the severe storms and flooding that occured

The U.S. Small Bussiness Administration (SBA) director Linda McMahon announced the SBA is acting in response to the request from Gov. Pete Ricketts for assistance. The declaration makes SBA assistance available in Burt, Cuming, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne counties.

"SBA is strongly committed to providing Nebraska with the most effective and customer-focused response possible, and we will be there to provide access to federal disaster loans to help finance recovery for businesses and residents affected by the disaster," McMahon said. "Getting our busi-

During Monday's meeting, Superintendent Mark Lenihan shared with the board work he has been doing for his dissertation.

His focus is school safety and threat assessment. He shared information he has gathered, including the surveying of school superintendents across the state of Nebraska in regard to their thoughts on various ways to keep students safe.

He noted that the information he has gathered will help the Wayne Community Schools and hopes to have his work completed in the near future.

First reading of the board's mission and vision statements was held.

Lenihan said the mission statement has been shortened somewhat and will include the word ALL in regard to inclusion of students in the learning process. He said that after the statement has been approved, it will be visible throughout the schools.

Administrator reports included the fact the district will receive valuation numbers from the county on Aug. 20. It is anticipated these numbers will not vary a great deal from last year, but final budget numbers will be made after these numbers are released.

Elementary Principal Russ Plager said this week's Open House was very successful and "kids are excited. Our numbers are big this year."

Administrators told the board that new teachers in the system will have mentors to seek advice from during the year.

Athletic Director Dennis Dolliver informed the board that the Wayne High School football game vs. Wahoo on Friday, Aug. 24 will be able to be played on the Wayne State College field.

There was some question as to whether or not this would be the case due to the construction of the new press box on the WSC tion is being completed.

During the Committee reports portion of the meeting, it was announced that Brandon Foote has accepted the position of Executive Director of the Wayne Community Schools Foundation.

Jordan Widner, head of maintenance, told the board he is working to have an evaluation of the heating, cooling and lighting throughout the buildings. He said that after the inspection is completed in these areas, the district will be able to determine the steps it wishes to take to "get the most bang for our bucks.

Lenihan and the board thanked Widner and his crew for the work they have done this summer to get the buildings ready for the new school year.

The next regular meeting for the Board of Education will be Monday, Sept. 10 at 5 p.m. in the junior-senior high school library. A claims meeting and budget workshop will be held Monday, Aug. 27 at 5 p.m.

Providence Medical Center was recently ing patient harm, including an estimated: recognized by the Nebraska Hospital Association for its work to improve quality of care as part of national Partnership for Patients' Hospital Improvement Innovation (HIIN) Network initiative.

The Nebraska Hospital Association (NHA) and 69 Nebraska hospitals have partnered with the Health Research and Educational Trust of the American Hospital Association (HRET). The AHA is one of 16 national, regional, or state hospital associations, Quality Improvement Organizations (QIO), and health system organizations selected by Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) to work on the Partnership for Patients initiative, reducing preventable hospital-acquired conditions and readmissions. The HIIN's goal is to achieve a 20 percent decrease in overall patient harm and a 12 percent reduction in 30-day hospital readmissions as a population-based measure (readmissions per 1,000 people) from the 2014/2015 baseline. Efforts focus on consistently providing high quality care to the individuals in each community in Nebraska.

During the first year of the HIIN, October 2016-October 2017, Nebraska's 69 hospitals demonstrated improvement in reduc-

To help beautify the school, 15 WEB volunteers, including kids, spent over 300 hours and $2,800 on three fun projects: remodeling the staff lounge, installing a painted rock garden, and painting inspirational messages of art in the bathrooms. Plans for these projects began over a year ago and came together with the help of many people, including partnership with the school's Principal, Russ Plager; Director of Maintenance, Jordan Widner; and Art Teacher, Sonya Tomp-

First, for the staff lounge, WEB removed wall paper, painted walls, rearranged cabinets and furniture, installed décor, and purchased new furniture, kitchenware and supplies. Next, for the rock garden, elementary students in Mrs. Tompkins' art classes painted rocks, then WEB installed them in the school's landscaping at the front entrance to provide a colorful welcome. Mackenzie Rewinkel was just a little less than excited to put her hand inside a live steer as part of the Nebraska Extension's Mobile Beef Lab exhibit at the Climate and Crops Family Field Day on Aug. 14. Steve Niemeyer, Extension Educator from Burwell, explained to those in attendance how cattle digest their food and allowed those who wished to put on a glove and stick their hand inside the animal the opportunity to do so. The Mobile Beef Lab was one of several hands-on activities available at the event, which was held at the Haskell Ag Lab at Concord.

