The agency offers adoption, foster care, family support and early childhood education services to those in need without asking for the upcoming fund-raiser.

In observance of this anniversary, a Husker Hometown Tailgate event is being planned for Saturday, Sept. 22. The event will take place at the Wayne

City Auditorium and will begin one hour prior to the kick off of the Nebraska-Michigan football game. It will include food, a cash bar, silent and live auctions and raffles.

Community members are invited to purchase tickets and attend the event or get involved in other ways, such as becoming a sponsor at several levels, donating to the auctions or offer gift certificates or gift cards to local businesses.

With all the moisture this year some of your trees and shrubs may be getting covered by a long vine with yellowgreenish-white flowers. It might seem like the vine overtakes the landscape or windbreak plants overnight.

It is wild cucumber, Echinocystis lobata, and it seems there is a bumper crop this year. It is an annual, native to most of North America, and grows best in moist low lying areas. woodlands, and areas with some shade. In our area, this includes along windbreaks.

The vines grow 25 to 30 feet long with tendrils that coil around anything they touch During years like this with additional rains and moisture in June, this plant shows up growing "wild".

Wild cucumber sprouts from seed in early summer. It is a fast-growing annual and is often not noticed until it begins to engulf trees and shrubs. Once it blooms, as it has these past few weeks, it becomes even more obvious. The star-shaped leaves resemble a maple leaf and have 5 to 7 pointed lobes, alternately placed on the stem. The seed pods are ovaland grow up to 2 inches long. They are covered with sharp spines that, when ripe, burst open to disperse four flat spindle-shaped brown or black seeds. Although usually considered a weed, wild cucumber is sometimes used in the landscape. Because it grows so quickly, it is fast covering for a pergola, arbor, or along a fence or low structure. In addition, the flowers are prolific and quite fragrant. However, the owner needs to be ready for frequent and drastic pruning to control the growth of the vine and keep it from spreading to unwanted areas. When the pods are ripe, they burst open and expel the seeds as soon as they are dry, so they must be bagged or plucked off before they mature if you do not want this to spread.

If wild cucumber is a weed in your landscape, it is easy to control. Although not considered invasive, because it is native to Nebraska, it certainly is aggressive and will take over trees and bushes.

· If possible, pull or hoe the plants early - as soon as they are found. The seedlings look exactly like garden cucumbers. If they are more established, repeated mowing before they set seeds will keep them in check. If they have progressed to the point that they are growing up into trees and bushes, simply pull them out and discard them. They are shallow rooted and can be easily pulled out of the ground. Ideally, get them out BEFORE they go to seed. This will reduce the number of plants in the area over time.

Chemical controls may be used when necessary. Glyphosate, the active ingredient in post-emergent herbicides such as Round-Up can be used if it is carefully applied to the vine and not allowed to get on green tissue of the desired tree/shrub. A 2-4 percent solution can carefully be used around trees as it will not be absorbed by the roots in the soil or brown bark. However, it also kills almost anything green and growing that it touches, so take care to keep it off desired plants. Always read and follow directions when using any chemical control.

Sports Baldwin duo claim club championship honors

Of the Herald

A rain soaked day didn't do much to dampen the play of Joey Baldwin during the annual club tournament at Wayne Country Club recently. Findng his way to the winners circle was also a familiar trek as he claimed his fifth straight club title after a 4-under par, 27-hole score of 104. It was Baldwin's eighth career championship in the 10 years he has played.

Joey Baldwin-Men's club champion

"It wasn't ideal playing conditions but I felt pretty good about being able to block it out and just grind it out," Baldwin said. He played exceptionally well on the front nine despite a 90-minute weather delay shortly after he began his round. "I had a par on the first hole and was on the green on the par five second hole in two when the horn sounded to halt play," Baldwin said. "After play resumed I made the eagle putt and then birdied holes three and four to go four-under heading to the fifth hole."

In fact he nearly had an unblemished front nine except for hole number nine which in his words he butchered. "I took a double bogey on that hole and there was really no reason for it," he added. "No penalty strokes but I hit a tree on my second shot and then managed a three-putt once I got on the green." He still finished the front side at two-under 34.

