Commissioners hear concerns from ag producers Truck traffic, safety during harvest the focus of comments made by several county members

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn.dunklau@gmail.com

In the recent meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, several county residents voiced concerns regarding the safety of ag producers and school buses during the construction process of the wind farm being built by NextEra Energy.

A group of numerous county residents, many of whom live in the area of the wind farm center, brought valid concerns to the board on Tuesday, asking questions pertaining to haul routes and bus routes, farm equipment meeting construction equipment and what will become of the roads once the construction is complete.

One such resident was Lori Owens, who asked for a copy of the haul routes being proposed as well as a copy of the road haul agreement.

Commissioner Randy Larson told Owens that the road haul agreement document was public and provided her with a copy. The commissioners explained that many of the questions being posed regarding the treatment of the roads and bridges were answered throughout the agreement.

Highway Superintendent Mark Casey cautioned Owens that the haul routes were simply proposed at this point and there was not a finalized route, but he made copies of the most current route for Owens and anyone else who wanted one.

Owens voiced concerns about the efficiency of the farmers this fall if they are forced to work around the construction equipment.

The Commissioners, County Attorney Mike Pieper and County Sheriff Jason Dwinell took turns answering questions like who has the right of way on the road -- to which common courtesy was cited, just as would be the case if two combines should meet.

Other questions regarding the widening of roads and intersections were answered by Casey, who referred numerous times to the road haul agreement. One such question, will the widened intersections be put back to the way they were before, was answered by Casey who said the county has the ability to pick and chose which, if any, of the roads and intersections they would want back in the original condition.

"If it's beneficial to the farmers to leave them wide, then we will. That's up to us to decide," he said.

In regards to the bus route questions, Casey and a NextEra representative answered, stating that NextEra has contacted the bus company and will meet with them to discuss their routes and determine the times in which they run to ensure the safety of school students isn't jeopardized in any fashion.

Jody Kingsley also came before the board to discuss the power pole issue that she and her husband Ray brought up during the last meeting of the commission-

The Kingsleys had found stakes in the ditch directly in front of their home. The stakes tentatively mark out where poles may be placed in the construction of a large transmission line.

Last meeting, the Commissioners stated that they had no control over what NPPD did, stating there was a state statute that enabled power companies to essentially do as it pleases.

Kingsley came back to the board with a federal statute she found stating that the county is to go to bat for the land owner, so to speak.

Commissioner Larson agreed with her in that he would be furious to find such a large transmission line going in front of his house and referred to his own property a few years back where he came home to find NPPD was putting lines up. He said he fought it and got no where, so he understood how she felt.

But his understanding didn't change what NPPD was allowed to do. He referred to state statute 70-305 which states, "Any person engaged in the generating or transmitting of electric current for sale, use, or purchase in the state for power or other purposes is granted the right-of-way for all necessary poles and wires along, within, and across any of the public highways of this state. Such person is liable for all damages to private property by reason of the use of the public highways for such purpose. Such damages shall be ascertained and determined in the manner set forth in sections 76-704 to 76-724."

Kingsley said she felt like a broken record but is frustrated that the landowners have all the responsibilities and no rights.

Another county resident Roger Brandt asked about the property tax rate on the towers, questioning why they aren't taxed at the normal commercial rate.

County Assessor Dawn Duffy was on hand to answer Brandt's question, stating that the tax rate is set by the legislature. She gave the number of $3,518 per megawatt.

Brandt was unhappy with the answer, and voiced his frustration at the state officials who say that property taxes are a local issue when obviously that's isn't the case.

Numerous other questions were taken and answers given in as many instances as possible before the meeting ended.

Prior to the concerns voiced, Nic Kemnitz discussed two training opportunities he will be taking part of as Emergency Management.

One, hosted in Dakota City on June 26 and 27 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days will cover Emergency Operations Centers and their relationships to Multi-Agency Coordination Systems.

Liquor license, Girl Scout cabin on council agenda

By CLARA OSTEN,
clara@wayneherald.com

A liquor license addition and the need to move forward with the demolition of the "Girl Scout cabin" were among items discussed during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Greg Ptacek, owner of Johnnie Byrd Brewing Company, came to council to ask for a new description for their liquor license to include a beer garden to be located on the north side of his business.

Wayne Police Chief Marlen Chinn told the council that the State Liquor Commission has no set standards in regard to the height of barriers necessary around beer gardens. Instead, the commission places that responsibility on individual cities.

Ptacek showed council members two options he has for creating the barrier and is waiting on approval from the State Fire Marshal before moving forward.

Approval was given for the request.

City staff will take steps to move forward with the razing of the "Girl Scout Cabin" located on East Fourth Street following discussion at the meeting.

Girl Scout representatives Kris Kinzie and Judy Kruger shared with council the history of the building, noting that it had been moved into the city in 1939 from the country. It has deteriorated considerably due to its age and is no longer safe.

Wes Blecke, City Administrator and Joel Hansen, City Planner/Building Inspector have met with Girl Scout leaders and all agree that the building is no longer usable.

Kinzie and Kruger asked city officials how long they would have to remove any items still in the building.

It was noted that an environmental assessment would need to be completed before the project could go out to bid. It is anticipated that the actual demolition would not take place for 30-60 days.

Council members also took action on a request from the Wayne Farmers' Market to close off Second Street from the alley to Pearl Street for the Farmers' Market Grand Opening on Wednesday, July 11 and Saturday, July 14.

Approval was given to close the street from 4:30 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday and from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Joel Hansen told council members that city staff goes home at 4 p.m. on weekdays and asked who would be responsible for setting up and taking down the baracades.

Moncia Snowden, Wayne Farmers' Market Volunteer Council member, said volunteers could put them up and take them down and leave them in an area for city crews to pick up the next day.

A bid of $61,001.00 was approved from Crouch Recreation for the installation of a Versacourt Play Area, located near the old swimming pool on North Douglas Street.

City Administrator Blecke explained the bid received from Crouch Recreation and noted that the firm had provided recreational equipment at the Summer Sports Complex.

The city has received a $30,000 grant from the Natural Resources District to pay for a portion of the costs and the remainder will come from budgeted expenses for playgrounds in the city.

The Wayne City Council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, July 3 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Laurel's Q-125 Celebration

Over the weekend, two area towns celebrated their communities with events and activities. Above, Laurel packed dozens of attractions into three days to celebrate the towns 125th birthday. Pool parties, picnics and parades were part of the fun, between the tractor pull, bull riding, helicopter rides, shooting exposition and inflatable games. Below, the annual Gene Topp Memorial Car Show was held during the Old Settlers Days celebration in Winside. Cars, pickups, tractors and more lined the streets. Face painting and a petting zoo were fun for the kids, while the museum was opened for guests to visit.

DHHS offers cooling fans, bill payment assistance

Every summer, hundreds of Nebraska's elderly and disabled succumb to heat-related emergencies. Natural sun leads to warmer indoor temperatures and extended time outdoors can lead to overexposure. The Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), through its Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), is once again doing its part to combat the heat by providing fans and electric bill-payment assistance. Through the LIHEAP fan distribution program, DHHS helps deter heat-related illnesses such as heat exhaustion, heat cramps and heat stroke, and offers vital relief to the elderly and adults with disabilities who might be in need of a more comfortable environment.

In Wayne, assistance may be obtained at the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, located at 215 N. Pearl Street or by calling (402) 375-2200.

"Summer heat can pose a problem for anyone. Everyone, including the young, old, those who lead sedentary lifestyles and even athletes, can fall prey to heat-related illness or death," said Dr. Courtney Phillips, CEO of DHHS. "It's important to pay attention to your body. Basic ways to prevent heat-related illness include keeping hydrated, even when you may not feel thirsty, and staying cool as temperatures continue to climb. The LIHEAP fan distribution program helps address the latter issue. Last year, partner organizations distributed more than 7,228 fans across the state. We expect to serve just as many people, if not more this year."

Fans were purchased with funds from the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Administration for Children and Families. Nebraska DHHS administers the funds and local organizations aid with distribution.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By Wes Blecke,
City Administrator

City Council meetings
Regular Wayne City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in City Hall at 3rd and Pearl Streets. We would be thrilled to have you check out your Council in action.

Wayne Farmers Market
The Wayne Farmers Market has moved to the south side of 2nd Street between Pearl Street and the State Nebraska Bank/1912 Emporium alley. The Council approved the action to close this portion of street on Wednesday, July 11 (Grand Opening from 4:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.) and Saturday, July 14 (Chicken Show Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.) for the Farmers Market vendors and patrons.

Old Swimming Pool Park
The old swimming pool park area will start to see some changes in the next 4 to 6 weeks. Crouch Recreation has been awarded the bid to lay a FlexCourt floor on the old tennis courts/skateboard park slab of concrete. This will include two full-sized basketball courts including a volleyball court and two pickleball courts within the basketball courts. It should make for a very nice addition to that park area. This project is funded in part by the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

Speaking of Pickleball...

What the heck is Pickleball? Wouldn't you like to know! Come out to the Wayne Community Activity Center on Sunday, June 24 at 3 p.m. OR Tuesday, June 26 at 6:30 p.m. to learn what this game is and how to play it. We hope this will make you anxiously await the arrival of the new courts in the old swimming pool park to be installed later this summer. In the meantime...ask Bryce Meyer at the CAC about the Pickleball equipment the City already has for indoor use at the CAC.

Future of the "Girl Scout" cabin

What has been known as the "Girl Scout" cabin just east of Hank Overin Field on 4th Street is in a dilapidated state and its condition must be addressed. The Council at its last meeting voted to have an environmental assessment completed on the structure and solicit bids for razing the same. The cabin has served the community well since it was moved into town from Logan Creek as a "river house" in 1939. Unfortunately, the age (not sure when it was built) and construction style of the structure does not make it feasible to repair.

Camp Invention held at Wayne Elementary School

Seventy campers attended the fifth annual Camp Invention at Wayne Elementary School June 11-15.

