A charming shop on Main Street in Wayne, Hwy. 15 Salvage Company offers a new take on vintage, antique and primitive items with repurposing and customizing to fit a client's needs.

Treasure hunting: How one Wayne couple is living out their retirement dream before retiring

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn@wayneherald.com

The saying 'one man's trash is another man's treasure' couldn't be a more fitting phrase for the items in Dan and Teresa Tiedtke's new shop on Main Street in Wayne.

While the shop itself has only been open for a few weeks now, the Tiedtke's have owned the building and rented it out to a nail salon for some time before Hwy. 15 Salvage Company came to fruition.

"Dan and I bought the building two years ago and we knew at some point that at some point in our lives we wanted to open some sort of antique-repurposing shop. But then we had the building and it was like, 'oh let's do it.'"

With all three of their children in school and Dan already utilizing part of the building as a shop for his carpentry work, things fell into place with the businesses.

The couple handled the renovations themselves, from the flooring to the creation of a large built-in that was part new (the front counter built by Dan) and part old (the glass display cases behind the counter that came from a business in Norfolk).

The name of the business speaks to its purpose: salvaging items -- saving them, repurposing them and giving them new life.

"Dan has a carpentry background and I have an art background so we can pretty much do any project."

The selection of items in the store is second to none, and that's only because the Tiedtke's have been busy amassing them.

"Knowing we wanted to do something like this, Dan and I have been collecting things for years, so here and there we've just picked up stuff and we have family in the area who have farms that let us come clean out stuff if we want it."

Faith Regional Health Services welcomes new doctor Angela McLaughlin to area clinics

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn@wayneherald.com

After being laid off from a biotech firm, Angela McLaughlin began working for a research department in a Lincoln cancer center and she loved it. She got to talk with the doctors and interact with the patients and after a while she started to think that she could do medicine.

"I applied to med school and got accepted. I went to Kansas City for four years," McLaughlin said. "And I went to Clarkson Family Medicine in Omaha for my residency."

While attending college in Kansas City, McLaughlin said that she couldn't pick just one specialty for a couple of reasons.

"I loved every rotation I was on," said McLaughlin. "So you have to pick family medicine. It's the one where you do it all."

The other reason was knowing the size of community her husband and she wanted to be in, it would be too much strain to have a specialty and be on call 24/7.

So she selected full scope family medicine. From obstetric care through final years, McLaughlin said a huge part of her deciding on family medicine was due to the variation she gets in her day with it.

She went on to explain that even the seemingly insignificant appointments bring her a lot of joy, talking to folks about their lives and their hobbies and just getting to know them.

She discussed how knowing the patient will ensure they get the best care possible and gave an example that is a real occurrence in the rural communities she will be serving in: farmers at harvest. McLaughlin went on to say that a doctor visit for a busy farmer during harvest isn't a priority of theirs so getting them in before and after for the bum knee they have is the best way to make sure they stay healthy and safe during their busy season.

But why Wayne?

"We fell in love with Wayne. We like that it's a college town with a younger feel and my family is more in Lincoln and (my husband's) family is in the Sutton area, so it all seemed to work out pretty well."

The McLaughlins have already gotten settled into Wayne, having moved in the week of Chicken Days.

"We moved in on Friday and got up on Saturday to run in the 5K actually," she said. "We were hoping to make it to the petting zoo but after the parade our daughter fell asleep."

She will begin practicing at Faith Regional Physician Services' Family Medicine Clinic in Wayne as well as some time in Laurel and in Wisner, though exact hours at each place have yet to be determined. McLaughlin has been finishing paperwork and is set to take patients as a FRPS physician this week and is excited for her time in Wayne and the other clinics.

"I want to thank the community because we have been very welcomed and everyone has been very helpful."

WDC Wayne Dance Company

New studio option now available for dancers in Wayne

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn@wayneherald.com

If your little lady uses the reflection of herself from the freezer doors in the grocery store to critique her dancing or your little man busts out moves you've never seen before on the dance floor, you may be looking for an outlet.

Taryn Winter happens to have that outlet.

Winter, a Wayne State grad, returned from a brief hiatus in the corporate world following her spring graduation after missing Wayne and her life here. When she returned she was approached by some moms who had previously seen her talents being utilized by the Wayne High School She-Devil Dance Squad about opening a dance studio.

They had broached the subject in months prior, but with her heart set on an office in a high-rise, she had brushed the offers aside at that time. This time, however, Winter took the questions seriously and began to think about what it would take to open a studio.

"I got a job in Minnesota as a recruiter for a large company which sounded great, but I worked there a few months and I was really unhappy," Winter said. "I missed Wayne and the people there."

Winter isn't new to dance or even teaching dance, having started dancing in her home state of Minnesota when she was young and continuing that competitively in school.

She was selected to dance with the Varsity High Kick squad when she was just an eighth grader and as she continued into high school, Winter's life was eat, sleep and breathing dance. Three hours of practice per day for the teams she was on, weekly competitions to take part in and weekends full of clinics and special classes to push her further in the sport made up her life through high school.

