Audit's irregularities not all that irregular after all

By Calyn Dunklau calyn@wayneherald.com

A state audit of the Nebraska State College System (NSCS) found irregularities and accounting issues at the three institutions, but has since been corrected according to audit manager Kris Kucera and sources at Wayne State College.

Previous articles circulating insinuated that an investigation was ongoing in regards to one issue found at Wayne State College involving former assistant athletic director Ryan Hix.

It was stated that the audit manager had turned the matter over to the Wayne County Attorney, Nebraska State Patrol and Nebraska Attorney General's Office.

When asked about this, Wayne County Attorney Mike Pieper stated that the "audit reports had been sent, but no law enforcement investigation report had been received."

On Tuesday, Nebraska State Patrol public relations director Cody Thomas stated that as of Monday there was no investigation ongoing, in fact according to Thomas, the investigative lieutenant based in Norfolk who would be in charge of such an investigation hadn't even recognized the name Rvan Hix.

Thomas stated that it was safe to say the NSP wasn't conducting any investigation at this time, though he couldn't speak on behalf of any other organization.

According to the audit management letter and sources at WSC, there was no money missing and a large portion of the irregularities were simply misclassifications.

At the recent budget hearing, NSCS Chancellor Stan Carpenter responded to questions regarding an article published about the audit. His explanation included that audits are designed to find something and no one had a follow up question on the topic.

NSCS' official response to the audit was included in the audit management letter, stating that "The NSCS will look at ways to improve existing procedures for financial statement preparation in order to reduce financial statement errors. Those responsible for financial statement preparation have already met and plan to continue meetings to improve consistency and address concerns that arose during the audit, as well as to implement continued training opportunities, when available and where necessary, to ensure staff are informed and up to date on the proper financial statement line item handling of transactions."

The statement continued on saying "Many of the items noted were due to 'reclassifications', which moved balance es from one line item to another, with no resulting changes in total net assets. We understand the entries are the responsibility of the NSCS and will re-examine the closing process to determine how to better capture and ensure proper support for the end of year transactions made by College staff when preparing the financial statements."

Audit management letters can be found by visiting www.auditors.nebraska.gov. Letters for both the NSCS and the University of Nebraska can be found at that website for public viewing.

Housing grant application highlights council meeting

By Clara Osten clara@wayneherald.com

Housing needs and a liquor license were among the items members of the Wayne City Council discussed during Tuesday's regular meeting.

Megan Weaver, Director of Wayne Community Housing Corporation and Luke Virgil, Executive Director of Wayne Area Economic Development, spoke to the council on the need for the workforce housing in the community and state-wide program known as LB

Last year the state legislature allocated $7 million from the Nebraska Affordable Housing Trust Fund to be granted to communities for provide workforce housing.

Weaver told the council this money can be used in a variety of ways, including new construction and rehabilitation of existing homes. It does require a dollar for dollar match from each community requesting funding and is capped at a $1 million request. The deadline for submitting a grant application is March 30.

Weaver and Virgil told the council they have been communicating with several employers in the community in an attempt to secure additional funding to be used for the grant application.

Kelby Herman, a local developer, told the council that he is working with several other See Council, Page 3A

Retired Judge Robert Ensz (left) shakes the hand of the 2016 Citizen of the Year Bill Reeg. Last week Reeg was misidentified in the story on the celebration. All of Ensz's children and grandchildren were on hand to see him receive the award, some coming from as far away as Scottsdale, Ariz.

Citizen of the Year calls Wayne a 'vibrant' community

By Calyn Dunklau calyn@wayneherald.com

He never saw it coming.

When 2016 Citizen of the Year Bill Reeg stood up to introduce the 2017 Citizen of the Year, retired Judge Robert Ensz waited patiently to see who would be selected this year.

Much to his surprise the details given in Reeg's speech started to match up with him and before he knew it, it was his name that had been called.

At the back of the auditorium, his family gathered unbeknownst to him and when Ensz made his way to the front to accept the award, he spotted the grinning faces of each of his children and grandchildren.

"Whoever pulled this off did a masterful job," he said. "All the kids and grandkids were here. It was pretty amazing. We were dumbfounded."

Ensz and his wife Debbie have long been part of the community, having moved to Wayne in 1977. Debbie, a Wayne native, was happy to come back to her hometown to work at Wayne State College while her husband practiced law in town.

Debbie's family has a rich history in Wayne, as her paternal grandfather was one of the first physicians in town and her maternal grandfather was one of the original publishers of The Wayne Herald.

Her history with the community was a draw for her and when the couple met at college in Lincoln, moving wasn't a hard decision to make upon her being offered a job at WSC.

The Enszes are active at the United Methodist Church in Wayne where they volunteer and serve, In addition, Ensz is a member of the Wayne Rotary Club and he is also a mentor for the Wayne TeamMates program.

While he is retired, Ensz continues to work with the judicial system, or more accurately, the future of the judicial system.

"I help with the high school mock trial team and I've helped with the Criminal Justice Department at Wayne State. They have a trial class I help with.'

It's only natural that the community would look to him for help in shaping future lawyers and judges, after all he did serve first as the Wayne County Attorney and then as a judge.

Ensz was appointed to serve as a district court judge in 1991, which would cover seven counties.

When asked which he preferred, being an attorney or a judge, he couldn't pick.

"I enjoyed practicing because I had more contact with the community and the county. Being on the bench was a different experience. I can't say I enjoyed one really more than the other. They were both challenging and both interesting. You see the law in a different way on each side of the bench.'

The couple raised four children here and have no plans to leave the community any time soon.

"It's a vibrant community and that's what we've seen. It's a great place for our kids to come back to. If we lived in some other community, they probably wouldn't be as interested in coming back," he said.

The community, he said, is full of opportunity, whether it's industrial or educational, he considers Wayne to be a good community

And he considers it home.

"I'm not from here, but when you've been here that long, you get to know people and you get to call them your friends. It's very neighborly and that's one of the things we like about Wayne."

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By Wes Blecke, City Administrator

City Council Meetings

Regular Wayne City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in City Hall at Third and Pearl Streets. We would be honored to have you join us.

