Stomach flu and Influenza are not one in the same

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn@wayneherald.com

While having the 'stomach flu' is a miserable experience, it's not what the area clinics and pharmacies are vaccinating against.

The 'stomach flu' is when your stomach and intestines become inflamed and irritated due to a wide variety of causes such as bacteria, viruses and parasites as well as reactions to food and unclean water. Antibiotics can be used in some cases.

That is not influenza.

Influenza comes with symptoms like congestion, fever, fatigue and intense body aches. It can lead to pneumonia in some cases.

According to a recent Nebraska Influenza Surveillance Report, the first death due to Influenza has occurred in the state.

"There has been a death in Nebraska from the flu already this year, which is sad. We don't want to see this happen and we feel very badly for the family," said health director at Northeast Nebraska Department of Health Julie Rother.

That same report offered other data regarding the number of people that had tested positive for Influenza already this flu season. Unfortunately, these recent weeks have had numbers higher than the past two years.

The Department of Health and Human Services has a system in place to help track the flu virus and compare it to previous years.

That system includes dividing the entire flu season that runs approximately from October to April into weeks, according to Rother. DHHS collects data from 'sentinel' clinics across the state. From there, the data is compiled and compared to that same week in flu season in previous years before a report encompassing the week's flu watch is sent out to health directors like Rother.

"A really big part of public health is watching what's happening. We work with hospitals, clinics, and schools help too in monitoring. We get number reports each week and we report that to the state who sees the bigger picture. Then they send it on to the CDC at the national level."

Eventually, Rother said, the World Health Organization sees the data as it's been compiled by the different agencies. Monitoring constantly helps preparations for flu season, right down to the flu vaccine itself.

Rother said organizations across the globe monitor Influenza and report it. The most prevalent strain is documented and that's what the labs use to make the newest flu vaccine.

Other data in the reports includes variant virus surveillance, and in this instance, a variant flu strain H3N2v was found.

"There has been a case of a variant flu virus in the state. This virus is typical in hogs but was found present in a human and our surveillance system caught it," Rother said. "It really seems like the new germs that are up and coming are what we call zoonotic, or passing from animals to people."

According to the Centers for Disease Control, thus far in 2017, a total of 61 cases have been reported of the H3N2v strain.

While the flu can affect anyone, there are certain people more at risk for contracting the virus and its more serious complications.

Young children, adults 65 years of age or older, pregnant women, those that suffer from chronic lung disease, diabetes, heart disease, neurologic condition and other long-term health conditions as well as residents of nursing homes or other long-term care facilities are more at risk of facing the serious complications Influenza can bring.

According to Rother, the best way to prevent getting

Ms. Toni Rasmussen, Megan Keiser and Mariah Frevert spoke to the Wayne Community Schools' Board of Education on Monday. The three highlighted the accomplishments of the newly established FFA program and ag education classes at the school.

Board hears update on new program, completes audit

By Clara Osten
clara@wayneherald.com

A presentation from FFA officers, the district's recent audit and first reading of the district's drone policy highlighted the meeting of the Wayne Community Schools' Board of Education on Monday.

FFA officers Mariah Frevert and Megan Keiser, along with Advisor Toni Rasmussen, spoke to the board on the newly formed organization at Wayne High School. They highlighted information they have learned in class and the outside activities they have taken part in, including land judging and dairy evaluation.

They also discussed plans for the coming weeks and next semester.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan walked the board members through the recently completed district audit.

Mike Pommer completed the audit and Lenihan told the board that he (Pommer) "feels comfortable with the district's process."

Lenihan highlighted several areas of the audit, including the district's depreciation fund and cash reserves.

"Financially, the district is in good shape. We just need to make sure we stay on budget," Lenihan said.

In regard to the district's drone policy, Lenihan told the board there was no direction available from the Perry Law Firm, the firm the district has worked with to review all of its current policies. Instead, the district researched the issue and took information from the current policy in place at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The district needs to have someone who is licensed to operate the drone and it cannot be flown within a certain radius of the Wayne Municipal Airport.

In addition, the rules of use of the drone are included in the policy.

During the meeting Superintendent Lenihan spoke to the board about the recent Job Shadowing meetings held for community businesses. He said that approximately 40 businesses attended, "representing a good cross-section of the community."

The businesses will partner with the school to provide a chance for juniors to job shadow two businesses on Wednesday, Feb. 21, 2018. Each job shadow will last two hours with students then required to write reflections on their experiences.

Lenihan also showed the board 2015-2016 per pupil costs to educate students in the Wayne District.

Wayne ranks 26th lowest of the 245 districts in the state. The state average is $11,902, while the cost to educate a student the Wayne district is $11,239.

During administrator reports Elementary Principal Russ Ploger told the board of the recent Math/Science Night in which over 200 people were in attendance.

Athletic Director Dennis Dolliver told the board that the enrollment at Wayne High School will put Wayne as the second highest school in Class C-1 and only six students short of being a Class B school.

The Wayne Community Schools' Board of Education will next meet in regular session on Monday, Dec. 11 at 5 p.m. in the Junior-Senior High School library.

One Act team begins competition

The Wayne High School One Act Team competed in Norfolk High's Invitational on Nov. 4 and received a Superior rating from all three judges.

Outstanding Actor and Actress nominations for Wayne included Jack Osnes, Maura Loberg, Makayla Heithold, Jaci Torres, Mackenzie McKenna, Aiden Consoli, Sarah Wibben, Grace Heithold and Avianna Doring.

According to Julie Osnes, one of the coaches for the team, "One Acts has levels of criteria for evaluation in Acting and Production. The judge's ranking also decides the tournament placements. All three judges gave us a Superior Rating out of 60 points. All also gave us very favorable comments and great ideas to add to our production."

The Wayne High One Act Team is inviting the public to Popcorn and "Property Rites" on Monday, Nov. 20 at 7 p.m.

The team will be presenting a One Act production of Property Rites by Alan Haehnel, in the Wayne High Lecture Hall.

The play revolves around Kyle Macmanus, who has invested millions in a high-tech work of art - thirteen human-figure sculptures programmed to perform thousands of movements, monologues, dialogues, and more. But just when Kyle is about to sell the sculpture, it malfunctions.

"Come support the team and see their district play production. Aqua Pop will be at the event selling specialized popcorn flavors, to help support the One Act team, just in time for those Christmas party gifts," Osnes said.

Cast members for this year's production include: Aidan Consoli, Annika Wachter, Andi Belt, Avianna Doring, Christopher Archer, Colton Spahr, Dylan

Influenza

the flu is to receive the flu vaccine.

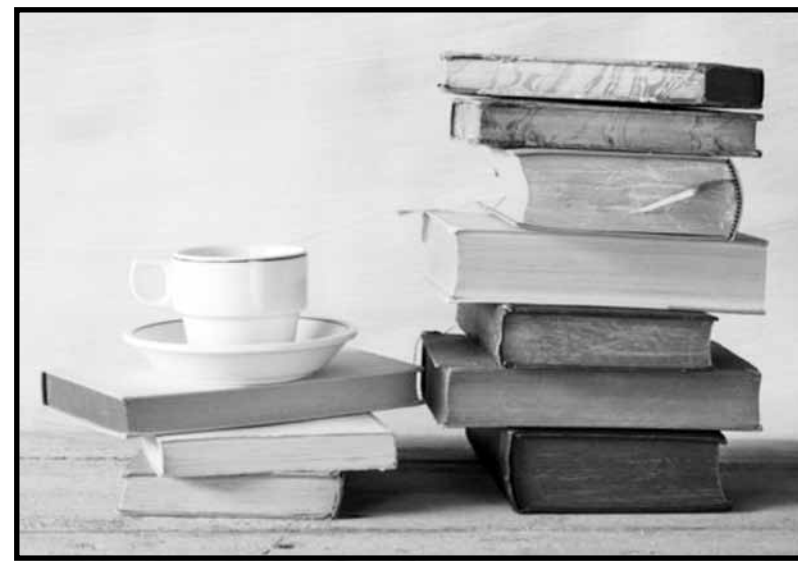

"Every year you need to get a flu shot. It changes because its a different virus every year.

