.

This robotics program has been six years in the making and it started when she went to a meeting about it in Omaha, Abts said. She has invested a lot of time, money and effort into making this interesting to schools and 4-H groups in surrounding counties.

"It was a good program to expose students to and get them excited about. I will implement these technology opportunities into some of my classes, such as Physics this spring," McCorkindale said.

The robotics class was brought to LCC as a part of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics.) It is an initiative to help integrate more programs like these into schools to prepare students for the jobs that are ever increasing in these fields. McCorkindale said that ESU1 in Wakefield has a program using drones and small robots that they can bring at the Wayne Public Library is Nina, who is a student at Wayne Elementary School.

Nina named Reader of the Week This week's "Reader of the week"

1. What is the last book you read? Fire and Ice by Shannon Hale. 2. Who is your favorite author?

Tui Sutherland, who wrote the series: Pet Trouble, Wings of Fire, Menagerie, and Against the Tide. I like her books because they are fascinating and I also like how the title of her books drew me in to them.

3. Why do you read?

I read because I just love reading and when I'm anxious, nervous, hyper, or excited I read to calm down.

4. Have you ever had to give up on a book?

No I have not

5. Name a book you would recommend and tell everyone why they should read it.

I recommend The Year of the... by Oliver Chin. The series are about the Chinese zodiac and which zodiac year it is.

Wayne Public Library has announced the 2017 title selections for the Book Club Discussion Group. The club meets the last Tuesday of each month, 6:30 p.m. at the Wayne Senior Center. "There might not be time to read this month's selection, but patrons are always welcome at the discussion schedule for Tuesday, Jan. 31 at 6:30 p.m.," said Rita Mclean, Adult Services Librarian. The life-changing magic of tidying up by Marie Kondo is a best seller and the most popular checked-out book at the Omaha Public Libraries this past year. Perhaps getting rid of clutter is your New Years resolution

"Even if you haven't read the book perhaps listening to the discussion will encourage you to read it on your own," McLean said. The book touch es on getting rid of the paper stacks how to deal with the emotion of heirlooms, and the glut of clothing we store in our closets but do not wear.

Other selections on the reading list include: The storied life of A.J Fikry; Evil Obsession, a true crime story set in Nebraska; Garden of Stars, a book of poetry by local writer, Dwaine Spieker; The Martian Unmentionable: The Victorian Guide to sex, marriage & manners; Little House on the Prairie, celebrating the 150 birthday of author Laura Ingall's Wilder and A Warrior of the People How Susan La Flesche Overcame Racial and Gender Inequality to Become America's First Indian Doctor by Nebraska author, Joe Starita.

In selecting the books for each year, library staff take into consider ation suggestions from the group at the November meeting. The list for 2017, offers a variety of genre: classics, memoirs, Nebraska authors, fiction, fantasy, non-fiction, and selections about different eras are all part of the mix for this year's participants

This is a free program open to high school graduates and older. "Newcomers are always welcome", said Rita. "As a service to our readers, we try to get book kits or library loans so participants have easy access to the selections." Call 402-375-3135 or stop in to pick up the Book Club calendar.

The new clinic addition to Providence Medical Center, seen here in the foreground from the top of Bowen Hall on Wayne State's campus, was dedicated on Sept. 17, 1995 after a year of construction. A collaboration between PMC, who built the facility, and Northeast Nebraska Medical Group, who leased it, made construction possible.

new location for several years.

An additional physician, Dr. Mark McCorkindale, was added in August of 1995, just in time to see the new clinic open its doors.

During that time, the hospital benefited from the wide patient base the well-known physicians brought with them thanks to the established satellite clinics in Wisner. Wakefield and Laurel.

Mercy Medical Center out of Sioux City bought the clinic in 2001 and that worked for two or three years, Wiseman said. After a few years, the clinic's physicians made a change, accepting an offer from Faith Regional Physician Services of Norfolk, who currently operates

Additional physicians and staff members have been recruited during and since the changes in clinic management, including Anne Liska P.A.-C., Dr. Samuel Recob, Dr. Melissa Dobbins and Ross Hansen

After numerous years of service at the clinic, Wiseman retired in 2010, but it wasn't long before he found his way back to the clinic.

