Ag program implementation discussed by teacher

Toni Rasmussen, recently hired Ag Teacher at Wayne Community Schools, spoke to board members on Monday.

By Clara Osten clara@wayneherald.com

The resignations of three faculty members and the hiring of three faculty members, along with a detailed report on the bid for the locker room renovation took up the majority of Monday's meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education.

Resignations were accepted, with regrets for sixth grade teacher Heidi Thompson, Special Education teacher Cathy Hobza and ELL teacher Darlene Lililenkamp.

Teaching positions were filled in three areas. Julie Osnes was hired for the Library Media position, Pam VanderVeen was hired for the high school English position and Gwen Frideres was hired for the preschool position.

Ms. Toni Rasmussen, who has been hired for the position of Ag Teacher, was at Monday's meeting to talk about her background and plans for implementing an Ag program at the school.

The Albion area native told the board she will graduate from the University of Nebraska - Lincoln in May and is "extremely excited to begin this program."

She told the board she plans to offer more than one section of several classes to allow students in grade 9-12 the opportunity to take introductory level classes. In addition, she will be teaching exploratory classes to seventh and eighth grade students to allow them to "get a taste of the program."

Jon Carlson of Carlson, West Povondra spoke at length to the board on the bids that were received for the locker room/CTE project.

The district received five bids for the project with the low bid from TIJ Construction of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Carlson said he has done reference checks on the firm and found out that the project manager for the Wayne project lives in this area and would be on-site throughout the project. He also said he has checked the firm's sub-contractors and is pleased with them.

Carlson spent considerable time talking about the ways the district could possibly save money on the project and some of the more expensive portions of the bid.

He told the board his suggestion would be for the building committee to put together a list of the items that could be eliminated, or at least postponed, and meet with the contractor to determine how much money could be saved. He said the bid submitted by the contractor is valid for 40 days, although it is hoped the bid approval could be given before that to allow for construction to begin in March.

The board took no action on the bid for the

During his administrator's report, Superintendent Mark Lenihan updated the board on a number of bills currently being debated in the Nebraska Legislature. He said not a lot of action has taken place on these bills at this time.

Superintendent Lenihan also announced sev-

Blue Devil speakers earn champ honors at Wakefield

Members of the Wayne High School Speech team competed in the Wakefield "Sweet Meet" Invitation in Wakefield on Feb. 10.

The team won first place in nearly all of the events and brought home the 'first of the century' regular contest win in varsity competi-

"Wayne speech was really firing on all cylinders today. We won first place in seven of the nine events and placed highly in the other two. Our kids have been practicing hard, and today it really paid off. This is the kind of day a coach dreams about," Head Coach Dwaine Spieker said of his team on Friday.

Leading the way for the team was Megan Keiser, who earned gold medals in three contests. While no searchable records are available, Spieker said that this is a first in his tenure as coach at Wayne High.

Keiser won first place in Humorous Prose and was part of the Duet Acting Team, with Sam Bruckner which received a gold medal. Additionally, she was part of the Oral Interpretation of Drama (OID) Team, along with Nate Burrows, Claire Barnes, Grace Heithold and Jack Osnes which was also received a gold medal at the invitational.

"I have been in speech for three years and every year I have done humorous prose. Last year I made it to state with my humorous script. This year I am triple entered in humorous prose, duet acting, and oral interpretation of drama. My main goal for this year to be double entered at state!" Keiser said.

Other students placing at the meet were:

Avianna Doring, sixth in JV Poetry; Alyssa Chinn, sixth in JV Informative; Jaci Torres, sixth in Serious Prose; Jessica Schenck, sixth in Poetry; Andrea Torres and Madison Jenkins, fifth in JV Duet; Jaci Torres, fifth in Poetry; Maura Loberg, fifth in Humorous Prose;

Megan Keiser earned gold medals in three separate events at the Wakefield Sweet Meet last week. She became the first Blue Devil Speech team member to do so.

Miranda Fehringer, fourth in Persuasive; Marcella Jurotich, third in Persuasive; and Claire Barnes, third in Serious Prose.

Also, Sarah Wibben was runner-up in Humorous; Nate Burrows, was runner-up in Entertainment; and Emily Matthes was runnerup in Informative.

Crowned champions in their respective Varsity events were: Savannah Leseberg, Persuasive; Marcella Jurotich, Extemporaneous; Jack Osnes, Poetry and Marta Pulfer, Informative.

Benefits of new facility are easy to see for employees, patients alike

By Calyn Dunklau calyn@wayneherald.com

As Providence Medical Center pushes forward in its impressive construction and renovation project, we have published a series of articles centered around various aspects of PMC. This is the final installment of that series.

After hours of brainstorming and planning, Providence Medical Center was able to break ground on the biggest construction project to date for the hospital, where basically every surface of the hospital will be touched in some way.

Now the project is is well underway, having already met the halfway point, so patients and employees alike can see the light at the end of the tunnel.

The massive project includes a complete renovation of all patient rooms, ancillary services wing, main entrance and patient check-in, administration offices, emergency department, dining and kitchen areas among many others.

"The core building from 1975 has never really undergone infrastructure changes. It's been added onto and maintained aesthetically, but a lot of things have changed since 1975," Kristine Giese, Chief Operating Officer at PMC said. "Healthcare has changed and we have a lot more technology.'

The value such renovation and construction has brought to patients at Providence is overwhelming.