City Council Retreat

The Mayor and City Council held their annual retreat at the Wayne Senior Center on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2 - 3. The Mayor and Council tackled a list of more than 30 topics.

Some topics were discussed at length and others were discussed by just scratching the surface of the issue.

Some of these topics included the future of electricity (rates, new generation, upgrades to the transmission system), water transmission, and upgrades to community space (mainly parks). The Mayor and Council will likely pass a resolution at a future meeting acknowledging their goals for the next one to five years as they were discussed at the retreat.

> One and Six Year Street Improvement Program

Typically referred to as "the 1 & 6 Year Plan," the Council approved the annual plan for improving certain street segments in the next one to six years. If the street segment doesn't appear on this plan, it cannot be completed by the City. While there is flexibility to amend this plan if need be throughout the year, since the plan is approved every year, amendments are rare.

One of the main projects on this plan for 2018 is the completion of improvements to East Second Street.

Snow Removal

Since my last article we have received 16-18 inches of snow. Riding in the snow plow for approximately five hours the other night made me more aware what the City's crews go through during snow falls.

Please abide by the snow emergencies when they are in place. I know this can be an inconvenience, but it is also a major inconvenience. and out right danger, to have vehicles parked on the streets when the crews are trying to plow in inclement conditions.

Also, please note that by current City ordinance, it is unlawful for the public to place snow from private property into public ways. This includes snow from driveways and parking lots. If you have questions concerning snow removal, please contact City Hall.

Retirement party

3A 1-and-6 roads hearing part of brief meeting

By Calyn Dunklau calyn@wayneherald.com

A brief meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners included discussions on the 1-and-6 road program as well as an informational session with economic development director Luke Virgil and Wayne Community Housing director Megan Weaver.

Virgil and Weaver were not on the agenda, so no action was taken, but the two discussed a program for rural workforce housing that they were hoping to pursue. The state made up to $500,000 available to be matched by city, county and private dollars in the use of workforce housing throughout the state.

The City of Wakefield already approved matching funds of $300,000 so Weaver and Virgil were looking to the City of Wayne, Wayne County and private industry leaders in the area to match additional funds to meet the state's $500,000 to make their application a competitive one.

The program is a one-time allocation for the state to serve the gap in housing. This would not be lowincome eligible.

Commissioners agreed to discuss the possibility and plan to have additional questions for the pair at the next meeting.

Highway superintendent Mark Casey held a hearing at 9:45 for the 1-and-6 road improvement program

Last year, 10 of the 19 projects on the list were completed with an additional one still under construction.

The remaining projets were carried over and more were added to the 2018 list for a total of 17 projects. Two of those have been selected for the county bridge match program.

After some discussion on each of the projects, the commissioners voted unanimously to adopt the one year plan Casey set up.

In other news, new technology and furniture may be coming to the courtroom but more discussion is necessary before a decision is reached.

Deb Allemann-Dannelly, Clerk of the District Court, brought some requests to the board on behalf of Judge Mark Johnson. Johnson requested two tables for use in the judicial courtroom, a smaller courtroom located in the County Sheriff's building. His suggestion was to replace two tables in the large courtroom with new ones and move the previous ones into the judicial courtroom. Other requests brought forth included a projector of sorts to be purchased. In some cases where one has been needed, arrangements have had to be made with other counties to utilize their technology.

Allemann-Dannelly showed the commissioners options for such furniture and technology. They plan to discuss it more before making a decision communities to secure LB 518 funds and is familiar with the process. Additionally, he told the council he is currently working on a $3 million project in Wayne that is "shove ready" and would be an asset when submitting the grant application.

He also said that the LB 518 funds are granted to each city and loaned to the respective entities, such as a developer or home owner/buyer. As the money from these loans are repaid, they would become part of a revolving loan fund which could them be used for additional housing needs.

Following considerable discussion by council members, it was voted to allocate $200,000 to the project and provide up to another $200,000 as a dollar for dollar match from private entities in the community.

The proposal will be re-visited at the council's next meeting in two weeks.

An application for a Class CK (On and off sale beer, wine, distilled spirts & catering) liquor license was approved for Wayne Area Event Center, Inc., doing business as Beaumont Event & Concert Hall was approved.

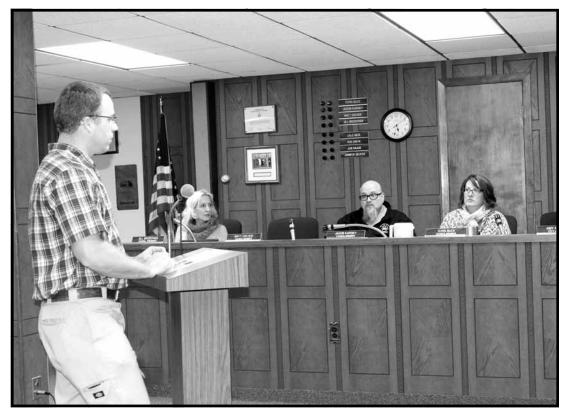

Josie Broders spoke to the council during a public hearing on the item and explained where on the property alcohol would be allowed.

Wayne Police Chief Marlen Chinn spoke to the council and noted that if alcohol were served in an outdoor patio area, that area would be classified as a beer garden and needed to be fenced in. If alcohol were served along with food outdoors, the area would be classified as a garden cafe and a barrier of some type would need to be in place.

Council members debated what constituted a barrier, as they have final say on the matter. It was determined that landscaping could be classified as a sufficient barrier.

The city's one and six-year street improvement program was approved following a public hearing

Wayne schools to participate in 'No One Eats Alone'

Wayne Community Schools will be participating in a National Initiative called "No One Eats Alone Day".

"No One Eats Alone" is a positive prevention initiative for students that originally came from Beyond Differences. Beyond Differences is a student-led social justice movement and the only organization dedicated to ending social isolation by empowering students to become activists to change the culture of middle and high schools.