The back started with a birdie on 10 before a missed short putt on hole 11 which resulted in one of two bogeys on the backside. He birdied the par five, 13th hole and then birdied the long par four on number 14. He closed out the opening round with a bogey on hole 18 for a three-under 69.

The closest competitor was another familiar player that has taken many trips to the winners circle, Doug Rose. However, this time Doug was six strokes back in what looked to be a daunting task, running a golfer with the talent of Joey Baldwin down from six strokes back with just nine holes to play. Over the final nine holes the closest anyone got to Baldwin was five strokes after Rose birdied the first hole. The final margin was seven strokes with Rose finishing runner-up at 111, three over par. Mike Varley finished third in the championship with a 114 and Andi Diediker placed fourth at 115 in his first Wayne Club Championship appearance.

There were six other flight winners with Ryan Dahl winning the first flight with a 75 followed by Ryan Hix with 81 and Brad Hansen, 82. Matt Eischeid placed fourth with 83. The second flight was won by Kelly Hansen with an 80 with Doug Carroll taking the tie-breaker for runner-up honors with an 83. Randy Gamble and Adam Diediker also carded 83's but finished third and fourth, respectively.

Dave Diediker captured the third flight with an 83 while Mike Powicki garnered runner-up honors after an 84. Rich Rethwisch was third at 87 taking the tie-breaker from Chuck Parker. Ron Carnes was the fourth flight winner with a 91 while Darin Jensen finished second at 93. Dave Peitz won a tie-breaker with Kevin Peterson for third place honors.

Adam Endicott fired an 85 to claim the fifth flight with Curtis Hansen placing second with a 90 and Rob Burrows, third at 91. Bill Sharpe finished fourth after carding a 93. The final flight was won by Don Koeber with a net score of 68.6. He grossed a 102 but the final flight was netted because of a large gap in handicaps. Casey Schroeder was runner-up with a net score of 69.4 and gross score of 95 while Dick Hitchcock finished third with a net of 71.5 and gross of 100. Fourth place honors went to Bill Kinney with a net of 72.3 and gross score of 98.

In women's play Kari Baldwin returned to the winners circle to compete for bragging rights in the Baldwin household, edging Jesse Jensen for the women's club title in a playoff. Both carded 87's but Baldwin parred the first hole in the playoff while Jensen took bogey which settled the matter. The win was the seventh club championship in her name. Nancy Endicott and Ann Kinney also competed in the first flight.

Kari Baldwin-Women's club champion

The second flight was won by Sue Denton with a 98 while Natalie Endicott finished runner-up and Karen Kwapnioski garnered third. In the 9-hole division it was Michele Nelson claiming top honors with Bailey Munter placing second Miscues by a young Blue Devil offense were utilized by the visiting Warriors' defense, who set up one touchdown, recorded another and forced a safety to help them come away with a 16-0 win in a rematch of last year's Class C-1 state quarterfinal matchup Friday at Wayne State College's Memorial Stadium.

Wayne's defense was solid from start to finish, limiting the Warriors to just 143 yards in total offense.

"Definitely, the defense played great and I was proud of the effort the kids played with," coach Russ Plager said after the game. "We're playing at top-notch team that could be in the championship at the end of the season. I know we have a lot of young kids playing on offense and we're only going to keep getting better every week, but if we get that kind of defensive effort I can't wait to see what we're like (at the end of the season).'

The Warriors got the short field early in the game after an errant snap on a punt put them in great field position inside the Wayne 20-vard line. Zane Bennett hit paydirt a few plays later, cutting back to the right and scoring from 15 yards out to give Wahoo a 7-0 ad-came home from Daytona Beach, Fla., with a clean sweep of the Embry-Riddle Tournament, beating all four teams in straight sets.

In Friday's first match, Wayne State used a balanced attack to beat Westminster in three sets, 25-18, 25-23, 25-22. It was Wayne State's first sweep in a season-opener since defeating Northwood (Mich.) in 2015 and marked their seventh straight season-opening win and 13th in Scott Kneifl's 14 years as head coach.