"I retired in about 2010 and Felber retired the next year, which put the clinic in a bind with two people retiring in a short time, so I went back and worked one additional year until these other physicians being recruited could get here."

Once things settled down for the clinic, Wiseman hung up his coat for the last time, retiring permanently from medicine.

early days of family practice and being on call meant being tied to a landline, having no cellular phone technology available for utilizing.

After a few years, Wiseman said they were given radio telephones that could do two things: receive a call from the hospital or make a call to the hospital, which meant you didn't have to sit at home near your Adding physicians and improved communications made work more enjoyable for all.

Other major changes included how speciality cases were handled thanks to technology.

Technology helped to speed up diagnosing and recommending care.

For instance, at one point, a radiologist had to come from out of town as far away as Omaha, once or twice a week to read x-rays. With the invention of the fax machine, images could be scanned and faxed to a radiologist for reading in a more timely manner.

Currently, Providence Medical Center has a contract with Advanced Medical Imaging out of Lincoln, who are available daily to read giving even faster diagnostic capabilities to physicians. A radiologist visits multiple times each month treatment by those involved. During his time in medicine, for specific procedures, but with Wiseman commented that there the invention of computers and the brought about changes, such as were huge leaps in technology and software available, it's never been computerized billing and eventually easier to read these types of images.

"It was a big improvement techily practice early on as a demanding nology-wise. Every advent of technology, things could day, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. go over the phone line and we'd get fortunate," Wiseman said.

That's an undesirable way to live," a report back from a specialist right

The operating room also saw dramatic changes, with pre, during and post surgical care.

Taking pulse and blood pressure manually changed to pulse monitors, blood-pressure monitors, oxygen-saturation monitors. At one time, physicians at the clinic were on call for the emergency room at the hospital as part of their duties. Now, Providence has extra hands for the emergency room only and physicians working on call for the emergency room are compensated additionally for those hours.

These changes meant changes in the lifestyle of the physicians and their ability to make a living and enjoy their time outside of work.

The changes in insurance have been a driving force behind procedures implemented, and with good Prior to medicare and medicaid there was private insurance or no insurance. Payment came in the form of bartering in some instances, with goods and livestock if a patient was unable to pay cash for a necessary medical treatment. "People with no money wanted to do something," Wiseman said. "Chickens, eggs, different things like that, we accepted that in lieu of payments without any regard to how it worked out dollar-wise." With the introduction of govern-

The Wayne High student section celebrates Kylie Hammer's 1,000th career point during Wayne High's 71-58 win over Hartington Cedar Catholic on Friday.

Hammer nails her 1,000th career point

By MICHAEL CARNES For The Herald

For all the driving layups and rainbow-arcing 3-pointers she's made over the years, it seemed almost anticlimactic for Kylie Hammer's 1,000th career point to come on a free throw.

The junior sharpshooter for the Wayne High girls basketball team hit the magic plateau Friday during the Blue Devils' 71-58 win over Hartington Cedar Catholic at Wayne High School. She added two more points later in the game to finish the night with 28 points and put herself well within striking distance of the all-time mark of 1,219 points set by Liz Reeg from 1989-93.

Hitting the 1,000-point mark has long been a goal of the daughter of Scott and Melissa Hammer, and she was thrilled to be able to do it on her home floor near the end of her junior

"I've worked my whole life focusing on basketball and centering my life around it, so hitting 1,000 is a huge milestone," she said after the game. "I didn't think I'd get it my junior year, though.

Hammer's passion for the game started at a very young age when she watched her older brother, Austin, practice his moves on the home basketball hoop.

"He started playing when I was five, and when he'd come home I'd try to do the moves he was doing and would practice it for hours until I could master it," she said.

By fourth grade, Hammer was beginning to play competitively and has been involved in numerous summer camps and select leagues since. She's also a talented athlete in volleyball and track, earning a fourth-place medal in the long jump at the Nebraska State Track and Field Championships as a fresh-

"Those sports help me stay in shape and help with mental toughness," she said. "If you're having a tough day, you just need to stay focused and remember what you want to get accomplished.'

Getting to the 1,000-point level was something coach Lindsay McLaughlin said she was happy to see as she complimented her junior point guard's efforts.

