Wayne Herald publisher earns NSIAAA honors

Wayne Herald publisher Kevin Peterson was awarded the NSIAAA Outstanding Service Award last week at Wilderness Ridge in Lincoln at the annual banquet for the Nebraska State Athletic Administrators Association. Peterson was the recipient of the award for District III and was nominated by Dr. Chris Loofe, athletic director at Millard West High School in Omaha and a former standout athlete at Wakefield High School.

The recognition was for outstanding service to Nebraska high school athletics. He has been publisher of the Wayne Herald & Morning Shopper since March 21, 2005 but got his start in the newspaper industry following graduation from Kearney State in the late 1980's by becoming the sports editor at the Wayne Herald. He left the Herald on two occasions to work in Central City and Plattsmouth but found his way back to Wayne each time.

"I am very humbled by the award from the NSIAAA," he said. "It's one thing to be honored by your peers in your profession but quite another to be recognized by an entire entity that is not newspaper/media affiliated."

Peterson currently serves as public address announcer for the Blue Devils during football season and does some back up public address for basketball and volleyball when needed. He also serves on the Wayne Community Schools Foundation and is active with the board of directors at Wayne Country Club and Wayne Industries. He is also a board member with the Nebraska Press Association.

During summer months he is a site director for the Nebraska Junior Golf Tour and works with the Nebraska Golf Association in assisting with the girls and boys high school golf championships.

Hannah Smith distributes information to board members about the proposed Introduction to Education class to be offered at Wayne High School.

School board approves addition of education course for students

Students at Wayne High School will have the opportunity to take an Introduction to Education course following action taken at Monday's meeting of the Wayne Community School Board of Education meeting.

Hannah Smith, who is currently student teaching in the Family and Consumer Science (FCS) department at Wayne Community Schools, and who has been hired to replace Karen Schardt in that department, spoke to the board on the proposed class.

She said the class is designed for juniors and seniors and would introduce them to different parts of being a teacher. It would follow state standards.

The class will replace the Culinary class that is currently being offered. Only four students have signed up for the class at the present time. Smith did note that there is a possibility that the two classes could be offered on a rotating basis.

Board members approved, with regrets, the resignation of Carrie Jensen as an instrumental music teacher. Jensen has been employed with the district for 10 years and has accepted a position at Stanton Public Schools.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan said the district will work to fill the position with current staff members.

Contracts for the 2018-2019 school year were approved for administrators and directors within the district.

Superintendent Lenihan said that the administrators' contracts include a two percent increase overall. The director contracts include increases also but due to recent changes in employees, the overall percentages are somewhat difficult to determine.

Several board policies were discussed at Monday's meeting. They included annual updates on the school's option enrollment, pregnant and parenting students, purchasing policies and early leave incentive.

In administrator reports, Superintendent Lenihan gave the board an update on current bills in the Nebraska Legislature that would impact the school. Among these was a bill that would allow educational service units the opportunity to hire a mental health professional to serve each unit's patrons.

Lenihan said that Wayne Community Schools will receive approximately $280,000 in state aid for the coming year. The majority of this money will come from option funding.

Also discussed was the recent Job Shadow Day. Approximately 40 businesses in the community hosted students and the district has received "very positive feedback and the students represented the school well." Plans call for the district to do another job shadow event in the fall of the 2018-2019 school year.

Superintendent Lenihan also spent a considerable amount of time discussing the district's safety report.

He told the board that the report is divided into three areas - the Threat Assessment team, the Safety Team and the Communications team.

"With all of these areas, our ultimate goal is to keep students and staff safe," Lenihan said.

Each of the administrators presented information on upcoming events in their respective areas. These include an assembly entitled "Value Up" on March 16, Kindergarten Round-Up on March 16 and Spring Sprints on May 4.

The Wayne Community Schools Board of Education will next meet in regular session on Monday, April 9 at 5 p.m. in the Junior-Senior High School Library.

Three Wayne State College alumni earn prestigious teaching awards

Wayne State College graduates have earned a number of remarkable teaching awards. Three educators from South Sioux City have added these honors: Jon Pickinpaugh earned the Milken Educator Award; D.J. Smith received the Golden Apple Teaching Award; and Michelle Helt was named the Nebraska 2018 Teacher of the Year.

"It was really neat this year with three people in our district recognized at the district, state, and national level with an award in education. Knowing we all have degrees from Wayne State made it even more special," said Jon Pickinpaugh, who has taught for eight years at South Sioux City. He serves as eighth-grade science teacher, seventh- and eighth-grade wrestling coach and seventh-grade football coach.

Pickinpaugh was surprised with the $25,000 Milken Educator Award in front of students, administrators, and fellow teachers. Nebraska Lt. Gov. Mike Foley named him as the winner. Pickinpaugh will be included in the National Milken Educator Network, a group of more than 2,700 top teachers, principals and specialists dedicated to strengthening education. He will have an opportunity to attend a Milken Educator Forum in Washington, D.C., March 20-23.

"Normally, I don't like to be surprised, but it was a great surprise," Pickinpaugh stated in a Sioux City Journal feature. Pickinpaugh said he thought he was going to an assembly to hear school officials talk about students' rising test scores on Jan. 11.

"The most valuable thing about my award is that it gives me a voice with our government and I get to represent Nebraska and the other great educators who live in this state," Pickinpaugh said. "The award I received is one of the highest honors you can earn nationally as an educator. This is an award chosen for only the best in the nation."

Educators cannot apply for the Milken Educator Award and do not even know they are under consideration. A confidential selection process includes blue ribbon panels appointed by state departments of education. Pickinpaugh is the only honoree this year from Siouxland or Nebraska. Teacher magazine called The Milken Educator Awards "the Oscars of Teaching." The 40th Nebraskaan to garner the award, Pickinpaugh will complete studies to become a school administrator with a master of science in education Pre K-12th grade administration at Wayne State College in May.

"I earned this award because I show up every day for my students and do whatever I can to make sure they receive the highest quality education. I also make sure my students know that I am here for them if they ever need anything," Pickinpaugh said. "I have a few former students enrolled in becoming educators through Wayne State College who email me or come back to my classroom to ask for advice. I never thought this is where God would take me, but I am humbled and honored to be used to help others."