The Wildcats entered a stalemate with the Griffins to start the first, going back and forth. Down 10-9, Wayne State rattled off six straight points to establish a 15-10 lead. Kills from sophomores Alyssa Ballenger and Allison Timmermans as well as forced errors helped keep distance as the Wildcats forced a timeout by Westminster up 19-14. Wayne State finished the rest of the first set at a 6-4 mark, giving the Wildcats the opening set.

The second set started as the first did, with both teams feeling each other out while trading blows with each other to a 10-10 mark. Backto-back kills from Jaci Brahmer and

The host Bulldogs took advantage of some miscues early on by the Trojans and took control of the game in the first half, building a 36-16 halftime advantage.

Wakefield scored first on a twoyard run by Dylon Harder in the first period. Esgar Godinez added "We have a solid core group of Jelimo is also back after finishing the PAT run to give the Trojans the Harder and Justin Erb were the leading ground gainers for Wakefield. Erb had 73 yards on 11 carries while Harder racked up 65 yards in 19 tries. Clay Christensen had 39 vards on 13 carries with two second-half touchdowns. Nick Arenas had four catches for 57 yards and a touchdown.

The 0-1 Trojans have a week off before their home-opener on Sept. 7 against Howells-Dodge at 7 p.m., and Hassler said it will be an opportunity for his team to clean up their mistakes and get ready for the Jaguars.

"They are a very similar team to us," he said. "They want to run the football and hurt you with some play action passing. They are going to play hard-nosed football and try to push you around. On top of that, they just have such a strong tradition in that program. It will be another ranked team to see how we match up against the best in our class, so we are excited to get that

Governor Ricketts receives Nebraska Farm Bureau 'Friend of Agriculture' designation

Governor Pete Ricketts has been designated a "Friend of Agriculture' by NEFB-PAC, Nebraska Farm Bureau's political action committee. Ricketts, who is seeking re-election to serve a second term as governor, received the designation based on his efforts to support and grow Nebraska agriculture on numerous fronts, according to Nebraska Farm Bureau

"Growing markets for our agricultural commodities is critical to Nebraska farmers and ranchers. Nearly a third of our state's agriculture cash receipts come from agriculture exports. Governor Ricketts has proven time and again that he knows how important trade is to Nebraska and he has worked hard to build international relationships and expand market opportunities for the crops and livestock we produce right here in our state," said Nelson. "Whether it's leading trade missions or mapping out a strategic plan for growth through the Governor's Council for International Relations, the governor has made trade a top priority in his administration to the benefit of the state's farm and ranch families."

In addition to trade, Nelson pointed to several other areas where Ricketts has acted to support Nebraska agriculture, including:

Ricketts' ongoing support for biofuels, the Renewable Fuel Standard. and Nebraska's ethanol industry; which is a key component of Nebraska's highly successful corn, ethanol, and cattle feeding triangle that has created value-added opportunities for Nebraska agriculture.

Ricketts' efforts to push back against overreaching federal regulations, including the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers "Waters of the U.S." rule, a far-reaching regulation that would have infringed on the property rights and management of private land as well as taken away state's rights for managing local natural Ricketts' support and backing for initiatives to expand broadband access in rural Nebraska, including recent legislation to establish a Rural Broadband Task Force targeted to addressing the needs of farmers, ranchers, business owners, and rural Nebraskans who run the risk of falling behind without access to high quality and high-speed internet.

Ricketts' efforts to work with both the agriculture community and state officials to work through rules and regulations related to the transport of Ricketts' leadership on water issues, including work with the state attorney general to reach a settlement in the long-standing Republican River Compact lawsuit, which jeopardized Nebraska farmers future access to water for irrigation.

Ricketts' support for growth and development of Nebraska's livestock industry through support for the state's "Livestock Friendly County" program, which recognizes counties for their efforts to develop a climate conducive to livestock expansion opportunities.

Ricketts' ongoing efforts to work collaboratively to find solutions to address Nebraska's property tax burden, including his support for utilization of internet sales tax dollars to provide property tax relief.

Ricketts' overall efforts to reduce and streamline state government as well as his openness to consider Farm Bureau recommendations for appointments to individuals on boards and commissions important to Nebraska agriculture.

