Wayne Family Coalition offers support not bandaids

By Calyn Dunklau
calyn@wayneherald.com

The cycle those in need often find themselves in is a vicious one.

Being offered assistance of just enough to get by, never enough to get ahead and truly make changes.

That cycle of 'bandaid-ing,' as Misty Bear called it, is the reason behind the first meeting of what would later become the Wayne Family Coalition.

"In October of 2016, our ministerial association in town, school personnel, food pantries all sat down. We talked about the rapidly changing demographics in Wayne, how we have a lot of food insecure homes and households in poverty. We have a lot of families we are bandaid-ing but not helping to get out of that cycle," Bear said.

Those first meetings also included members of the Norfolk Family Coalition who were invited over to discuss what their group looked like.

After visiting with them, a decision to model the Wayne group after Norfolk's was made.

"For the following year we focused on our goals and how we would get money, how we would establish a real position here when we were all just volunteers in the first place," Bear said. "It took a year and two months before we were able to get funding."

The Wayne United Way offered $2,000 in grant funds to help get the group started. This was followed by a $20,000 grant from the Nebraska Children and Families Foundation.

But getting funds was only part of the problem. Deciding how to use them was a whole different issue.

"We got this money but we really didn't know what to do from there. We needed to find a focus for that money and a human to do that job. We were stewing over that when Julie Rother at the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department offered to be that for us."

There are two bilingual staff members at the department, Georgina and Victor, as well as Peggy Triggs who have all played an instrumental role in this process and keeping the program up and running, Bear said.

Public Health already handles the med-

Members of the overseeing board to the Wayne Family Coalition meet each month on the first Monday at 9 a.m. to go over reports and give updates on individual services.

ical component, so it was a good way for them to expand their services.

The group that meets monthly now serves as the overseeing board to the coalition.

"We watch the number of families being helped, whether it's short or long term help and we look at expenditures. We have groups come from all over to present their services to us. This helps us make sure we are aware of the services out there so we can provide fast resources for families to utilize."

While a vast majority of the money goes toward families with children under 13 years old, the coalition doesn't turn anyone away. "Some of this money goes toward people who don't fit that criteria," Bear said. "We don't exclude anyone so this can help the elderly or people who don't have children."

In the month of April alone, the Wayne Family Coalition helped 14 families, including 19 children.

Those families and the help they received are documented and presented in reports during each monthly meeting.

Sitting at those monthly meetings include representatives of the Wayne Ministerial Association, Haven House, Emergency Response Team, NENCAP, DHHS, HeadStart, Food Pantry, Mobile Food Bank, Behavioral Health, Salvation Army, Wayne County Housing Authority, Wayne School District and anyone else who wants to come.

Each group gives an update on what's happening with them, Bear said, what funding they may have

It's because of so many taking part in the coalition that additional services have been able to be established or reestablished in Wayne.

For example, the Food Commodity Program for elderly had no location in Wayne so 24 individuals were forced to get to Hartington to pick up food.

When the coalition was informed of this, a program many weren't even aware of, they found a location in Wayne for the program to distribute from. Those 24 individuals no longer have to get to Hartington and more individuals who truly had no means to make it to Hartington will now have the opportunity to have food assistance available to them.

As for reestablishment, the Salvation Army hasn't been working in Wayne, but thanks to the coalition, that group is being reestablished here.

The group is determined to help as many as possible in the community, Bear said, and stand as it's own entity while doing so.

"We are looking at additional grant funds in the state of Nebraska that we can apply for," she said. "Eventually we will pull back from Norfolk and stand on our own but Norfolk has been instrumental in helping us."

Bear said that the Wayne Community was unique and generous, something the coalition has benefited greatly from.

"We have an incredibly giving community and we feel like our community can support families in need rather than have them in the bandaid cycle."

One instance included a group of students working on being better leaders.

"One Leadership Wayne Class helped us get an online page with a list of all the services available. There is a link from the city page to it."

Each family's and individual's needs are different, but the coalition does its best to meet every need presented to it.

But like Bear said, it's not about a quick fix.

"Our goal is to keep families out of that cycle. We want to truly help families by coaching and meeting needs, making plans and budgeting and offering parenting classes. We have an intake list we go over with them when they first come to us to determine where we can help."

With support from so many community agencies and the hard work of those involved, it's not surprising the services that have been utilized and the families that have been helped continues to grow.

For information on how you can help, visit a monthly meeting of the Wayne Family Coalition on the first Monday of each month at 9 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Wayne.

HELPING THOSE WHO HELP

Wayne Food Pantry asking community for help restocking shelves

In June of 2017 there were 16 visits to the Wayne Food Pantry and 76 people served. Through June 21 of this year, those numbers are 23 and 87, respectively.

This fact, and due to normal reduced contributions during the summer months, has led to some nearly empty shelves at the Pantry, located in the basement of First Presbyterian Church in Wayne.

Jenny Hammer, coordinator of the Food Pantry, said she has seen a number of new people in the community using the Food Pantry, particularly young people with families..

"We have gotten to the point where we have had to go out and purchase items for the pantry. We usually use the monetary donations to purchase perishable items," Hammer said.

She said the pantry is low on most items and is encouraging anyone interested in making a donation to drop off items at the church, located at 216 West Third Street in Wayne, Tuesday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon or at Pac 'N' Save or Quality Foods in specially marked containers. Monetary donations may be mailed to the church also.

Specific food items that are always needed include:

syrup and pancake mix, peanut butter, jelly, soup, cereal, canned fruit, tomatoes (all types), beans of all kinds, boxed potatoes and boxed rice. Diapers, toiletries and paper products are also needed.

"Right now, we are low on jelly/jam, condensed soups (other than chicken noodle and beef), instant potatoes, stuffing and paper towels," Hammer said.

Deb Daehnke, who has been a volunteer at the Food Pantry for approximately four years said that since she first got involved, the area where the food is stored has been remodeled and shelving added. This has made it easier to shelve and distribute the food.

"I think that since I started volunteering, the number of donations made to the Food Pantry have increased, but we also seem to be handing out more food. New families are being served," she said.

Daehnke said that depending on the week, she spends between five and 20 hours organizing the shelves and preparing boxes of food.

"We have a list of items that go into each box and then ask those who will be receiving them if they would like items such as laundry detergent or coffee if we have these available," Daehnke said.

Boxes generally include pancake mix and syrup, peanut butter, jelly/jam, chunky soup, condensed soup, rice, spaghetti sauce, spaghetti and other pasta, large and small cans of fruit, tuna, canned chicken, cans of beans (any type) canned tomatoes, macaroni & cheese, instant potatoes, meals in a box, cereal, canned vegetables, crackers, toilet paper, paper towels and soap. Additional items are added when they are available.

Daehnke, along with Charlene Rasmussen and Barb Greve, volunteer their time shelving the food that comes in and making sure boxes of food are ready for those who use the services of the Food Pantry.

Other volunteers who have spent countless hours with the program (several of them since the Pantry began) include Jerry and Rita Sperry, Dan Sukup and Kent and Jodi Pulfer.

"The people who come here are in desperate need for a number of reasons. Their level of thankfulness is overwhelming," Daehnke said.

The Backpack Program is also coordinated through First Presbyterian Church. Wayne Community School students who were enrolled in last year's (2017-2018) Backpack Program may still receive a backpack once a week at the high school office, through Friday, Aug. 10. The school office is open Monday through Thursday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The food may also be picked up at The Early Learning Center, 803 Providence Road in the Sunnyview Business Park on Wednesdays or Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. or at the First Presbyterian Church during regular office hours.

During the last school year there were 113 students enrolled in the Backpack Program and 3,304 bags of food were distributed.

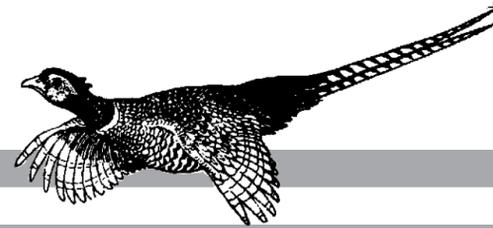

For more information on either program, contact the church office at (402) 375-2669.

Those in need of Food Pantry services are reminded of the guidelines:

- You must be a Wayne County resident;
- You must have a photo identification;
- You will need to provide the basic information for recordkeeping (name, address, etc.)
- You may receive food up to three times per year.

Mildred Brownell

Mildred Pearl (Hingst) Brownell, 95, of Wakefield, died Saturday, June 23, 2018 at the Wakefield Health Care Center in Wakefield.

Services will be held on Thursday, June 28, at 10:30 a.m. at Salem Lutheran Church in Wakefield, with Pastor Patty Meyer officiating. Burial will be in the Wakefield Cemetery.

Arrangements are with Bressler – Munderloh – Smith Funeral Home in Wakefield.