The first through sixth graders enjoyed a week of creating, designing, building and testing their inventions. Their days were filled with independent designing, as well as working collaboratively with other campers on various projects.

During the five day camp, the campers went through four modules each day. They created innovative smart homes in Mod My Mini Mansion, taught by Phylis Trenhaile. In Robotic Pet Vet, Jessica McPhillips guided the students in taking apart a robotic dog to learn about the anatomy of a dog and conduct various "medical" tests. They also designed and built dog accessories and a dog park for their own robotic pet dogs. Cathy Hobza taught OptiBot where campers created futuristic automobiles, flying cars, and submersible vehicles. Stick to It, taught by Jeanne Brink, consisted of the campers making several inventions to meet daily challenges like cupcake catapults.

Nine Counselors-In-Training (CIT) assisted the instructors and campers during the day. The CITs were Eli Barner, Mason Bodlak, Ocn Brown, Nina Hammer, Laura Hasemann, Ruby Kinzie, Nicholas Lienemann, Levi McKay and Codi Olson.

Seven high school Leadership Interns assisted campers as they led students through the four modules, Camp Invention Games, and Base Camp activities. This year's Leadership Interns were Micah Carson, Maggie Fehringer, Stephanie Casarrubias-Gonzalez, Mikenzie Schafer, Kecia Schenk, James Tompkins and Sarah Tompkins.

Parent volunteers Mary Kuchta, Heidi Piersanti, and Jill Walling assisted campers throughout the day. Megan Raulston was a camp parent who assisted with marketing. The camp was directed by Sonya Tompkins with Monica Jensen as the assistant director.

"This was our fifth year hosting Camp Invention in Wayne. We had 70 campers coming from the Wayne, Pender, Wakefield, Wisner, Beemer, Winside, Pierce, Emerson, and Laurel school districts. We look forward to another Camp Invention next summer!" Mrs. Tompkins said.

Pollinator Week events include tour at local farm

Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever are gearing up to celebrate National Pollinator Week June 18 – 24 by publishing a content series highlighting the importance of pollinator habitat for bees and butterflies, as well as other wildlife -- namely upland birds. Articles, videos and social media posts throughout the week will emphasize highly diverse pollinator habitat and its vital, dual role in producing pheasants and quail along with bees, butterflies and a host of other pollinator species.

The conservation organization's mission is focused on creating high-quality habitat for pheasants and quail. That very same habitat, filled with diverse grasses and forbs (flowering plants) is critical to a wide array of pollinating insects. For example, monarch butterflies are on the brink of joining the endangered species list. As a natural extension of creating the highest quality habitat for all wildlife, both organizations have made a point of including milkweed in project seed mixes.

"Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever have impacted 155,974 acres for pollinators, including planting more than 643 million milkweed seeds," stated Drew Larsen, director of habitat education programs for Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever. Putting this number into perspective, the organizations have made noteworthy contributions to the Pollinator Partnership Action Plan designated by the White House in 2016 which calls for one billion new milkweed stems established by 2020.

"While positive for pollinators, these projects also serve as havens for pheasant and quail broods," continued Larsen, "providing protein-rich insects, as well as excellent hiding cover that chicks can move around in, during critical periods of early development. We look forward to telling our story about bees and butterflies – and birds – during National Pollinator Week."

In addition, the Logan Creek Pheasants Forever Chapter will be hosting a habitat tour on June 27 at the farm of Scott and Pam Heinemann.

The Heinemanns have spent years cultivating their property to not only produce grain but to provide habitat and pollination opportunities for species in decline.

"My first tree and shrub planting was in 1995 and I've been doing something every year. I've gradually decreased my crop acres to get a percentage of my land to wildlife and pollinators," Scott said.

The tour will be a 'walk and talk' as Scott put it, with guests like the area Pheasants Forever Biologist Taylor Spencer.

Currently, the Heinemann property has different programs utilized, such as the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and the State Acres for Wildlife Enhancement (SAFE) program. Each program is different, Scott said, and offers different benefits with the foliage planted.

The Heinemanns have an appreciation for nature, but even if there were no benefit to wildlife populations and pollinators, Scott said they would still participate because of the benefits he's seen agriculturally.

"Those sensitive areas along creeks really benefit. We had a rain event at our place not that long ago and we didn't have the erosion, we didn't have the wash-out. It's a smart thing to do especially when grain prices are low."

"We just want people to see what these practices can do for their farms. We're learning all the time, making improvements. We're trying to give habitat and reduce runoff. I'm not trying to preach, I just have seen the benefits and I want to share that. Mother nature is diversified by design, we should do our best to imitate that."

For those interested in attending, the Heinemann property can be found at 57116 849th Road, Winside. Call Scott Heinemann at 402-375-5594 with any questions.

National Pollinator Week Content Series

Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever pollinator content will be available as stories and social media posts throughout all of National Pollinator Week at the following locations: PF homepage, PF Facebook, PF Twitter, QF homepage, QF Facebook and QF Twitter.

June 18: The Birds & The Bees: Article explains how forbs (flowering plants) are the habitat nexus between birds, honey bees and butterflies.

June 19: Milkweed, Monarchs and Roosters: Monarch populations have plummeted by 90 percent in the last decade. Through Pheasants Forever's seed programs and habitat efforts, the organization is leading the nation in putting milkweed back on the landscape for the benefit of monarchs AND game birds.

June 20: The Dakota Connection: Each year, honey bees born and raised in North Dakota and South Dakota are shipped across the country to pollinate almond orchards in California and blueberry farms in Maine. Not coincidentally, the same grassland habitat that makes the Dakotas the top two honey bee producing states also makes them the top producing pheasant states.

June 21: I-35 Corridor for Pheasants, Quail, and Monarchs: Interstate 35 stretches from Duluth, Minnesota to Dallas, Texas, and cuts through the heart of pheasant and quail country. Not coincidentally, this same highway dissects the heart of America's monarch habitat and recovery zone.

June 22: Roadsides for Wildlife: Ditches and rights-of-way are often the most over-looked habitat opportunities for pheasants, quail, bees and butterflies. Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever are working with state and federal departments of transportation and natural resource agencies to maximize these habitat corridors for a wide array of wildlife species.

June 23: Pollinators, Pump Shotguns, and Passing on Traditions: Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever are working with schools and community organizations to plant pollinator plots and engage a new generation in conservation. See how one Nebraska community does it up big.

June 24: CRP Works for Pheasants, Quail, Pollinators and You: In the 2016 White House Plan to recover bee and monarch populations, the federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) was identified as the single best tool for creating pollinator habitat.

About Pheasants Forever

Pheasants Forever, including its quail conservation division, Quail Forever, is the nation's largest nonprofit organization dedicated to upland habitat conservation. Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever have more than 145,000 members and 720 local chapters across the United States and Canada.

WSC geography professor recognized for service

Dr. Lesli Rawlings, Associate Professor of Geography at Wayne State College, received the annual "Gildersleeve-Stoddard-Stone Service to Geography Education" award from the 3rd Congressional district in Nebraska.

She was nominated by her colleague, Dr. Randy Bertolas, Professor of Geography and Alliance Coordinator of the Geographic Educators of Nebraska (GEON).

The award is the highest recognition given in the GEON organization. One educator in each of Nebraska's three Congressional Districts receives this award for advancing and improving geographic education in the state. The award ceremony was held at the Nebraska History Museum in Lincoln on May 31.

Rawlings said, "I am honored and humbled to receive this award. I enjoy teaching geography courses to help people better understand our world and to train students for 21st century careers. This award holds a special place in my heart because Dr. Charles Gildersleeve, the co-founder of GEON, was my Master's thesis advisor from 2000-2002. He had a profound influence on my education and his enthusiasm for the discipline was contagious."

Gildersleeve passed away in October 2009.

Dr. Rawlings teaches geography and geospatial technology courses at Wayne State College and is the co-advisor for the geography honor society Gamma Theta Upsilon. In addition to teaching, she maintains an active service agenda. As a member on the Nebraska Geographic Information Systems (GIS) Council, Rawlings serves as a liaison between the council and GEON.

She has trained Nebraska K-12 teachers at summer workshops on how to integrate GIS into their curriculum. Under her guidance, WSC students have completed Service-Learning projects using geospatial technology. One project had students create an interactive map of historic buildings and artwork in Wayne. In another project her students assisted St. Mary's fourth, fifth, and sixth graders to learn GPS technology through geocaching, a project which met the Nebraska Social Studies Standards involving absolute/relative locations, navigation, and direction.

New programs and partnerships create a better future at WSC

The addition of new academic programs and partnerships provides Wayne State students with more opportunities to follow their passion and prepare for their desired career field.

Recent additions to the college's undergraduate programs of study include agricultural and mechanical engineering in partnership with University of Nebraska-Lincoln, fermentation science, plant biology-ecology and management, agricultural communication and leadership, forensic science, pre-athletic training, pre-public health, and accelerated nursing.

Graduate program additions include online special education, an education specialist option for Cross-Curricular Education, and a focus area in the masters of organizational management on Public Administration Management.

Wayne State partners with area high schools, colleges, and universities to provide the best opportunities for students. For students on the pre-professional track, Wayne State College provides a great foundation before students transfer to finish their degree in specialized fields of health, law, engineering, agriculture, or other fields of study at the master's or doctoral levels at Cleveland College of Chiropractic, Logan College of Chiropractic, Northwestern College of Chiropractic, University of Nebraska-Lincoln (RLOP, engineering, and agriculture), and University of Nebraska Medical Center (Accelerated Nursing, RHOP, PHEAST).

Wayne State partners with Northeast Community College in South Sioux City, Neb., to deliver bachelor's degree programs in business and education, and Metropolitan Community College in Omaha, Neb., for a bachelor's degree in technology. Wayne State also works with several area Educational Service Units to ensure high school students have expanded opportunities to explore career pathways through a broad range of educational options. The college partners with ESU2 to offer a master's degree program to teachers who aim to integrate arts into their content area. A federal grant funds tuition for the teachers taking part in the program.