The Centers of Disease control is only recommending the injectable vaccine this season. Soreness and redness at the injection site is common. It will take two weeks for the body to build immunity, so there is still a chance the flu can be contracted in that time period, so taking additional measures to stay healthy is encouraged.

Rother considers handwashing the number two most important things to do to protect yourself against the flu virus as well as many other illnesses that circulate this time of year.

"Hand sanitizer works against bacteria but not viruses. Washing your hands with warm soapy water, using a lot of friction, helps to shed those germs," she said.

A number of places have the flu shot available here in Wayne. Call either pharmacy to discuss the details and get vaccinated. Flu season is a long one.

Patty Wieland is 'Reader of the Week'

This week's Reader of the Week at the Wayne Public Library is Patty Wieland.

What is the last book you read?

The last book I read was Craig Johnson's ...A Serpent's Tooth a Walt Longmire Mystery Series.

Who is your favorite author?

I do not have a favorite author. So many wonderful authors out there. I had never heard of Craig Johnson before, but I love his books. I like a good mystery.

Why do you read?

I read to relax unwind, to get into a story/plot.

Have you ever had to give up on a book?

YES. With so many amazing books I refuse to waste my time on a bad one. If I get into a book and it is not working for me, back it goes.

Name a book you would recommend and tell everyone why they should read it.

Everyone should read The Outsiders by S. E. Hinton. It has stood the test of time. As a general rule, I do not re-read books, but this one I have read many times!

Is there anything else you'd like to comment on about your passion for reading?

My passion for books started when I had my first son, Alex. I quickly realized I did not have time to sit down and watch a T.V. show (no TiVo back then) but I could get in a few moments here and there to read a few pages in a book. . . sometimes many pages! It is easy to pick up the book and get back into the story right where I left off! You will always see me with a book. I struggle with dyslexia, and as a student, reading was horrid. It has taken some time...but I truly enjoy reading. I am not alone — there are many (and some of them are famous people and celebrities) with dyslexia. My advice is keep reading.

Wildcats split road games, home opener

On Saturday, Wayne State shot just 33 percent from the field (21-of-62) as Nebraska-Kearney downed the Wildcats 59-52 UNK Health and Sports Center.

The Wildcats trailed 11-6 in the first quarter before closing the deficit to 15-14 after one quarter.

Wayne State used a Paige Ballinger free throw, Andrea Larson layup and Evelyn Knox 3-pointer to take a 20-15 lead at the 7:21 mark of the second quarter. The Wildcats took their biggest lead of the game at 26-19 on a Ballinger layup with 4:01 to play in the half before finishing with a 28-26 lead at intermission.

UNK took advantage of cold Wayne State shooting in the third quarter (3-14) to take the lead for good, outscoring Wayne State in the third quarter 16-8 to take a 42-36 lead after three quarters.

The Lopers pushed the lead to double digits at 50-38 with 6:10 to play before Wayne State made one last run. Down 54-43, Wayne State scored six straight points to get within 54-49 on a three-point play by Ballinger and got as close as three at 55-52 on a Maggie Schulte trey with 1:01 remaining. But UNK clinched the win with an Alyssa Frauendorfer layup and two McKenzie Brown free throws to seal the 59-52 win.

Ballinger led Wayne State in scoring with 17 points followed by Kacie O'Connor with 11 and Andrea Larson with 10.

UNK was led in scoring by Frauendorfer and Kennedy Sander with 17 points each while McKenzie Brown chipped in a double-double with 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Ballinger led Wayne State on the glass with eight boards. Ballinger had five blocked shots while O'Connor was credited with four assists.

After leading for the first three quarters, Wayne State had to rally from a seven-point deficit with less than five minutes left in regulation to force overtime and eventually pull away for a 69-61 win Monday evening at the University of Colorado-Cororado Springs.

The Wildcat women took a 7-2 led five minutes into the game and scored the last six points of the first quarter to take a 17-10 lead.

The Wildcats took a pair of nine point leads early in the second quarter. An Evelyn Knox layup put the Wildcats in front 21-12 with 7:55 to play in the half.

With Wayne State leading 23-15, UCCS took their only lead of the first half at 27-26 on a Tatum Tellin 3-pointer with 1:46 to play in the half before WSC closed the half strong for a 31-28 lead at intermission.

Wayne State maintained a lead in the third quarter despite shooting just 38 percent on 5-of-13 while the Mountain Lions canned 7-of-14 shots to knot the score at 44-44 heading into the fourth quarter.

UCCS started the fourth quarter making 4-of-6 shots and took a 54-47 lead with 4:52 to play when WSC started their comeback.

A Maggie Schulte 3-pointer and two free throws each from Schulte and Erin Norling tied the score at 54-54 with 1:48 to play.

After UCCS regained the lead on a basket with 57 seconds left, WSC answered on the next possession with two O'Connor free throws to even the score at 56-56 with 38 seconds to play.

Wayne State forced a shot clock violation to get the ball back with 8.3 seconds to play, but UCCS double teamed Ballinger inside who missed a layup to send the game into overtime.

In the extra session, the Mountain Lions took their lone lead on a 3-point play with 2:38 play at 61-60. WSC then scored the final nine points of the overtime starting with two Schulte free throws and a jumper for a 64-61 lead. The Wildcats then went 5 for 6 at the charity stripe in the final 43 seconds to seal the 69-61 victory.

Wayne State finished the contest making 21-of-55 shots for 38.2 percent, including 6 for 21 behind the arc. The Wildcats were 21 of 26 (80.8 percent) at the free throw line.

Schulte led WSC with a game-high 19 points with 10 coming in the fourth quarter and overtime. Ballinger and Erin Norling also hit double figures with 11 and 10 respectively.

Tatum Tellin paced UC-Cororado Springs in scoring with 16 points. Shanah Leaf added 15 with Maria Haas scoring 10 off the bench.

Halley Busse led WSC with three assists while Ballinger had two blocked shots.

The Wildcats (3-2) are home Thursday for a 7 p.m. matchup with Graceland University, then start Northern Sun Conference play Monday with a 6 p.m. home matchup against Augustana.

Women's rugby team set to defend title, men advance to Elite Eight

Sunday afternoon at the Wayne Rugby Park was a big day for the Wayne State Rugby men's and women's teams, as both teams won big games to advance another step closer to a potential national title in National Small College Rugby Organization (NSCRO) play.

The women's team moved forward in its defense of last year's 15-on-15 national championship, dominating Colorado College in a 48-19 decision that advanced the Wildcats to the NSCRO semifinals Dec. 2-3 in Atlanta, Ga.

While the women punched their ticket toward a potential seventh NSCRO national title, the Wayne State men avenged an earlier loss to Creighton, outlasting the Bluejays 36-31 to move on to next spring's Elite Eight matchup against the winner of a regional including teams from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana that will be held in Wayne next spring on Saturday, March 24, 2018.

In the women's game, the Wildcats appeared to be on their way to another dominating effort after posting a 69-0 whitewashing of SUNY Oneonta the day before. Julia Baxter scored just four minutes into the match, with Sam Warneke adding the two-point conversion; and Leanna Rosberg found the try zone twice to make it a 17-0 game early in the first half.

Colorado College got on the score just past the midway point to make it a 17-7 game, but Wayne State came back with two scores in the last five minutes, both by Alba Laredo, to make it a 29-7 halftime advantage.

"We had to kick it into another gear after they scored," coach Darrin Barner said. "They've got some really good athletes and had three players that we really needed to key on because they were game-breakers, and we were able to be totally focused on them."

Wayne State put it out of reach early in the second half with a seven-minute explosion that netted a trio of scores from Turner MacPhee, Alyssa Fisher and Anna Fleecs. That made the score 48-7 and the Wildcats cruised to the Region 4 championship.

"The score is a little deceiving because they made us work extremely hard and played really good defense against us," Barner said. "I'm really proud of the way things ended, because that was a top-notch program that we beat."