The emergency department, for example, was once scattered between several locations throughout the hospital forcing patients to be wheeled from the ambulance garage down the halls to get to an emergency

Wayne is 'right place' for new pastor at First Presbyterian

Serving in the ministry is a third career for Bartlett. Her first career was in retail sales and when the store she was working for closed, she began a second career in banking. She noted that she worked her way up from bank teller to branch manager.

However, after a good friend of hers who had entered the seminary prompted her to look into seminary also.

"I was able to finish college and complete the seminary in six years through the program offered at the University of Dubuque Theological Seminary," Bartlett said.

"I had lots of concerns going into this program, but it was a great experience. God put me in the right place and this college was the right fit," she said. Following the completion of seminary, Pastor Bartlett moved to Miles, Iowa, a town of approximately 500 people and served the congregation there from 2009 to 2016. She said this was a "great congregation and very hospitable, taking on a first time pastor." After determining that she wanted to come west to be

What is the last book you read? (Or a recent read)?

I'm currently reading Flight Lessons by Patricia Gaffney and Great Teams by Don Yaeger but I try to read at least a book a week.

Who is your favorite author?

There is no way to just chose one! My reading is very eclectic, from love stories to true crime to biographies.

Why do you read?

There are a number of reasons. Probably the biggest is to relax and just step back from the real world. I think I'm a social media junkie and reading challenges me to step away from that. I have been a reader ever since I can remember, starting with one of my favorite authors as a kid, Judy Blume. I also read a lot of management and team building books to

Verlyn Anderson Memorial nursing scholarships awarded

A scholarship fund was established in 2016 with the Providence Medical Center Foundation of Wayne by Steve Anderson of Concord and his sister, Dr. Kay Anderson, Lincoln, in memory of their mother, Verlyn Anderson, a long-time registered nurse at Providence Medical Center.

"Pursuing an education other than a member of the Lincoln Pediatric Group in Lincoln. "As a high school student, I was privileged to work at her side as a nurse's aide at Providence. I achieved an RN degree, and then a medical doctorate. As my role model, Mom taught me strength and perseverance as a healthcare professional and as a woman. I believe she influenced others much the same way, thus perpetuating the generational desire to pursue the profession of nursing."

Valynn Sukrad, Liz Hadcock and Holly Grosz, all of Wayne, are this year's scholarship recipients. Each is presently a student at Northeast Community College in Norfolk. Sukrad and Hadcock are employees in Wayne. Grosz is a past employee of PMC and her mother, Peggy, has worked at PMC for 30 years as an LPN-C in surgery and the outpatient services department. ### Blue Devils fall to Arlington on the road

After a pair of tough losses, the Wayne High boys pasketball team bounced back Monday to post a hardfought win in their final home game of the season.

Friday, the Blue Devils hit the road and dropped a 71-42 decision at Arlington.

Wayne and Arlington traded blows for much of the first period, with Will Anderson's late basket tying the game at 13-13 after one period. Arlington came out hot in the second, going on a 7-0 run to take the lead for good and closing the half with an 8-2 surge to build a 33-22 halftime lead.

Arlington put the game out of reach early in the third, using a 9-1 run to help them build a 25-point advantage and they cruised to the win from there.

Jack Evetovich and Grayson McBride led Wayne with nine points apiece. Mason Lee had seven, Anderson had six, Payten Gamble had four, Shea Sweetland scored three and Tyler Pecena and Marcus Fertig each

On Saturday, the Blue Devils came home to face Ponca and came up on the short end of a 51-40 decision.

Wayne trailed by four after one and got within a point on a McBride 3-pointer. Later in the half, Gamble scored to get Wayne within two at 21-19, but that's as close as they would get as Ponca built a five-point halftime lead and extended it to double digits by the end of the third quarter.

McBride led Wayne with 16 points and Lee had 11 points and 11 rebounds. Gamble finished with eight points and three assists and Ryan Jaixen had five points.

On Monday, the Blue Devils battled Crofton to the final buzzer and managed a 53-51 win over the Warriors. Evetovich and McBride accounted for Wayne's points in the opening period as they took a 10-8 advantage. Beau Bowers opened the second with a 3-pointer and McBride and Lee followed with baskets to give Wayne the lead for good at 17-8. Crofton got as close as six, but Evetovich scored late to make it 26-17 at intermission.

Crofton kept things interesting, but Wayne had an answer for each challenge. Gamble scored late in the third to make it 36-32 going to the fourth, and after Crofton got within two on several occasions, Wayne had an answer. Crofton's last gasp came with under a minute to go, but Gamble came through with a key basket to make it 52-48 and Evetovich added a late free throw to put the game out of reach.

Evetvoich had 18 points and Gamble added 15 to go with three assists and four steals. McBride had six points and seven rebounds, Anderson added six, Lee had five points and five rebounds and Bowers scored

Wayne girls set school mark in subdistricts win against WP-B

The first win of the postseason meant a little more Tuesday for the Wayne High girls basketball team.

Their 55-45 win over West Point-Beemer in the first round of the C1-7 subdistrict at Norfolk High not only advanced them to the subdistrict finals, but set a new school record in the process as they improved to 18-6 on the season.

