Fair week for Wayne County

NextEra breaks ground on Sholes project

State and local leaders and landowners joined executives from NextEra Energy Resources, a subsidiary of NextEra Energy, Inc. and Omaha Public Power District (OPPD), to break ground on Nebraska's newest renewable energy project – the Sholes Wind Energy Center. The project will create hundreds of construction jobs as well as millions of dollars in economic benefits for the region according to a press release from NextEra.

"This project represents a more than $200 million investment in Nebraska," Armando Pimentel, president and chief executive officer of NextEra Energy Resources said. "We are pleased to partner with OPPD to bring low-cost, renewable energy to their customers, and for the tremendous support we have received from the community of Wayne and Stanton Counties, many of whom stand to benefit from the project for years to come."

The Sholes Wind Energy Center will feature 71 GE wind turbines designed to pivot to capture the prevailing wind and convert it to clean, renewable electricity. The project is set to have a generating capacity of nearly 160 megawatts. An affiliate of NextEra Energy Resources will build, own and operate the project. The energy will serve customers of OPPD through a 20-year power purchase agreement.

Wind energy represents a clean, renewable source of energy that creates no greenhouse gases or other air pollutants, uses no water resources to generate electricity and creates no waste by-products, according to NextEra's press release, which was an attraction for OPPD.

"The inclusion of the Sholes wind farm in OPPD's generation portfolio not only helps us reach our renewables commitments, but will also have a positive economic impact on the surrounding area," Timothy J. Burke, president and chief executive officer of Omaha Public Power District said. "We look forward to working with NextEra Energy Resources to provide environmentally sensitive electricity to our public power customer-owners."

NextEra said the Sholes Wind Energy Center will provide a significant economic boost for Wayne and Stanton Counties, creating approximately 200 jobs during the construction phase this year, and up to 10 full-time jobs to support the project once it becomes operational in December 2018. The project is expected to provide more than $30 million in property taxes to Wayne and Stanton Counties over its first 30 years of operation, and approximately $40 million in payments to local landowners. Luke Virgil, executive director of Wayne Area Economic Development echoed excitement for the project's impact.

"We are thrilled to see the Sholes Wind Energy Center being built in Wayne County. We believe the project will generate more than just renewable electricity. We believe it will create great jobs, provide new income for landowners, and establish collaborative partnerships between various entities, which should generate long-term stability in the area. Further, the project creates new revenue streams for the county and area schools, which may help to ease the increasing burden of property taxes on landowners," Virgil said.

NextEra has pledged to sponsor tours of the Nebraska State Capitol for all fourth grade students in Wayne and Stanton Counties, for the operational life of the Sholes Wind Energy Center.

West Nile confirmed by Northeast Nebraska Health Department

According to a press release from the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, the first pool of mosquitoes testing positive for West Nile Virus (WNV) has been found within the health district of Cedar, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties for the 2018 season.

Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department suggests the following steps to prevent mosquito bites and the spread of West Nile Virus:

- Apply a mosquito repellent approved by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) whenever you go outdoors. This includes repellents with DEET, Picardin, Oil of lemon eucalyptus (OLE) or para-menthane-diol (PMD), IR3535, and 2-undecanone. Follow directions when applying repellent on children. Do not use insect repellent on babies younger than 2 months. Oil of lemon eucalyptus or para-menthane-diol should NOT be used on children under 3 years of age.
- Wear long sleeves and pants when outdoors to limit skin ex-- posure;

- Remove standing water where mosquitoes breed: birdbaths, old tires, clogged roof gutters or wading pools.
- Vaccinate horses.

Mosquitoes are most active between dusk and dawn when the air is calm, but some will feed at any time of day.

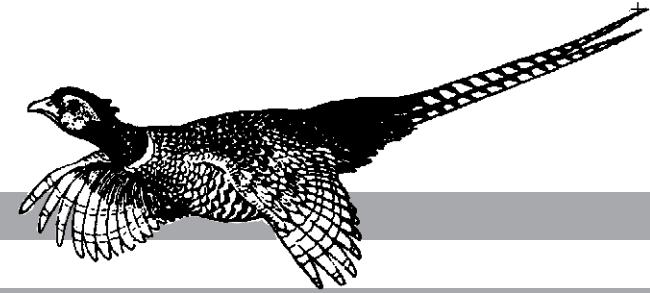

Mild cases of West Nile Virus (WNV) infection may include a slight fever and/or headache. Severe cases include a rapid onset of a high fever, head and body aches, and usually occur 5 - 15 days after being bitten by a mosquito infected with WNV. Go to your doctor if you have these symptoms during mosquito season (June - September).

People at highest risk for serious WNV illness are those over 50 years of age and those on steroid medicines or chemotherapy. Healthy children and adults are at a lower infection risk but can still become ill.

Nebraska DHHS launches eWIC Benefits Card

The Nebraska Women, Infants & Children (WIC) public health nutrition program will begin offering families a new way to shop with WIC food benefits.

An electronic benefit transaction card will be phased in to replace paper checks between August and November 2018. Once implemented, 340 WIC authorized grocery stores and pharmacies in Nebraska will be able to accept the cards. During the transition, there may be a handful of stores that only take checks and will not continue to eWIC. Clients will be given a list of the stores in their area that take eWIC.

The electronic WIC (eWIC) card works similar to a debit card, except that the cardholder's account contains specific foods instead of a dollar amount. At the beginning of every month, specific food benefits are automatically deposited into the family's eWIC account, versus receiving separate checks for each family member. Every time a purchase of a WIC-approved food item is made, that item is subtracted from the family's monthly balance. When families shop, benefits that aren't used are available for the next trip to the grocery store, until the end of the month.

Moreover, the process of identifying correct foods and quantities at identified needs of residents in the 14 county service area. The Agency serves over 10,000 clients a year due to successful outreach efforts.

NENCAP programs include the Commodity Supplemental Food Program; Family Services; Immunization; Weatherization; Head Start; Women, Infants, and Children Nutrition; Early Intervention Services Coordination; Healthy Families. The agency serves Knox, Antelope, Pierce, Madison, Stanton, Cuming, Thurston, Dakota, Burt, Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Washington and Dodge counties. For more information on NENCAP programs, call 1-800-445-2505.

NENCAP's mission is: "People helping people; empowering individuals, strengthening families and enriching communities in Northeast Nebraska."

the register is automated through the scanner, and the purchase of WIC foods can be combined with other items at most stores. WIC purchases made at the retail stores are automatically submitted for payment, which is typically made within two days.

The pilot for eWIC ran from June 4 through July 31 of this year at East Central District Health Department in Columbus, which provides service at clinics in Columbus, Schuyler, Albion and Fullerton. Thirteen local pilot retailers were certified to accept eWIC cards. Approximately 600 families received an eWIC card during the pilot phase to purchase their food benefits.

A survey was designed to assess participant satisfaction with WIC services, including a before and after measure of eWIC. Once the eWIC card is available statewide, WIC families will be asked about their satisfaction with the new system through a follow-up WIC customer survey.

In 2010, Congress amended provisions of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, including a new requirement for all WIC state agencies to implement EBT by Oct. 1, 2020.

Chamber Coffee

WAYNE — This week's Chamber Coffee on Friday, Aug. 3 will be hosted by George Phelps, CFP, CLU, CHFC at his new location at 120 West Third Street. The coffee on Friday, Aug. 10 will be held at the Wayne State College Bookstore on the WSC campus. The coffee begins at 10 a.m. and announcements at 10:15 a.m.

Bus Service

AREA — Any family in the Wayne Community School district who has not received a bus request form and would like to use the bus service for the 2018-19 school year is asked to contact Pam Anderson at the Wayne Jr./Sr. High School office or call (402) 375-3150. Students from the city of Wayne and surrounding rural Wayne County, and Carroll students who wish to ride the bus, are eligible to do so. Town bus stops include: Viken Park/Sunnyview Park Shelter, Vintage Hill Park, Hank Overin Baseball Field, Bowling Alley, Rainbow World (Daycare participants only), Muhs Acres and the Carroll Auditorium.

Farmer's Market

AREA — The Wayne Farmer's Market is held on Wednesdays, from 5 to 7 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. The market is located at the corner of Second and Pearl Streets, just north of the 1912 Emporium. A variety of seasonal produce, baked goods and other items will be available. Vendors are encouraged to attend and should contact the Wayne Area Economic Development Office at (402) 375-2240 for more information.

Sewer cleaning

WAYNE — The city of Wayne Sewer Department is currently in the process of having sewer mains cleaned in various parts of the city. In this process high pressure water is forced through the sewer pipes to clean it. The entire process is necessary to keep obstructions out of the sewer system and to insure proper drainage of waste. The high pressure water pushes air in the sewer line and occasionally enters private sewer lines into homes and businesses.