Mildred Pearl (Hingst) Brownell was born March 3, 1923 on a farm southeast of Emerson, the 11th child of Lillie Bokemper Hingst and Adolph Hingst. She spent most of her childhood days there. She attended East Ward Country School for eight years and then walked four and one half miles to and from Emerson High. She was only the second in her family to graduate there. She took classes in "Normal Training" which allowed her to begin teaching right out of high school at the age of 17. She taught rural schools in Dixon and Thurston Counties; at one school she taught a classroom of 28 pupils in grades 1 through 8, as well as doing her own janitor work, carrying in coal, starting the fire, carrying out the ashes as well as the many other jobs associated. She was baptized and confirmed at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Emerson.

On Feb. 1, 1945 she was married to Jack Brownell at her church. They lived on a farm far north of Emerson for seven years. Two children blessed their marriage. They moved into Allen. As her family became established, she resumed teaching kindergarten at her alma mater. Also she began night classes and summer school at Wayne State College. The family moved to Kearney for a short time and returned to live in Wakefield for the rest of her days. Here she taught first grade for two years and then kindergarten. Meanwhile she achieved both her Bachelor of Education and Master of Education degrees. Her dreams in her growing up years were to be a teacher or run an ice cream shop. She was able to fulfill both as she and her husband built and ran The Brown L drive in. Her passion was helping children learn. Her hobbies included reading, playing cards, especially bridge, pinocle and 500. She enjoyed time with her grandchildren and became involved in their activities. She loved poetry and could recite many from memory; both classics and children's poetry. In her later years Mildred enjoyed and appreciated the Senior Center.

Survivors include her son, Richard (Jane); daughter Barbara (Steven Romersheuser) of Eagle, Colo. and grandchildren, Brett Brownell, Maggie (Kevin) Box, Anna Brownell, Jean Romersheuser (Ashley) Guy, and Louis Romersheuser; two great-grandchildren, Cameron and Samantha (Maggie) Box, and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband (Jack) of 67 years; a granddaughter, Katie Brownell; six brothers, Chris, Harland, Wesley, Percy, Adolph and Alvin Hingst and six sisters, Elnora Boyd, Lavina Barton, Verna Petersen, Agnes Temple, Eunice Hingst and Lillian Simons.

Why America needs Community Colleges

By Michael R. Chipps, Ph.D.
President, Northeast Community College

At a White House forum this spring, President Trump indicated that he was confused by the term 'community colleges.' The president's remarks included, "So we need vocational schools. Now, they call them, a lot of times, community colleges. I don't think it's an accurate definition."

It is understandable why America's highest political officer may be confused as America's community colleges are often misunderstood by those who may not use them or do not comprehend why they were originated. George Santayana, a 20th century philosopher, essayist, and poet, once stated, "Those who do not remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

And so it goes with taking time to understand why America's community colleges were created in the first place. In 1947, President Harry S. Truman commissioned a task force to create a place in higher education that is accessible and affordable for all Americans.

Actually, these colleges were in existence well before 1947. Community colleges in America were originally known as junior colleges and have their origins with the Morrill Act of 1862, which allowed Americans expanded access to public higher education. Joliet Junior College in Illinois was the first junior college to open its doors in 1901. Twenty-seven years later, Norfolk Junior College began operations and is now known as Northeast Community College.

As Northeast developed, the Nebraska Legislature decided to merge all of its technical and junior colleges into six massive service areas now known as the Nebraska Community College System. The legislature also broadened what these merged institutions were responsible to do on behalf of all Nebraska citizens. The four legislated tenets of technical education, academic transfer education, continuing and customized training, and applied research became the mantra for this relatively new sector of higher education.

President Truman understood that all citizens needed a better avenue to further their education beyond high school and America's community colleges were going to be the grand experiment to accomplish that vision. These more affordable and accessible institutions were to be within driving distance of all Americans and were to offer all kinds of programs and services that would make and keep the United States strong and productive.

So, I am not certain if President Truman fully understood where his appointed commission would take America with affordable and accessible higher education. But the end result is phenomenal from academic transfer, to high skills development, to remedial education, to customized training for business and industry, to giving immigrants an opportunity to learn to speak English ... and the list goes on.

As noted above with Nebraska's vision, community colleges are so much more than a high technical skills development 'vocational' training entity. Even though we are proud to serve in that capacity, we are also so much more to our fellow Nebraskans.

Northeast and this nation's approximately 1,100 community colleges have educated countless millions of Americans who have had the wonderful opportunity to receive an education through these institutions.

I understand and appreciate why President Trump is confused as he may not be keenly aware of why America's community colleges were established in the first place. And Santayana is correct. If we don't know or have an appreciation for history, then we are destined to repeat it. So, the possible lesson to be learned by all of us is to first understand and then speak softly with our newly attained, but limited comprehension.

America's community colleges are largely misunderstood by those who may not have conducted research as to why they exist and about the broad-based responsibility given to serve so many sectors of the American population.

Northeast Community College is so much more than an academic transfer or technical institution. It is key in creating high value through increasing economic opportunities across our 20-county service area and beyond. No matter what we are named, Northeast and America's community colleges do incredible work with all sectors of the population. We are the boots on the ground, the good neighbor, the one who is there when you need us most.

Simpson becomes 144th Eagle Scout for Wayne troop

During the recent Eagle Scout ceremony, James Simpson was recognized for joining the four percent of scouts who have achieved the highest rank in the Boy Scouts of America. James is the 144th Eagle Scout from Troop 174 in Wayne.

He is the son of Jeff and Colleen Simpson of Wayne. James will be a junior at Breeze Hill Academy where he is home schooled.

When asked about his years in Scouting, James said, "I was able to participate in many cool and interesting things. Probably my favorite activity in Boy Scouts was at the Philmont Boy Scout High Adventure camp in Cimarron, N.M. We were on a 95 mile hike, but one of Scout Leaders had a pedometer which showed 120 miles of walking activity from leaving and returning to Wayne. We climbed different mountains and you felt like you were at the top of the world. It was being with other guys and realizing that we had an almost 20 mile hike one day and you all had to work together to make it. Basically it was guys acting like guys and doing hard things..."

Since his start in scouting, James has earned many awards: Arrow of Light, first person in Wayne to receive all four of the Religious Emblems for the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod and 57 merit badges.

In 4-H, James is known for his efforts in the shooting sports program and was on four National BB gun teams. James' accomplishments in 4-H include grand Champion for poultry showman for four years.

James plays violin in the Sioux City Youth Symphony, played in the Northwest Honors Orchestra of Iowa and had the opportunity to play with Sioux City Symphony.

James said, "My Dad got involved with scouting because the original principals of the founder of Boy Scouts, Lord Baden Powell, which was to provide outdoor skills training using Christian principles to raise up a Godly next generation of men. I believe I have had many opportunities to learn many new life skills. My Eagle Scout project which included a picnic shelter, two fire rings, two fire grills, flag pole and scenic viewpoint for the Wayne community at the end of South Nebraska street used many of these skills. I was able to work with the city council, the city parks and recreation personnel, the Wayne State College construction class, local business men and a lot of my fellow scouts. My eagle scout project taught planning, presentation and communication skills. I believe these skills will be an asset to me for my life time. I have truly appreciated the founding principles of Lord Baden Powell."

Chamber Coffee

Dr. Lauri Zink, DVM, (right) spoke during last week's Chamber Coffee. The event was hosted by the Wayne Veterinary Clinic to introduce a new veterinarian, Dr. Stevie Buettgenbach. Dr. Stevie, as she prefers to be called, is a recent graduate of veterinary school and began work at the Wayne Veterinary Clinic in early June. Dr. Zink spoke of the variety of animals seen at the clinic and the fact that there are now four veterinarians on staff to handle the needs of the community.

Wayne resident reports Texas woman's attempt to sell young daughter for sex

According to Texas television station KETK and the Wayne Police Department dispatch, a Wayne resident was contacted by 44-year old Carrie Songer Kelly during an attempt to sell her 8-year old daughter for sex.

The Wayne resident contacted the Wayne Police Department to give details of how the woman contacted him through an app, offering her 8-year old child up for sexual intercourse in exchange for $100.

The Wayne Police Department contacted the Long View, Texas authorities and an investigation into the allegations was launched in December.

The investigation turned up pornographic videos that Kelly is alleged to have made featuring the child.

Carrie Songer Kelly

Kelly was booked into jail earlier this month with a bond of $200,000.

Podcast explores diversity at Northeast

A new podcast developed by students at Northeast Community College is taking a closer look at the diversity within its own student body.

HawkCast was developed and produced by students serving on the staff of the Viewpoint, Northeast's student newspaper.

"You look at everybody you see, and you don't realize that everybody has a story, everybody has something interesting to say. And finding that out is fun," said Hunter Bergman, Neligh, creator and host of HawkCast.