Tuesday's win started out slow, as the Blue Devils had to rally from a quick 4-0 deficit, doing so with 3-pointers by Kelsey Boyer and Kylie Hammer sandwiched around an Allison Echtenkamp free throw. Wayne trailed 10-8 late in the period, but Jamie Gamble tied the game with a basket, and with time running out, Hammer found the lane for two points after an offensive rebound to give Wayne the 12-10

Wayne built a seven-point advantage late in the first half with a Frankie Klausen 3-pointer and a nice move in the lane by Gabi Meyer to make it 21-14, and the Blue Devils maintained that seven-point lead going into the locker room.

Wayne began to break the game open in the third, as back-to-back threes by Boyer and Klausen made it 33-19. Morgan Keating's basket late in the third allowed Wayne to maintain that 14-point lead into the fourth.

West Point-Beemer made a late run to make things interesting, cutting the lead down to 50-45 late in the contest. Wayne hit their free throws down the stretch, as Boyer was 3-of-4 at the line and Klausen added two late to give Wayne the school-record

Hammer had a game-high 23 points and also grabbed eight boards in the win. Boyer added 11 points and Klausen put in 10.

Meyer finished with four points, Gamble had three points and eight rebounds, Keating had two and Allison Echtenkamp had two points and six rebounds.

Lindy Sandoz finished with three steals.

In their regular-season finale Friday, Wayne used a great defensive effort in the third quarter to hang on for a 42-35 win at Arlington.

The game went back and forth early, with Hammer's late basket giving Wayne a 10-9 first-quarter advantage. Wayne used a 7-0 run, highlighted by Klausen and Gamble baskets, to build a 10-point lead before Arlington cut the deficit to 24-21 at the

The two teams traded baskets to open the third, but Wayne's defense forced four turnovers and shut Arlington's offense down after that, helping Wayne take a 33-23 lead into the final period. A 3-pointer by Klausen and baskets from Keating and Sandoz helped fuel Wayne's advantage.

Hammer led all scorers with 19 points and had five steals in the win. Klausen finished with eight points and led the team with six rebounds and three as-

Also scoring were Keating with six, Gamble with four, Sandoz and Echtenkamp with two each and Jenna Trenhaile with one. Sandoz had five rebounds and two assists and Gamble had three steals.

Wakefield has two returning qualifiers among its trio of state competitors, as seniors Cody Thomas and Moises Barboza will be joined by first-timer Isaac Verzani in the Trojan singlets at state after qualifying out of the C-2 district at Cross County High School near Stromsburg, where Wakefield was seventh out of 16 teams.

Thomas remained undefeated on the season at 29-0 by winning the 182-pound disirict title, posting a 4-2 decision over Brad Baasch of Doniphan-Trumbull in the finals. Thomas is ranked third in the state and will look to improve on last year's sixth-place finish at state this week.

Barboza returns to state after finishing as the district runnerup at 220 pounds. Barboza pinned his way to the finals before losing to undefeated Garrett Davidson of Cross County/Osceola by major decision in the finals. Barboza, who is ranked fifth, will take a 28-4 record into the state tournament and look to improve on last year's 1-2 effort at state.

Verzani earned a trip to state with a fourth-place finish at 145 pounds. He lost on a first-period pin in the semifinals, but came back with a second-period pin in the consolation semifinals to secure a trip to state. ### WSC women's soccer coach resigns, taking position at Northern Iowa

Wayne State women's soccer coach Bruce Erickson, who led the Wildcats to just its second winning record in the last 11 years this season, has resigned to become the new head coach at Division I Northern Iowa.

"We are extremely thankful to coach Erickson for his efforts in continuing to build a successful women's soccer program here at Wayne State," said Wayne State athletic director Mike Powicki. "Coach Erickson, along with assistant coach Joe Cleary, have made incredible strides forward and improvements during their two seasons on staff. Bruce is a true professional and I wish him a tre mendous amount of success at UNI."

Erickson coached at Wayne State for two seasons. The 2016 team finished with a record of 9-6-3 overall and 6-6-3 in the NSIC, marking just the second winning season in the last 11 years at Wayne State. The nine overall wins were the most for a Wildcat soccer team since 2006 and also marked a five-win improvement from the previous year and the six conference wins this season were the most at Wayne State since the 2005 campaign. Erickson's record at Wayne State in two seasons was 13-17-6.

"I would like to thank Mr. Powicki for the opportunity to lead this program and for the support in making it successful again," remarked coach Erickson. "I also want to thank Coach Cleary and our players for pouring all the effort into creating a winning culture that featured many firsts for the program. We accomplished a lot in two years time - winning nine games this year and more is on the horizon."

Powicki added, "I could not be more excited about the current group of student-athletes we have returning, along with the caliber of new student-athletes who will be joining the program next fall. The talent and foundation are most definitely in place. I am confident our Wildcat Soccer program has a very bright future."

Powicki said assistant coach Joe Cleary will take charge of all Wildcat women's soccer operations during the interim process. The search for a new head women's soccer coach will begin immediately.

Tax cuts do little for middle class or economy

By Renee Fry, executive director of OpenSky Policy Institute

As Nebraska lawmakers consider the use of "revenue triggers" to enact income tax cuts, Oklahoma serves as a cautionary tale of what happens when states use these mechanisms to put the state's finances on

In 2016, a revenue trigger sparked an income tax cut in Oklahoma just as oil prices plummeted. Lawmakers were unable to stop the tax cut, which was passed years earlier and was based on state revenues meeting a series of arbitrary thresholds. The resulting revenue losses contributed to a state budget crisis that caused nearly one-third of Oklahoma's school districts to move to four-day school weeks to save money.