"She's a great athlete, and more important than that is that she's very humble and unselfish, and that's what makes her a great kid," she said.

Hammer has been able to average more than 24 points a game so far this season for the 12-4 Blue Devils, and while she's a key element in the team's offensive output, she's not alone out on the perimeter, as senior Kelsey Boyer gives opposing defenses a second weapon to think about, which limits the amount of attention they can give to Hammer and her ability to hit from outside or quickly drive the lane and score.

"I love playing with her," Hammer said of Boyer. "She has a fire in her, and when she's on she is on and I try to look for her when she's shooting like that."

Hammer is the team's floor general on offense, and McLaughlin said she is able to not only create opportunities for herself, but for her teammates as well.

"She's always looking up the court and trying to create plays or herself, for Kelsey on the wing or for the people inside. Her first instinct is to pass, but she's talented enough that she can drive through anyone," she said.

For now, Hammer has two goals on her basketball to-do list - break Reeg's school record and help lead Wayne High to the state tournament, a place the Blue Devils have been only once (1993) in school history.

"Right now, I think we're playing really well, and if we can keep this up and keep playing to our potential, I think we can make it," Hammer said. "Our main goal is to make it to state and we have a huge chance of getting there and I believe we McLaughlin said the team is playing well and is using the disappointment of last year's loss in the district finals as motivation to make that second trip to state.

"Last year left a sour taste in our mouths. We felt that should have been our game, but I think that's what is motivating us and pushing us forward," she said. "I inherited a great team from Dave (Hix) and we have a solid core group of girls."

And if Hammer doesn't break the school record this year (at 24 points a game, she would break it sometime during subdistrict play next month), there's always next year. And after that, she's not sure what her future plans include.

"I want to either continue playing basketball or running track, but I'm not sure where," she said. "I'd love to go to Iowa, but I know that's a long shot, but Wayne State would be a good goal to pursue as well."

Wildcat women stumble, rebound on last weekend's road trip

After stumbling on the road Friday night, the Wayne State women's basketball team recovered and salvaged a split on the first of backto-back weekend road trips.

On Friday night, the Wildcats fell behind early against No. 17-ranked Winona State and never recovered as the Warriors walked away with an easy 62-41 win.

The Warriors jumped out to a quick 6-0 lead and led by as many as 18 points in the first period, limiting the Wildcats to 2-of-12 shooting from the floor in the quarter. Winona State built their lead to 24 points at the half, going 9-for-14 from the floor in the second quarter to take a 40-16 lead and the game was never in doubt after that.

Haley Moore and Kacie O'Connor each had 12 points to lead the Wildcats. Paige Ballinger led the defense with nine rebounds and four blocked shots.

Blue Devils continue their winning ways

The Blue Devils got off to a quick start Friday against Hartington Cedar Catholic and used a solid second half to keep the Trojans from getting back in the game on their way to a 71-58 home win.

Cedar Catholic scored first to hold their only lead of the game, as Wayne responded with a 10-0 run. Kelsey Boyer scored the first eight points of the rally, including a pair of 3-pointers, and Kylie Hammer closed the rally with a layup off a Boyer steal.

Cedar Catholic got within five points late in the period at 13-8, but another Wayne rally put the lead back to double digits. Baskets by Hammer, Frankie Klaussen and Morgan Keating made it 19-8, and the Blue Devils maintained a doubledigit lead from that point forward.

Hammer led all scorers with 28 points and Boyer added 19 in the winning effort. Jamie Gamble and Allison Echtenkamp each had eight points, while Keating, Klaussen, Lindy Sandoz and Gabi Meyer each had two points.

On Monday, the Blue Devils made up a weather-delayed matchup at O'Neill and defeated the Lady Eagles, 54-35.

The Blue Devils trailed early on, but O'Neill couldn't keep pace with Wayne's hot shooting from the outside. Boyer buried her first three trifectas and Frankie Klausen added a basket and a 3-pointer of her own to stake Wayne to a 14-5 lead late in the opening period, and Hammer sandwiched baskets around a second 3-pointer by Klausen to cap a 7-0 run that gave Wayne a 21-10 advantage in the second period. O'Neill never got closer than four points after that as the visiting Blue Devils went on to the 19-point win.