She danced for a semi-professional football team and began teaching young girls ages 3-13 at the YMCA, Winter said. When she transferred to Wayne State College, she was determined to stay involved in the sport she loved so dearly.

"I had an opportunity to co-coach the Wayne She-Devils and then I was the head coach last year," Winter said.

And that involvement began to open doors to Winter, helping her make community connections that have become invaluable.

"I got to know the dancers and their parents," she said. "I finally decided to go forward and make some calls asking for support from people and it worked."

Winter's connections helped her to secure a location for the Wayne Dance Company studio: the back room of Miss Molly's Coffee Shop.

"I couldn't find a space on it's own that was the right kind of space and rentable. The owners are even considering opening the shop portion while classes are happening so parents can grab a cup of coffee and have a place to wait."

Currently, Miss Molly's is open only to parties and events.

The WDC studio will offer an array of types of dance classes to numerous age groups throughout the week, from tap to jazz to lyrical and ballet. New to Wayne thanks to this new studio will be the addition of hip-hop and contemporary dancing. There will be a spring recital in mid-May for the dancers to showcase their talent and handwork to the public at a local theater.

Several assistant teachers will be helping Winter, especially in the beginner classes, but for the most part Winter says she plans to be the sole teacher.

Winter has a company coming to install mirrors in the back room and has ordered equipment, so the tentative start date for classes is the week of Sept. 11.

Visit the Wayne Dance Company's Facebook page for specific class details such as pricing as well as to find the registration form or you can visit her in person at the studio's open house on Aug. 14 and 15. Winter will be in the back room at Miss Molly's from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. both days to answer questions and discuss the studio's classes with any who are interested.

Winter has aligned the dance studio schedule with that of the schools to ensure parents aren't forced to pick between family gatherings and dance class.

She has big plans for the future of the studio, with competition team and adult dance exercise class ideas, but to begin with she plans to focus on the fundamentals and give students an environment that helps them to grow both as people and as dancers.

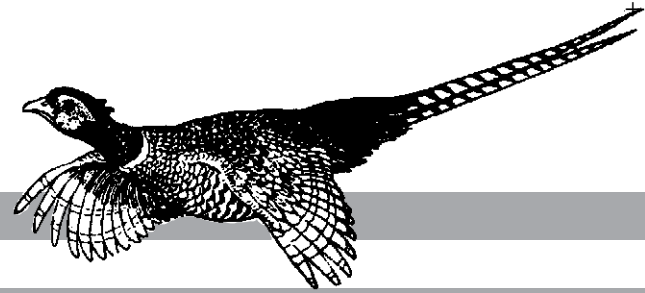

"If they (her students) learn at least a couple of things while they're in my classes like the core things, I'll be happy with that."

She credits the community with the overnight success she's seen in enrollment and with the support for the studio in general.

"The Wayne community really took me in and guided me through the right doors and, honestly, if it weren't for the connections I made while I was coaching, it wouldn't have happened."

Time for back-to-school vaccinations

The bell rings in the coming weeks and it's back to school for Nebraska students. Back to school is an opportunity to check with your child's physician to find out what vaccines he or she may need. Getting children all of the recommended vaccines is one of the most important things parents can do to protect them from serious diseases, according to the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services.

Nebraska law requires children enrolling in kindergarten or first grade (depending on their school district's entering grade) and transfer students of any grade to have proof that they've received the following vaccinations:

- three doses of hepatitis B vaccine
- three doses of diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis vaccine (DTaP)
- three doses of poliovirus vaccine (IPV)
- two doses of measles, mumps and rubella vaccine (MMR)
- two doses of varicella (chickenpox) vaccine

Children entering seventh grade and transfer students (seventh grade or above) must have received all of the vaccinations listed above, as well as one booster dose of tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis vaccine. A single dose of meningococcal vaccine is also recommended at age 11 or 12.

If boys or girls (age 11 or 12) have not received the human papillomavirus vaccine, this is a good time to discuss the benefits of receiving this vaccination with your child's health care provider. The HPV vaccine prevents various forms of cancer.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends meningococcal vaccine for first-year college students living in residence halls. College freshmen, particularly those who live in residence halls, are at an increased risk for meningococcal disease according to the CDC. The vaccine can help prevent serious illnesses like bacterial meningitis. College freshmen and their parents should discuss vaccination with their health care providers. Child Care/Pre-K - Children enrolled in licensed child care and school-based pre-K programs also need to be up-to-date with their age-appropriate immunizations.

For more vaccination information, please contact DHHS' Immunization Program at 402-471-6423 or email DHHS.Immunization@nebraska.gov or visit the website at <http://www.dhhs.ne.gov/immunization>.