National "No One Eats Alone Day" is set for Friday, Feb. 9. However, because of school activities that will take students out of school, Wayne will be using Wednesday, Feb. 14 as its "No One Eats Alone Day."

Plans call for volunteer student leaders to come up with ways to reach out to all students during their lunch periods.

Diana Davis and Amy Jackson are leading the efforts at the junior/ senior high school along with any teacher who wants to be involved.

The Trojans trailed early, but rebounded to take a 30-22 halftime lead. The Wildcats came back to tie the game going to the final period, but Wakefield was able to come out on top in the end to post the win.

Parker Lehmkuhl had a gamehigh 26 points to pace the Trojans while Justin Erb added 12 points. Also scoring were Israel Gardea and

The Wakefeild boys basketball Gabe Peitz with four points apiece, Blake Heimann added three, Dylon Harder and Solomon Peitz both had two and Esgar Godinez had one.

Wakefield hosted Winnebago on Tuesday and will host Howells-Dodge on Friday before closing out the regular season at home next Friday against Homer.

The Wayne High wrestlers posted their best finish since joining the Mid State Conference, bringing home the runner-up trophy from Saturday's meet at Norfolk Catholic.

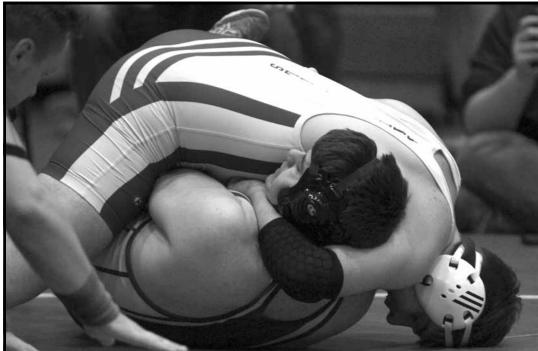

The Blue Devils outlasted Crofton/Bloomfield and Pierce in the chase for second place, finishing well behind three-time defending champion Battle Creek

Wayne won three of eight final-round matches to close out the day, with the biggest win coming in the consolation finals at heavyweight as freshman Mike Leatherdale posted a miracle comeback win

Leatherdale trailed 9-7 with time running out and was able to turn Dalton Rasmussen of Boone Central/Newman Grove for a two-point nearfall as time ran out. Leatherdale went after his opponent aggressively in overtime and took him to his back, getting a pin 15 seconds into the extra period to get the needed bonus points to help the Blue Devils secure the runner-up trophy.

"Mike bumping up to heavyweight and getting that pin at the end was huge with those bonus points," coach Dave Wragge said. "We had some guys not wrestle up to their very best, but on the other hand we had some guys who came through and exceeded our expectations and got the job done, so it was a really good team effort." Finalist regulars Juan Vergara and Hunter Jorgensen both came away with runner-up finishes at 132 and 220 pounds, respectively, and the addition of Victor Kniesche in the finals at 138 pounds was also a key to Wayne's finish. "Getting Victor (Kniesche) to the finals at 138 was big for us, and having Casey Koenig come back through the consolations and ending with a pin was big as well, so everybody that suited up today contributed to the effort," Wragge said. Koenig (170) jonined Leatherdale and Cameron Muhs (126) as consolation champions. Muhs beat teammate Brandon Wacker in an all-Wayne third-place match. Berto Vergara and Daniel Maxson added fourth-place efforts at 160 and 195 pounds, respectively. The Blue Devils now set their sights on the B-3 district meet that will take place Friday and Saturday at Fort Calhoun, and Saturday's effort had Wragge feeling optimistic about where his team sits heading into the state-qualifying meet.

some with stuff to fix after today, so we'll get back to work and get things adjusted and I think we'll be fine," he said.

Wragge said he's hesitant to guess how many qualifiers the Blue Devils will send to Omaha, but is hopeful the team can get its first medal since Jorge Dunklau finished fourth at heavyweight in 2010.

"It depends on the day," Wragge said. "We could have a bunch and we might get skunked so don't want to put a number out there but feel pretty good about it and think we can hit our average as far as qualifiers go. We've decided this is the year we're bringing some hardware home. I think we have some guys who are really wrestling well and once we get there we can wrestle at a high level and we've got what it takes."

Coach Chad Metzler said he was proud of how the team responded with only nine players suited up for the game.

We got a big shooting night from Kassidy Brudigam, and the energy from the bench was awesome. It was just a fun game to be a part of."

Wakefield trailed in the first period, but came back to post a 24-20 lead at the half and never trailed after that.

4 Financial Questions to Ask Your Parents

If you haven't discussed your parents' long-term financial goals with them, you aren't alone. Over one-third of adult children say they haven't had this conversation, according to recent research by Ameriprise Financial.1 While talking about this sensitive topic may seem uncomfortable, addressing it sooner rather than later can help eliminate challenges and uncertainty down the road. In fact, the Ameriprise Family Wealth Checkup study found that families who make time to talk about money matters feel more confident about their financial future. Not sure how to broach the subject with your parents? The following questions can help you start the dialogue:

1. "What do you want to accomplish over the next five-to-ten years?" Understand your parents' aspirations for the next few years. What are their personal and financial goals? If your

Blue Devil girls bounce back to finish fifth

The Wayne High girls basketball team bounced back from an opening-round loss in the Mid State Conference tournament to earn a fifth-place finish with two wins last week.

On Thursday, the Blue Devils avenged an earlier loss with a 50-45 win over Norfolk Catholic in action at Norfolk Catholic High School.

The Blue Devils got off to a fast start and built a 13-point firstquarter advantage, but the Knights battled back and actually took the lead early in the fourth quarter before Wayne rallied to improve to 13-8 on the season.

The Blue Devils got out to a 10-0 lead early in the game. Kylie Hammer had eight of those points, including a three-point play and a 3-pointer to stake Wayne to the double-digit advantage.

Wayne never trailed after that, building a seven-point lead on a 3-pointer by Boyer on their way to a 31-25 halftime edge. They made it 35-25 early in the third on scores by Meyer and Hammer, but O'Neill went on a 9-0 run to get the lead back down to one at 35-34 midway through the third.