Wayne State demonstrates its commitment to its mission of student success, learning excellence, and regional service through the continued addition and renovation of facilities. These continued improvements ensure students, faculty, and staff have a learning and living environment that encourages excellence in academics, athletics, and student life. Those facilities include the CAT, Crime Scene Investigation Facility, Memorial Stadium Press Box, Bowen Hall and U.S. Conn Library.

Wayne State College broke ground on the Center for Applied Technology (CAT) in November 2017, which is projected to serve as a gateway of opportunity for students to experience industrial manufacturing in an environment that cultivates interest and excitement in industrial technology.

The Wayne State College Criminal Justice Program is proud to announce the scheduled opening of a Crime Scene Investigations Facility for the fall 2018 semester.

Construction on the new press box began in the fall of 2017 and is set for completion in the summer of 2018. The old press box has served the college for approximately 40 years. The project includes a new 5,220 square foot press box, including an elevator tower that will be built on the northwest side of Memorial Stadium.

U.S. Conn Library and Bowen Hall were both extensively remodeled, with completion dates in 2017. Previous inefficiencies were corrected in the renovation processes for each building.

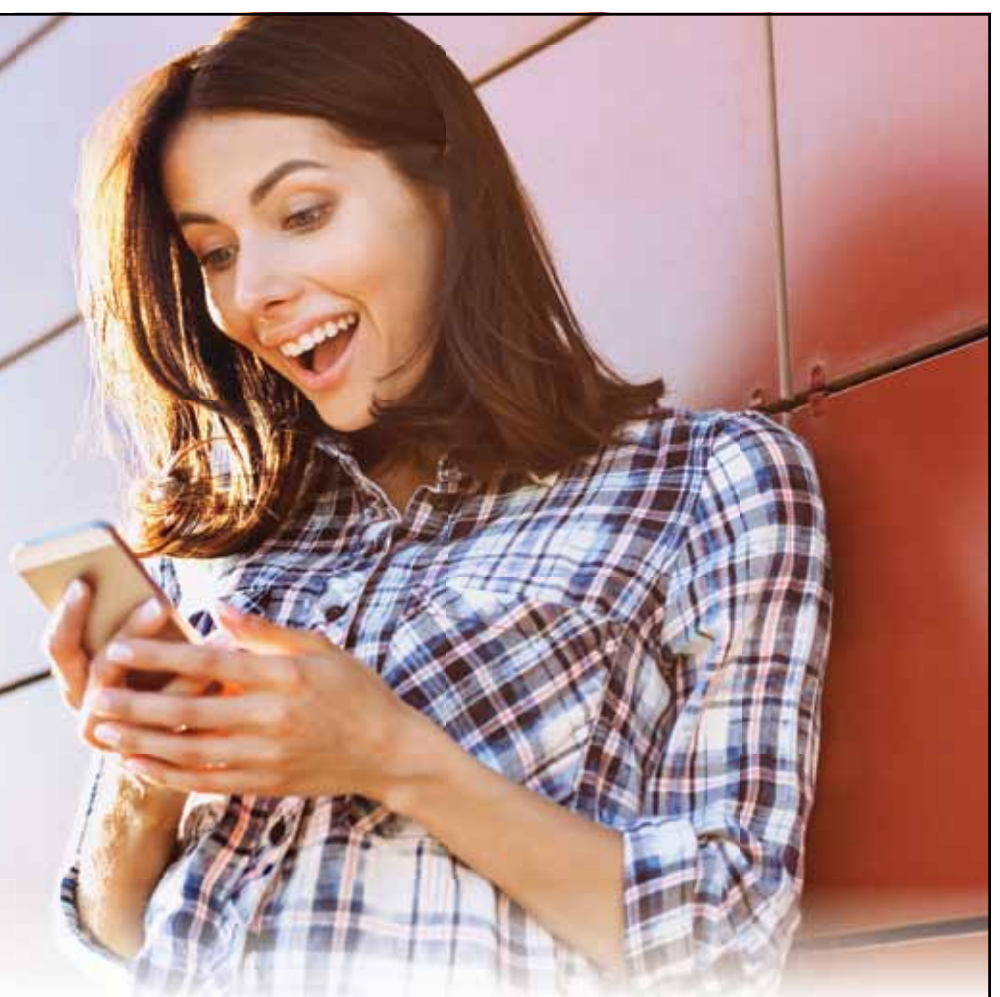

Dr. Lesli Rawlings (left) is congratulated by Barry Thomas, Social Studies Curriculum Supervisor- Omaha Public Schools and GEON steering committee member.

Pollari named new Wildcat women's hoops coach

Wayne State College athletic director Mike Powicki announced late Thursday afternoon that Brent Pollari has been named head women's basketball coach, replacing Chris Kielsmeier, who stepped down April 17 to become head coach at Cleveland State.

"We are excited to have Coach Pollari join the Wayne State Athletics team as our next head women's basketball coach," said Powicki. "He has a great deal of valuable experience and success coaching and recruiting in our region so he will be able to hit the ground running with an understanding on what it takes to maintain the tradition of Wildcat women's basketball."

Powicki added, "Brent is also very committed to the academic achievement of our team and the importance in providing a positive experience for our student-athletes."

Pollari brings 15 years of collegiate coaching experience at the NCAA Division I, II and III levels to Wayne State, along with four years of high school experience.

He comes to Wayne State after spending the previous three seasons as head coach at NCAA Division III St. Mary's University in Minnesota, compiling a 50-29 records and two trips to the MIAC playoffs. Pollari's 2015-16 team at St. Mary's was 21-6, earning MIAC Coach of the Year honors.

Pollari also served one year as an assistant coach at Minnesota State in 2014-15, helping the Mavericks reach the NCAA Div. II National Tournament with a 21-10 record. He also spent one year as an assistant at Div. I North Dakota (2013-14), helping the school win the Big Sky Conference title and a trip to the NCAA Tournament.

Other coaching stops for Pollari include six years as associate head coach at Northern State, where he was recruiting coordinator and head junior varsity coach, helping the Wolves reach the NCAA Div. II National Tournament in the 2010-11 season. He also served as assistant coach/interim head coach at Texas A&M Kingsville (2006-07), was a graduate assistant at Northern State (2004-06) and assistant for one season (2001-02) at Montana State.

Brent Pollari

High school coaching experience for Pollari includes two years as head girls basketball coach at Corvallis High School in Montana, one year as assistant at Bozeman High School in Montana and one year at Bismarck St. Mary's High School in North Dakota.

Pollari obtained his bachelor's degree from the University of Mary in 2001 (physical education teaching with history minor) and earned a master's degree from Northern State in 2006 in physical education, health and coaching.

"I have spent many years competing against and admiring Wayne State College's women's basketball program and I am excited to join the Wildcat family," remarked Pollari. "I am humbled by the sustained success and community support that I have witnessed and I can't wait to contribute to it. Connecting with our current and incoming players is my first priority and I am ready to help guide this program into a new chapter of continued success."

Pollari added, "I want to thank the search committee, Athletic Director Mike Powicki, my family, friends and former players/coaches for their belief in and support of me. This is truly an exciting time."

Pollari becomes the 11th head coach in the 48-year history of the Wayne State College women's basketball program. He takes over a team that went 25-7 last season and finished second in the NSIC South Division with an 18-4 league record.

Dirt Devils 14's go 2-2 in Yankton Tournament

The Wayne Dirt Devils 14-under softball team split a road doubleheader and went 2-2 over the weekend in a tournament at Yankton.

In Tuesday's twinbill at Norfolk, the Dirt Devils took the opener over Kelly's 7-4 before dropping the nightcap 6-3.

Wayne scored five runs in the second in the first game, four coming on back-to-back Kelly's errors. Brooklyn Kruse brought home the fifth run with an infield single, and she added a two-run single in the fifth to lead Wayne to the win.

Amara Hurlbert and Virginia Kniesche both scored twice in the win, while Hope O'Reilly, Kendall Dorey and Aliah Schulz added runs. Dorey fanned nine and walked eight in the one-hit effort in the circle.

In the second game, Kelly's overcame a 3-2 deficit with two in the fourth and two in the fifth to salvage the split.

Wayne took a 3-2 lead in the third when Dorey tripled home O'Reilly and scored on Schulz's double to center.

Kniesche and Schulz both had two hits in the contest. Hurlbert took the loss in the circle, allowing four hits and five walks while striking out five.

Wayne opened tournament play in Yankton Saturday with a 16-4 win over VFP Flamez. Wayne got six in the first, two in the second and eight in the third to end the game on the 12-run rule.

Kruse and Schulz had doubles to lead a six-hit effort for the Devils. Kruse and Schulz both scored three times while Kniesche, O'Reilly, Hurlbert and Brianna Nissen each scored twice. Hurlbert scattered six hits to get the complete-game win.

In their second game, Wayne broke a 5-5 tie with three runs in the fourth to take an 8-5 win over the Yankton Fury Bandits. Alex Harrell scored the go-ahead run off a Yankton error, and Kruse and Schulz both came home on an error later in the inning to help seal the win.

Kruse and Schulz both scored three times in the win. Hurlbert pitched her second win of the day, striking out four and allowing five hits and four walks.

The Yankton Fury 14's put the wood to the Devils in the final pool game Saturday, using an 11-run third inning to post a 16-1 win.

Chloe Klug scored Wayne's only run of the game as Wayne was limited to hits by O'Reilly, Kruse and Taytum Sweetland. Hurlbert pitched the loss.

In Sunday's semifinals, Wayne lost a wild nine-inning affair to the Mitchell Venom, losing 12-11.

Wayne jumped out to a 5-1 lead in the second as Kniesche singled home Sweetland, Logan Miller scored on a fielder's choice, Klug and Kniesche scored on a Kruse single and O'Reilly scored on an error.

Mitchell chipped away and tied the game at 7-7 after four innings. Neither team scored in the fifth and the game went into extra innings.