Dedicated volunteers

Several people were recognized during this year's Wayne County Fair for their volunteer efforts. (top right) John Williams of Carroll (left) was surprised with the Kilroy Award for being a valuable part of the fair for many years. He and his wife, Judy, have been responsible for taking tickets, among their many other duties. (above) Rod Gilliland (left) was named the Fair Person of the Year for 2017. Gilliland, who is currently a member of the Fair Board, has been involved in many aspects of the fair, including serving as one of the superintendents of the Sheep Show. Making the presentation to both of these men was Kevin Davis, Fair Board President. (right) Jim Martin, third from left, was presented with a gift for helping prepare the meat for the annual barbecue. He has been doing so for approximately 25 years, following in the footsteps of his father, Leonard. Making the presentation were Dave Jaeger and Kevin Davis, members of the Fair Board and Drex Cushing, Jim's friend.

Commissioners make strides with insurance, have lengthy discussion with NextEra Energy

By Calyn Dunklaa
calyn@wayneherald.com

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners met to further discuss and make a decision on the future of the health insurance offered to county employees.

Numerous county employees were in attendance to share concerns and ask questions but ultimately to see what changes would be made.

While the topic is an unsavory one, the rising cost of health care is becoming a problem to the county where 100 percent insurance is offered.

After hearing from several employees and discussing it at length amongst themselves, commissioner Dean Burbach made a motion to accept one of commissioner Randy Larson's presented options.

Burbach's motion stated that employees would be offered a $375 cash-in-lieu option for them or their spouses, though if the employee took the stipend, their spouse would not qualify for it.

In other words, if the employee went off county insurance in favor of the stipend to be used to pay for Medicare or to go toward paying for them to be on their spouse's insurance, their spouse would not also qualify for that stipend. However, if the employee wishes to keep their insurance through the county but their spouse has the option to get on insurance through their employer or switch to Medicare, the stipend is available.

The other part of the motion that was a change to the current insurance was that employees would now become responsible for paying a percentage, specifically 5 percent, of the premium on their spouse and dependents.

The commissioners used several of the employees to demonstrate the affordability of the plans, computing their monthly contribution to give real numbers to them.

Larson was pushing for a larger percentage so it wouldn't need to be revisited for a number of years, but conceded that starting small would be in the employees best interest.

Commissioner Jim Rabe held out claiming his employees would rather not get a raise each year than have their insurance change.

When voted upon, Larson and Burbach voted yes to the motion while Rabe voted no.

Other issues discussed were the courthouse security brought up last meeting.

According to Sheriff Jason Dwinell, the State Fire Marshall would be on hand at some point during the week to walk through the building and discuss options for door locks.

Members of the security committee met and began researching at length what options the courthouse would have to increase security, especially in the courtroom.

A brief visit with an Advanced Consulting rep who will be working with NextEra to find section corners for the Sholes Wind Energy Center prior to meeting with NextEra renewed the concerns and questions on everyone's minds.

While the county employees had cleared out of the commissioner's meeting room, the space was quickly occupied by land owners and farmers who wanted to hear what NextEra would be saying to the board.

After a brief budget work session, two representatives from NextEra and their attorney came before the board to discuss the large wind project that is in the works in western Wayne County.

Phil Clement, project manager, and Kimberly Dickey, community development representative, discussed the project at length, bringing about some reassurance and a plethora of additional questions that they answered to the best of their abilities.

Several land owners and farmers in the area spoke up to state opinions, ask questions and reiterate facts. Everything from setback requirements to road traffic and decommissioning practices was fair game.

While there were some questions that the NextEra reps felt they couldn't answer accurately (and in those cases, they offered to do their research and send the commissioners that information), they did answer many of the questions and dispel fallacies about wind energy in general.

NextEra requires a 1,400 foot minimum setback from structures to ensure the safety and comfort of those in the vicinity of the towers.

Sensors, lights, sounds, construction -- all were discussed in great detail in the meeting. Sensors to shut the turbine down if a problem arises, lights on the top of the towers generally only go on the perimeter towers, but ultimately the FFA decides that.

According to Dickey, you can hear a diesel generator running over the noise emitted by the towers while they are running and construction will be "annoying" Clement said, but that the company would do things as quickly as possible to get the land and the roads back to, if not better, than what they started with.

"It's way more cost effective for us to be preventative than to clean up after ourselves," said Clement. "We are going to be here for 20-plus years and we want to be good neighbors and be part of the community."

Rames named interim city engineer by Norfolk council

The Norfolk City Council unanimously approved the selection of Steven Rames, husband of Wayne State College President Marysz Rames, as interim city engineer on Monday, Aug. 7.

The position, previously held by John Heine, will be providing guidance and support to an engineer in training, John Cashill, the city already has hired.

The only way for Cashill to advance in his career is to be under the direct supervision of a licensed engineer such as Rames, according to Norfolk city councilman Jim Lange.

Rames, who works for McLaur

Engineering, is a seasoned engineer who previously worked with Norfolk on projects, making him an obvious choice for the interim position.