Controversial Riverfront Trail project approved by NRD

By ANDREA LARSON,
alarson@norfolkdailynews.com

Reprinted with permission from the Norfolk Daily News.

A much-discussed — often emotionally — river restoration project will move forward with the financial support of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

Ultimately, the board at its meeting Thursday night (July 26) voted 8-5 to provide the funding for the development of the North Fork River over a several-year period.

Board members Matt Steffan, Jerry Allemann, Roger Gustafson, Mark Hall and Chad Korth voted no, while Bob Noonan, Jill Barr, Scott McHenry, Joel Hansen, Kurt Janke, Robert Huntley, Dave Kathol and Dennis Schultz voted in favor. Gary Loftis was not in attendance.

The riverfront trail project will receive $1.032 million, divided out over four years — 2019-2022 — from the NRD. This will cover one-third of the $3 million project, with the other two-thirds coming from the private sector and a source to be identified by the City of Norfolk.

At the board's June 28 meeting, Norfolk Mayor Josh Moenning said the local match on the trail project will be financially split evenly between Norfolk and the NRD.

Prior to Thursday's vote, city engineer Steven Rames told the board he had always considered the Riverfront Trail project as primarily a safety and river restoration project.

"There is certainly a recreational aspect, but the river rise engineering report calls it a river rehabilitation project. ... Although there has been a lot of conversation on the recreational outcome, it's not really about that," Rames said.

Gustafson questioned whether the city had approved its end of the financial agreement, and Rames answered, "Yes, there is a budget line item for it" in relation to the improvement of Johnson Park in the proposed city budget.

Korth, who said he knows a man who will lose his home because of the river rehabilitation project, asked Rames what he should tell that man.

Rames answered that the issue of river restoration is part of the responsibility of the NRD board. He said his responsibility was not to comment on that, but to share his knowledge of the project.

Korth then challenged any board member who voted yes "to put your money where your mouth is" and donate $1,000 each to the project. He said if that happened, he would follow suit, even though he planned to vote no.

Moenning, in attendance again at Thursday night's meeting, said he appreciated the "full and respectful discussion for this project" over the past few months at the NRD.

He said the Riverfront Trail project has been on the NRD radar of possible projects for more than 40 years and it was time "once and for all to take this last step ... and move to fulfill the vision of the leaders before us."

Steffan asked the mayor how much public support the project has and if there would be a city vote on it.

Moenning answered that the city council had considered the same study on the project as the NRD was given and has decided to make it a priority project and designated funds toward it.

However, the project "does not rise to the level of requiring a city vote," Moenning said, as it does not involve a tax increase.

"The budgeting is in our general fund obligations," he said.

Board member Dave Kathol questioned whether the city had found private funding yet. Moenning said the city is "lining up commitments," including a private business and plans for a capital campaign.

Board member Scott McHenry said he hadn't ever received as many comments on an issue in front of the NRD board as the Riverfront Trail — and nearly all of those he had heard had been in support of the project.

Korth made a motion to amend the amount of funding from the NRD to $30,000 to match what he said other communities receive from the board. That motion failed 5-8, with Korth, Steffan, Gustafson, Allemann and Hall voting yes.

Steffan then made a motion to amend the amount of funding from the NRD to $250,000. That motion also failed with the same five board members voting yes. Ultimately, the motion to approve $1.032 million for the Riverfront Trails project was voted on. Those same five board members voted no, and the motion carried.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, a new board member was appointed to the to fill a vacancy of Subdistrict 1, following last month's resignation of Mike Krueger of rural Pierce.

There were nine initial applicants to the position, with one withdrawing before Thursday's meeting.

The eight remaining candidates were briefly interviewed by the board at Thursday's meeting, and a vote near the end of the meeting went in favor of Aaron Zimmerman of rural Pierce.

Zimmerman received nine votes — coming from Bob Noonan, Steffan, Allemann, Gustafson, Hall, Joel Hansen, Kurt Janke, Korth and McHenry. Candidate Donovan Ellis of Pierce received four votes from Jill Barr, Robert Huntley, Dave Kathol and Dennis Schultz.

Several board members initially voted for other candidates, but votes were required to be taken until one candidate had received a majority vote. In the first, and only other vote for the new board member, Zimmerman received six votes and Donovan received five.

Candidates Jerry Jay Reikofski of Foster and Rick Christiansen of Plainview received one vote each the first round.

Other candidates in the running were Tom Nathan of Meadow Grove, Wayne Rasmussen of Plainview, Aaron Sausser of Tilden and Roger Tacey of Osmond.

Clarification: Mayor Josh Moenning later clarified that board member Chad Korth's statements about a man losing his house was referring a rural Tilden resident whose home is threatened by the changing course of the Elkhorn River. Moenning said Korth was asking why the board should not give the man money to save his home while giving money to the North Fork project.

Diane Roeber

Diane Roeber promoted at State Nebraska Bank & Trust

State Nebraska Bank & Trust has promoted Diane Roeber to Vice President and Trust Officer. She manages the Trust Department and all IRA accounts.

Roerber joined State Nebraska Bank in 1982 after graduating from Wayne State College. She has completed several specialized programs in handling Trusts and IRAs with the Nebraska Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association.

She plays an active volunteer role in the Wayne Community, serving as Secretary of the Wayne County Agricultural Society and Treasurer of several organizations, such as Wayne 4-H Council and Hits N Misses Bowling League.

Roerber is originally from Pender, but she and her husband raised their three children in Wayne and now have seven grandchildren. When not working at the bank or volunteering in the community, Diane enjoys spending time with family, cross stitching, sewing, golfing and reading.

Founded in 1892 and owned by the same family for five generations, State Nebraska Bank is the only bank locally-owned in Wayne. For more info, visit www.statenebank.com.

Google recognizes Sand Creek Post & Beam

Google has named Sand Creek Post & Beam of Wayne as one of 52 companies selected as a key American economic success in its newly released Annual U.S. Economic Impact Report for 2017. Nationwide, two companies selected for this past year are located in Nebraska—Sand Creek, America's leading manufacturer of wood barn, barn home, and commercial post and beam kits, and Speedway Motors of Lincoln. As part of this recognition, two Sand Creek executives—General Manager David Bird and Marketing Director Coby Wortmann—were invited to and attended the renowned "Grow with Google Business Meet-up," June 13-15. The meetings consisted of several days of networking and learning at Google's headquarters in Mountain View, CA.

Google measures its local economic impact in all 50 U.S. states and Washington, D.C to quantify the economic difference that Google makes in each state. It also cites companies that have expanded their businesses significantly through their use of the internet. This includes an examination of the economic value provided by Google Search and AdWords, Google AdSense, and Google Ad Grants to those companies. Google also takes into consideration those companies' history, growth, marketing success and community impact.

Sand Creek Post & Beam general manager David Bird credits the company's versatility and quality for Google's recognition.

"As the Google Economic Impact Report notes, our custom-designed post frame, post and beam and timber framed structures range from housing livestock to hosting weddings. Our leadership and manufacturing teams ensure quality products from horse barns, storage barns, hobby barns and workshops to high-end mountain homes and beautiful commercial venues," Bird said.

Bird said that an online presence, including leveraging Google's services, has helped the local business grow.

"We can directly equate our online investment in reaching prospects and turning them into customers. Google's tools have been essential in building our brand, as well. Some 95% of our customers buy without seeing our products in person. That's why online presence is so important for Sand Creek. We are confident that our photo gallery, quality products and customer service have been conveyed effectively via Google. Google reports that every month it helps drive one-billion direct connections such as calls and online reservations for businesses nationwide. It notes that small businesses that use advanced digital tools, such as online advertising and data analytics, like Sand Creek, are nearly three times as likely to have created jobs over the previous year using basic digital tools.

This recognition is just one of several in the last few years for Sand Creek, which received the Nebraska Third District Excellence in Economic Development Award in 2016, the Nebraska Business Development Center's Sustainability of the Year Award in 2015, and the Small Business Administration's Nebraska Business of the Year in 2011.

Qualifications for Congeniality Award outlined

"Who always greets you with a smile? Who is always very helpful in answering your questions? Who always tries their best and gives quality service? Are you wondering how to let this person know they are appreciated? We have the answer - nominate them for the Ambassador Congeniality Award."

This information is part of the Wayne Ambassador's brochure in regard to the Congeniality Award.

This award was first presented in 1986 and continues to be awarded each quarter. To nominate someone, write a brief synopsis of why he or she deserves this award and drop it off, mail, or fax it to the Wayne Area Economic Development Office.

The only stipulations are that an employer cannot nominate his/her own employee and the nominee not be a past recipient.

The presentations are generally done in conjunction with the weekly Chamber Coffee and are a secret to the recipient.