The two teams matched runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Wayne took its final lead in the top of the ninth on an RBI single by Miller that scored Nissen, but Mitchell came back to score two in the bottom of the night and claim the win.

O'Reilly, Miller and Klug each had three hits to lead a 15-hit attack for the 20-6-1 Devils 14-under team. Sweetland had two hits and Kniesche, O'Reilly and Miller each scored twice. Hurlbert pitched all nine innings, striking out four.

Josh Lutt threw a three-hit shutout for the Wayne Juniors in their win over Columbus Lakeview last week.

12-game winning streak ends for Juniors

The Wayne American Legion Post 43 Juniors ran their winning streak to 12 games before seeing it end in a doubleheader loss at home.

On Wednesday, Josh Lutt tossed a three-hitter and got some great defense behind him to help the Post 43 Juniors stay undefeated with a 1-0 win over the Columbus Lakeview Reds.

Wayne's only run of the game came in the second when Gunnar Jogensen led off with a double and scored on a sacrifice fly by Blake Bartos. Wayne had just five hits in the game, with Lutt, Hagan Miller, Victor Kniesche and Tyrus Eischeid adding singles.

Fortunately, that's all Wayne would need in racking up their 11th straight win without a loss. After giving up back-to-back singles to start the game, Lutt only allowed three baserunners after that, as Lakeview could manage just three baserunners in the final six innings, including a fourth-inning error, a sixth-inning single and a two-out walk in the seventh.

Lutt finished the game with just 75 pitches thrown in seven innings, striking out four and allowing one walk.

The Juniors played a nine-inning game at Yankton on Thursday and improved to 12-0 with an 8-4 victory.

Wayne broke the game open in the second with four straight hits to start a six-run inning. Bartos singled, Brock Hopkins doubled and Kniesche doubled them both home to get Wayne on the board. Eischeid followed with a single, but Kniesche was put out at home.

After a walk to Drew Buck, Lutt singled to load the bases and Miller and Trevor DeBoer both walked in runs. Jacob Kneiff followed with an RBI single and Bartos finished the inning with a sacrifice fly.

Wayne got another run in the third and one more in the sixth. Eischeid scored on a Yankton error in the third, and Lutt scored on a DeBoer single. Yankton rallied late but couldn't make up the early deficit.

Lutt, Kneiff, Bartos and Hopkins each had two hits to highlight a 12-hit attack. DeBoer and Kniesche each drove in two and Lutt and Eischeid both scored twice. Kniesche got the win, striking out seven and allowing four hits in seven innings before Buck pitched the final two innings of relief.

Wayne's winning streak came to an abrupt halt on Saturday, as visiting Bennington swept a twinbill from the Juniors, winning 4-0 and 7-4.

Wayne was silenced on two hits in the opener, with Kneiff and Eischeid getting singles. DeBoer pitched well in a losing effort, striking out eight and allowing five hits and three walks.

Wayne trailed 5-0 in the nightcap before rallying in the fourth, thanks to a bases-clearing triple by Reid Korth after Bennington had walked the bases loaded. Both teams scored in the fifth, with Bartos' single scoring DeBoer, but Bennington added an insurance run late to close out the doubleheader sweep.

DeBoer's two hits led a seven-hit attack for the 12-2 Juniors. Kneiff took the loss, allowing five hits and five walks while striking out four. Buck pitched two innings of relief.

Wayne plays a doubleheader Thursday at Elkhorn Mount Michael before starting Ralph Bishop League tournament play on Monday.

Wayne beat Parkston in the second game of pool play Saturday, winning 6-2. Abby Ankeny doubled and singled and Jenna Trenhaile added two hits to the cause. Allison Claussen doubled and Dorey and Bokemper singled. Kayla Fleming pitched the win, striking out two and walking two.

In their final pool play matchup, Wayne beat the Mitchell Venom 8-4. Ankeny doubled and singled to lead the charge, while Dorey, Gamble, Fleming and Bokemper singled. Bokemper struck out two and walked three to get the win.

In Sunday's semifinals, the Dirt Devils blew out the Yankton Fury 14-1. Ankeny hit a grand slam and added a double to lead the Wayne charge. Lindsay had three hits. Gamble had a double and two singles, Biggerstaff tripled and singled and Fleming and Thompson doubled. Dorey and Trenhaile also had hits as Bokemper pitched the team into the finals.

Wayne's hopes came up short as they dropped a 12-6 decision to the South Dakota Edge. Biggerstaff tripled, Bokemper had a double and a single and Ankeny and Dorey doubled to lead the effort. Gamble and Claussen both added singles.

Wayne plays at a tournament in Pierce this weekend before closing the season next weekend with the state tournament in York.

Black Didgets lose second game

The Wayne Black Didgets baseball team dropped their second game of the year last week, 7-2, to a tough Pender team. Joe Leatherdale and Drew Miller drove in Wayne's two runs on the only two hits Wayne could collect off of the tough-pitching Pender team.

On Monday night, Wayne traveled to Scribner and dodged thunderstorms all evening to come up with a thrilling 7-6 victory.

Alex Rodriguez picked up the pitching victory, throwing three strong innings and striking out seven Scribner batters.

The real action got started in the bottom of the sixth as Scribner had pulled within a run and had two on with nobody out. With the help of some pretty fancy defense from Rodriguez, Parker Patefield came in and managed to get the team out of the jam by retiring the only three batters he faced.

Chase Sturm was the offensive catalyst, driving in four runs on a triple in the third and a single in the fifth. Jenner Dorey drove in what proved to be the winning runs, driving in two with a single in the fifth.

Wayne hosts West Point Royals on Monday

Jacob Anderson is greeted at home plate after hitting a home run for the Wayne Ponies in tournament action over the weekend.

Ponies take first in home tournament

The Wayne Ponies' bats were hot all weekend as they dominated their division of the Wayne Invitational baseball tournament at the Summer Sports Complex.

The Ponies beat South Sioux City and Pender on Saturday by identical 12-5 scores, then blew up the Blair Bears on Sunday with a 21-1 win in the championship game to take home top honors.

Wayne opened the tournament with the win over South Sioux City, cranking out 12 hits in the win over the Cardinals.

Tanner Walling led the charge with three hits while Jacob Anderson had two hits, including a homer. Brooks Kneifl and Dylan Anderson also had two hits, while Toby Braun, Justin Sherman and Brandon Bartos each had hits.

Walling got the win on the mound, striking out four in 3 2/3 innings before James Dorcey and Dylan Anderson came on in relief.

In the Pender game, Dorcey had three hits at the plate and struck out seven on the mound in three innings to lead the Ponies' effort. Kneifl and Jacob Anderson each had two hits and Walling, Toby Braun, Dylan Anderson, Yair Alcantara and Calvin Starzl

Seniors put two wins together at home

The Wayne American Legion Post 43 Seniors improved to 12-3 on the season with a pair of wins at home last week. Wayne batted around in the first inning, but needed two insurance runs in the fifth before finishing off Columbus Lakeview, 8-5.

All nine batters went to the plate in the opening frame as Wayne scored five runs. Tyler Lutt got the scoring started when he came home on an error. Adam Bentjen brought two home with a double and Tucker Nichols followed with a two-run single to stake Wayne to the early 5-0 advantage.

Wayne got another run in the second and appeared to be cruising with a 6-0 lead before Lakeview rallied with five of their own in the fifth, taking advantage of three walks, two hits and three Wayne errors to get within a run.

Wayne responded in the bottom of the inning, though, taking advantage of two walks to score a pair of runs. Brennan O'Reilly came home on a groundout by Hagan Miller, and Lutt later came home on a Lakeview miscue to account for the final run of the game.

Bentjen had three hits, two of them doubles, and two RBI's to lead a five-hit effort for the 11-3 Seniors. Lutt scored three times and Nichols had two RBI in the contest. Bentjen picked up the win, allowing three hits and four walks while striking out seven. Payten Gamble got the final out to earn the save.

On Friday, the Wayne Seniors shut out Laurel 8-0 as Lutt and Nichols combined on a four-hit shutout.

Wayne scored a run in the second when Josh Lutt scored on a passed ball, then took control of the game with a five-run third inning, taking advantage of four Laurel errors and three walks, with Jacob Kneiff's leadoff single the only hit of the inning.

Wayne put up two more in the fourth as Zane Jackson tripled home Miller and scored on a sacrifice fly by Justin Dean to give the home team the shutout.

Miller and Jackson both scored twice in the win. Lutt got the win with three innings of three-hit, six-strikeout baseball. Nichols wrapped it up with two innings of scoreless pitching, allowing one hit and striking out one.

Wayne is scheduled to face Martin, S.D. in a doubleheader on Wednesday. Ralph Bishop League tournament play starts on Monday.

WSC soccer adds three for coming season

Wayne State women's soccer coach Joe Cleary announced the addition of three student-athletes who will join the Wildcat soccer program for the 2018-19 school year.

Amanda Clements of Omaha, Claire Gay of El Paso, Texas and Samantha Nocita of Omaha join eight members who already signed with Wayne State during the NCAA early signing period in February.

"These three additional players will provide our backline and overall team with a good amount of athleticism and depth," Cleary said. "All three are versatile enough to impact the team in multiple positions and they will all have a chance to compete for minutes in our team. We are excited for all three to join our roster this next fall."

Clements is a 5-foot-7 midfielder/defender from Millard South High School where she was a four-year starter for the Patriots. Clements helped lead Millard South to two district championships (2017, 2018) and three-straight state tournament berths (2016-18). In 69 career games, Amanda recorded eight goals and 21 assists. Clements also applied her trade for Sporting Omaha Futbol Club.

"Amanda was a late addition to our squad and we are extremely excited that she will be joining the program," said Cleary. "She is a proven competitor with both her high school and club team and has the ability to play several positions. Technically, she is a great striker of the ball which will benefit our attackers greatly both in open play and set piece situations."