Bergman said his idea for the podcast started when he became acquainted with his teammates on the Northeast men's soccer team, many of whom hail from other countries.

"There's so much culture and diversity on Northeast's campus, and I want to capitalize on that and get people to realize that we have students from Colombia, Brazil, Africa. There's so much more diversity in Norfolk, Nebraska, than you could ever imagine."

With HawkCast only an idea in his mind, Bergman approached Nancy Sutton-Smith, mass media instructor, about creating a podcast. Soon, he had joined the staff of the Viewpoint, even though it wasn't a requirement for his business administration major.

Bergman said Sutton-Smith assisted with graphic design and other skills he needed to learn to make the podcast a reality.

"Without the Viewpoint, I would not have the tools to make a podcast. That boosted my creative and professional skills, just by taking that one class."

Bergman said that as he interviews students about their diverse backgrounds, he's often surprised by similarities between cultures.

HawkCast can be found at <https://viewpoint.com/category/the-viewpoint-podcast/>.

Wayne State College adds new Agricultural Communication and Leadership Concentration

WSC will be the only institution in Nebraska to offer the concentration through the Communication Arts Department.

Wayne State recognizes the growing need for professionals within agriculture with the skill sets needed to advocate for a field that provides approximately 1 in 3 jobs across Nebraska. Wayne State's newly created agricultural communication and leadership concentration taps a growing profession that brings together agricultural, food, and life sciences with a practical understanding of all forms of marketing and public relations communication. Wayne State College will be the only institution in Nebraska to offer a concentration in agricultural communication through the Communication Arts Department.

"I love that this concentration provides students with new options and opportunities that they may not have considered, or even been aware of," said Dr. Yasuko Taoka, dean of the School of Arts and Humanities. "Many students who are interested in agriculture and natural resources might assume that the career paths are limited to farming and sales, but there are so many other aspects of the agricultural sector that house fulfilling careers. This concentration answers the call for students who are passionate about the fields of media / public relations and agricultural / environmental resources. If you're interested in making videos, writing articles, and using social media to share your passion for agriculture and natural resources, this major concentration is for you!"

The agricultural communication and leadership concentration will be included under the mass communication major. The concentration will include the mass communication core courses (15 credit hours) plus 21 credit hours in radio and video production courses, public relations, social media marketing, organizational leadership, intercultural communication, and agricultural communication. In addition, students may choose a 48-hour concentration by choosing 12 more hours of elective credit from areas such as public relations writing, advertising copywriting, electronic journalism, and other communications areas.

"The new concentration is geared to students who have a passion to communicate agriculture and perhaps have been involved in 4-H and FFA in the past," said Dr. Deborah Whitt, chair of the Communication Arts Department. "The department will also offer students the opportunity to participate in a new student club called, 'Agricultural Communicators of Tomorrow.' ACT is a nationally recognized student media club."

This concentration will provide students an opportunity to apply their communication skills in yet another area of employment that is particularly relevant to our state. Internships are readily available for communication students to serve on agricultural boards, associations, and councils. The program of study in agricultural communication and leadership would pair well with other programs of study at Wayne State. For example, students could be encouraged to minor in biology choosing 21 hours of courses that might include zoology, environmental studies, conservation biology, Great Plains flora, experimental plant science, ecology, and wildlife management

By studying agricultural communication and leadership, students will learn the complexity of communicating the science of agriculture in our media-rich world through writing, photography, video, and radio production. As such, students will learn how to promote an ag business, popularize a new agricultural method, and/or advocate for issues embedded in this industry, which addresses the workforce needs of business and industry and makes Wayne State students more marketable upon graduation.

Capitol peregrine falcons' second nesting attempt fails

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission

A second nesting attempt this year by the peregrine falcon pair atop the Nebraska State Capitol Building in Lincoln has failed.

The latest nesting attempt began near the end of May, when the female peregrine falcon laid three eggs in the nest box located on the Capitol's 18th floor. Over the past week, two eggs disappeared, leaving one egg attended by the pair. By late Monday, June 25, the pair was incubating the remaining egg infrequently, and by the following morning, neither adult was present at the nest box.

"Based on the circumstances, we can conclude the remaining egg will not hatch," said Joel Jorgensen, nongame bird program manager for the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

In late April, the peregrine falcon pair selected an alternative nest site in a gutter at the base of the Capitol's dome. It was not known how many eggs were laid because the nest site was inaccessible, but the nesting attempt failed in early May following a period of rain.

This year's unsuccessful nesting attempts follow a similar outcome in 2017, when five eggs were laid, none of which hatched. In 2016, one out of five eggs hatched. The pattern of decreasing egg fertility is believed to be associated with the birds' age. Alley, the female, is 14 years old and the male, 19/K, is 17 years old. Maximum longevity of peregrine falcons is 16-20 years.

Alley and 19/K are the only peregrine falcons that have successfully nested at the Capitol and they have fledged 23 offspring since 2005. Out of the 23 young, six have been observed as adults away from the Capitol. Boreas, hatched in 2007, and Nemaha, hatched in 2009, nested at the Westar Energy building in Topeka, Kansas, from 2011 to 2016. Mintaka, hatched in 2010, has been nesting on Omaha's Woodmen Tower since 2012. Lewis, hatched in 2012, was observed near Houston, Texas, in the winter of 2014 and this past winter. Clark, also hatched in 2012, was discovered nesting at Omaha Public Power District's north Omaha power station in 2015. Orozco, hatched in 2015, recently was discovered nesting at a third site in Omaha.

Building fund growing

Haven House has surpassed the one-third mark in their $300,000 building campaign.

Area businesses have generously donated amounts ranging from $1,000 to $25,000 to help Haven House reach its goal.

The money will go toward the purchase of the previous Magnuson-Hopkins Eye Clinic.

The goal of the campaign will be to raise enough funds to purchase the facility and move in during this summer before starting renovations to the facility.

A total of $114,000 has been raised so far.

Lions Club offers free vision screening for children

The Wayne Lions Club and other volunteers recently completed the vision and dental screening of 96 children at Rainbow World Daycare Center in Wayne.

The screening event was a cooperative activity of the Wayne Lions and the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department (NNPHD).

Children six months and older, with parental permission, were eligible for the free vision and dental screening. The eye screening process is as simple as having a picture taken. Lions Club volunteers used a state-of-the-art vision screening device, which is 85-90 percent accurate in detecting vision problems. It only takes moments per child, requires no preparation or medication and is totally painless.

The Lions were assisted on May 14 by a Rainbow World staff member in screening 87 children. The Lions returned to Rainbow World on May 17 to screen the children who were absent on the 14th. In total, 96 children were screened, there was one referral.

The attention to youth vision screening is but one area of interest for Lion Club members; many Nebraska clubs participate in the screening as well as collect used eye glasses for redistribution.

The Nebraska Lions Club website (<http://www.md38.com/nlf-sight.html>) explains the importance of vision screening for children, "The first few years of a child's life are critical in the development of good vision. Preschoolers should have their vision checked for issues such as misaligned eyes, and problems that need correction with eyeglasses. These problems are not always evident by simply looking at a child. Young children often compensate for vision problems so well that parents, teachers, and pediatricians are unaware of a problem. By the time a child is old enough to be in primary grades, many of these common vision-robbing conditions can no longer be effectively treated. Amblyopia, also known as lazy eye, can develop when an undetected vision problem goes untreated during a child's formative years. The incidence of amblyopia in the United States is estimated to be three to five percent of the population. Vision problems can also result in learning difficulties as a child enters the primary grades.

Because the eye is almost completely developed by the time a child is six years old, early detection of vision issues is mandatory in enabling critical physical and mental development and preventing sight-robbing diseases. Less than 20 percent of children receive a comprehensive eye exam prior to age six. Studies show that during a child's first 12 years, 80 percent of all learning is obtained visually. And down the road, studies indicate 70 percent of juvenile delinquents are found to have a vision problem." Eye screening at a young age is important in helping children learn and develop to their greatest potential.

Lion Hilbert Johs said the Wayne club is pleased to be able to offer this important service to the community and is making plans to contact other day care centers to offer vision screening. The club will also be contacting pre-schools in the area to provide vision screening in the fall when schools are in session. Anyone who would like to learn more about the Lions Club or the vision screening process is asked contact Lion Johs or join the group at a Lions meeting the first Tuesday of each month at Taco's and More at 6:30 p.m.

Gov. Ricketts surveys Northeast Nebraska flooding as the state assists with response

On Tuesday, Governor Pete Ricketts surveyed flood damage in portions of northeast Nebraska caused by heavy rain in the area. The Governor joined members of the Nebraska National Guard to get an aerial view of flooding impact to counties in northeast Nebraska.