Blue Devil softball team team in reloading mode It seems to be the same song, next Allison Claussen back in the fold

The Blue Devils have really been in a "rebuilding" role only once in its 17-year history, and after losing three key seniors from a team that went 29-5 last year and reached the state tournament for the 15th time, one would think the 2018 season might be one of those years.

Looking at who is back for Rob Sweetland's 17th year as head coach, though, it's pretty evident that this year's Blue Devil squad is going to be more intent on reloading than rebuilding, and with a move down to Class C, they should be one of the contenders for a state title yet again this season.

"We return six starters and it's a strong group of seniors that have a lot of experience," Sweetland said. "We also have one of the top pitchers in the state back, so it should be a fun year."

Leading the way for the Blue Devils will be junior pitcher Tori Kniesche, who has the chance to improve on what was a phenomenal year in 2017. She threw a Class B-record 10 no-hitters on her way to a 27-4 record that included 326 strikeouts. She has plenty of senior leadership surrounding her this season, starting with her battery-mate, Sidney Biggerstaff. The senior catcher hit eight home runs and batted .349 last season, and her experience on both sides of the plate should be a key element this season.

Behind her is a solid defense, with infielder Annie Kniesche moving from second to shortstop and verse for the Wayne High softball at third base. Kniesche batted .407 with 27 RBI's last year, while Claussen will be counted on more for defense at the hot corner.

> Joining them will be Maysn Dorey, a .414 hitter who had 22 RBI's and scored 37 runs. She will take over at first base, with junior Kayla Fleming expected to step in at sec-

> Wayne lost a big bat and a solid outfielder to graduation, but has a senior-dominated outfield that includes Abby Ankeny (.354, 24 RBI) and Josie Thompson (.250, 10 RBI). Annie Kniesche, Dorey and Nicole Fertig could also see time in the outfield this season.

> And while Tori Kniesche will see most of the action in the circle this season, the pitching cupboard is far from bare as freshmen Kendall Dorey and Amara Hurlbert look to be hurlers of the future for the Blue

The Blue Devils will be the favorite to win the Mid State Conference title again this season, followed by Guardian Angels Central Catholic. Wayne also looks to be the team to beat in their district, which includes Boone Central/Newman Grove, Highway 91, Madison/Humphrey/ Lindsay HF, O'Neill, Pierce and Ponca. Wayne could potentially be a district host this year when that tournament is held Oct. 4-5.

Will expanded healthcare in Nebraska finally see the light of day?

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

For seven years, lawmakers have failed to expand health care coverage for an estimated 90,000 Nebraskans who can't afford to purchase insurance on their own.

Governor Pete Ricketts and Gov. Dave Heineman before him successfully thwarted the attempts in what has become one of the largest, most divisive partisan struggles in the officially nonpartisan Legislature. In case you forgot, there are way more Republicans than Democrats in the Legislature, well, in Nebraska for that matter. And the oft-suggested vehicle for providing the insurance - Medicaid expansion – apparently sounded too much like Obamacare.

Supporters such as Sen. Adam Morfeld of Lincoln have argued that the infusion of federal funding would spur economic development and help secure the future of rural hospitals in Nebraska while treating health conditions before they spiral into serious health challenges that may result in far more expensive and uncompensated care. The vast majority of current Medicaid recipients are children and the elderly. The stories abound and are heart-wrenching. Life is not good for the working poor.

Nationwide, 32 states have approved Medicaid expansion. Meanwhile, in Nebraska, Morfeld and others must have felt like the mythological Sisyphus during years of a mostly uphill struggle. That changed last session when Morfeld and company decided to support an initiative petition measure instead. Working with the same zeal that Rickett's-backed petitioners used a couple years ago to get a death penalty reinstatement on the ballot after lawmakers repealed the death penalty over his veto, the pro-expansion supporters turned in more than 133,000 petition signatures to place the expansion on the November ballot. They needed 84,268 valid signatures after a review by county election officials and a decision by Secretary of State John Gale.