"Whether its vetoing a bill that would weaken measures to control prairie dog populations that damage grazing land or leading a delegation to Japan to promote Nebraska beef, Governor Ricketts has worked to support Nebraska agriculture. We thank him for those efforts and are pleased to announce his designation as a 'Friend of Agriculture' as he seeks reelection," said Nelson.

Governor Ricketts shared his appreciation to Nebraska Farm Bureau and its members for the designation.

"I'm honored by the continued support of Nebraska Farm Bureau and the many farm and ranch families it represents," said Governor Ricketts. "Farming and ranching are not just our state's heritage--they're an engine for growing Nebraska. That's why we'll keep fighting to lower property taxes, promote our world-class ag exports, and support our state's num-

The Nebraska Farm Bureau-PAC "Friend of Agriculture" designation is given to selected candidates for public office based on their commitment to and positions on agricultural issues, qualifications, previous experience, communication abilities, and ability to represent their constituents.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau is a grassroots, state-wide organization dedicated to supporting farm and ranch families and working for the benefit of all Nebraskans through a wide variety of educational, service and advocacy efforts. More than 61.000 families across Nebraska are Farm Bureau members, working together to achieve rural and urban prosperity as agriculture is a key fuel to Nebraska's economy. Transparency died in Nebraska Aug. 10, 2018

WHAT'S ON THE MENU?

WHAT'S IN IT?

By J.L. SCHMIDT

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The day transparency died in Nebraska.

So, while many of you were complaining about POTUS or Congress, here's what happened in Lincoln on that day that should be a bigger concern. A federal judge ruled that the state can kill one of its citizens despite the protests of a drug company that didn't want its products used for such purposes. And, he said, the state doesn't have to reveal where it got the drugs in the first place.

In Lancaster County District Court, a judge ruled that a legislative committee cannot exercise legal rights granted to it and subpoena a state official to answer questions about the aforementioned drug protocol.

In doing so, the judge sided with what's believed to be a first-ever lawsuit from the state Attorney General against the Legislature. The Legislature's special legal counsel, retired state Supreme Court Justice William Connolly, said it was the first he's seen in some 50 years of practice.

Do I have your attention yet?

That's the death of transparency. The courts just gave state government the right to do things in secret. No disclosure. "We don't have to answer your stinking ques-

But wait, there's more. August 14, the day the State killed death row inmate Carey Dean Moore, it took 29 minutes from the first injection to the pronouncement of death. The curtain separating the witnesses from the death chamber was closed for 14 minutes.

Thus, whether the execution of Moore with a unique set of drugs went smoothly or not has been left to speculation, not only in the state but around the country — subject to the spin of opponents and supporters alike.

Members of the media who witnessed Moore's death by lethal injection described his reactions to the drugs as rapid and heaving a purple cast to the skin.

About 15 minutes into the procedure, about a minute after Moore's eyelids appeared to open slightly, Corrections Director Scott Frakes, who was in the room with the condemned prisoner, said something into his radio and the curtains closed for the media witnesses. The curtains did not open again for 14 minutes, six minutes after Lancaster County Attorney Pat Condon pronounced Moore dead.

The curtain closing is significant since it hindered transparency and true reporting of the effects of the drugs. One of the media witnesses, Brent Martin of Nebraska Radio Network, said in Missouri, where he witnessed 13 executions, the curtain was open the entire time of the execution until the declaration of death.

"Nobody drops the curtain so that you cannot see the moments when the prisoner dies," he told the Lincoln Journal Star. "That's why you have witnesses, so they can see and report what happens." Controversy arising from the her concerns on Facebook: "If the action is a product of Nebraska's lack of transparency, Dunham said.

Afterward, Corrections Director Scott Frakes read a statement. But he didn't answer questions. He like that?" didn't look well. Maybe he had to go throw up. The Attorney General's Sen. Protecting those who have protected us

Here in Nebraska, we have been blessed by the service of brave men and women in uniform. From Omaha to Scottsbluff, you'll find veterans who have served in many theaters. Some have stormed the beaches of Normandy, others trudged into the jungles of Vietnam or fought in Korea, and many combated terrorism in Iraq and Afghanistan. Their American spirit is a true inspiration.