For more information on the process of nominating someone for the Economic Development Office at award, contact the Wayne Area (402) 375-2240.

Roar with the Wildcats at homecoming

Wayne State College will host its 2018 Homecoming "Dare to Roar" festivities Sept. 24 to 30 on the Wayne State College campus.

Wayne State College alumni will be recognized during two awards banquets. The Outstanding Alumni Awards Banquet will take place on Friday, Sept. 28 honoring an alumnus from each of the four schools at WSC. Recipients include Odell Santos '99, MSE '02, MSE '05, athletic director at South Sioux City High School in South Sioux City, Neb. (School of Arts and Humanities); Shawn D. ## Shop with a Cop

Members of northeast Nebraska's law enforcement community, including Wayne Police Department officer Sgt. Rick Haase took part in the "Shop with a cop" event in Norfolk last Saturday. The program paired with JC Penney's to help school-aged children purchase clothing before the new school year starts. Not only does the program help underprivileged children get clothing they otherwise couldn't afford, but it also promotes positive interaction with law enforcement officials. This year more than $1,600 was spent during the "Shop with a cop" event.

Northeast HIMS program awarded official accreditation, looks toward future

The Health Information Management Systems (HIMS) program at Northeast Community College has been accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Health Informatics and Information Management Education (CAHIIM).

The accreditation from CAHIIM allows students who have graduated from Northeast's HIMS program to apply for and take the Registered Health Information Technician (RHIT) exam, which awards them an associate-level credential in the field.

"We are so excited that our HIMS program is now accredited," said Dr. Michele Gill, dean of health and wellness at Northeast. "With the CAHIIM accreditation, our students and graduates can sit for their RHIT credentialing exam, which is the gateway to job attainment and assures employers of the graduate's industry work readiness."

Tina Mazuch, HIMS instructor, said that in completing the exam, students show they have acquired the skills and proficiency needed in today's electronic health record (EHR) environment.

"The healthcare field continues to evolve and requires professionals with skills not only in medical coding but also technical writing, data management and analytics, and project management, all skills in which health information management professionals learn and obtain throughout their educational experience at Northeast Community College."

Historically, HIMS-related programs at Northeast have gone by several names, such as medical secretary, medical office technology, medical administrative assistant and its current name: health information management systems.

Mazuch herself attended Northeast when the program was called medical office technology. An instructor in one of her coding classes held a Registered Health Information Administrator (RHIA) credential, a bachelor-level certification administered by the American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA).

"I immediately decided this was the career path and credential I wanted to pursue. In order to obtain the RHIA credential, I attended a four-year school that offered the HIMS program. I completed the associate of arts degree at Northeast Community College with the intention to transfer to College of St. Mary to complete the HIM program. I completed the program and received the RHIA credential."

Mazuch went on to earn the Certified Coding Specialist (CCS) credential and noted that AHIMA offers a number of specialized credentials HIM professionals can pursue once they obtain the required relevant experience.

Mazuch joined Northeast as a full-time faculty member in 2012, and by 2014, the newly renamed HIMS program began, enrolling 19 students. To date, 21 students have graduated from the program.

Northeast began its accreditation process in December, 2014, when it submitted its initial application to CAHIIM.

"The accrediting process allowed us to complete a rigorous self-study of the program's curriculum and coursework as well as an overall evaluation of the program and the plan for sustainability over the long run," Gill said. "We are in great shape moving forward."

Dr. Michael Chipps, Northeast president, praised the faculty and staff involved in the effort.

"HIMS professionals hold many diverse roles as they provide reliable and valid information that drives the growing healthcare industry. This is an exciting time in the program's development for Northeast, and I would like to thank our faculty and staff for their hard work and dedication throughout the accreditation process."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects that job growth in the HIMS field will increase by 13 percent from 2016 to 2026.

"As the population ages and utilizes the health information data collected, our graduates will be well-positioned to compete for these new positions," Gill said.

For more information about the Health Information Management Systems program at Northeast Community College, contact the health and wellness division at (402) 844-7325.

WSC summer music camp success

Middle and high school students from Nebraska, Iowa, and California attended Summer Music Camp July 23-26 at Wayne State College. Music faculty and local music professionals provided learning opportunities in world drumming, Garage Band, music theatre, band, choir, mariachi, ukulele, and individual instrument or voice lessons.

WSC faculty displayed their talents with a recital on Tuesday evening, July 24 in Ramsey Theatre. A grand finale concert, with participants performing repertoire studied throughout the week, concluded the camp on Thursday evening, July 26. The four-day camp also offered the experience of campus living as well as kickball, a scavenger hunt, board games, and a trivia contest.

The WSC Department of Music will make the Summer Music Camp an annual event after hearing positive feedback from participants, according to camp director and music department chair, Dr. David Bohnert.

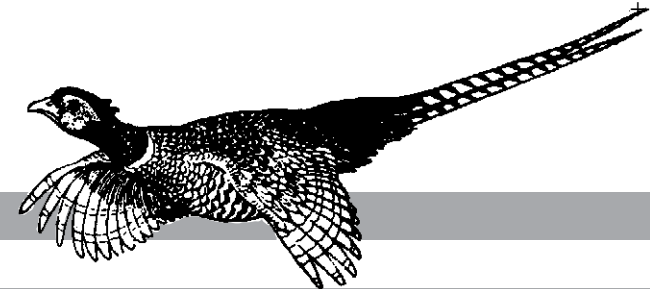

"The 2018 camp was a great success and will be a great way to establish the camp for many years to come," Bohnert said.

Wayne Seniors drop two at Class B state tournament

By MICHAEL CARNES
For The Herald

Going 0-2 in the state tournament is always a disappointment, but Wayne American Legion Post 43 Seniors coach Robbie Gamble wasn't disappointed with his team's effort.

A five-hour rain delay got the Nebraska American Legion Class B Seniors state tournament off to a late start Saturday at Hank Overin Field, and Wayne dropped games to Lincoln Lutheran and Wahoo to see their season come to an end.

After a late comeback fell short to Wahoo, Gamble said he was happy his team went down swinging.

"It was kind of disappointing, but on the other hand we did battle back there Sunday," he said. "If it would have wound up 3-0 (against Wahoo) it would have been disappointing, but this team has fought back down to the very end all season and I'm proud of them for that."

Lincoln Lutheran scored seven of their eight runs in the final two innings, including a five-run seventh inning as Wayne committed three errors and dropped an 8-3 decision in their first game.

Lincoln Lutheran drew first blood in the opening inning when Colby Bliss led off with a double and scored on an RBI single by Justin Hilton, but Wayne countered with a run of their own as Tyler Lutt led off with a double and scored on a Tucker Nichols single.

The game stayed tied until the fifth when Wayne took the lead. Mason Lee led off with a single and scored on an error, and Lutt came home on a sacrifice fly by Payten Gamble to give Wayne the 3-1 advantage.

Lincoln Lutheran countered with two in the sixth on an RBI single by Thomas Otte and an RBI double by Kasey Ohnoutka to tie the game at 3-3. Wayne's defense fell apart in the seventh, and Lincoln Lutheran took advantage by using three miscues to score five runs and come away with the win.

"I was a little worried about bringing in Payten (Gamble) to close it out," Gamble said of the late-inning finish. "He's a hard thrower and they're kind of used to that with where they play, and they really got after him and we had some errors and that was the difference. We were in it in 13 out of 14 innings and that seventh (inning) in Saturday's game was the only one where we fell apart, but we battled all weekend."

Lutt had two hits and scored two runs for Wayne. Nichols also had two hits, Adam Bentjen had a double and Lee and Ryan Jaixen both had hits. Lutt was the losing pitcher.

A seventh-inning comeback fell short for the Wayne American Legion Post 43 Seniors as they dropped their third game to Wahoo in a week with a 3-2 decision Sunday in an elimination game that saw Wayne's season end at 14-14.

The game was scoreless until the fifth when Wahoo broke through with an RBI double by Karson Hesser that scored Trey Ahrens, who led off the inning with a walk off of losing pitcher Adam Bentjen.

Wahoo got two key insurance runs in the sixth as Chase Stebbing scored on an error and Cole Culver came home on a sacrifice fly.

Wayne had a chance to come back in the top of the seventh. Brennan O'Reilly singled home Adam Bentjen for the first run, then scored on a line drive single by Nichols. Lutt was in scoring position with two out when Wahoo pitcher Austin Scott sealed his complete-game win with a ground out to end the game.

Zane Jackson and Hagan Miller both had two hits for Wayne. Gamble said Bentjen threw well in a losing effort in his last game as a Wayne pitcher.

"Adam threw very well," he said. "There were a couple of times where he'd walk a guy and we thought about pulling him, but then he bounces back and battled and stayed in the zone and did a great job."