Wayne State will meet Gustavus Adolphus in the semifinals on Saturday, Dec. 2, with the winner facing either Bentley University out of New York or York College out of Pennsylvania for the championship the following day.

"Gustavus is a really fast team with precision passing, and our scrum is going to have to be extremely mobile to defeat them," Barner said. "The other semifinal will be tough as well. York being Leigh out of Tennessee, who is a top-notch program; and Bentley beat Colgate, who we beat in last year's championship, so it will be a good final four."

The men's game came down to the wire as Wayne State held off a Creighton comeback attempt while playing the entire second half minus one player.

A Creighton high tackle led to a penalty try for Wayne State early in the match to give them a 7-0 lead. Creighton came back to tie the game, but Austin Stride put down a try and Tylor Rowles followed with his second try of the game to make it 17-7.

Right before halftime, the Wildcats found themselves a man down as Wyatt Olcott received a red card, but that didn't seem to stop the Wayne State offense.

"We played 40 minutes with a guy down and only had a 10-point lead at the half, and the odds of winning in that situation are pretty long," Barner said. "Our back line is really good and fast, so we played with seven in the scrum and they were able to play like eight and hold their own and get us possessions at certain chances where we were able to convert some long scores with our speedy backs."

Creighton scored early in the second half, but Wayne State answered with scores by Austin Urbauer and Joe Eddie to take a 29-12 lead, but Creighton rallied to pull within three midway through the second half.

Wayne State put the game out of reach late when Zach DeJaeghere found the try zone to give Wayne State a 10-point advantage. Creighton did score in the final minute, but it wasn't enough as the Wayne State men moved on to next spring's quarterfinal matchup.

"The guys played extremely well and hung on for what is probably the biggest win in that team's history," Barner said. "We were a man down and able to get a win and move on to the Elite Eight, and we'll be rested and rusty by the time that game comes around next March, so we'll play some games down south in late February and early March to get back in the saddle."

Opening weekend of firearm deer season a successful one

LINCOLN – The opening two days of the Nebraska's firearm deer season started strong, according to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The season opened Nov. 11.

"Final harvest numbers are still being calculated, but hunters got off to a great start this weekend," said Karie Decker, Game and Parks' assistant wildlife division administrator.

Despite rainy conditions across much of the state on Saturday (Nov. 11), Game and Parks staff saw successful hunters and high youth participation. "Many check stations reported several first-time hunters," Decker said. "It's great to see continued growth in the deer hunting traditions in Nebraska."

The number of deer brought in to check stations on the opening weekend was slightly higher than 2016. Game and Parks staff checked in nearly 19,000 deer, representing a 4 percent increase in the northwest, 5 percent increase in the southwest, 4 percent decrease in the southeast, and 5 percent increase in the northeast. "Staff are pleased to see high participation and good harvest numbers again this year," Decker said.

With the firearm season open through Nov. 19, Game and Parks offers these additional reminders:

- It is illegal to duplicate permits.
- Remember to sign your permit before hunting and carry it with you at all times.
- Firearm deer hunters and archers harvesting deer during the November firearm season must deliver their deer in person to a check station no later than 1 p.m. on the day following the close of the season. Telecheck and internet check of deer is closed during the nine-day November firearm season. Find a check station nearest you at maps.outdoornebraska.gov/checkstations.
- Don't forget to punch and notch your permit at time of kill.
- Seek permission before hunting private land. It is the responsibility of hunters to know their location and to follow the rules and regulations. To view a summary of deer regulations, visit OutdoorNebraska.gov/HuntingSeasons.
- Hunters may donate deer to the Hunters Helping the Hungry (HHH) Program by signing up at OutdoorNebraska.gov/hhh or participate in the Deer Exchange at OutdoorNebraska.gov/DeerExchange-Program.
- Call Nebraska Wildlife Crimestoppers toll-free at (800) 742-7627 to report game law violations.

Firearm deer permits are still available for some areas of the state, particularly for antlerless deer. Statewide whitetail buck and youth permits are also available throughout the season. Archery season continues through Dec. 31. Muzzleloader season is Dec. 1-31, while the Late Antlerless season is Jan. 1-15, 2018. Permits can be purchased at OutdoorNebraska.org.

Hammer among several Wildcat women's basketball recruits during early signing

Wayne State head women's basketball coach Chris Kielsmeier has announced the signings of three student-athletes during the NCAA early signing period that will continue their academic and athletic careers at Wayne State College in 2018-19.

Signing national letters of intent to play for the Wildcats are Isabelle Gradwell from Marshalltown, Iowa, Kylie Hammer of Wayne and Autumn Mlinar of Maple Grove, Minn.

"We are extremely excited about this recruiting class," stated Kielsmeier. "We feel like every player is a great fit for our style of play. They will be able to provide us with more versatility moving forward in the future. All three players can really score and will be great defenders in our zone. They are all high character kids that are a perfect fit for Wayne State College as students and athletes."

Gradwell is a 6-foot guard/forward from West Marshall High School in Iowa where she is a four-year starter. Last season, she averaged 17.1 points, 6.7 rebounds, 2.1 steals and 1.4 blocks per game to earn Iowa Class 3A second-team All-State honors from the Iowa Newspaper Association and third-team All-State accolades from the Iowa Coaches Association to go with All-Region and All-North Iowa Cedar League honors. Gradwell also excels in track and field where she was a state finalist in the Class 2A 100-meter hurdles.

"Isabelle is a versatile player that can play several different positions," said Kielsmeier. "She has great size and can play the top or bottom of our zone. Offensively, she can create for herself and teammates and can shoot the ball really well. We will be able to use her many different ways in our system."

Hammer is a 5-foot-6 point guard from Wayne High School where she is a multi-sport standout in volleyball, basketball and track and field. As a junior, Hammer averaged 20.2 points and 5.0 rebounds per game to earn Lincoln Journal Star Class C-1 second-team All-State honors and Norfolk Daily New Elite 8 All-Area Team.

She already surpassed the 1,000-point mark and was Nebraska's all-class leading scorer last season and is a three-time All-Mid States Conference selection. In track and field, Hammer is a six-time state medalist that includes a second place finish in the long jump (17-2 1/4") and sixth place finish in the triple jump (34-10 1/4) last spring as a junior. Hammer is also a two-time All-Mid State Conference first-team selection in volleyball for the Blue Devils.

"Kylie is a true scoring point guard," said Kielsmeier. "She has the quickness to push the ball in transition and create for herself or her teammates. She also has a very effective, consistent pull up jumper from mid-range that is extremely difficult to defend."

Mlinar is a 5-foot-11 wing from Maple Grove High School in Minnesota. A three-year starter in basketball, Mlinar averaged 12.3 points and 4.8 rebounds per game during her high school career and was a first-team All-Northwest Suburban Conference selection. She has also played club ball for North Tartan and was named to the Super 100 Seniors list by Breakdown USA.

"Autumn is another versatile player that can play multiple positions," remarked Kielsmeier. "She plays hard and for her size can create a lot of match-up problems for teams. She is a player that has a quick first step and knows how to score in many different ways. She is another player that can shoot the ball from deep."

Torres signs with WSC

Jackson signs with Bearcats

Wayne High senior Zane Jackson signed a letter of intent to play baseball at Northwest Missouri State University in Maryville, Mo., beginning with the 2018-19 school year. Jackson is shown with his parents, Ben and Amy, along with Post 43 Legion coach Robbie Gamble and Wayne High coach Adam Hoffman.

Eight turnovers help Wildcats close out winning season

Eight Upper Iowa turnovers helped Wayne State bounce back to score 21 unanswered points in the second half and finish the 2017 football season with a 28-10 Egg Bowl win over the Peacocks Saturday at Cunningham Field.

Wayne State trailed 10-7 at halftime before mounting their second-half comeback in the 29th annual Egg Bowl Game, securing the team's first winning season in five years as the Wildcats finished 6-5 overall and 4-3 in the NSIC South Division.