These men and women have bravely answered the call to serve. They have offered to give their all when our country needed it most. Our veterans have done their duty. All they ask when they return home is that we do ours. My responsibility in the Senate is to ensure that our service members have everything they need on the battlefield to succeed and receive the benefits they earned when they return home.

Recently, I was proud to take part in a ribbon cutting ceremony for the new Central Nebraska Veterans Home. This beautiful home will provide 225 beds for our veterans. The project is a product of federal, state, and local community cooperation.

Nebraskans support our veterans, and that support is evident across the state. We have the new Omaha National Cemetery in Sarpy County. Construction is beginning on a new ambulatory clinic in Omaha as a result of a new privatepublic partnership method I championed in Congress that allows the Omaha community to help manage and plan the project. In Lincoln, we are awaiting an announcement on the new outpatient clinic that's expected soon.

The positive actions in Nebraska for our veterans make me proud. But that doesn't mean our work is over. As your Senator, I'm working to address another issue that's affecting our veterans: overpayments tice of indebtedness that provides a by the Department of Veteran's Af-

Unfortunately, this has been an ogoing issue. Too many veterans open their mail only to have their hearts sink as they read a notification letter that states they been overpaid by the VA and owe thousands of dollars back. Shocked and confused, they read on searching for a detailed account of what they owe, what their options are, and how the overpayment resulted in the first place. The complexity of these letters leaves veterans with more questions than answers, but make clear that they've been paid too much by the VA, and now they owe it back.

Veterans and widows frequently contact my office after being confronted with large debt notices. Last year, I met a woman whose husband retired from the Army after serving for 22 years. She and her husband received a sudden debt notice of $10,000 without explanation or information to resolve this issue. This is simply unacceptable.

After hearing her family's story, and so many others, I led a bipartisan coalition to introduce the Veterans Fair Debt Notice Act. Our bill would help veterans navigate the complicated VA bureaucracy in these confusing cases. It directs the VA to partner with Veteran Service Organizations to create a new noclear explanation of why the debt is owed. Further, the letter would also include options available to challenge or mitigate the debt.

This is a common-sense bill that our veterans need. We owe it to them to make sure they receive quality care they deserve, without having to pay for the mistakes of a Washington, D.C. bureaucracy. Our veterans had our backs on the battlefield, and we must ensure we have theirs at home.

Thank you for taking part in our democratic process. I look forward visiting with you again next

I grabbed Caleb and we left the and sitting in our hammock in the was learning. It all led to this day, where Caleb told me: "Dad I need Jesus in my life."

As our conversation came to a close, I asked Caleb: "Why do you want Jesus in your life?" His answer was: "I know that I've messed up, and He's the only one who can forgive what I've done. And I want to go to heaven dad."

I said, "That's a good answer son." Then I asked him why he wanted to be baptized today, and He said, "I want to follow Jesus, I want to live

I obviously was excited, but in my Now, I had told my wife that Ca- decision meant and why he wanted Dad mind I also knew that Grandma's and Grandpa's would want to Caleb, as I expected, had been be there, and they probably couldn't thinking about this for quite a get there in the next 15 minutes while, and listening at church before church ended. So I tried to camp, and in Sunday school and convince Caleb that maybe we could Children's Church, and at VBS this wait till next Sunday at church for summer, and mentally taking notes his baptism so they could be there, about what he was learning about and Caleb, my son, who normally salvation, forgiveness, sin, and fol-doesn't have a serious bone in his lowing Jesus and then going home body, got the most serious look on his face I'd ever seen him have, and with some tears in his eyes, looked straight at me and said, "Dad, I don't want to wait one more day to follow Jesus."

And he didn't. (We did wait till that evening, so grandma and grandpa could make it). I was reminded of two things this Sunday that I wanted to share with you.

1) If you are a Sunday school teacher, or a children's church worker, or a VBS volunteer at your church, please never underestimate the difference you are making. Multiple times Sunday my son made reference to something he "heard, or learned" at Sunday school, church camp, VBS, or Children's Church.

2) I want to have the same attitude of Caleb in my everyday life, in every situation. I don't want to wait one more moment, or day to follow where Jesus leads.

3 John 4 "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children are walking in the truth." There is no greater joy than following Jesus, right in every moment of every day.