Of the 18 players on Wayne's state tournament roster, 11 were in a Wayne uniform for the last time as senior players Ryan Jaixen, Tyler Lutt, Brennan O'Reilly, Payten Gamble, Adam Bentjen, Tucker Nichols, Justin Dean, Zane Jackson, Logan Milligan and Mason Lee suited up for the final time Sunday.

It's a group, Gamble said, would be tough to replace.

"There are a lot of holes to fill because there are a lot of guys," he said. "They're a tight-knit group and I've been coaching them the last six years and it's been nothing but a pleasure to be a part of it. They went to state three out of four years, and that's a pretty good accomplishment."

The good news is that there are several members of the state-champion Juniors team who were able to get some experience at the Seniors level, and next summer should be an interesting transition for the program.

"There are going to be a lot of holes to fill next year," he said. "We'll have to sit down first of the year and talk about how we'll approach it and see if they play two games a night or not, but we have some time to figure that out."

Adam Bentjen knocks a base hit for the Wayne Post 43 Seniors during state tournament action at Hank Overin Field. The Wayne Seniors went 0-2 as the host team in the eight-team, double-elimination tournament that was scheduled to conclude Wednesday.

WSC track teams earn academic honors

The Wayne State men's and women's track and field teams were recognized for their academic achievements with honors from the U.S. Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association recently.

For the 13th straight year, the Wayne State women earned the team academic award, finishing with a 3.587 cumulative grade-point average, which ranked third in NCAA Division II. Individuals Michaela Dendinger, Kacie O'Connor, Tia Jones and Jadin Wagner collected individual academic honors.

To qualify for the team academic award, an institution must record a cumulative GPA of 3.00 or higher and individuals must maintain a 3.25 grade-point average and have achieved a provisional or automatic qualifying mark for the NCAA Championships in either indoor or outdoor season.

Dendinger, a senior from Coleridge, recorded a 3.66 GPA majoring in biology and earned USTFCCCA All-Academic Honors for a fourth time. This season, Dendinger was named NSIC Women's Field

Athlete of the Year during the indoor and outdoor seasons and was NCAA National Champion in the hammer throw while earning national runner-up honors in the indoor shot put and weight throw.

O'Connor, a senior from Sundance, Wyo., posted a 3.74 GPA majoring in health and physical education and collected USTFCCCA All-Academic honors for a fourth time. O'Connor was a national qualifier in the discus during the outdoor season.

Jones, a sophomore from Elkhorn, maintained a 3.68 GPA majoring in sport management and political science and is a two-time recipient of the honor. Jones was a national qualifier in the shot put during the outdoor season and was first-team All-NSIC during the indoor season with a second-place finish.

Wagner, a freshman from Lawton, Iowa, recorded a 3.489 GPA in business management and is a first-time USTFCCCA All-Academic award winner. She earned All-NSIC honors placing second in the shot put during the outdoor season and was a national qualifier and placed fourth in the shot put during the indoor season.

The WSC women's track and field team placed in the top 20 nationally this season, finishing 16th in both the outdoor and indoor seasons.

For the ninth straight season, the Wayne State men's track and field team received academic honors, tying for sixth in NCAA Div. II with a cumulative GPA of 3.316. Four individuals – seniors Derek Lahm and Brady Metz, junior Robert Sullivan and sophomore Dylan Kaup – were awarded USTFCCCA Individual All-Academic Awards.

Lahm, a senior from Columbus, had a 3.924 GPA in chemistry/health sciences to win the honor for a third time. Lahm was a national qualifier and NSIC champion in the decathlon during the outdoor season while also winning the long jump. He was a Google Cloud first-team Academic All-American this season, marking the third time in his career to achieve Academic All-American Honors.

Metz, a senior from Grand Island, earned USTFCCCA All-Academic honors for the first time posting a 3.38 GPA majoring in sport management. Metz placed in the long jump and triple jump at both conference meets this season, highlighted by a third place All-NSIC finish in the triple jump during the indoor season.

Sullivan, a junior from Bennington, recorded a 3.26 GPA in exercise science for his first USTFCCCA All-Academic Award. This season Sullivan earned three All-NSIC finishes during the outdoor season and was the NSIC indoor heptathlon champion and national qualifier.

Kaup, a sophomore from Neligh, maintained a 3.75 GPA majoring in Spanish/Physical Education. He posted a fifth place finish in the hammer throw during the outdoor season with a NCAA Provisional mark.

Wayne State College was fourth during the outdoor season and sixth in the indoor season at this year's Northern Sun Track and Field Championships.

Wayne State football picked ninth in NSIC preseason poll

The Wayne State football team has been picked to finish ninth overall and fifth in the South Division in the Preseason NSIC Football Coaches Poll.

Wayne State received 111 points overall and 25 points in the South Division poll in voting conducted by league coaches. Last season, the Wildcats tied for sixth overall in the NSIC with a 6-5 record and were 4-3 in the NSIC South to secure fourth place.

Minnesota State was voted the unanimous preseason favorite in the NSIC (Coaches cannot vote for their own team) as the Mavericks received 225 points and 15 first-place votes while Winona State received the only other first place vote and 197 points to come in second. Rounding out the top five teams overall are Sioux Falls with 195 points, Minnesota Duluth at 194 points and Bemidji State with 165 points.

In the NSIC South Division preseason poll, Minnesota State garnered 49 points and seven first-place votes. Winona State followed closely behind, receiving the last first-place vote and 43 points. Sioux Falls' 37 points earned a third place prediction with Augustana finishing in the top half of the NSIC South with 28 points. Behind fifth place Wayne State (25), the bottom half finished out with Upper Iowa (18), Concordia-St. Paul (14) and Southwest Minnesota State (10).

Listed as Wildcat Players to Watch this season are senior receiver Nate Rogers and senior defensive lineman Xavier Graham.

Rogers, a 6-foot-5, 210-pound senior from South Sioux City, caught 44 passes for 577 yards and 12 TD's last season. He ranked third in the NSIC in scoring, averaging 6.5 points per game and was second in the league in touchdown receptions with 12. Rogers enters this season tied for first in Wayne State history in career touchdown receptions (27) while recording back-to-back years of 12 touchdown catches.

Graham, a 5-foot-11, 285-pound senior from Omaha, played in all 11 games, starting three, and recorded 31 tackles in his junior campaign, including 7.5 tackles for loss. Graham led the team in sacks with 3.5 while also recording two quarterback hurries and a blocked kick. Graham received NSIC South Division Honorable Mention in his inaugural season with the Wildcats after transferring from Iowa Western.

Wayne State will open the 2018 football season at home on Thursday, Aug. 30 against Winona State at Bob Cunningham Memorial Field in a 6 p.m. contest.

Wayne All-Stars play final games

It was a bittersweet week last week for three Wayne High graduates as they represented their schools one final time in all-star games last week. Kylie Hammer (pictured with her coach Lindsay McLaughlin) played in the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Game last week in Lincoln. Wayne High softball standouts Kennedy Maly and Jenna Trenhaile played in the Northeast Nebraska All-Star Game in West Point, and Maly was also a member of the Blue team in the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Game in Lincoln.

Wildcat men add juco transfer

Wayne State men's basketball coach Jeff Kaminsky announced that Al Tavivus Jackson of Cedarburg, Wis., has signed a national letter of intent to attend Wayne State College and join the Wildcat program for the 2018-19 academic year.

Jackson comes to Wayne State after spending two years at Kirkwood Community College in Iowa and will have two years of eligibility with the Wildcats. As a sophomore in 2016-17, Jackson averaged 6.0 points, 2.3 rebounds and 1.0 assists per game while playing in 30 contests for the 25-7 Eagles. During the 2015-16 year, Jackson accounted for 5.6 points, 2.3 rebounds and 1.0 assists while playing in 25 contests, helping Kirkwood to a 31-4 record and a Division II junior college national title.