But, don't get too excited. The Republicans found another way to try to derail the proposal. State Senator Lydia Brasch of Bancroft, Nebraska's National Republican Committeewoman, and former Sen. Mark Christensen of Imperial have filed a lawsuit to block the initiative. They are being represented by Nebraska's National Republican Committeeman J.L. Spray, a Lincoln attorney.

The term-limited Brasch, who will be gone in January, is identified as a plaintiff who is "opposed to the Medicaid expansion petition because of the negative impact it will have on property taxes in Nebraska.'

Christensen is described as "concerned that if the Medicaid expansion petition proceeds, his son's existing benefits will be reduced or altered."

Medicaid expansion campaign manager Meg Mandy has called the lawsuit "a desperate attempt to block the people's ability to voice their opinion on this issue and ensure affordable health care for 90,000 Nebraskans." She characterizes the plaintiffs as "two politicians who have failed to find solutions for working Nebraskans to access health care."

The expansion proposal would provide health coverage to single adults and couples without minor children who cannot qualify for Medicaid now, as well as parents and disabled people, with incomes up to 138 percent of the poverty level — $16,753 for a single person or $34,638 for a family of four. The proposal would bring an estimated $1 billion in federal funding flowing into the state while requiring a state match that officials in the Ricketts' administration have said would eventually accumulate to some $800 million over a 10-year period.

Federal law has allowed states to expand their Medicaid coverage since 2014 as part of the Affordable Care Act. The ACA requires the federal government to pay 94 percent of the cost of Medicaid expansion programs in 2018, with the federal share declining year by year until plateauing at 90 percent by 2020. The state pays the rest.

The lawsuit suggests a number of procedural, statutory and constitutional flaws that would render the initiative petition "invalid and legally insufficient," including a claim that language in the initiative seeks to "exercise legislative power specifically reserved to the executive branch.'

If the election proceeds and voters approve the initiative, there remains an implementation debate in the next session of the Unicameral. Remember, the current mix of that body is 31 Republicans, 16 Democrats, 1 Independent and 1 Libertarian. The November elections will change that number some. But one can still expect a partisan battle. Stay tuned.

Wayne County Sheriff's Office gets medicine disposal box

The Wayne County Sheriff's Office has acquired a medication disposal box through an Opioid STR Grant from the Region 4 Behavior Health Services.

The box is provided to allow the public to safely and responsibly dispose of medication and to prevent access to unused medication to children or those who abuse prescription medications.

The disposal box is located in the lobby of the Sheriff's Office located at 521 Lincoln St., Wayne, NE, and can be accessed Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Not all medications are accepted however. The disposal box is not intended for liquids, inhalants, aerosol cans, needles (sharps), thermometers, or hydrogen peroxide. Clinics and businesses are also prohibited from using the Med Return box as it is for household medicines

On the box is a sign showing what is allowed and what is prohibited.

Summer is filled with many opportunities for fun and adventure, part of a worshiping community. from camping and swimming to Worship should be a regular part family vacations. Often there are of every Christian's spiritual dischurch, sports and music camps for our youth which expand their horizons and talents. County and state fairs also involve many of our families and youth.

Often in the summer we get lax about our worship attendance because there are so many things happening in our lives and sometimes worship seems like just another item on the "to do" list. Yes, you can worship God at the lake or the fairgrounds; however, I hope you will your biological and faith families. Gathered in worship we voice concerns and joys for others and ourselves in prayer, we praise God through our music, we fellowship together and build and maintain relationships. I hope rather than thinking of worship as something you have to do, it is something you want to do; a way of being open to the presence of God in worship as well as being open daily to God's presence in your life and the world.

Worship helps us learn about the Triune God as guided by Scriptures we are challenged to imitate our Savior in all areas of our lives. C.S. Lewis, from his book The Four Loves wrote:

"Our imitation of God in this life ... must be an imitation of God incarnate: our model is the Jesus, not only of Calvary, but of the workshop, the roads, the crowds, the clamorous demands and surly oppositions, the lack of all peace and privacy, the interruptions. For this, so strangely unlike anything we can attribute to the Divine life in it is apparently not only like, but is, the Divine life operating under human conditions.'