The affected counties include Burt, Butler, Colfax, Cuming, Dixon, Dodge, Platte, Saunders, Thurston, Washington, and Wayne counties as well as counties located along the Missouri River in southeast Nebraska.

During the month of June, Nebraska has been impacted by a sustained period of severe weather and many other counties and homeowners across the state have experienced damage due to flooding and high winds.

The Nebraska Emergency Management Agency (NEMA) has been working with local, state, and federal officials to provide assistance to the counties in need while gauging the total damage and impact from the flooding.

To keep up to date on road closings, visit the Nebraska Department of Transportation's traveler information website at <http://www.511.nebraska.gov/> or follow them on Twitter @Nebraska511. Anyone who becomes involved in an emergency situation due to the flooding, please call 9-1-1 immediately for assistance.

Locally, the City of Wayne has closed the pedestrian trail immediately from Victor Park east to Roosevelt Park where it goes under the bridge on Highway 15.

The headwall has given way and water is undermining the concrete slabs going up both slopes east of the bridge. A large hole along the south abutment has formed where someone could become trapped if they fell in.

The State has looked at the bridge and feels it is safe for highway traffic at this time. An inspector will be on site tomorrow from Lincoln.

Spectacular views, hail damage seen after storm

While it is too early to make a determination on the extent of the crop losses, a hail storm on Saturday evening caused damage to area corn and soybean fields. The crop is still in its early growing stage and may be able to make up for the loss of some of the leaves, but yields may be reduced because of the damage. Rain reports vary throughout the area, with some reports of up to eight inches. (right) Sunday's sunset and the position of the clouds and a rainbow, created an interesting photo.

Lahm, Alderson, earn Academic All-American team honors recently

Two Wayne State track and field athletes earned spots on the Google Cloud Academic All-American teams, it was announced by the College Sports Information Directors of America earlier this week.

Derek Lahm was named to the 2018 Google Cloud Academic All-American First Team for Men's Track and Field/Cross Country, his third honor after earning third-team selections in 2015 and 2017.

A senior from Columbus, Lahm carries a 3.92 grade-point average majoring in chemistry and health science.

During the indoor season, Lahm was the NSIC champion in the long jump (23-8 1/2) and also earned All-NSIC honors with a second-place finish in the heptathlon at 5,063 points.

In the outdoor season, Lahm was a national qualifier in the decathlon after setting a new school record, winning the NSIC title with 6,951 points. He also set a new school record this year in the long jump (24-7 1/4) and was All-NSIC in the long jump and javelin with a pair of third-place finishes to go with winning the NSIC decathlon.

Academically, Lahm was also named the Bob Cunningham Male Scholar Athlete of the Year this year at Wayne State College as the top male scholar athlete. He is the seventh Academic All-American since 2012 for Wayne State College men's track and field, joining Mickey Doerr as a three-time Academic All-American (2012, 2013, 2014). Doerr was a third-team selection to the Capital One All-American Team in 2012, a second-team choice in 2013 and a first-team recipient in 2014.

Mary Alderson was named to the 2018 Google Cloud Academic All-American third team for Women's Track and Field/Cross Country.

A graduate student from North Bend, Alderson maintains a 4.0 grade-point average while majoring in chemistry/health science. She is one of 19 Academic All-Americans selected that recorded a perfect 4.0 cumulative grade point average this year.

This season, Alderson recorded an eighth-place finish during the indoor season in the NSIC 600-meter dash (1:42.82) and was fourth in the 400-meter dash during the NSIC Outdoor Championships with a time of 56.64 seconds.

Alderson was a double-event winner at two meets this season, taking first in the 200 and 400-meter dashes at the WSC Wildcat Classic on March 22 and the Mount Marty Twilight Meet on April 25.

With the selection, Wayne State College has back-to-back Academic All-Americans after senior thrower Michaela Dendinger was voted Academic All-American second team last season.

18-under Dirt Devils end season at Pierce

The Wayne Dirt Devils 18-under team completed their season over the weekend, going 3-1 at the Pierce Tournament.

The Dirt Devils won their pool, beating Ponca 16's (15-6), Sandhill Sharks (6-1) and Norfolk Kelly's (7-0) to move on to the semifinals on Sunday.

In the win over Ponca, Courtney Bokemper threw a five-hitter with Tori Kniesche pitching an inning of relief.

Seven players had two hits in the game. Sidney Biggerstaff had a triple and a single, Bokemper had two doubles, Kniesche and Kayla Fleming both had a double and single and Masyn Dorey and Allison Claussen each had two singles. Abby Ankeny added a double and Grace Lindsay and Nikki Fertig each had hits.

In the win over the Sharks, Dorey hit an inside-the-park home run and added a single to lead the attack. Annie Kniesche had three hits and Biggerstaff, Anke-ny, Claussen, Bokemper and Tori Kniesche each had hits. Kniesche threw a two-hitter in the win, striking out 11.

In their final pool game of the day, Kniesche threw another two-hitter and fanned 16 to help Wayne to the win. Annie Kniesche homered and singled, Biggerstaff had a single and a double, Fertig doubled, Claussen had two singles and Fleming, Ankeny and Tori Kniesche all had hits.

The 18-under Devils faced the Sandhill Sharks in the semifinals on Sunday, and the offense left 11 runners stranded as the Sharks avenged an earlier loss with a 6-3 win.

Biggerstaff homered, Ankeny had a double and a single, Fleming and Tori Kniesche each had two hits and Bokemper and Fertig added hits. Kniesche struck out nine and allowed three hits and two walks, while Bokemper struck out one and gave up four walks.

Devils 12-U goes 2-2 in league tourney

The Wayne Dirt Devils went 2-2 in league tournament action over the weekend in Pender.

Wayne opened the tournament Friday with a dominating win over Wisner, posting a 22-5 blowout.

Wayne lit up the opposition in every inning, including a nine-run fourth inning to end the game on the mercy rule.

Taytem Ellis hit for the cycle and had five hits, five runs scored and four driven in to lead Wayne's 23-hit attack. She singled in the first, tripled in the second, doubled in the third and led off the fourth with an inside-the-park home run before hitting another single later in the inning.

Hannah Gubbels had four hits, four runs scored and three RBI. Emily Jaeger and Natalie Kruger each had four hits and three runs, Sammi Gubbels scored three times, Sam Gubbels had two hits and Madelyn Janke scored two runs. Catilyn Mostk also had a hit and two RBIs.

Sammi Gubbels pitched the win, striking out four and allowing five hits.

Wayne's first loss in the tournament came on Saturday morning as they dropped an 11-5 decision to Fremont Force Black.

Fremont built a 6-2 lead before Wayne got to within a run in the bottom of the third. Hannah Gubbels had a bases-clearing double after Wayne opened with a walk and two singles to load the bases. Fremont answered with two more in the fourth and put the game away with three in the fifth.

Liberty Titiml and Delaney Kruse both had two hits to lead Wayne's nine-hit attack. Hailey Schroeder scored twice. Rylin Hall pitched for the Devils, striking out seven.

Wayne stayed alive in the tournament with a 17-2 blowout win over Logan View. Wayne scored nine in the opening inning and added five more in the second to put the game out of reach early.

Wayne sent 14 batters to the plate and had 10 hits in the first inning. Jaeger had a two-run double to highlight the big inning.

Natalie Kruger had three hits to lead the charge while Jaeger, Kruse, Mostek, Sam Gubbels and Hannah Gubbels had two hits apiece. Sam Gubbels scored three times and Schroeder, Jaeger, Jensen, Mostek, Janke and Hannah Gubbels had two runs apiece. Sammi Gubbels got the win, scattering five hits and striking out five.

The Devils tournament run ended with a heartbreaking 9-8 loss to Fremont Force Yellow. Wayne came back from a 7-0 deficit, only to see the Force score two in the last inning to steal the win.

Trailing 7-0 in the second, Wayne got two runs when Kiera Haase had an RBI groundout and Titiml scored on a wild pitch. Ellis later stole home to score the third run of the inning.

In the third, Wayne came all the way back to take the lead. Haase started the rally with an RBI single, Ellis followed with an RBI single and Haase scored on a bases-loaded walk. Kruse followed with a two-run single to give Wayne the lead before Fremont rallied.

Titiml had three hits and two runs to lead Wayne, while Ellis and Kruse each had two hits. Ellis scored twice and Haase drove in two runs. Kruse and Hall combined on the pitching effort, allowing eight hits and striking out two between them.

The Dirt Devils finish the regular season this weekend with the state tournament at Hastings.

Blue Broncos fall to Lakeview

The Wayne Blue Broncos fell behind early and couldn't come back in a 7-3 loss to Columbus Lakeview on Monday.

Columbus Lakeview took the lead on a single in the first inning.

Kaleb Moormeier toed the rubber for the Blue Broncos. He went three innings, allowing four runs on five hits, striking out five and walking one.