Boyer ended the run with a 3-pointer and Annie Kniesche and Meyer added baskets to get the lead back to eight at 42-34. O'Neill never got closer than four points the rest of the way as the Blue Devils improved to 15-8 with the win.

Hammer had a game-high 20 points, Meyer added 19 and Boyer put in 11 for the winners. Klausen added eight points, Kniesche had four and Gamble scored two. parents are not yet retired, ask them when they plan to leave the workforce and what they want to achieve before they do. If your parents are retired, ask about how they want to spend their time. Will your parents move to a new state? Travel more? Pick up a part-time job or find a volunteer opportunity? Getting a sense for how your parents want to spend their time will help you get on the same page with what to expect in the years ahead.

2. "Where can I find financial information in case of an emergency?" Unexpected events or illness can occur at any time. If something happens to your parents, it's important for you to know how to access key personal, financial and estate planning materials. Contact information for their financial advisor, tax professional, estate planner and lawyer is a great place to start. Make sure your parents have the right permissions in place so that you can step in when the need arises. Many professionals require documented authorization before they can legally discuss information with a family member.

Also, ask your parents to consider sharing passwords for key accounts or letting you know where you can find a list of them. Having access to your parents' smartphones, computers, social media or other accounts can help in an emergency.

3. "What do you want your legacy to be?" As people enter and move through retirement, they often become more focused on the legacy they want to leave behind. Ask your parents how they hope to be remembered, and what their plans are for making that happen. The following elements can be pivotal to the conversation:

•Will and trust: Ask your parents if they have an updated will or trust, and if there's anything they'd like to share about how the assets will be distributed. The Family Wealth Checkup study found that while most survey participants (83 percent) expect to leave an inheritance, only 21 percent have told their children how much they may receive. As a result, children's expectations don't always match reality. Having a conversation about why your parents are allocating certain amounts to family members, charities or foundations can help prevent future conflict.

•Health care: Health care choices and expenses are often major sources of stress for retirees. Discussing your parents' desires about current health priorities, possible assisted living facilities or treatment options can give your family a roadmap to follow for future decisions. Ask parents if they have formalized their wishes in a health care directive, which is a legally binding document that allows them to choose a loved one to make medical decisions if they are unable to decide.

4. "What support do you want from me?" Extending an offer to proactively help may eliminate frustrations or relieve stress for even the most independent and well-prepared parents. Keep in mind that assistance may be nonfinancial - such as completing house projects, planning more time with their grandchildren or helping identify how they can get involved in activities. Consider including a financial advisor or attorney in the discussion if your parents have financial or estate planning to-dos or questions.

Retirement and legacy planning can be complicated, but having regular discussions with your parents can help you both prepare for the future. If you've already covered the necessary ground, a scheduled check-in can be helpful in case your parents' plans or your family situation changes.

The 2013 Wayne High standout cleared 7 feet, 3 inches, to claim firstplace honors in the high jump on Saturday, setting a new personal best and putting himself in great position to qualify for the NCAA DIv. I indoor nationals in March.

Anderson out-jumped teammate Landon Bartel, who leads the Big Ten and is ranked sixth in the nation with a best mark of 7-3 3/4. Anderson cleared his final attempt at 7-3 to win the event and move into second in the conference and tied for eighth nationally. He was also named the Outstanding Male Athlete of the invitational.

Anderson was a multi-sport standout at Wayne High School. During his senior year in 2013, he broke a 27-year old school record and became the first Wayne High athlete to break the 7-foot barrier in the high jump. He won the Class B state title later that spring with a mark of 6-6.

Anderson is the son of Steve and Peg Anderson of Concord.

Explaining insurance's "Explanation of Benefits"

by Gordon Hopkins Rural Health News Service

Every time your doctor sends a medical claim to a medical insurance company or care management organization, you will receive an Explanation of Benefits - usually referred to as an EOB or EOB form. (The exception may be some prescriptions).

Despite having "explanation" in its name, an EOB quite often confuses rather than explains anything. However, it is important that you review each EOB you receive because neither insurance companies nor health care providers are perfect, and any errors can cost you down the line. Here is some of the information that should appear on your EOB and what it means.

4. The fee that your health care provider charged the insurance company. If your provider is "in network," they have a contracted rate with your insurance company. The provider can list whatever charge they want, but the insurance company will cover only the negotiated rate. You are not responsible for the difference.

If your provider is "out of network," then there is no contracted rate, and you are responsible for whatever your insurance doesn't cover. That means it is always important to check with your insurance company about your health care provider's network status.

5. What you owe. This usually refers to a deductible - the amount

1. The date you saw your health care provider. People don't like to think about it, but health care fraud is a reality. If you receive an EOB for a date of service you don't recall, you should contact your provider or insurance company right away. This may be a simple clerical error, or you may have been the victim of identity theft.

2. The name of the provider. Again, if you don't recognize the provider, you may the victim of fraud and should follow up accordingly.

3. A description of the services provided. This may be the most important detail on the EOB. If you feel the service billed does not match what was actually done, you should follow up first with your provider and then your insurance company.

An incorrect description can cause all manner of grief. Insurance companies match to the diagnosis on the claim form. If the service provided is not considered appropriate for the diagnosis, the claim may be denied. Another problem is that many insurance policies limit certain services, such chiropractic visits or mental health treatment. If the wrong service is billed, you could exhaust your benefits without realizing it.

you pay per year before your insurance kicks in – or a copay – the percentage of each charge that your plan says you must pay. This is where many people get confused and sometimes upset, especially if they have already paid the provider. An EOB is not a bill. In fact, "This Is Not A Bill" is usually printed on the form. Despite this, there is usually a section that reads "You Owe This Amount" or some variation. Remember that the EOB does not list what you may already have paid your provider.

6. A "reason" code. If your claim was denied, in part or in full, this code tells you why. The service may not be covered under your plan or may have been deemed not medically necessary, or you may have reached your annual plan limits.