Yes, our lives are busy and we are involved with many good things, but we also need to spend time praising and thanking God. Jesus dealt with challenges in his life and ministry, but worship and prayer was important, it was what helped him cope with the stresses in his life. When you're not in worship, you miss having your spiritual batteries recharged, being challenged in your spiritual life to grow ever more like Christ. You miss praying and praising God as part of the community of faith and offering prayers on behalf of others as well as your own concerns.

Worship is an important part of our lives as Christians and I challenge each of you to make a concerted effort to be in worship regularly. Attending worship requires no special occasion or special attire — just your willingness to join with your community of faith and praise and worship God.

I encourage you to get back to church this Sunday, worship is a great start to every week.

BACK TO SCHOOL: A HANDY HEALTH & SAFETY CHECKLIST Mark Patefield, RPh It's just about that time again: Time to switch from swimsuits to school clothes and from healthiest and safest school year possible? Here's a handy checklist to help. 1. Schedule medical, eye, and dental checkups. Before school starts, check with the pediatrician to see if your child needs any immunizations. Vision and hearing tests are also a good idea, although schools perform hearing tests during certain grades. 1 If your child is playing sports, ask the pediatrician whether a special checkup is needed. With certain sports, concussions can be a serious problem. Talk to the doctor about ways to protect your child.² 2. Organize your child's medical history records. Provide copies to your child's school or daycare providers. I can help you pull some of this together, but the list should include your

·Prescription medications

·Medical problems such as asthma or allergies

·Previous surgeries

Emergency contacts²

3. Communicate about transportation. Some kids get dropped up and picked up by parents. Others carpool. Still others walk, bike, or take the bus. And, of course, teens may have their own wheels. Regardless, it's important that your kids be—and feel—safe getting to and \cdot If you or another adult picks up your child, agree on a time and place for pickups. Explain what to do if the driver is running late.

·If your child walks or bikes, do a dry run and explain any potential traffic hazards.

·If your child or teen takes the bus, find a safe route and agree on a visible pick-up and dropoff spot. Ideally, this is a place where other kids are around and adults can clearly see them.

·If your teen drives to school, be crystal clear about safe driving—including ditching that teen temptation: texting while driving.

Create an emergency plan in case anything goes awry. In fact, make sure your child knows what to do in an emergency—whether at home or at school or anywhere in between.²

4. Remember that there's more to school than hitting the books. For example, good nutrition and exercise are essential for brain health. Here are a few other reminders: ·Be consistent about bedtime and wake-up times. Growing kids need at least 8 hours of sleep—and teens need even more. ·Make homework a habit by having clear routines. But don't overlook free time and friend

·Explain ways to prevent infection such as by regularly washing hands and by not sharing hats or other clothing. That's one way lice get around!

·Keep lines of communication open. Listen for signs of bullying or other concerns. Many parents find that car rides are a great time to have nonthreatening conversations with their kids. Contact the school if a problem like bullying does arise.^{3,4}

Computer scams, book reading discussed

There are all kinds of scams out there. Sometimes, I can hardly believe how gullible folks are. And how some of the old ones keep com-

A friend actually sent some money to get a grandson "out of jail" several years ago, but they keep trying. Mike had a call from "his oldest grandson" a couple of years ago, and it still makes him mad to think about it.

My computer program does a pretty good job of sending suspicious stuff to the spam junk yard. But it missed one a couple of weeks ago, and it was a goody.

Two years ago, in July, we drove to Norfolk for the interment of the ashes of Mike's cousin, Vivian. It became an excuse for a mini family reunion in the really nice barn of her niece. One of the things we did that day was look through a big box she had of old photos. We were able to identify a few. It was interesting to compare faces and see if we could come up with names of our ancestors, aunts, uncles, cousins, neigh-

A hospice patient I had once told me there was one in a smoke stack on his ship when they sailed into port. But the Indianapolis was torpedoed by kaiten, miniature submarines that had more young men ready to die for the emperor. It gave me the goose bumps!