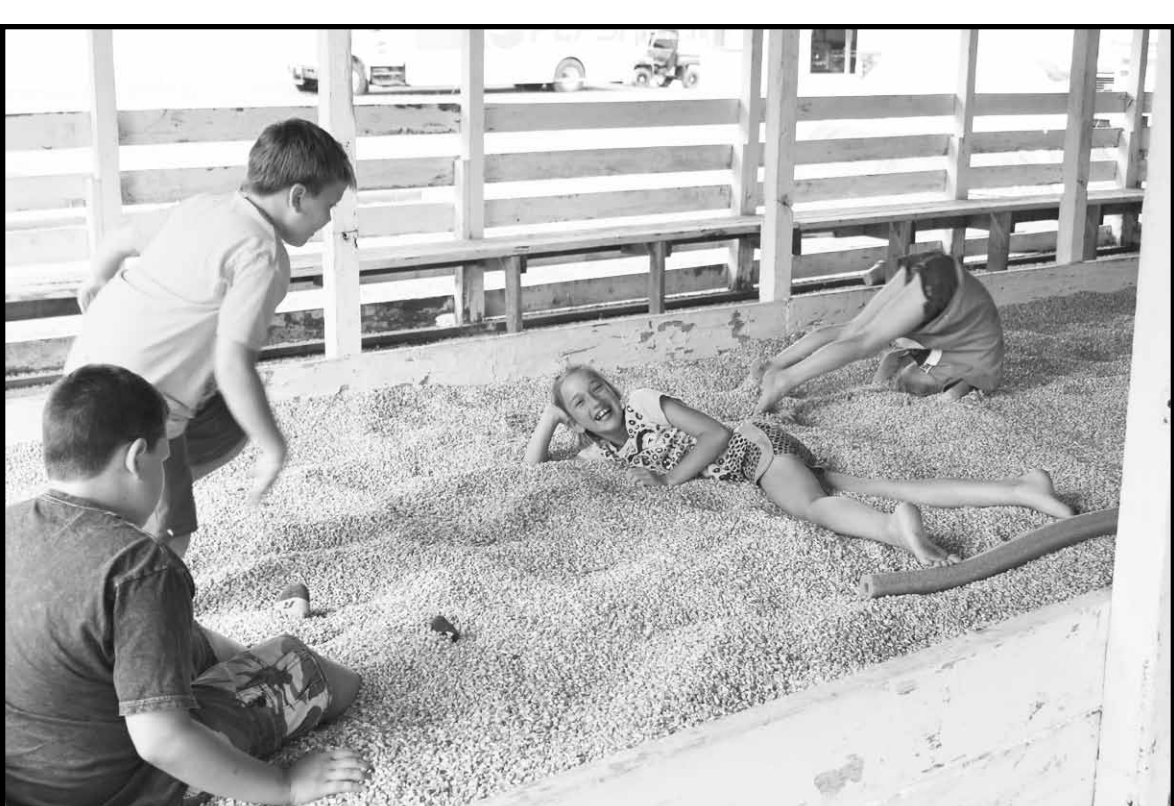

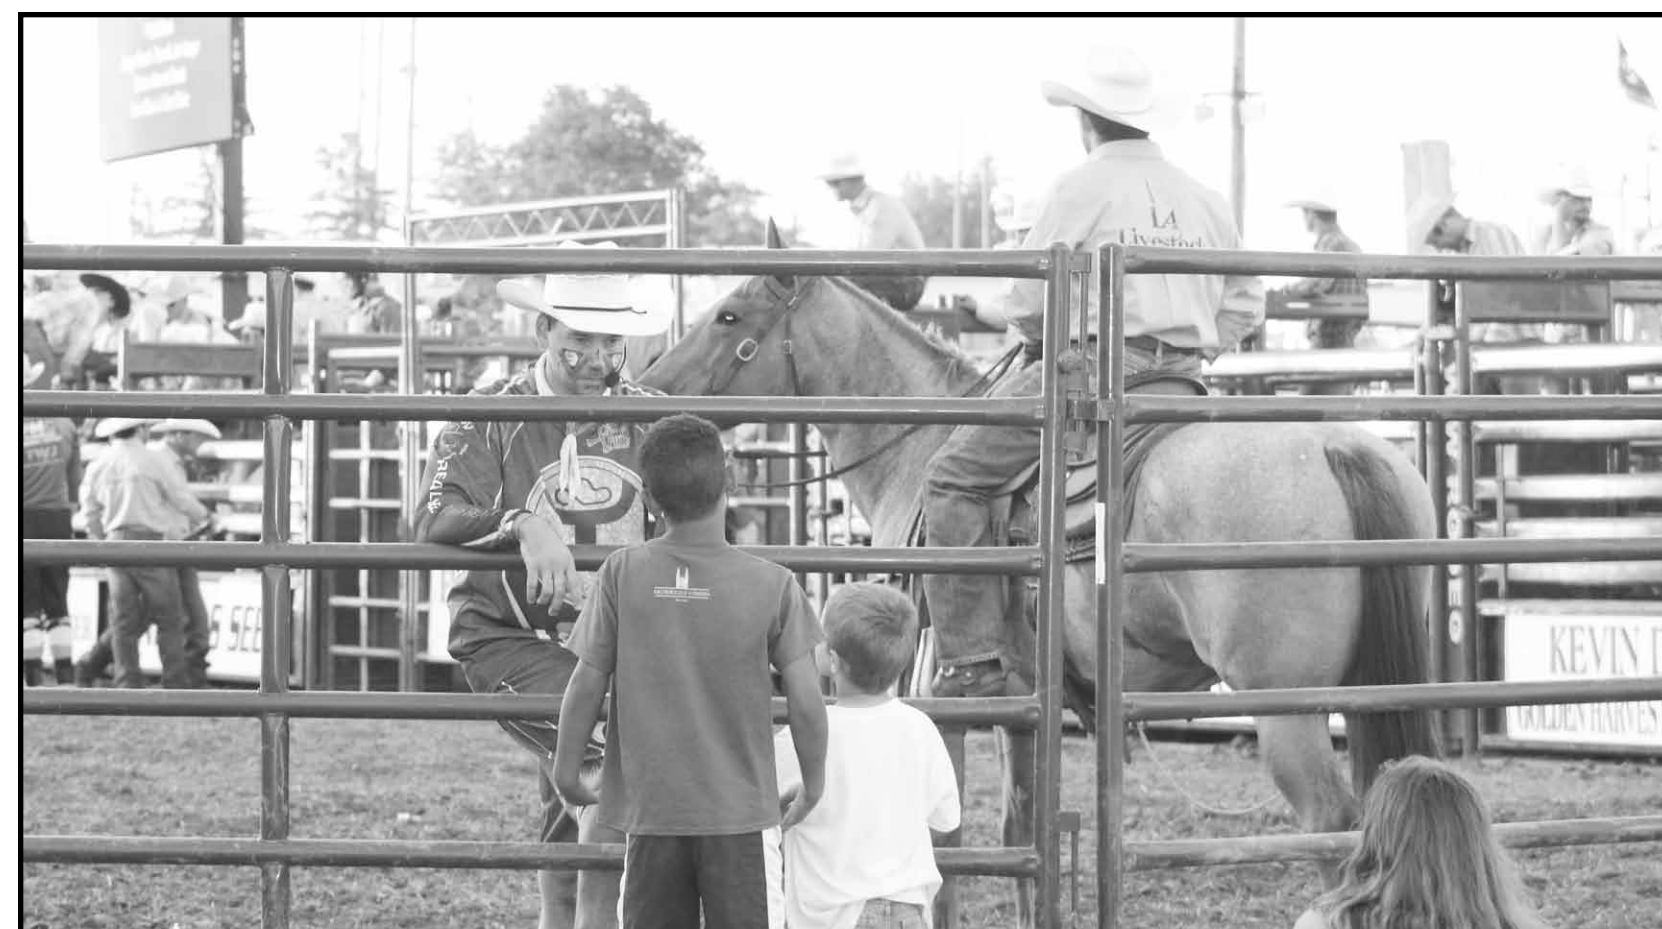

"We are excited to have Tay join our program and he is a great addition to our recruiting class," remarked Kaminsky. "We have an outstanding group of four incoming freshmen who we are confident will be a major part of the success of our program moving forward. Tay not only helps to balance our recruiting class but will add athleticism, toughness and experience to our team."

Kaminsky added, "Tay has passion for the game and has worked hard to continue to improve during this past season when he was out of basketball. He will be a great teammate and will represent our program well on and off the court."

Jackson joins Nick Ferrarini of Omaha, Jordan Janssen from Lincoln, Nate Mohr of Glenwood, Iowa and Nate Thayer of Springfield as members of the 2018-19 recruiting class.

Activities for all ages greeted those attending the 2018 Wayne County Fair. From pies in the face, from vaudeville entertainment to demolition derbies, fair-goers had plenty of options for things to see and do. Judging of 4-H, FFA and open class exhibits took place during the four-day event, as did judging of pies and desserts. Concerts by Ned LeDoux and Phil Vasser drew large crowds, as did the tractor pulls and bull riding. Hundreds of people enjoyed the free barbecue on Friday. Each evening began with the Presentation of Colors by local veterans' groups and the singing of the National Anthem. On Sunday, the final day of the fair, a number of wood carvings were auctioned off prior to the Demolition Derby. Fair-goers enjoyed favorable weather, with only rain showers on Friday evening and into Saturday to delay some of the festivities.