You should keep all EOBs for the duration of your plan year. Find a safe place to store them. When you do decide to dispose of them, they should be treated just like bank or credit card statements, and shredded. Many insurance companies offer the option of paperless EOBs that you can receive by email for an added layer of protection.

And be sure to contact your insurance company's customer service department with any questions or concerns.

Four area Sharp Shooters participate in competition

Over 200 youth from across the state traveled to Columbus to participate in the Nebraska State 4-H Indoor Archery Competition held at the Ag Park Jan. 26 - 27.

Four members of the Wayne County Sharp Shooters 4-H Club took aim as they competed in the Cub Division, ages 8-11.

The State indoor competition consisted of 60 arrows shot in 12 rounds of five arrows each at a distance of 10 yards for the Cubs, making 300 a perfect score.

Carter Anson, shooting in the Bowhunter Freestyle Division, brought home the gold medal with a score of 289 out of 300. In the Freestyle Division, Brayden Lurz earned a bronze medal with his score of 276.

Rylynn Owen and Alexis Frye also shot in the Bowhunter Freestyle Division. Rylynn scored a 253, earning her a 12th place finish and Alexis came in 18th with a score of 230.

"All their hard work and determination throughout the year really paid off as it was the first time competing at the State Indoor Archery shoot for Anson, Owen and Frye and Lurz's second time participating in the event," said Coach Darin Greunke.

The Wayne County Sharp Shooters are coached by Eric Frye, Darin Greunke and Tim Lurz.

Workshop to be held in Norfolk by LENRD

The annual no-till, cover crops, and planned grazing workshop will be held Wednesday, February 14th in the Lifelong Learning Center on the campus of Northeast Community College in Norfolk.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. with coffee and rolls provided by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD).

In the morning session, Jay Fuhrer will present "What's on your landscape?" Fuhrer is a Soil Health Specialist with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Bismarck, ND. He will talk about the grazing and cropping systems we use today and compare them to the systems which built our soils.

Paul Jasa, Extension Engineer with UNL, will also be on hand to present the Rogers Memorial Farm Cover Crop Update.

The afternoon program will include more information from the morning speakers, along with Dan Gillespie, NRCS No-till Specialist for Madison County. Dan will talk about cover crop management in corn/bean rotations, what crops to seed, and when to terminate.

Lunch will be provided at noon. The workshop will end at approximately 3:00 p.m. and is sponsored by the NRCS and the LENRD. Reserve your seat by calling your local NRCS office or the LENRD at 402.371.7313 by February 8th.

Northeast Nebraska

ATV safety courses offered across the state free of charge

Several organizations are collaborating to present free training for the public on the safe use of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs).

Rural hospitals in Nebraska are seeing an increase in severe injuries from ATVs. According to the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services, in 2016, ATV incidents resulted in seven deaths, 94 hospitalizations and 578 emergency department visits in Nebraska.

This year, the Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, the University of Nebraska Extension and the Nebraska Safety Center at the University of Nebraska at Kearney will present training sessions to adults and children in more than 50 cities across Nebraska. The training, which was developed in response to accidents on and off the farm, includes safety practices, such as proper personal protective equipment and a demonstration with an ATV simulator on the proper way to ride.

The most common cause of agricultural-related deaths in Nebraska is ATVs and overturned tractors, said Susan Harris-Broomfield, University of Nebraska Extension educator in Kearney and Franklin counties. Course presenters include Harris-Broomfield and Aaron Yoder, Ph.D. and Ellen Duysen, both with the UNMC College of Public Health and the Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health at UNMC.

Duysen said everyone in rural Nebraska probably knows someone who's had an ATV incident. Duysen said ATVs have gotten larger and more powerful.

"When ATVs tip, people get thrown off and run over," she said. "The first parts of the body likely to be impacted are the head and neck. Those who survive roll-over incidents may be paralyzed for life. Emergency room personnel are concerned about the senseless injuries and deaths.

"It's a tragic public health issue," Duysen said. "We train parents and others about why kids shouldn't be on these powerful machines. We could significantly reduce death and injury from ATVs in Nebraska if we can keep children and those who haven't had training off ATVs but that's not going to happen so we need to focus on training and education about the risks."

Duysen said Harris-Broomfield is the driving force behind ATV safety in Nebraska.

Harris-Broomfield said ATVs have been used on farms for years as an efficient mode of transportation "It's a means to get the job done," Harris-Broomfield said. "But it's frustrating to hear about the preventable injuries and deaths that happen. Few people have had training on appropriate use or laws. The accident and injury rates for children between 10 and 15 years old are pretty high." She said those under age 16 should not be driving or even riding on full-sized ATVs. "Ninety-seven percent of ATVrelated injuries to those under 16 years old happen when operating full-sized machines. It's a matter of not letting kids get on them," Harris-Broomfield said. Tracy Dethlefs, a trauma outreach coordinator at CHI Health Good Samaritan in Kearney, sees ATV injuries firsthand. "ATV accidents not only can lead to death but also can cause a variety of injuries that can affect someone for a lifetime. Many of the injuries we are seeing are to adults, using these ATVs for workrelated purposes. We as adults need to follow the same safety steps to serve as good examples to follow for all the youth that are learning alongside us."

Those interested in attending an ATV training class can contact Duysen at 402.552.3394, ellen.duysen@unmc.edu. Though registration is preferred, drop-ins are welcome. For organizations who would like to host ATV train ing, contact Harris-Broomfield at 308.832.0645, susan.harris@unl edu.

RC&D's begins 25th Year

There was a party atmosphere at the recent meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation & Development (RC&D) Council. Twenty-five years ago this RC&D Council was authorized by USDA and became one of 375 in the nation. Trivia questions and treats were provided as a start to a year of celebrating the accomplishments of this RC&D.

President Jim Rabe and Council members welcomed Justin D. Doerr as a new board member representing Pierce County. He replaces Joan Alexander on the board of directors. They also accepted the resignation of Glen Anderson of Coleridge. Two vacancies still exist for Antelope County and one for Dixon County.

Several projects were recognized as being completed and a new budget and plan of work for 2018 were accepted. Board members were provided with the 2017 Annual Report along with a request that they present it to their sponsoring county or NRD.