Water thoroughly to wet the soil of drought stress reappear. What is "deep and infrequent" in May is far different than what it is now in August, so your irrigation controllers for automatic watering systems need to be changed throughout the year. No more "set it and forget it"!

High soil temperatures decrease root growth and increase root death. The result is a shallower and less dense root system. August rooting depth may decrease by 50 percent or more compared to May rooting depth. Therefore, less water is needed to wet the soil to the depth of rooting. However, water use increases with temperatures as the plant uses it to cool itself.

The end effect is irrigation frequency increases during the heat of applied during each irrigation cycle is less. Unfortunately, there are no

Until recently, we've had time- evaporation losses will be less so of the turf through irrigation if it is further complicated by irrigation method. If an underground system is used, the volume, pressure, nozzles, head spacing, and condition of the system will also complicate the irrigation.

A good way to tell how deep water has soaked in the soil the is to take a large screwdriver and poke it in the turf in several places. When the soil is moist, it will slide into the soil easily. But when the soil is dry, you can still poke the screwdriver in, but there will be much more resistance. If it slides in easily to a depth of four to six inches, you do not need to water until the turf starts to show signs of moisture

The bottom line is, turfgrasses require water for optimum performance, but they much prefer slightly drier conditions over slightly wetter conditions and are capable of withstanding slight to moderate summer, but the amount of water drought. Nebraska Game and Parks offers 'Upland Slam'

Hunter are challenged to harvest four upland bird species and complete a Nebraska Upland Slam.

Challenge encourages hunters to take a ring-necked pheasant, sharp-tailed grouse, greater prairie chicken and northern bobwhite in the state. The Slam is sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, Pheasants Forever, Inc. and Quail Forever.

"We have diverse upland hunting opportunities, long seasons, great access to public lands, and high hunter satisfaction rates. The Nebraska Upland Slam challenges hunters to try something new and spend more days in the field with friends and family," Game and Parks Director Jim Douglas said.

Those who complete the Nebraska Upland Slam will receive a certificate and a pin. Additionally, hunters who complete the slam during the 2018-2019 season will be registered to win one of several prizes, including a Browning Silver 12-gauge semi-automatic shotgun, 65-gallon high-efficiency cooler, an award-winning Pheasants Forever print and other prizes.

Hunters can visit OutdoorNebraska.org/UplandSlam for more information, official rules and entry details.

The hunting season dates are Sept. 1 through Jan. 31 for sharptailed grouse and greater prairie chicken, and Oct. 27 through Jan. 31 for pheasant and northern bobwhite. These species may be harvested with a Nebraska hunt (small game) license and habitat stamp, which are required of all hunters, except residents age 15 and younger.

Nina Hammer was one of hundreds of people who took part in the Climate and Crops Family Field Day on Aug. 14. She is pictured here visiting the Northeast Arboretum display. The display included information on tree care and varieties of trees suitable to this area.

The Final 700: Irrigation Strategy for the Remainder of the Year

As I look around the majority of our area, it is safe to say that Growing Degree Day accumulation continues to move along very well. In fact, for most of us, we are in the later stages of our Corn development, being the dent stage. Regardless of whether you are planting a 113-day maturity or a 108-day maturity, North or South, planted May 1st or May 12th, most of us will be looking at about a 700 GDD need to finish out or crop. One of the things that we fight every year about this time, however, regardless of corn or beans is a desire to be done managing for the season. While this year hasn't been as challenging as most from an irrigation standpoint, there are still those of you out there that have expressed to me the thoughts that this crop is almost wrapped up. So for the remainder of today, I want to debunk that thought process and make sure we all understand the water needs this crop needs to finish out for maximum yield.

First of all, for those of you that are not irrigators, take heart, this is not just a discussions about irrigation, but also a discussion on yield forecasting. Today we can go take ear and kernel counts to project yield, but we don't know the magical number of kernels per bushel to plug into the calculation. Today, I start at 90,000, but as the season and moisture situation unfolds, I have a good idea if that number is going to creep to 80,000 or even down to the 7X,000 range. Projecting an accurate yield helps us understand the logistics we will face at harvest.