A similar scenario would have played out in Nebraska if the triggers proposed in LB 337 and LB 452 had been in place since 2001. In that span, several tax changes would have automatically occurred during times when it simply did not make financial sense, including during the recession of the early 2000's, during "The Great Recession" and another cut last year that would have significantly exacerbated Nebraska's current budgetary issues. These tax cuts would have led to major cuts to education, public safety and other vital services.

The experiences of Oklahoma and Kansas – which passed income tax cuts in 2012 -- highlight other damage that income tax cuts can cause

Along with four-day school weeks, Oklahoma's budget crisis has led to acute shortages of teachers, tuition and fee hikes at colleges and universities, longer waiting lists for critical services that people depend on, and many other serious consequences.

Kansas' income tax cuts decimated funding for K-12 education and caused some school districts to end the school year early. Kansas also saw major cuts to roads funding and higher education as well as increases in taxes that hit average people hard, like property taxes. In the backlash that stemmed from Kansas' fiscal crisis, voters ousted several legislators who supported the tax cuts and lawmakers from both parties are now working to roll back the tax cuts.

LB 337 and LB 452 - as well as LB 380, an income tax cut proposal that does not use revenue triggers – offer large tax savings for the wealthiest but provide little-to-no tax cut for middle-income residents. In fact, under LB 452, which also expands Nebraska's sales tax, low- and middle-income residents who make less than $43,000 would pay more in overall taxes on average while the wealthiest 1 percent of Nebraskans, who make more than $509,000, would on average receive more than $5,600 in annual tax savings.

The proposals also would do little to help Nebraska's small businesses. Nationally, the average small business subject to the individual income tax has $27,484 in taxable income. Such a business would receive no tax cut under the proposed tax rate cuts. The proposals also would be unlikely to help Nebraska attract new businesses as site selection surveys regularly show workforce quality, infrastructure and many other factors are much more important to businesses than taxes. The bills also are unlikely to help grow our economy. In their research of the effect of tax and budget cuts on economies, Wichita State University professors Arwiphawee Srithongrung and Ken Kriz found the negative effects of funding cuts typically significantly outweigh any positive economic im-

Cutting income taxes isn't a sensible choice for Nebraska. This is particularly true in the face of a $1.2 billion budget shortfall that the U.S. Government Accountability Office indicates could be start of a 40-plus-year trend that will persist due to the increasing costs of health expenses and pensions as our population continues to age.

Talk of reducing revenue at this time is not fiscally responsible and the experience of other states shows what awaits Nebraska if we cut income taxes. Nebraskans will benefit if lawmakers reject policies that caused problems elsewhere and instead choose a more prudent fiscal

The cost of doing business

3.5 MILLION

CANS OF BEER

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

I must confess that I have been to the Jumpin' Eagle Inn in the unincorporated village of Whiteclay in Sheridan County Nebraska.

It was 49 years ago that I visited the town that now has 11 residents and four beer stores. It was Monday April 15, 1968, the day after Easter. The occasion was a visit by then U.S. Attorney General Bobby Kennedy who spent the day touring the nearby Pine Ridge Indian Reservation. I was covering the event and sadly remember it because Kennedy would be dead two months later.

I was in the place long enough to witness Kennedy visit with some of the patrons. One very inebriated American Indian asked me for some money so he could buy Kennedy a beer. I declined as the entourage left the bar with an excuse that I had to go.

Little has changed in all these years, save for the proliferation of businesses dispensing alcohol, which is illegal on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation across the state line and about two miles north. There's been a lot of talk, a lot of promises. Even an occasional protest or two and a visit by a group of state lawmakers.

Recently, the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission required all four stores to submit new license applications. They were heard and approved by the Sheridan County Board and passed on to the state commission for final ac-

County commissioners admitted that they don't have adequate resources to provide policing for the community, but said closing down the stores would simply move the problem elsewhere - perhaps to a community that would require a trip by car that would increase the risk of accidents or death.

Of course, there's the issue of free enterprise. How do you limit a business that sells a product that is legal in Nebraska even though it falls into the hands of people from a place where possession is illegal?

But we have to balance the economics against the health hazards. There is physiological evidence that American Indians do not process alcohol in their bodies the same way as others and thus have higher rates of alcoholism and fetal alcohol syndrome. Those conditions often lead to poverty and have created what many deem a public health emergency.

State Senator Patty Pansing Brooks of Lincoln has offered a bill (LB407) to create a task force to examine the impact of alcohol sales in Whiteclay and its surrounding communities and make recommendations to the Legislature on solving the economic and social issues.

She recently told the Legislature's Executive Board that the four stores in Whiteclay sell 3.5 million cans of high-alcohol malt liquor annually. A tragic 25 percent of all babies born on the reservation suffer from fetal alcohol syndrome, she said. The alcoholism rate on the reservation is almost 80 percent. The task force would include five voting members: the chairpersons of the State-Tribal Relations and the Legislature's Health and Human Services Committee, an at-large member from the University of Nebraska Medical Center and two at-large members appointed by the Legislature's Executive Board. Five additional non-voting, ex-officio members would also be named.