After a scoreless first quarter, Wayne State took advantage of a fumbled punt return by Upper Iowa as senior Reggie Holt recovered the ball at the Peacocks' 16. Two plays later, senior fullback Houston Huss scored on an 11-yard run to put the Wildcats in front 7-0 with 12:52 to go second quarter.

Late in the second quarter, Upper Iowa scored twice in less than one minute to take a 10-7 lead. UIU quarterback Brent Lammers connected with Jarred Edmonds on a 21-yard scoring pass with 1:10 to go before halftime to tie the game, and then the Peacocks picked off quarterback Aaron Bleil at the Wildcat 21 and kicked a 38-yard field goal to make it 10-7 at the half.

Wayne State took the lead for good late in the third when Bleil fired a two-yard pass to Layne Sullivan, giving the Wildcats a 14-10 lead entering the fourth quarter.

On the ensuing drive, Upper Iowa drove the ball to the Wayne State 25, where Aaron Wright picked off a pass and returned it 71 yards to the Peacocks' 8-yard line. Bleil hit Nate Rogers three plays later to make it 21-10, allowing Rogers to tie the school record for touchdowns with 27, matching the record held by Jim Strahan from 1947-49.

The Wildcats put the game out of reach at the 9:46 mark of the fourth quarter, as Bleil hit Willie Walton with a 41-yard scoring strike to give the Wildcats the Egg Bowl victory.

Upper Iowa outgained Wayne State in the contest 393-227. Wayne State had 51 yards rushing and 176 passing while Upper Iowa gained 93 on the ground and 300 through the air.

Senior Rashad Trimble was the top rusher with 39 yards on eight carries followed by senior fullback Houston Huss with 13 rushes for 36 yards and one touchdown. Bleil completed 16 of 35 passes for 176 yards with three touchdowns and one interception. Rogers hauled in seven catches for 49 yards and one score followed by Walton with six grabs for 103 yards and one touchdown. Sullivan finished with three receptions for 24 yards and a score.

Wayne State's defense forced eight turnovers in the contest with five interceptions and three fumbles. Sophomore Ian Ailts had nine tackles and one fumble recovery while senior Emeka Etta had nine tackles with one forced fumble. Senior linebacker DeWayne Scott notched eight tackles with one interception while redshirt freshman linebacker Ben Elznic contributed eight tackles. Aaron Wright had five tackles and one interception while sophomore Shaq Paddy was named Egg Bowl MVP for the Wildcats with five tackles, two interceptions for 20 return yards and two pass breakups.

Senior Glenn Harris added five tackles with one fumble recovery for 22 yards and one interception, his eighth of the season that tied a single season school record.

Wide receiver Jarred Edmonds was named Egg Bowl MVP for Upper Iowa with nine catches for 132 yards and one touchdown.

Wayne State men split home-and-home with Lopers

The Wayne State men's basketball team kicked off the regular season with a home-and-home matchup against in-state rival Nebraska-Kearney, and both teams held serve on their home courts.

On Friday, Nebraska-Kearney outscored Wayne State 43-28 in the second half to erase a 10-point halftime deficit and come away with a 71-66 win at the UNK Health and Sports Center in Kearney.

Leading 20-16, the Wildcats reeled off seven straight points to take their first double-digit lead of the night at 27-16 on a fast-break layup from Brian Goodwin. The Wildcats held the lead for the rest of the first half, taking a 38-28 lead at intermission.

The game would turn into a tale of two halves.

After Wayne State shot over 50 percent in the first half (15-29) and UNK made just 33 percent on 8-of-24, the Lopers turned the tables on the Wildcats with 51.9 percent shooting in the second half (14-27) while Wayne State hit just 25.9 percent on 7-of-27 as UNK outscored the Wildcats 43-28 to rally for the five-point victory.

Wayne State maintained the lead for much of the second half until UNK took the lead for good with just over four minutes left in the contest.

Nebraska-Kearney out-rebounded Wayne State 38-32 after the Wildcats won the first half battle 22-12. Lansom led UNK with 13 boards while Jordan Cornelius had eight caroms for Wayne State. UNK held a 30-22 edge on points in the paint while Wayne State's bench outscored the Lopers 27-9.

The Wildcats returned the favor two days later at Rice Auditorium, as junior guard Vance Janssen scored 14 of his game-high 20 points in the second half to lead Wayne State in a 82-72 win Sunday afternoon.

Neither team led by more than five points in the first half until Wayne State took six and seven points leads in the final four minutes of the half.

The second half was close early until the Wildcats pulled away at the midway point of the half.

UNK knotted the score at 38-38 with 16:32 to play. The two teams traded several ties with the final one coming at 45-45. The Lopers took their last lead of the game at 48-47 on a Austin Luger 3-pointer with 11:13 remaining.

Wayne State scored the next seven points to take the lead for good at 54-48 and pushed the lead to 11 at 66-55 after a Janssen 3-pointer with 6:12 remaining. UNK got as close as close as six at 68-62 with 4:04 to play, but the Wildcats responded with a Jordan Cornelius three-point play and a Janssen jumper to go back in front by 11 and the Wildcats finished with the 10-point win.

Janssen led four Wildcats in double figures with his game-high 20 points on 6-of-9 shooting from the field and 7-for-7 at the free throw line. Jacks added 15 with Bonner and Goodwin each scoring 11.

Danielson paced UNK in scoring with 17 points while Trey Lansom produced a double-double with 16 points and 11 rebounds. Yashua Trent also hit double figures with 15.

Goodwin, Cornelius and Bonner each had three assists while Janssen and Goodwin both had three steals.

The Wildcats (1-1) will be at home again Friday, hosting Barclay College of Kansas in a 7 p.m. contest at Rice Auditorium. They open Northern Sun Conference play at home Monday against Augustana at 8 p.m.

MIKE'S MIMIC

Who are they?

By MIKE RENNING
mikesportshome@yahoo.com

AMERICA – As we transition from what I call fall to winter, I have a few questions about what in the world is happening?

I'm not talking about the mess happening in Washington, that would only upset my Zen.

Not sure what the heck Zen is, but I believe it is something about the now, or this minute and talking about our nation's capital would definitely upset my "now".

I mean really, million-dollar crybabies running our country, elected for jobs? All the loopholes imaginable so they may keep their millions?

I'm talking about every year when we start to get a chill in the air – like when a warm shower feels great or when you used to slide the heat knob in your car to the orange-section – you know what I mean. When a nice evening breeze feels cold instead of good.

This is when someone will say, "They say it's going to be the coldest winter in the past four decades."

Or, "they" say it's going to be the driest winter in the past half-century.

Or, "they" say it's going to be the driest winter in the past 50 years.

Who in the world are "they" and how do "they" know?

Good heavens, the weather report for this afternoon is inaccurate as often as it rains when there is a 20% chance of precipitation. (You may want to read that line twice. When I wrote it, I wrote it three times before I got it write... er, right.)

Is there an App you can get on your phone which dispenses this meteorological information? Or is there anything on Wikipedia to tell you who "they" are?

I need this information so I can sleep at night...not about the weather but about "they".

The phrase, "They (he or she) said," is often the beginning of an ungrounded rumor. It's like an "unnamed" source. That phrase is right up there with, "I heard."

Where did you hear? Who told you? "They" perhaps?

Well, before I upset your sleeping pattern, you could follow my newly implemented personal rule.

If it ain't got a name on it, it don't mean... well, you know.

Another thing which bothers my slumber is old adages.

Not that I don't believe them, it just keeps me awake.

Good heavens, if the sky is tinted red in the morning I just get back in bed. You remember, "Red sky at night, sailors' delight; red sky in the morning, sailors take warning"?

Step on a crack? My mother's back is just fine thank you, but what does that mean?

The woolly caterpillars crossing the road in the fall? The darker the shade of brown the little devil is colored, the more snow we're going to get through the winter.

One year I saw a black one crossing the road so I went and upgraded to a new snow blower and pitched all of my manual snow scoops.