Most of Pickinpaugh's life has been in northeast Nebraska as a native of Wayne. He's working on the completion of his third degree from Wayne State College. His first was an undergraduate degree in business administration in 2005.

After a few years, Pickinpaugh said he found he wanted to make more of an impact in the lives of young people. His second career matched his mother's calling as an educator. Pickinpaugh received a teaching degree from Wayne State in 2010, and began and continues to teach in the South Sioux City district. His sister, Leah Gomez, is also an educator in the district.

"I have received all of my college degrees through Wayne State College and feel as though the school of education equipped me

Northeast escape room earns national recognition

A campus activity at Northeast Community College has been recognized on the national level.

The Night Hawks Escape Room, sponsored by the Student Activities Council (SAC), was presented the 2018 National Event of the Year award from the Association of the Promotion of Campus Activities (APCA) at the organization's national conference here. It was one of five awards presented at the conference.

Representatives from over 100 community colleges, state colleges and universities attended the conference.

Carissa Kollath, director of student activities at Northeast, accepted the award with Amanda Schultze, assistant activities coordinator; Danielle Gilliland, Wakefield, secretary of SAC; and Tia Smith, Neligh, vice president of SAC.

"We are so honored to be recognized on the national level at the APCA conference for our Night Hawks Escape Room," said Kollath. "To bring home the Event of the Year prize is overwhelmingly exciting and a special honor. Amanda and I have put a lot of time and energy into creating the escape rooms, and it was wonderful to have the opportunity to celebrate its success and innovation."

An escape room is a physical adventure game in which players are placed in a room and use elements of the room to solve a series of puzzles to escape within a set time limit. Since the initial Escape Room project in Spring of 2017, which featured a history of Northeast, SAC has also hosted carnival- and pirate-themed escape rooms.

Also at the APCA national conference, Northeast took second place in the Novelty Items category for the 5-in-1 car tool that SAC gave away at its annual Sober in October event. The tool is a torch light, LED light, seatbelt cutter, window smasher, and digital tire pressure gauge. Sober in October is designed to show the dangers of drinking and driving and binge drinking.

A promotional Hawk tumbler cup took third place in the Novelty Items category.

APCA seeks to promote campus engagement through quality educational experiences, affordable entertainment and community service initiatives.

Snack time

Marissa Hall, a Wayne State College nutrition major, gave a presentation to Mrs. Schardt's seventh grade class at Wayne Junior High School on super foods. The students sampled kale chips and were surprised to find out that they were yummy. Miss Hall told the students about the nutritional and health benefits of Greek yogurt, strawberries, blueberries, almonds and oatmeal. All the foods were then sampled.

Runza Night set for March 20 from 5-8

Special guest

Mike Temme of Arnie's Ford came to Head Start to teach the students about being a mechanic during a recent study about cars. Wayne Head Start, located on East Highway 35 is currently accepting applications for three and four year olds for the upcoming school year.

with the knowledge and resources to go out and be a great teacher," Pickinpaugh said. "The Wayne State College School of Education is second to no other. Each faculty member I ever had in all three of my degrees have been exceptional and I have great relationships still with all of them.

"Personally speaking my top role models from Wayne State College have been: Dr. Timothy Sharer, Dr. Joni Irlmeier (even though I played a great prank on her in her class by changing the clock so I could get out early to go hunting.) Dr. Dennis Lichty, Dr. Marilyn Mudge, Sherry Doorman, Dr. Joanna Barnes (a relative), and Mary Hanson who helped me through student teaching, and the list goes on and on. They truly value you as a student and do not look at you as just another student passing through. If you want to be the best, you have to learn from the best and right now the best is Wayne State College."

D.J. Smith, who earned his bachelor's degree in music education in 2013 at Wayne State, is working on his graduate degree at the college, received the Golden Apple Award in South Sioux City.

"This award has made me not only work harder as a teacher but in everything I do," Smith said. "Not only am I a teacher and a graduate student, but I am also an active musician, a new business owner, and the president of the Ponca Area Community Club. It was a surprise for me. I did not realize what impact I had on our school and community. I am grateful to receive this award in a large school district like South Sioux City while only in my fourth year of teaching."

Smith credited Wayne State faculty with a role in his success as a teacher.

"I have many continued connections at Wayne State College. I also work closely with the music department with district music contests and having them work with my bands," Smith said. "I have earned the respect of my students and they know that I respect them. We have built great student and teacher relationships, something that I learned in my Wayne State College classes and from music faculty. Knowing there are teachers who care so much about you achieving success makes you want to be a teacher and do the same for your students."

Helt, a third-grade teacher at Cardinal Elementary School in South Sioux City, was named Nebraska 2018 Teacher of the Year, and a competitor for National Teacher of the Year. Nebraska Commissioner of Education Matt Blomstedt presented the award in October.

"Both my (South Sioux City) school district and Wayne State College are committed to greatness in every endeavor," Helt said. "My district is a strong proponent of the Professional Learning Community (PLC), which supports students and ensures all students reach their fullest potential by meeting students where they are in their learning journey and intervening or enriching students to ensure their learning continues. I'm honored to be a part of the PLC process as a district and in my third-grade cohorts. The hard work we have done in the areas of curriculum and assessment has had a profound impact on students."

Helt began teaching in 2002 as a resource and Title I reading teacher at Cardinal Elementary and St. Michael's Catholic School. She served as an ESL and resource teacher for a year at Cardinal Elementary before becoming a third-grade teacher where she has taught since 2004. Helt was a founding member of the South Sioux City District Curriculum Council. She earned a bachelor's degree from Buena Vista University and a master's degree from Wayne State College.

A panel of Nebraska educators selected Helt as the 2018 Nebraska Teacher of the Year. The Teacher of the Year program recognizes the contributions of classroom teachers who are exceptionally dedicated, knowledgeable and skilled and who have the ability to inspire students of all backgrounds and abilities to learn.