Judi Gaiashkibos, executive director of the Nebraska Commission on Indian Affairs, said alcohol-related problems have plagued the Pine Ridge for 100 years. While the proposal won't repair the historic damage, she applauded a broader vision for making future positive

The Whiteclay Public Health Emergency Task Force is a step in the right direction. Studying the situation is always a good thing. Taking action is even better.

Pansing-Brooks bill proposes three annual reports to the Legislature on how the state should act to solve the public health emergency and related economic and social issues. Information would come from medical experts, nonprofit organizations, faith-based institutions and local and tribal governments. Estimated cost for the committee work is $9,500 a year for each of the next two years.

That cost and others related to implementation of programs or facilities to address the problem should be born, at least in part, by the businesses that are contributing to the problem. Think of the revenue generated by the sale of 3.5 million cans of malt liquor. Call it the cost of doing business.

Committee meetings held in afternoons

I recently had a Nebraskan e-mail my office asking why the Unicameral adjourns every day at noon instead of staying in session through the entire day.

While I appreciate their frustration at the lack of progress being made on the floor, we adjourn at noon or 1:00 p.m. in order to hold committee hearings every afternoon at 1:30 p.m. These are important opportunities for Senators to take a close look at legislation and to get feedback not only from the introducer, but from Nebraskans who take the time to travel to Lincoln to testify in favor or opposition to a particular piece of legislation.

On Friday, February 10, my bill, LB 506 – the Compassion and Care for Medically Challenging Pregnancies Act - was heard by the Health and Human Services Committee. While it may seem like a small bill, it will mean a great deal for the families dealing with a devastating, life changing ordeal.

The purpose of LB 506 is to raise awareness of perinatal hospice care and provide readily available information to help women and their families through one of life's most difficult stages.

As prenatal testing becomes increasingly routine and diagnostic methods have improved significantly over the last few decades, more lethal fetal anomalies such as anencephaly, sever heart defects and others are being detected. Just as the prevalence of prenatal diagnosis increase, so should the information available to parents.

Perinatal hospice and palliative care are innovative and compassionate models of support for families who find out a pregnancy has a lifelimiting condition. This care begins at diagnosis and continues through the baby's birth and death. Perinatal hospice is not a place, but it is a model of care and support that is incorporated into pregnancy and birth care.

When given a serious medical diagnosis, parents are sometimes given minimal options. Unfortunately, this may mean families are not aware of the compassionate care available to them through perinatal hospice services. Many parents faced with this horrible situation find themselves adrift without a life raft and having to find out for themselves what resources are available.

My bill asks the Department of Health and Human Services to host on their website information about perinatal hospice care and organizations which specifically specialize in and offer this care that medical professionals may share with these

Over the last few months I have had wonderful, eve-opening and emotional conversations with experts, medical professionals, and families - and I want to thank them for the input as we put this legislation together.

In the most devastating and difficult circumstances, women and families deserve to know about the exceptional care and support they can receive for themselves and their

Friday was an emotional day, and I appreciated each and every "Warrior Mom" who testified in favor of my bill.

Shawna Hoffman, cofounder of HEALing Embrace in Omaha and the mother of a son who died in childbirth, shared with the committee her experience and her support for LB 506. She is one of the bravest women I have ever met, and her story touched us all. Now, we will wait to see if the Health and Human Services Committee votes to send

Scouts share highlights from 2016

Camping was a highlight of our programming again this year, camping in nine out of

The Scouts participated in the Klondike Derby, Camp Cedars, Camp Wilderness, Jubilee and the Missouri River Expo. They had troop campouts at several of Nebraska's SRA's including Willow Creek, Fort Kearney and Stanton. We had two scouts spend a week at Philmont Scout Ranch and one attend National Youth Leadership Training.

Scouts continue to provide service to the community. As a part of Scouting for Food, they collected food for the Wayne Food Pantry. They also continued their traditions of putting out flags at the cemetery for Memorial Day, working the barbecue at the Wayne County Fair and helping at the Fireman's breakfasts. This year, they also assisted at the Ike's Lake Outdoor day, culminating the event with a flag retirement ceremony.

Troop 174 had 40 percent of the scouts advance at least one rank in 2016, including Matthew Kufner, Ethan Sebade, Isaac Davis and Silas Mark.

Steven Keiser and Zach Schenk earned their Eagle Scout. Steven's project included several updates at Ike's Lake and Zach's project was to build a fire pit at the Girl Scout Cabin.

Acme Club meets in Wayne

Delores Utecht hosted the Feb. 6 meeting in the Wayne Library/ Senior Center's meeting room with the roll call question: Have you ever been to the Badlands?

After canceling the January meetings because of the weather, it was a pleasure to see the sun shining and the snow melting.

Bonnadell Koch read the thought for the day: "All the world is birthday cake, so take a piece, but not too much."

Betty Wittig read both the secretarial and financial reports, kept the roll, and read correspondence.

Discussion was held on summer meetings and special events coordi-

Following the meeting everyone enjoyed Valentine's Day snacks while listening to Delores Utecht's presentation on the Badlands National Park.

It has been verified that over 11,000 years ago the Indians used this area as their hunting grounds. The government took the land away from the Indians and gave it to homesteaders in the middle of the 19th century.

The homesteaders were given 640 acres to settle instead of the usual 160 acres because of the amount needed to support a family and the animals that would graze this land. Fossils have been found dating back to 55,000 years ago of more than 84 extinct fossils.

The last chief to live on this and was Spotted Elk. For many of the war years some of this land was used as a gunnery range and for bombing practice.