But you must wonder, how far does the prognostication of the caterpillar apply? Is it the county, a 60-mile radius?

I wonder who kept track to figure it out? Must have been the kind of thing people sat around and talked about before all of this technology – cell phones and the like.

Or "they" say if an owl flies over a cupola with a full moon and the temperature is under 17-degrees, "we" will get 27-inches of snow in the next 14 days.

I believe the Weather Channel uses that one for its 'Local weather on the eight's' segment every hour – or I made it up, which would make me "they", right?

Capitol View

Economic forecast remains cloudy

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

It doesn't take a crystal ball to tell you that farmers are hurting – reeling from a double whammy of low commodity prices and high property taxes. The latest meeting of the Nebraska Economic Forecasting Advisory Board has done little to make things brighter.

During its October meeting, the Board voted to lower revenue projections for 2017-18 by $100 million and for 2018-19 by $123 million. Clearer, but not brighter.

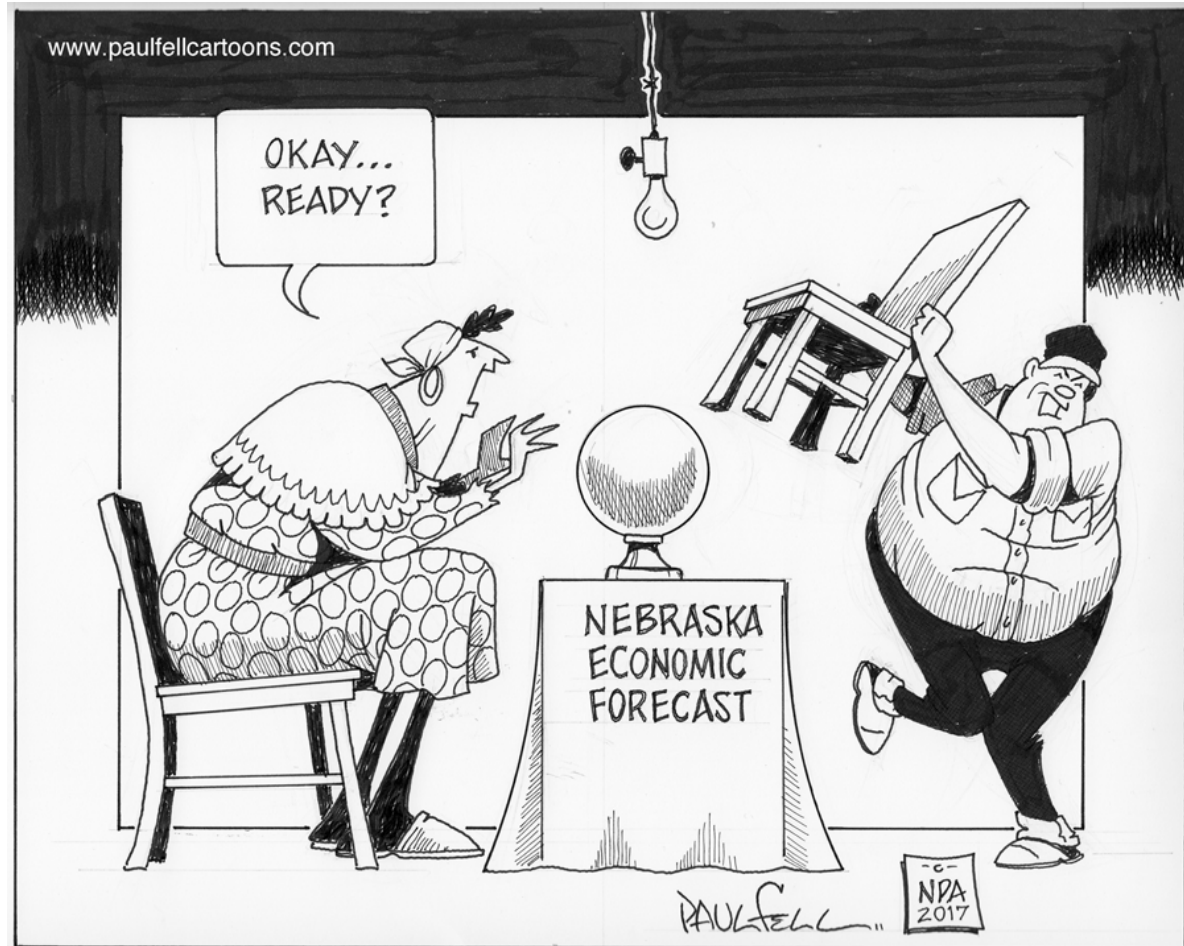

The board provides an advisory forecast of general fund receipts used by the Legislature to craft the state's budget. The forecast is also used by the governor to sharpen his cutting skills, which he did with a directive to state agencies under his control.

The Governor's directive outlined budget restraint actions covering the following areas: quarterly allotments of current appropriations to state agencies, boards and commissions will be reduced by one percent to incentivize additional spending restraint; agencies have been advised to prepare for further budget reductions; continued hiring freeze, travel ban, limited equipment purchases and reductions in discretionary grants in aid.

Total projected revenue receipts for FY2017-18 were lowered to $4.5 billion and $4.7 billion for the following year. The end result of the revised forecast is a projected general fund financial status that is $194.4 million short of the constitutionally directed minimum statutory cash reserve.

Results of the forecast and other pending adjustments will be reviewed during a mid-November meeting of the Tax Rate Review Committee made up of chairs of several key legislative committees and officials from the state Department of Revenue. The next Nebraska Economic Forecasting Board meeting is scheduled for Feb. 28th, during the first session of the 106th Legislature.

This casts the session spotlight on taxes and the budget. But one can't forget about a troubled prison system that is already exempt from Governor Ricketts' afore-mentioned budget restraints. The Department of Corrections needs more money for staffing which some believe will solve the woes of a drastically overcrowded system – the second worst in the United States – and the increasing number of violent attacks by inmates on staff and inmates on inmates.

I didn't say that I'm buying their idea as the solution. But there is the matter of a pending lawsuit that could force DOC to look hard at alternative sentencing, early release of non-violent offenders or construction of more prisons. That situation should hang like a black cloud over the Legislature's consideration of any other business.

Things are further complicated by Ricketts' penchant for income tax relief – when the majority is clamoring for property tax relief – and his resistance to corrections in sales tax measures, which could go a long way toward bolstering an otherwise anemic revenue stream. He has said he is against a bill that would mandate collection of sales tax on internet sales and also considers the removal of existing tax exemptions as a blatant increase in taxes.

He said that he and the Legislature have successfully worked together to constrain spending and cut the rate of growth in government from 6.5 percent to 0.6 percent. He said when revenues fall short of forecasts, Nebraskans expect state government to exhibit the same fiscal restraint as they do in their own households.

My questions: How much more can you cut before the bleeding begins? When the bleeding begins, how do you stop it? Ask the governors of Kansas and Oklahoma. When do we focus on increasing the income side of the equation?

Even State Tax Commissioner Tony Fulton – a former state senator – admits that Nebraska has some questionable tax exemptions. Then there's the issue of collecting the state sales taxes that already are legally owed for online purchases on the Internet. State officials estimate that could bring an additional $30 million to $40 million into the state coffers. But Ricketts opposed a bill to do just that last session and the matter stalled.

Enough with the cutting already. Let's sacrifice some sacred cows and bring money into the revenue stream. The time to act is now.

State Senator

When it comes to tax talk "Gilded tombs do worms enfold" – Shakespeare.

Regardless of whether we talk about tax cuts at the federal, state or local levels, any tax cut always is counterbalanced by something else. There is no such thing as something for nothing.

We are presently hearing a well-honed message from Washington asserting the benefits of tax cutting but conspicuously not talking about what Americans will need to part with in exchange. Lest we repeat the painful experience of having to "pass it to find out what is in it" it is important for there to be full disclosure, thorough understanding, and careful analysis of the implications of volumes of intricate tax language that carry an estimated price tag of $1.5 trillion. It is indeed fitting and proper that we have an opportunity to contemplate the consequences.