Colson Nelson and Kaden Keller entered the game as relief, throwing two innings and one inning respectively.

Keller, Gavin Redden and Jase Dean each managed one hit to lead the Blue Broncos.

Wayne tore up the base paths, as two players stole at least two bases. Nelson led the way with three.

Dirt Devil 14's drop doubleheader

The Wayne Dirt Devils 14-under team lost a doubleheader in Yankton last Tuesday, falling to the Yankton Fury Bandits 3-0 and 7-5.

In the first game, Wayne was limited to singles by Aliah Schulz and Brooklyn Kruse. Yankton broke a scoreless tie with three runs in the fifth inning to claim the win.

Kendall Dorey took the loss in the opener in spite of a good effort. She struck out seven and allowed only two hits while walking five.

In the nightcap, Wayne scored four runs in the first inning, but could hold back a Yankton rally as the home team scored late again to get the win.

Wayne scored early as Virginia Kniesche singled, stole second and third and came home on an error.

They added three more runs as Hope O'Reilly scored on a bases-loaded walk and Dorey and Schulz both came home on wild pitches.

Yankton scored three in the top of the fourth before Wayne countered with an RBI single by Chloe Klug, scoring Taytum Sweetland for a 5-3 Devils advantage.

That lead wouldn't last, however, as Yankton rallied for three more in the fifth and held on for the win.

Wayne had five hits in the contest and Klug and Amara Hurlbert both had RBIs. Hurlbert scattered seven hits and struck out four in a losing effort.

The 20-8-1 Dirt Devil 14's will compete in the state tournament this weekend in Lincoln.

Legislative Update Property taxes, TEEOSA in focus

It is such a blessing to live in this amazing country and the great state of Nebraska. I am thankful for our freedoms and for those who protect them. Have a safe and happy Independence Day!

I have really enjoyed getting out to local events the past few weeks to meet with constituents and community leaders. It was also a pleasure to attend the Nebraska GOP State Convention in Nebraska City. On June 12th, I was happy to join South Sioux City in welcoming the Husker Nation Tour featuring UNL Athletic Director Bill Moos and UNL Football coaching staff. It was exciting to spend time with fellow fans to learn about and get ready for the upcoming football season with Coach Frost.

Nebraska's residential and agricultural land property taxes are remarkably higher than our six closest neighbors, and school funding has been closely tied to property taxes since the creation of the Tax Equity and Educational Opportunities Support Act (TEEOSA). Created in 1990, TEEOSA calculates the expected sources of school funding for each school district based on the schools' needs and existing resources. Legislative changes to TEEOSA during years in which revenue fell combined with rapidly increasing property valuations caused an overreliance on property taxes as the major source for school funding. Nebraska outspends our neighboring states in per-student funding, yet produces similar, or sometimes worse, educational outcomes. It is important that we examine why it costs Nebraska considerably more to educate our children than neighboring states and the effect that has on our property tax rates.

Last Friday, Senator Mike Groene, Chair of the Education Committee, held a press conference to announce the formation of the Tax Equity and Educational Opportunities Support Act (TEEOSA): School Funding Legislative Study Group that is set to meet during the interim. The Study Group includes a diverse range of senators from across Nebraska: Tom Brewer (LD 43), Mike Hilgers (LD 21), Brett Lindstrom (LD 18), Lou Ann Linehan (LD 39), Jim Scheer (LD 19), Tom Briese (LD 41), Curt Friesen (34), Suzanne Geist (25), and Justin Wayne (LD 13) in addition to Senator Groene (LD 42). Senator Groene described the Study Groups plans as a three-pronged approach:

1. Study the history of TEEOSA to understand where we are and where we started. This will include understanding changes made over the years leading to the current formula, comparing public education funding of neighboring states and across the nation, looking at TEEOSA allowable spend-

Legislative Update
By Joni Albrecht
State Senator, District 17

ing growth factors, and studying factors causing the funding shift to property taxes (i.e. property valuations and property tax diversion programs such as Tax Increment Financing, Homestead Exemptions, low income housing exemptions, etc.).

2. Seek a sustainable and constant local State Aid resource to serve as the Foundation Aid. This will include seeking innovative new ideas, as well as looking at options already presented in recent proposed legislation. Senators Briese, Friesen, Groene, Scheer and Wayne have all introduced related bills.

3. Create a legislative solution for the 2019 Session that stabilizes state aid to ALL local school districts while reversing the present property tax burden that stabilizes at a responsible inflationary growth.

As the third prong indicated, the end goal of the study is an introduction of a single 2019 legislative bill addressing the TEEOSA revenue flaw that puts equity back into school funding and can garner the support of the full Legislature."

As property tax relief continues to be my number one priority in the Legislature, I am hopeful that this bi-partisan group will bring a dynamic discussion to the legislature and viable solutions to correct school funding and rising property taxes. I am excited to work on legislation with my colleagues.

I want to encourage my constituents to reach out to me, I look forward to hearing from you!

Capitol View You win some, you lose some

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Chalk up at least some partial wins in three high profile challenges impacting Nebraskans: the number of signatures required to get on the ballot; details about execution drugs; and the removal of a University of Nebraska-Lincoln instructor from the classroom.

A federal judge ruled that Nebraska's law raising the number of signatures required to win a place on the ballot is unconstitutional. A Lancaster County District judge says the state must release records of communications with the supplier of Nebraska's execution drugs, invoices, inventory logs and photographs of packages. The American Association of University Professors added the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to the list of censured administrations for violating the academic freedom of a professor removed from the classroom to end public backlash from a campus "free speech" incident.

U.S. District Judge John Gerard ruled against a new state election law sharply limiting an independent candidate's access to Nebraska's statewide ballot. The challenge came from Kent Bernbeck of Elkhorn who wants to run for state treasurer and was the topic of a recent Capitol View column. The American Civil Liberties Union and ACLU Nebraska sided with Bernbeck that increasing the number from 4,000 to about 121,000 signatures of registered voters is unconstitutional.

Gerrard's order wiped out a 2016 law that opponents contended effectively blocked the pathway for independent candidates because of the cumbersome and expensive challenge of acquiring that number of signatures. Secretary of State John Gale and Attorney General Doug Peterson apparently decided to settle the case by agreeing the new requirement exceeds the signature requirements permissible under the First Amendment. Kudos to Bernbeck and the ACLU for a good fight and to Gale and Peterson for realizing it was over.

I agree with ACLU Nebraska Executive Director Danielle Conrad that the swift, successful settlement of this case reinforces Nebraska's long and proud tradition of ensuring fair elections and providing a level playing field for all candidates.

A Lincoln judge said the state must release records of communications with the supplier of Nebraska's execution drugs, invoices, inventory logs, Drug Enforcement Administration records and photographs of packaging under public records laws. Judge Jodi Nelson said the Department of Correctional Services is to disclose the documents within seven days of the order, but a state appeal will likely delay that.

The judge also found that certain other documents which identify execution team members, including purchase orders and chemical analysis reports, are exempt from disclosure under a state law protecting the identity of the execution team. The ACLU of Nebraska, the Lincoln Journal Star and The Omaha World-Herald filed separate lawsuits asking for the release after state Corrections Director Scott Frakes refused public records requests.

Frakes said he feared that making the names of execution team members public could lead to those people and their families being threatened or harassed. OK, I'll buy that. But the state is going to kill someone to prove a point that it is wrong to kill someone. Perhaps the state shouldn't be in the execution business, notwithstanding the vote of the people after a campaign largely funded by Governor Deep Pockets who couldn't pull enough of his tightly strung partisan strings to avoid a legislative override of his veto of the measure passed by lawmakers after years of introspection and honest debate.

The American Association of University Professors added the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to its list of administrations censured for violating academic freedom. The AAUP is a nonprofit membership association of faculty and other academic professionals headquartered in Washington, DC.

Yes, it was founded in 1915 and has apparently helped shape American higher education by developing the standards and procedures that maintain quality in education and academic freedom in colleges and universities. The organization says it: defines fundamental professional values and standards for higher education; advances the rights of academics, particularly as those rights pertain to academic freedom and shared governance; and promotes the interests of higher education teaching and research.

I'm not sure how the organizations' involvement in the case of a University of Nebraska English department lecturer and PhD student who was removed from the classroom after a campus incident meets those goals. The organization contends that UNL removed Courtney Lawton in an effort to end an ongoing backlash against the university. That so-called backlash included criticism from three state senators.

A video of Lawton protesting a recruiting event for Turning Point USA, a conservative student group on campus, went viral and drew criticism from conservatives who cited it as evidence of liberal bias on UNL's campus. I'll let the academics argue that and the lawyers litigate the alleged lack of due process if they choose. But, does one side have more "rights" than the other? Isn't that the problem with this country right now?