We should imitate God's loving relationship

As I write this, the snow has just fallen and it looks absolutely amazing outside. For me, to see the dead brown grass completely covered with snow, to see mysterious ways the snow hangs on a drift, or to see the birds resting in the bushes surrounded by snow ... it is absolutely breath taking. There is something majestic about the looks of freshly fallen snow.

Yet at the same time, as I look out at the snow ... I'm reminded of the hour of shoveling I did to clear off my driveway and sidewalk. My sore muscles are not praising and admiring the freshly fallen snow but instead they are screaming at it. I think I can speak for all of us ... well, at least the majority of us ... when I say that there is this respectable love-hate relationship when it comes to freshly fallen

When the snow does fall however, I can't help but think of a passage from Isaiah 1:18 which says, "though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow: though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool." The sins which we commit ... which are many ... stain us. And when I say they stain us I don't mean like an accidental brush with a marker on the skin stain but a deep stain which goes to the heart and soul of who we are as humans. There is nothing we can do to avoid sinning, there is nothing we can do to make them go away or to make up for them ... so how do they become as white as snow? The answer ... the blood of Jesus shed on the cross washes our sins away. The blood of Jesus purifies the sinner to make him/her a new creation (2 Corinthians 5:17).

Like me and my love-hate relationship with snow, God has a love-hate relationship with sin and sinners. Psalm 5:5 says "The arrogant cannot stand in your presence; you hate all who do wrong."

"4 But God, being rich in mercy, because of the great love with which Ch Word In Faith By Mike Feldmann

In other words ... God hates sin and sinners. That seems like a bold and hard statement to swallow ... but it is the truth. God created this world of ours to be perfect and sinless. When Satan brought sin into the world by causing Adam and Eve to fall for his nasty trick of telling them they could be like God ... the beauty of a perfect creation was spoiled. The first sin deeply stained all of mankind and everything else within all of creation (Romans 8:20-21). All who and that has fol-

he loved us, 5 even when we were dead in our trespasses, made us alive together with Christ—by grace vou have been saved—6 and raised us up with him and seated us with him in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus."Look at what Paul is saying. Even in the midst of our sin, because of the sacrificial and selfless love of Jesus, those who follow him, those who believe in him have been cleansed. They have been cleansed of their sin now and when Christ returns to judge all of lowed after Adam and Eve are contaminated with sin and the effects

But remember that passage up

sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow." God hates sin and sinners, but He also loves His creation and those who believe in him.

St. Paul writes in Ephesians 2:4-6, creation, those who believe in Him are raised up to be with him in the heavenly places ... aka, the new

God hates everything there is about sin and the sinner, but because of His love for all within His creation, He sent His one and only Son into the world so that whoever believes in Him may have eternal life (John 3:16). This love from God is so intense and so abounding that it should literally overflow from within us to those around us.

Valentine's Day is here. The national day of love where countless flowers are killed so that they may be given to those we love ... talk about a love-hate relationship. I know many husbands, dads, boyfriends, etc. have already bought flowers for their significant others, but I would like to throw this out there ... instead of flowers, champagne, fancy dinners, and jewelry ... let's share the abundant love which God gives to His children with those who are around us.

Let's quit trying to bottle it up inside. Instead, love your neighbor, love your family, love the one who disagrees with you on everything. God's love shows no difference to His children as Jesus didn't die and rise for only a select few. Instead, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16.)

Reading helps keep the brain sharp

Another spring like day! Will we pay for this in March? Friend Marsha in Wisconsin says according to fog days April will be rainy. I think it's ninety days after fog that we are supposed to get rain?

Tomorrow is Valentine's day, and the paper says that the post office at Valentine, as usual, is swamped with envelopes that desire that cachet. Not sure what a cachet is, but in the picutres, it looks like a special stamp, some with hearts, all with the name.

In a rare spurt of activity, the Big Farmer cleaned off some of his desk. when I put it in the recycling box, I noticed a valentine I had given him, I have no idea when, as piles on his desk get deep sometimes. Anyway, I rescued it, and plan to give ti to him tomorrow. I will let you know if he recognizes it. That's recycling,

AKSARBEN Stock Show finds new home in Grand Island

AKSARBEN Foundation has announced a new partnership with the Grand Island Livestock Complex Authority and the relocation of the AKSARBEN Stock Show and Purple Ribbon Auction to Grand Island, NE beginning in 2017.

The $42 million livestock facilities located at Fonner Park will host the event. Completed in 2012, the facilities include nearly 500,000 sq.ft. of state-of-the-art exhibition, livestock and equine facilities constructed initially for the Nebraska State Fair and utilized throughout the year. Buildings include the Five Points Bank Arena and dedicated barns for cattle, swine, sheep and goats, as well as the Pinnacle Bank Expo Center.

"With the continued growth of the Stock Show, we believe this is the right fit for us," said Kevin Kock, executive director of AKSARBEN Agriculture Initiatives. "It will provide everyone from exhibitors to spectators with cutting-edge facilities and proper space to improve on what is already the premier livestock show in our region."

For 89 years, the AKSARBEN Stock Show has called Omaha home. As the nation's largest 4-H Stock Show, the event draws thousands of 4-H youth, family members and attendees from across the country. creating millions in direct economic impact for the Heartland. Proceeds from the event benefit scholarships, premiums, and awards for 4-H

Foundation officials believe the move to Grand Island provides the Foundation with opportunities to expand its impact statewide and increase the number of business and community leaders carrying out its mission to leverage collective business leadership to build a more prosperous Heartland.