The Feeder Watch workshop was held Saturday at the Plainview Public Library with 27 in attendance. Jamie Bachmann, Nebraska Game & Parks and Northern Prairie Lands Trust, provided instruction, hands-on activities, birdfeeders and more. It was an informative and fun event for all. The bird feeding station will remain at the Library.

Another Grant Writing Workshop is scheduled for this Friday, February 9th at the Plainview Public Library. Participants will get the benefit of one-on-one grant reviews for proposals they will be writing. Laura Dendinger, Wayne State College Professor and Joan Scheel, USDA Rural Development along with Jan Jorgensen, RC&D Projects Manager will be leading the program.

There will be two Household Hazardous Waste events on a weekend in April with times and specific locations to be announced. These events are funded in part by a grant from the Nebraska Environmental Trust and hosting communities. The Hub & Spoke Regional Recycling project is making headway. The large recycling carts have been delivered to the mini-hubs in Verdigre, Creighton and Plainview, but the signage for the carts is still being fabricated. More information will be coming on the times and locations for accepting recyclables in those communities.

The RC&D Council looks forward to continuing service to citizens through projects that will make life better for people in Antelope, Cedar, Dixon, Knox, Pierce, and Wayne counties. • Nebraska Safety Center, University of Nebraska at Kearney

Filling in for a friend

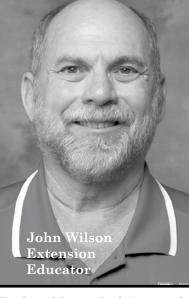

I'd like to take this opportunity to introduce myself.

I'm John Wilson, an Extension Educator with Nebraska Extension and my office is in Burt County.

Amy Topp asked if I wrote a weekly column, and if I did, if I'd be willing to share it with the Wayne Herald since Keith Jarvi didn't have writing a column on his retirement "To Do List!" Actually he told me he had a pretty short list ... golf, fish and hunt! (I didn't have the heart to tell him that wasn't even close to the retirement "To Do List" his wife, Mary, had for him.)

I'll date myself here, because somehow it doesn't seem fair that Keith is retiring. We've been good friends for many years (back when we both had hair), BUT I started my career with Nebraska Extension about a year before Keith and I'm still here at my desk. (He must have had a better investment advisor!) If any of you are doing the math, it's true... I'm old enough to remember when Amy (Malchow) Topp was a cute little 4-H'er. (That might be another story for another day, or maybe not, because Amy might have stories, too!)

Anyway, I'm definitely not new to Extension and I have seen it go through many changes over the past 40 years. One big change is, when I started we were expected to know a little bit about a lot of things. Now we are expected to know a lot about fewer things... and also who to refer people to that have questions that are not in our main area of expertise.

Keith and I were both "crops educators" so we worked together on a lot of things and that is where we did the majority of our educational programming.

I hope they will fill Keith's position in the near future, not that I mind writing this column (I have and will continue to share it with five other weekly papers in the area), but it will just be good to have someone working with crops in the area. Hopefully the budget shortfalls that the state is facing won't delay how quickly they fill his position. So that's kind of a were flat and sandy. We raised including conservation tillage, corn, popcorn and prairie hay and pasture management and intenfed out feeder pigs. I was an 11 year 4-H member, showing beef ity issues and 4-H. However, I've and swine and just about any other project you can imagine including electricity, woodworking, photography, garden, poultry, wildlife, entomology and I even tried my luck at cooking a few years! The judge didn't always like it, but my family did.

I attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and received my B.S. in agronomy and agricultural education and my M.S. in agronomy with a minor in animal science. When they kicked me out of college and told me to go find a job (graduated), there was an opening for an Extension Educator (at that time a County Agent) in Burt County, so this "flatlander" suddenly learned a lot about hills and gumbo! This is where I've called home for the last 40 vears.

My wife and I live in a house on an acreage, OK... it's a log home on 160 acres, near Craig. We have CRP, timber and a pond which is our dream home setting. We both enjoy the outdoors, watching the constant flow of wildlife around our home (Patty names the critters we see regularly), and we both like to hunt. Well, to be per- you wanted to know, but it gives fectly honest, Patty likes to hunt you an idea of who is behind these but I love to hunt. If you have a weekly ramblings.

sive grazing systems, water qualalways had crop production as part of my core programming. Insects, diseases and nematodes have been my "specialty" within the crops arena.

I have a special interest in and a statewide responsibility working with soybean cyst nematodes (SCN). I find this particularly challenging as SCN can cut soybean yields 20-30 percent with no visual signs on the plant. If you took the yield losses for ALL soybean diseases and added them together, it would not come close to the losses caused by SCN. This is true for soybean farmers in Nebraska and across the U.S.

If anyone has a situation where their soybean yields have hit a plateau or even started to drop off, yet corn yields continue to increase in your fields, I'd love to talk to you. That, or poor yielding areas in soybean fields on your yield maps that you can't explain because of soil type, weed pressure, compaction, insects, herbicide injury, etc. are the two most common indications of an SCN infestation.

Light but realistic

By MIKE RENNING mikesportshome@yahoo.com

I told the various papers which run this column I would keep it light and relatively humorous. Humorous is relative, but sometimes you need to get serious when serious things happen in vour life.

Take a deep breath, none of this will be political – that would have to turn into a humorous diatribe.

Over the past couple of years, I have lost some of the most important people in my life and I'm not telling this for sympathy, but rather for understanding from us survivors to relish every second we have left and every second left with the ones depart. ing this world sooner.

First off, I'll proclaim to everyone, I believe in God and I believe he sent his Son to forgive our sins.

I don't believe either helped me win anything, I don't believe either one has the time for the lion's share of my problems.

I do know when it's really important, they are with me.

Anyway, enough of my beliefs, let's move on to what prompted this revelation.

My Grandpa passed away some years ago, my Father-in-Law a couple of years ago and my Dad about a year ago.

That's three pretty important people in my life.

In fact, my Grandpa told me there are less than 10 people in your life who influence your life for a lifetime.