Summer Science Learning opportunity is available

Dixon County

Sarah (Paulos) Roberts
Extension Educator
UNL Extension

a.m. to 3:30 p.m. We will be hosting a Climate and Crops Family Field Day that will be open to the public. Features include four speaker tracks on topics such as Climate & Livestock, Climate & Crops, Climate & You, and Ag Economics. Family-friendly activities consist of robotics, Animals Inside & Out, shooting sports, science activities, and more. Adults might also be interested in the instant pot demonstrations and pressure canner testing that will be available during the event.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Backyard Farmer will have a live question and answer session and a walking tour of the Northeast Arboretum will be available. A free steak sandwich lunch sponsored by the Nebraska Soybean Board will be served. Noon speakers will include Al Dutcher, UNL Climatologist and Dr. Michael Boehm, Vice Chancellor of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources. This entire event is free, so bring the whole family.

Kids will enjoy activities like science experiments, shooting sports, pollinator activities, maker space projects, robotics demonstrations, the Mobile Beef Lab, Ponca State Park educational table and more. Booths will be open all day and families are welcome to come and go between activities.

In order to help us plan for enough food, please register at <https://halfday.eventbrite.com> or call the Haskell Ag Lab for more information. We hope to see you on Aug. 14 in Concord.

Everyone can pray for the nations

ans 3:16-17). By application, then, we understand that God's Temple is to be a place of prayer for all nations. This coincides with Jesus' command to his disciples to go and make disciples of all nations (Matthew 28:19-20). Jesus wants the people of every nation and ethnic group to come to Him for salvation.

In the passage just prior to the Temple cleansing, Jesus enters Jerusalem riding a donkey and the people shout out, "Hosanna! Blessed is he who come in the name of the Lord." The word Hosanna literally means "O Lord, save us." By the time Jesus came to the earth the word was a shout of praise related to the coming of Messiah.

Jesus is the Messiah, the one who came to save mankind through his death, shed blood, and resurrection. He also declares that God's Temple is to be a place of prayer. I believe these texts are calling the Church, God's Temple on earth, to pray for the salvation of the nations. We may not all be able to go to the nations but we can all pray for the nations.

I would like to offer a challenge to all who know Jesus Christ as Savior and who care about carrying out his commands. Would you consider taking the next 30 days to pray for the salvation of people in three areas?

First, pray for the people in our community who do not truly know Jesus Christ as Savior. Second, pray for the salvation of people in our nation. I believe our only hope for real and lasting peace is for people to turn to Jesus Christ. Third, pray for the salvation of people in a particular nation other than the United States. Choose a nation that you know something about or have a connection with.

May the church of Jesus Christ be a house of prayer for the salvation of all people from all nations!

Boxing up the books

Grace Lutheran Church's LYF group packed 90 boxes of reading books at the Wayne Elementary on July 20. These books will be sent to the Orphan Grain Train. Members of the group who helped were (left) Sarah Tompkins, Mikenzie Schafer, Karlee Janke, Katelyn Vanhorn, Leanne Westphal, Mandy Vanhorn, Rebecca Vanhorn and Austin Vanhorn. ## Wanted ... Church news

The Wayne Herald would like to print information and schedules from area churches.

All information submitted to the Herald by Monday at 5 p.m. (delivered to the Herald office) or emailed by 8 a.m. on Tuesday will be included in that week's edition of the paper.

Articles can be mailed to P.O. Box 70, Wayne, Neb. 68787 or emailed to clara@wayneherald.com

The Herald thanks its readers and area ministers for their cooperation in our effort to keep informed on the happenings at various churches.

One of the most interesting and somewhat confusing events in the life of Jesus is his cleansing of the Temple in Jerusalem.

Each of the four Gospels record this event. Jesus enters the Temple and drives the money changers and those selling animals from the Temple area. John's account states that Jesus made a whip and drove them out. He overturned the tables of the money changers scattering their money. He lashed out at those selling animals for sacrifice. The mild mannered Jesus who cared for people and held children in his arms became angry and seemed to be out of control. When we know the background of the situation, we are able to understand why his attitude and actions were justified.

In Mark's account (11:12-18), Jesus quotes Isaiah 56:7, "My house will be called a house of prayer for all nations." Then he adds, "But you have made it a den of robbers."

The people in the Temple were taking advantage of all those Jews who traveled to Jerusalem to worship and offer sacrifices. Those who traveled from other nations needed to exchange their money for the common currency of the Roman Empire. Many could not bring their animals for sacrifice because the animals may no longer be fit for the sacrifice by the time they reached Jerusalem.

So the money changers and those selling animals were providing a service to the people. They exchanged their money and sold them sacrificial animals, while making a nice little profit. Thus Jesus declared they had turned God's place of worship into a "den of robbers." Why? Because these entrepreneurs had turned a need into an opportunity to make money.

The Temple was not designed to become a money making enterprise.

Jesus declared that it was to be a place of prayer for all nations. The word for nations here is the Greek word ethnos which was sometimes translated Gentiles. The Temple God gave to the Jews was not only a place of worship but it was also to be a place where the Jews prayed for the Gentiles.

Unfortunately the Jewish people had not accepted their role as a witness to the Gentiles. Most of the Jews considered themselves ethnically superior to all the non-Jews or Gentiles. Many of them hated the Gentiles and could not wait for Messiah to come destroy them. Yet God intended that when they came to the Temple to worship Him, they would also pray for the salvation of the Gentiles.

Today we do not worship at a Temple building, but we understand that the church, the Body of Christ, is God's Temple (1 Corinthi-

Frese family descendents hold reunion

Darrel and Phyllis Rahn and family recently hosted the Frese reunion for a noon meal at Miss Mollys in Wayne. Attending were 39 descendants of Herman and Anna Frese.

Since the last reunion there was a wedding and a death. The wedding was that of Quentin and Kelsie Behlers on March 3, 2018. The death was that of Jeff Leabee age 48 who passed away March 7, 2018.

The relatives came from Sioux City, Iowa; Yakima, Wash. and Fremont, Norfolk, Pender, Winside, Carroll, Blair and Wayne in Nebraska.

Hollis Frese was the only living in-law of Herman and Anna Frese. Members of the next generation were Phyllis Rahn, Byron and Terry Janke, Karen Houpt, Janice Smith, and Jodi York. The rest of those present were children from these families. The youngest was Max Rappold grandson of Jodi York.

Darrel and Phyllis Rahn's families (Marc, Kelli and Logan Rahn and Val and Nick Perry) mixed with the group for an afternoon filled with laughter and good conversation and ended with a group picture.

The next reunion will be hosted by Hollis Frese at Hilltop Cafe and a date announced at a later time.

Control of perennial invasive weeds with repeated applications of herbicides researched

It is a well known fact that herbicides have potential for managing perennial invasive weed species; however, it is also well known that a single application of most herbicides provide only a short-term efficacy (one or two year suppression). We believe that this short-term assessment is not sufficient, as perennial species can propagate by multiple means, including seeds and perennial roots (rhizomes, stolons and crowns), which all contain secondary buds that can sprout new shoots after an initial damage by herbicide.

Therefore, we have conducted a 10-year herbicide efficacy study with a pilot species, purple loosestrife (Lythrum salicaria L.). Purple loosestrife is an invasive weed introduced from Eurasian to North America in the early 1880's, and has become widespread in the United States. The spread of purple loosestrife is reducing the biodiversity of riparian areas across Nebraska and elsewhere in United States.

As of 2001, purple loosestrife was declared a noxious species in Nebraska, as it poses a serious threat to the economic, social, or aesthetic well-being of Nebraska's landscape. Thus, we have evaluated the effectiveness of 14 herbicide treatments for purple loosestrife control over a 10-year period. A total of four studies were conducted at four sites. The first site was along the Missouri River near Newcastle, northeast Nebraska, with about 10 year old stand (according to landowners).

The Buffalo site, established along the Platte River near Kearney had a 3-years old stand; the Brown site, established along the Niobrara River north of Johnstown with 5-year old stands; and the Holt site, along the local private lake north of Atkinson with the 3-year old stands.

The evaluated 14 herbicide treatments were: glyphosate (4 and 6 pt/acre); 2,4-D amine (2.5 and 5 pt/acre); triclopyr (3 and 5 pt/acre); imazapyr (4 and 6 pt/acre); metsulfuron (2 and 4oz/acre); fosamine (3 and 5 gal/acre); triclopyr (3 pt/acre)+2,4-D amine (2.5 pt/acre); and metsulfuron (1 oz/acre) + 2,4-D amine (2.5 pt/acre). Herbicides were applied when purple loosestrife was blooming, which was approximately the last two weeks of June each year.

Herbicide efficacy rating was conducted at 60 and 360 days after treatment (DAT) utilizing a scale of 0-100 percent (where 0 = no control and 100 percent = plant death). It is important to note that not all treatments were applied every year. For example, during the initial years of the experiments all herbicide treatments were applied every year, but the decision whether to respray a particular treatment was based at the rating from 360 DAT; hence, all treatments with ratings lower than 100 percent were resprayed.