The hiring of Rames was one of two steps the council took on Monday to help remedy the vacancies left by Heine and the public works director Dennis Smith in hopes of keeping things running smoothly until Cashill is fully trained.

Rames' selection was well received by several in the city, including Andy Colvin, Norfolk City Administrator who said the city was excited to work with Rames

Quance named 'Reader of the Week' at Wayne library

This week's Reader of the Week at the Wayne Public Library is Marilyn Quance.

What is the last book you read? (Or a recent read?) Title & Author Hero: hurricane rescue by Jennifer Sholtz

Who is your favorite author?

Debbie Macomber

Why do you read?

Takes you away to other people's interests, problems.

In the evenings, I read to my husband almost every night. It is our together time. Husband comments "he looks forward to this time all day long", because he enjoys it so much. We usually read mysteries as this leads to discussion after reading to try to figure out who did it and how.

Have you ever had to give up on a book?

Yes, quite often, if a book doesn't have me hooked by the first 50 pages, I don't continue. Too many books I want to read and not enough time to read, so why waste time on something that does not interest me.

Name a book you would recommend and tell everyone why they should read it.

Twenty wishes by Debbie Macomber. It is story of four women who are all widows and having hard time in their lives. The story has each person make a list of 20 wishes they would like to do, no matter how small or silly and then try to fulfill them. The book illustrates how life continues even when you are sure there is no way you can keep going and how one small change leads to so much more in life.

Is there anything else you'd like to comment on about your passion for reading?

I believe a person should be open to all genres, even though everyone has their favorite. Books expose one to so much and is an easy and inexpensive way to see the world.

Fill the Flex

Members of Providence Medical Center's staff were challenged by the PMC Service Excellence Council to 'Fill the Flex' for the Wayne Food Pantry. Items such as paper products and canned food were brought in by employees to help stock some of the empty shelves the Wayne Food Pantry currently has.

Concern

Sales and estate sales are another place the Tiedtke's have found items and it's not just Dan and Teresa in on the search for great items.

"We call it treasure hunting in our family," Tiedtke says with a laugh. And when asked, all three of the Tiedtke kids agreed that treasure hunting with mom and dad wasn't so bad.

But beyond locating items, the Tiedtke's are there to help people decide on a piece, customize it or help with constructing it, whatever 'it' might be.

"Really our biggest thing is, if you have an idea and want us to make it we will," she said. "If you have an item that's a Pinterest item you see online and you love it but don't know how to make it or the time to, that would be where we come in."

Hwy. 15 Salvage Company added a line of chalk paint -- used by Tiedtke herself -- for people to purchase for their own projects. Coming this fall, a two night class offered through Northeast Community College will be hosted at Tiedtke's shop. It's something she hopes is the first of many.

"In September I start with my first class 'Refunk your Junk' where they're bringing their item that they want to repaint or redo to some degree and by the end of it they'll take their item home. The college contacted me and I had already been thinking about doing it myself."

Open Tuesday through Saturday, the shop is a must-stop for junk lovers.

Shoppers can find an array of unique items -- some vintage, some primitive -- for their homes at Hwy. 15 Salvage Company.

Two Wayne State basketball players, along with head coach Chris Kielsmeier and assistant Kelly Kielsmeier, were part of a 10-player team from the United States that completed a week-long trip to South America with a 4-0 mark in a Brazil Tour basketball exhibition.

The Kielsmeiers were joined by seniors Paige Ballinger and Maggie Schulte as part of an all-star team made up of players from the NSIC and MIAA during the first week of August. Other team members were Cassidy Thorson and Jacky Volkert of MSU Moorhead and Miranda Ristau of Northern State from the NSIC, along with MIAA representatives Chelsey Henry of Missouri Southern, Tanya Meyer of Northwest Missouri State, Paige Redmond of Central Missouri, and Paige Imhoff and Brenlee McPherson of Pittsburg State.

The USA team started their four-game tour last Tuesday, Aug. 1, with a 100-22 win over Itupvera and a 70-59 win over Osasco the following day.

After visits to sites like Copacabana Beach and the Christ Statue, the USA team traveled to Rio de Janeiro and posted a 56-38 win over Celso Lisboa, a university team. They closed the trip Sunday with a 78-44 win over Fluminense, marking the first time a USA team went 4-0 on the Brazil trip.

After enjoying some shopping and time on the beach after the games, the team returned to the United States on Wednesday.

Dennis Dolliver is the new athletic director and junior high principal at Wayne Community Schools, coming out of retirement after more than 25 years as a teacher, coach and administrator at schools in Norfolk, Stanton, Maywood and Blair.

Athletic Director looking forward to filling big shoes

Dennis Dolliver once tried to lure longtime Wayne High athletic director Rocky Ruhl to Norfolk to take over the Norfolk High boys basketball program.

Years later, he's now filling the shoes Ruhl left behind when he retired earlier this year after more than 30 years as a teacher and coach at Wayne Community Schools.