"AKSARBEN Foundation has a long tradition of making meaningful and sustainable impacts beyond Omaha," said Kirk Kellner, chairman of the Knights of AKSARBEN and regional president of Wells Fargo Bank. "Moving the Stock Show to Grand Island demonstrates a commitment by the Foundation to maximize its impact in Greater Nebraska and grow the Knights of AK-SARBEN leadership network."

As part of the transition, dayto-day operations will shift to the Grand Island Livestock Complex Authority (GILCA) by 2019. GIL-CA is a collaborative which includes the Nebraska State Fair, Fonner Park, the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, and Grand Island Hall County Convention and Visitors Bureau. The Foundation will remain the perpetual title sponsor, and members of the Knights of AKSAR-BEN will sit on the event's oversight committee.

The Purple Ribbon Auction, which supports AKSARBEN Foundation's annual contribution of $150,000 to 4-H youth in the form of scholarships, premiums and awards, will be driven by a committee of Grand Island and Tri-Cities business and community leaders.

Cindy Johnson, President of the Grand Island Area Chamber of Commerce, said Grand Island and communities across central Nebraska will enthusiastically embrace the new location.

"Our region has made significant investments to attract leaders in the livestock show industry and drive economic impact," Johnson said. "The AKSARBEN Stock Show is the premier 4-H stock show in the nation, and we anticipate tremendous interest among 4-H families and the Tri-Cities community. It's a win-win for central Nebraska."

"In the four short years since the creation of the Grand Island Livestock Complex Authority, we have worked diligently to bring national shows to Grand Island, with considerable success," said Joseph Mc-Dermott, Executive Director of the Nebraska State Fair. "This move to Grand Island exemplifies the hard work and hospitality of our commu-

"The impacts of the cattle shows in Grand Island have been enormous and now the ability to have AKSARBEN, one of the most prestigious names in the livestock industry to come here, is a real identifier for our community," said Brad Mellema, Executive Director of the Grand Island Convention and Visitors Bureau.

At its new venue in Grand Island, the AKSARBEN Stock Show is expected to draw more than 1,200 4-H Exhibitors from states throughout the Midwest, including Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The expanded facilities will house various exhibits including the Raising Nebraska interactive agriculture science experience, birthing pavilion and milking parlor, offering youth and visitors opportunities to learn more about the agriculture landscape of food, fiber and fuel production.

"Agriculture and education are central to the prosperity of our Heartland and are core initiatives of AKSARBEN Foundation," Kock said. "With our partnership with Grand Island, AKSARBEN Stock Show's vision is to grow as a premier destination for 4-H youth and as a leader in our support of youth agriculture education.'

They say a person's life can change in a matter of seconds and that was the case for Sam Simon.

On Nov. 18, 2015, Sam played a pick-up game of basketball at Wayne State before returning home feeling unwell.

"He called me from the basement and just said he didn't feel good and asked me to come check on him," his mother Chele Meisenbach said. "So I went down and within about three minutes he was in cardiac arrest."

Sam's previously-unknown condition had caused his heart rate to speed up rapidly, Meisenbach said. She commented that it felt similar to when a person picks up a rabbit or other small animal and holds them, able to feel their heart beat quickly.

"At the time, his heartbeat was about 300-plus beats a minute," she said. "And your heart can only take so much before it just quits.'

Having taken CPR recently, Meisenbach knew enough to get him onto the floor to start compressions as she called 911. The ambulance arrived at their house within minutes, and while she said they were the longest few minutes of her life, it was merely minutes.

Providence Medical Center staff managed to get Sam stable enough to transport him to Sioux City to see a cardiologist where he was later diagnosed with a rare heart condition called Arrhythmogenic Right Ventriclular Dysplasia (ARVD) after that cardiologist got a second opinion with the Mayo Clinic.

With ARVD, the right ventricle of the heart dies and is replaced by scar tissue. This disrupts the heart's electrical signals, causing arrhythmias, which are exacerbated by physical activity. Those who are highly active in sports and with exercising see symptoms much sooner in life, which was Sam's case.

Essentially the activity of Sam's basketball game put him in cardiac arrest at a mere 22 years old and he's one of the lucky ones. Many who suffer an episode the way Sam did don't live.

And while no longer being able to participate in some of your favorite activities is a process many don't understand, out of this grew the idea for Northeast Nebraska Sports

Wear Red!

National Wear Red Day was this month with several participating businesses in town showing their support. This is just one way more awareness is being raised about heart disease and strokes among women. Heart disease and stroke cause 1 in 3 deaths among women each year, killing approximately one woman every 80 seconds. At top, these Providence Medical Center employees were among many who donned red in support of women's heart health this month. In the middle photo, both the staff and residents of Brookdale Wayne wore red on Feb. 3, which has been designated as Wear Red Day by the American Heart Association. Below, employees of State Nebraska Bank wore red and made hearts with their hands in observance of the day.

And the more you learn about it, the more you can do to have an active and healthy life.

"There is a misconception that patients with heart failure only come to a heart failure specialist when they either get a LVAD/Heart Transplant or they go on to hospice care," said Eric Rome, D.O., a heart failure specialist at Faith Regional CardioVascular Institute. The term simply means your heart isn't pumping like it should. If the right side of your heart is affected, it can be hard for blood to get to your lungs to pick up oxygen.