Purple Loosestrife Control

Our data showed that the age of purple loosestrife stand was critical for effective control. The younger the stand, the faster the control was achieved.

For example, the three year old stands from Buffalo and Holt required 2-3 years of consecutive spraying to provide complete control of the purple loosestrife. At Holt site, the three-year old stands were completely controlled by glyphosate, imazapyr, and metsulfuron after two consecutive years of spraying, while 2,4-D, triclopyr and fosamine required three years.

The five-year-old stands at Brown site, required 2-5 years of consecutive spraying to achieve complete (100 percent) control, depending on the herbicide. For example, the earliest complete control was achieved with metsulfuron sprayed yearly for two consecutive years, while three years of consecutive spraying of glyphosate, imazapyr, and a mix of 2,4-D dimethylamine plus triclopyr was needed to provide complete control. Yearly spraying of 2,4-D dimethylamine, triclopyr, and fosamine for 5 years was required to completely control the 5 year old stand at Brown site.

The 10 year old stand at Dixon site required 3-9 years of spraying to achieve complete control, which varied across herbicides. For example, imazapyr required three years of consecutive spraying to achieve complete control, while it required yearly applications of 2,4-D, triclopyr and fosamine for a period of 9 years to provide complete control of the 10 year old stands. This is suggesting that herbicide selection is critical for faster control.

All treatments at all four sites were also rated and monitored for an extra three year after last spraying, and all ratings showed 100 percent control.

Practical implications

In general, our study had clearly shown that repeated spray of the tested herbicides could provide effective control of purple loosestrife over time, it will just require persistence and the use of most effective herbicide. The most effective herbicides for purple loosestrife control were glyphosate, imazapyr and metsulfuron, as they provided the fastest control of purple loosestrife (eg. within the first 2-3 years of spraying).

In addition, our assessment of the negative impacts on beneficial vegetation, suggested that metsulfuron appears to be the most desirable choice, as it has no detrimental effects on the grassy vegetation. Presence of grasses along the edges of waterways is promoted by land managers because grasses provide habitat and food for various bird species (including migratory birds) and feed for grazing animals (deer, livestock).

Finally, early detection of purple loosestrife stands followed by immediate control is critical, as it will increase the chance of managing this invasive species below the threshold level, and reduce the time and costs required for desirable control of purple loosestrife.

Heidi Borg visits D.C.

Nine young leaders visited Washington, D.C. July 15-19, 2018 to learn about corn policy development, explore American agriculture outside of the Midwest, and visit with congressional leaders and agribusinesses, including Heidi Borg, of Wakefield.

The trip was sponsored by the Nebraska Corn Board and is designed to encourage young leaders to take an active role in the agricultural industry.

Early in the week, the group visited a variety of farms specializing in poultry, organic grain and produce, trees and shrubs. The leadership team then spent time in Washington, D.C. and toured U.S. national monuments and visited with USDA Undersecretary Greg Ibach.

As the week progressed, the group participated in Corn Congress, a multi-day policy development event organized by the National Corn Growers Association. During Corn Congress, participants had time to meet with Nebraska's congressional leaders and national agribusinesses, such as the U.S. Grains Council, the American Farm Bureau and Growth Energy.

Participants of Nebraska Corn's leadership group were selected after completing an application process. This is the sixth year the Nebraska Corn Board has sponsored the leadership group.

'S' is for scouting and soybean cyst nematodes

This is a great time of year to check your soybean fields for soybean cyst nematodes or SCN, the most devastating pest for soybean growers in Nebraska and across the United States. Yield losses of 25-30 percent have been documented in fields with no visible injury on the soybean plants. That is why detection of SCN is so important, you need to know if it is present in your field so you can start managing it if it is there.

Sometimes there are very subtle signs that are easy to not associate with SCN. Often areas of a field with SCN have dark green, healthy-looking plants, but there will be a slight variation in height. The areas with SCN may be slightly shorter than surrounding soybeans. If conditions become dry, these pockets may wilt while most of the field does not. This is NOT common, usually there is no wilting in SCN infested fields.

July and August are good times to check your fields for SCN. Cysts developed on soybean roots about a month after soybeans emerged so cysts may have been on roots in infested fields for a month or more. If they do occur, these other signs, shorter plants and wilting, usually occur later in the growing season.

John Wilson
Extension Educator

There are two ways to detect SCN in fields, a close visual observation of the root system and collecting a soil sample to be analyzed for the presence of SCN. For a visual inspection, dig up plants and examine the root system for cysts. Cyst is the only stage in the SCN's life cycle that can be seen without a microscope. Look for a small, lemon-shaped, white to cream colored "bump" on the outside of the root.

These may be confused with nodules which contain the nitrogen-fixing bacteria normally found on a soybean root. The cyst is much smaller, oblong and is lighter in color than nodules. When scouting fields, if you don't find cysts, you cannot be sure that your field is SCN-free. However, if you DO find cysts, you know you have the pest and need to take action to reduce its buildup in the soil and resulting yield losses.

A visual examination may help you confirm if it is present, but it does not give you a measure of the level of SCN in the soil. For a more definitive determination if you have SCN or to measure the infestation level, you need to take a soil sample, much the same as you would sample for fertilizer recommendations. Take 15-25 cores from a field, mix them together, then take a small sample from this mixture.

The cyst is the female nematode that lived inside the soybean root. As it develops eggs, it swells up and ruptures through the root wall. Each cyst can contain up to 400 eggs. Some eggs are released in the soil and the life cycle repeats every 25-28 days.

Because SCN has several generations each growing season and because it is a prolific egg producer, the population of SCN can build up dramatically in a field in one season. Even though the SCN population may not be high enough to cause yield damage this year, it can build up to levels where it will cause problems the next time soybeans are planted... even if there is a year of corn between the two soybean crops.

The University of Nebraska has had 29 research sites comparing SCN resistant and susceptible soybean varieties in fields infested with SCN and 11 sites where the same varieties were planted in fields with no SCN. In infested fields, resistant varieties outyielded susceptible varieties by an average of about six bushels per acre or a 10 percent increase in yields. In fields where SCN was not present, susceptible varieties outyielded resistant varieties by an average of two bushels per acre.

Unlike other pests, SCN damage to a plant often isn't obvious. Frequently, the first indication that something is wrong with your soybeans is at harvest. Yields in a field hit a plateau or even drop back for no apparent reason such as weather or herbicide damage, while corn yields continue to improve. Another sign is low yielding areas on your yield maps that can't be attributed to other factors such as soil type, weed or insect infestations, compaction, or other yield-limiting factors. Neither of these is a guarantee there is SCN in the field, but it would be one of the first things you should check.

For more information about scouting for SCN, what to do if you have it in your fields, or for bags to submit soil samples for a free SCN analysis, a $20 per sample value, contact your local Nebraska Extension Office.

Weekend includes sharing time with family

Someone early in the month pointed out to me there were five Sundays, five Mondays, and five Tuesdays in this month, rather unusual, for sure. I think it was supposed to be a sign of good luck. But I'm just delighted to have a break in the hot temperatures.

By: Pat Meierhenry

And, as we see those awful fires in Greece and California, the tornado damage in Iowa, and the flooding going on in the east, I am content to be in the middle of the country with storm warnings. My heart goes out to the family that lost eleven members in a boat on Table Rock in Branson, to the families of the fire fighters who have died, and the mourners in Greece, and to all the folks who lost homes and livelihoods in Marshalltown.

We've been on a pontoon boat on Table Rock; it's a fun outing on a nice day. We've been to Marshalltown, also, my sister used to live there. So, we can visualize all the weather challenges.

Mike's only sibling was a sister who was two years older than he was. She had six children, including a set of twins, and each was valedictorian of their class; the twins were co. There is a doctor, a nurse, a CPA, a computer guru, a teacher, and a lawyer; I used to tell her she would be well cared for!

Well, she has since died, and her widower lives with the oldest, the nurse. A grandson was married on Saturday, so the siblings and their children got together in Omaha yesterday (Sunday) and invited us to come to visit.

I think the last time we had such a gathering must have been seven years ago, at Mahoney park. Her grandchildren have grown!! Five are now married, and there are four great grands, including a set of triplets! They are now two, and are very busy, let's just say.

It was a beautiful day, so we sat on the deck in the backyard. And I wondered where the time had gone? When these kids were small, they would visit Mike's parents in Norfolk, and sometimes, come to our farm. They were super well behaved, and ate everything that was put in front of them, no questions asked. I think having six at the table may have had something to do with that; you probably had to be fast to get your share.