State Sen. Steve Erdman of Bayard, one of several senators who raised the initial stink about the Turning Point matter and demanded Lawton be fired, makes a good point. Erdman said he doesn't care about UNL being added to the AAUP Censure List or professors being added to Turning Point USA's Professor Watch List. He wrote that "neither of these two lists should matter nearly as much as the opinion of the people of Nebraska."

At the end of the day, there is that.

Statement by Steve Nelson, President of Nebraska Farm Bureau, regarding House passage of Farm Bill

"Today (June 21), the members of the House of Representatives took an important step in moving Congress toward passage of the new farm bill. As I've stated on many occasions, food security is national security and the farm bill is the instrument that delivers that security for Americans."

"While not perfect, the Agriculture and Nutrition Act of 2018 achieves many of the provisions sought by Nebraska Farm Bureau and its members in a farm bill. The House adopted legislation that protects federal crop insurance, provides meaningful adjustments to commodity title programs, improves conservation programs, and provides funding for research, trade promotion, and rural development programs that will benefit farmers, ranchers, and virtually all citizens across our state and our nation. It also contains provisions to allow agriculture interests to work to address critical issues related to health care and health insurance."

"We especially want to thank all three of Nebraska's House members, Congressmen Fortenberry, Bacon, and Smith, as each one made their own individual mark on this vital piece of legislation."

"It's also important to note that we appreciate the work that has been done by Sen. Fischer and the Senate Agriculture Committee in advancing their version of a farm bill. We encourage the Senate to follow the lead of the House in moving promptly to deliver a farm bill that meets the needs of Nebraska's farm and ranch families to aid them in providing food, fuel, and fiber for our country and the world."

The Nebraska Farm Bureau is a grassroots, state-wide organization dedicated to supporting farm and ranch families and working for the benefit of all Nebraskans through a wide variety of educational, service and advocacy efforts. More than 61,000 families across Nebraska are Farm Bureau members, working together to achieve rural and urban prosperity as agriculture is a key fuel to Nebraska's economy. For more information about Nebraska Farm Bureau and agriculture, visit www.nefb.org.

Emergency Manager Nic Kemnitz presented information on two training opportunities. A course on the Management and Operation of an Emergency Operations Center will be conducted on June 26th and 27th in Dakota City. The evening of June 27th is the 4th Annual Hazmat Night Out at the Pilger Fire Hall. Kemnitz also reported that Region 26 will be returning the portable communication tower dispatched in May.

The county personnel policy was formally amended to include the changes effective January 1, 2018 to Health Insurance coverage. A motion was made by Larson and seconded by Burbach to amend the policy as follows:

Section 4.1 Benefits

A. Health Insurance

- The Employee will pay a percentage of their family's group health insurance premium.
- The percentage each Employee pays for family group health insurance is to be determined and set by the County Board. The County pays the remaining family health premiums.
- Any county employee eligible to be covered by Medicare or by another group policy, may be eligible to receive cash-in-lieu of insurance coverage with the requirements and amount paid to be determined by the County Board.
- Wayne County has adopted a Section 125 Cafeteria Benefits Plan available to all full-time Wayne County employees on a volunteer basis and as adopted by the County Board.

Judd Allen of NACO Benefit Service stated he would be glad to quote health insurance rates for the county. Last year they had a 14% increase, but this year it was only 3%. NACO still has a cash reserve in place that helps buy down increases.

Highway Superintendent Mark Casey reported meeting with NextEra representative Damon Stillman to fine tune the haul routes. The revisions made in the routes eliminated about half of the intersection remodeling and only one small bridge will be traveled over. If it is an empty load, that bridge won't be a problem. After the construction company completes reviewing the routes a new road haul map will be available. Casey and Stillman will be meeting weekly.

Residents appeared before the board to express concerns and ask questions on wind energy. The road haul agreement was designed to protect road usage. Concerns about safety and efficiency for school buses and harvest traffic were expressed. Haul route maps will be made available to the public as they are developed. It was noted that trucks hauling wind tower components would have lead vehicles.

The experiential learning process explained

Experiential learning takes place when a youth is involved in an activity, and they look back at it critically, determine what was useful or important to remember, and use this information to perform another activity.

The five-step experiential learning model guides the process turning activities into fun learning experiences. 4-H uses this hands-on learning approach to teach new topics and life skills. The five-step experiential learning model guides the process.

It is important that youth are aware of the learning that takes place as they are involved in experiences. As they reflect on these experiences, they can identify what was most important and how that knowledge can be applied to other life situations. Through 4-H youth programs, adult volunteers can help youth develop these reflective skills.

The Experiential Learning Model provides five steps to assist with this process.

Adult volunteers can begin by:
•Setting aside enough time for reflecting on the experience.
•Asking the right questions.
•Planning developmentally appropriate experiences that lead to reflection.
•Listening carefully.
•Supporting each youth's unique learning.

•What kinds of hopes and dreams did you have for your 4-H experience this year?

•What did you do?

•What was your goal for this project when you began?

•Tell me about your most favorite things about working on your project.

•Tell about your least favorite things about working on your project.

•What did you learn while doing this project?

•What did you learn about yourself?

•How did you share your project with others?

Step 3: Process: Identify common themes and discover, what was most important, (the life skill), about project work.

•What did you learn about yourself by doing this project?

•How did you make your decision? What steps did you take?

•What did you learn about making decisions?

•What were some of the common themes or thoughts you had?

•What was the most challenging part of your project? Why? How did you solve it?

•What did you learn from this project that you didn't know before?

•Why was this an important/useful thing to do?

•What suggestions would you have for someone else who wanted to do a similar project?

Step 4: Generalize: So what?

Identify how to use what's been learned in real life. These questions transition the experience or "product" itself to the skill being practiced in "real" life. They explore the nature of the life skill, reflect on how the life skill has been developed through their work and set the stage for application of the life skill in new situations.

•What key points have you learned?

•What similar experience have you had throughout this project/activity?

•Where have you faced similar challenges in your life?

•How is this life skill important to you?

•What did you learn about your decision-making skills?

Step 5: Apply: What's next?

These are the questions we've been building towards: We can help youth show that they have gained new knowledge and practiced the life skills learned rather than solely focusing on the subject matter or product development skills.

•What did the project mean to your everyday life?

•What have you learned about yourself? Others?

•What principles or guidelines can you use in real-life situations?

•What other situations like this have you experienced before?

•How can you use these skills in different situations?

•In what ways do people help each other learn new things?

•How will you act differently in the future as a result of this experience?

Vetter Senior Living in Emerson receives national workplace certification

Vetter Senior Living, a non-profit company serving seniors in five midwestern states, is proud to announce that all of its locations have been certified as GREAT WORKPLACES by the independent analysts at Great Place to Work®. Vetter Senior Living (VSL) employs more than 3,500 people and earned this credential based on extensive ratings provided by its employees in anonymous surveys.

Heritage of Emerson in Emerson, NE is a member of the VSL family. "We are thrilled with the results of this survey," commented VSL President Glenn Van Ekeren. "We consider our team members to be Unsung Heroes, and having more than 90% of them say they take pride in their work, and 86% who have a great workplace is a strong testament to our mission, 'Dignity in Life'."

"We applaud Vetter Senior Living for seeking certification and releasing its employees' feedback," said Kim Peters, Executive Vice President of Great Place to Work's Certification Program. "These ratings measure its capacity to earn its own employees' trust and create a great workplace - critical metrics that anyone considering working for or doing business with Vetter Senior Living should take into account as an indicator of high performance."

"The Great Place to Work certification is another tool to help us attract the best and brightest people to join our teams, which can only help us maintain a high quality of care for the seniors we serve," said VSL chief people officer Rhonda Flanigan.

A summary of these ratings can be found at <http://reviews.greatplacetowork.com/vetter-senior-living>. VSL employees completed 2,145 surveys, resulting in a 90 percent confidence level and a margin of error of ± 1.13.

Lutheran Women's Missionary League Convention held

Approximately 300 women of all ages and a few men arrived in Norfolk for Nebraska North District Lutheran Women's Missionary League's (LWML) 39th biennial convention.

The convention theme was "His Light on Our Path," based on the scripture from Psalm 119:105 "Your Word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path." And from Isaiah 2:5, "Come, let us walk in the light of the Lord."

The convention was held June 22-23 at Lutheran High Northeast in Norfolk.

President Crystal Miller began the convention with a strike of the gavel in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. Convention attendees listened to keynote speaker Donna Pyle. She impressed upon listeners that they are the light to those around them.

"We are light through all the mission projects and Mission Grants," she said. "When we share the light, God is there with us. God not only give us light, He walks with us."

She ended with the thought, "Our life with God is legit, and lit."

The evening entertainment included a musical sharing the joys and woes of being "The Church Basement Ladies" following the antics of four generations of Lutheran ladies and their pastor who work in the church kitchen.