Hammer and Boyer combined for 34 points, scoring 18 and 16, respectively. Klausen finished with eight points, Meyer and Echtenkamp each had four and Sandoz and Gamble both had two. Echtenkamp led the defense with nine rebounds and

Wakefield girls struggle in recent defeats

It was a hard road for the Wakefield girls basketball team this past week, as the Trojans came up on the wrong side of the scoreboard in three matchups.

On Tuesday, the Trojans dropped a 74-36 decision to Bancroft-Rosalie/Lyons-Decatur. Wakefield played them close early on, but a 28-7 second-quarter run helped the Wolverines take control of the game.

Jamie Dolph scored 10 points to lead Wakefield, with Kenna Mackling adding eight points and Liz Delgado putting in five. Jessica Borg and Savannah Nelson each had four, Heidi Borg had three Avery Zamzow put in two. On Friday, the Trojans struggled from the free throw line and a fourth-quarter comeback fell short as they dropped a 40-36 decision at Emerson-Hubbard. Wakefield was just 10-of-28 from the free throw line, but were able to nearly erase a huge deficit before running out of gas at the end. "We were down 19 late in the third quarter and came back to within one at 35-34 late in the fourth quarter, but Nelson led the way with 14 points, Mackling had eight, Heidi Borg scored six, Delgado and Jessica Borg each had three and Dolph put in two.

weren't able to get over the hump," coach Chad Metzler

On Monday, the Trojans couldn't get things going on the road at Homer, and the Lady Knights were able to outscore Wakefield 63-34 to drop Wakefield to 5-12 on the season.

Mackling led the locals with 12 points and Zamzow added seven. Dolph scored six, Nelson had five and Jessica Borg and Andrea Lopez each had two.

Wakefield will host Laurel-Concord-Coleridge on Thursday before starting play in the Lewis & Clark Conference tournament this weekend.

Trojans bounce back with road win

The Wakefield boys basketball team lost a heartbreaker in overtime last week, but bounced back with a commanding win over Emerson-Hubbard.

On Tuesday, the Trojans made up a weather-delayed matchup with Bancroft-Rosalie/Lyons-Decatur, and the Trojans came up short after a Wolverines fourth-quarter comeback forced the extra session, with BRLD coming away with a 67-62 victory. The Trojans built a 15-point lead going to the final period, but BRLD outscored Wakefield 25-10 and carried that momentum into the extra period to come away with the win.

Parker Lehmkuhl led a balanced Trojans attack with 18 points, while Isaac Camarena added 17 and Israel Gardea had 11. Jose Sanchez put in nine, Solomon Peitz had four and Gabe Peitz put in three.

On Friday, the Trojans improved to 11-5 on the season with a dominating effort at Emerson-Hubbard, posting a 57-17 win over the Pirates.

Wakefield built a 20-point halftime advantage, then let their defense take it from there, as the Trojans limited the Pirates to just five points in the final two periods for the easy win.

Solomon Peitz led three Trojans in double figures with 15 points, Lehmkuhl added 11 and Esgar Godinez scored 10. Camarena finished with nine, Gardea had eight and Sanchez and Matt Christensen each had two.

Camarena and Gardea both had eight rebounds in the win while Lehmkuhl grabbed five. Camarena had four assists and Sanchez dished out three. Camrena also led the team in steals with six.

A willing heart is a growing heart

By DEB HAMMER, CHAPLIN,

OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN CHURCH The only tool a servant needs is A WILLING HEART and to say, 'Yes Lord, I am willing! Here

I am, send me!" Isaiah 6:8 Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send? And who will go for us?" And I said, "Here am I. Send me.

It is very encouraging to me that a willing heart does not have to be a perfect heart. Jesus addresses people with some serious problems. He doesn't give up, rather he follows his own heart to serve others. We are all people with problems. We are a people who need to grow, to change and to be transformed. Our world is ever changing – we hope and pray for the peace and love in the world. Yet, we turn to the news and seem to find more people tearing each other down rather than building each other up.

Jesus says, "Follow Me". We need to look at our hearts and be willing to serve our friends and neighbors in need. As Jesus describes his own ministry, Jesus said, "For the Son of man also came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many." Mark 10:45.