"I feel I received this honor because I represent what the teachers in Nebraska do every day. My classroom and style is one of purpose, focus, and fun, all achieved in classrooms daily, but in very different ways," Helt said. "Being named the Nebraska Teacher of the Year has been an incredibly humbling honor. I feel incredibly blessed to represent all Nebraska teachers. As Nebraska Teacher of the Year, it is my hope to become a voice for students and teachers across our state."

Softball team splits final two days in Florida trip

The Wayne State softball team were a model of consistency during their annual spring break trip to Florida, finishing the four-day, eight game journey with doubleheader splits on each of the final two days to go 4-4 for the week.

On Tuesday, the Wildcats went 1-1 for the third straight day in action at the National Training Center Spring Games in Clermont, Fla., defeating Stonehill (Mass.) 3-2 and losing a nine-inning battle with Lewis University (Ill.), 14-11.

In the opener, Wayne native Abbie Hix went 2-for-3 at the plate with a pair of RBI while freshman pitcher Maddie Moser tossed a complete game with six strikeouts to highlight the Wildcat victory.

Wayne State opened the scoring in the top of the second as Alyx Hagen walked and scored on a Hix single to give the Wildcats a 1-0 lead.

The Skyhawks took a 2-1 lead with a pair of runs in the third inning on three hits and one Wildcat error. The score stayed that way until the sixth, when the Wildcats used three doubles to score a pair of runs to take the lead. Hagen led off the frame with a double to center with pinch-runner Sarah Hunter scoring on a Hix two-bagger to even the score at 2-2. Hix then scored the go-ahead run on a Taylor Menard double, giving Wayne State the lead for good.

Stonehill tried to rally in the bottom of the seventh by putting two runners on base with two outs, but Moser got the final out on a fly ball to right field to end the game and give Wayne State the win.

Hix was 2-for-3 with a single, double and two RBI. Hagen, Annie Grammer and Menard each doubled with Morgan Vasa adding a single. Moser improved to 2-2 on the season with her second complete-game win on the Florida trip. The freshman from Central City allowed two runs on seven hits with six strikeouts and three walks.

In the second game of the day, the Wildcats took Lewis University of Illinois to extra innings before losing to fall to 4-7 on the season.

Wayne State tied the game in the bottom of the seventh when Jordyn Breitbarth homered with one out, sending the game into extra innings tied at 10-10.

Both teams scored in the eighth to make the score 11-11. Hagen's single scored Rial for the Wildcat run in the eighth. But the Flyers struck for three runs in the top of the ninth while holding the Wildcats scoreless in the bottom of the frame for the 14-11 victory.

Morgan Vasa reached on a bunt single in the first and scored on and Hagen single while Wobken tripled in the second to score Annie Grammer to make it 2-2.

The Lakers then erupted for seven runs in the fifth inning on six hits and two Wildcat errors and scored another three runs on two hits and one error to finish off the easy win.

Wayne State was held to just three hits in the contest. Wobken tripled along with singles by Vasa and Hagen.

In the final game of the trip, Wayne State worked extra innings for an 8-6 victory in eight innings over Findlay (Ohio).

The Wildcats jumped to a 3-0 lead in the third inning. Emily Chandler doubled and scored on a Hagen sacrifice fly. Wobken singled and later scored on a Baylee Rial RBI single with Rial scoring on a wild pitch.

Wayne State took a 4-0 lead in the fourth when Hernandez doubled and scored on a wild pitch, but the Oilers came up with two runs in the fourth and sixth innings to send the game into extra innings tied at 4-4.

Wayne State opened the top of the eighth with four runs on four hits to build an 8-4 advantage. Hernandez had a two-run double with Hix adding an RBI single for key hits in the inning.

Findlay responded with two runs in the bottom of the eighth and had the tying run on base before Vanderveen came on in relief and got a fly out to end the game.

Opinion

Ouch! Watch where you step

By MIKE RENNING
mikesportshome@yahoo.com

I have a buddy who goes with me to nearly every sporting event I attend.

I was going to say every sporting event I have to work, but then we would all assume I was working while I was there – which I kind of am but it just doesn't seem like it.

My buddy, Erv, who won't mind me calling him Erv because, well he knows that's better than some name I could make up.

Erv and I have been going to games for probably over 20 years.

We started out golfing together and I worked with his wife – who is in my Top 10 of females I have ever known.

Years ago, we used to get in some trouble with the amount of time it took us to "cover" a game.

The Darling Wife was a touch skeptical when we would come home from a half-hour destination from a game which ended at 9:30 and it would be midnight.

We have few rules when we go on our excursions.

Good heavens, I'm not going to call them "journeys". The Darling Wife watches enough of the shows where the people are on a "journey", it makes me – well anyway.

A journey is when your car quits 18 miles from Valentine and the snow is flying. Nobody is on the road because nobody is as stupid as you are.

You can't decide whether to walk to Wood Lake, wait for another idiot who is traveling or walk to Valentine.

I'm telling you, if you walk... that is a journey.

Not dating 26 models to get down to one you think you're going to marry. I mean really? In 39 days you're going to find someone to marry out of 26 strangers?

Man, did I get off the beaten path on this one.

Erv and I have few rules. In the early days we traveled to games we had a rule to never go the same path.

That got us in trouble from time-to-time. Get out a map and figure out how many different ways there are to go between Emerson, where I live, and Wakefield.

It's a straight, eight-mile shot no matter how you slice it.

Erv and I would bet on anything to do with the game we were attending; who would win, by how much, total score, number of fouls/penalties – it didn't matter.

In the beginning it was beverage related, but the past decade (you know how we sports people like to talk about decades, centuries, in history) we moved on to mostly candy-related wagers.

Erv likes a good Hershey Bar and we all know I'm a Snickers kind of fella.

At any rate, we both love a good hot dog and Erv loves popcorn. So we started rating the different venues we have attended games as to its ability to cook a good hot dog and provide an ample amount of good popcorn.

We haven't been everywhere, but we've been to the likes of; Valentine, Basset and Stuart out west (apologies to the Crawford/Harrison people reading this scribbling – you are out west); Crofton, Niobrara, Wynot and Ponca to the north; West Point, Howells-Dodge, North Bend, Omaha and Lincoln to the south; and Winnebago, Walthill, Oakland to the east.