Well, my top three are gone. Enter my reason, I came to discover, Jeff Bussey passed awav.

Mr. Bussey was one of my football coaches but the first year he was in Albion, Ann Tisthammer and I were his teacher's aid.

Mr. Bussey was an elementary physical education teacher and he actually wasn't much older

Man, did he teach me something

I believe he was the first person to show me you can be a gentle giant with the little kids. and still maintain your status with 16 and 17 year-old-people. All of that with a smile while twirling his whistle around his finger.

To his family, I will say he touched more people than you will ever know, and I can sympathize with your loss - good heavens we lose wonderful people all the time it seems like anymore.

But put a smile on your face, he was a wonderful, wonderful person and a darn good teacher/ mentor.

His guiding light will never be forgotten by myself and a lot of kids he showed by example.

Now, back to the lesson – I know, I know, who am I to teach a lesson.

Mr. Bussey showed me how to treat the young people. I believe I listened.

Take this from me and him -Treat EVERYONE with respect, enjoy the little ones and twirl your whistle. Rest in Peace Mr. Bussey – I know where you're Capitol View Senator right to seek removal of immunity for lying

OFFICIAL

The Wayne era

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

"Mother should I trust the government?

That phrase from the 1979 song Mother by Pink Floyd seems to take on new meaning every day, not only nationally but also in Nebraska. Consider problems with some State Patrol brass falsifying records those involved have been fired, reprimanded or allowed to resign.

But there's one serious "lie" that is finally being addressed by a measure offered by second-year lawmaker Senator Justin Wayne of Omaha. His bill (LB 729) would remove sovereign immunity clauses that protect the Department of Health and Human Services from claims resulting from a failure to warn, notify, or inform of a ward's history as a victim or perpetrator of sexual abuse in cases of adoption or placement.

In a case 10 years ago, a caseworker failed to tell a couple who took in a 6-year-old foster boy about the youngster's history of sexual abuse. The caseworker was asked, but he lied about the serious medical and mental health issues the child had, despite a state law that requires such disclosure.

After the boy sexually assaulted another child in their home, the couple sued. But the case was thrown out because the state is immune from claims based on misrepresentation and deceit by state employees. In an opinion last year, Nebraska Supreme Court Justice William Cassel added a caveat: that lawmakers may wish to consider whether those exceptions still should be protected.

"From the perspective of the parents, immunity 'adds insult to injury," the judge wrote.

"I think there's some core principles that we all have," Wayne recently told members of the Legislature's Judiciary Committee during a hearing on his bill. "I think one of them is we don't think government should ever be deceitful and misrepresent facts. Whatever they are."

www.paulfellcartoons.com

A LIE ... I CHOPPED

DOWN THE

CHERRY TREE,

Simply put, the immunity isn't right. Wayne told his colleagues they shouldn't allow the state to lie and get away with it without some kind of action. It's not OK for the state to lie, and if it does, it should be called out and should have to pay for it, he said.

The woman who unsuccessfully sued now lives with her husband and family in another state. She attended the hearing to speak in support of Wayne's bill and reminded lawmakers that a bill was passed 15 years ago to require state officials to disclose all available information on a child being placed. All information.

0H, WAIT ... 1'M

A STATE OFFICIAL .

I CAN LIE AND

NOT FACE ANY

CONSEQUENCES.

UM ... THE DOG DID IT ... YEAH,

IT WAS THE DOG.

A good law. But there are no repercussions for state employees but an immeasurable amount for the family, or - more likely - families that have been impacted. Nebraska's foster care system has been studied and the results have raised concerns that are being dealt with.

All well and good. But now it's time to get down to the rest of the problem and take action to make it clear that lying will not be tolerated. There has to be consequences. The State Patrol seems to understand that now. This bill would make it clear to the Department of Health

The Lincoln Journal Star reported that Judiciary Committee Chairwoman Senator Laura Ebke of Crete asked Wayne if he thinks the state should only be held accountable for lying when it has to do with kids. Wayne said that's a broader discussion that he would love to have.

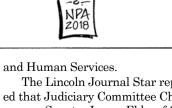

It's sad that it has come to this, but I agree that such a discussion needs to happen, sooner than later. Kudos to Senators Wayne and Ebke for recognizing that.

ka! I hope everyone has been staying warm and enjoying the sunshine. At the Unicameral, we spent much of the week continuing debate on Senator Crawford's LB 589 and Senator Hughes' 758. Following thorough debate, we did not vote to advance or indefinitely postpone LB 589. Senator Hughes' bill was moved to Enrollment and Review (the step before Select File) with 47 senators voting "yes" and 2 "present - not voting". After moving a few other bills to Enrollment and Review, we began debating LB 211 on Friday. LB 211, introduced by Senator Hansen, would increase the tipped minimum wage, the usual compensation method for those in the restaurant service industry. Many have raised concerns about this bill and I did not vote to advance it from Business and Labor Committee, but I look forward to hearing the remaining floor debate on the topic before the General File vote.

Reader expresses frustrations over National Anthem protesting

Editor,

I am disgusted. I used to watch NFL a lot, but not anymore. With some of the players refusing to stand for the National Anthem, it's a crime.

My father was in World War II, was in the third wave landing on Normandy Bay and Omaha Beach for which he was awarded the Bronze Star.

It's a shame and a slap in the face to all the veterans, those now serving, some giving their life for our country and those who they left behind. They should all meet and talk about this issue. Maybe the protestors would change their attitude. Those standing up for our country and those that kneel because of it are going about it all wrong. If the veterans and kneelers met and told their stories and leave Washington out of it, maybe some things could change.

The people who go to Arlington wander in tears and then we have the ignorant ones who kneel in disrespect.

You never go to a rodeo and see any cowboys kneel. They stand with their hat over their heart with pride. They all respect our flag and what it stands for.

On Tuesday, I presented LB 949, which allows the Nebraska Educational, Health, and Social Services Finance Authority to be a conduit issuer of bonds for private not-forprofit cultural institutions, to the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee. I was pleased to see the bill attract multiple proponents, with no one testifying in opposition. I am asking thoughtful questions and am hopeful the committee will advance it to General File next week.