Transferring from Trinidad State Junior College (Colorado) is Gay, a 5-foot-8 defender. Before becoming a two-year letter-winner and earning Region XI second-team All-Region honors, she was a standout defender for Coronado High School. Gay received all-district honors three different times in her high school career, including first-team accolades in 2013 and 2014.

"Claire is a strong player and a high character individual," stated Cleary. "She will provide size, competition and depth to our backline.

She is a versatile player who can play centrally or out wide. I look forward to her coming in and competing for minutes in our defense."

Nocita joins the squad from Omaha Central High School where the 5-foot-9 defender was a four-year starter while also playing club level for Sporting Omaha FC. Nocita competed on her high school cross country team as well as involving herself in extracurricular activities outside of sports. Already a student at Wayne State, Samantha earned a place on the WSC Spring 2018 Dean's List.

"Samantha was a current student at Wayne State College when she asked to try out for the program," said Cleary. "She did well during her tryout and is excited to be a part of our program on a full-time basis. Samantha was a strong, hard-working defender in high school and once she gets back into the swing of things she will definitely help add depth to the backline."

 Discussions began with Mr. Shoff

An estimate from JMB Contracting, LLC for construction and drywall in the area was reviewed.

 On the Department of Ed's computer site they gives Superintendent's access to enter their school's data to compute suggested lunch prices. After reviewing the results, Mr.

Shoff proposes an increase on the price of elementary and high school lunches.

New legislative changes were given to Mr. Shoff by the Nebraska School Board Association. Mr. Shoff informed the Board that we have been chosen to be a part of the Nation's Report Card conducted by the National Assessment of Educational Progress. Mr. Shoff and Mrs. Remm are working on the Professional Growth Policy Rubric. The changes will not affect policy, but only the wording of the rubric that will be presented to the Board in the future.

Old Settlers Days in Winside

Statement regarding new tariffs on Chinese products made by Nebraska Farm Bureau

"Today's action by the Trump administration to move forward with $50 billion worth of tariffs on Chinese products continues to raise substantial concerns throughout the entire agricultural community. We have major issues in our trading relationship with China, and we fear today's action will only amplify those problems."

"Preliminary Nebraska Farm Bureau (NEFB) analysis shows on a per unit basis, Nebraska's export relationship with China in 2016 amounted to $2.29/bushel for soybeans, $26.36/head for beef (hides & skins), and $3.82 per head for pork. These figures are quite significant to the overall dollar amount farmers and ranchers receive for these commodities."

"On a per Nebraska county basis, Cuming County, generates roughly $26 million because of agricultural trade with China. Furthermore, eight counties exceed $20 million in terms of value of exports to China and 41 counties exceed $10 million. The average export value to China across all counties is $9.4 million."

"On a per farm basis, Phelps County generates the most from trade with China at $47,332 per farm; 17 counties exceed $25,000 per farm in terms of export value to China. The average export value to China per farm across all counties is about $16,600."

"While the entirety of the U.S./China trading relationship won't disappear overnight, these actions will have significant consequences which have the potential to greatly damage farm and ranch families for years to come."

The Nebraska Farm Bureau is a grassroots, state-wide organization dedicated to supporting farm and ranch families and working for the benefit of all Nebraskans through a wide variety of educational, service and advocacy efforts. More than 61,000 families across Nebraska are Farm Bureau members, working together to achieve rural and urban prosperity as agriculture is a key fuel to Nebraska's economy. Tolerance doesn't mean condone

Calyn Dunklau, Editor

Each and every day, we as a Nation are bombarded with countless topics that are more complex than a black and white stance. Each is tangled with emotions, repercussions and consequences.

And each day, we grow more and more agitated with those who oppose our train of thought.

We become more close minded, more disrespectful and resentful toward those who think differently than we do.

No matter where you look, you find the same case over and over again.

It's a frustrating thing to watch, and even more so to be a part of.

I consider myself a middle-of-the-road gal. I truly feel each 'side' has merit. There are things I don't agree with on each side. There are several things I do agree with on each side. Maybe it's my middle ground mindset that is making this picking sides debacle painful to witness. Maybe it's because my parents raised me to respect others, even if they don't think the way I think. Who knows?

I do know that I consider free thinking to be our Nation's greatest attribute.

But the days of respect and tolerance of those who feel and think differently seem to be long gone.

Each and every President has been raked over the coals since I can remember (granted I'm only 26, so what do I know) and each time someone new is elected, the process begins again.

If our forefathers were to look at civilization today, I think there would be a lot of shaking heads, yes, but even more camaraderie to try and fix the problem. There would be a lot less pointing fingers and screaming about left and right.

There would be compromise and communication to bring this Nation back to its former self – back when pilgrims stepped off of massive ships to escape the intolerance of an oppressive church and government.

Tolerance. It's literally what brought many of our ancestors here. You may not agree, you may not condone, but tolerate? That's doable.

Capitol View

Maybe someday, you can get there from here

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent

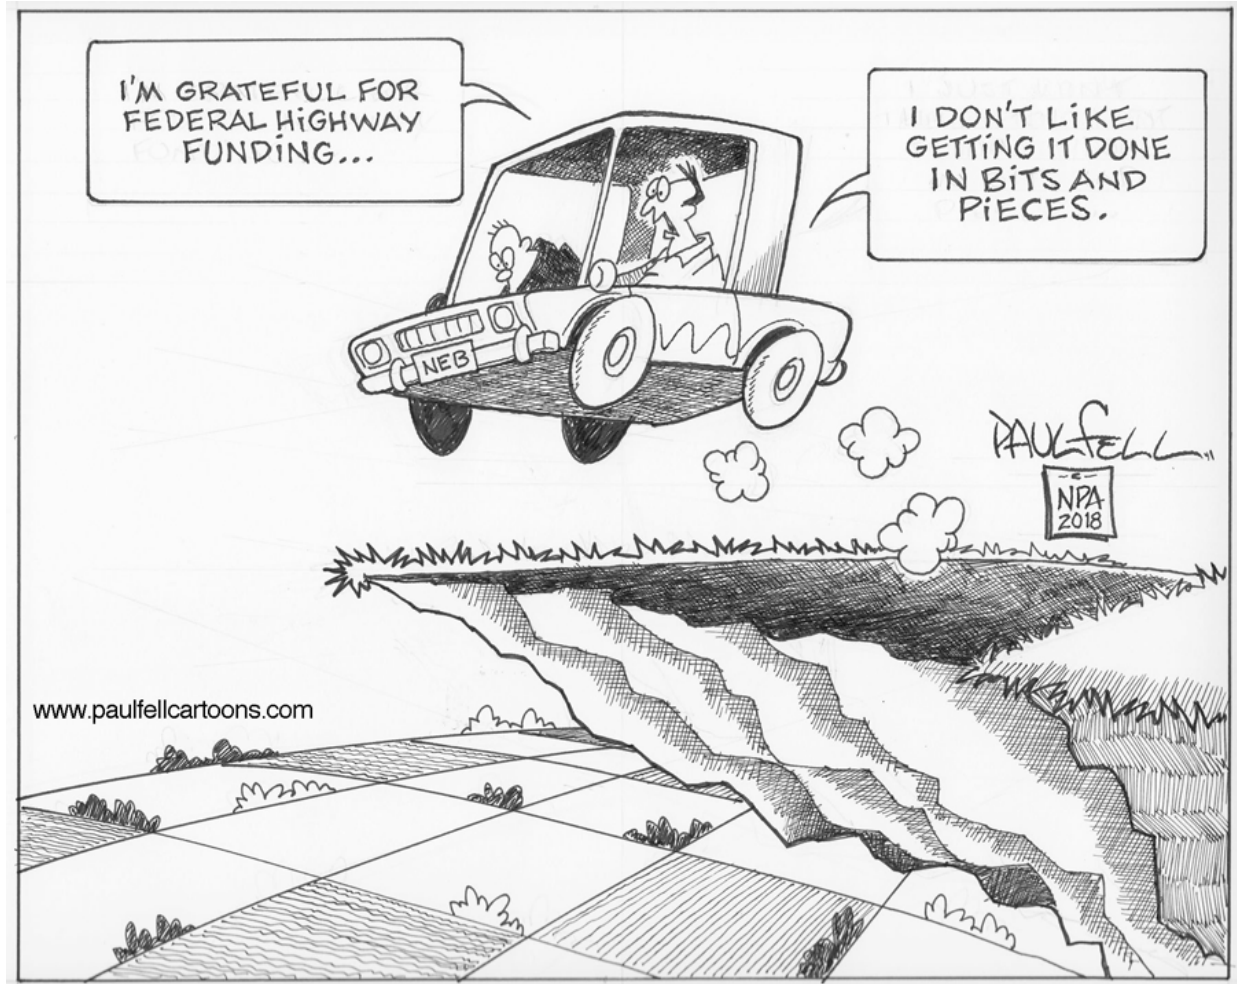

The Nebraska Press Association Governor Pete Ricketts recently announced that a segment of the Heartland Expressway has been selected to receive an $18.3 million federal grant through the U.S. Department of Transportation's Infrastructure for Rebuilding America (INFRA) program.

That's great news if you live and travel roads in Nebraska's Panhandle, especially that hilly, curvy part of US Highway 385 from the intersection of U.S. 26 north to Alliance – a popular route for getting to South Dakota's Black Hills. It's also good news for the folks in four states who have discussed the project – and seen some major segments built – over the past 30 years.

Yes, it has been 30 years since the 498-mile project connecting Limon, Colorado, with Rapid City, South Dakota, was first announced. The multi-lane divided highway has been called a $500 million project with an economic benefit of about twice that over a 38-year span. That benefit includes: increased traffic volume; businesses and jobs to provide services for those travelers; travel saving time; and accident reduction (estimated at $2.5 million) because of the improved roadway.

Ricketts touted the grant announcement as part of Nebraska's historic commitment to build the 21st-century infrastructure system to grow the state. Combined with (then Nebraska State Senator) Deb Fischer's Build Nebraska Act and the Nebraska Transportation Innovation Act – which he vetoed – Ricketts said the grant will help Nebraska fulfill Governor Kay Orr's vision for expanding the state expressway system. Mrs. Orr was governor from 1987 to 1991, 27 years ago.