I had the opportunity to attend the North American Manure Expo and an adjacent meeting of the Soil Health Nexus in Brookings, S.D. on Aug. 14-16.

The Manure Expo draws people from all over the United States and Canada that work with manure, including extension educators, professional manure applicators, livestock producers, and government agencies such as NRCS. The Soil Health Nexus is a group of educators from 12 states in the north central part of the United States. This group consists primarily of extension professionals, but also includes some others. At the Soil Health Nexus meeting, I got acquainted with other people in the region who are working in the areas of manure and soil health, including some from Minnesota, South Dakota, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, and Missouri. During that meeting, Jacob Ness spoke about the Soil Health Partnership, an initiative of the National Corn Growers Association, and the data they are collecting in cooperation with crop farmers doing on-farm research. Their network of farmers is growing each year, so annually they are gathering more data on how certain practices affect the various aspects of soil health. They are just getting started analyzing their data, so look for more information from them in the future. The Soil Health Nexus team hopes to share findings when they become available in the future.

Expo featured many educational opportunities for those interested in manure handling and storage, including tours of area farms, educational presentations, demonstrations of compost turners, manure storage agitation equipment and both liquid and dry manure spreaders

In helping plan the Expo, I led the effort to hold a student poster competition. The purpose of the poster competition was for students to share research they are doing directly with those who will benefit from it, including professional manure applicators, livestock producers and crop farmers. It was a unique opportunity for that reason because students usually only have the chance to share their research with other researchers or students. While the first student poster competition at the Expo was small, it was very well received by those in attendance and students were pleased with the discussions they had while competing and I look for it to continue in the future. Digital copies of the students' posters are available at: http://articles.extension.org/58813. I had a great time meeting other professionals with similar interests as myself. I look forward to the next North American Manure Expo, which will be held in Fair Oaks, Ind. on July 31 and Aug. 1, 2019. If you have to or choose to deal with manure and want to learn more. visit http://manureexpo.org regulearning about positive character traits, government, issues, public policy, and community service.

Twenty-six 4-Hers from northeast Nebraska recently returned from the CWF (Citizenship Washington Focus) trip including Jackie Escalante, Madison Jenkins, Kylie Kempf, Erin O'Reilly, Kati Topp and Amy Topp.

This is a capstone trip that youth attend during their high school career. It is hosted at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md. During this experience, 4-Hers learned about citizenship and how they are a contributing member of society, as well as traveled to Washington, D.C. to see the U.S. government in action.

In addition, the youth are able to learn about the past while visiting different sites. Some of these include traveling to New York City to visit the Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island, and the 9/11 Museum; traveling to Philadelphia to visit Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, and http://4h.unl.edu/.

Civic engagement involves youth and finally traveling to Gettysburg to tour the historic battlefield.

> One of the learning experiences at the National 4-H Center is to develop an action plan for a service learning project. The youth have prepared plans to complete over the next couple of months.

Here are the five steps used to implement a service learning project:

- 1. Assess and identify the need;
- 2. Plan and prepare;
- 3. Experience meaningful service; 4. Analysis and evaluation; and
- 5. Celebration.

Learning about service learning, citizenship and leadership happens all the time within 4-H activities. Youth might serve as an officer of a club to learn about parliamentary procedure, join a committee to plan out an event for the club, or be a part of the service learning project.

For more information about the 4-H and Youth Development, contact the University of Nebraska Lincoln Extension Office in your local county or visit the website at

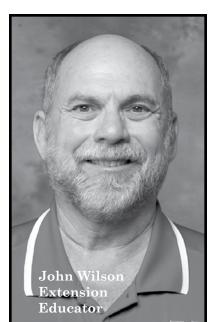

A group of northeast Nebraska youth traveled to Washington D.C. this summer to learn about civic involvement.

Now is the time to prepare for harvest

The rains last week ended the need for irrigation for many area farmers and with the way crops are maturing, harvest is right around the corner. Since it's still too wet to do much else, now might be a good time to prepare for harvest which will be here before we know it.