Dolliver began his duties earlier this month as the new athletic director and junior high principal at Wayne Junior-Senior High School, and while he wasn't able to lure him to the big city, Dolliver is looking forward to picking up where Ruhl left off at the end of last school year.

"I have a lot of respect for Rocky Ruhl," he said in his office Monday. "I'd asked him several times to come over and take a look at Norfolk and move to the Class A level, but he's loyal and he bleeds blue and had no desire to move. I've worked with him on a number of things over the years and he's a class act, so I knew coming over that things were going to be in good shape."

Dolliver comes to Wayne after a one-year break from a career in education that started as a teacher and coach in Blair. After six years there, he took on his first administrator job in Maywood before moving to Stanton a year later to be the principal and athletic director there. Eventually, Dolliver made his way to Norfolk High School, where he served as an assistant principal and activities director for 18 years.

He retired after the 2015-16 school year and spent a year working for News Channel Nebraska and Custom Sports before deciding that he needed to get back in the education field.

"I have a philosophy in athletics and academics that you should be able to get the most out of the kids that they're capable of giving, whether it's in the classroom or athletic field. If the kids are enjoying it, then it's fun for everyone. I don't measure (success) by wins and losses, but by the preparation by coaches and kids to compete to the best of their abilities and being held accountable for what they do."

Dennis Dolliver

"I figured if I was going to still be working, I might as well be doing something (in education)," he said. "The Wayne position came open and I thought it was a pretty solid school system and community."

Longtime Wayne residents will no doubt remember Dolliver's sons, Jason and Jon, who played basketball at Wayne State College. Jason is now the superintendent of schools in Pender, while Jon is an assistant director for the Nebraska School Activities Association in Lincoln.

"We've pretty much grown up in education and I think it's the best job in the world to work with kids and I get to continue to do it here," he said. "My wife, Peggy, has been a great supporter over the years and this isn't a job you can do justice to unless you're there, which takes time away from home. Fortunately, she loves going to games and being a part of it, so it's kind of like an extension of our home."

Dolliver said that Ruhl left the position in great shape, and he's looking forward to contributing to the school's academic and athletic success.

"I have a philosophy in athletics and academics that you should be able to get the most out of the kids that they're capable of giving, whether it's in the classroom or athletic field. If the kids are enjoying it, then it's fun for everyone," he said. "I don't measure (success) by wins and losses, but by the preparation by coaches and kids to compete to the best of their abilities and being held accountable for what they do."

Dolliver said he is also looking forward to working with the younger kids in the junior high and helping prepare them for high school.

"It's been a while since I've worked with junior high kids, but I don't think kids change a whole lot," he said. "If you show the kids you care about them and show an interest in what's going on in their lives and in school and develop a positive relationship with them, I think that's important."

And he added that he knows the guy he succeeds is always available if he needs a question answered.

"I've already talked to him a few times already about things and it's nice having him in town," Dolliver said of Ruhl. "It's hard to fill big shoes, but everything is in good shape and I will try to do my best, and if I have a question he's there to offer some advice, and I really appreciate that."

Puerto Rico trip highlights WSC men's hoops schedule

A trip to Puerto Rico highlights a 2017-18 schedule for the Wayne State men's basketball team, coach Jeff Kaminsky announced Monday.

Wayne State begins the season with an exhibition game at Div. I Wright State of Ohio on Friday, Nov. 3 in Dayton, Ohio. Wright State is coached by Scott Nagy, father of Wayne State senior Tyler Nagy.

The regular season opens on Friday, Nov. 10 at in-state rival Nebraska-Kearney, with the Lopers returning to Wayne two days later to face the Wildcats in the home opener on Sunday, Nov. 12. Wayne State hosts Barclay College of Kansas on Friday, Nov. 17, three days before its Nov. 20 NSIC opener against Augustana in Rice Auditorium.

The Wildcats close out the November slate with a trip to Puerto Rico to play two games on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 24-25, against Div. II opponents who will be named at a later date.

"We have an exciting and challenging schedule in 2017-18," remarked Kaminsky. "The highlight of our preseason is our trip to Dayton, Ohio to face Division I Wright State. We start the regular season with two important in-region games against Nebraska-Kearney and one of the highlights of our non-conference schedule will be our trip to Puerto Rico and the opportunity to play in the Robert Clemente Coliseum in San Juan."

The December slate boasts 10 games, with five at home in a stretch of 11 days. Wayne State opens the month of December with conference road games at Minnesota State and Concordia-St. Paul on December 1-2. The Wildcats then return to Rice Auditorium for a five-game home stand, starting on Tuesday, Dec. 5 against Nebraska Christian College, with NSIC home games set for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8-9 against University of Mary and Minot State.

The Wildcats conclude the non-conference slate on Monday, Dec. 11 at home against Mount Marty and Friday, Dec. 15 against Grace Bible University.

"We will have an opportunity to play five non-conference home games this season compared to one last season," added Kaminsky.

Wayne State wraps up the December portion of the schedule with road contests at Augustana on Tuesday, Dec. 19, followed by games at Sioux Falls and Southwest Minnesota State Dec. 30-31.