Get your map back out and figure that out.

Wynot was hands down our favorite hot dog venue until this year. I'm sorry to say, Randolph and Wausa have changed the landscape.

According to Randolph AD Ted Stubbs, they get their hot dogs from the Wausa Locker – and you would assume Wausa does the same.

As for popcorn? I don't rate popcorn since we started betting candy bars instead of beverages, but Erv swears, Allen and Bancroft have the best deal and the best popcorn – I'll take his word for it.

Email me at the address up at the beginning of this mess and tell me other venues I should try the hot dogs and Erv should try the popcorn. We could maybe come up with our Top 5.

To make a long story bearable, Erv and I have traveled thousands of miles each season, met so many wonderful people and found some great food along the way – oh, yeah, and got lost.

Erv always blames getting lost on me...I guess I am driving – but man do we have fun – er I mean work hard.

Tax on internet sales? Why not?

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

North Platte Senator Mike Groene perfectly framed the argument for the state collecting sales tax on internet purchases during floor debate on a bill to allow it.

"I'm paying it, but maybe my neighbor isn't," he said. "Yet we both drive on the same streets and use the same government services." The public wants something done.

Senator Matt Williams of Gothenburg said it's a matter of fairness. Main Street businesses have to remit the sales tax paid by customers. The same should be true for those located in other states but selling to Nebraskans on-line, he said.

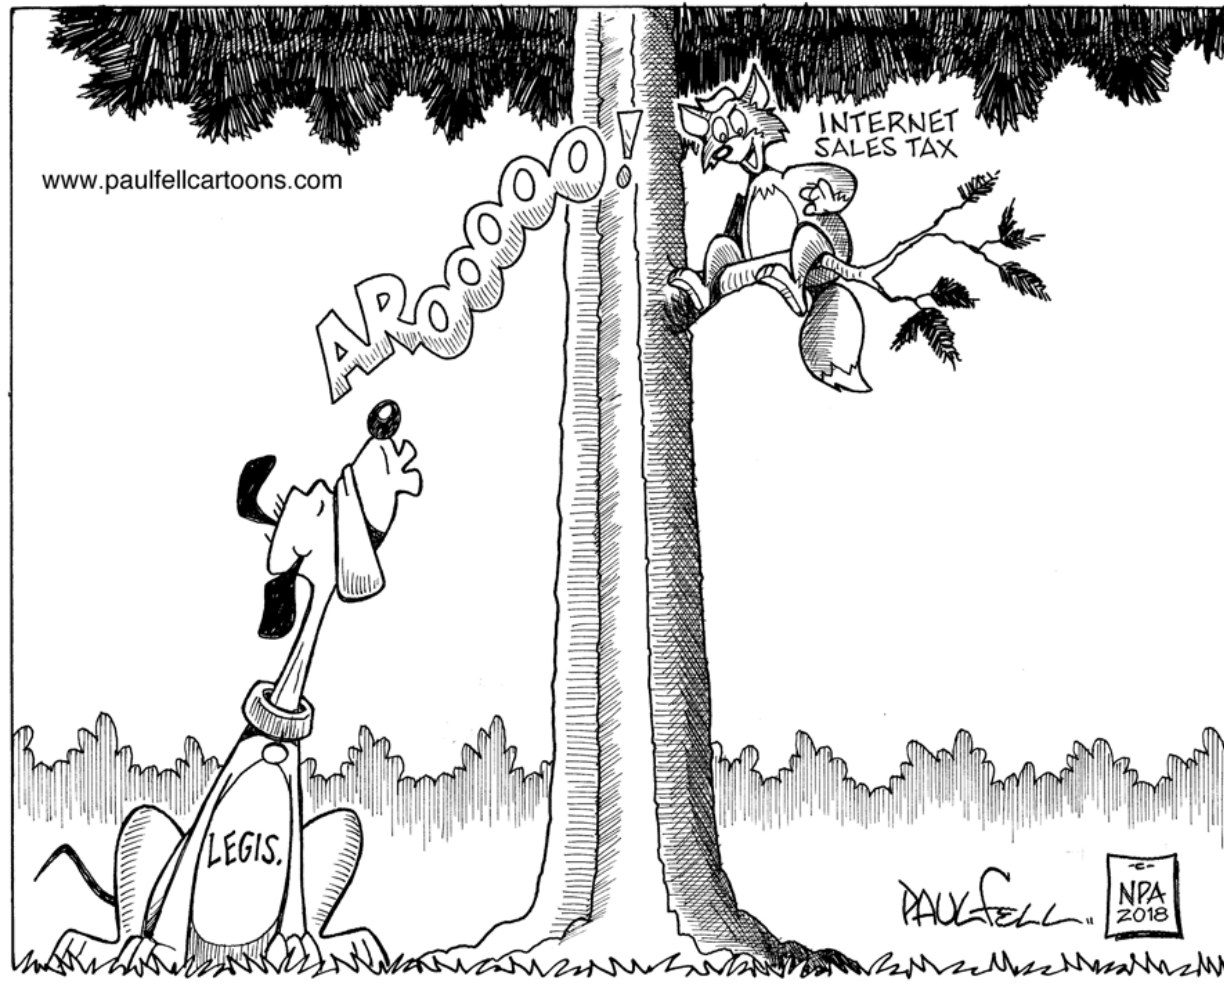

The Government Accounting Office said Nebraska is missing out on something between $67 million and $95 million in sales tax revenue every year. That, says Senator Dan Watermeier of Syracuse, is why he introduced the bill last session given the current shortfall in state revenue.

But Governor Pete Ricketts and Attorney General Doug Peterson are against the measure because of a legal question pending before the United States Supreme Court in a South Dakota lawsuit against online retail giant Wayfair. At issue in that case is a previous decision in Quill Corporation v. North Dakota, which prohibits states from collecting tax from those internet companies.

Revenue Committee Chairman Senator Jim Smith of Papillion argued against the bill and said he will "fight it to the end because we are holding out hope that this will do things that can't be accomplished."