For me, the final 700 GDD's is defined as dent to black layer in corn. For that 112day maturity corn, that is a process that should envelop around three to four weeks and five inches of water. What does that five inches of water get us? In straightforward terms, kernel depth and test weight. Today, we have about 2/3 of our dry matter accumulated. The next three inches of water get us to 90% dry matter. The reason that every year I harp so hard on making sure our corn is not shorted at the end of the season is that the last two inches of water give us about 8-10% of our dry matter. That is a difference in 56-pound corn vs. 60-pound corn. The last inch of water gives us around 4% of our dry matter accumulation. That inch of water is the difference between 230 yield and 240 yield. That ten-bushel difference costs you about $10 per acre but yields us $30 or more.

On soybeans, the story is different but is also more of the same. I know I am beginning to sound like a broken record here, but there is a long way to go on these soybeans. Today, most of our soybeans are between the end of pod elongation and beginning seed fill. That means we all have at least 6.5" of moisture that we need to get to finish our soybeans in the next roughly six weeks, or a bit more than one inch per week. And again, at the risk of sounding like a broken record, once the beans begin to turn yellow, we still need two inches of water. However, the reason I harp on these facts, again and again, year after year is that for those of you that are irrigators, is that the irrigation system you have is the most profitable piece of equipment you have within your operation in the next eight weeks. With ROI's of 2X or 3X, or even more, knowing your situation is extremely critical.

So the take home for today is that regardless of our situation, scouting for maturity development and moisture conditions is far from over. Remember that last year we sat around at the half dent stage for weeks, and used a lot of water during that time. but we were also rewarded with test weight for those efforts. I seriously doubt the same situation will play out this year, but the lesson remains. For those of you that are part of our AquaSystems platform, continue to monitor your probes daily, and be mindful of what the ACS team is adding in the notes section for you. For those of you that have a scout or a do your own, continue to pull cores, but don't be afraid to ask your FSA or Regional ACS Manager what they are seeing in your area. The essence of our challenge is like so many other things in life, it is the final push when you are tired and out of energy and want to be done, that solidifies your result and your success at

THANK YOU

Thank You.... We'd like to thank all those that attended Pilger's 16th Annual Sweet Corn & Hamburger Feed!

Your donations are all greatly appreciated! As always this year 100% of the free will donations from the feed and also from the root beer floats went directly to the Pilger Pool Fund.

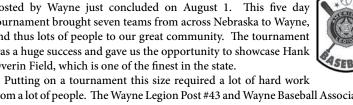

Every year we are amazed with our gracious volunteers! They come early in the morning to help husk and clean the corn. Many of those volunteers come back that afternoon to grill the hamburgers, cook and butter the corn, then serve it from the kitchen to over 1,000 people that come to donate and eat.

Our thank you doesn't nearly say enough. Your donations have helped our small village bring summertime fun and happiness to the young and old. Having the pool provides summer jobs for many teens and it also offers swimming lessons to the young people of our community and area which we personally know can be lifesaving, which is priceless.

Thank you to everyone that donated in any way to this year's feed. It wouldn't happen without your hard work and generosity!

Sincerely, Ron and Barb Wolverton and Family

The Nebraska American Senior Legion Baseball Tournament hosted by Wayne just concluded on August 1. This five day tournament brought seven teams from across Nebraska to Wayne, and thus lots of people to our great community. The tournament was a huge success and gave us the opportunity to showcase Hank Overin Field, which is one of the finest in the state.

from a lot of people. The Wayne Legion Post #43 and Wayne Baseball Association would like to thank everyone who played a role in the success of the tournament. Thank you to the City of Wayne for all you did to get Hank Overin Field looking so beautiful. Thank you to Wayne State College for allowing the teams to use your baseball facility for practices. We want to thank Mid Plains Grain for allowing us to park vehicles on your property. Thank you to the Wayne Senior Legion and Junior Legion players and parents for all your hard work at the field and doing the various jobs that needed to be done. To those who presented the colors of our great nation and to those who sang or played the national anthem, thank you. You were amazing! Thank you to the businesses that made financial donations or donated product.

We had many people who just simply volunteered to do whatever needed done - thank you! The guest teams were very impressed with Hank Overin Field and our great city!