Enacted in 2011, the Build Nebraska Act (BNA) dedicated .25 percent of sales tax receipts for expansion of the Expressway System, federally designated High Priority Corridors, and preservation of the existing transportation system. The act calls for 85 percent of the revenue generated for Nebraska Department of Transportation projects and 15 percent for local roads

That act is to provide about $1.2 billion in its 20-year lifespan. In November 2011, NDOT announced approximately $600 million in investments to expand 17 expressway, interstate or national high priority corridors. Seven of the corridors are complete and the remaining are under construction or funded for construction and on track for completion.

The Transportation Innovation Act (TIA), enacted in 2016, provided NDOT with new revenue, programs and tools to increase mobility, freight, economic growth and safety in Nebraska. The purpose of the act was to accelerate highway capital improvement, promote innovative solutions for deficient county bridges, and help finance transportation improvements to grow businesses and jobs.

That act, passed 30-16-3 in an override of Ricketts' veto, resulted in a total allocation of $450 million for targeted infrastructure investment. The TIA legislation created the Transportation Infrastructure Bank (TIB) that received a one-time transfer of $50 million from the Cash Reserve Fund in 2016. The TIB also receives annual revenue from a fuel tax increase, which Ricketts opposed, and will generate $400 million for infrastructure investment prior to its 2033 sunset.

The segment of the Heartland Expressway selected for this recently announced grant funding would convert 14.6 miles of existing two-lane on U.S. Highway 385 to a four-lane divided highway. It is part of a series of improvements to the corridor beginning at the junction of US 385 and State Link 62A, extending north approximately 24.8 miles to Alliance.

NDOT Director Kyle Schneeweis said the Heartland Expressway, the only designated expressway in the western half of the state, is essential to the movement of people and goods. He said the grant further cements his department's commitment to the project as the state works with partners in the Panhandle as funding pieces and construction dates are finalized.

The Heartland Expressway Corridor serves as the middle section of the Great Plains International Trade Corridor which extends from Mexico to Canada. Given its significance for trade and freight transport, it's one of four federally designated High Priority Corridors that comprise the Ports-to-Plains Alliance.

It seems to me that completion of road projects is often slower than the pilot car that leads motorists through a two-mile patch of one-lane resurfacing on a hot summer day. This infusion of federal money and the apparent success of two state laws is truly a green light for all Nebraskans.

The feds have given NDOT until 2021 to spend the money. Let's hope they beat the deadline.

Gov. Ricketts signs spending reductions, Pro-Life budget language

Governor Pete Ricketts recently signed into law budget bills containing key spending reductions as well as new pro-life budget language.

"The budget adjustments I have signed help to further control state spending. Together, the Legislature and I successfully reduced the rate of spending growth by over 90 percent in the last three years. Additionally, these bills contain important new budget language, which ensures that Title X taxpayer dollars do not fund abortion services, including abortion referrals, at any clinic in Nebraska. Thank you to Speaker Scheer and Chairman Stinner for their leadership in guiding these adjustments through the legislative process."

The budget bills signed today include LB 944e, 945e, and 946e.

UNDERSTANDING THE BUDGET ADJUSTMENTS SIGNED INTO LAW Reduces State Spending: With these adjustments, state spending over the current two-year biennium will grow at 0.5 percent, an over 90 percent reduction from the rate of state spending before Governor Ricketts took office.

New Pro-Life Provision: The mainline budget bill contains important new budget language which ensures that taxpayer dollars do not fund abortion services, including abortions, abortion counseling, or abortion referrals. The budget maintains the existing level of Title X funding, which provides reproductive healthcare for thousands of Nebraska women and men.

Property Tax Relief: Over the course of the biennium, the budget agreed upon by the Governor and Legislature provides direct property tax relief to all property owners for a total of $448 million over two years.

Child Welfare: The Legislature adopted the Governor's recommendation for child welfare for this year and next. Nebraska has seen a significant increase in the number of children coming into our state's child welfare system. Annually, the state is up about 9 percent, or about 485 kids.

Corrections: The Legislature adopted the Governor's recommendation to fund an additional 100 beds at the Nebraska State Penitentiary. This builds on three other capital construction projects the Governor and Legislature have agreed upon in the last two years.

Developmental Disabilities: This budget contains an additional $2.7 million in funding for Nebraskans with developmental disabilities. In 2017, the Division of Developmental Disabilities made more service offers than the last five years combined. This funding will allow the state to provide an even higher level of service to one of our most vulnerable populations.

K-12 Education: The budget contains additional general funds for state aid to K-12 education to offset lower than expected revenues from the insurance premium tax. The current budget grows state aid to schools four times faster than overall state spending.

Homestead Exemption: The budget adds $3.1 million in general funds for the homestead exemption program to reimburse local governments. The state's homestead exemption program provides property tax relief for low-income, elderly Nebraskans and low-income veterans with disabilities among others.

Q-125 Celebration in Laurel

Youth-adult partnerships essential for positive youth development

Summer months are a great time to get youth and adults involved in community development projects, especially through 4-H and other youth development programs. As adults are working with youth in their community, we may say "We listen to youth," but do we really do this?

According to a study done by Search Institute, 25 percent of youth feel that their community's adults value them, and 28 percent of youth feel that they have useful roles in their community. These are alarmingly low numbers considering the youth of our communities are the future of our communities.

Youth-Adult Partnerships (YAPs) refer to collaborative relationships in which youth and adult equally share decision-making power. Other benefits to youth in these partnerships, as identified by the Innovation Center for Community Youth Development, include increased civic awareness and commitment to their communities as well as a desire to help positively improve the lives of others.

One resource that is helpful for communities to examine as they build YAPs is called the Ladder of Participation from Roger Hart's research. He examines the levels of youth voice that youth programs can access their level of YAP from manipulation of youth to youth and adults sharing decision-making skills.

Here are some helpful ideas for communities to include in their projects:

- Adults provide enthusiastic support and encourage youth to take risks. Youth feel empowered to take advantage of opportunities to use their voice. If the young person feels the group values their opinion, they'll share much more information. Think back to childhood. You know that adult who listened to you, who believed in you. What did they do? Mimic that!

- Youth want to feel component in their roles. Adults can prepare young people for leadership. This could be a training before having them lead a group activity or personal coaching before they speak to a political figure. Many boards have a young person or two as board members.
- Allow youth to make real choices about their program or goals. This moves beyond setting the meeting time, or selecting the next activity. Introduce the youth to programming planning and goal setting. With youth at the table, you will find the depth of programming so much greater. And so much more fun to do!

- View success from the eyes of the young person. This doesn't mean saving them from your perception of failure. It involves supporting them as they plan, take risks, and understand how to solve a problem. Their success may look different than your definition of success. Reflect on the goals of the program.

A key component of youth voice is valuing peers and their contributions. Create an environment where all young people can have their voices heard. This is where facilitation skills can shine. As an adult, build in ways to hear everyone - this could be allowing small group time or pair-and-share time. For those who prefer to write, throw up some white space for youth to express themselves.

How do you incorporate youth voice into your program? To learn more about the Nebraska 4-H program and Youth-Adult Partnerships, interested persons are encouraged to contact their local Nebraska Extension Office or visit the website at www.extension.unl.edu.

Eagles auxiliary learns of state president's project

The Wayne Eagles Auxiliary met June 18 with President Amber Schlines presiding.

Jan Gamble gave a report on the Eagles State Convention. DeAnn Behlers was credited with being a Star Secretary by getting all reports in on time. Out of 30 Nebraska Auxiliaries, Wayne was one of eight who had a net gain in memberships.

The new State President is Cheri Bollig. Her theme is "Army Military" with the slogan EAGLE STRONG. Her state president's project is purchasing one Exoskeleton or use by a Nebraska military veteran with a spinal cord injury. This piece of equipment allows the injured individual to stand, preventing joints from locking or growing together, with increase movement of muscles.

All Eagles clubs will be having fund raisers to help purchase one, which costs $145,000.

A reminder was given to attend the family and friends cookout to honor Mother's and Father's Day on Saturday, June 23 at 6:30 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring one grill item and another dish to share.

The next meeting will be Monday, July 2 at 7 p.m.

Planted in the House of the Lord

Psalm 92:1, "It is good to give thanks to the Lord, to sing praise to your name."

Someone has said that there are three stages in life: childhood, adolescence, and "My, you're looking good." We can't stop aging. But no matter how old we grow, we continue growing in the Lord.

Psalm 92:12-14, "The righteous shall flourish like a palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. Those who are planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. They shall still bear fruit in old age; they shall be fresh and flourishing." I am greatly encouraged by those words, because as I get older, I want my life to count more and more for Jesus.

God tells us to be like palm trees. That means we should be planted—"planted in the house of the Lord." We must abide in Christ, whose roots are spiritual. We should also be productive and flourishing, and be like the fruitful trees to the glory of God.

Palm trees stand a lot of abuse, storms, and wind. The wind that

A Word In Faith
By Deb Hammer
PMA, St. Peter's Lutheran Church Pilger

breaks other trees bends the palm tree, but then it comes back up. Palm trees have roots that go down deep to draw up the water in the desert area. They can survive when other trees are dying. And palm trees just keep on producing fruit. The fruit doesn't diminish; it gets better and sweeter.

Just as we grow older each day, we also grow in wisdom day by day. Our elderly are filled with wisdom and bear fruit to all of us in old age — "they shall be fresh and flourishing."

Sometimes we may encounter people that are grouchy, mean, and critical. Let us not get discouraged and be reminded of the works of God's hands and how he has provided for us and blessed us. Let us be open to the Lord and remember to give thanks and praise every day.

Are you planted and feeding on the Word of God in your daily life? Are you sharing God's love and bringing glory to Him? Expressing gratitude to God allows God's grace to work in our hearts. Gratitude helps turn our anger into joy and our bitterness into peace.