Fluid may then build up in your body, and you may feel fatigued or short of breath.

Women at all ages and stages in cular disease (especially heart atlife (grandmothers, mothers, wives, career women, business women, daughters, graduate students and college students) have things in common. All may be at risk for heart disease, and all may not be aware of their personal risk.

We at Nebraska Heart Women's Heart Program would like to focus on the basics and remind everyone that heart disease is preventable. The risk factors for developing cardiovascular disease also form the basis of preventive strategies, which were developed through decades of research and experience in treating and preventing coronary artery disease.

Coronary artery disease (CAD), also called "hardening of the arteries," can result in disabling symptoms, heart attack or even death. CAD typically develops over time, often silently; therein lies both the hazard and the hope of prevention. Fortunately, the atherosclerotic process can often be slowed, or even reversed; thus avoiding a heart attack or stroke.

As women, why do we care about all of this? Heart disease is the number one cause of sickness. disability and death in American women. One in three women will show evidence of cardiovascular disease in her lifetime. Increased risk often translates into earlier manifestation of heart disease, i.e. at a younger age. The earlier prevention begins in a woman's life, the less likely that serious heart disease will develop or progress.

The major risk factors for heart disease in women are:

Tobacco use

· High blood pressure

- · High cholesterol · Family history of cardiovas-
- Sedentary lifestyle Obesity

· Post-menopausal status Each of these risk factors will be reviewed individually and extensively in upcoming Nebraska Heart Women's Heart blog posts, so stay

Prevention is Key

Remember, the best thing that we as women (natural caretakers) can do for our loved ones is to take care of ourselves. Therefore, know your own risk! The Nebraska Heart Women's Heart Program is here to provide risk assessments and personalized prevention strategies for your busy lives. Begin by reviewing your family history, getting your blood pressure checked and talking with your health care provider about a cholesterol check and discussing any exertional symptoms especially if the symptoms are new or increasing in severity.

As it progresses, heart disease can produce disabling symptoms and can be fatal. Women are not immune! In fact, our risk increases as we get older and enter menopause. Prevention works and can reduce our risk-enabling us to lead healthy, active, productive and caring lives.

Begin your journey today! The Nebraska Heart Women's Heart Program is here to walk along with you, starting with assessing your cardiovascular health through risk reduction strategies and disease treatment. Please give us a call at (402) 328-3731 or send us a message to get started!

Chele Meisenbach stands with her son Sam Simon in a recent family photo. Sam suffers from a rare heart condition that led the two to start a foundation in order to identify heart problems in student athletes and teach them CPR.

Heart Attack?

Call 911 immediately because every second counts. Paramedics can start lifesaving treatment right away and are trained to revive a person if their heart stops.

You may be having a heart attack if you feel:

family, Sam and his mother started talking about how they could get more people trained in CPR seeing how important it had been in those minutes for him. "I've always been a big proponent of CPR," Meisenbach said. "I always thought if I was going to I'd be one of those people who would use my CPR training on somebody where I'm in a mall or a restaurant. To know that I had the training to see what was going on with my kid was priceless." Meisenbach met several people and several groups through social media whose children suffer or suffered from the condition, one of which was in Alabama called Hearts for Athletes. The group is run by a mother whose son, also named Sam, suffers from ARVD.

ARVD, and other heart conditions, can be caught by a simple heart screening, which is what Hearts for Athletes does.

Meisenbach decided to combine the

Last fall, a class of over 90 learned CPR at Our Savior Lutheran Church. The class was free and was led by a nurse from Providence Medical Center. While it's not a certification class, it teaches the fundamentals of CPR just like any other class would, enabling people to learn how to perform it safely and effectively without incurring any cost.

"We taught people from age 7 up. I think the oldest person taking the class was 80."

Another class is scheduled for this month and another is slated for the fall, though a date hasn't been set yet.

With the first step underway, Meisenbach turned her sights toward ways to offer heart screenings, similar to what Hearts for Athletes does.

"The idea is that the child would be able to bring that EKG reading to their doctor to read it at their physi-Since an EKG isn't part of a routine physical and generally isn't covered by insurance unless there are symptoms or reason to believe it's necessary, having the read out available to a child's physician without the hassle of dealing with insurance would be a benefit for all. Plans like this aren't easy to execute, especially when trying to set up the group as a non-profit organization legally and doing the paperwork associated with that, but plans such as this one would help to save lives. "Our goal is for next spring to be our first screening. If we could save just one child, it will be worth it." The clinics would consist of the screenings as well as teaching those in attendance CPR, all free of cost, to help ensure the safety and wellbeing of student athletes in the area.

To help offset the cost of these clinics, fundraising efforts like the current t-shirt sale fundraiser will be held. You can get information on the shirts and other fundraising efforts on the foundation's Facebook https://www.facebook.com/ page groups/478843255655230/.

The step Meisenbach plans to take after that is politically driven. She hopes to have a bill introduced in the legislature to require all students to be trained in CPR before graduating high school.

Some states already have that requirement in place for their students, but Nebraska isn't one of them.

The process is a long one to make all this happen, but Maisenbach and the entire board of the Northeast Nebraska Sports Screening foundation are in it for the long haul. "It's not only about helping kids but saving kids and other people's