What does being "willing" mean to you? Some people think they are willing but when it comes down to doing it, they hesitate, draw back and fail to perform that which their spirit hungers

A willing heart involves more than just a mental consent. It must also be a commitment to do and perform what the will has proclaimed. A person may speak well and have good intentions, but if there is not a performance of the will, then the will is merely something spoken without follow through to complete the action.

Being a Jesus-style servant is not easy; and like many of you, I'd really like to be better at it! I'll be honest with you, I've volunteered on my share of committees and ministries over the years, but there's always some sort of reward or recognition that I get for this service. Having a servant's heart means to not only put other's needs ahead of our own, but to serve with the right motivation—and that is to put God's will first. Rewards, recognition or even gratitude cannot be the motivation to live out true servanthood the way Jesus did. I need to remember to take the focus off of my own needs and put oth-

Jesus' life was so full of beautiful examples of this: He healed the sick, washed the feet of his friends, took time out of his ministry to listen and hold children—and then He died on a cross for the sins of the world.

One of the best ways we can open our hearts and show our love for God is by showing love for our fellow brothers and sisters in Christ. We are called to be serving people of God. A servant helps where help is needed and this should be the reason we are willing to serve...willing to show others where there is love, hope and peace in this world.

Let the joy of serving the Lord be your strength this day and every day. When you put God's Word into your life on a daily basis, it will serve as constant reminder of all the wonderful things that God has done for you and the promises He has made. It will help change your attitude about serving the Lord and fill your own heart with peace.

"Christ has no body now but yours. No hands, no feet on earth but yours. Yours are the eyes through which he looks compassion on this world. Yours are the feet with which he walks to do good. Yours are the hands through which he blesses all the world. Yours are the hands, yours are the feet, yours are the eyes, you are his body. Christ has no body now on earth but yours," quote from St. Theresa of Avila.

Minerva Club program has a focus on poetry

The Jan. 9 Minerva Club meeting was hosted by Marian Clark at the Wayne Senior Center. Eleven members were in attendance.

MaryAnn DeNaeyer opened the meeting by reading several readings that made members laugh and reminded them of the reality of life. Minutes from Nov. 28 and Dec. 12 meetings of 2016 were read and approved. Donna Hansen gave the treasurer's report.

Historian Hollis Frese read minutes from Jan. 5, 12, 19, 1897. During those meetings members were fined for not attending meetings or being tardy. Being a newly formed club, discussion was held concerning club motto and colors.

Much of the business meeting was the discussion and formulating of plans for the May Tea to celebrate the Club's 125 anniversary.

Marian Clark presented her program entitled "Portraits of Poetry". She noted that poetry played an important role in Minerva Club history. From 1896-1900 the group began studying America Poets with a biography of Longfellow and discussion of the poem "The Hanging of the Crane". That was followed by reading the "Children's Hour", "Evangeline", "Hiawatha" and his other works. Poems were often used as meeting openers or as themes in yearbooks. One year's theme was "Rivers" and quoted Henry Van Dyke's "It is with rivers as it is with people. The greatest are not always the most agreeable nor the best to live with". Popular writers through the years were Browning, Robert Frost, Joyce Kilmer, and Carl Sandburg. It was the custom to critique early programs.

Clark led the group in an activity of matching poems and authors studied by the group in the past and highlighted former member and poet Grace Welsh Lutgen.

The program continued with poetry reading. Members Joyce Mitchell and Nicki Tiedtke shared original poems while Clark read works of some modern poets, Ogden Nash, Jack Prelutsky, and Shel Silverstein, and then concluded the program with "Things Work Out" by Edgar A. Guest.

The next meeting was scheduled for Jan. 23 at the Wayne Senior Center with Phyllis Rahn as hostess. Each member was asked to bring an item of apparel or jewelry to enhance the program "Fashion Snapshots".

The Outstanding Tree Planter Award is presented to individuals within the district who have shown a strong commitment to the planting and care of trees. The Bill Osborn family of Tilden were honored as the recipients of the 2016 Outstanding Tree Planter Award.