Senator Mike Hilgers of Lincoln, an attorney, and Ernie Chambers of Omaha, a law school graduate, both argued against the measure from a legal and technical standpoint. But Watermeier and others cited a recent Nebraska Law Review article on the subject, which, they say, answers the legal questions that have been raised.

As introduced, the Watermeier bill (LB44) raised several potential concerns: privacy issues raised by an information reporting system; whether the state can condition the effectiveness of a state law on an act of the Supreme Court or Congress; and why would the state enact a statute before such action allows it to do so.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln law professor Adam Thimmesch wrote that "The State should be following Wayfair very closely, and the legislature should carefully consider enacting LB44 so that it is poised to act if the Court removes the physical presence limitation (a company must have operations in Nebraska) on its inherent power to tax."

He said the privacy concern is addressed by requiring internet sellers to report on aggregate, not individual, consumer activity. The State Constitution allows the Legislature to make laws conditioned on outside events. Finally, the current legislative session ends April 18 and that means lawmakers will not be in session when the high court hands down its opinion.

Without LB44 on the books, Thimmesch wrote, the Legislature would have to wait until next session to introduce a bill and any revenue collection could be delayed up to nine months. "The Court's current position has severely limited Nebraska's ability to conform its tax system to the modern economy," he wrote.

Watermeier explained that his amendment to the bill, which was approved before the measure advanced to a final reading, would require sellers to provide detailed notifications to purchasers about the state sales tax that is due for their purchases. The requirement that businesses remit sales tax would go into effect should the U.S. Supreme Court rule to overturn Quill v. North Dakota, which prevents states from collecting sales taxes owed from online purchases.

It would also: require the aggregate report mentioned earlier; exempt all Nebraska businesses and small businesses from the bill's requirements; and leave the state in position to collect revenue immediately should the court ruling overturn Quill.

Omaha Senator Tony Vargas spoke in favor of the measure and called it a responsible way to move forward to balance the three-legged tax stool, which relies on income, property and sales tax to fund government.

Balance is good. Let's hope that this is the session to achieve it.

Special hearing held, budget released

On Wednesday, the Natural Resources Committee held a special hearing for Amendment 2191 to LB 822. LB 822 is a bill to clean up language in statute that relates to the Department of Natural Resources. AM 2191, introduced by Senator Hughes, adds language to exempt the public power industry from being required to disclose proprietary or commercial information which if released would give an advantage to business competitors.

Nebraska is in a unique situation because we are the only state in which all electrical producers are publically owned, rather than sold by private companies. Private companies are still able to sell power in Nebraska, meaning public power districts must operate as a business and remain competitive in the market. Because of this, a recent court decision on a public records' request ordered the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) to release proprietary cost information that would hurt NPPD's ability to stay competitive against other power companies.

Following the hearing, fellow committee members and I decided on a final amendment, AM 2292, that clarifies that only competitive information would be eligible for exemption from public records requests. LB 822 with AM 2292 was amended into LB 1008, which is one of Natural Resource's priority bills. I supported both amendments and allowing NPPD and other public power districts to withhold proprietary information.

This week, the budget was released by the Revenue Committee. This year we will be addressing another budget shortfall, totaling over $120 million, resulting in across-the-board cuts to departments. We will start debate on Tuesday, March 13th, and it is expected to bring disagreements among senators. Some issues to pay attention to are cuts to higher education and Title X provisions that would ensure that abortion providers do not receive federal family-planning funds. I unquestionably support passing provisions in the budget that cut Title X funds to abortion providers and will vote in support of that provision. I am looking forward to hearing debate on the many other provisions of the bill and making the best decision for Nebraskans while maintaining a balanced budget.

As the budget currently stands, the proposal would leave lawmakers with a little over $500,000 to spend on new proposals, meaning it would be near impossible to pass legislation this session with a fiscal note. Once we debate and pass a budget, the Legislature will send the bill to Governor Ricketts who has the ability to approve or line item veto provisions of the bill. The Legislature may vote to sustain or override any of the Governor's vetoes before the budget is finalized. The detailed budget book is available at <https://nebraskalegislature.gov/> and can be found under "Recent Legislative Information".

Ten ways to motivate...

As we are into another 4-H year, the teachings of many business skills may also prove relevant. Learning how to motivate is now one of the most relevant and essential skills leaders can possess in today's ever-changing society.

Before the 1980s, good leadership was usually synonymous with assertive decision-making. Leaders were celebrated for their courage and risk-taking when shaping strategies. Those times have changed. Today, leaders must go beyond the day-to-day operations and "tough decisions." Leaders in today's society are expected to be social scientists and the great leaders of today and tomorrow are those gifted individuals who have mastered the art of motivation. The ability to understand people and to be able to tap into their respective motives is the skills that make the difference in today's society.

What about making good decisions and tough choices? These are still central to what leaders must do, but today the leader's job doesn't stop there. Once the decisions have been made, today's leaders must be able to motivate others to accept and embrace organizational decisions. What separates exceptional leaders from ordinary leaders is the ability to inspire and motivate people. There are five unique sources of motivation:

- FUN
- REWARDS
- REPUTATION
- CHALLENGE
- PURPOSE

Each of the five sources requires different organizational and leadership characteristics to tap into them. Exceptional leaders will find ways to tap into each source. Those who tap into just one or two will motivate only a small percentage of others and be less effective. However, leaders who understand the different ways that individuals are motivated will be able to effectively motivate their club members. Here are 10 ideas for leaders to consider when motivating others.

1. Find out which tasks are the favorites of those you work with.
2. Find ways to assign more of the tasks they enjoy and fewer of the ones they don't like to do.
3. Create rewards (less output = less reward, more output = more reward).