Six of Wayne State's eight games in January will be played at Rice Auditorium, starting Jan. 5-6 with NSIC home games against Concordia-St.

Paul and Minnesota State. The lone road trip for Wayne State in January comes on the 12th and 13th, visiting Northern State and MSU Moorhead. Home games to close out the month of January find the Wildcats hosting Winona State and Upper Iowa Jan. 19-20, and St. Cloud State and Minnesota Duluth coming to Wayne Jan. 26-27.

The February schedule of six games starts with the Wildcats on the road at Bemidji State Feb. 2 and Minnesota Crookston Feb. 3. The final home regular season games are Feb. 9-10 against Southwest Minnesota State and Sioux Falls. Wayne State ends the regular season on the road with visits to Upper Iowa Feb. 16 and Winona State Feb. 17.

The opening round of the NSIC Sanford Health Men's Basketball Tournament is set for Wednesday, Feb. 21, with the quarterfinals, semifinals and finals held at the Sanford Pentagon in Sioux Falls, South Dakota Feb. 24-27.

Wayne State ended the 2016-17 season with a 10-19 record, placing sixth in the NSIC South Division at 8-14 in league play. The Wildcats doubled last year's win total in Kaminsky's first year and returns all players for next season since last year's roster had no seniors.

Innovative sexual assault prevention programs coming to Wayne State College campus

This school year, students at Wayne State College will participate in "Sex Signals" and "The Hook Up" sexual assault prevention programs presented by Catharsis Productions. "Sex Signals" and "The Hook Up" use an unorthodox, humor-facilitated approach to examining our culture, sex and the core issue of bystander intervention.

"Sex Signals" will be presented at 8:30 PM on Aug. 18, 2017 at the Ramsey Theatre. "The Hook Up" will be presented at 8:00 PM on Sept. 20, 2017 at 1111 Main St.

In "Sex Signals," a two-person team of highly-trained educators takes the audience on an interactive, relevant, and often-hilarious exploration of beliefs, behaviors, and gender stereotypes related to dating and sexual interaction. Through several semi-improvisational scenes, the program reaches out to students who have mislabeled coercion as consent with the hope of changing behaviors and encouraging bystander intervention when they encounter potentially violent situations.

The program has recently been updated to reflect the very latest research in sexual assault prevention on campus, leaving students with concrete tools to make external change in their day-to-day lives.

Hooking up can often sound like harmless fun, but it can also be a cover for some very unhealthy behaviors. "The Hook Up" pulls back the covers on hooking up, clarifying when it's actually sexual violence and how bystanders can protect potential victims from predators. It's an unflinching, fun, and transformational approach to a hot-button topic on virtually every campus.

"To reduce sexual assault and interpersonal violence on campus, we need a proactive approach that works to change the culture," said Dr. Gail Stern Co-Owner and Chief Academic Officer of Catharsis Productions.

"We bring a profound passion to starting these important conversations and do it in a very unexpected way. Our approach is fully supported by research in education, psychology and cognition and led by trained educators who also happen to be dynamic, charismatic speakers. Laughter and honesty have the power to initiate change. Our programs foster dialogue and introspection while presenting a clear, unambiguous roadmap for future actions and begin a positive transformation."

Catharsis Productions seeks to change the world by producing innovative, accessible and research-supported programming that challenges oppressive attitudes and shifts behavior. Our educators have been facilitating conversations about sexual violence around the world on college campuses, military installations and in the workplace for the past 17 years. ## Wayne State College invites everyone to a free suicide prevention training, SuicideTALK

Wayne State College invites members of the community and organizations to a free suicide prevention training in the Frey Conference Room in the Kanter Student Center, located at 1111 Main Street on the WSC campus, Aug. 22 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The Northeast Nebraska Coalition for Suicide Prevention and Wayne State College are sponsoring the event.

Organizers of the event hope to help individuals deal openly with the stigma around suicide considerations and factors.

SuicideTALK's goal is talking about how to make it easier to have open and honest talk to:

- encourage life-protection, preservation and promotion activities;

- facilitate community awareness of suicide as a serious community health problem;
- reduce the stigma and taboo about past suicides;
- increase personal commitment and action in suicide prevention;
- support the spread of training opportunities and networking activities.

It would be ideal if members of a community attended a suicide talk session. The exposure of even 10 percent of a community's population to SuicideTALK would make a difference in the support given to suicide prevention activities. We hope SuicideTALK can contribute to a suicide-safer community.

SuicideTALK is a 90-minute session that invites interested community members to become more aware of suicide prevention opportunities in their community. Dealing openly with the stigma around suicide this exploration focuses upon the question, "Should we talk about suicide?"

As a suicide TALK-informed session member you will be better able to understand how the steps taught in SafeTALK can be used to help prevent suicide. Choose ways to help protect, preserve and promote life in a safer community.