Growing a crop takes good management coupled with a little cooperation from Mother Nature. However, we have almost complete control on whether we keep that crop in good condition from harvest until it is fed or sold. Producing a good crop, only to have its condition deteriorate in storage, is an unnecessary loss of income. Last year, harvest progressed normally, but a few years ago, it was a disaster... caused by poor harvest and drying conditions. A lot of grain was harvested wet, conditions were not favorable for drying it in the bin, and some of the crop went out of condition in storage. Hopefully with crops maturing earlier, there will be plenty of opportunity for crops to dry in the field, reducing the need for and expense of drying

Proper cleanup before harvest coupled with good stored grain management will put more income in your pocket and keep your equipment and facilities in better condition. So before you head to the field, plan to keep your stored grain in good condition.

First, Pest Proof Bins: Repair all leaks and holes in bins so rain or snow can't get in and increase grain moisture and pockets of grain spoilage. Screen roof vents to exclude birds and other pests. Keep doors shut to keep birds and rodents out. Leave no holes or gaps larger that Second, Clean Outside Bins: Do not allow junk to accumulate or weeds and grass to grow tall next to your bins. These hiding places for rodents makes detecting their presence more difficult. Clean up spilled grain from loading and unloading areas so it won't attract insects, birds or rodents.

Third, Clean Inside Bins: Grain or grain debris may harbor insects and molds that can infest newly stored grains. For this reason, never put new grain on top of old grain. Thoroughly clean the bin with brooms, shovels and vacuum cleaners to remove old grain, cracked kernels, and grain debris. Clean walls, ceil-

Remove and burn all sweepings and fall, periodically check on it over the the managment dropdown menu or Fourth, Spray Bins: After the bin is thoroughly cleaned, spray the inside surfaces with a recommended grain protectant, ideally at least two weeks before storing grain. Check the insecticide label for rates and if it is appropriate for the type of grain you will store. Spray around all openings and into the seams. Spray removable doors, behind partitions and under perforated floors and aeration ducts. Before grain is put in the bin, sweep up and dispose of all dead insects.

Finally, Clean Harvest and Handling Equipment: Thoroughly clean trucks, combines, grain carts, augers, dryers and other equipment that might have old grain left in it from the last use. Such grain may contain insects and molds that could start new infestations in newly harvested grain.

Following these five steps won't insure safe grain storage, but it does greatly reduce the chance for probings, ledges, sills, and floors. Clean lems to develop in your bins. ${oldsymbol{John}\, McCain}\,\, talks\,\, about\,\, the\,\, Pledge$

John McCain's remarks about the pledge of allegiance:

"As you may know, I spent five and one half years as a prisoner of war during the Vietnam War. In the early years of our imprisonment, the NVA kept us in solitary confinement or two or three to a cell. In 1971 the North Vietnamese Army moved us from these conditions of isolation into large rooms with as many as 30 to 40 men to a room.

"This was, as you can imagine, a wonderful change and was a direct result of the efforts of millions of Americans on behalf of a few hundred POWs 10,000 miles from home. One of the men moved into my room was a young man named Mike Christian. Mike came from a small town near Selma, Ala. He didn't wear a pair of shoes until he was 13 years old. At 17, he enlisted in the US Navy. He later earned a commission by going to Officer Training School. Then he became a Naval Flight Officer and was shot down and captured in 1967. Mike had a keen and deep appreciation of the opportunities this country and our military provide for people who want to work and want to succeed.

"As part of the change in treatment, the Vietnamese allowed some prisoners to receive packages from home. In some of these packages were handkerchiefs, scarves and other items of clothing. Mike got himself a bamboo needle. Over a period of a couple of months, he created an American flag and sewed it on the inside of his shirt. Every afternoon, before we had a bowl of soup, we would hang Mike's shirt on the wall of the cell and say the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Farmer's Wife By: Pat Meierhenry

"I know the Pledge of Allegiance may not seem the most important part of our day now, but I can assure you that in that stark cell it was indeed the most important and meaningful event. One day, the Vietnamese searched our cell, as they did periodically, and discovered Mike's shirt with the flag sewn inside, and removed it.