4. Give encouragement and mentor good decision making and leadership skills.

5. Give leaders and members lots of positive feedback about the way they are performing and working together.

6. Give praise in front of other people.

7. Stay out of their way and let them do the work if they know how to do it.

8. Assign tasks that require their skills and talents

9. Communicate the purpose of tasks that are being assigned.

10. Make sure the club has a vision and mission that it is pursuing.

2666 and National Allegory presented by WSC professor Dr. Adolfo Cacheiro

Wayne State College Professor Dr. Adolfo Cacheiro presents 2666 and National Allegory Wednesday, March 28 at 3:30 p.m. in Humanities Room 319. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Focusing on the theme of European unity, Dr. Cacheiro's presentation draws literary and philosophical conclusions from his interpretation of Roberto Bolaño's novel, 2666. Bolaño, a visionary Latin American novelist, died before 2666 was published. The novel, set in the mid to late '90s, details a menacing crime spree and the impact on society and individuals. National allegory is a narrative detailing how ordinary lives personify a national perspective.

Dr. Cacheiro teaches Spanish language and literature. He is an author and recipient of numerous grants. His research interests include modern Latin American narrative.

Wayne State College, a leading, public four-year college in north-east Nebraska, is a proud member of the Nebraska State College System.

Following Jesus is not madness

For the first time I'm developing an interest in watching basketball this year. It is a good time of the year to develop this interest as it's the season of March Madness — a time when college teams are playing their hearts out hoping to win the national championship.

It's also the season of Lent when we remember how much our Lord Jesus Christ suffered and ultimately died for our sins. Many think that this too is madness.

St. Paul wrote: "For the word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved, it is the power of God.... For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men." (1 Corinthians 1.18,25)

A Word In Faith

By Jeanne Madsen
Pastor, Our Savior Lutheran Church

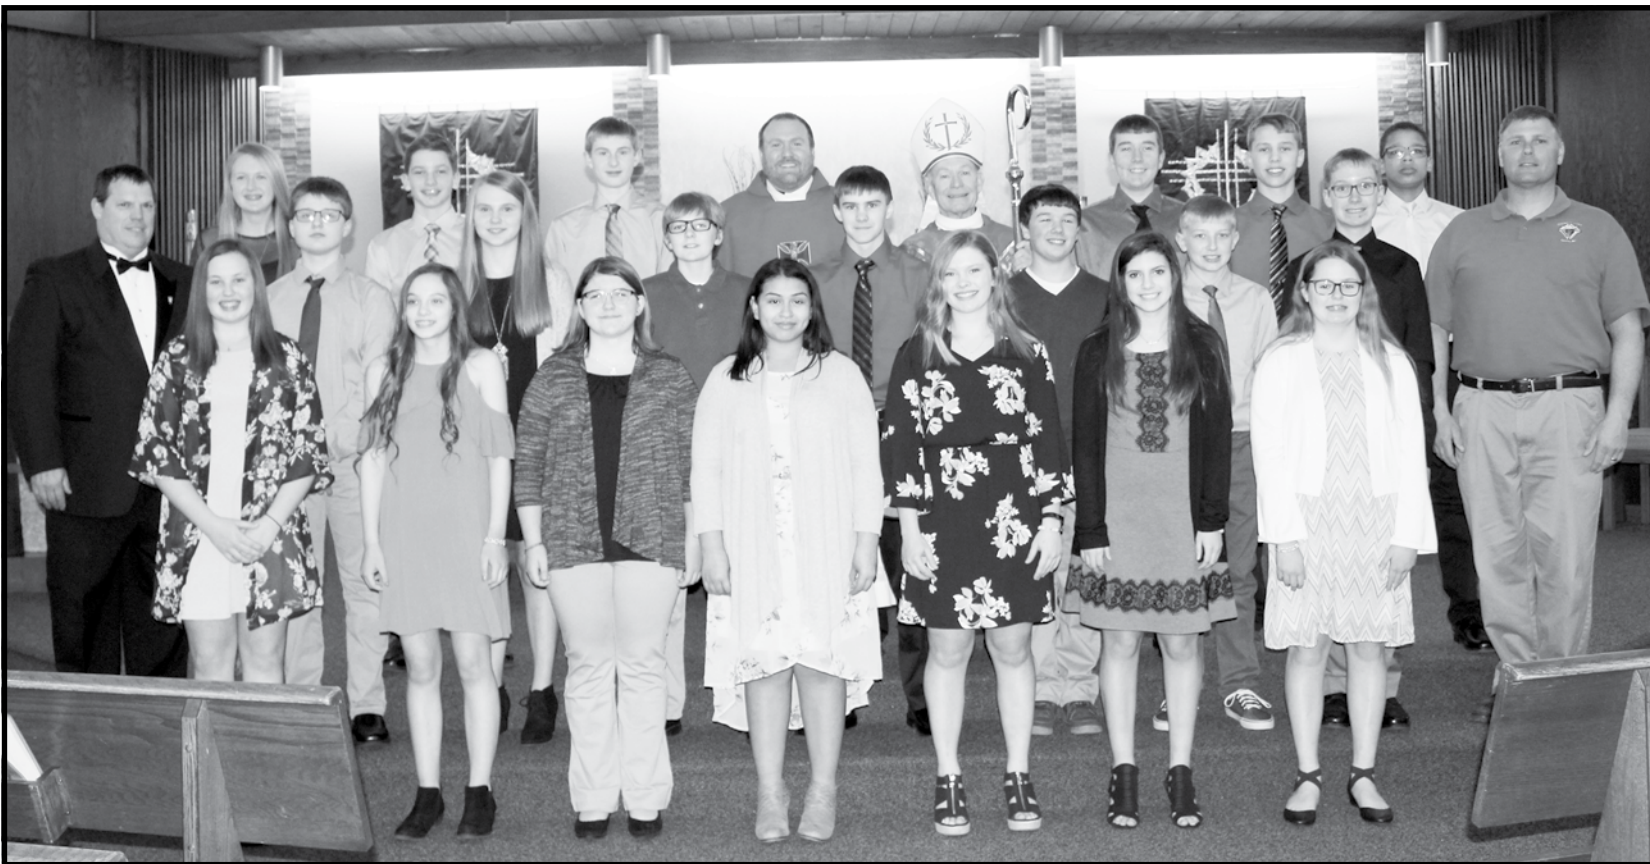

Jesus came to save us from all of our misdeeds, weaknesses, and sins. As the hammer-blows of the Roman soldiers drove the nails through His flesh into the wood of the cross, He called to His heavenly Father to forgive His executioners for their dreadful deed.