On June 24 Richard Snow, President of the Nebraska District LCMS proclaimed in the Morning worship Service to "Soak in the warm, love, beauty and light of the Word made flesh. We cannot live perfect lives, we live in the truth and are sanctified in God's glorious grace. God gives you His grace and love; It is our joy to soak in that light and share the light."

Rev. Brent Smith, Missionary Speaker, encouraged those in attendance "We see His Light on Our Path by telling more and more people about Jesus so there will be more people in our real home in heaven." He continued by sharing stories of church planting in Latin America. From Russia to Latin America, to your own neighborhood that Light of Christ will be connected to others to shine on and on.

Bible Study with pastoral Counselor Marcel Kohlmeyer asked attendees, "How does the light of Christ shine in you? Light shines, it can't help it. You reflect the light of Christ into the world. How can we share the light of Christ in the lives of others?"

Rebecca Bonsall was the Young Woman Representative for Grace Lutheran Church in Wayne.

God doesn't always call the equipped. He equips the called."

Business conducted included selecting officers for the next biennium.

Mission grant goal for the next biennium was established at $75,000 with $30,000 to go to scholarships and $45,000 for Mission Grant projects — Mission Central - Mission Support, $10,500; Columbus Lutheran - Hispanic Ministry, $10,000; Jesus Our Savior Preschool Tuition Assistance, $10,000; Financial Assistance for food Co-op at Concordia Seminary, Ft. Wayne; Chaplain Scholarships for Medical Mission Trips, $6,000; Seminary Education for new Pastors in South Sudan, $7,500; Post-Seminary Applied Learning and Support (PALS) Curriculum Resources, $1,000.

Youth in Mission (Teens) chose for their mission grant of $218 Camp Luther - His Kids Scholarships for Campers.

To make this goal, the women of the LWML gather "mites" which may consist of just pennies, but when all the pennies are added together, they can do great things. Two of the mite-raising events at the convention involved a Rock-A-Thon and Purple Silent Auction raising money for missions.

The (LWML is the official women's auxiliary of The Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod. Since 1942, the LWML has focused on affirming each woman's relationship with Christ, encouraging and equipping women to live out their Christian lives in active mission ministries and to support global missions. LWML Nebraska North District celebrated 75 Years in LWML with purple cupcakes.

Spotlight on research associates at Haskell Ag Lab

The following is the first of several spotlights on those conducting research at the Haskell Ag Lab near Concord.

O. Adewale Osipitan

A native of Nigeria, O. Adewale Osipitan is a postdoctoral research associate at Haskell Agricultural Laboratory (HAL) in Concord.

He has worked at HAL since early 2017 on Steven Knezevic's weed science team. Osipitan's applied research focuses on weed control, specifically herbicide drift, effective dose and dose response curves for chemical weed control in field crops and pastures.

Growing up in Western Africa, Osipitan developed an interest in weed control early in life. "Weeds are plants that grow where they are not wanted. They have some characteristics that give them a competitive edge on crops if they are not properly managed," Osipitan explained. "The development of herbicide resistant weeds due to selection pressure associated with intensive use of herbicides has made weed management even more problematic."

Seeing the challenges facing producers at home, Osipitan sought to gain an understanding of weed management in the United States. He earned a Ph.D. in agronomy from Kansas State University before an opportunity arose to work with Knezevic in northeast Nebraska.

"Challenges such as pests, diseases and weed problems often reduce productivity and profitability in the agricultural sector. This makes research and extension efforts imperative to solving these problems," Osipitan said.

Osipitan's research is of critical importance to solving the challenges facing today's producers. He has spent a significant amount of time studying dicamba drift. The Nebraska Department of Agriculture has received over 90 complaints of dicamba drift onto sensitive soybeans impacting 60,000 acres.

"Our research findings on dicamba drifts have been helping farmers and policy makers understand the magnitude of these unintended drifts on sensitive crops and to take preventative measures," Osipitan said.

Osipitan lives with his wife and two sons in Wayne.

Lower Elkhorn NRD Moon Walk events

Together with the Norfolk Area Visitors Bureau and the Nebraska Game and Parks, The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District is hosting free "Stars, Strolls, and S'mores" event this summer.

The first event was held at Wood Duck Wildlife Management Area in Stanton County. Presentations included a wild herb walk, frogs and toads of Nebraska, and night photography.

The most recent event was held this week at Maskenthine Lake Recreation Area in Stanton County. Presentations included native plants for native pollinators, fireflies, and star gazing.

The final event will be hosted on July 25 at the Cowboy Trail at Tahazouka Park Trailhead in Norfolk. Presentations will include, owls of Nebraska, geocaching, and kayaking.

Moon Walks are held on Wednesday evenings close to the official full moon and begin at 7:30 p.m.

Most Moon Walks last from 1-2 hours. Walks average approximately 1 mile round trip. Each Moon Walk starts with a short introduction to the night's program, then we hike to a designated area where guests enjoy presentations. Presenters are experts in their field and are from the area. The evening wraps up with free s'mores.

Dealing with brown spots in lawns

The warm humid conditions we're experiencing can promote diseases such as dollar spot and brown patch. If brown spots appear in your lawn, diagnose the problem before applying a pesticide. Disease and insect pests can build up resistance to pesticides, especially if they are overused. Pesticides are also chemicals we should not put into the environment unless they are needed. Pesticides should only be applied after a problem is diagnosed; it is determined control is needed to reduce unacceptable damage; and it is the right time of the season to apply a pesticide for effective control.

John Wilson
Extension Educator

Brown spots in lawns are caused by a number of things ranging from diseases and insects to heat or drought stress to dog urine or gas spills. To help with diagnosis, look closely at green grass blades near the edge of the brown spots. Do this before mowing your lawn, not immediately after. If green blades appear bleached white at the tip, this most likely is Aschochyta tip blight and lawns easily recover without a fungicide. Tip blight most often develops when hot weather follows rainy periods... conditions we've seen this spring. After a week or two, the lawn usually grows out of the damage.

If there are tan bands with red margins all the way across the green grass blades, this is dollar spot disease. It's often brought on by low nitrogen so we recommend fertilizing instead of applying a fungicide for control. However, if you are going to put on a light fertilizer application, do it right away. We do not recommend fertilizing during July and August. If you have dollar spot and don't fertilize now, be sure to make a fertilizer application in early September.

If green grass blades have irregular tan spots with red margins, and these lesions do not encircle the blade, this is brown patch disease. Fungicide applications are recommended now and can be effective in stopping the spread of brown patch if applied as soon as signs of the disease appears.

If no bleached tips or lesions, or spots, can be found on green grass blades near a brownish lawn patch, then the problem might be a root disease, insect damage, environmental, or something else.

Two root diseases are summer patch and necrotic ring spot. Both are identical in appearance and form the symptom known as frog-eye. The frog-eye symptom is a brown to tan patch of grass with a tuft of green grass in its center.

The two fungi that cause these diseases infect roots in the spring; even though symptoms do not begin to appear until late spring for necrotic ring spot or mid- to late summer for summer patch after the disease weakens the root system.

Fungicides can help in reducing these two diseases, but are best applied in mid-April and one month later for Necrotic ring spot; and in early to mid-May and one month later for summer patch. So we missed the time when we'd apply fungicides this year, but mark it on your calendar for next spring. For both of these diseases, overseeding with disease resistant cultivars will provide the best control in the long run.

As for insect problems of lawns, our most common insect pest is white grubs. It's too early for white grub damage. However, now is the right time to apply insecticides containing imidacloprid to lawns with a history of grub damage. Other grub insecticides should be applied around the first of August.

Keep in mind repeated applications of insecticides containing the same active ingredient year after year could result in a reduction in the effectiveness of these products in the future. It is best to apply these products only to lawns that have had a recent history of white grub damage. If you need to treat again next year, use an insecticide with a different active ingredient.

For more information on disease or insect control in your lawn, contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

Suckers and Rapid Growth

One of the things that has been quite evident to me in the last few weeks has been the onset of suckers on our corn plants. It is not uncommon to see a few single suckers setting on between V5 and V8 corn, but this year we are seeing a lot of double suckers setting on, which is somewhat uncommon, and the timing is certainly earlier than we are accustomed to. So today, I want to offer some thoughts on why we are seeing this happen, and what it means to us and our corn plants for the next few weeks.

By Keith Byerly
Central Valley Ag ACS Manager

Historically, most of us have viewed seeing Suckers in our field as a negative. The reason for that is that we tend to think of them being a condition that is caused by the plant having an excess of what it needs. And generally, we almost always think of that excess being tied to nutrient uptake, especially Nitrogen. I know that I for one have looked at an excess of suckers setting on at V8 and talked to a grower about how we need to split up Nitrogen applications and look for ways to be more efficient. The fact of the matter is that the plant sets suckers on to deal with an excess of energy. That can be energy that comes from nutrient applications, or energy that comes from sunlight.