That evening they returned, opened the door of the cell, and for the benefit of all of us, beat Mike Christian severely for the next couple of hours. Then, they opened the door of the cell and threw him in. We cleaned him up as well as we

"The cell in which we lived had a concrete slab in the middle on which we slept. Four naked light bulbs hung in each corner of the room. As I said, we tried to clean up Mike as well as we could. After the excitement died down, I looked in flag. He was not making the flag bethe corner of the room, and sitting cause it made Mike Christian feel there beneath that dim light bulb better. He was making that flag with a piece of red cloth, another shirt, and his bamboo needle, was my friend, Mike Christian. Agriculture's PR Problem

Why American Agriculture has a PR Crisis – It's a Problem for all of us. If your livelihood is Agriculture, then the ruling on Glyphosate last week affects you. Monsanto's public relations nightmare is our public relations nightmare. In the eye of many American consumers, Monsanto is the spawn of Satan. Polluting the earth with their poison and genetically modified seeds, they won't rest until we are all vanquished from the earth. Of course, we as farmers know that isn't true. Traits that are embedded in our seeds have eliminated millions of pounds of chemicals from being applied to our environment in the last 20 years. But regardless of fact or fiction, the Monsanto ruling last week effects each and every one of us in the court of public opinion.

By Keith Byerly If I ask a Farmer what they do, the answer is usually some Central Valley Ag variation of "I feed the world." There is perhaps not a more noble ACS Managei or simple mission statement in all of capitalism. How then, can a group of people who provide the world's most abundant, safe, and affordable food supply be so untrusted by the people that they serve? If I had an answer to that question, I would be making my fortune speaking to commodity groups and checkoff programs the world over. There is, no simple answer to the question, because it doesn't have a single event that triggered it, nor did it happen overnight. The truth of the matter is that all too often, we are forced to choose between science and people. We all know that scientific evidence shows that Glyphosate is "No more than slightly toxic to birds and is practically nontoxic to aquatic invertebrates and honeybees." When it came to the "scare" about traces of glyphosate in breakfast cereal, we are reminded that it is not the toxin, it is the dose. If science made decisions, then a jury couldn't have awarded the groundskeeper millions of dollars. But instead, people make decisions. It is the American consumer that gets to vote for what they want with their wallet, and we cannot force them into a decision they don't want We need help. We need our commodity groups, our checkoff programs, our corporate giants, our financial institutions, and our land-grant Universities to go to bat for us. We need every grower and their spouse that is on Twitter, Instagram, and Pinterest. We need every student in an Agriculture Program and every 2nd grader who went to a Dairy on a field trip. We need every single person who relies on the business of feeding the world to feed their own families, to engage in the message. And then we have to do it all of the time. When we are tired after a long day in the field. When we come into the house at 3 AM after pulling a calf in a blizzard. And even when we are at a swanky restaurant in a big city cutting into a steak, we have to engage the public.

If you genuinely don't believe that the American Farmer has lost the trust of the American public, look no further than Google. If I Google "is Monsanto bad" I am met with just under 4 million results. If I Google "is agriculture bad" I get 152 million results. With headlines like "Humanity's worst invention: Agriculture" and "Agriculture Is One of the Most Polluting and Dangerous Industries" it is hard to argue that we are beloved. We as an industry quickly point to the Ram commercial a few years ago which featured "God Made a Farmer" by Paul Harvey and talk about how much the public must love us. But the truth is, for some reason, there is a large section of consumers who are now inclined to believe that we place profits over people.

I have no idea who to credit this anecdote to, as I first heard it many years ago, but it is telling in where we are today. It's a story about four people named Everyone, Someone, Anyone, and No-one.

Agriculture's true story needed to be told and Everyone was sure that Someone would do it. Anyone could have done it, but No-one did it. Someone got angry about that because he thought that it was Everyone's job. Everyone thought that Anyone could do it, but No-one realized that Everyone wouldn't do it. It ended up that Everyone was angry with Someone because No-one did what Anyone could have done!

We can no longer just go about the business of running our operations. That isn't enough anymore. American Agriculture has a story to tell. The average American Consumer isn't going to change their opinion on their own. We must engage them with a combination of emotion and science. We must be purposeful and persistent. And we must be in it for the long haul. Because the reality is that without the average American family believing and trusting in us and the food we provide, we cannot stay in business and continue our heritage.