How foreign that sounds to us these days. We normally want nothing to do with forgiveness. We'd rather get even or receive our pound of flesh than embrace each other in kindness, love and forgiveness. Most of us would say it's madness to even think that way! And that may be so, perhaps it is madness but the truth of the matter is that God forgives us for thinking that way even before we can forgive ourselves. In His own body, Jesus carries all our sins unto death that the score might be settled. He makes it all right with God the Heavenly Father once again. Such madness!

We can only comprehend God's love for us by reason of the Spirit's power made perfect in weakness (cf. 2 Corinthians 12.9). That God loves us so much is beyond human comprehension. We simply rejoice and give thanks for everything He gives us in His foolishness and love.

Local working group meeting planned

A Local Working Group that provides advice on the priorities for many U.S. Department of Agriculture conservation programs will meet Thursday, March 22 at 5:30 p.m. at the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District office in Norfolk.

The public is encouraged to attend and express their natural resource concerns. Ideas generated from the public will help the U.S. Department of Agriculture tailor their natural resource programs to meet the needs identified locally.

There is a Local Working Group in each Natural Resources District (NRD). Membership on the Local Working Group includes Federal, State, county, Tribal or local government representatives according to Robin Sutherland, District Conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) whose agency guides the Local Working Group.

"The Local Working Group recommends to the NRCS State Conservationist how conservation programs like the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), or Agricultural Conservation Easement Program (ACEP) would be used most effectively in their area. This recommendation can include special target areas, cost share rates on conservation programs, which conservation practices should have cost assistance, or how many dollars could be needed," said Sutherland. This work group allows local input into how federal dollars are spent, she said.

Typically Nebraska NRCS obligates anywhere between $45 million to over $75 million dollars to farmers and ranchers statewide through NRCS conservation programs. These programs help landowners and operators make natural resource improvements to their land, water, or wildlife. This funding was allocated according to the priorities set by the Local Working Group.

For more information about the Natural Resources Conservation Service and the programs and services they provide, visit your local USDA Service Center or www.ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

WSC to host "Upstream Doctors" service-learning event March 19

Wayne State College will host a Service-Learning event with a 20-min. video documentary "Upstream Doctors" and round-table talks to learn about health on March 19 from 6 to 8 p.m. in Frey Conference Suite, Kanter Student Center. Registration begins at 5:30 p.m.

This is a Service-Learning Event sponsored by PGH 200 Students and Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department.

The "Healthy Conversations" round-table talks will help individuals to learn more about health disparities with Dr. Rishi Manchanda. The video will have Spanish subtitles. Several Spanish interpreters will be available for Spanish speakers who wish to participate.

For a decade, Manchanda has worked as a doctor in South Central Los Angeles, treating patients who live and work in harsh conditions. He has worked at the Venice Family Clinic, one of the largest free clinics in the United States. He was the first director of social medicine at the St. John's Well Child and Family Center in Compton, where he and his team provided high quality primary care to low-income families in the area.

Today, he is the medical director of a veterans' clinic within the Greater Los Angeles Healthcare System, which he refers to as an "intensive caring unit." He tells the National Health Corps Services, "The moment when a patient switches from despair to hopefulness is the greatest part of my service."

Manchanda is the author of the TED Book The Upstream Doctors, in which he looks at how health begins at home and in the workplace, with the social and environmental factors of our everyday lives. He shows how the future of our healthcare system depends on "upstreamists," the doctors, nurses and other healthcare practitioners who look for the root cause of illness rather than just treating the symptoms.

Manchanda is the president and founder of Health Begins, a social network that teaches and empowers clinicians to improve health where it begins—in patients' home and work environments. He also founded Rx-Democracy, a nonpartisan coalition created to register voters in healthcare clinics. He serves on the board of the National Physicians Alliance, as well as on the board of Physicians for Social Responsibility in Los Angeles.

For more information, please see the link to the TED site and video "What Makes Us Sick": https://www.ted.com/speakers/rishi_manchanda

By: Pat Meierhenry

In true grandmotherly fashion, I've been pining for great grandchildren for some time now. But no one seems in a hurry to even get married. Our family Christmases are fun, but would be so much more fun with babies. Well, we are going to have babies for the next several years, but they are not great-grand, they are grands! Jon and Katie called one day last fall and said they would be in Lincoln and planned to stop at Valentino's to pick up lunch. When they arrived, I asked what brought them to town. Jon came in carrying the pizza in one hand and a small gift bag in the other, with pink and blue wrapping paper sticking out. He also wore a huge grin! Yes, they were going to have the babies, twins, in fact, and we were going to be grandparents again. I had quite a time getting over the shock!! You can imagine. Then we had to wait. We got frequent updates, ultrasound pictures, weight gain, position. Katie was considered a high risk pregnancy because it was her first, and she was not a sweet young thing anymore. Finally, the date was set for last Wednesday morning. I had been having dreams about it for some time, and woke up early, of course. After breakfast, I paced. Finally, Jon called to say they were here, and all was well. Laney Margaret, named after Katie's deceased mother, arrived first, and Maclin Michael was right behind. They each weighed six pounds and were nineteen inches long; they even look alike! Sue picked up Mike and me and we got to hold them that evening. They feel a bit like little dolls. Our kids weighed two or three pounds more, and that is significant at this point. They are precious, and beautiful, of course! They have been treated for low blood sugars, and elevated bilirubins, but so far, so good. Hopefully, they will go home soon; and then the fun begins!! Some of you have prayed for the pregnancy, thank you; now, I think we need to pray for Jon and Katie! The sleep deprivation begins. But we are blessed, and we know it!

Emerald Ash Borer not only shade tree borer

With emerald ash borer (EAB) in the news, homeowners are paying closer attention to their trees for signs of borers. This is great that homeowners are watching their trees closer! But it amazes me that everyone who finds a hole in the bark on their tree is sure they have EAB... even if the holes are in the bark of something other than an ash tree!