To sign up for the training, please contact Donna Benson at 402-841-3834 or email: donna68701@yahoo.com

Time to check for soybean aphids

you see one.

If you missed our land management meeting in Wayne last week be aware that we have one coming up in Ponca at the Community Hall on Wednesday, Aug. 23 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Soybean aphids have been showing up in some fields in low numbers over the last several weeks, so now is the time to be doing some thorough scouting. The weather has been less than ideal for them up until last week as temperatures in the 90's slow their reproduction, and may even kill them.

However, as temperatures have moderated, populations may increase. So don't stop looking until the beans hit the R6 stage. If you have already treated earlier this summer, it doesn't mean that the aphids will stay out. Early treatments will have worn off by now, so soybean aphids may actually have a greater chance of infesting those fields since predators and parasites have been eliminated by the early treatment.

Speaking of soybean aphids, in an age when farming continues to go high tech, it was only a matter of time before scouting for soybean aphids went digital. That means you won't have to make use of paper sheets or keep track of your writing utensil in the field. Two recent offerings from UNL provide that opportunity. The first is Aphid Speed Scout. It is an app for your mobile device. The second is the spreadsheet EC1582: Soybean Aphid Speed Scouting Spreadsheet. Both are available free of charge.

Any mobile device that is capable of running an Excel spreadsheet can make use of the spreadsheet. That means you keep track of what is going on with soybean aphids in your fields on your smart phone or tablet. The spreadsheet and app will allow for in-field decisions to be made for soybean aphid management.

Both the spreadsheet and app utilize the speed scouting method for determining whether soybean aphids have reached the treatment threshold of 250 aphids per plant. Scouting this way relies on the number of "infested" plants rather than estimating the number of aphids on each plant. Plants are considered "infested" if there are 40 or more aphids on the plant. When using the spreadsheet or app they will let you know whether you need to "Resample in 7-10 days," "Resample in 3-4 days," "Sample 5 more plants," or "Treat, confirm in 3-4 days."

The app Aphid Speed Scout can be found at iTunes for your Apple device and Google Play for your android device. The spreadsheet EC1582: Soybean Aphid Speed Scouting Spreadsheet can be downloaded at: <http://www.ianrpubs.unl.edu/sendIt/ec1582.html>.

Sharing memories of time at Sophie Teeters

I got a group photo by email last night that I'm going to have printed in an 8 x 12 size, on cardboard stock. It's a bitter sweet reminder for me of young, innocent, tough times.

When I began as a "probie" at Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing, I was housed in the Sophie Teeters dorm. I have no idea how it came about, but John Teeters, apparently a wealthy man, gave the money in memory of his wife, Sophie, and her ashes were inurned in a wall of the building.

It was very grand for its time, all brick, with a lovely facade at the front door and surrounded by tall columns. Of course we had curfews, so that front door was usually busy before 8 p.m. on weeknights, and midnight on Saturdays. Also, on the weekend nights, you could see a dozen couples saying good night in its shadows.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

When I was a senior, I spent six months of that last year on rotations out of town, so only spent the last three months there before graduation. And, as seniors, we had lots of privileges, and worked a lot of hours, so my memories of that last summer are vague.

That dorm became the Independence Center when the school closed in 1976. I knew some guys who were housed there to detox, and sometimes, I could figure out whose room they were in.

Eventually, the building did not meet code. A new Center was built. There was talk of tearing down Sophie Teeters. There was usually outcry about it; it may have merited historical designation.

At our fiftieth reunion, we toured the place. Last summer, the widower of a friend emailed to say it was going down, and that if I wanted a brick, I needed to get over there. I did, and they gave me three.

Two weeks ago, they dedicated a "Healing Garden" in that spot. It's lovely, and they saved that front door facade and the pillars. About forty of the old grads attended and someone took the picture. It's just another example of the changes we experience as we age. This one turned out well. I'm glad.

Exciting livestock and horse lineup for 2017 State Fair

The pounding hooves of those magnificent Draft Horses, boys and girls competing in the High School Rodeo, the sounds and fast paced action of the Cowboy Mounted Shooters, and hundreds of 4-H and FFA kids, are just a few of the things you will see at the 2017 Nebraska State Fair.

If you want to see baby pigs or baby chicks, or big cows or big horses, or little cows and little horses, you can find them all at the 2017 Nebraska State Fair. If you want to see llamas and alpacas in costume, or chickens and turkeys, or those impressive Texas Longhorns, you can find them also at the 2017 Nebraska State Fair.

The Fair opens August 25 and runs through September 4. Education and excitement highlight this year's Fair. Opening weekend you will find Draft Horses, Dairy Cattle, Sheep, Boer Goats, Llamas and Alpacas, Texas Longhorns, Dairy Goats and Open Class Poultry and Waterfowl, all in the new Livestock Barns on the west end of the fairgrounds.