This year, the Legislature will again work towards tackling high property taxes. Governor Ricketts' tax plan, proposed by Senator Smith as LB 947, was heard in Revenue Committee on Wednesday. LB 947, the Nebraska Property Tax Cuts and Opportunities Act, allows residential homeowners a refundable income tax credit equal to a percentage of property taxes paid during the taxable year. Resident individuals paying property taxes on agricultural land, horticultural land, farm sites and improvements on farm sites shall also be allowed a refundable income tax credit equal to a percentage of property taxes paid during the taxable year. LB 947 also provides for a two-year phase down of the top individual income tax rate from 6.84% to 6.69%, as well as a two-year phase down of the corporate tax rate for all taxable income in excess of $100,000 from 7.81% to 6.69%. Additionally, the bill directs the State Treasurer to transfer from the General Fund a total of $10 million to the Job Training Cash Fund over the next two years. Governor Ricketts and Senator Smith have made it clear that this bill is a work in progress and have already address concerns. I will continue to monitor the progress of this bill and ensure that it is in the best interest of District 17, as well as the entire state. To keep up with developments on the bill, visit https://nebraskalegislature. gov/ and search for LB 947.

On Thursday my office was happy to welcome representatives from the Wayne Chamber of Commerce to the Capitol and to the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce Business Hall of Fame banquet in Lincoln. I was delighted to sit at their table and talk about business in Wayne over dinner.

Monday will be the Business and Labor Committee's second of four committee hearing days of the session. We look forward to hearing testimony on the following bills:

LB928 (McDonnell) Change provisions relating to compensation paid upon the death of an employee under the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Act

LB 952 (Albrecht) Change provisions relating to dismissals of actions under the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Act

LB953 (Albrecht) Change provisions relating to lump-sum settlements under the Nebraska Workers' Compensation Act

"We are very excited about the addition of another mental health clinic at Providence Medical Center. The Community Needs Assessment survey that we conducted in 2016 showed very clearly that the lack of readily accessible mental health services was one of the top healthcare concerns in our area. We've been working hard to fulfill that need the past year. Dr. Gillette is the first psychiatrist to ever have an onsite outpatient specialty clinic at our facility and we feel very fortunate to be able to offer this level of care. His specialty in child and adolescent psychiatry will be a great addition to our other current mental health service offerings and will provide community members with a choice of providers as well as the opportunity to access treatment for mental health issues across their entire life continuum from childhood through the geriatric years." Taking care of spiritual 'heart disease'

Valentine's Day is just around the corner and we may convey our love with heart shaped boxes of candy, declarations of affection in cards and poems, or beautiful flow-

We have more than candy hearts to think about in February, it is also American Heart Month, sponsored by The American Heart Association. The goal of American Heart Month is to remind each of us to take care of our physical hearts. According to the website, Healthfinder.gov, statistics show heart disease is the leading cause of death for men and women in the United States; annually one in four deaths are caused by heart disease.

We shouldn't take for granted the physical heart that pumps blood through our body giving us life. I read recently about women and "silent heart attacks" which described the damage to the heart when the attacks are not recognized and the resulting long term damage if not treated promptly and appropriately. Each heart attack causes scar tissue which in turn causes the heart to work harder. While it's not very romantic to think about a heart attack, it is good advice to pay attention to the signals our body sends us when we don't feel well, have chest pain or shortness of breath and follow up with medical care.

There are many types of interventions from medicine to heart transplants; however, The American Heart Association suggests that changes in lifestyle are some of the best interventions people can make. Recommended practices include exercise, cutting down on salt and fat to improve heart health and minimize the risk for heart attacks and strokes.

Pondering the physical heart got me thinking about how we allow "heart disease" in our spiritual lives. Our "heart" can be blocked by the desire and pursuit of many things like money, power, material goods or anything else we allow to distort our relationship with Christ.

We allow our hearts to begin to atrophy when we think we are too old, or we don't have anything to give, or we're too busy, to spend time deepening our relationship with Christ. The Old Testament reminds us again and again how people turned away from God, their hearts pulled in other directions by things like the pursuit of wealth or personal desires. We must be aware that our failure to focus on our relationship with Christ allows our heart to be clogged with desires rather than developing a deep relationship with Jesus.

The Triune God desires to be in relationship with each of us, we can see this by how God pursued his people. Even though the Israelites drifted away. God was not content with broken relationships; again and again God welcomed them back into relationship. The prophet Jeremiah shared God's promise with the Israelites in exile saying; I will give them a heart to know me, for I am the Lord. They will be my people, and I will be their God, for they will return to me with all their heart. (Jeremiah 24:7 CEB)

When we accepted Christ into our lives, we were given the gift of the Holy Spirit to enliven and encourage us to live in ways pleasing to God. If we allow our "spiritual hearts" to atrophy, don't use the gift of the Spirit, we will not reach the potential God has for us. We must challenge ourselves to increase our spiritual health, to do our spiritual exercises. Recommendations for great "spiritual heart" health include attending worship on a regular basis, spending time in prayer, Bible study and reading the Scriptures, as well as loving and serving others.

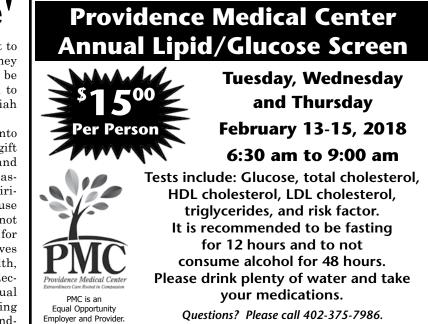

Every day we make choices that shape our physical health as well as our spiritual health, choices which can often affect our family as well as others close to us. We are God's beloved and God desires that we be physically and spiritually healthy. Individually and as communities of faith let's work on listening to God and practicing spiritual disciplines to keep our "spiritual hearts" healthy. Strong hearts, physical and spiritual, will allow us to live joyfully while serving and praising our Triune God.