John Wilson
Extension Educator

To put your mind at ease, know that EAB has not yet been found in our area (yet) and we do not recommend treating ash trees at this time. Once the EAB is confirmed within 15 miles, we will begin recommending that treatment of healthy ash trees can begin. That is, if you choose to treat your ash. Replacing ash trees with another quality shade tree may be a better long term option.

Holes in tree trunks can also be caused by insects like bark beetles, which are not borers. These beetles also attack stressed trees that may be in serious decline. Treating for bark beetles rarely solves the larger issue. Woodpeckers also make holes in tree trunks. These holes are typically found in one location in almost perfect horizontal rows; unlike borer holes that are found randomly scattered on the trunk or larger branches. When borer holes are found, the type of borer that created the hole can sometimes be identified by the size and shape of the hole. Borer holes that are large enough to be seen by us are actually exit holes made by adult borers emerging from the tree once they complete their life cycle. The holes made by larvae, after they hatch from eggs laid on the tree and bore into the tree, are typically so tiny we would not notice them. A common borer in Nebraska is the ash-lilac borer that attacks ash, lilac and privet. The adult is a moth that resembles a wasp. Adult emergence holes on tree trunks are round and one-fourth inch in diameter.

Another common borer is the flat-headed apple tree borer. The adult is a one-half inch long, dark colored metallic beetle. Emergence holes in trunks are oval-shaped and three-sixteenth inch in diameter. Compare these to holes created by the EAB. The adult is a one-half inch long metallic green beetle. Emergence holes in tree trunks are typically found in the upper branches first and then on the trunk. Holes are D-shaped and only one-eighth inch in diameter. In summary, if you find holes on a tree trunk or branches, identify what made the holes before treating with an insecticide. Remember that emerald ash borer has not yet been found in our area (yet) and treating ash trees is NOT recommended until it has been confirmed within 15 miles of your ash trees. For information on EAB, along with photos of different emergence holes, go to the Nebraska Forest website at <https://nfs.unl.edu/nebraska-eab> or the Emerald Ash Borer Information Network at <http://emeraldashborer.info>.

Nebraska Regional Poison Center celebrates 56th annual National Poison Prevention Week

The Nebraska Regional Poison Center (NRPC) will unite with the nation's other 54 poison centers to celebrate the 56th Annual National Poison Prevention Week March 18-24, 2018, a week dedicated to raising awareness about poisoning in the U.S. and highlighting ways to prevent it. Each year U.S. poison centers receive nearly three million poisoning exposure calls. The NRPC manages close to 40,000 calls annually. Of those calls, more than half involve children 5 years of age and under but the most serious exposures involve adults. Most poisoning deaths are due to misuse and abuse of drugs but poisoning exposures can involve a vast array of substances such as household cleaning products, personal care products, chemicals, bites and stings, pesticides, plants, gasses and batteries.

that they aren't actually doing so. Poisonings are the leading cause of unintentional deaths in the U.S. There are actions that we can all take to reduce these numbers. Here are just a few:

- Save the Poison Center number in your phone as a contact: 1-800-222-1222.
- Be sure to read and follow medicine labels every time.
- Never share your medicine with others or use someone else's medicine.
- Remember to always use the dosing device that comes with the medicine.
- Take only one medicine at a time with the same active ingredient.
- Store all medicines up and away and out of reach and sight of children.
- Teach children to only take medicines with the permission and guidance from a parent or trusted adult.

- Install and maintain carbon monoxide detectors in your home.
- Be aware of where the disc batteries are in your home. They may be found in remote controls, key fobs, watches and toys. Keep batteries away from children.
- Make sure all cleaning materials, including laundry packets, are stored in original containers and out of sight of children.
- It is important to get rid of old and unused medicines as soon as you don't need them anymore. There are pharmacies that take back medications all year round. Call us and we will help you locate the one nearest to you.
- Text "poison" to 797979 to save the contact information for poison control in your smartphone.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIOSOLIDS

The City of Wayne will be accepting requests from landowners interested in obtaining biosolids from the City's lagoon. The biosolids are available for application as soon as weather conditions permit. The City will load and the landowner must haul and apply biosolids to any landowner controlled site complying with federal and state compliance requirements at landowner's cost. The City will complete the site application for NDEQ and the EPA 40 CFR 503 Annual Report requirements for the landowner. The landowner must provide the City the legal description of the site, application rate, comply with federal and state setbacks, and assurance the requirements were met.

The approximate nutrient value of the material is as follows:

Total Kjeldahl Nitrogen (TKN)	8.4	lb/ dry tn
Ammonia Nitrogen (NH4-N)	0.1	lb/ dry tn
Organic Nitrogen	8.3	lb/ dry tn
Total Phosphorus	17.1	lb/ dry tn

In the past, biosolids removal projects have been able to apply at a rate of 6 tons per acre or greater. The City anticipates disposing of 2,000 dry tons. Application rate will vary depending on site conditions and physical properties of the sludge at the time of application. The City can provide past agronomic reports from the City's agronomist for review.

Interested parties may contact the City of Wayne, Attn: Betty McGuire, City Clerk, PO Box 8, Wayne NE 68787, or submitted in person at the city offices located at 306 Pearl Street.

The City of Wayne reserves the right to reject any or all requests not meeting state and federal requirements and to waive informalities and irregularities. The sludge will be provided on a first come - first serve basis.

THANK YOU

John was a fun guy and touched many lives. Thanks to all our friends for the memorials, cards, hugs, phone calls and food brought in. He will be missed but there are a lot of fish that will survive. John gave his body to Science, hoping it will help someone else. A memorial will be held at a later date.

Alice Mohr

The Marvin Hartman Family would like to thank family and friends for your heartfelt, heartwarming expressions of support and sympathy. Your prayers, visits, cards, food, paper goods, flowers, memorials, Gideon Bibles given in Dad's memory, and other acts of kindness have been very uplifting for us.

We would also like to thank Scott Hasemann and his staff for their guidance. To Pastor Todd Thelen - thank-you for your concern, prayers and inspiring message for Dad's funeral services. We greatly appreciated the desserts served after the funeral, and the Concord Free Church ladies who served it. We are truly blessed to be part of such a loving church and community.