Most likely, those consequences will be: embracing the notion that deficits don't matter, abandoning forever any hope of a balanced budget, and ultimately cutting Medicare, Social Security, funding for public education, and other programs dear to our hearts such as farm subsidies, space programs, health and scientific research, and national defense.

Nebraska tax code links to the federal tax code. Federal tax changes have a direct and significant impact on state revenues. The sorry experience of the early 2000's, when federal tax cuts caused Nebraska to face revenue losses exceeding $400 million on top of an already-existing budget crunch, is still fairly fresh in memory. The Legislature reduced that revenue loss to $84 million by partially decoupling from the federal tax code but also had to raise taxes and make cuts to key services in order to balance the budget. It is imperative that the impact of dramatic federal tax changes on Nebraska's already unstable state finances be fully understood and we have sufficient time to offer meaningful input to our federal representatives.

Key state services that receive federal support, such as K-12 education and services for the aged and disabled, would likely be impacted, forcing the Legislature to cut those services, find new revenue sources for them, or pass the buck down to local governments, which are primarily funded by property taxes. In fact, the federal proposal as currently structured contains an incentive for states to rely more on property taxes than state income or sales taxes.

Early analysis suggests that the vast majority of the tax cuts will go to the wealthiest. Some low- and middle-income earners may see tax increases and yet many of them are likely to be hardest hit by the service cuts that would come next. At this time, America simply does not know what lies in wait in legislation drafted behind closed doors without broad public input, and that is constantly churned and stampeded toward passage.

It's also important to keep in mind that federal tax cuts aren't likely to create enough economic activity to "pay for themselves". In a rare moment of federal candor in 2015, Keith Hall, director of the Congressional Budget Office and a former economic adviser to President George W. Bush acknowledged: "the evidence is that tax cuts do not pay for themselves."

Our neighbors in Kansas have first-hand experience with tax cuts failing to pay for themselves. That state passed large tax cuts in 2012 and subsequently fell into a drawn-out budget crisis that saw key services like education, roads and corrections ravaged while Kansas' economy languished. This year, after five years of sustained damage, harsh realities caused Kansas lawmakers to abandon "government by slogan" and reinstate some measure of fiscal sanity.

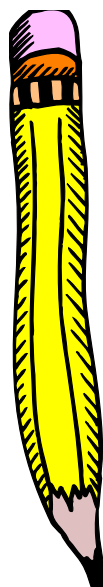

This began with a truism and now ends with this one: "Haste makes waste."

How to cook a turkey the day before serving it

Sometimes it may be easier to prepare your turkey the day before you plan to serve it. If you do, follow these guidelines (NOTE: These directions apply to roasting your turkey ONE day before your meal):

Wait about 20 minutes after removing turkey from the oven to allow the juices to distribute. NOTE: Be sure to follow safe procedures for thawing and roasting your turkey before you proceed to this first step. For more information, go to the USDA Let's Talk Turkey site.

low the juices to distribute. NOTE: Be sure to follow safe procedures for thawing and roasting your turkey before you proceed to this first step. For more information, go to the USDA Let's Talk Turkey site.

Slice breast meat; legs and wings may be left whole. Place turkey in shallow containers; limit depth to less than two inches. Metal containers cool faster than glass-type pans. Also, refrigerate any broth saved for making gravy in shallow containers.

NOTE: Wash your hands with soap and warm water for about 20 seconds before you begin slicing your turkey.

Refrigerate turkey, loosely covered. You can place loosely covered foods in the refrigerator while still warm; cover tightly when food is completely cooled.

When serving your turkey the next day, the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline advises that cooked turkey may be eaten cold or reheated. To reheat your turkey, USDA gives the following recommendations:

In the Oven

Set the oven temperature no lower than 325° F.

Reheat turkey to an internal temperature of 165° F. Use a food thermometer to check the internal temperature.

To keep the turkey moist, add a little broth or water and cover.

In the Microwave Oven

Cover your food and rotate it for even heating. Allow standing time.

UNL Extension

Check the internal temperature of your food with a food thermometer to make sure it reaches 165° F.

Consult your microwave oven owner's manual for recommended times and power levels.

NOTE: If you're planning to travel and bring the turkey, it's safest and easiest to travel with it pre-cooked and cold. Carry it in an insulated cooler with lots of ice or frozen gel-packs to keep the cooler temperature under 40° F. Then reheat the turkey at your final destination.

If you make your gravy the day before, refrigerate it in a shallow container. Bring gravy to a rolling boil when reheating it.

After your meal, either freeze leftover turkey or plan to eat it within three to four days of the day it was originally prepared. Eat gravy within one to two days of original preparation date.

NOTE: Be aware if you freeze leftover gravy, it may tend to separate when it thaws. Stirring gravy — especially with a whisk — during reheating will help it recombine. In general, gravy made with flour may reheat better than gravy made with cornstarch.

FYI - a gravy made with cornstarch is translucent in appearance while one made with flour is more opaque. If you're new to gravy-making try one of the quick dissolving flours advertised for gravy making in the flour section of your store.

Once removed from the oven, the reheated turkey shouldn't set at room temperature longer than two hours

TOTAL time. For best safety and quality, avoid reheating and cooling turkey multiple times.

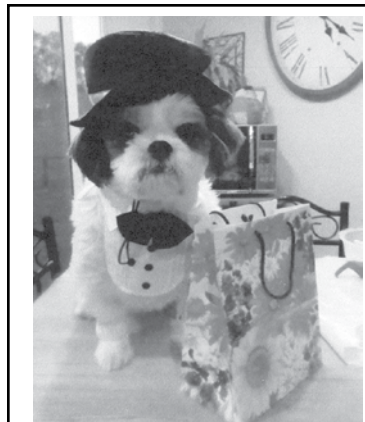

NOTE: Discard any turkey, stuffing, and gravy left out at room temperature longer than two hours; one hour in temperatures above 90° F.

TIP #1: If using a DIAL instant-read thermometer, insert it at an angle 2 to 2-1/2 inches deep through several slices of turkey. If using a DIGITAL instant-read thermometer, insert it at least one inch deep so it measures the center of a layer of slices.

TIP #2: It's recommended that dressing be made as a separate dish and not stuffed in your turkey. Heat dressing until the center reaches 165° F. Eat dressing within one to two days of preparation.

Riley here — Just wanted all the Black Friday shoppers to know that you can bring your dogs to the Dog house on Black Friday while you shop for them instead of leaving them at home. That way, when you come home to empty your car out before you go back out for more great deals for them, they aren't going to smell any presents until Christmas — the Dog house is the place to be — dog gone it.

A Thanksgiving Quiz

"Rejoice in the Lord always."
 "May the name of the Lord be praised."
 "I will praise you, O Lord, among the nations."
 "It is well with my soul."
 "Now that we all our God with hearts and hands and voices."

What do these statements have in common? Yes, they are all statements of praise, thanksgiving, or contentment. But that's not the answer I'm looking for.

The correct answer is that all of these statements are declarations of faith written during some very unpleasant circumstances. They weren't written when life was rosy. They weren't written during pain-free days. They weren't written when everything was going great. They were written in the middle of the storms of life. They were written in the midst of pain and anguish and sorrow and destruction. Let's take a look at each one.

"Rejoice in the Lord always" was written by the apostle Paul and recorded in Philippians 4:4. We might think that Paul wrote this while he was in his "happy place", but he actually wrote this while under house arrest, chained to a guard 24 hours a day. His freedom had been taken away. Yet he still could write, "Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again, rejoice."

The Old Testament patriarch Job is the one who uttered the phrase, "May the name of the Lord be praised." Job was a wealthy farmer

A Word In Faith

By Troy Reynolds
 Pastor, Journey Christian Church

with a happy family, but then everything changed in the course of one 24 hour period. In one day all his oxen, donkeys, and camels were stolen. Then he received word that all of his sheep died and that nearly all off his employees died. The last news Job heard that day was that all of his children died when the house they were in collapsed on top of them. Job lost everything except his wife and his faith. It says that when Job heard this news "he fell to the ground in worship and said, 'Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked I will depart. The Lord gave and the Lord has taken away; may the name of the Lord be praised'" (Job 1:20-21).