God's Blessings to You!

Stenberg reminds young photographers, families of coming deadline for NEST on the Farm drawing

The deadline for entries in the 2018 NEST on the Farm Fun Photo Drawing is June 30, Nebraska State Treasurer Don Stenberg reminded Nebraska families. Six winners will each receive a $1,000 NEST 529 College Savings Plan contribution in the drawing, which is open to children age 13 and younger and their families. Nebraska residents can submit farm- or ranch-themed photos taken of or by children 13 years old or younger to be eligible to win one of the six $1,000 NEST 529 contributions. Entries are accepted by mail and online at NEST529.com/scholarships. Entries also are accepted on the NEST 529 Facebook page in a tab on the right, titled "NEST on the Farm." "As Trustee of NEST 529, I look forward to this annual event and to hosting the winners in the Family Fun Zone at the Nebraska State Fair. NEST on the Farm provides a perfect opportunity for families to begin saving for the expense of higher education and to learn about effective ways to save through our excellent state-sponsored college savings program, which provides significant tax benefits for Nebraska savers," Stenberg said. "There's no better place to emphasize the values of farm and ranch life and the importance of agriculture to the state's economy than the Nebraska State Fair," Stenberg said. "The NEST on the Farm photos cause us all to stop and appreciate the rural life around us and the values of hard work, honesty, and family that rural life promotes and we all appreciate." Money for the NEST 529 contributions comes from First National Bank of Omaha, Program Manager of NEST. To enter the NEST on the Farm drawing, the photographer or the subject must be 13 years old or younger as of June 30, 2018. Submissions will be split into two age groups: newborn to 5 years old and 6 to 13 years old. In mid-July, NEST randomly will select one winner from each age group in each of Nebraska's three congressional districts. For scholarship contest rules, visit NEST529.com/scholarships. Contest rules also are available at treasurer.nebraska.gov/csp/scholarships. The Nebraska Educational Savings Trust (NEST 529) is a tax-advantaged 529 college savings plan and provides four plans to help make saving for college simple and affordable: NEST Direct College Savings Plan, the NEST Advisor College Savings Plan, the TD Ameritrade 529 College Savings Plan, and the State Farm College Savings Plan. Impact of dicamba drift on non-dicamba-tolerant soybeans

By Stevan Knezevic, Weed Extension Specialist, UNL

Dicamba-resistant soybean, known as Roundup Ready 2 Xtend Soybean was commercially available in 2017 growing season.

This new soybean cultivar, also known as DT-Soybeans, is genetically engineered to provide resistance to dicamba and glyphosate. XtendiMax, Engenia and FeXapan are the only three commercially available dicamba formulations labeled for application in Roundup Ready 2 Xtend Soybean.

If you are interested in using any of the three products you must complete a Dicamba Applicator Training Program that is required by Law. Training is offered by several entities, including industry (Monsanto, BASF or DuPont), State Department of Agriculture, or UNL (contact your county Extension Office for more information about training). In addition, there are number of other application requirements, such as use of specific nozzles, adjuvants, or downwind buffer requirements to reduce off target movement, thus make sure to read and understand product labels completely, remember it is the law.

With the increase in use of Dicamba-Tolerant (DT) soybeans (Roundup-Ready 2 Xtend), the off-target movement of dicamba to non-DT soybeans and other broadleaf crops is of concern. Since the majority of soybean acreage was planted to non-DT varieties during 2017 season, there were many cases of dicamba drift complaints, which have led to litigation.

For example, the Nebraska State Department of Agriculture received over 90 complaints of dicamba drift onto non-DT soybeans with an estimated impact on 60,000 affected acres. In addition, there were over 1,000 complaints across the Midwestern region. It is known that dicamba spray droplets have tendency not only to drift with any air movement (even very slow wind), but also to move off target when fine aerosol droplets remain suspended during air temperature inversions, and thus can move from the target site well after the application for 36 hours and in some cases even 98 hours (4 days) after application. This drift can travel long distance (2-3 miles, or more) and finally be deposited onto nearby fields with various dicamba-sensitive crops including non-DT soybeans.

During the 2016 and 2017 seasons at Haskell Ag Lab at Concord, we evaluated the influence of micro-rates of dicamba products (Engenia and XtendiMax) to growth, development and yield of three sensitive soybean types (Roundup Ready, Liberty-Link and Conventional soybeans) at three different growth stages of application (second trifoliolate, start of flowering, and full flowering). The dicamba rates included: 0, 1/10; 1/50; 1/100; 1/500; and 1/1000 of products label rate (12.8oz of Engenia and 22oz of XtendiMax). To simplify visuals of the amount of the rates on a per acre basis, the 1/10th of the label rate is equivalent of a 3 tablespoons and 1/100th is a 1 teaspoon applied over a size of football field (1 acre).

Plots had four rows of each soybean types (Roundup Ready, Liberty-Link, Conventional and Dicamba-Tolerant as a check). The 3 application times were second trifoliolate (V2), just before flowering (V7/R1), or at full flowering (R2). The V2 timing was chosen to simulate potential drift at an early stage of soybean growth, which would be the earliest expected time for a dicamba product application. The second and third timings were chosen to simulate potential drift at the later stages of soybean growth due to potentially different planting date differences between neighboring fields. For, example some fields might be planted earlier, some later, thus these two timings would capture potential drift among neighboring fields around flowering time.

Visual evaluation of injuries was conducted at 7, 14, 21, and 28 days after treatment (DAT). Soybean morphological development including plant height, number of branches, days to canopy closure (for V2 and V7/R1 only), days to flowering (for V2 only), number of flowers (V2 and V7/R1), and days to maturity. Yields of all soybean types were harvested.

Roundup Ready, Liberty-Link, and Conventional soybeans were equally sensitive to all tested micro-rates of Engenia and XtendiMax. When micro-rates were increased, crop growth parameters were significantly impacted, including: reduction in plant height, alterations in branching pattern, delayed days to canopy closure and delayed date of flowering, a reduction in flower number, a delayed date of physiological maturity and most importantly a reduction in soybean yield. The foregoing negative impacts were dependent on correspondence of application date with the soybean growth stage, with V7/R1 stage being the most dicamba sensitive.

Engenia and XtendiMax reduced soybean height by as much as 30 inches, depending on the herbicide rate, which also delayed, or completely prevented canopy closure. Almost all rates (1/500 to 1/10) of Engenia and XtendiMax applied during early vegetative stage (V2) delayed soybean flowering by 10 days, across all soybean types. Based on ratings conducted at 65 days after planting, an Engenia rate of 1/10 (1.6 oz/A) applied at V2 stage led to a 56% reduction in flower numbers and as much as 92% when applied at V7/R1 stage.

Both dicamba products delayed soybean maturity by 5-25 days depending on the growth stages of dicamba application and the dicamba rate. Both Engenia and XtendiMax injured non-DT soybean varieties in a similar fashion. The visual injuries ranged from 20-80%, depending on the growth stage of application and dicamba rate.

Yields of all non-DT soybeans were significantly reduced by both herbicides irrespective of application time. However, the V7/R1 stage appears to be the most dicamba-sensitive stage, followed by the R2, and then the V2 stages. For example, Conventional, Liberty-Link and Roundup-Ready soybeans yielded 58, 60, 60 bu/A in non-sprayed control plots. However, when the same soybeans were sprayed at V2 stage with 1/10 of Engenia rate, they yielded considerably less, i.e., 24, 22, and 27 bu/A, respectively. Yields were further lowered to 18, 15 and 25 bu/A, respectively, when the spraying occurred at R2. However, extremely low yields of only 3, 2 and 4 bu/A were measured when the spraying occurred at V7/R1 stage. Similar yield responses were measured in plots sprayed with XtendiMax. In most cases, the 1/50 and 1/100 of the labels rates reduced soybean yields by 13-16 bu/A when applied at the V2 stage. Yields were also reduced even with "very low" exposures of 1/500 and 1/1000 of the label rate. For example, the 1/1000 of label rate of Engenia applied at V2 stage reduced yields by about 4 bu/A in Conventional, 2 bu/A in Liberty-Link, and 4 bu/A in Roundup-Ready soybean. The same rates applied at V7/R1 stage reduced yields by 11 bu/A in Conventional, 3 bu/A in Liberty-Link and 8 bu/A in Roundup-Ready soybean.

Both Engenia and XtendiMax had very similar effects on the growth and development of all non-DT soybeans clearly showing that non-dicamba tolerant soybeans were sensitive to even very low micro-rates of Engenia and XtendiMax, hence, efforts must be made to avoid drift of dicamba onto sensitive soybeans.

Senator Fischer, FCC commissioner visit Northeast campus

The precision agriculture program at Northeast Community College took the spotlight during a recent visit to campus by United States Senator Deb Fischer and Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Commissioner Brendan Carr.

Fischer and Carr toured Northeast's precision agriculture facility and College Farm while visiting with Northeast faculty and students. Fischer said she was "fascinated" with Northeast's precision agriculture curriculum, which focuses on providing students with skills to interpret new farming technologies.

"Advanced information technology and the data these systems gather help our amazing agriculture producers make effective decisions as they feed the world," Fischer said. "Precision agriculture is having one of the most pronounced impacts on ag production since the industrial revolution. We look forward to learning more about geographic information systems, the principles of data-based decision making and how the next generation of ag producers are preparing to modernize agriculture--the backbone of Nebraska's economy."

The visit to Nebraska also focused on broadband access to rural America that included a stop at Stanton Telecom and conversations with Nebraska telecom stakeholders. Fischer said it is important to bring leaders from Washington, like Carr, to places like Nebraska.

"The state by state statistics that help shape policy at the FCC are more than just numbers on paper. They represent our families, small businesses, and our way of life. That's why I believe it is important that our government officials see exactly how Nebraska's businesses operate firsthand."

Corinne Morris, dean of Agriculture, Math and Science, said the officials' visit was significant because Northeast's graduates will impact the future of agriculture at all levels, from local to global.