Which reminds me of the neighbors with five kids when we were on that farm. Dad was attending Wayne State, and Mom was working at Dale's in Norfolk. Somehow, they would find their way to our house. And when I baked cookies, which I did a lot, and always a double batch, they would ask how many they were allowed. This was not a bad thing, I just could not help noticing.

I think maybe today's families of two don't really get to appreciate what sharing is all about. They each have their own rooms, their own toys, their own TVs, and as many cookies as they want.

Raising kids today has to be hard in other ways; each generation has its challenges. But I did ruminate on these things as I sat on that deck and watched my nieces and nephews and their spouses deal with their offspring... and I just offered a little prayer of thanksgiving that we were able to share some time in their busy lives.

John, Molly Temme go to Washington

Young farmers and ranchers tend to feel the weight of agriculture's challenging times sooner than those who have been in the business for a while. But despite all these challenges, members of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee, including John and Molly Temme of Wayne, are optimistic about their future in agriculture.

John serves as youth at-large member on the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation board of directors and recently joined other members of NFBF's Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee, in attending a national affairs trip to Washington, D.C. July 16-18 and is no stranger to changing crop and commodity prices.

"Right now, you are seeing good corn and soybean crops, so it's not uncommon to see lower commodity prices at this time. At the same time, the current trade situation is also likely having an impact. Despite all of this, we remain cautiously optimistic President Trump will be able to score a few victories as he works through our nation's trading relationship with the rest of the world," Temme said.

According to a press release,

NFBF works to equip young farmers and ranchers in Nebraska to lead effectively and advocate for positive change in agriculture, by sharing personal stories of how decisions made in Washington, D.C. effects their farms and ranches. Steve Nelson, president of NFBF, said it was important for the Nebraska delegation to hear from a range of farmers and ranchers.

"We had a good and diverse group that visited with our Nebraska delegation bringing a lot of perspective to the issues facing agriculture today. There is support for President Trump's efforts in doing the right thing on trade, but the longer the current situation remains unsolved, the greater the concern grows among young farmers and ranchers," Nelson said.

While the group's main message was one of hope to make countries like China play fair in trade, they also stressed that there needs to be a quick resolution to these trade disputes.

"Those in agriculture who stand to lose the most from a trade war are young farmers and ranchers who have not built up a lot of equity in their farms and ranches, since they are just getting started. The administration needs to show it can conclude trade negotiations and pass a Farm Bill. If the U.S. can finalize an agreement with both Canada and Mexico and get a farm bill passed by the end of September, it would go a long way toward calming the unease in the countryside," Temme said.

Other issues front and center during the trip was showing their support of updating and improving the Endangered Species Act (ESA) and the future of lab grown meats.

While the list of challenges young farmers and ranchers face is long, the need for young people in agriculture to answer the call of growing food for our nation and world remains as strong as ever.

"Continuing to communicate our message to key decision makers is vital to the future success of our nation as well as for farm and ranch families," Nelson said.

ABL - Always Be Learning

You have a lot of external things vying for your time. Family, civic duties, and many other things ask for a piece of you each and every day. Balancing those with your farm operation is always a juggling act, and there is no easy time of year. But this time of year can be especially challenging with county fairs, sports, irrigation, and more. Then your email and mailbox start filling up with plot invitations, and it can begin to be stifling. Prioritize these events, and categorize them, so we get the most out of them? Without giving up too much on the home front.

I believe the key to plots is to have limits. Set those limits and stick to them. For instance, I think that a four plot rule is a good rule. My four plot rule says that I get to go to two plots that are for local hybrid information, one that is educational, and one that is product focused. So you may be saying to yourself, that is easy to say, but I have six neighbors who all invite me to their plots. So let's break it down a bit further.

Most of us do not choose our hybrids based on what we see when we go to a local plot tour, we choose our hybrids because they were recommended by someone we trust. That local advisor spends time looking at those hybrids from the time they come out of the ground until they go in the truck leaving the field. Sure, we can count rows and kernels at a plot, we can discuss emergence and genetic traits, but the truth of the matter is there is still a lot of story left to write. So if we are honest, we are really at these events to socialize just as much as we are there to learn. There is nothing wrong with that either. It is an important part of the real world social network we still need to be involved in.

Then we have the product focused one. This is a field event that is around a product or a group of products, for instance, the Precision Planting PTI Farm in Illinois in August. These events might require some driving, but they also "scratch an itch." There are focused on something you think is cool, is new, or could impact your farm. But you often skip these because they might require several hours of driving and a hotel room. I am going to encourage you to go and invite a few neighbors or friends from Facebook or Twitter to go with you or meet you there. These events are fun, and they open your eyes not just to new products, but also new farming practices and you get to see the crops in the field from here to there.

And then in the spirit of saving the best for last, we have the educational events like the ACS Innovation Series. These are local events that are less than a couple of hours away that focus on not the "What," but instead the "Why," and the "How." This sort of event doesn't focus on what we planted, what we treated with, and so on. Instead, it focuses on why we decided to strip-till different mixes of fertility products, and the effect that it has had on our crops to date vs. untreated checks and top-dress applications. It focuses on why biological additives and soil enhancements could have positive impacts on our soils in this area. We discuss how Nitrogen modeling can help us go from the pre-season plan we had, and adapt to the weather we get. It focuses on how technology can go from a cost to an input that drives profit, not just in some of the things that we traditionally focus on with emergence and downforce control, but how multi-hybrid corn and multi-variety soybean prescriptions can drive yield and how drones can be more of a tool than a toy.

And for all of those reasons and more, I want you to make it a priority to get yourself and your neighbor the one of the ACS Innovation Series Events, August 7th West of Bellwood, NE on Hwy 64, or August 9th North of Norfolk 1 mile on Hwy 81. These events start with Registration at 9:30 AM, and end with a Grain Update during lunch, so you are on the road by 1 PM. This is an opportunity for us to not only focus on the planning aspect but also on the adapting to the challenges that we are dealt during the year. After last year, I can assure you that these events are unique for our area and that growers like you said that they were interesting and thought-provoking. I hope you make time to attend one of the events this year and see how valuable that field events like this still are in this day and age.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING RELATING TO THE LOWER ELKHORN NATURAL RESOURCES DISTRICT AND THE NEBRASKA DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES INTEGRATED MANAGEMENT PLAN

Pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 46-718, the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) and the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources (NeDNR) hereby provide notice that the LENRD and the NeDNR shall hold a public hearing on August 23, 2018, at 7:30 p.m. at the LENRD office, located at 1508 Square Turn Blvd. in Norfolk, Nebraska. As required by Neb. Rev. Stat. § 46 718(1), the purpose of the hearing is to take testimony on the proposed LENRD/NeDNR Integrated Management Plan (IMP) and the proposed controls. The geographic area for the proposed IMP encompasses the entire land area within the LENRD boundary. The geographic area of proposed groundwater controls is where groundwater and surface water are hydrologically connected within the LENRD boundary. The geographic area of proposed surface water controls is the extent of the Lower Elkhorn River Basin that is within the District boundary. A general description of the proposed IMP is: 1) Authority and Effective Date, 2) Introduction, 3) Background, 4) Public Participation, 5) Description of the IMP area, 6) Goals, Objectives & Action Items, 7) Controls, 8) Monitoring and Reporting Plan, 9) Incentive Programs, 10) Funding Options, 11) Review Process and Modifications to the IMP, 12) Information Considered in Preparing IMP, and 13) Glossary of Terms.

Chapter 7 of the voluntary IMP outlines the two controls for groundwater management and two controls for surface water management that are consistent to meet the goals and objectives of the IMP. These controls are 1) Limits on the development of new groundwater and surface water irrigated acres, and 2) Required measuring devices on certain wells and surface water diversions. The groundwater controls apply to a geographic sub-area of District; a map of which can be accessed in Chapter 5. The surface water controls apply to the Elkhorn River Basin portion of the District, a map of which can also be accessed in Chapter 5.

Any interested person may appear at the hearing and present written or oral testimony concerning the proposed IMP and proposed controls. Individuals with disabilities may request auxiliary aids and service necessary for participation by contacting the LENRD or the NeDNR by August 15, 2018. Testimony or other evidence relevant to the purposes of the hearing may also be submitted in writing to Lower Elkhorn NRD, 1508 Square Turn Boulevard, Norfolk, Nebraska, 68701, or the Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 64676, Lincoln NE 68509-4676, or by electronic mail at dnr.legaffile@nebraska.gov by 5:00pm, August 21, 2018.

The full text of the proposed IMP and proposed controls may be obtained via the LENRD's website at lenrd.org or telephone (402) (371-7313) or the NeDNR's website at: https://dnr.nebraska.gov or telephone (402) 471-2363. Following the public hearing the LENRD and the NeDNR will make a joint decision within 60 days of whether to implement the proposed IMP with or without modifications and whether to adopt and implement the controls as proposed in the IMP.