In Psalm 57 King David exclaimed, "I will praise you, O Lord, among the nations." This was actually written before David became king. He had been anointed as the next king. He was "king elect" so to speak. But the current king, King Saul, wanted David dead. Saul had already made two attempts on David's life. He basically hung "Wanted Dead" posters throughout Israel with David's face on them. David had done nothing wrong, yet was still a fugitive from the law and living in a cave. And in the damp, dank, dark conditions of the cave David wrote, "I will praise you, O Lord, among the nations; I will sing of you among the peoples. For great is your love, reaching to the heavens; your faithfulness reaches to the skies" (Psalm 57:9-10).

"It is well with my soul" comes from the beautiful hymn of the same name. It was penned by Horatio G. Spafford. Spafford was a successful lawyer and businessman in Chicago. In 1871 his young son died of pneumonia and that same year he lost most of his business in the Great Chicago Fire. Two years later, Spafford's wife and four daughters boarded a ship to go to England. Spafford was going to join them later. On the way the ship carrying his family was struck by another ship and sank. Horatio's wife was rescued, but his four daughters sank with the ship. Horatio boarded a ship to go comfort his wife and in his cabin on that ship he wrote these words that have provided comfort for so many: "When peace like a river attendeth my way, when sorrows like sea billows roll; whatever my lot, 'Thou hast taught me to say, 'It is well, it is well with my soul.'"

Our last saying comes from another hymn, this one written by Martin Rinkart. Rinkart lived in Germany during the 30 Years War. He was the only pastor in the walled city of Eilenberg. In 1637 Rinkart conducted 5,000 funerals, including the funeral for his wife. Yet in the midst of such grief and the devastation caused by war, famine, and disease, Rinkart could write, "Now thank we all our God with heart and hands and voices, who wondrous things hath done, in His world rejoices; who from our mother's arms hath blessed us on our way with countless gifts of love, and still is ours today."

As you approach Thanksgiving, may you remember that, whatever your circumstances, you have a God who loves you more than you can imagine. And even though it's difficult, even though it's not easy, He will give you the strength to make it through so that you can say, "Thank you God, for all that you have done for me."

Joy Circle conducts November meeting

Joy Circle of Our Savior Lutheran Church met Nov. 8. President Dorothy Wert welcomed everyone and gave announcements. She recognized Rodella Wacker and Gena Puls whose birthdays are in November.

Thelma Moeller and Lynette Lentz led the group in the Litany for Thank Offerings. The Thank Offerings were collected during this time.

Thelma Moeller presented a Memorial Service remembering the lives of nine women from Our Savior Lutheran Church who have gone to be with their Lord in the past year. Those women were Irene Hansen, Marian Perry, Arlene Ostendorf, Deb Anderson, Margaret Kay, Marilyn Gehner, Helen Weible, JoAnn Stoltenberg and Kathy Fink. After each name was read along with a reading which related to their lives and passing, a rose was placed in a vase for them. The group, then, shared remembrances they had of that individual.

The next meeting will be the Christmas luncheon on Wednesday, Dec. 13.

Grace Ladies Aid plans upcoming events

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid and LWML met Nov. 8. President Fauneil Bennett opened the meeting.

The LWML pledge was recited in unison. Vice President Ellen Heinemann read a devotion entitled "Be Ready" based on 1 Peter 3:15; "But in your hearts honor Christ the Lord as holy, always being prepared to make a defense to anyone who ask you for a reason for the hope that is in you, yet do it with gentleness and respect."

Nine members answered roll call. The secretary's report was read and approved. Thank you cards were read from Louise Green and Bob and Millie Thomsen. Mites were collected and the treasurer's report was read and will be filed for financial review.

President Bennett led the mission grant devotion; "Christ for Veterans and Their Families." The goal is to train and equip leaders to share with other congregations how to reach out to veterans and their families so that all have an opportunity to know that the only source of true peace comes from Jesus Christ.

Committee Reports included the following:

Sewing: In October, four quilts were tied. Backing and middles were cut and ready for the January meeting. There will be no sewing in November and December.

Visiting: Beverly Hansen and Barb Greve reported on the cards they sent and they did some visiting. It was decided not to visit this month at Care-age since the first Wednesday, which is the regular visiting day, another group was presenting a special program. They will visit in December.

Old Business: Fauneil Bennett talked about the LWML Fall Rally held at Martinsburg in October. Pastor and Darlene Lilienkamp gave a presentation of their work for the Alaskan Mission. The ladies at Martinsburg Lutheran Church made it a special day with fall decorations and lunch. After some discussion, the group voted to donate $100 to the Alaska Mission as the Christmas donation.

New Business: 1) Nov. 15 will be the day to have coffee and visit at Brookdale with members who live there. Barb Greve and Beverly Hansen will bring the lunch. 2) The Christmas luncheon will be Wednesday, Dec. 13 at noon. The meat and buns will be furnished. Members can bring a salad or dessert and one dozen cookies for the shut-in boxes if they are able. We are all to invite guests. 3) Ellen Heinemann will have someone help her put up the Christmas tree called "The Orphan Grain Train Giving Tree". Bonnadell Koch will purchase hats, gloves, and mittens with a gift card from Thrivent. Ellen Heinemann will be in charge of the undies and socks. We are all to contribute to these also.

Birthdays in November were Bonnadell Koch and Leona Janke. The birthday song was sung. Ellen Heinemann led the Bible Study from the LWML fall Quarterly based on Psalm 100.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer and the Table Prayer. Ellen Heinemann served lunch.

Art and science

A crew put art and science together with a work of art to changing the face of Wayne State College's Carhart Science Building recently. The Nebraska Arts Council, in partnership with Wayne State College, previously announced the commission of this large-scale sculptural artwork piece scheduled to be installed on campus by Fall of 2017. Ansen Seale created a light sculpture on the façade of the Carhart Science Building. The circular sculpture is a mathematical/relational clock that will serve as a didactical instrument for the students and visitors, as well as a bright and colourful signifier for the building.

Several FFA students were recognized for their achievements at a recent open house.

FFA Hosts Open House & Local Leadership night

The Wayne FFA Chapter hosted a Local Leadership Night on Nov. 13 to showcase the new program and allow the public to tour the recently renovated area of the school that is home to the Ag classroom.

One of the main purposes for the night was for the students competing in Leadership Development Events or LDE's to gain some practice in front of an audience.

According to Toni Rasmussen, FFA Advisor, "Leadership Development Events are speaking competitions with emphasis in agriculture literacy and advocacy. This is definitely a great competition to improve public speaking skills and your ability to advocate for agriculture."

Hana Nelsen will be competing in Senior Public Speaking, Megan Keiser in Natural Resources, Mariah Frevert in Employment Skills, and most of the officer team in Parliamentary Procedure.

Hana will be competing in Senior Public Speaking, in which speakers speak for 6-8 minutes on any agricultural topic and then will be asked questions at the end of the competition about their topic.

Megan will be participating in Natural Resources Speaking. In this event, members can speak on any natural resources topic for 6-8 minutes and again are asked questions at the conclusion of their speech.

Mariah will be competing in Employment Skills which involves submitting a resume, cover letter, job application, and an interview.

Lastly, the Wayne FFA will have a parliamentary procedure team. Parliamentary Procedure's main goal is to run a meeting efficiently and effectively. Parliamentary Procedure team members are Tyler Gilliland, Andrea Torres, Casey Koenig, Madison Jenkins, Mariah Frevert, Jenna Trenhaile and Megan Keiser.

"In FFA, there is a degree system that awards students for their achievements in FFA. The first is the Greenhand Degree, then the Chapter Degree, which is the highest degree an FFA chapter can give to its members. Following the Chapter Degree, FFA members can earn the State Degree at the State level and then the American Degree at the National level," Rasmussen said.