Throughout the barns you will find educational pieces including informational signs and displays. There is an Avenue of Breeds for Beef Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Dairy Cattle and Rabbits where you will find out about different kinds and breeds of livestock. You can see Nebraska's largest steer and largest boar. You can visit the Birthing Pavilion to view the birth of new animals or you can watch milking demonstrations in the Milking Parlor. Throughout the week you can see Sheep Shearing Demonstrations in the Sheep Barn.

During the week the Fair will see some of the best beef cattle in the country, competing in the Open Class Cattle Shows, the Junior Breeding Heifer Show and the Jackpot Feeder Calf Show. The cattle events culminate with the selection of the Supreme Female and Bull Thursday evening, August 31 in the Five Points Bank Arena.

Advice offered for mindful eating

tired? Sometimes we find ourselves eating not because we are hungry, but because we are going through different emotions and we reach out to food for comfort.

What is mindful eating? Mindful eating is simply defined as being conscious of why you are eating. This simple concept has helped people struggling with weight issues, eating disorders, body image and even self esteem. It is not about following recipes or counting calories. It's about learning HOW and WHY you eat, and less about WHAT you eat. Mindful eating helps us to move away from the diet mentality and it puts us in touch with our inner self. The more you are in touch with your hunger and fullness, the less you need to count calories.

Eat, drink & be mindful
Mindfulness is being diligently attentive to your body, mind, thoughts and feelings as you eat.

Mindfulness of the body.
This involves listening to your body and being in touch with your inner self. How does your body tell you when it's hungry or full? Does your stomach rumble? Do you experience low energy levels or hunger pains? Do you ignore your body's feedback? A good rule of thumb is to eat when your hunger scale is between 3 and 6 (on a scale of 1-10).

At level 1 you are beyond hungry. You are totally out of energy, can't concentrate and feel dizzy. At level 10 you are beyond full or stuffed, a typical Thanksgiving dinner feeling — you are physically miserable, don't want to or can't move, and feel like you never want to look at food again. Conscious awareness of what is going on inside your body helps you know when you are satisfied rather than stuffed or starving.

Mindfulness of the mind.
Are you concentrating and paying attention to every bite or are you eating mindlessly without paying attention to the texture, temperature, taste and even the sound of food?

Eat your food slowly and pay attention to every single bite. People often say, "I don't know how I finished off that entire bag of chips in one sitting." Pay attention to the quantity of food that you consume instead of eating or snacking mindlessly.

Mindfulness of feelings.
What emotions do you experience that may trigger you either to start or stop eating? Sometimes the strongest longings for food happen when you are at your weakest point emotionally. Many people turn to food for comfort — consciously or unconsciously — when they're facing a difficult problem or looking to keep themselves occupied.

Pay attention to how you are feeling when you eat and how hungry you are. Sometimes coping with your feelings is more important than changing the type of foods you eat.

Mindfulness of thoughts.
Be mindful of your thoughts in regards to your body weight or eating habits. Negative thoughts may trigger mindless eating. Pay careful attention to "should" and "should not" thoughts, critical thoughts (I'm so fat!), food rules, and "good" and "bad" food categories.

If you make a mistake, learn to forgive yourself and focus on the positive changes you are making in your eating habits. Give yourself credit for making changes that ensure better health.

Are you going overboard?

Matthew 14:28-33 (NRSV)

28 Peter answered him, "Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water." 29 He said, "Come." So Peter got out of the boat, started walking on the water, and came toward Jesus. 30 But when he noticed the strong wind, [a] he became frightened, and beginning to sink, he cried out, "Lord, save me!" 31 Jesus immediately reached out his hand and caught him, saying to him, "You of little faith, why did you doubt?" 32 When they got into the boat, the wind ceased. 33 And those in the boat worshiped him, saying, "Truly you are the Son of God."

When Peter stepped out of the boat to walk on water - he literally stepped out of the boat! Imagine that! But was Peter really going overboard? No, I don't believe so - he was literally taking a step of faith with his eyes fixed on the Lord!

Often, when we step out in faith - it may appear that we are going overboard, but are we really? Honestly, the question is - "Can you really go overboard in your faith toward God?" I don't think so! When our passion is no longer on the Lord, then that's when we're going overboard.

When you love the Lord God with "all your heart, mind and soul" - it's okay to step out and go all out for God - because in God, the only way to go overboard is to not go overboard enough! Peter exhibited GREAT faith when he stepped out on the water... but then he allowed his immediate surroundings to hinder his walk! Peter's faith began with a tremendous bold step.

One of the most comforting parts of this scripture is the fact that Peter wavered, and Jesus caught him. Peter was pulled up and saved. There are stumbling blocks we all have in our own lives. We may set out to do exactly what God had intended and fail. We may fall flat on our faces, but if we look to God, He is always there to pull us up, brush us off and send us out again.

Make sure you live life keeping your focus on the Lord. Do not be afraid. The waves will come, once you're out of the boat, but watching the Lord of Life walking there with you will give you the vision and strength to follow through.

When the storms of life seem to be rocking your boat, trust Him. Keep your eye on the Lord.