"Considering the importance of agriculture to the economy as well as sustainability and natural resources, it was very meaningful to share our story with Senator Fischer and Commissioner Carr. As Northeast strives for excellence in educating the next generation of producers and the agricultural workforce, it is important to have open channels of communication with our representatives in government."

The precision agriculture program at Northeast Community College offers a two-year associate of applied science degree that focuses on maximizing yield potential while developing more resource efficient practices and utilizing technologies and data systems to drive decision making on farms. Students in the program develop technical skills and learn to interpret, analyze and utilize data gathered from precision agriculture technologies to improve production.

Musing on newspaper editing

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

In thinking about the veracity of newspapers, as I was last week, I did recall an instance that made me wonder about the editing that goes on. When you see three dailies, a lot of things get repeated; sometimes, by all three.

A few years ago, while Barack Obama was still president, a woman in northeast Nebraska was interviewed by someone from the Norfolk paper. She had been a child in Germany when Hitler came to power. She said when they received Christmas gifts at school, they were told they came from Der Fuehrer. When asked why she thought he was able to come to power the way he did, she reminded them of how dire things were in Germany after WWI. The woman who depicted the social worker who tried to negotiate for peace in the recent Chautauqua alluded to children in Germany eating soup made with sawdust!

The woman being interviewed stated that Hitler "offered hope and change." I could not help but notice that. Later, when the World Herald prints stories from other papers, it always says "from World Herald news service." It was the same interview, but that sentence about hope and change was omitted.

Instead of all the political stuff I was getting, which I unsubscribed, I now get a daily shot from the Good News Network. It's really a picker upper. After all, there are still many good people in the world; they just don't get written about, the way the corruption in public housing in New York was recently reported.

Last week, there was a short video of a woman who works in an animal park. At night, she sings the elephants to sleep! Yes, the elephants. Well, in this instance, she is guiding some tourists when a big female elephant comes behind them and literally interrupts and shoves the singer down the path to a baby pachyderm. She nudges until the woman begins to sing The Itsy Bitsy Spider in her language; you can recognize the tune.

That baby elephant curls up and lays down and takes a nap! I am not fooling.. I could not believe my eyes. I know elephants are intelligent, but to decide that a young'un needs a nap and to realize that he might respond to a lullaby, of sorts, is truly amazing to me. But I saw it in video!!

Reduce spray drift to avoid crop injury

For such a slow start with planting this spring, crops sure grew a lot in the last week or two. Unfortunately crops aren't the only thing that's growing. In some fields I visited recently, I noticed a variety of weeds were growing just as fast where a preplant or a preemergence herbicide had not been applied.

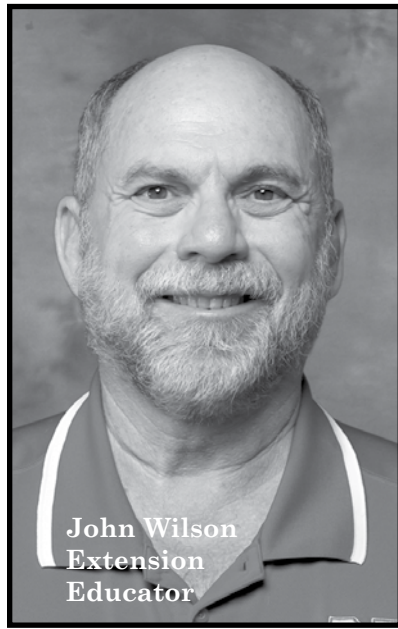

Last week I talked about volunteer corn so I'm not going to spend a lot of time on it today other than to say I've seen a lot more of it this year and it's important to get it under control sooner rather than later. Volunteer corn has a more serious negative impact on soybeans yields than on corn yields, but it doesn't help the yields of either crop.

What I really wanted to talk about today is controlling broadleaf weeds and the problems often encountered with those treatments. Last year dicamba-tolerant soybeans were introduced and there were many cases of dicamba injury to other crops and plants around farmsteads that were not tolerant to dicamba.

Not all of the problems originated in dicamba-tolerant soybean fields. There were instances of injury resulting from dicamba-based herbicides being applied to corn fields as it has for many years.

Because of the number of cases of injury to non-target plants last year, the three products labeled for application on dicamba-tolerant soybeans were reclassified as restricted use pesticides which requires training before a person can purchase or apply these products.

In addition, anyone wanting to apply dicamba on dicamba-tolerant soybeans this year was also required to attend an additional dicamba training.

John Wilson
Extension
Educator

The reason I'm talking about this today is I've already had a couple calls where there was injury to trees, ornamentals, or gardens around rural residences from this family of products. We didn't test to confirm that it was dicamba. Similar injury can result from 2,4-D or other products in this family of herbicides.

Two cases occurred over a month ago and were the result of burndown herbicide treatments while a couple others were more recent, probably from a postemergence treatment to corn or soybeans.

Which product was used or why it was applied doesn't matter. What matters is that extra care is needed when using any of these products because of their potential to move off-site and injure non-target plants.

I received an email from a co-worker as I was writing this column that is an even better example of why preventing spray drift is so important. Instead of drift damage causing losses to ornamental plants in the landscape or garden produce (which are both significant), this will have a huge economic impact on the operation that was damaged by the drift and quite possibly the applicator applying the herbicide that drifted.

A farmer in southeast Nebraska was transitioning his farm for organic production.

This requires a three year (36 month) period when no pesticides are used on the farm. Unfortunately, his farm received drift from dicamba applied to a neighboring field.

Because of this exposure, the farmer will have to restart the 36 month transition, a VERY costly mistake for the farmer and quite likely the applicator, too.

How to reduce the potential for herbicide drift could be a day-long course, but there are some basic principles that apply to the use of these or any herbicides. They include:

- Wind speed and direction. Be aware of how hard and which direction the wind is blowing. Do not apply a herbicide if the wind is blowing too hard. Some products have restrictions for wind speed on the label. Always be conscious of what is down wind and leave untreated borders, if required, when applying products next to plants or crops that might be injured.

- Weather. Besides wind speed and direction, consider other factors that can increase the chance of herbicides moving offsite such as high temperatures, low relative humidity, and temperature inversions.

- Nozzles and pressure. Some products require certain spray nozzles be used when making a herbicide application. Also, watch your sprayer pressure. If you use higher pressure to get the desired application rate, more small droplets will be created which are more likely to drift offsite. Instead switch to nozzles that apply more volume per acre rather than increasing the pressure to adjust your application rate.

- Other products in the tank mix. The products labeled for use on dicamba-tolerant soybeans have very specific directions on what you can or cannot add to the spray mix.

- Some products that are very safe and recommended to be used with other herbicides will break down the drift resistant properties of these formulations.

- Other factors... such as the minimum gallons per acre, the maximum ground speed, or the height of the boom over the crop canopy all need to be considered to reduce the potential for drift and injury.

It is impossible to eliminate the possibility of drift, but there are many things you can do to greatly reduce it. To find maps that identify where potentially sensitive crops (organic, fruits, vegetables, vineyards, etc.) are planted, go to <https://driftwatch.org/>.

For more information on controlling drift, go to the CropWatch website at <https://cropwatch.unl.edu> and type "drift" in the search box or contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

A Different Discussion on Hail

The last two weeks have certainly brought some tumultuous weather to many parts of Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas. These spring storms have brought good and bad to many of us along the way. Many of you are sitting with fantastic soil moisture under your fields that will set us up for a great transition into July. Others have had to deal with more of the severe weather, however, and unfortunately, that has meant dealing with hail.

I think there are plenty of good resources out there to help us all understand how to make many of the hard decisions that accompany those hailstones. And truthfully, at the end of the day, your agronomist and your crop insurance representative can do a far better job helping you evaluate your situation and what is happening in your field than any paper or electronic resource can. But I am not here today to talk with you about what to do after a hail storm when it comes to management decisions in a traditional sense. Instead, I want to talk about a question I had last week after hail hit one of our plots.

Our site at Bellwood took a pretty good thrashing last week in the Storms that went through on Wednesday night. As I saw pictures of it on Thursday morning, I knew it was beat up, but was confident that the corn would recover, as the whorls looked to be largely intact. But then I began to think about what we had just done out there the day before. About 30 hours before the storms came, we applied our V5 fungicide to our corn. I know that many of you have been doing the same in the last two weeks, so my thoughts immediately turned to what happens to our fungicide, and the protection that it provides, when the leaf tissue which was treated is removed from the plant.

It turns out that question was not one that was simply answered. The people who are far smarter than me that I ask these kinds of questions, choose to go to their resources and clarify a few things before they answered. We all kind of had a hunch what the answer was, but want to learn more before we stuck our necks out. As it turns out, what I learned was that the class of fungicides that are probably the most prevalent, the strobilurin fungicides, or strobis, exhibit a systemic movement of fungicide rather quickly. In this case, the systemic movement is actually a "subcategory" called translaminar movement. The quick movement occurs across leaf tissues, and tends to move out towards the tips, and spreads rather well as the plant grows. That means that the fungicide application that trickled down into the whorl will protect the next few of the new leaves that come since the contact was made within the whorl.

So the take home for today is this. Did we lose treated areas of the plant that would have given us protection going forward? Sure we did, but that doesn't mean that we wasted an application of fungicide and the money that it cost. Thirty hours isn't enough for every product on the market to move through the plant, and if the fungicide that you choose for your V5 application wasn't systemic, then this is somewhat irrelevant to you. But for those fields that had a systemic fungicide on them before the hail, you should see a positive from that application. The protection will be there for the next few new leaves and will help protect the plant from some of the disease that we can see right after a hail event. My understanding is that the effectiveness of that application should be good enough, that the research has shown that an application of fungicide a few days after on the same plants don't show any major advantages.

So take heart, if you made that fungicide investment in a systemic fungicide, and then saw hail a day later, your investment should prove to be worthwhile. And if you have gotten hail and don't have a fungicide in place to help aid in the recovery yet, now would be a good time to talk to your trusted advisor.