This is ... Horticulture suggestions

By Kelly Feehan,
 Nebraska Extension Educator

This is.....Did you have a spring blooming shrub or tree bloom this fall? When a plant is stressed or we have a summer with unusual weather, blooms may appear on landscape plants that normally only flower in spring during fall.

The stress factor is usually a hot, dry period but may be caused by other stresses. This year, it might have been our cooler than average August. This fall, I had reports of forsythia and ornamental pears with a few blooms. But it can happen with lilac, magnolia, Spirea or most any spring blooming plants.

Spring blooming plants form flower buds the previous year so these plants already have their flower buds and a stress can trigger the buds to bloom. This fall flowering phenomenon is normally sparse and typically does not affect the amount of blooms the plant has the following spring. The plants usually are not harmed for the long term, but this depends on what the stress factor was.

This is.....Once we have a hard freeze, gardeners may be in a hurry to cut back the dead tops herbaceous plants like chrysanthemum and asparagus. While these plants can be cut back to two to four inches tall once the tops are killed by frost, some gardeners prefer to leave the frost killed top growth so it provides some protection from fluctuating air and soil temperatures during winter. Leaving the tops over winter also catches more snow, helping to increase soil moisture levels in spring.

If you do cut the tops off of mums, place a layer of mulch over the top of the mums after the ground has frozen as these plants are not fully hardy to Nebraska. (Source: Ward Upham, K-State)

This is....As we move into winter, store lawn and garden pesticides correctly and securely. Whenever storing pesticides, never put them in a container other than their original container. This is against pesticide label law and can lead to poisoning.

Two examples that occurred this summer, in the United States, include an incidence where a father placed a small amount of insecticide into a small cup and set it outside, hoping to kill spiders. His 21-month old daughter found the cup and drank it. In another incident, a gardener poured extra pesticide into a juice bottle. His wife found and took the juice bottle into the house and later drank it, thinking it was juice. These are true incidents, and fortunately in both cases, the child and wife recovered and survived. However, these cases emphasize the importance

Talking about football coaches

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

I love the fact that it's light in the morning, but I hate the way it gets dark earlier in the evening; what to do?? Not much can be done about it, just complain, I guess.

I haven't talked about football for a long time; have you noticed? Everyone else is, and they all seem to have an opinion, most of them not good. All I know is that when teams like Minnesota not only beat us, but beat us soundly, it's not like old times around here.

It's interesting to hear folks talk of getting Scott Frost back here to coach. There was a time when Nebraska fans were very upset with Scott Frost, but a lot of the young people today are not even aware of that. After a stellar career at Wood River High School, Scott went to Stanford! Yes, Stanford, to play for a coach who molded quarter backs. But, by his sophomore year, that coach had fooled with his mechanics and was suggesting he play safety, so he transferred to Nebraska. And I guess his team mates did not take to that lightly. In fact, they gave him a bad time in practice, but gained their respect when he took everything they handed out.

Now, he's head coach at University of Central Florida, one of the few unbeaten teams in the nation. And, you need to know, UCF did not win a game two years ago. This has been quite a turn around.

Friends Marlyce and Jerry live ten minutes from that campus, and they take in a few games in person. They also go to volleyball and basketball games there; the men's team has a player who is 7'6". That's tall!

They hear all the talk about the coach. After all, University of Florida has already fired a coach and they are looking at Frost, too. Incidentally, Scott was newly married when he went to Orlando, and he is now a new father of a baby boy. The team thinks his name should be Jack.

And the folks there want to keep their head coach; he's been very good for the team. And I can't help wondering if he would even consider coaching Nebraska in these tough times. We hear he likes Florida, and that recruiting there is really easy. I bet!

So far, our current coach is still the coach. I guess it behooves us to support him as best we can, and hope that somehow, our team learns to tackle! Is that too much to ask?

Wayne FFA students recently awarded new FFA jackets

The Nebraska FFA Foundation presented Tyler Gilliland, Abby Ankeny, Allison Claussen, Terran Sievers, Meghan Spahr, Jenna Trenhaile, Megan Keiser and Josie Thompson of the Wayne FFA Chapter their very own FFA jackets.

The jackets were awarded at Local Leadership Night. These students were eight of 315 students selected statewide as part of the Nebraska FFA Foundation's "Blue Jacket Bright Futures" program.

"All of us who have been FFA members understand the excitement of putting on your blue jacket for the first time and wearing it proudly as you represent your chapter and state. You wear that jacket with pride to many events and competitions as an FFA member," said Stacey Agnew, Executive Director of the Nebraska FFA Foundation. "FFA jackets are costly and this is a great way for deserving students to apply and be selected to receive a jacket. This program rewards and encourages members who are eager to continue Nebraska's outstanding FFA tradition."

This year's program brought in nearly 700 applications from members across the state and of all ages. "This is one of the bigger responses we've had for this program yet," Agnew said. "We are excited to see them wear their jackets with pride, representing an outstanding legacy of youth in agriculture."

Agricultural educators, former state officers, FFA officer teams, and other generous contributors have come forward to support the annual campaign.

For more information about the Nebraska FFA Foundation's annual campaign, contact Stacey Agnew at (402) 472-5846 or stacey@neffaoundation.org.

The mission of the Nebraska FFA Foundation is to enhance quality agricultural education/FFA programs in order to achieve excellence in leadership development, curriculum innovation and scholastic advancement of students.

Meetings on inheriting the family farm scheduled

If you are reading this, you have today (Thursday) and Friday to sign up for our Farm Inheritance Program coming up next Tuesday.

Agricultural producers and stakeholders who own land across Nebraska may want to attend to be educated with information about rural proper ownership considerations and trends. Topics discussed at this event include strategies for the management, renting, and transition of your farmland. This workshop will also be held at the Wayne Fire Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 21 starting at 9:30 a.m.

Participants can use this two-and-half hour workshop to learn about considerations for land ownership such as managing and transitioning the property, renting farmland and key lease provisions, legal considerations for ownership, and strategies for effective communication for the management of the property.

Participants interested in attending are encouraged to pre-register by calling the Wayne County Extension office at (402) 375-3310 by Friday, Nov. 17 to ensure adequate handouts. The workshop is free to attend. This program is offered to the public with financial support received from the North Central Risk Management Education Center and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Similar Farm Inheritance Programs are also being held in Norfolk on Monday, Nov. 20 at the Lifelong Learning Center and at South Sioux City on Thursday, Dec. 14 at the Northeast Community College. Both meetings start at 6:30 p.m.

of storing pesticides in their original containers only; and in a secure location that ideally can be locked.

This is...Tree leaves are a great source of organic matter for compost piles, to till into garden soil, or to use as winter mulch over tender plants. According to research, leaves from different tree species will decompose at different rates, but the end product, or compost, is the same. And I have not heard of any types of tree leaves that should not be used for these purposes, so recycle all of your tree leaves. Leathery leaves contain more lignin and therefore take longer to decompose than soft or fine-textured leaves. Use leathery leaves as mulch.

For tilling into garden soil or adding to compost piles, decomposition can be sped up by shredding or mowing leathery leaves first. If leaves are collected while mowing, grass clippings will be mixed in and this will also speed decomposition. Moisture is needed for decomposition to occur. If tree leaves are dry, moisten them slightly before adding to a compost pile.

This is.....Hopefully many new trees and shrubs were planted this fall. These will continue to need watering until the soil begins to freeze. Typically, five to seven gallons applied once a week is an appropriate amount for newly planted trees or shrubs; however, differing soil and weather conditions will affect the frequency of needed watering. Since too much water is just as harmful as too little, check soil moisture four to eight inches deep before watering. If the soil feels dry or just slightly damp, watering is needed. A slow trickle of the garden hose at the base of the plant for several hours or until the soil is thoroughly moistened is the best method. A five gallon pail with holes punched in the sides can also be used. Place it at the base of the tree, fill it with water and allow the water to drain out through the holes and soak into the soil. Do not water again until the soil feels dry or just slightly damp.