The main windbreak that protects the log cabin was planted by the Lower Elkhorn NRD in the late 1990s and early 2000s. With planting around 300 new trees each year along with the trees that the NRD has planted, it is estimated that there are over 5,000 trees on his property that have been purchased through the Lower Elkhorn NRD's Conservation Tree Program, a grand total of 9,200 trees from both the NRD and other nurseries.

History of hospital brings back memories

I was surprised to read about the beginnings of Providence Hospital, and enjoyed the story.

I was never in the old one, but I knew people who worked there and the thing that always amazed me was the fact that for OB (obstetrics), the labor room was on one floor, and delivery room on

This necessitated moving a new mother on a gurney on the elevator, hopefully, before the baby arrived. That always sounded a bit difficult to me, and we had some good laughs about it.

I don't remember that much about the fund raising that went into building the present one, but I do recall the open house. Sister Barbara Polt was giving tours, and I was in her group.

She and I had taken a Pace Piano Method teaching course together, and I had come to appreciate her sense of humor. I wonder where she is these days?

It sounds like what really got the ball rolling was the involvement of the Benedictine Sisters.

And of course, I knew some of them, if they worked at Our Lady of Lourdes. Cal Ward, director of the Experiment Station at Concord, became a good friend when the Big Farmer went to work parison. The names of some of there, and we later ran some of

I think they should be congratulated for that, and I believe Marcie Thomas and a forward thinking Board deserve a lot of credit.

I'll be looking forward to the subsequent articles about Providence Medical Center.

Farm financial help available

More than 77 percent of Nebraska producers are concerned that they may not be able to obtain operating capital in 2017, according to the 2016 Farm Financial Health Survey conducted by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Department of Agricultural Economics.

Nebraska Extension is increasing its efforts to help producers, who rely on annual operating notes to finance day-to-day needs such as seed, chemicals, fertilizer, feed and utilities.

Low commodity prices have resulted in the fourth consecutive year of declining net farm income, or the return that farmers and ranchers get for their input of labor, management and capital. The decline has forced producers to use cash reserves to service debt and to pay for non-farm expenses such as family living that now exceed earnings. This reduces the operation's ability to make debt payments, which makes it more difficult for banks to approve operating loans.

Nebraska Extension is ramping up efforts to support the state's producers through this process. In addition to its normal support team, more than 20 extension professionals

The Quicken record-keeping workshop is designed to help producers use the commercial software for farms and ranches. The tool can be flexible for ag and non-ag business enterprises and separates family living expenses.

Additionally, financial health check workshops focus on financial documents. Extension educators will go through a balance sheet, cash flow and income statement and show producers what ratios a banker will be looking at on those documents.

For producers in need of immediate assistance, the State of Nebraska has a dedicated farm/ranch hotline. Producers can call 1-800-464-0258 to find financial, legal and counseling services and referrals.

Nebraska Girl Scouts giving away a brand new car

To celebrate 100 years of Girl Scouts selling cookies, the Spirit of Nebraska council is giving away a 2017 Toyota RAV4 known as the Cookie Car. The prize was made possible through a donation by Baxter Toyota La Vista.

The contest is designed to help girls reach their Cookie Program sales goals. Although no purchase is required to register for a chance to win the car, a special code is needed to enter. The way people acquire the code is from a Girl Scout during the cookie sale.

To find a Cookie Booth near you, use the cookie locator at GirlScoutsNebraska.org or call the Cookie Hotline: (877) 636-4684.

Register to win and see complete Girl Scout Cookie Car contest rules at BaxterToyota.com/GirlScouts. The RAV4 will be awarded by ran-is an important investment in Nebraska girls. All of the proceeds stay in the state to benefit the local Girl Scout council and its 21,000 girl and adult members. Girls use their funds for their many troop activities, including community service projects.

Girl Scout Cookies go on sale Friday, Feb. 3 with Cookie Booths opening statewide on Feb. 10. Cookies will be sold through March 5.

The 2017 Girl Scout Cookie lineup: S'mores, Thin Mints, Caramel deLites, Peanut Butter Patties, Shortbread, Peanut Butter Sandwich, Thanks-a-Lot, Lemonades (all still $4 per box/package) and gluten-free Trios ($5 per package).