Over the last few weeks, an excess of energy is exactly what we had happen with our corn plants. The end of May and the first third of June were not historical in their heat, but they were not far from it. If I look at growing degree days and what is normal, many of the fields that were planted on or before the second week of May are looking at Growing Degree Day accumulations that are 20% to 30% higher than our 30-year average. That has led to some very rapid growth in our plants. But even with the rapid growth, those hot days and the warm nights have also meant that we had plants converting sunlight to sugar at a rate that was faster than what the plant could use. Plants are actually pretty smart and efficient though, so instead of shutting the factory down or throttling back, the plant found somewhere else to go with that energy.

Many people have also commented to me about how long and narrow the leaves are on the corn right now. The leaves look more like something we would expect to see the first part of July instead of the first part of June. Same scenario, different outcome, partly caused by environment, and mostly caused by the genetic family differences from hybrid to hybrid. The corn plant needed somewhere to go with the energy it was producing, so it sent that energy to the leaf and that led to a little different look to our plants.

So how do we know that these suckers are caused by sugars this year and not by nutrients? If you have been scouting and looking at the fields, the timing is a crucial indicator. The suckers were setting on in many cases before the plant had a well-established root system to intercept a significant amount of nitrogen. In any case, we know the solar radiation that we were incurring at the same time and how that should have had our photosynthesis in overdrive.

One of the questions I have been asked is what about the draw that these suckers will have on the plant's moisture and nutrient consumption. In both cases, the answer is that it is fairly minimal. The nutrients that they consume will be redistributed to the plant as needed. The transpiration will be fairly minimal as the leaf area from the suckers is pretty small compared to the total of the plant, and won't add up to more than a few tenths of an inch for the entire season, if it is even that much. So again thinking back to these suckers that we are seeing, we need to regard them not as a negative, but as a good sign. That is energy that was captured and will be used by the plant when it needs it, probably around the time that we tassel. Do these suckers call for a sweeping change in irrigation or nutrient application strategies? Definitely not. Do these suckers call for a change in total applied N for the season? I don't think so. I take it as a sign that we have a really strong start to a growing season, and we are ahead of normal on growth stage and GDD's. This hopefully means that at pollination and grain fill that we can see this energy converted into our ears and kernels. If that happens when we hit the fields with the combines this fall, we may just be thankful for the Suckers we saw in June.

Learning new tricks to make cinnamon rolls

By: Pat Meierhenry

When we lived on the farm, I made a lot of cinnamon rolls. I called kneading the dough my stress relief, and of course, I had no stress on that farm! And, I would put my cinnamon rolls up against anyone; they were good!

When we got to the B&B, my Mom took over baking the rolls. She knew I was working full time at my hospice job, and she, too, enjoyed the process. So, we usually had some in the freezer and they came in very handy.

The first Christmas after she died, we had a menu of our favorite dishes she made, including cinnamon rolls. And, there are a couple young women at church who like them, and don't have time to make them, so I occasionally bless them..

None of us knows when the practice of serving the cinnamon rolls with chili began, but I often do make them when I make chili. One of these occasions was last winter, on a Friday when the grand kids came for supper.

Well, my rolls did not rise very well, and they were not as soft as they should have been. I apologized for them, but we ate them anyway. Often, the grand kids bring boy friends, girl friends, or roommates along, and that night, one of the UNL track team members was here. It seems she made championship rolls in 4-H and took them to the Iowa State Fair. She informed me that she made them with instant potato flakes.

Well, I was a bit flummoxed, you can imagine. It was embarrassing. A couple of months ago, the Lincoln paper had a recipe for rolls using instant potatoes. I tried it; amazing! They rose like crazy, and were so soft and spongy, I almost had to corral them to put them in the pans. I now make them with the flakes, believe me.

And, lest anyone would think I keep instant potatoes on hand, I want you to know someone gave me half a box full. I didn't plan to use them until I heard about this.

I should have known any champion 4-Her would know the newest way to do something that is a very old thing in our family; something that goes way back! You can still teach an old dog new tricks!

Buckbrush control with herbicides in Nebraska's pasture explained by weed management specialist, researcher

By Stevan Knezevic - Extension Weed Management Specialist (sknezevic2@unl.edu) and O. Adewale Osipitan - Post-Doctoral Researcher - Haskell Ag. Lab, Concord.

There are about 23 million acres of rangeland and pasture in Nebraska, which spans from eastern, north central and western parts of the state. Buckbrush (Symphoricarpos orbiculatus) is a perennial weed commonly found in pastures and rangeland in northeast Nebraska (see photo).

Buckbrush often occurs in heavy stands, which can reduce desirable plant species by 84 percent. Buckbrush can significantly deplete soil water at the detriment of pasture grasses, particularly in dry conditions. Therefore, in 2016 and 2017, we compared effectiveness of seven herbicides for control of buckbrush.

Herbicides were sprayed in early June, when Buckbrush was at 2-4 feet of green growth. The evaluated herbicides were: 2,4-D LV ester® (2,4-D ester[3 qrt]), Curtail®/Cody® (clopyralid + 2,4-D [3 pt/acre]), Perspective® (aminocyclopyrachlor + chlorsulfuron [8 oz/acre]), Cimmaron Plus® (metsulfuron-methyl + chlorsulfuron [0.5 oz/acre]), Grazon P+D® (picloram + 2,4-D amine [4 pts/acre]), Milestone® (aminopyralid + triclopyr [7 oz/acre]), and Chaparral® (aminopyralid + metsulfuron-methyl [1.25 oz/acre]).

Perspective® provided the best control (80-83 percent) of buckbrush, and the control lasted over one year. Cimmaron plus®, 2,4-D LV ester® and Grazon P+D® provided 75-98% control, but this lasted only for one season (90 days after spray). Chaparral® and Curtail®/Cody® provided fair control (62-66 percent), and this lasted for one season. Milestone provided poor control of buckbrush.

These results indicated that a single application of only one herbicide provided a bit over one year control of buckbrush. In order to achieve a complete control of buckbrush, the multiple and repeated application of Perspective®, Cimmaron plus®, 2,4-D LV ester® and Grazon P+D® is needed. However, a multi-year study is needed to confirm such hypothesis.

Coalition focuses on protecting Nebraska water users

The Lower Platte River Basin Coalition, which includes all seven Natural Resources Districts (NRDs) in the Loup, Elkhorn, and Lower Platte River Basins, and the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources (NeDNR) has, after several years of work, adopted and now initiated implementation of a voluntary basin-wide water management plan that sets criteria for managing new water development in the Lower Platte River (basin). The jointly-developed plan implements goals and objectives that work to protect the existing domestic, agricultural, and industrial water uses in the Basin.

The Coalition partners worked to use the best available science to evaluate the balance of supply and demands in the Basin that begins in Nebraska's water-rich sandhills and ends at the confluence of the Platte and Missouri Rivers, covering more than 25,000 square miles, or nearly one-third of Nebraska.

This unique Basin provides water for irrigation that sustains the area's agricultural economy, drinking water for more than half of Nebraska's residents, as well as other important industrial and instream water demands.

"This proactive partnership worked to voluntarily develop a plan for the future conjunctive management of the groundwater and surface water systems in this important river basin," Russell Callan, General Manager, Lower Loup NRD, said. "Nebraska's locally-driven groundwater management system, through NRDs, is a unique and strong approach for our state. This comprehensive basin-wide plan is another example of local and state jurisdictional entities working in partnership to protect all of Nebraska's water users, protecting lives, Nebraskans' property and our economic future, Callan said

For more than 45 years, locally-elected NRD boards have successfully worked to address local groundwater quantity and quality management challenges. Water managers have recognized that what occurs in the sandhills of the upper portions of the Loup and Elkhorn Basins impacts the Lower Platte River Basin near Lincoln and Omaha's water supplies in the lower portion of the Basin. Likewise, changes in a variety of water demands in the lower part of the Basin can impact the upper portion of the Basin. This Basin planning effort improves the collaboration between groundwater and surface water jurisdictions and managers across the whole Basin and establishes a framework for continually assessing impacts and identifying opportunities for more efficient uses of Nebraska's water. The plan also encourages local NRD and stakeholders to work together with the state to consistently gather and share data, apply technical analyses that will be used for long-term monitoring, and establish benchmarks to maintain water sustainability across the entire Basin.

"The fact that seven locally elected boards with varying local priorities were able to voluntarily sit down with the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources and develop a plan that works to protect all water users now and for the future, as a foundation to grow our economy, while also ensuring our most precious natural resource is protected, is a valuable outcome for all water users in the state," said Jeff Fassett, Director of NeDNR.
